Ohio Democrats Differ on Men but Get Together on Principles.

McLean Dictated Nominations of Convention.

Horace L. Chapman, a Mine Owner, Named for Governor.

Columbus, O., July 1.—The Democratic state convention here yesterday was the most largely attended of any such occasion since the Civil War. The Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 6000, had just been completed for the convention, and its capacity was not equal to the demands for admission.

The interior of the building was beautifully decorated with bunting and plants. There was a profusion of portraits of Democratic leaders about the walls, but those of ex-President Cleveland, Senator Brice and other gold men were not in the collection. The familiar picture of William J. Bryan was the center of attraction, and that of the late Allen G. Thurman was quite conspicuous.

It was a free silver convention throughout. While there were some differences of opinion about adopting the anti-trust and the Cuban resolutions, there was not a dissenting voice in the convention to the general satisfaction of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, without the co-operation of any other nation.

R. T. Hough, the favorite for governor, was slaughtered because of the opposition of the rural districts to the McLean men using the delegations from the cities to dictate the head of the ticket. Welty's name was not presented after his friends learned that Chapman had been agreed upon as the compromise candidate. Hough's name was withdrawn before the result of the first ballot was announced.

Although the McLean men had agreed to go to Chapman, they scatteerd their vote on the first ballot, and did not concentrate on Chapman on the second ballot any more than necessary to nominate, so as to dissipate as much as possible the report that McLean was naming the state ticket.

It is conceded that the McLean men had an understanding with Mr. Chapman and his managers before the convention met, and the vote of the strong McLean counties for Chapman bears out the report. In addition to the state ticket nominated there is an implied arrangement for John R. McLean for senator, with the state candidates as well as the party organization for him. Still it is reported that ex-Congressman Paul J. Sorg will also be in the field for senator.

Following is the ticket: Governor, Horace L. Chapman; lieutenant governor, Melville D. Shaw; supreme judge, J. P. Spriggs; attorney general, W. H. Dore; state treasurer, James F. Wilson; for board of public works, Peter H. Degnal; school commissioner, Byron H. Hard.

Mr. Chapman is a large owner and operator of coal mines in Jackson and other counties. He has also participated in Democratic campaigns, but has never held any office, and has never beore been a candidate. He has never had a strike in his mills and is popular with the miners.

The silver Republicans held a conference and expressed great indignation. They said it was true that they had announced they did not want a place on the state ticket, but the announcement was not made until after they were told they could not have it. They appointed a state committee to call a convention to nominate a separate ticket. The Populists also announced that they would hold a state convention and have a separate ticket. The Prohibitionists will have two separate tickets, so that there will be at least six state tickets in the field.

Idaho Indians on a Rampage.

Washington, July 1.—Senator Heitfeld of Idaho received another dispatch yesterday from Governor Steuenberg, dated at Boise Tuesday night, as follows: "Complaints continue today. Fences are being burned and cattle killed. Indians come from Lemhi, Umatilla, Fort Hall and Duck Valley reservations. They must disperse or trouble will soon follow." This was soon communicated to the interior department, and Secretary Bliss immediately wired Agent Irwin at Fort Hall to expedite his telegraphic report of the situation and call upon the agents at Lemhi, Umatilla and the western Shoshone (Duck Valley) agencies for reports.

Judge Cooley a Helpless Invalid.

Detroit, July 1.—A dispatch from Ann Arbor, Mich., to The News says that Judge Thomas M. Cooley, the noted authority of constitutional law, who served many years as justice of the supreme court, and who was later the head of the interstate commerce commission, has become a hopeless invalid. It is said that his health, already impaired by age and overwork, was further broken down by excessive work on the interstate commerce commission. His memory is almost gone, and his loss of power has been followed by deep melancholy.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS.

Transmission of Disease to Be Watched In a Herd of Thoroughbred Cattle.

Concord, N. H., July 1.—Freeman B. Shedd, a summer resident of Tilton, but who resides in Lowell, Mass., has donated to the state board of cattle commissioners 10 thoroughbred Holstein cattle, which have reacted to the tuberculin test, but which show no outward symptoms of tuberculosis.

These cattle will be kept under good sanitary conditions and the milk will be fed to pigs. These pigs will be slaughtered and the carcasses carefully inspected to note if any transmission of tuberculosis has taken place. Six of the cattle have been bred and their calves will be reared from their milk.

The entire herd will be given careful physical examination at frequent intervals and any animal in which tuberculosis is sufficiently advanced to be detected by this process will be immediately slaughtered and examined. The tuberculin tests will be made once in four months. Every animal in the herd is to be slaughtered and examined when no longer needed for experimental purposes. The experiment is not undertaken for the purpose of substantiating any particular theory, but simply for the purpose of gaining information in the interest of scientific investigation of bovine tbuerculosis. ecretary Bachelder will supervise the experiment.

Validity of a Dakota Divorce.

Boston, July 1.—The validity of a decree of a South Dakota court, entered in a divorce case, is involved in a case heard by Judge Putnam in the United States circuit court yesterday, in which Christine Hekking is seeking to secure an order of court which will compel her former husband, Henry Pfaff, Jr., to pay her $25,000, as ordered by the western court. The case is the first one of the kind ever brought into the courts here, and the decision is likely to make a precedent which will be of interest to parties to South Dakota divorces. A divorce was granted in 1892 at Sioux Falls. There was no provision for alimony, but later, after Mr. Pfaff inherited a large property by the death of his father, the wealthy brewer, the case was reopened and the court ordered alimony to the amount of $25,000. As Mr. Praff was not in South Dakota, Miss Hekking entered suit in the United States court in Boston. She seeks to have the order of the South Dakota court enforced.

Life Depends on Pardon.

Salem, Mass., July 1.—Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan, who is now imprisoned in Salem jail, is a very sick man. He has had a hemorrhage of the lungs and the doctors state that Mr. O'Sullivan is suffering from a severe and acute attack of catarrhal pneumonia, which in itself is a very dangerous disease, and may lead to fatal complications. The medical examiners say: "It is our opinion that Mr. O'Sullivan's life depends upon his being pardoned, so that he can seek a congenial climate, the best of treatment and be free from worry." The case has been reported to the proper authorities. There is no truth in the story that Mr. O'Sullivan has been obliged to work 14 hours a day since he has been confined in the jail. He has been a model prisoner, cheerful and never complaining, and was given one of the best berths in the institution, being employed in the cook room, where his actual duties do not occupy over three hours a day.

The Fight For King's Money.

Providence, July 1.—There was a hearing yesterday before Chief Justice Matteson on a motion made by the heirs of Millionaire William H. King of Newport that Mrs. Eugenia Webster Ross of New York be ordered to appear before some tribunal or notary and submit details as to her claim that the deceased, who died in Butler asylum, is her uncle. They argue that she should be compelled, if she desires to maintain her claim in the Rhode Island courts, to make statements as to the history and parentage of her uncle and herself. This motion was opposed by Mrs. Ross' counsel, who say that she prefers not to disclose her case until it comes to trial.

Fifty Years a Teacher.

Lowell, Mass., July 1.—The pupils of Miss Martha Neal, who completed on Wednesday, June 23, her 50 years of continuous service as a teacher in the public schools of Lowell, and who tendered her resignation on that day, gave her a rousing reception in high school hall last night. Men and women came unannounced from all over the east in answer to the general invitation. There was a profusion of floral tributes, and as she sat upon the platform she was styled "the uncrowned queen." There were numerous short speeches.

SCIENTIFIC ROWING.

Cornell Freshmen Won, Columbia Second, Pennsylvania Third.

Boats Lapped Each Other During Half the Race.

All Three Crews Used Purely American Methods---Columbia's Great Spirit.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 1.—The Cornell freshmen, who a week ago finished third in their race with Yale and Harvard, last evening won the triangular race with the freshmen of Columbia and Pennsylvania. Cornell led at the finish by less than a boat length over Columbia, and three-quarters of a length behind the New Yorkers came the Pennsylvanians.

The race was the closest ever rowed between freshmen eights in American waters. The three boats were lapped from start to finish. Cornell rowed the same slow stroke that won her the 'varsity race on Friday.

It was anybody's race, and the fact that but two seconds divided the first and last crews, and that the boats lapped over each other very nearly a half, is evidence of the character of the struggle. That such a struggle was only watched by a small sized crowd is a misfortune for those who missed seeing it. The time is not record breaking, because Yale made the same course in 9m. 19½s. last Wednesday, but both Columbia, finishing second, and Pennsylvania, finishing third, made better time than did Harvard and Cornell, finishing in the same places last Tuesday.

The feature of the race was the wonderful spurt made by the Columbia youngsters in the last half mile, when they closed up a gap between themselves and Cornell so fast that had there been another eighth of a mile to row they would probably have been in first place. A second feature was the remarkable rowing of the Pennsylvania crew, which had been said by its trainer to be in very bad shape. This crew is a very much inferior crew to the Pennsylvania 'varsity crew, and the critics are wondering whether Ellis Ward has not got something "up his sleeve" for Friday's race.

The race is looked upon as one of the most creditable exhibitions ever given. The only criticism made is that Dr. Walter Peet, the referee, kept the crews waiting so long at their stake boats with their oars dipped that the nervous strain took off at least two seconds from the time.

After Referee Peet, in his clumsy boat, which seemed to want the whole river to turn in, had kept the crews waiting at their stake boats for some five or six minutes, the youngsters showing the strain they were under, the pistol start was given and the crews were off.

Pennsylvania Gets Away First.

Pennsylvania caught the water first with a swift, strong stroke that showed the nose of her boat clearly ahead of the others. Cornell and Columbia started a trifle more easily, and Cornell fell slightly to the rear of the New Yorkers. All started at a 36 stroke, but Cornell, true to the Courtney training, dropped down to 33, while Columbia kept it up at 35, and Pennsylvania was hitting away at 33. At the eighth of a mile, Pennsylvania was leading the Columbia boat by an eighth of a length, while Cornell was a quarter of a length behind the Columbia boat. Cornell was rowing easily, while the other two were fighting it out for first place. But the Cornell stroke had its effect, and at the quarter of a mile Cornell had drawn up even with Columbia, while Pennsylvania still had her quarter length lead.

Down to the half this continued, when Cornell drew up on Pennsylvania and away from Columbia. Viciously Pennsylvania hit the water, and the boat seemed to fly in the effort to hold that lead, but slowly and surely the Cornell boat went on inch by inch, shoving out beyond the Pennsylvania's. Columbia, too, was coming along, and the Pennsylvania lead of a quarter of a length was reduced in the next quarter to a bare eighth. Then the Quakers did fight for life, and down to the end of the first mile there was a terrific race for a place.

So this continued for another half mile down to the mile and a half point. First the nose of the Pennsylvania boat would begin to draw away from the Columbia, and then Columbia would draw up on Pennsylvania.

Entering the last it was clearly seen by the condition of the men in the three boats that there would be a struggle that would be memorable. At this point, Cornell had a lead of a quarter of a length over Pennsylvania and Columbia was an eighth of a length behind Pennsylvania. Columbia's stroke oar caught a crab at this juncture and lost about four strokes, but quickly fell in.

Whether this had any disastrous effect upon the boat or not was not apparent from the train, but just following it Columbia hit up the stroke from the first 35 they had been rowing uniformly during the race to a faster 36. Cornell had made the lead three-quarters of a length, and was still going when that spurt started, and when it was fairly under way had a length advantage. Then the boat of Columbia seemed to lift itself out of the water, Pennsylvania responded with a 35 stroke, but the long shell of the New Yorkers fairly lifted itself along and went by the Pennsylvania boat and after the Cornell shell like a thing bewitched. On it went, the bow lapping the rudder post of the Cornell boat and creeping up toward the stroke oar. Frantically did the little 16-year-old coxswain call to the crew, and well did they respond, but just as the nose of the boat lined even with the stroke oar of the Cornell crew the two boats crossed the line and Cornell was a winner by three-quarters of a length. Pennsylvania whipped in the last five or six strokes and finished only half a length behind Columbia. Not a man in either boat was distressed after this remarkable exhibition.

THE APPEAL of the residents of Houghs Neck for the improvement of Sea street is of interest to a much larger part of the inhabitants of this city than at first appears at a superficial glance. Houghs Neck, is, as of course everybody knows who is acquainted with the topography of Quincy, a peninsula jutting into Boston bay, having the waters of the beautiful Quincy bay upon one side, and Weymouth, Fore river and Hingham bay upon the other. From the summit of Great Hill may be obtained one of the most picturesque views on the coast.

For generations our fathers and grandfathers and, it might be said with truth, their ancestors have visited this lovely spot. But, to reach the beach, it has been necessary to brave the terrors of a road, which if it were not for the beautiful view of the sea, would have degenerated into a cart path years ago. As it is, this road is narrow, ill kept, either stiflingly dusty or wollowing in mud. This is Quincy's only seashore drive.

The location for a sea bound boulevard for the people of this city could hardly be improved upon. For four miles it passes through a gently undulating country, skirted by one of the most beautiful of cemeteries and also one of the finest kept farms in the state as well as a long stretch of water front.

But Quincy, unlike Milton, Brookline, and the Newtons, although a city of magnificent views and charming locations for drives, has persistently failed to improve the gifts which nature has bestowed upon her with a lavish hand. Milton, and the other communities named, have, with statesmanship forethought, seen that their prosperity depended almost wholly upon good roads. How they have carried these projects through and become, in proportion to the number of inhabitants, the richest communities in the state, is current history. Quincy, upon the other hand, has pursued a diametrically oppposite policy. The difference in the two policies is so marked that comment and comparison are unnecessary.

Sea street, to Houghs Neck, is travelled by hundreds of people daily during the season. At its terminus is the second largest yacht club on the Massachusetts coast. The inhabitants of the place pay into the city treasury annually a large tax; then ask for no schools and the expense to the city so far as maintenance goes is practically nothing. In other words the thousands of dollars which they have paid in taxes to the city has been what might be called from a business point of view, "clear profit."

The expense of this proposed improvement would not be prohibitory. If it is found inexpedient to reconstruct all of this road in one year, that section between the Mount Wollaston cemetery and Mosquito bridge, which is the worst part of the drive, could receive the first attention.

The city government, through some unexplainable cause, has always treated this section of Quincy in a peculiar manner. Although its summer population amounts to hundreds of people not even a single kerosene street light illuminates its principal street. It shows a short sightedness which it is fortunate for this commonwealth that all of its cities do not attempt to imitate.

The residents of Houghs Neck do not demand anything from the city, but they do ask that the council, as a matter of justice, grant them at least one improvement, one which not only themselves, but the entire city is interested. One which benefits equally the rich man with his carriage and the man with his wheel, in other words make Sea street the peoples' boulevard.

PRETTY RECEPTION.

Class of '97 of Woodward Institute Receive.

Assisted by Miss Carrie E. Small, the Principal.

Elaborate Decoration, Grand Music, and a Happy Occasion.

The reception of the Class of '97 of Woodward Institute on Wednesday evening was a charming occasion, the whole school building being thrown open to the many friends of the graduates and the school. Miss Carrie E. Small, the principal, and the six graduates—Mabel Louise Drew, Eugenia Maynard Hatch, Mabel Gordon McKenzie, Helen Arabella Mitten, Alice Grafton Thompson, and Anna Josephine Walsh—received in the easterly corner of the large hall which was a bower of flowers, ferns and plants.

Everywhere about the building there were floral decorations and the class color, violet, was prominent in the motto "Be Traist" and in the dress of the graduates. The enlarged building was visited by many for the first time, and teachers and pupils were congratulated on the appointments.

As the guests arrived they were presented to the receiving party by members of the junior class, Miss Maud Macfarlane, Miss Georgianna Shea, Miss Bertha Waldron, Miss Mary Sullivan, Miss Mamie Dolliver and Miss Mary Dunn.

Delightful music was furnished in the hall by Gott's orchestra, while on the second floor there was a creditable exhibition of drawings and light refreshments. The latter was served by Miss Eva Feltis, Miss Ethel Rinn, Miss Grace Eaton, Miss Helen Claflin, Miss Florence Wilson and Miss Eva Phillips.

The following young ladies also acted as ushers about the building: Miss Pauline Jones, Miss Mary Elcock, Miss Mary Jones, Miss Stella Cannon, Miss Elizabeth O'Neil, Miss Marie Fegan.

Early in the evening there was considerable speculation as to whether there would be dancing. Mr. Henry H. Faxon took it upon himself to provide this enjoyment if possible. The musicians could not enlighten him as to whether it was on the programme or not, and Miss Small hesitated in the presence of the board of directors. Mr. Faxon buttonholed the ministers, who comprise this board. While they hesitated they offered no objection, and about ten o'clock Miss Small yielded to the popular desire, and dancing was entered into heartily by nearly all present, those not dancing enjoyed looking on.

Although the reception hours were from eight until eleven, the pleasures were prolonged until nearly midnight.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

July.

Delightful weather.

The Italians hold their annual picnic a New Downer Landing on Saturday.

The last school graduations for this year are over and now for a ten weeks' vacation.

The Sunday School of Christ church is enjoying a picnic today at "Seven Oaks."

Walter Fegan of St. John's Ecclesiastical seminary, Brighton, is spending the vacation season at home.

Mr. John Cashman, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, has so far recovered he is able to be out.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Stetson leave next week for Europe. They expect to be gone during July and August.

The carpenters have about completed repairs on the Quincy Point church which already shows an improvement.

The Quincy Shoe company is convinced that it pays to advertise, for there has been a demand for its men's shoes.

The Breeders' Association open their second meeting at the Readville park Wednesday. Judge at Law won the 2 30 class in 2.15¼, and Eager the 2 14 class in 2.14½

The Quincy & Boston and Braintree street railways were represented at the meeting Wednesday at Young's hotel of the Massachusetts street railway association.

The first section of the Boynton bicycle railway will be built from Dudley street, Boston, through Quincy to Brockton, a distance of 20 miles. A survey will soon be made.

Atlantic now has another carriage line from the depot, but to all observers there was hardly business enough to keep the one alive who was doing the work well enough.

Miss Carrie E. Small, principal of the Woodward Institute, has gone today to chaperon some young ladies of the Boston Latin school on a yachting excursion along the North shore.

The new druggist in the Duggan block at Atlantic is doing a thriving business, and the people of Ward Six are now wondering how they have managed so long without a store of this kind.

There is a movement among the clerks in the centre to have the stores close three nights in the week instead of two as now. Most of the business concerns are willing to grant the extra night.

Fruit and flowers for the Boston Mission, are to be left with Mrs. E. C. Butler at the Unitarian chapel, lower door, Friday P M, July 2, from 4 to 5.30, and Saturday A M., from 8 to 8.15 Contributions solicited.

The Water department was prompt this month in sending out water bills for they were delivered by the first mail this morning. If they are only paid as promptly the city will save interest on borrowed money.

The interior of the Memorial church, Atlantic, has been newly painted and presents a very neat and tasty appearance. The ladies of the Benevolent society are entitled to the credit of this much needed improvement.

Mr. Fred Thayer of South street, lost on Wednesday, a valuable cow from sickness. The loss is a heavy one for Mr. Thayer who has lately met with more or less misfortune. He has the sympathy of his many friends.

The Granite City club held its regular ladies' night whist party Wednesday evening. Prizes were captured by Miss Nellie F. Nightingale and Mrs. Charles F. Pettengill. Ice cream, strawberries and cake were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gannett of Wollaston have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Caroline Belle Gannett, to Mr. James Martin Nowland, principal of the Adams school, at Baptist church, Wollaston, July fifteenth.

The Rev. J. H. Whittaker of Boston has filled the pulpit of the Memorial church, Atlantic, the past two Sundays and the congregations have been very much pleased with him. It is not improbable that a call may be extended him to become the pastor.

The Bethany Congregagational church tenders the church choir a picnic on Saturday afternoon. A special electric will convey the party to Fort Point where the afternoon will be enjoyed in partaking of one of Anderson's shore dinners and in wandering about the beach.

Many of our local riders are already entered for the eight mile race to be run here Monday. With such flyers as Dunn, Anderson, McCabe, Sutherland and Blair, there should be a good race. E. H. McLean, the runner, who has taken to cycling will also start if he does not break his pedal cranks. The prize list is the best ever offered for a local race, they will be on exhibition tonight in Hearn's window.

Referring recently to the resignation of teachers at the Coddington school we stated that Misses Forsaith, Day and Bates were valuable teachers. Miss Oxford was not included as she well might have been, as she was a conscientious and satisfactory teacher, but our point was that the three mentioned were so valuable that they were sought by cities paying higher prices. With Miss Oxford it was different as she resigned because of a matrimonial alliance, and Quincy's loss is a young man's gain.

New Vapor Stoves.

It's just fun to cook in summer, if you own a vapor stove, and when you consider the saving of fuel, the saving of time, and the absolute comfort that goes with them, it's no wonder people everywhere are beginning to use them.

No Coal, No Wood, No Smell, No Smoke, No Dust, No Ashes. A fire piping hot in a twinkling, ready to bake or to roast, and just by the touch of a finger, it's cold as charity when you're done.

They are economical from beginning to end, and cost almost nothing to run. After using them once, you'll wonder how you ever lived without one. The new process. 1 Burner, $3.50; 2 Burner, $5.00; 3 Burner, $7 5).

About Our Coffee.

Do you know the prices we are making on Coffee? Are you acquainted with the quality of Coffee we sell? The very best Coffee only costs half a cent per cup if it is properly made. The best Mocha and Java we sell for 35c. per lb. There are very few dealers who carry this high grade Coffee, for, as they say, they can't make as much money on it as they can on cheaper grades—that is why they all try to sell something cheaper.

We always try to sell you something better than you had last. We don't want you to think that this is all the kind we carry in stock, however, for we keep all the different grades in Coffee, and we are bound to suit you.

We believe in giving credit where credit is due, and from a long trial (more than ten years) of Chase & Sanborn's Coffees, we are convinced that they are of the best grown and imported into this country. The Seal Brand in cans and Old Government Java are especially nice and you will make no mistake if you buy and use either. We have cheaper grades like Rio and Mararíato and all kinds of good, sound, reliable goods. Our coffee trade is large and is a feature in our business.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Number of Voters at the Beach on the Increase.

This is moving day with many who have rented cottages for the month of July and several loads of furniture have arrived.

The cottagers are pleased to learn that the DAILY LEDGER is with them for the improvement of Sea street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson of Centerville are at the beach for a few weeks.

There will be a sheriff sale at the beach on Friday, and thereby hangs a tale.

The voters of Houghs Neck promise to become a factor in Ward one elections. The Assessors have this year assessed for a poll tax 44 persons in the peninsular district, whose place of residence is given as Sea street. In addition to these there are 15 on Bicknell street and 5 on Palmer street at at Germantown, a grand total of 64. The Sea street residents who can vote by registering are:

Franklin Jacobs, James N. Blake, John Ford, Charles F. Adams 2d, George C. Adams, Joseph W. Dennen, Fred W. Tirrell, John Thomas, William McNiff, Stephen Hofferty, Patrick Colman, Thomas Gannon, Ed. Cummings, Edward C. Beals, J. Stanley Mears, George W. Rackham, Frank C. Perry, Joseph Veader, John P. Sullivan, Arthur H. Dunham, Bartlett Derry, Wm. Slaunwhite, Walter D. Littlefield, William Faxon, Waldo H. Taylor, John Dolan, John H. Bohan, W. I. Tuckerman, Thomas M. Alexander, Frederick W. Anderson, J. L. Harvey, John Milton, W. H Ferris, Martin L French, Frank J. Leonard, John A. Borlan, Arthur Reynolds, John A. Turner, George Pawsey, Robert Pawsey, Fred Delorey, James Holland, Joseph Hill, Frank Morse.

Mr. Lloyd Hoey will represent the Quincy DAILY LEDGER and Quincy PATRIOT at Houghs Neck this season, and asks the cooperation of all that this resort may be properly represented in public print. Drop him a postal and he will call at any time, or leave items for him in the LEDGER news boxes at J. L. Harvey's and Milton's bakery. Or news may be forwarded directly to the office of publication by the morning mail. The LEDGER wants a news item from every cottage every day.

Harvard Graduates.

Quincy continues to be well represented among Harvard graduates. Six young men from the City of Presidents received the degree of A. B. on Wednesday, a number equalled by very few cities outside of Boston and Cambridge. They were:

Everett Chauncey Bumpus,
Irville Fay Davidson,
Denis Francis Greany,
Charles Henry Hardwick,
Robert Brastow Porter,
Edwin Bartlett Pratt,

From neighboring towns they were: Reginald L Robbins and Michael Francis Barrett of Hingham; Sinclair Kennedy of Readville; Alexander Haven Ladd of Milton.

☞ The Wabash Railroad continues to cater to the travelling public in the most up-to-date way with through sleeping cars from Boston to Chicago and St. Louis, vestibuled trains, parlor and dinging cars, and rates as low as any for such service. Its freight service shows the same desire to serve the public. Daily merchandise cars are run from Boston to St. Louis and to Kansas City and Denver, making on the the Wabash rails an average running time, including stops, of 21 miles per hour, Shippers, to obtain this service, should see that their shipping receipts are marked "via Wabash Railroad." 22-tf

COTHAM'S MYSTERY.

Detectives Trying to Find Murderer of Man Whose Body Was Sawed Up.

New York, July 1.—Captain Stephen O'Brien of the detective bureau has given out a long statement regarding the mysterious, headless body case. It contains the story of the identification of the body as that of Guldensuppe by his associates at the Murray Hill baths, Mrs. Pauline Riger's version of the sale of the oil cloth to a woman at Astoria, L. I., last week, and Mrs. Augusta Mack's confession of relationship with Guldensuppe since she parted from her husband. Mrs. Riger is not positive that the Nack woman was the purchaser of the oilcloth, and the prisoner avers that she saw Guldensuppe last Saturday morning about 7 o'clock.

The two legs missing from the corpse of Guldensuppe were found near the receiving ship Vermont at the Cob dock at the Brooklyn navy yard yesterday. The legs were wrapped in white oil cloth. The legs were brought to this city and they were found to fit the body of the body of the murdered man.

Captain O'Brien sent detectives to search the rooms in which Mrs. Nack lived. They found the furniture and personal effects all packed, as if ready for removal. The only suspicious articles which they found and carried away, were a revolver, a small hand saw, a butcher knife and a steel. A magnifying glass showed there were stains on the saw, which the detectives were inclined to think were blood stains, and some material seemed to still stick to the teeth of the saw. The butcher knife was an instrument old and dull, and was covered with stains which seemed to be those of rust. There was nothing on the steel to indicate that it had been used for any criminal purpuse.

Captain O'Brien, when questioned as to whether he thought the woman was guilty of the alleged murder, replied that he did not wish to make any direct answer to the question without further investigation, but that if the body was that of Guldensuppe he believed that this woman knew something of the crime. He described her as being a woman of large physique and a quick temper. He added that is her story that she had seen Guldensuppe between 3 and 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and that she had received notes from him on Monday and Tuesday was correct, of course the identification of the body was wrong and she would be guiltless.

Iron Mills Shut Down.

Youngstown, O., July 1.—Every mill in the United States whose wage scales are under the jurisdiction of the Amalagamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers shut down last night. These mills altogether employ 25,000 men, who are members of the Amalagamated association, besides those who are not. The general shutdown took place on account of the failure of the Amalagamated association scale committee and the manufacturers to agree on a puddling rate at the conference held here yesterday.

Republican Committee Headquarters.

Cleveland, July 1.—The headquarters of the national Republican committee are to be located in Cleveland. They will be transferred from Washington to the famous Perry Payne building in Cleveland, where Hanna conducted the national Republican campaign. The Washington headquarters will be kept open, but will be in charge of an attache of the national committee. Chairman Hanna and Secretary Dick expect to be at the Cleveland headquarters all summer.

Murder on the Indiana.

New York, July 1.—Thomas J. Kenny, master-at-arms of the battleship Indiana, was murdered last night on board the ship anchored at the Brooklyn navy yard, Philip F. Carter, who enlisted from Boston in the fall of 1895, plunging a bayonet into the body of the unfortunate officer. Carter had been drinking, and Kenny ordered the men not to serve him any more beer.

Czar Writes Sultan Again.

London, July 1.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: Emperor Nicholas has again written the sultan urging him to accelerate the peace negotiations by renouncing demands with which it is impossible for Greece to comply. As a result of this letter the sultan has virtually accepted the terms of the powers, leaving only details to be settled.

Complaint Thrown Out.

Brooklyn, July 1.—United States Commissioner Morle has dismissed the complaint in the action of the government against Thomas C. Smith. Mr. Smith is the father-in-law of ex-Paymaster Corwine, U. S. N., and was accused by the government of receiving United States funds from his son-in-law in payment of a personal debt.

Population of Massachusetts.

Boston, July 1.—The annual report of Horace G. Wadlin, chief of the bureau of statistics of labor, gives the total native population of the state as 1,735,553; foreign born population, 764,930. The male population is, native, 848,312; foreign, 366,389. Female population, native, 886,941; foreign, 398,541.

Funeral of Hoey.

New York, July 1.—The funeral of the late William F. Hoey, "Old Hoss," was held in this city last night. Rev. W. J. Sharsha officiated. Many actors and actresses were in attendance.

Steamer Alecto Overdue.

Boston, July 1.—Considerable anxiety is felt here regarding the Wilson line steamer Alecto, which left Hull, Eng., on June 12, and is now many days overdue.

SEWER WORK.

Progressing Favorably at Several Points—What is Being Done.

Work on the brick sewer has begun in earnest and from now on work will be rapidly pushed forward until, at least section one has been completed. At present the contractors are at work in three different places.

At Merry Mount park work was commenced at the road, or south entrance, to the park and is being worked backward toward the pumping station. Something like twenty-four men are at work at this point and the foreman in charge claims that they are now building about thirty-two feet per day of the 30 by 45 inch sewer. The digging here is quite easy, as it is soft marshy land, although the pumps are at work most of the time keeping the trench clear of water. When the trench has reached the proper depth, which at this point is thirteen feet below the surface, a drain is laid to carry off the water. On this a foundation of cement and gravel is made and then the brick sewer which is egg shaped.

Besides work at this point, the contractors have commenced work tunnelling under Greenleaf street, and on Newcomb street extension a trench some fifty feet in length has been started and has reached quite a depth. Here also it is necessary to keep the pumps in operation to keep the trench clear. No brick has been laid at this point as yet.

At the pumping station work is also in progress. The location of this station is in a marsh, and digging for the foundation is therefore slow work. The foundation must be placed very deep to prevent it sinking. Here also a steam pump it kept working night and day.

Much of the force main, which is being laid by day labor, is already under ground, and the men are now at work laying the pipe on Hancock street, between Beach street and Wollaston avenue.

Accidentally Shot.

Lawrence, the seven-year old son of Charles E. White of Union street, was shot in the left hand Wednesday by the accidental discharge of his father's revolver, which he was handling at the time. The revolver was locked up in his father's shop but the boy became possessed with the idea that it was time to celebrate, and breaking a window in the shop, got possession of the revolver and was examining it, when it was discharged. The ball passed through the fingers of his hand and grazed his leg. A physician was summoned and the wound dressed.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of James F. Gaynor, for keeping liquor with intent to sell at Randolph, was called and again continued two weeks.

Nicholas Carey was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until July 10.

Andrew Good was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Murwell Ballucci was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy and was placed in the care of Probation Officer Spear for three months.

GEO. H. FIELD,
Deputy Sheriff.
Quincy, June 30. 3t

The sweetness of the first embrace with the woman of his choice will always linger in a man's mind. It is a pity that the sweet memory should ever be poisoned by the taint of ill-health and consequent unhappiness. It is sad that the flower of a happy remembrance should be obscured and killed by the noxious weeds of sickness and sorrow. Too frequently this is the case. A woman cannot be a happy, helpful amiable wife who suffers from weakness and disease at the very mainsprings of her nature. Pity may grow up to take its place, but love itself seldom survives where this is the case. If a woman will, she may always hold her place in a man's mind and heart. If she will take the right care of herself in a womanly way she will never lose her rightful inheritance, a husband's love.

The best of all known medicines for women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the important and delicate organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible and makes them strong and well. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones up and builds up tired nerves. It prepares for almost pangless motherhood and insures healthy children. Thousands of women who were sickly, nervous, fretful invalids are now happy, cheerful and helpful wives as a result of its use. All good medicine dealers keep it and there is nothing "just as good." Any dealer who tries to persuade you that there is, is thinking more of his profit than of your welfare and health.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a safe, sure, speedy, permanent cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Druggists sell them, and no other pills are as good.

NEURALGIA
BOUND HIM WITH BANDS OF PAIN

He Is now Cured, and He Thanks God and P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, For It.

Mr. George Briggs, of Moore, Okla., suffered almost indescribable torment for three long years. Neuralgia held him captive. The right side of his face was so badly affected that the slightest touch would cause the unfortunate man intense agony. For several weeks he could open his mouth just wide enough to be fed with liquid nourishment, and in this manner life was sustained. Read the following extract from his letter: "Truth is stranger than Fiction."

NEURALGIA, CATARRH AND RHEUMATISM COMPLETELY CURED.

George Briggs, of Moore, Oklahoma, writes that P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him of catarrh, facial neuralgia and rheumatism, after three years of intense suffering. The pain lay in his cheek bone and temple, down the right side of his face, along his upper lip, and from the slightest touch he suffered agonies for weeks at a time. Could only open his mouth wide enough to admit a teaspoon, and any acid in his food would put him in torture. He had a consultation of the best physicians in Texas, but all to no purpose.

Catarrh and rheumatism were also causing him much trouble, until he tried P. P. P. He says he is well and will swear that there are no cases of neuralgia, catarrh and rheumatism, no matter how chronic or how old the cases are, that P. P. P. will not make a total cure of.

Mr. Briggs winds up his testimony by saying he thanks God and our medicine, P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for the great cure.

Kidney troubles, if neglected, bring about serious and painful and very often fatal results. P. P. P. removes the irregularities, and cures the diseased parts.

Dyspepsia and indigestion, skin and blood diseases, can be speedily removed by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

Ladies, take P. P. P. and rid your face of pimples, blotches, freckles, yellow or muddy skin, wrinkles and vulgar redness.

Sold by all druggists.

Shot Wife, Daughter and Self.

Somerville, Mass., July 1.—A tenement house on Evergreen avenue was the scene of an attempted double murder and suicide last night. Robert Shaw, an Englishman, 55 years of age, a fruit pedlar, shot his wife three times, attempted to shoot his step-daughter and fired a bullet from a 41-calibre revolver into his own throat. Shaw and his wife are now in the hospital, both in a critical condition, with the chances slightly more favorable for his wife's recovery than for his own. The daughter received only a flesh wound.

Heat at Chicago.

Chicago, July 1.—The hot weather continued yesterday, the mercury reaching its highest point, 86, at 10 p. m. During the afternoon the highest was 85, at 5 p. m., but the humidity was so great that the suffering was intense. There were two deaths—Frederick Brandell, who died of heart disease aggravated by the heat, and Patrick Smiley, who fell dead in a saloon.

Return of President Andrews.

Providence, July 1.—President Andrews of Brown university has returned from his trip abroad. He talked freely of his journey, but refused to say anything concerning the recent action of the corporation as he regards it as a purely personal matter. He had heard no rumor that he contemplated resigning, but on the contrary he is prepared to take up the university work at once. He said he was not in a position to state whether or not Mr. Rockefeller had made a large money gift to Brown.

Beat His Wife.

Fall River, Mass., July 1.—Thomas Scanlon, the well known wrestler, so cruelly beat and wounded his wife yesterday that there are serious doubts of her recovery. He knocked her down and kicked her, and a pitcher, which she held, was broken against her head, making a deep cut and severing two arteries. She is suffering from concussion of the brain and lies in a critical condition. Scanlon was arrested.

Would-Be Rescuer Drowned.

Boston, July 1.—While a boy, whose name is unknown, was in swimming near the Cottage Farm bridge, Brighton district, yesterday, he was seized with cramps and became helpless. Joseph Evans, colored, attempted to rescue him, but was unable to do so, and both were drowned.

Ex-Governor Plaisted's Condition.

Bangor, Me., July 1.—The condition of ex-Governor Plaisted has improved somewhat in the past few days. His illness is of a very serious nature, and he is not expected to live long, but it is thought that there is no immediate danger of death.

Running a Free Shop.

Hudson, Mass., July 1.—The Rubber Workers' union have decided to keep up the strike at the Apsley Rubber company's factory. The plant is now running on a "free shop" basis.

Going Into Dry Dock.

Boston, July 1.—The cruiser Marblehead came up from the town for which she is named yesterday. As soon as possible she will be placed in the dry dock at the navy yard for a general overhauling, which will probably take some weeks.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), don't get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

RETOUCHING THE BILL.

Senators Have About Completed Work on New Tariff Schedules.

Hawaiian and Reciprocity Provisions Taken Up.

Mr. Turpie Makes a Bitter Assault Upon Protection---Final Vote Not Far Off.

Washington, July 1.—The senate is now retouching the tariff bill and in a day or two the final vote will be taken. Several important provisions which had been passed over were disposed of yesterday. Among them were the Hawaiian treaty, the reciprocity clause and the duty on coal. A large number of minor schedules were also acted upon. The feature of the day's proceedings was an assault upon the pending bill by Senator Turpie of Indiana, who argued in favor of a 2 per cent tax on inheritances. The senator's speech was marked by emphatic and expressive periods, and interspersed with picturesque metaphors.

After asserting that the tariff bill would not provide sufficient revenue, Mr. Turpie said that no measure had ever been presented making "so large and unprovoked a spoliation of the world's commerce." There was "compound larceny" in nearly every schedule. One-third of the bill was a declaration of war against France, Germany and the continent of Europe. We had hopefully looked toward the trade of South America, but this bill made it almost a penal offense to carry on trade with the people of the Southern republics.

Mr. Turpie denounced the protective system in bitter terms, his unique figures of speech attracting much attention. Referring to the enormous bounty to go to the wool manufacturers he declared it was not for the interest of the sheep, but for the wolf in sheep's clothing, who would strip from the babe in its cradle the articles essential to its use. We had developed in this country a new breed of animals. "They are the tariff swine," exclaimed Mr. Turpie, "the high protective tariff swine. They are voracious feeders with fierce appetites and a regard only for the infant industry of bristles."

Mr. Turpie spoke for about two hours, and received close attention, owing to the picturesqueness of his utterances. He closed with a reference to the silver question, asserting that there was no more right to abandon the free coinage of silver than to abandon the free coinage of gold.

The debate then came back to the amendment on bleaching powder. The finance committee provision was passed.

The Hawaiian treaty provision was then taken up. Mr. Allison stating that it had been determined to retain the house proviso to paragraph 206.

Mr. Allison briefly explained that in view of the treaty of annexation which had been made it seemed best to retain the house provision, leaving the reciprocity treaty in statue quo. The proposal to concur in the house provision was then agreed to.

The Reciprocity Provision.

Mr. Allison gave notice of a new section of the bill relating to reciprocity, as follows:

Whenever the President of the United States, with a view to secure reciprocal trade with foreign countries shall, within the period of two years from and after the passage of this act, enter into commercial treaty or treaties with any other country or countries, concerning the admission into any such country or countries of the goods, wares and merchandise of the United States and their use and disposition therein, deemed to be for the interest of the United States, and in such treaty or treaties in consideration of the advantage accruing to the United States therefrom, shall provide for the reduction during a specified period not exceeding five years of the duties imposed by this act, to the extent of not more than 20 per cent thereof upon such goods, wares or merchandise as may be designated therein of the country or countries with which such treaty or treaties shall be made, as in this section provided for; or shall provide for the transfer during such period from the dutiable list of this act to the free list thereof of such goods, wares, and merchandise, being the natural products of such foreign country or countries and not of the United States, and shall provide for the retention upon the free list of this act during a specified period not exceeding five years of such goods, wares and merchandise now included in said free list, as may be designated therein; and when any such treaty shall have been duly ratified and proclamation made accordingly, then and thereafter the duties shall be collected by the United States upon any of the designated goods, wares and merchandise from the foreign country with which such treaty has been made shall, during the period provided for, be the duties specified and provided for in such treaty and none other.

The reciprocity amendment went over at Mr. Allison's request.

The vote was then taken on the coal paragraph as changed, and it was agreed to—31 to 24.

The free list was then taken up and further perfected before adjournment.

Triple Suicide Attempted.

St. Louis, July 1.—What appears to have been a deliberate attempt at triple suicide was made near Wellsville, Mo. Three men lying side by side, with their heads upon the rail, were struck by Wabash train No. 6, due in St. Louis at an early hour this morning. The first man's head was cut off, the second one's head was smashed and the third received serious internal injuries. Physicians say there is no hope for the recovery of the injured men. Names are unknown.

Died With Fiancee.

New York, July 1.—The annual excursion of the County Cork men was held yesterday, two barges being taken out by the tug Laura M. Starin. There was a large crowd aboard, and while off Liberty island, Miss Nora Murphy of 333 East Thirty-eighth street fell overboard. Bartholomew Clancy, to whom the young woman was affianced, jumped after her and both were drowned.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Boston—
Boston won another game in the ninth inning yesterday from Brooklyn. Klobedanz split a finger in the morning practice and Lewis was put in the box. Yeager broke a bone in his left hand and will not be able to play for two or three weeks. The batting of Stahl, Long and Collins, and Griffin's center field work were the features. Smith's error in the ninth was the critical point in the game, and Stivetts, as usual was on hand with a rattling hit that brought in the winning run.

Jumped Overboard.

Boston, July 1.—While the steamer Bay State from Boston to Portland, Me., was passing Nahant Monday night a man jumped overboard and was drowned. He is believed to be Zenus Lawrie, a farmer, 66 years old, of East Watertown. Mr. Lawrie, who was in poor health, left home Monday and is still missing, but a letter received in Newtonville Tuesday from Mr. Lawrie gave instructions for disposing of certain property, as he would be dead on its receipt. He was well to do and unmarried.

Morse Withdraws Resignation.

Amherst, Mass., July 1.—Professor Morse of Amherst college has withdrawn his resignation as a member of the faculty. President Gates, during the exercises in College hall yesterday, said: "After 10 days of sensational journalism, when the man who spoke has been misquoted and the man who kept silent has been lied about, it gives me great satisfaction to announce that Professor Andon D. Morse withdraws his resignation as a member of the faculty."

Calhoun Declines.

Danville, Ills., July 1.—Colonel W. J. Calhoun, after consulting with his family and business associates, has decided to decline the position of comptroller of the treasury. In a statement given out he expresses gratitude to the president for considering his name, but asserts that he could not in justice to himself sacrifice his law practice for a temporary government position, which, he says, "would hardly pay living expenses in Washington."

Double Suicide.

Owensboro, Ky., July 1.—Mrs. Pauline Weitmier and her daughter, Miss Pauline Weitmeir, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. Both were dressed in handsome clothes when found by neighbors. On a table was a note, saying they desired to be buried just as found. They conducted a dyeing establishment, and were in comfortable circumstances. Mrs. Weitmeir has a brother, Dr. Hengler, who is a prominent physician in Paterson, N. J.

Nebraska Prohibitionists.

Lincoln, Neb., July 1.—The state convention of the Liberty (Proh.) party concluded yesterday. Overtures on the part of the regular Prohibitionists for an indorsement of their candidates were ignored, and Mrs. Sara A. Wilson of Lincoln was nominated for associate justice of the supreme court, and R. C. Bentley of Shelton for regent of the state university.

WITH A BREAD KNIFE.

Dora Dow, Aged Fifteen, Stabs a Would-Be Thief In the Back.

Two Men Attempted to Rob Her Employer's House.

A Bicyclist Beaten and Robbed---Man's Neck Broken by a Blow.

Haverhill, Mass., July 2.—Miss Dora Dow, a 15-year-old girl, had an exciting encounter with two burglars at the residence of Charles D. Horne, in ward 7, yesterday morning. Miss Dow is employed as a domestic by Mr. Horne. She belongs in Seabrook, and has worked for Mr. Horne for over a year.

She says two men called at the house on Grove street. They drove up in a carriage and alighted in front of the house. She was alone in the house, and the men entered without knocking. One of the men, she says, was a young man with a smooth face and wore dark clothes. His companion was a middle aged man, and wore a beard, which she thinks was false.

The younger man stated that he had come to remove the furniture, and both then started to do so. Miss Dow, thoroughly frightened, bade them to stop. This they did, and mustering her courage Miss Dow told them that they would have to get a note from Mr. Horne before they took any of the goods. Some words followed, and the two burglars held a whispered conversation. Miss Dow says she heard the elder man say: "Well, go out and get a rope and we will tie her. Then we can go through the house."

The younger man started for the door and the eldest followed. Miss Dow, grabbing a bread knife which was on a table near by, rushed after the elder man. As he attempted to get through the door she made a lunge at him. She says the knife struck him in the back. The younger man had then got into the carriage, and his companion, who uttered a shriek when he was stabbed, jumped in after him. Miss Dow did not follow, but she says the men whipped up their horse and drove rapidly away.

The residence of Mr. Horne is in the eastern section of the ward, near the Boston and Maine railroad tracks, and there are only a few houses on the street. After the affair Miss Dow says she was too frightened to summon aid, but when Mr. Horne returned to dinner an hour later she told him of the affair. He later reported the case to the police, but no clue to the two burglars has been found. Miss Dow has an excellent reputation, and it is believed that the burglars thought there was considerable money in the house.

Neck Broken by Uppercut.

Boston, July 2.—Thomas J. Haney, 31 years old, of 111 Everett street, East Boston, is under arrest upon a charge of murder, and his victim, supposed to be James Cahill, aged 30, longshoreman, who resided at the North End, is at the morgue. The murder was the result of a fight. According to witnesses of the affair, Haney, who is a coal heaver, was in a saloon on Atlantic avenue, where he met Cahill for the first time. The men had some words and left the saloon. They met on the sidewalk, and some of the witnesses say that the dead man struck Haney twice with his fists, and that Haney responded by striking the man with both fists together, knocking him down. The man picked himself up and started across Central wharf, closely followed by Haney, who overtook him and struck him a terrible uppercut under the jaw. The man fell, striking his head on a pile of paving blocks. Haney was arrested, and the stranger was carried to the hospital, where he died soon after. Cahill's neck was broken and his skull fractured, the former by Haney's blow and the latter by his falling upon the stones.

Bicyclist Held Up.

Lynn, Mass., July 2.—Irving C. Huntley, about 27 years old, was riding along Essex street, Cliftondale, on his bicycle last night and he saw two men walking in the road ahead of him. Huntley turned out to pass and one of them thrust a stick in front of his wheel, throwing him. Both of the men attacked Huntley and overpowered him. The larger man then drew a knife and threatened to use it on Huntley if he continued his resistance. The short man went through the bicyclist's pockets, taking $9 and a watch.

Millionaire's Body Exhumed.

Chicago, July 2.—The body of the late Horace M. Singer, the millionaire quarryman who died at Pasadena, Cal., in December, has been exhumed and the stomach sent to a chemist for examination. This action, which was taken by Mr. Singer's son, furnished another turn in a sensation which was first started several weeks ago, when the theory was advanced that Mr. Singer was poisoned.

NO ANTI TRUST CLAUSE

Republican Caucus Decides It to Be Inexpedient at this Time.

Last Meeting on the Tariff Was Spirited.

Bond and Stock Transactions to Be Taxed. Beer Rate Increased.

Washington, July 2.—Last night the Republican senators held what was probably their last caucus on the tariff. The meeting was more spirited than any held during the session. The chief topic was trusts, and after three hours of debate, it was decided not to insert an anti-trust porvision in the pending bill. Decisions reached by the caucus were as follows:

To report no anti-trust amendment; to withdraw the original finance committee provisions for a duty on tea and an increase of 44 cents per barrel in the tax on beer, and to provide for a tax on bond and stock transactions.

The greater part of the time was given to the proposition for a provision against trusts.

The discussion on this question was opened upon the basis of a report by the judiciary committee in opposition to any effort to attach a trust provision to the tariff bill.

The committee had held a meeting during the afternoon, at which the whole question was gone over at length with other Republican senators, including Messrs. Hanna and Chandler. It was then decided that it would be extremely difficult to secure legislation that would be effective, and that upon the whole it was impolitic and unwise to undertake it. A report was made accordingly to the caucus and a resolution adopted authorizing the presentation of an amendment providing in express terms for the continuance in effect of the terms of the Wilson law, which makes it unlawful to form a trust in imported articles.

This report called out some vigorous protests, especially on the part of the Western senators, but they were replied to with spirit. It was asserted among other things that the presentation of a new anti-trust provision would lead to long debate, which could not be afforded at the present time.

The success of the proposition to recede from the increased tax on beer and the temporary duty on tea led to quite a prolonged discussion of the amount of revenue the bill would yield. Many senators expressed the opinion that the volume would not be equal to the demands of the government. It was in response to this view that a determination was reached to provide for a tax on stock and bond transactions. The details of this scheme were not agreed upon, but were left to the finance committee to perfect. There was decided opposition to a tax on either ordinary bank checks or mortgages.

It appeared during the discussion of this branch of the subject that the committee had been supplied with estimates of the revenue the bill would produce, made by Worthington C. Ford, who has given the opinion that with an equal volume of imports the bill would produce during the first year of its operation more than $100,000,000 in excess of the returns under the Wilson law for the first year it was in existence. Senator Allison said, however, that these figures were misleading, as the imports would not be expected to be so large, and advised his fellow senators on this account not to accept them as any indication of the possibilities of the bill.

ALL IN FINE CONDITION.

Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania 'Varsity Crews Race Today.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 2.—The 'varsity eights of Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania ended their long months of training by a few short practice spins last evening.

The race will be rowed between 6 and 7:20 o'clock this evening.

The oarsmen are all reported in good physical condition and the three coaches announce that there will be no changes in their respective eights except that Columbia will put Bogue, her freshman coxswain, in at Schlussell's place.

Cornell naturally expects to win and very few dispute her claim to first place. The Quakers have gotten up their enthusiasm and are talking of what would happen if they should win. They have talked of this ever since last Friday, and have reached that condition which makes them believe they have a good chance to see the finish line first. They are eager and willing to bet money that they can defeat Columbia, but when it comes to backing their crew for first place they allow Cornell's tempting odds of 3 to 1 to go begging.

Columbia, too, has her courage up. The New Yorkers are not afraid of the Quakers and they can see how they may possibly defeat the Ithacans. Like Pennsylvania, however, they are not betting on this last proposition.

Rockhill Going to Greece.

Washington, July 2.—The president has selected W. W. Rockhill, late assistant secretary of state for the post of United States minister to Greece. Mr. Rockhill's appointment will not be a party one in any sense, but will be based entirely upon his experience as a diplomat and his excellent work while in the department of state.

THE NEW census of Russia shows a population of 129,211,113, about twice that of the United States. Evidently there are other large countries.

THINGS LOOK a little more encouraging for national finances, as the monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business, June 30, the debt, less cash in the Treasury, amounted to $986,656,086, a decrease for the month of $10,027,966, which is accounted for by a corresponding increase in the amount of cash on hand.

The Kindergarten.

The free kindergarten recently opened under the auspices of the Quincy Home Science Association is already full to overflowing, and no more scholars can be received. There is such pressing and evident need for kindergarten training among the hundreds of little children in the more crowded parts of this city, under the school age yet old enough to receive lasting impressions of good and evil—that the present enterprise of the Home Science Association may seem almost too insignificant to be worth while! But after all, every good work must have its beginning, and it is believed that an enlarged membership list and consequent increase in the financial resources of the association will make possible the establishment of more than one free kindergarten in Quincy another summer.

As has been already announced through the columns of the LEDGER, the membership fee of the Home Science Association is fifty cents—both men and women being eligible.

To be Inspected.

Under a new law which went into effect today the Railroad Commissioners have appointed inspectors to examine the roadbeds, tracks, stations, rolling stock, etc., of street railways, and in case the inspector finds any portion of the equipment to be not in strict compliance with law, or in a condition such as to endanger the safety of the public or employes, he shall so report in writing to the commissioners, who are empowered to act accordingly.

An inspector shall investigate as promptly as may be any accident upon or resulting from the operation of a railroad or street railway, which is attended with loss or risk of life to a passenger, employe or other person, and shall report thereon to the board of railroad commissioners, and shall attend the inquest held in any case of death by such accident, and may cause any person having knowledge of the facts or circumstances connected with such death to be duly summoned as a witness to testify at the inquest. The justice holding such inquest shall give seasonable notice of the time and place thereof to the board of railroad commissioners.

C. E. Paige is inspector for Norfolk county.

Arrested With Tools.

About 2 30 this morning Officer Connolly picked up a Finn on Newport avenue who had several face hammers, such as are used by stone cutters, and as he could not give a good account as to how he became possessed of them the officer marched him to the police station. At the station the fellow gave his name as Matt Mattson and said he had bought them of a fellow for a dollar. This morning Chief Hayden learned that John Jacobson and Andrew Johnson had each lost hammers and upon being shown those found on Mattson identified two of them. The fellow was taken into court this morning.

Males and Females of the Different Years.

Number of Ages of Native Born and Foreign Born.

More of Two Years Than Any Other Age—2400 Under Five.

It will be of interest to many to know how many there are of the same age as themselves in Quincy. This and other information of value to statisticians will be found in the following figures just issued by the Massachusetts census bureau. It should be remembered that the figures relate to the census of 1895 taken two years ago, for which allowance must be made for 1897.

The summary shows the total number of native born of each age; and the total number of foreign born; also the sexes of the native born, and the grand total of native and foreign born:

Has it ever occurred to the reader how many are 20, 25, 30, 40, 50 or 60 years of age? It will always be noticed in statistics of ages that more are these ages than the intervening ages, yet it is undoubtedly a fact that the ages are not given accurately.

HOUGHS NECK.

Afternoon tides for a week now.

A united effort for the improvement of Sea street should have good effect. Make your plans to attend the hearing by the City Council committee.

The weather man at Washington says today, "Except where sea breezes occur, warm, summer temperatures promise to prevail in New England for some time to come, probably rising to 90 degrees in interior parts Saturday or Sunday. The weather now promises fair Saturday and Sunday, with clear to partly cloudy skies and light winds, generally southerly, except that local thunder storms may occur." Did the observer know of Houghs Neck he would undoubtedly add. "Those who can should have a cottage at Houghs Neck a peninsular gutting out three miles into the water from Quincy, the "City of Presidents."

MILTON.

East Milton is talking of nothing but the burglary of Wednesday night when during the temporary absence of the family, the house of John Graham was entered and quite a sum of money taken from pocket books belonging to Mr. Graham's family and Mr. J. E. Quimby. Two checks for small amounts which were in the pocket books were not taken. As near as can be learned the robbery took place about 8 30, while the family were absent for a few minutes. Entrance to the house is said to have been made by the bulkhead, and thence up stairs. It is generally believed that whoever the party was he must have been acquainted with the premises.

The old Italian hotel opposite the East Milton depot will soon be a thing of the past, for the lot has been fenced in and the shanty is being turned into a stable.

An Indian Relic.

A good specimen of Indian antiquities was lately found by Levi H. Turner on the low ground in the rear of his residence on Hancock street. It was for the most part buried in the ground, only a small portion of it being exposed to view. It is an implement of some kind, but to just what uses it was put by its old-time dusky possessor—whether for the purposes of peace or for those of war—only an expert in such matters could say.

It is of granite, and shows deft workmanship on the part of the aboriginal artificer by whom it was wrought into its present comely shape. It is 8 3-4 inches long by 3 inches in width at its widest part, and weighs 3 pounds and 6 ounces. One end is obtuse, like a mallet, and the other is pointed, as if intended to be used for cleaving or riving, the point being of a darker hue than the other parts of the implement, as though it has been colored by annealing or by some other process. One side is convex, and the other is approximately flat, and near the obtuse end, on the convex side, is a depression where probably thongs passed over it to bind it, on its flat side, to a wooden handle.

The relic is an interesting one, and many persons have called upon Mr. Turner to have a look at it. How many centuries old it is can only be conjectured. If it could speak, it could tell a tale well worth the hearing. If some local bard wants a theme upon which to tune his lyre, here is one to his hand. What a poet can do with such a subject is shown by Longfellow's poem on "The Skeleton in Armor."

Lawn Party.

The rain fell at just the right time last evening to interfere with the lawn party given by the Dorcas Society at the residence of Miss Abbie Barnes on Elm place. The last thing a lawn party wants is a shower, and the one that come last night as the postlude of a beautiful day, refreshing as it was in other respects, rather dampened the ardor of the expected guests. But the grounds were decorated with flags and bunting and hung with Japanese lanterns, and the Italian band did its best to put a cheerful face upon the matter. The tables were spread under the trees, and ice cream and cake, with the invigorating lemonade, were served; and all who attended enjoyed the occasion immensely.

Want Protection.

The people of Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park are thinking seriously of rising up in a body and demanding that the city give them some police protection for things have now come to such a pass that ladies dare not leave their homes in the evening without an escort, for the place is over run with tramps, foot-pads, thieves, etc. Women have frequently been chased by strange men and no later than last Saturday night two ladies were returning home quite late when a man made his appearance, and it was a case of who could run the fastest, the ladies or the man. Later in the night it is said Officer Connolly run up against the man who appeared to be a tramp and was permitted to depart.

TODAY'S COURT.

Matt Mattson was arraigned upon two complaints charging him with the larceny of hand hammers from John Jacobson and Andrew Johnson at Quincy and was fined $15 upon each complaint.

Miss Nellie Fitzgerald of Brockton is the guest of Miss Nellie Gerry.

Mrs. E. J. Colbert returned Tuesday from a three weeks' visit with relatives in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moseley of Murray Hill, N. Y., are visiting their old home in Atlantic.

The Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school will hold its picnic at Highland Park, Randolph, the latter part of next week.

Stakes are driven for three new houses in the vicinity of Edison street, one on the street and the other two in the field.

Rev. F. Johnson of the Sacred Heart church is arranging for an entertainment to be held at Music hall later in the month.

John McCormick and son Edward of Lincoln, Ill., have been in town this week attending the funeral of Mr. McCormick's mother.

There is one young man who intends to celebrate the Fourth for he has expended nearly $19 for two revolvers and blank cartridges.

The Squantum summer residents have begun to arrive. Among them are Mrs. Burkhardt, Mrs. Webster, Thomas Sproul, and William Tobin.

Atlantic, which has usually been the lively ward, is apparently taking a nap, and her 4th of July will be as dead as the rest of Quincy this year.

The annual picnic of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal Sunday School will be held at Highland Park, on Wednesday, July seventh. The trip will be made on the electrics.

The Quincy & Boston base ball nine will play the Weymouth Centres at Merry Mount park this afternoon at 3 30. The Weymouth Centres are a strong team and a good game may be expected.

Miss Catherina Billings of Norfolk Downs, principal of the Gleason School, Medford, started Monday with the Teachers Excursion for San Frauscisco, Cal., to spend the summer with relatives.

The ball game between the T. R & S. Co. of Wollaston and the Phœnix Co. of Whitman will be the greatest attraction in the city on the 5th of July. It will be called at 9 A. M. sharp at Merry Mount park.

The sportsman's club of Wollaston was organized on Thursday evening with Charles M. Bryant, president; Clarence W. Packard, secretary; and Wm. P. Whitmarsh, treasurer. The club has a membership of 27.

Summer boarders are very numerous in Atlantic and the shore is a great attraction these pleasant summer afternoons. When the boulevard is built and that much needed electric road in operation, a great boom is expected.

Miss Johnson, the president, writes: "The ladies of the Quincy Home Science Association desire to express their thanks for the full and interesting notice given in Tuesday's LEDGER, of the free Kindergarten opened under their auspices."

Six Quincy amateur bicycle riders planned a race to Nantasket beach, which was to have been run Thursday night, the conditions being that the last in paid for the suppers. They started all right but only got as far as the Universalist church when the seat of the tandem gave out and the race was postponed until next Tuesday.

Have our readers noticed that the outside doors are off at the entrance to the new Savings Bank building? It is a beautiful entrance, the highly polished granite columns, the white marble vestibule with tiled floor presenting a solid, comfortable appearance beside being so handsome as to attract the attention of every passerby.

The grocers have selected a grand place for their annual outing this year. Thursday, July 29, will be Grocers' day throughout the Old Colony district, and an excursion will be made to Crescent park, Rhode Island. The usual sports will be held and liberal prizes have already been donated. A shore dinner will be another attraction.

The House Committee of the Quincy Yacht club held its regular meeting at the club house on Thursday evening. Mr. James S. Whiting was elected a committee of one to make arrangements for the annual club concert. The rule allowing only those members who can show an 1897 membership ticket to enter the club house on Ladies' day will be rigidly enforced.

The hoodlum element have been making it very uncomfortable for the residents of Billings and Atlantic streets in Ward Six, lately, and they say it is time some attention was paid them by the police. Plants have been ruined, fences mutilated and other acts of vandalism practiced. If the rowdies are caught it will be made pretty hot for them, as the citizens are getting tired of this kind of work.

RED MEN.

Raising Up of Chiefs by Hodenosaunee Tribe of Wollaston.

Thursday evening was performed in Wollaston the ceremony of installation or raising up of chiefs, and was made a great event in the history of Redmanship in Quincy. Not only did Deputy Great Sachem Gardner and a full suite perform their duties in a most excellent manner, using some very intricate marches and rendering their charges perfectly, but six tribes honored the occasion by making a fraternal visit to Hodenosaunee Tribe.

The Deputy Great Chiefs were as follows:—Deputy Great Sachem, J. Frank Gardner of Campello; Deputy Great Senior Sagamore, Wm. J. Loring, P. S., of South Braintree; Deputy Great Junior Sagamore, Geo. Alden, P. S., of Middleboro; Deputy Great Prophet, Geo. W. Emerson, P. S, of Brockton; Deputy Great Sannap, Geo. Flowers, P. S., of Campello; Deputy Great Mishinewa, W. N. Stoddard, P. S, of Brockton; Deputy Great Warriors, Thomas Oliver, Edw. Wright, Albert Turner and T. J. Heffernan of Campello; Deputy Great Braves, J. P. Hicks, P. S., J. B. Eldridge, P. S., Quincy Stetson and Orin P. Torrey of Brockton; Deputy Great G. of W., Frank Rogers, P. S., of Middleboro.

The chiefs raised up for this term were:

Prophet,—J. P. Thomas.
Sachem,—F. A. Whittier.
Senior Sagamore,—A. G. McKinlay.
Junior Sagamore,—E. L. Wright.
1st Sannap,—J. F. McLeod.
2d Sannap,—C. E. Loner.
1st Warrior,—P. R. Glass, P. S.
2d Warrior,—H. C. Harrison.
3d Warrior,—W. T. Manimon.
4th Warrior,—F. H. Pray.
1st Brave,—J. N. Fox.
2d Brave,—J. H. Jordan, P. S.
3d Brave,—J. T. Brown, P. S.
4th Brave,—H. O. Fairbanks, P. S.
G. of W.,—O. B. Saunders.
G. of F.,—W. A. Jordan.

The wigwam was crowded with members and visitors when the suite, escorted by three of the tribe entered in tune to a march played by Brother J. C. Gillespie. After the great chiefs had received the honors the visitation ode was sung, and the chiefs were then raised up. Following the ceremonies all adjourned to the banquet hall and partook of a collation, then the peace pipe was passed around and with long and short talks the time was spent until midnight, when all took the trail to their wigwams.

The tribes represented were: Ogkneta of Milford; Pequot of Brockton; Uncataquisset of Milton; Nemasket of Middleboro; Massopoag of Campello.

An Old Colony Past Sachem association is to be founded in Brockton July 12 to embrace all tribes south and east of Boston.

Hodenosaunee will adopt five palefaces at the next council.

The Italian Camp.

To the Editor of the Ledger:

I was somewhat surprised at the article which appeared in the LEDGER of the 30th ult, bearing the heading "Italian Camp."

I have always had more trouble in protecting my property on Brackett street, and in that vicinity, than in any other part of Quincy. The locality has long borne an unsavory reputation and vandalism has been rampant there. The same building which the LEDGER says is to be the quarters of "200 dagoes" would have been destroyed long ago except for the eternal vigilance which I have exercised to prevent its being carried away by pieces. The glass in the windows of the building, after being repeatedly broken, was covered with wire netting, and that in turn by boards, in order to protect it from damage by the young scoundrels who gathered there for mischief.

I hope that the recent addition to the population of Brackett street will be able to protect themselves, and thus relieve me from a portion of the burdens which I have borne in consequence of the depredations committed by certain law breakers who reside in that district.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Ninety degree temperature today.

Thin clothes are necessary today for comfort.

Miss Safford of Brockton is visiting her brother, Charles R. Safford.

Mrs. Howard W. Baker of Billings street is at Rockland on a brief visit.

Deputy Sheriff George W. White of Weymouth continues quite ill.

C. H. Newcomb of Neponset has moved into a new house on the Carter estate, Atlantic.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Buckham of Atlantic are spending a few weeks in Hyde Park, Vermont.

Mrs. C. S. French goes to Chesham, N. H., today to visit her daughter, Mrs. Whitney.

Items for the LEDGER left with Miss Nellie L. Gerry at the Atlantic post office will be promptly forwarded.

Beginning tomorrow through cars will be run between Neponset and Nantasket, leaving each and every half hour.

Charles Henry Hardwick, one of the Quincy graduates from Harvard this week was entitled to a commencement part.

The superintendent of streets of Boston asks for bids for building a retaining wall along Blue Hill avenue near Franklin park.

The new church of Our Saviour at Middleboro will be of Quincy granite. The style of architecture is of the fifteenth century gothic.

Fred Lincoln Hewitt of Wollaston who was graduated from Adams Academy in the Class of '97 will enter Boston university in the autumn.

Rev. Edward W. Virgin, chaplain of Dedham jail and a former pastor at West Quincy, will preach a Fourth of July sermon on Sunday to the prisoners.

The charter of the Boynton Bicycle railroad provides that at least twenty miles of the road shall be built within two years, and this will be the part through Quincy.

Just about this time of the year West Quincy people begin to shake and they do not get through shaking until after the Fourth. This year is no exception to the rule, for it is a well known fact that several kegs of powder and a number of pounds of dynamite have been stolen from the quarries and will probably be heard from before sunrise next Monday morning.

Base Ball.

The T. R & S. Company team will play a benefit for catcher Mahoney with the Atlantics at Merry Mount Park, on Saturday. The manager, Mr. J. McKenna, has a strong team, and it is expected that it will be an interesting game, and we hope that Merry Mount Park will not hold all the people that will go to see this game.

On Monday, July 5, at 9 A. M., sharp, will be another interesting game on Merry Mount park, between the T. R. & S. Company team and Phoenix of Whitman. This team it is said will be the strongest that the Rivet Company has played against this season. In the afternoon they play the Weymouth, A. A., at the New Downer Landing. According to the list of players the T. R. & S. team will have to play against the pick of some of the best players in the state but the stronger the team the better the two teams will play for a purse of $50.

The Late Mrs. McClallan.

Among the deaths reported today is that of Mrs. William C. McClallan, widow of the prominent water contractor. For some months she has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hall of Spear street. She was very sick when she came from Boston, but it was thought the change would be beneficial. For some weeks her case has been critical but she had the best of care from Mr. and Mrs. Hall and professional nurses and was a patient sufferer. The late Mr. McClallan was at one time a large owner in the Quincy water works.

Prizes For Race.

The management of the race to be held here Monday are offering a list of prizes that should bring out a large field of entries. There will be special prizes for the first riders under fifteen years old to finish, and for the ones who are leading in the first lap. Full list will be printed in Saturday's LEDGER. Among them are two silver tea sets, silver watch, fountain pen, framed picture, pair tires, cycle shoes, watch charm, cycle bells, wrenches, pipe and case, two boxes cigars, two pair cuff studs, pocket books, two saddles, book, punching bag, bat and ball, two cans plugine, six bottles cycle balm, necktles, etc. Prizes are on exhibition in Hearn's window. Entries close Saturday with J. G. Jacobs, Wollaston.

Woodward Teachers.

The salary list of the Woodward institute has been cut $750 to bring the expenses within the income; $300 of this being from the principal. It is possible that some of the studies will be dropped next year and the corps of teachers curtailed.

Miss Charlotte Franklin has resigned and will be succeeded by Miss Catherine Flavan, for five years a teacher in Miss West's private school in San Francisco; she is a graduate of Radcliffe.

—President Little says now that the West End cars will be running through the subway in a day or two.

Dorchester to Celebrate.

Dorchester will have a grand parade on the morning of the Fourth. It will form at 7.30 and will comprise three divisions, as follows: First, horribles; second, artistic features, and third, trades. The entries received are most satisfactory, and with the large number of original ideas which are to be introduced by the participants it is expected that the officiating judges will have no slight task in awarding the prizes.

The route will take in the following important sections of the district: Upham's Corner, Meeting House Hill, Field's Corner, Jewell park, O'd Dorchester, Ashmont, Cedar grove, Milton Lower Mills and Mattapan square. At the latter point the line will be reviewed by the judges and invited guests and the prizes valued at over $200 awarded.

At 3 in the afternoon there will be a 10 mile handicap road race, in which great interest is being manifested by many prominent riders in and about Boston. The course selected, said to be one of the fastest in the state, is as follows: Start Mattapan square, Norfolk street, Morton street, Blue Hill avenue, Canterbury, Walkhill, Norfolk, Morton streets, Blue Hill avenue, Canterbury, Walkhill and Norfolk streets to Mattapan square. The sum of $600 has been set aside for prizes.

There will be many other attractions.

Sunday School Anniversary.

On Sabbath evening, June 27th, the Sunday school of the Baptist church, East Milton, celebrated the tenth anniversary of its founding. The school marched into the room in a body and listened to an address of welcome by Marion Hurd which was happily rendered and followed by other equally interesting exercises by other scholars among which that of little Miss Inas Carder gave especial pleasure.

During the evening Superintendent Brown, who had charge of the exercises, introduced his old friend Mr. C. P. Hall of the Warren avenue church, Boston, who gave a felicitous and forceful talk, at the close of which, he received a basket of roses which was presented by a member of the infant class.

The pastor was made the recipient of a similar beautiful present.

Singing by the school, and by the choir, and a solo by Miss Clements enlivened the occasion.

The room was packed by the appreciative audience, and a general good spirit prevailed.

The school which started with an enrollment of 33 ten years ago in a little hall, now numbers about one hundred and forty, with an average attendance of 98 for the last six months.

The outlook seems bright and it is hoped to celebrate the eleventh anniversary in the main audience room.

The "Chutes."

Visitors to Boston during the summer months will miss a novel and exhilerating experience if they fail to visit the "Chutes" on Huntington avenue. This enterprise which was thrown open to the public last summer has scored a most emphatic hit and over half a million people have patronized it. The trip down the incline which terminates in a broad lake is the most exhilerating experience that can be enjoyed.

Visitors to Boston can reach it easily from any of the depots and the electric car ride out the Huntington avenue boulevard is most enjoyable. In addition to the chutes there are many other fascinating features. So many and varied are the attractions that the chute grounds have been termed Boston's Coney island. A first class band gives free open air concerts of popular music at the chutes both afternoon and evening. The admission to all is but ten cents and children are entitled to all the privileges at half price.

July Magazines.

A beautiful view of the college yard at Harvard which forms the frontispiece of the July number of the New England Magazine is an introduction to a most interesting and valuable article on "The Development of College Architecture in America," by Mr. Ashton R. Willard. The writer goes back to the beginnings, telling us of the early buildings at Harvard, Yale, Columbia and elsewhere, and traces the course of our college history, showing what the architectural forms are which the successive periods have shown up. There is also an illustrated article in this number upon Martha's Vineyard.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

HE WAS A VIGOROUS WRITER.

Extracts From Letters by Napoleon Which Are to Be Published at Paris.

Paris, July 2.—M. Leon Lecestre, curator of the French Archives, will soon issue the first volume of 300 letters which were suppressed by the editors of the correspondence of Napoleon I, issued in 1869, as not calculated to increase the glory of the great French emperor.

The volume includes some heated family letters and some vigorously worded epistles to Fouche and Dubois, the ministers of police, and war. A letter to Marshal Soult in 1804 shows that Napoleon did not hesitate to adopt any means of obtaining confessions. He orders Soult to arrest a fisherman, suspected of communicating with the British, adding: "If he refuses to speak, you must squeeze his thumbs in a musket-lock."

Napoleon's list of persons to be arrested was endless, and his abuse of Madame De Stael was unceasing.

Learning in 1807, through Marshal Victor, that Prince Augustus of Prussia was intriguing against him in Berlin, Napoleon writes:

"I am not astonished, because he has a dull mind and has spent his time courting Madame De Stael at Coppet, Switzerland, and, of course, could only pick up bad habits with her. Send word to him that at the first mischievous remark he utters you will lock him up in his castle and send Madame De Stael to console him. There are no men so cringing as these princes of Prussia."

Writing to Talleyrand in 1808, that princes of the former reigning family of Spain were about to arrive at Valencay, Napoleon added:

"You may send for Madame Tallyrand and four or five persons. If the Prince of Asturias should form an attachment for a pretty person, it will be no drawback, as it would supply another means of watching him."

Another letter from Napoleon to Tallyrand reads:

"Your mission is honorable enough—to receive three illustrious personages and amuse them—and is quite in keeping with your character."

When Napoleon received the news, June 11, 1800, that the pope had excommunicated him, he wrote:

"I spare the pope no longer. He is a raving madman and must be locked up."

Some scolding letters to his brother, Prince Jerome, are interesting. When Jerome was outwitted by the Austrian General Kienmayer, he still boasted of his stragetic plans in an inflated order of the day. This caused Napoleon to write as follows:

"I have seen your order of the day, which makes you the laughing stock of Austria, Germany and France. Have'nt you a friend about to tell you a few plain truths? You a king and brother of the emperor! Those are ridiculous titles. In time of war you must be a soldier, and nothing but a soldier. You must have no minister, no diplomatic corps and no state. You must camp with the vanguard, be day and night on horseback and march in the van to pick up news, or remain in one's harem. You make war like a satrap (petty autocrat). Is it from me, good God, that you learn that? I, who with an army of 200,000 men, keep at the head of my skirmishers.

"The people are provoked with you. Kienmayer, with 12,000 men, has laughed at you and your ridiculous pretensions, and has slipped away from you and fallen upon Junot. You have a lot of pretensions, some little mind and a few good qualities, but these are marred by your fatulty and your extreme presumption. You have no knowledge of the fitness of things. Leave off being ridiculous, send your diplomatic corps back to Cassel, have no baggage, and wage war like a young soldier wishing to earn glory and reputation. Try to deserve the rank you have reached and the esteem of France and Europe, who ar watching you, and by God, do right and speak in seemly manner if you can."

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

A very distinct earthquake shock was felt in northern New Hampshire yesterday.

Colonel George B. Billings has taken charge of the office of United States immigration commissioner at Boston.

Samuel Fisher & Co., one of the oldest jewelry manufacturing firms in North Attleboro, Mass., has made an assignment.

The Charlestown (Mass.) navy yard presented a scene of more than usual activity yesterday. The first day of July saw the whole of the force of the equipment department at work.

The biennial session of the Pennsylvania legislature, which began Jan. 8, has adjourned. The session was one of the longest in the history of the state.

J. Edward Addicks, who is in Boston, states that there is no foundation for the rumor that a receiver is to be appointed for the Bay State Gas company of Delaware.

The British steamer Alecto from Hull, seven days overdue, about which there was considerable anxiety, arrived at Boston yesterday after a long but entirely uneventful voyage.

George B. Tincler of England and "Pat" Carroll of Waltham, Mass., have been matched for a three-mile running race on July 17 for $250 a side. The race will be run either at Springfield or Waltham.

W. N. Craigin, superintendent of the Laconia (N. H.) public schools, has accepted a similar position in Rochester and Somersworth, and will act in the dual capacity in both cities, making his residence in Rochester.

A London correspondent cables: "I understand that large orders for steel rails have been placed in the United States by two of the Indian railways at prices said to be £1 per ton below the figures at which the contract could be filled in England."

A dispatch from Braila, the principal port of Roumania, says that 20,000 inhabitants of Galatz, in Moldavia, on the left bank of the Danube, between the confluences of the Sereth and the Pruth with that river, are homeless and destitute as a result of the recent floods. It is estimated that 100 persons have been drowned.

About 100 men of the Kentucky state guard are on active duty protecting two negroes from anticipated mob violence. They are Green Dinning, charged with murder at Franklin, Simpson county, and Tol Stone, charged with attempted assault at Glasgow. Stone was taken from Bowling Green to Glasgow yesterday, accompanied by 120 soldiers.

BACKACHE

makes the young feel old, and the old feel that life is not worth the living. It's a danger signal of Kidney Disease—the unerring evidence of weak, inactive and sore Kidneys. Any person cured of Kidney weakness will tell you that when the back ceased to ache, all troubles ended. Neither liniments, nor plasters, nor electricity can cure it. The seat of the trouble is not in the skin, flesh or muscles. It's in the Kidneys.

For Three Years He Suffered—Could Hardly Breathe at Night—One Nostril Closed for Ten Years.

Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of De Leon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch glad for the night's coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him.

DE LEON, TEXAS.

Messrs. Lippman Bros., Savannah, Ga.,

GENTS: I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily.

I have not slept on either side for two years; in fact, I dreaded to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position all night.

I am 50 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally.

Yours respectfully,
A. M. RAMSEY.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, } ss.:
County of Comanche, }

Before the undersigned authority, on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine, is true.

A. M. RAMSEY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this, August 4th, 1891.

Senator Wellington Kicks.

Washington, July 2.—The senate committee on commerce yesterday listened in the protest of Senator Wellington of Maryland against the appointment of B. H. Warner, Jr., as consul to Leipsic. The senator had indorsed Mr. Warner for the consulship at Southampton, but he desired the appointment of another man to the position in Germany. He therefore took exceptions to Mr. Warner's transfer as in conflict with his plans, claiming that his indorsement did not extend to any other position and that the president had not dealt fairly with him in making the change. He also asserted that Mr. Warner was not qualified to properly discharge the duties of the office and claiming that under the circumstances the nomination should be rejected by the senate as a matter of senatorial courtesy.

Durrant's Case Reaches Supreme Court.

Washington, July 2.—The papers in the appeal of W. H. T. Rurrant, under sentence of death in San Francisco for the murder of Blanche Lamont, were received by the clerk of the supreme court of the United States yesterday. The appeal is from the decision of the circuit court of the United States for the Ninth circuit in refusing to grant Durrant's motion for a writ of habeas corpus. In his petition, Durrant alleges irregularity and illegality of the proceedings against him in the California state courts, in that the trial was "conducted upon information not in accordance with the equal protection of the laws and not by due process of law."

Shipping Statistics.

Washington, July 2.—During the fiscal year, ended June 30, there were built in the United States and officially numbered 729 vessels of 177,643 gross tons, compared with 709 vessels of 203,977 tons for the previous year. The decrease is almost wholly in wooden tonnage, which for 1897 amounted to 64,940 tons, compared with 94,715 tons for 1896. Of the total construction 347 vessels of 113,065 tons were steam vessels, compared with 322 of 134,947 tons for the previous year. Steel steamers built on the Great lakes numbered 15 of 55,866 tons, compared with 24 of 56,020 tons for the previous year.

Mercy For Corwine.

Washington, July 2.—Secretary Long has added is recommendation to that of Judge Advocate eGneral Lemly that the president commute the sentence imposed by court martial upon Paymaster Corwine of the navy so as to remit the confinement for two years, leaving it stand at dismissal from the service. The secretary's action in this case must receive the approval of the president before it becomes effective.

Panic Stricken Passengers.

New York, July 2.—Fire was discovered on the Bath beach and Benson Hurst steamer Tourist last night shortly after the boat left her pier at the Battery. There were 160 passengers on board, men, women and children, returning to their homes, and a panic ensued. The captain and crew, aided by some of the passengers, attempted to fight the flames, but there was so much excitement that it was found necessary to beach the boat. All the passengers were then landed in safety.

Monetary Commission Satisfied.

Paris, July 2.—The United States monetary commission, headed by Senator O. Wolcott of Colorado, will start for London today or tomorrow. The commissioners express themselves as being well satisfied with the results of their negotiations here and with the general outlook. There is a strong belief that the commissioners have accomplished something tangible in France.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief," For sale by A. G. Durgin.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute throughout their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

PARTY LINES BROKEN.

Duty on White Pine Reduced From Two Dollars to One.

Cotton Ties and Bagging Put on Free List.

Tariff Bill Is Now Practically Completed---Vote May Be Delayed.

Washington, July 2.—While the tariff bill seems so nearly completed that it might apparently have been passed yesterday afternoon, there are enough unsettled questions pending, Senator Allison admitted yesterday, to carry it over until next week, and the hope of passing it tomorrow have grown dim.

The experts confirm the belief that the bill, as it stands, will not provide sufficient revenue for the next fiscal year, but the Republican managers seem indisposed to regard that, and rather prefer to use the money in the treasury to meet the expected deficit of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000, while they promise to reduce expenditures.

The heat and the desire to get away, with the certainty that nothing but the tariff is keeping them here, may hasten the action of the senators and representatives, but, unless the unexpected happens, the bill will not pass before next week. There is no question, however, that by the end of the week it will be in conference, and it may go there early in the week.

The finance committee suffered several unexpected reverses during the progress of the tariff bill yesterday, being defeated on three important votes. Cotton bagging, by a vote of 30 to 25, and cotton ties, by a vote of 29 to 23, were placed on the free list.

The duty on white pine lumber was reduced from $2 to $1 per thousand by a vote of 32 to 31. The amendment on pine occasioned the greatest surprise and led to a general breaking up of party lines on both sides of the chamber. During the early stages of the debate the duty on lumber, including pine, was placed at $2 after a protracted contest.

Mr. Teller returned to the contest and moved to place white pine lumber on the free list. The amendment was defeated by the close vote of 32 to 33, four Republicans, Baker, Carter, Hansbrough and Quay, joining with the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, while three Democrats, Bacon, McEnery and Martin voted with the Republicans in the negative.

Following up this close vote, Mr. Mantle, Silver Republican, moved to reduce the rate on white pine from $2 to $1, and it carried by a majority of 1. Two Republicans, Baker and Carter, voted with the Democrats in the affirmative, and three Democrats, Bacon, McEnery and Martin with the Republicans in the negative.

The bill is now completed, with the exception of the reciprocity section and some comparatively minor paragraphs.

Much progress was made in clearing up detached paragraphs heretofore passed over. Only three of these, coal tar, potash and tea, remain, so that these items, the reciprocity section, and the brief internal revenue and administrative provisions are all that remain of the bill to be disposed of before the final vote is taken.

Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin gave notice of a comprehensive amendment providing for the assignment of three general appraisers to make an investigation of all questions relating to the tariff; the condition of industries which are affected by the tariff; the condition of industries abroad which compete with American industries; the differences in labor cost here and abroad; also to make an analysis of the schedules of this tariff bill with a view to correcting any inequalities that may exist. The result of the inquiry is to be reported to the secretary of the treasury and to congress.

The house paragraph placing on the free list hides and skins not specifically provided for was restored.

The paragraph relating to the personal effects of persons arriving in the United States was modified so that the effects taken abroad may be brought back without limit, while effects acquired abroad and admisible free are to be limited to $100.

Mr. Vest criticised the paragraph, saying it was in the interest of American tailors, who wanted to charge exorbitant prices. He declared that the talk of millionaires going to Europe and spending $75,000,000 annually was "all rot."

He hoped the time would never come when our people would shut themselves up and refuse to travel and to mingle freely with the people of the world.

Mr. Sewall of New Jersey also criticised the $100 limitation, saying it would establish a system of espionage on every man and woman going to Europe. It was too small a business for the American congress to be engaged in, declared Mr. Sewall.

Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire supported the amendment, saying there was no reason why a Vanderbilt or Gould should be allowed to bring from abroad personal effects worth thousands of dollars, while the humble citizen had to buy these goods with the duty added.

After extended debate the modified provision was agreed to.

A new paragraph was inserted in the free list covering works of art, the production of American artists temporarily living abroad, and other works of art imported for presentation purposes.

Rockefeller Held to His Offer.

New York, July 2.—It is officially stated that John D. Rockefeller will be held to his offer of $250,000 to the American Baptist Home Mission society and the American Baptist Missionary union. His gift was contingent upon the raising of $236,000 by the two societies by July 1, and this has been secured.

Big Miners' Strike Coming.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 2.—The Express says today: Next Sunday, or prior to that day, circulars will be placed in the hands of all the bituminous miners in the United States calling them out on strike. It is estimated that 250,000 men will be involved.

Two New Postmasters.

Washington, July 2.—The president has nominated Frank L. Gilman, Laconia, N. H.; William C. Sides, Portsmouth, N. H., to be postmasters.

Summer Lectures at Greenacre.

Eliot, Me., July 2.—The third season of the Greenacre lectures at Greenacre-on-the-Piscataqua opened yesterday and will continue until the evening of Sep. 8. This year is considered a most important one for the course, as many scientific men from all over the country will attend the annual meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, to be held here during the week beginning the 26th inst. During the electrical conference, an historic loan exhibit, pertaining to electrical traction will be opened to commemorate the semi-centennial of the running by Moses G. Farmer, of a small electrical car, carrying two persons, in Dover, N. H., July 26, 1847. An art conference will be held July 12-18, when artists in attendance will give talks upon art in the pines, and from Aug. 1 to 7, Professor Bjerregaard will conduct, "Walks and Talks With Nature." During Aug. 8-14, Mrs. Elen Foote of Newton Highlands, Mass., will conduct "Walks and Talks With Flowers," at 5 p. m. The musical program of the season will be arranged by Miss Lucy H. Burnham of New York, assisted by eight musical artists, and during the electrical convention these will be augmented by Miss Emma Thursby, Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen and Mr. Thomas Ryan.

Charged With Committing Abortion.

Springfield, Mass., July 2.—Dr. Henry Gordon Forbes of Chicopee Falls was arrested late last evening by Chief of Police Connor of Chicopee on a warrant charging him with performing a criminal operation on Miss Delia Carpenter of South Hadley, and who died from the effects of such operation on May 12 last. Dr. Forbes has practised in Chicopee for many years, and about 15 years ago was arrested in Springfield for a similar offense, but was acquitted when the case came to trial. He refuses to say anything about the present case.

Boynton Protests Against Sanford.

Boston, July 2.—E. Moody Boynton has filed a protest with the governor council against the appointment of John E. Sanford as railroad commissioner, and asks for a hearing thereon on the following charges. First, official conduct unbecoming an official and a gentleman; second, violation of the rights of citizens of Massachusetts; third, disregard of the laws of Massachusetts and requests of the legislature; fourth, undue favoritism to steam railroads and prejudice against the electric railways.

Arrested For Blackmail.

Boston, July 2.—Annie E. McDonald, 29 years old, who refused to give her address, has been arrested, charged with blackmailing George H. Richards, a real estate dealer of 209 Washington street. Mr. Richards has a wife and family in West Roxbury, where, for a short time four years ago, Miss McDonald was a servant. Mr. Richards says the woman threatened to expose him, and he gave her money from time to time, nearly $300 in all. The woman also admits receiving money from Mr. Richards.

A Pitcher Hurt.

Pawtucket, R. I., July 2.—Pitcher Horner of the Pawtucket team met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon. While at practice previous to the game he was hit in the face by a batted ball from Smith's bat, and for a short time was unconscious. He recovered and was not thought to be badly hurt. Later, after arriving at his home, he became delirous and is reported to be in a serious condition.

Old Phi Beta Kappa Charter.

Cambridge, Mass., July 2.—One of the important features of the Phi Beta Kappa exercises yesterday was the restoration of the original Harvard charter to the Harvard chapter by Colonel William Lamb of Virginia. The charter had been lost over 100 years, and was lately recovered in Virginia.

McDuffie's Challenge.

Boston, July 2.—"Eddie" McDuffie has posted with J. C. Korrison $750 as a side bet and a challenge to meet either J. Frank Starbuck or Fred J. Titus in a 10-mile match race, paced on Charles River park, at a date to be mutually agreed upon. The Charles River park will put up a $1000 purse for such a match.

Massachusetts Benefit Assessment.

Boston, July 2.—The extra assessment of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, about which there has been so much talk, doubt and guessing, and to which Insurance Commissioner Morrill gave his assent, has been sent out by the company to the policy holders.

Peary Secures the Hope.

St. John's, N. F., July 2.—Captain John Bartlett has completed negotiations for the hire of the steamer Hope to convey Lieutenant Peary on his Arctic expedition. She will go into dry dock immediately, will receive a thorough overhauling and sail for Boston on Wednesday next. Lieutenant Peary and a party of scientists will join her about the 14th inst.

Iron Mills Idle.

Pittsburg, July 2.—The general suspension of work following the disagreement of the joint conference committee at Youngstown cannot be regarded as either a strike or a lockout. Repairs are always made at this season of the year, and many manufacturers do not sign the scale until after their plants have been overhauled. This usually takes two or three weeks. In the meantime the conference committee will meet and endeavor to settle the differences.

Miscegenation.

Philadelphia, July 2.—The marriage of Miss Constance MacKenzie, daughter of the late Dr. R. Shelton MacKenzie, who, until her resignation, was director of the Porter school kindergarten, to John S. Durham, who enjoys the distinction of being one of the first colored men who graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, took place yesterday afternoon at the bride's residence. Mr. Durham succeeded the late Frederick Douglas as minister to Hayti. The bride has been for years prominent in educational works. Her father was distinguished as an author and critic.

Turkish Advices.

London, July 2.—A dispatch to The Standard from Constantinople says that Edhem Pasha, the commander-in-chief of the Turkish forces, has tendered his resignation of command to the sultan, on the ground that under the proposed peace conditions he will be unable to guarantee the discipline of the army. A dispatch to The Times from Constantinople says that Tewfik Pasha will announce to the ambassadors of the powers that the cabinet maintains the indefeasible right of Turkey to retain Thessaly by virtue of conquest.

CHAPTER II.

For the next few days the course of events ran smoothly on the surface. Dick Bufford, with loquacious urbanity, soon made himself a general favorite. At the stillhouse a knot of admirers usually gathered round him at leisure hours, while many of his offhand sayings became as current conversational coin to be flipped from tongue to tongue, accompanied by a slow horseplay of bucolic wit and laughter.

Bije Teeters, the proprietor of the stillhouse, "'lowed that Dick Bufford had more sense in the holler side of his noddle than all the balance of Uncle Sam's gaugers rolled inter one. He's p'intedly got sense enuff ter let whisky alone. Just a dram now and then, nothin more, and bar'ls of hit a-settin round. Oh, he's a master man!"

The fact that a man could be a gauger and not a drunkard presented to Mr. Teeters' imagination the juxtaposition of qualities humanly recognizable only on the score of superlative abilities. Jim Cheek was so carried away by Dick's transcendant cleverness that when the latter in a careless way suggested boarding with him during the brief time his official duties rendered his stay imperative our honest blacksmith assented at once.

"Don't ye bring him here," said Darthuly to her husband that night when he announced that Bufford would bring his traps up "termorrer."

Jim gazed at his wife in mild eyed astonishment and noticed that she looked pale and worried.

"Thar now, Darthuly, ye do look pestered, but hit won't be for more nor a week. Money's money these yer hard times, and I'll help ye when I can git outen the shop."

"Don't ye bring him here," she said pleadingly, placing her hands on his shoulders and looking earnestly at him. He totally failed to comprehend the nature of her disapproval and said mildly:

"Hit's already agreed on. I can't very well back down now. But I don't see why ye should be so pestered about hit, Darthuly."

She withdrew her hands, and her great, dark eyes blazed petulantly as she replied:

"Ef that thar feller comes here, Jim Cheek, and anything wrong comes of hit —'member, I've warned ye."

She withdrew abruptly to the kitchen, leaving Jim to look after her regretfully, as he scratched his head and acknowledged to himself that "women were powerful cur'ous. A man can't jest never tell which side of the fence they're a-goin ter lean ag'in."

Bufford soon made himself quite as much at home there as he had elsewhere. Darthuly avoided him, seldom speaking to him except when necessary—a state of things which he ignored by treating her with systematic deference and politeness. This became grateful to her, in its very contrast to the boorish absence of courtesy prevalent among the mountaineers. Even Jim, with the kindest of hearts, had few of the minor urbanities of manner that so smooth social intercourse under unfavorable circumstances. He was loving and true, yet he never handed her a chair or offered to get water or deferred gracefully to her varied whim as Bufford constantly did, regardless of her cold indifference or studied ignoring of his civilities.

"Why, Darthuly," said Jim one day, when they two were alone, "I reely can't see what ye mean by snubbin the gauger so, like yer allays a-doin."

Her only reply was to raise to his her wonderful eyes, their clear depths troubled by a sadness now habitual to them. As he looked, a slight blush appeared on her cheek and she withdrew her gaze, but said nothing. Indeed she moved, as she herself felt, like one in a dream, dreading to awake, yet palsied by the helplessness that was upon her.

Dick petted the spoiled baby, allowing it to pull his hair and slobber over him with a jovial placidity that caused Mrs. Cheek to eye him furtively when she was not observed. He said no more to her of their mysterious past, and she felt grateful for his forbearance. Yet one morning, while Jim was clinking away at the shop, as he sat playing with the child, he looked up suddenly and detected her watching him intently.

"Ah, Meg, Meg," he said in a new and tender tone, "to think of you with a baby like this gets away with me"—

"Not that name here!" cried she, cowering as though his words had been blows. "I cannot endure it. Let it be dead forever."

In her earnestness she dropped her mountain dialect even while mindful of the danger attached to the mention of her former name. Reaching up quickly, he took her hand, saying:

"Do you wish me to be as one dead, too, Meg—Darthuly, I mean?"

His voice rang with the old time fervor, and his gaze seemed to scorch her averted eyes like the heat of an unseen flame. Ah, Jim, why are you not here, to pluck the image of outraged wife and motherhood from the chasm over which it hovers? She struggled to release her hand, more faintly, however, as his grasp strengthened. Then, as he resistlessly drew her toward him, their eyes met, and with a shuddering sigh she fell on her knees, with her head upon his shoulder.

He realized his power and mercilessly used it. But at the first touch of his hot lips upon her own she sprang from him, plucked her baby from his lap, rushed into the house, shut the door and locked it.

He sat for awhile gazing at the opposite cliff, frowning in silent disapproval, unconscious of their meaning and indifferent to their eternal calm. Then he got up, strolled past the shop and on down to the stillhouse, humming softly to himself:

"I'll await, my love;
I'll await my love," etc.

CHAPTER III.

A week passed. In a day or two more Bufford was to leave. The great hotel at White Cliff had opened for the season.

Jim Cheek started for there one sunny day with a load of eggs, butter and "gyarden truck."

Darthuly complained of headache and would not go. An anxious, troubled look haunted her face. Outwardly she seemed to avoid Dick more than ever and would follow Jim's motions with her eyes in silence, being so utterly unlike herself that the blacksmith again wondered helplessly over the miseries of feminine development.

"She's allays been a-gabbin and a-takin on so much that I can't see where hit's all gone ter," he hinted confidentially to Bufford, who ventured the vague opinion that "she would come round after awhile, like they all do."

The memory of that fair vision was all that remained to him of her.

Jim loaded up and set out. His steers were half way down the road to the ferry, when Darthuly came running after him, with the baby in her arms. She caught his hand and exclaimed.

"Take us along, Jim. I can't bear ter see you a-leavin this mornin somehow."

"Why, how's thish yer, Darthuly? Jest a bit ago ye didn't keer ter go. Bein as ye've got that pesky headache, I reckon ye'd better stay. Teeters' gal is a-goin ter stay ternight, and Mr. Bufford'll be thar ter keep the buggers off, and I shall sartinly git back termorrer. Why, honey—why—durn me ef I can onderstand women ennyhow!"

She was sobbing upon his arm, but would give no reason for this strange behavior, and Jim, after some hurried cogitation, concluded that she was "a gittin a little teched in the head"—a vague complaint, embracing pretty much every phase of emotional disturbance peculiar to females.

"Thar now, Darthuly, ye git right back ter the house and lay down awhile. Git Jane Teeters ter help ye cook, and let that thar washin alone until I gets back."

Thus soothing and petting her, yet puzzled in mind, though utterly unsuspicious of the real cause of her agitation, he finally got away, leaving her standing on a projecting rock, gazing with tear blinded eyes after him.

"Be back today?" queried Bufford from the stillhouse door as he passed.

"Reckon not. The steers can't hardly make hit in a day."

He crossed the river on the flat, and as his wagon disappeared round a bold bend of the cliffs he, following behind, looked back. His wife still stood upon the rock, her baby playing at her feet and her bright calico dress fluttering in the breeze blowing down sweet and cool from the mountains.

The memory of that fair vision was all that remained to him of her, except the child, for eight long years.

He returned on the following day to a ruined and deserted home. Dick Bufford and Darthuly had disappeared. There was a motherless babe crying upon the bed and a scrap of paper left upon the table telling him that he had no wife; that she was gone with another; that she was sorry, but could not help it; that he must regard her as one dead; that he would care for the child, for its own sake if not for hers, whose heart was deservedly breaking; that her past life had been impure; that she had deceived him, yet had believed she loved him, until the tempter came clothed with the power and glamour of a former triumph over her youthful trust and love, to lure her back to sin and ruin.

When he at last arose, crushed, miserable, yet dumbly patient, he threw the wretched apology into the fire and, gathering his babe in his arms, soothed it through the night, while fighting off by grim endurance his own pain until morning came again.

Silently he endured the flow of neighborly comment and consolation, and quietly he went about his double duties, with a stoicism apparently untouched by tenderness, except when alone with his child.

He never inquired after or searched for the guilty couple, nor were their names ever mentioned by him. The past, as far as she was associated with it in his memory, was dead. His great struggle with himself for months was to make his sorrow and his shame subserve the welfare of his child until the pure indifference born of duty done should reward his lacerated heart with a lasting peace.

FOR CHRIST AND THE CHURCH

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 4. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Consecrated patriots—what will they do?—Deut. xxxii, 1-18.

This is an age of patriotism. All over the world the sentiment of love for country and loyalty to country is being emphasized in more ways than one. In our own country in various ways interest in patriotism is on the increase, and the standard of patriotism is being constantly raised. Monuments are being erected to our greatest patriots, days of historic moment and importance are being set apart as memorial days, and even political parties are using "patriotism" as a battlecry, which is evidence that it is supposed to be popular at least.

It is not without reason that Americans should be patriots. If there is a land on which the sun shines that is worth being loved, because of its splendid past, its ennobling principles, its sacred and edifying institutions, its boundless future possibilities, that land is America. The day has not yet come (and may it never come) when one need blush as he says, "I am an American." We have a country of whose history we may be and are justly proud.

But what of patriotism in relation to God? What of consecrated patriotism? What will men who are not only consecrated to their country, but also consecrated to their God do? What is the duty of the Christian patriot?

First, consecrated patriots will recognize and acknowledge the hand of God in national life. This we learn from the topical reference should be done. National prosperity had come to Israel, but instead of recognizing God's hand in it they were puffed up with personal pride and with an exalted idea of their own greatness, and turned from God. National prosperity, as well as individual prosperity, has its dangers, and the chief one is that we shall take the credit to ourselves and forget that there is a "God of nations." What abundant reasons we as Americans have for acknowledging the God of nations as our God! Who can review the history of our country without being compelled to confess that its growth and prosperity can only be accounted for by attributing it all to God? Benjamin Franklin well said, "If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without God's notice, could a mighty empire rise without His aid?" It could not. We must see the hand of God in the marvelous history of our country.

Consecrated patriots will practice and teach national loyalty to God in gratitude for national blessings. We must not only recognize the hand of God in our nation's history, but should manifest our gratitude by doing all we can to make our land a Christian land. We should stand for righteous rulers and for righteous principles in government. We should be interested in making the whole nation a Christian nation and be as enthusiastic for home missions as we are for patriotism. "God bless our native land."

Bible Readings.—Ezra vi, 8-10; Neh. ii, 15-20; Ps. xxxiii, 12; li, 18; Prov. xiv, 34; Jer. xxix, 7; Math. xvii, 24-27; xxii, 16-21; xxiii, 37; Mark xii, 17; Luke xiii, 34; Rom. xiii, 7; I Tim. ii, 1-4; Heb. xi, 8-16.

The Cheerful Man.

Who does not welcome the man of cheerful and hopeful spirit? The happy countenance, the genial smile, the winning way and the timely word have an inspiring and uplifting influence. Men are attracted and won by a kindly manner and generous action. He is a benefactor who carries sunshine into the home, church and community. A bright optimism is always preferable to a gloomy pessimism.—Presbyterian.

In Sweet Simplicity.

Truth in sweet simplicity expresses the thoughts that bind and the words that burn conviction in human understanding, and steadily, with unfailing eye, detects and discloses to the brave spirit that stands by what it believes. One said that "truth, like light, travels in straight lines;" that it is a divine essence.—Philadelphia Methodist.

Endeavor Echoes.

Cottage prayer meetings are growing in favor with Endeavorers.

The Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor union has 20 district evangelistic superintendents.

Many Christian Endeavor societies have recently formed Bible study classes, led by the pastors.

San Leandro (Cal.) Endeavorers are urging the establishment of a public drinking fountain for bicyclists that they may be kept from the enticements of the saloon.

The total membership of the societies of Christian Endeavor is now about 3,000,000.

Christian Endeavorers are giving especial attention to Sabbath observance, and committees are being appointed for this work in many places. California leads the states in the number of these committees.

There is one Christian Endeavor society in the Transvaal, and in Johannesburg itself lives an active Endeavorer who is eager to spread the movement.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

Yellow Fever Broke Out Among Passengers on a Pacific Steamer.

New York, July 3.—Passengers who arrived here last night on the steamship Allianca tell a harrowing story of their experience aboard the Pacific mail steamer City of Para, which left Panama for San Francisco on May 23 last. It seems that two days after clearing the isthmus yellow fever broke out among the crew and passengers of the big Pacific liner, which caused a panic on board and resulted in the death of the commander of the vessel, Captain Martensen, and others. Three-fourths of the passengers, it is said, were attacked by the dread contagion, and at least a dozen of them found a resting place in the Pacific ocean. When the vessel finally reached San Francisco the facts of the terrible voyage were suppressed, and the sickness and deaths were attributed to tropical dysentery.

The contagion was raging on the isthmus, but when the passengers went on board the City of Para they were told by the officers that they need not have any fear. There was no effort at fumigation. When Mrs. Mitchell, the wife of an Englishman, commanding one of the vessels of the Chilian line, made her appearance on the City of Para, heavily veiled, there was no uneasiness, however. Three days out she died. She was buried at sea, and the next sufferer was Captain Martensen of the City of Para. Before he died the fever had spread all over the ship. The officers suppressed every scrap of news they could, and Dr. Renz insisted on his original dianosis.

McKinley Now at Canton.

Washington, July 3.—President McKinley left the city last night for Canton, where he will visit his mother and take a few days' rest. With him were Mrs. McKinley, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Day, Mrs. Saxton, who is Mrs. McKinley's aunt, and Miss Mabel McKinley. The return to Washington will be on Tuesday. This will be the president's first visit to his home since the inuaguration, and he has expressed a wish that it be a quiet one, devoid of speechmaking and demonstrations.

Wages Cut and Hours Doubled.

Pawtucket, R. I., July 3.—Thirty plate strippers, employed at the works of the New England Electrolytic Copper company at Central Mills, went on a strike yesterday afternoon. They claim that their time has been five hours a day and their pay $1.90, and that they have been notified that hereafter their time will be 10 hours a day and their pay $1.50.

Mrs. Stebbins Seriously Burned.

Chelsea, Mass., July 3.—A cablegram received in this city stated that Mrs. Mary A. Stebbins, widow of the late Hon. Isaac B. Stebbins, ex-mayor of Chelsea, was seriously burned at the Russian baths in Dresden, and is not expected to recover. Mrs. Stebbins is about 70 years of age.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

The National Reform Press association held its opening session at Nashville yesterday.

John Kemler, an insane man confined in the asylum at Bridgewater, Mass., hanged himself. He left a note saying that his death was intentional.

The flagpole at Grant's tomb, said to be the tallest in the world, was struck by lightning yesterday, and it may be necessary to remove the staff.

The proprietors of a number of saloons and hotels at Calais, Me., were in court yesterday as the result of liquor raids, and each paid fines amounting to $110.

Lemuel L. Mason was hanged at Grants Pass, Ore., for the murder of Charles Perry in March, 1896. Perry was 50 years of age and came from Connecticut.

In a fight over a game of cards and a jug of cider at Haverhill, Mass., Januriario Ronzio, a 16-year-old boy, drew a revolver and shot Joe Tairentino and Antonia Raltzio.

The charge of fraud recently made against the brokerage firm of Theodore W. Meyers & Co. of New York by Herman Tappen were yesterday dismissed by Magistrate Kudlich.

Charles Russell, aged 67, a well-known business man of Dedham, Mass., died last night. He had been in the hardware business for over 40 years. A widow and two sons survive him.

The monument of the First Minnesota regiment was dedicated yesterday on the Gettysburg battlefield in the presence of a number of distinguished Minnesotans. The monument is one of the finest on the field, and was erected at a cost of $16,000.

The torpedo boat Dupont, the latest vessel from the Herreshoff's sheds, made its preliminary run yesterday, and the verdict of the builders and the government inspector, Commander George A. Converse, U. S. N., was that the craft is very satisfactory.

Alvah W. Crooker, the Shrewsbury (Mass.) stage driver, who was knocked off his coach Monday afternoon by a guy rope of the New England Telephone company, died at Worcester last evening. His skull was fractured, and he did not regain consciousness.

A dispatch from Madrid says that a huge fire has been raging in the mountains of the province of Murcia, in southeastern Spain, since Wednesday. The flames have extended over an area of 20 miles, destroying villages, cattle and other property. It is feared that there has been considerable loss of life.

Frank Ashly, 15 years old, son of Stafford Ashley of Gloucester, Mass., anticipating the Fourth of July, constructed a cannon and tested it with a charge of gunpowder. The cannon exploded and mutilated Ashley's limbs, and at the hospital one foot was amputated.

George Patton Pierce, a carpenter at work on the car stables at North Cambridge, Mass., fell down a ladder, a distance of 25 feet, while hurrying to escape the sudden shower yesterday afternoon. The fall broke his back, and death quickly relieved his suffering. He leaves a family.

George Beaumier, 14, and Ted Davis, 19, of Manchester, N. H., lost their lives last evening in the Squag river. Both boys were employed in the mills, and after supper went in bathing. They were not together, but Davis heard the younger boy call for help while he himself was dressing. He plunged in again and reached young Beaumier's side. The little chap clutched his would-be rescuer about the head and they drowned together.

THE BUSINESS WORLD.

Most Encouraging Feature Is That Fall Trade Will Be Good.

Satisfactory Reports From the South and West.

Failures For Six Months 578 Less Than Last Year---Increase In New England.

New York, July 3.—Bradstreet's says: Better weather has favorably affected the sale of seasonable goods, particularly clothing, hats and shoes. The most encouraging feature is the continued and, in some instances, increased confidence of merchants and manufacturers that the autumn will bring a larger volume of business at higher prices. The approach of the Fourth of July holiday has tended to check operations in some lines. Augusta cotton mills are paying reduced dividends.

General trade is reported quite satisfactory at Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Memphis and New Orleans. None of the larger Eastern centers records an increase. The least favorable feature of the week is found in disappointment at lack of demand and reaction in quotations for some varieties of iron and steel. The threatened idleness of 200,000 iron, steel and glass workers and soft coal miners is, except in the latter instance, due, in part, to the season of the year.

The tendency of prices is more encouraging. The speculative demand for wool has advanced the price of that staple, and tariff and other considerations have resulted in higher quotations for skins, hides and leather. Finished iron at Western centers is $1 a ton higher. Bessemer pig iron has sold lower. Lower prices are reported for spirits of turpentine, coffee and petroleum, while quotations for steel billets and for sugar remain unchanged.

There are 7024 business failures reported by Bradstreet's throughout the United States during the past six months, a falling off of 578 from the like total last year, with which exception it is the largest aggregate of failures in a like period. Total liabilities of individuals, firms and corporations failing amount to $93,656,000, a decrease of $11,879,000 from the corresponding total last year, and of $77,204,000 from the liabilities reported in the first half of the panic year 1893. This total is also smaller than in the first half of the year 1884, with which exceptions it is the largest recorded for the six months periods in 18 years.

While there has been only a moderate decline in the number of failures since last year, liabilities have been unexpectedly increased by the embarrassment of several large manufacturing and other concerns in New England within the last quarter. It is worthy of note that the New England states and the territories alone, among groups of states and territories, report increases in number of failures compared with last year.

June bank clearings reflect an enlarged volume of speculation and trade in a total which is 6.8 per cent larger than that of May, 37 per cent more than in June a year ago, 1.2 per cent more than in June, 1895, and 24 per cent more than in June, 1894. The decrease compared with the January total this year is less than 1 per cent, while the falling off from June, 1892, is only 10 per cent.

Southwestern and New England cities show the largest gains as compared with a year ago, 15.5 and 10.9 per cent, respectively, while the heaviest decrease is that of the northwestern group, 18 per cent. The entire gain at all cities in June over a year ago is accounted for by the increases at the cities of New York and Boston, respectively, 6 and 12 per cent.

For six months, clearings are still behind those of a year ago. The total clearings at 75 cities are $24,964,430,282, a decrease of 2.2 per cent from the like total in 1896, and 1 per cent from 1895, but a gain of 13 per cent over the total for 1894. Compared with 1892 and 1893 the decrease is about 18 per cent.

The week's bank clearings amount to $1,066,000,000, about 9 per cent more than last week, but 3.6 per cent less than in the like week last year.

The Wool Market.

Boston, July 3.—The Boston Commercial Bulletin says of the wool market: The bottom of the wool market was reached in August, 1893, just before the Vermont election. At that time fine staple Wyoming wool was sold in the Boston market at 35 cents the scoured pound. This week fine Idaho staple has been sold in Boston on a basis of 43 cents the scoured pound, an advance of 1 3cents the scoured pound. This price and other prices that have risen to correspond, mark the highest level reached since July, 1893. There has been a good attendance and more speculation, especially in French scoured wool, which has been moved freely between dealers. Supplies of this are much reduced. Australian wool has also advanced 3 or 4 cents the scoured pound, and recent speculative purchases in this market already show a profit. Growers in Montana are getting 12 cents a pound for wool. A year ago they were shipping wool on consignment with no advance, but of cost of freight.

Violent Electric Storm.

New York, July 3.—A mighty storm came up out of the west yesterday and swept in a three-qquarters circle around Manhattan island. Wind, hail and rain were in its van, and havoc and destruction lay in the path it traversed. And through it all was the incessant play of destroying lightning and the wicked cracking of thunder. The whole was a spectacular but destructive display of warring elements.

Strike Becoming Serious.

Cleveland, July 3.—The situation at the Crescent sheet and tin plate mills, where the union men are striking for the Amalgamated association scale of wages, is becoming more serious. Last evening one of the non-union men, Harry Russell, was waylaid by strikers while on his way home from work, and fearfully beaten with clubs. He was carried home where he now lies in a dangerous condition.

PIGEONS OF ST. MARK'S.

The Winged Pets of Venice Are Extremely Tame.

Probably the biggest flock of tame pigeons anywhere in the world is that which lives in Venice about the great piazza or square of St. Mark. No one knows how many there are, but the number must be several thousands.

Down to the beginning of the present century the pigeons of St. Mark's were fed at the expense of the city, but when Napoleon conquered Venice he turned the republic into a dependency, and the pigeons became private citizens instead of public characters. They were not permitted to go hungry, though, of course, they could pick up a good deal of food about the grain warehouses and from crumbs and sweepings. Besides, the children of the city began to take great pleasure in feeding them, as they still do. The birds build their nests about the church and in the lofty towers and carved facades of the buildings which surround the square, and no one is allowed to harm them.

There are men who make a business of lounging about the square and selling little packages of grain for the birds. On sunny afternoons it is a pleasant sight to see the children come running to the square, holding out their pennies to the grain sellers. The moment the pigeons see any one buying grain they come swooping away from the other end of the piazza, so many of them that the noise of their wings is like the noise of a gale in the tree tops or almost like low thunder.

The pigeons are very tame. If one will drop a few grains on his hat and along his sleeves and hold more in his open hand, they will alight on his head and arms and hands, picking greedily at the grain and fluttering their wings to keep their balance.

The Venetian photographers make quite a business of photographing people in the act of feeding the pigeons. When this happens, every one is very much interested, and there is almost always a group of children about to see the fun and of nurse girls clad in their gay purple and white costumes, so that the scene is about the most picturesque even in Venice, the most beautiful of cities.

JOHN L. HEATON.

The Nick In the Lapel.

Did you ever wonder why that little V shaped nick was placed at the juncture of your coat collar with the lapel? Occasionally we all have our little ruminating spells and fall to wondering the whys of the many odd things we see about us. Hold your coat up before you, and you would see at a glance that it would "set" just as well without the nick as with it. Therefore the matter of fit cannot be given as a proper solution of the fact that it is there. Without apparent purpose this nick is clipped from the lapel of every frock coat worn in the world. But there was motive in the madness of the first man who adopted the little insignia of distinction.

When the first Napoleon gave way to his ambition, he tried to implicate General Moreau in Pichegru's conspiracy. Moreau had been Napoleon's superior and was very popular, but under the circumstances, as Napoleon was on top, it was not safe to express publicly any sympathy with Moreau, so his admirers secretly agreed to nick their coat lapels to show what they were. Carefully note the outlines of the first coat front you see that is well fitted and buttoned and see if you cannot plainly detect the initial letter M in its windings. The M will appear upside down, the little nick forming its sides. M was the initial letter for Moreau, and his champions were known by the nicks in the lapels of their coats.

A Tiger With a Glass Eye.

This isn't a "stuffed" tiger, but a real live one, ferocious and strong. He is at present in the menagerie at Stuttgart, and looks as fierce with his glass eye as with the real one. A serious affection of the muscles caused the beast to lose the sight of one eye. As the public didn't appreciate a one eyed tiger, the beast was put under cocaine and the useless optic removed. This was a ticklish operation, several strong keepers holding the beast down while the eye was taken out. He was measured for a new eye, which had to be made with a special degree of ferocity. For the first week he tried hard to rub it out, but he now rests contented as the only wild animal with a glass eye.

CAN INSECTS TALK?

They Surely Express Themselves In Some Way.

This may indeed seem a strange question to those who would limit the meaning of the word to the capability of expressing ideas by means of articulate sounds, nevertheless a little reflection will convince any one who is conversant with the habits of these creatures that, though they may have no tongues, they can express themselves in some way or other "with most miraculous organ."

Various experiments might be quoted in proof of this. Let us, however, select one or two which seem to leave no room for dispute about the matter. Any one who finds himself in the vicinity of an ant's nest may soon be convinced that these industrious little laborers are by no means destitute of the power of communicating information to each other relative to the affairs of their commonwealth.

Let him, for example, place a heap of food in the neighborhood of the ant hill and watch the proceedings of its inmates. A short time will probably elapse before the discovery of the treasure, but at length some wanderer, in his morning's ramble, has the good fortune to stumble upon it. What does he do? He does not, like an isolated individual, incapable of asking for assistance, begin at once the task of removing the heap, but, on the contrary, off he scampers with the glad intelligence, and, running his head against that of every ant he meets, manages in some mysterious way not only to intimate the fact of the discovery, but also to give information relative to the locality where the provisions may be found, for speedily it will be seen that troops of porters, summoned at the call of the first finder, hasten to the spot, and all is activity and bustle until the store is safely warehoused in the ant hill.

Another still more striking instance of the possession of a capability of spreading intelligence, and that of a somewhat abstruse character, is furnished by experiments that have been made by Huber and others upon bees. Every one is aware that the queen bee is an object of the greatest solicitude to all the workers of the hive, and yet among so many thousands, all busily employed in different and distant parts of the colony, it would appear impossible for them to ascertain, at least before the lapse of a considerable time, whether she was absent from among them or not.

In order to see whether bees had any power of conveying news of this kind the queen bee has been stealthily and quietly abstracted from the hive, but here, as elsewhere, ill news was found to fly apace. For some half hour or so the loss seemed not to have been ascertained, but the progressively increasing buzz of agitation gradually announced the growing alarm, until shortly the whole hive was in an uproar, and all its busy occupants were seen pouring forth their legions in search of their lost monarch, or eager to avenge with their stings the insult offered to their sovereign. On restoring the captured queen to her subjects with equal secrecy the tumult speedily subsided, and the ordinary business of the community was resumed as before the occurrence.

Words of Caution.

Don't read in street cars or other jolting vehicles. Don't pick the teeth with pins or other hard substances. Don't neglect any opportunity to insure a variety of food. Don't eat or drink hot and cold things immediately in succession. Don't pamper the appetite with such variety of food as may lead to excess. Don't read, write or do any delicate work unless receiving the light from the left side. Don't delude yourself into the belief that you are an exception so far as sleep is concerned; the nominal average of sleep is eight hours. Don't endeavor to rest the mind by absolute inactivity; let it rest in work in other channels and thus rest the tired part of the brain.

Example.

Uncle Dick—Ah, yes, cricket is a fine game, no doubt—a very fine game. But football, now—that's the game to make your hair curl!

Miss Dulcie (meditatively)—Do you play football much, uncle?—Punch.

WE CELEBRATE.

Monday, July 5, will be generally observed in this city as the "Glorious Fourth," and the office of the PATRIOT and DAILY LEDGER will be closed, no paper being issued. Tuesday's LEDGER will be of eight pages with all the holiday news, and many extra columns of telegraphic and general reading.

CONGRATULATIONS TO Editor Parker of the Lynn Item on his reinstatement as deputy collector of the port of Lynn. He was removed by the Cleveland administration. Mr. Parker is a veteran.

UPON ONE of the inside pages today will be found a summary of some of the notable events of July Fourth. One of Quincy's Presidents died on the Nation's holiday. The department for young folk is of unusual interest also, and the story of "Darthuly" is continued.

BRO. VITTUM of the Beverly Evening Times shocked his subscribers on Thursday, and they doubtless will not forgive him soon. We were among the number but infernal machines don't get the best of us. It is one of the duties of the printer's devil to open suspicious bundles and to him we gave the mammoth fire cracker. When he pulled the string he found a twelve-page issue of the Times all ready to explode with wide awake Fourth of July "Ads." The cracker was a good imitation and it was a clever idea of the enterprising publisher.

WOLLASTON DEATH TRAP.

Railroad Commissioners and Officials Visit Wollaston and Give Hearing.

The Railroad Commissioners visited Wollaston at the request of Mr. Charles R. Sherman on Friday forenoon, coming out on the 9 30 train from Boston. General Superintendent Allen, who was to have come with them on that train, missed it and came out on an extra. Superintendent French was also in the party. The visit of the commissioners, who were headed by the chairman, the Hon. John E. Sanford, practically took the form of a hearing for the purpose of gaining information relative to the better protection of the public from trains rushing from beneath the Beale street bridge. Owing to its proximity to the Wollaston station this structure, or rather the miniature tunnel which it forms, has been for years a menace to the people who cross the tracks.

The only deduction which could be formed from the testimony offered was that the tracks at this point were used to such an extent by people other than those who do so for the purpose of boarding a train that the place was practically a grade crossing.

The problem presented was "How shall the danger be eliminated?"

It was proposed by some that a fence be built between the two tracks, thus compelling everybody to go over the Beale street bridge. This was deemed impracticable as it would be a grevious injustice to compel the residents of the Plains to climb up the hill and over the bridge every time they wished to take an inward train. It was suggested, however, that this difficulty could be overcome by extending Brook street beneath the tracks to Woodbine street.

Another plan proposed was that the railroad build a tunnel beneath the tracks, similar to the ones at Montello and Brockton. Those are made of white glazed brick and cost about $9,000 each.

The most feasible change suggested was a very pertinent one. It was that the railroad instead of employing young boys hardly over sixteen years old as assistants to the station agent, put on an intelligent, able bodied man and let him devote the larger part of his time warning people who attempted to cross in front of moving trains.

Among those who took part in the discussion besides Mr. Sherman were Commissioner Knowlton, Mr. George F. Pinkham, Mr. H. T. Whitman and Mr. W. H. Brasee.

SECRETARY COLTON.

His Resignation Accepted by the Y. M. C. A. Directors.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian association held Tuesday evening, the resignation of O. C. Colton, the general secretary, was accepted. Secretary Colton sent in his resignation in May, stating that on account of poor health, which made it impossible for him to attend to the numerous duties of his office, he felt it was for the best interests of the association that he resign. The directors asked him to reconsider and take a vacation until October 1, at half salary. Tuesday evening Mr. Colton stated that his resignation must stand, and a committee was appointed to secure a successor.

Mr. Colton will remain with the Association until about the 15th when he will go to Ohio where he will stay until he recovers his health. He has been General Secretary of the Quincy Association since Sept. 1892, and has been very successful in placing the Association in the front rank, particularly in educational work, exhibits having been made in several parts of the country. It will be difficult to fill Secretary Coltons place, as he was an excellent all round man, working for mind, spirit and body. The current number of "Young Men" tell by letters how successful he has been in various directions.

Sylvester-Spinney.

Miss Mary P. Sylvester, daughter of Mrs. Isaac A. Sylvester of Newton Centre, formerly of Quincy, was united in marriage on Thursday evening with Mr. William A. Spinney at the First Congregational church, Newton Centre.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her mother who also gave the bride away.

The ceremony was performed by the Episcopal service, two rings being used.

The bride was gowned in a heavy cream white satin, with pearl trimming, cut en train and the tulle veil was caught up with lilies of the valley and she carried a large bouquet of the same flowers. Miss Alice Sylvester, a sister and Miss Aline Sylvester, a cousin of the bride were bridemaids and wore beautiful gowns of white organdie over pink silk, with pink satin sashes and garniture of pink roses and carried bouquets of pink roses. Mrs. Sylvester, the bride's mother, wore a gown of gray brocade and looked lovely.

The groom was attended by Mr. Moses L. Stevens and the ushers were Mr. Henry Sherman, Mr. Edward Cutler, Mr. Edward Bronson and Mr. Charles T. Wetherbee.

A pretty feature of the wedding was the attendance of the little ones in Miss Sylvester's Kindergarten school and the Sunday school. They filled the front pews and their bright and interested faces were attractive to look upon.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the home of the bride which was attended by the relatives and near friends of the bride. The reception was delightfully informal, and when the bride threw her bouquet down the stairs there was friendly war for a few minutes all being in quest of the little gold heart hidden in the bouquet. After the merriment had subsided Miss Alice Sylvester was found to have secured the heart and congratulations were showered upon her especially so as last week at a wedding she received the ring in the bride's bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Spinney were speeded on their way amid a shower of rice and flowers. They sail from New York on Saturday and will spend the summer abroad.

Elliott-Dunham.

A marriage of interest to many Quincy people took place at Brockton Monday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Isaac Dunham. Dr. Richard A. Elliott, son of the late Richard Elliott of Quincy was united in marriage with Miss Helen A. Dunham. The Brockton Times of Tuesday says:

The bride has been prominent in home musical circles and has been a vigorous worker and organizer at St. Paul's Church. The groom lived in this city while pursuing his professional studies, but for the last couple of years has been assistant surgeon at the Soldiers' Home in Dayton, O.

There were some 50 guests present, but including only relatives and intimate friends from Brockton, Boston, Stoughton and Quincy. The parlor, where the guests assembled and where the happy event took place, was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers, and asparagus was twined about the chandeliers and mantels.

The bride was charmingly dressed in white muslin trimmed with Valenciennes lace and ribbons, and the long bridal veil was caught with rosebuds. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The maid of honor was Louise B. Dunham, a niece of the bride, and she wore white silk trimmed with lace and ribbons and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was George S. Dunham, a nephew of the bride.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony, the maid of honor and best man, the mother of the bride and the bride's brother, Fank A. Dunham, assisting in receiving. A wedding supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left for Boston on the 6.19 train and started immediately on their wedding trip, which will last a couple of weeks. They will go to the provinces and go through the country of Evangeline. They are to reside in this city at 28 Ellis street, and Dr. Elliott will begin to practice here. They will be at home after Sept. 1 on Wednesday afternoons.

Readville Track.

Thursday the large crowd that went out to the races at Readville, saw four of the fastest heats paced this year, one being made in the time of 2 07¾. In spite of the fact that each of the four races was won in three straight heats, the events were all good, and some of the finishes very exciting. Courier-Journal got first place easily in the 2 20 class, but there was a struggle between Boy Baron and Cracksman for second, Boy Baron finally winning. In the 2 26 class, Nancy Time won in one, two, three order. Sally Max took second money and Eth Bell ran 3—3—3.

At the track yesterday Frank Pierson won the 2.21 trotting class; best time 2.15¼. Jackson took the purse in the 2 18 class in three straight; best time 2.14¼. The 2.13 class was unfinished although seven heats were run; Allen secured 2, Palmetto Prince 2, and Jimmy B 1.

The Italian Camp.

Editors of the Ledger:

Mr. Faxon takes umbrage at the LEDGER statement of fact, and as a justification of his action in renting his building on Field street, castigates severely, as he no doubt foolishly believes, the good people of Field and Brackett streets. These worthy folks have done the gentleman no harm. Why then should he assail them in public print?

Mr. Faxon was the only man in town who would take the unfortunate Italians as tenants, which but clearly shows that this same Mr. Faxon, despite his many spread eagle speeches and newspaper articles, is willing at all times to bow to the power of filthy lucre. Vandals and blackguards! How wrathy does the old gentleman wax!

But in the excessive charity of our heart, we are ready to commiserate the poor Italians because they are tenants of Mr. Faxon.

Why don't the young men of the Neck get a game with some ball team for the Fourth?

Mr. W. Turner and family have arrived on the hill.

Hurrah for the Chinaman that's coming to the beach.

Mr. Charles Jacob's family and cow have arrived at the Willows.

Wonder if there'll be fireworks here the Fourth.

Mr. P. Carleton will spend the holiday with his family at the Everbreeze.

Mr. Edward Normand is a guest of Mr. Hoey at the Bo-Peep over the Fourth.

Mr. Dolan will probably erect a stable on Crosby street.

Services will be held at the Catholic church commencing Sunday.

The people of the West Side are not feeling very well, over the disagreement on the Belt-line for the street railway.

Mrs. Fitts while cooking yesterday burnt her arm severely.

Mrs. Emery gave a light operatic sketch on the piazza of the "Delmonte" last evening followed by a game of whist by the party.

Miss Aloise Tierney, Katherine Martin, and Miss Katherine Donovan and friends will spend the holiday at the "Loretto."

Mr. Garbarino and family will spend the holiday at the "Cosey" cottage.

Mr. Condon and family are spending the holiday week at the "Jefferson club."

Mrs. Lucia and Mrs. Willis were the guests of Mrs. J. N. Maynard and daughter at the "Eight Bells."

Mr. George W. Morton and wife are spending the summer months at the "Red Lion."

MR. TUELL'S CLASSES.

The first annual reunion of the graduates of the Milton High school, from 1880 to 1897 inclusive, was held last evening at Milton Town Hall and was attended by nearly two hundred of the graduates. Mr. Hiram W. Tuell, the principal of the school during these years, was present. The affair, which was entirely informal, proved to be very enjoyable for it gave the graduates an opportunity to renew acquaintances and friendships made during school life. The entertainment provided consisted of vocal and instrumental music and readings by graduates, including an original poem written for the occasion by Miss Bertha Swift. During the evening parchment papers were circulated for the autographs of the graduates present. It is proposed as far as possible to obtain the autographs of the graduates of the years 1880—1897 and have them bound into a memorial volume.

The features of the evening were the duets by Mrs. J. A. Turner and Miss Turner, Miss Hackaday and Miss Morrissey, the readings by Miss Ella Packard, and interesting talks on college life by Mr. George Huntington and Mr. J. A. Logan.

At the close of the reception the graduates were called together by Mr. Dexter E. Wadsworth, who stated that it was proposed to form a permanent organization and it was so voted, and a committee consisting of one from each class was appointed to draft by-laws, select a name, etc.

TODAY'S COURT.

James E. Mahoney was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued one week.

The case of Mary P. Gaynor, for keeping a liquor nuisance at Randolph, was again continued until July 13.

James F. Pierce was fined $50 and sentenced to three months in the house of correction for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell at Randolph. Appealed.

DO YOU WEAR A TRUSS?

Examine our assortment, whether you need one now or not. The reason your present truss is so uncomfortable, it does not fit. We guarantee a perfect fitting, comfortable Truss at great deal less than Boston prices. See our window display.

"RELIABILITY," OUR MOTTO.

About Our Coffee.

Do you know the prices we are making on Coffee? Are you acquainted with the quality of Coffee we sell? The very best Coffee only costs half a cent per cup if it is properly made. The best Mocha and Java we sell for 35c. per lb. There are very few dealers who carry this high grade Coffee, for, as they say, they can't make as much money on it as they can on cheaper grades—that is why they all try to sell something cheaper.

We always try to sell you something better than you had last. We don't want you to think that this is all the kind we carry in stock, however, for we keep all the different grades in Coffee, and we are bound to suit you.

We believe in giving credit where credit is due, and from a long trial (more than ten years) of Chase & Sanborn's Coffees, we are convinced that they are of the best grown and imported into this country. The Seal Brand in cans and Old Government Java are especially nice and you will make no mistake if you buy and use either. We have cheaper grades like Rio and Mararíato and all kinds of good, sound, reliable goods. Our coffee trade is large and is a feature in our business.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors and all other persons interested in the estate of late of Dedham, in said County, deceased, intestate.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to James P. Farrell of said Dedham, without giving a surety on his bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on the fourteenth day of July, A. D., 1897, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER, a newspaper published in Quincy, Mass., the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Direct Wires from Wollaston, Atlantic, Point, South and West.

The east wind this afternoon makes today very comfortable.

Several new cottages are in the process of erection at the Downs.

The Wollaston Trap club will hold a shoot on Monday forenoon at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Thompson of Medford will occupy her cottage on Sachem street next Tuesday.

Mr. Wilson of Brook avenue, Mt. Pleasant, will occupy his new cottage on the beach front next week.

Mrs. Mabel Ramsdell of Atlantic catered at the Woodward reception. Her fruit punch was much enjoyed by all.

The old partly burned barn of Reuben Clark, which has been an eye sore to the residents for some months is being torn down.

It is stated on good authority that General Superintendent Allen will give Wollaston the four trains which were dropped when the summer time-table went into effect.

A council of the Knights of Columbus will be instituted at Norwood on Sunday. Many members from Quincy will attend, leaving Boston on a New York and New England special at 12.47.

The office hours at the Quincy post office on Monday, July 5, will be: 7 to 10 A. M; 5 to 7 P. M. Carriers will make one delivery and collection only. Late mail for all points will close 6.30 P. M.

The Dorchester horrible, artistic and trade display on Monday will be at Field's Corner, shortly after 8 A. M. The route at this point is: Quincy street, Adams, Dorchester avenue, Charles, Waldeck, Allston, etc.

The bicycle store of John H. Gillis was entered by burglars sometime Thursday night, and about one dollar in small change and a few cigars taken. Entrance to the building was had by a window in the rear of the store.

Officer Patrick H. Bradley has the sympathy of his many friends in the loss of his daughter, Mabel A., who died yesterday after an illness of four weeks' duration. The cause of the little one's death was spinal trouble.

Five special officers will assist Officer Connolly of Wollaston, on the night of the "Fourth." It is understood that attempts at destroying property this year will be promptly followed by arrests and prosecution. This is as it should be.

The Sunday morning service at the Washington Street Congregational church Sunday will be of a patriotic nature. The decorations will be in keeping with the day and there will be extra singing, etc. All are cordially welcome to this service.

While riding on Hancock street last evening about nine o'clock Henry A. Willey met with a severe accident by being thrown from his buggy. He was unconscious for awhile, but soon recovered. He was attended by Dr. N. S. Hunting who found a severe scalp wound. Mr. Willey was taken to his home.

The Quincy postoffice, by an apportionment announced yesterday by First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, is allowed $590 for horse hire and car fares for carriers. The cities in the state to get more are: Boston, Worcester, Lynn, New Bedford, Springfield, Fall River, Taunton, Brockton, Lowell, Beverly, Fitchburg, Gloucester and Woburn.

Rev. Dr. Cone who is to preach at the Universalist church, Sunday, is one of the most distinguished divines of the order. Until last August, he has been for 18 years President of Buchtel College, at Akron, Ohio; and as a biblical scholar and critic he has secured a foremost position among the very best men of his department. He has written a number of books of permanent value. He will speak here in the morning and at Braintree in the afternoon.

Commodore Dixon of the Atlantic Yacht Club of Boston has kindly tendered the use of his large sloop Actaeon in place of the yacht Pilgrim, which Commodore Sanborn had engaged for the use of the club members and friends on Ladies' day. The Actaeon, which is 62 feet long, will comfortably carry a large party. Commodore Sanborn cordially invites club members and friends who have not already made arrangements for a sail, to avail themselves of Commodor Dixon's courtesy.

The Wollaston Yacht club will hold a regatta in sight of the new club house at 1.30 P. M. on Monday, July 5. At the close of the race the yacht owners will be pleased to accommodate as many friends as possible on a sail. Most of the officers will be on hand to receive applications; first on hand, first served. It is expected that the yacht owners, by way of variety, will participate in a rowing match which will no doubt add much to the merriment of the day. Any prospective members will be cheerfully shown the new club house and the yachting facilities.

Eight pages again on Tuesday.

Ellsworth M. Harding was granted a pension this week.

The funeral of Mrs. Phebe A. McClallan will be held Sunday at Springfield.

The street railway has engaged Brown's Brigade band to give a concert in City Square tonight.

Do you have the Saturday LEDGER every week? If not, you miss the newsiest paper of the week.

Miss Florence Howe of Bigelow street goes to New Jersey next week to spend the summer with friends.

S. Penniman & Son are out with a new hack. It is up-to date, with rubber tires and the latest improvements.

Representative T. H. Newcomb has been engaged by the Sewer Commissioners as inspector at the new pumping station.

The Weymouth centre ball nine who were to play the Quincy & Boston nine Friday did not appear, and a game was played with a scrub nine.

Commencing today the street railway is running through cars from Neponset to Nantasket, leaving Neponset on the even hour, and half hour, and Quincy twenty minutes past and ten minutes of the hour.

The annual picnic of the Italian Mutual Relief society is being held today at New Downer Landing. This morning the society formed at West Quincy and headed by the Italian band marched to City Square where cars were taken for the grove.

Misses Mary, Fannie, Theresa and Annie Kelley left Brockton Wednesday for their home in New Brunswick where they are to spend the summer with their parents. Miss Mary Kelley is to be married in a few weeks to Mr. Patrick W. Mannex of West Quincy.

By special assignment the civil case of Thorn vs. F. F. Green was heard at the District court this morning. Thorn was formerly employed by Green and claims that Green owes him something like $93 for work done over time. The defense was a general denial. The court will render its finding next Thursday.

Tennis Tournament.

Last Wednesday afternoon the Hitormisit Tennis club officially opened its new grounds, Braintree, with a club tournament. That the work on the court has been so rapidly pushed to completion is very largely due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Perley Barbour, Mr. Herbert Plummer and Mr. Harry Merritt, who, as officers of the club have spared no pains or personal inconvenience that the court might be ready for the use of the members as soon as possible.

At three-thirty, the hour set for the matches to begin, all signs of the heavy rain of the morning had disappeared, and the weather conditions were perfect.

Mr. W. A. McKean of Ash street kindly loaned the club a good sized tent, which was pitched at one side of the court. Within were to be found strawberry lemonade, cake and crackers in charge of Miss Nina Gage, who was assisted by Miss Ethel Gage. The grounds were decorated with bunting and presented a very pretty appearance.

The court promises to be a good one and was in excellent condition. A large number of friends of the club were present throughout the afternoon. The first match was that of Holbrook and Stevens vs. Merritt and Gallagher and was finally won by the former, after a hot contest, with the score at 6-3.

The second set in the doubles was contested by Horne and Crooker vs. Plummer and Hobart. This proved a dull set was long drawn out. Horne and Crooker won 7-5.

Much interest is centered in the set of singles between Gallagher and Geo. Arnold which was next on the card.

Pretty playing abounded throughout this set. At times Arnold was very swift and even brilliant, but was a trifle wild, driving out frequently.

He uses the Lawford a great deal, and when he gets it in, proves extremely effective. Gallagher gave a fine exhibition of tennis. His placing was always excellent and his drive outs were very few.

Gallagher is a very careful player, never taking any risks, but holding the game well in hand at all times. The set proved much more interesting than would appear by the score which was 6 to 1 in favor of Gallagher.

The next set was in singles, between Stevens and Holbrook, and was won by the former after a very evenly contested match. Stevens showed superiority in his return strokes and had the score 6 to 3 at the end of the set.

In the finals Gallagher defeated Stevens to the score of 6 to 1, after a hotly contested set. Stevens put up a good game but proved unequal to his opponent.

The last match of the afternoon was that of Putnam & Crooker vs. Stevens & Arnold and was won handily by the latter, 6 to 1.

The members of the club feel very thankful to all who contributed to the success of the afternoon, especially the young ladies who so kindly assisted in entertaining.

May the club hold another tournament in the near future.

BRAINTREE.

Winefred A. Torrey, the popular South Braintree post-master, will move into his new office about the middle of this month. Several improvements will be made. The floor will be of immitation tile, and the whole office will be finely finished. There will be 50 new combination lock boxes added, and when completed, be one of the best equiped offices in the county.

There was in Braintree a population in 1895 of 5,311; native born white, 609, of whom 346 were single, 214 married, 48 widowed, and 1 divorced; native born colored, 3, of whom 2 were single and 1 widowed; foreign born white, 147, of whom 35 were single, 97 married, and 15 widowed; foreign born Indian, 1 single.

John V. Scollard of Braintree was yesterday appointed a member of the executive committee of 15 by Hon. John W. Coughlin, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

At the prize drill and entertainment to be given by the Boys' Brigade in the Town Hall, on Thursday evening, a valuable silver medal will be awarded as the first prize to the best drilled boy in the company. This will be an occasion of great interest, as this will be the first time that all the members of the company will appear in uniform. A special musical programme is being prepared. After the public exercises there will be an ice cream social.

A grand vocal and instrumental concert was given in the Town Hall, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Veteran Firemen's Association.

The First church Sunday school will hold its annual picnic at Great Pond next Thursday.

The liquor officers made a successful raid at the Hampton House on Thursday afternoon. They are bound to stop the rum business in Braintree, and it is time.

The McChonchie boy died from the effects of scarlet fever and pneumonia on Thursday night. The doctor did not see him until the disease had so far advanced that it was impossible to save the little sufferer.

News has just been received of the sudden death by membranous croup of Master Freddie Hayden, son of Mrs. N. F. T. Hayden, at Clifton, where the family have just gone for the summer. Freddie was a very bright boy, very dear to his mother who has the profound sympathy of the community. He was taken to Dorchester immediately for burial.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth will take his vacation in August.

Dr. F. W. Brett of Washington street is down with scarlet fever.

The old Stoughton musical society will hold its outing August 24.

Albert Holbrook received a painful wound in his hand from a chisel on Wednesday.

The Braintree Veterans with their tub, the Butcher Boy, will attend the muster at Lynn on Monday. Good luck to them.

Granite Cutters' Strike.

About seventy employes of the Bodwell Granite company's works in Jonesboro, Maine, struck Thursday morning for nine hours' work and ten hours' pay, and work is now suspended pending a decision of the matter by the company's officers in Rockland. The strikers are nearly all residents of the locality. It is said that the company will not accede to the demand of the men, but that help will be brought in from other places.

IMPORTANT PHASES.

Reciprocity and Retaliatory Clauses to Tariff Bill Passed by Senate.

Mr. Teller Objects to Naming Time For Final Vote.

Possibility That Final Action May Be Taken on the Measure Today.

Washington, July 3.—The senate was occupied yesterday in a discussion of reciprocity and retaliation in connection with the tariff bill. The debate was protracted and spirited. The two provisions were finally adopted.

Mr. Allison endeavored to secure an agreement fixing a time for a final vote, but Mr. Teller of Colorado objected, saying he would not consent to fixing a time for final action until all amendments to the bill had been presented to the senate.

As Mr. Allison was not prepared to submit these amendments, he withdrew his request, and the time for the final vote was left open, although there is still hope that it will be reached today.

The retaliatory clause provides that whenever any country bestows an export bounty on any article, then upon the importation of such article into the United States, there shall be levied in addition to the duties provided by the act an additional duty equal to the amount of bounty. The debate on the section disclosed some difference of opinion on the Democratic side, Mr. Gray of Delaware and Mr. Lindsay of Kentucky opposing it, while Mr. Caffery of Louisiana supported it as a legitimate measure of self-preservation. Mr. Gray dwelt upon the effect of the clause in evading our treaty obligations with Germany and Austria. The clause was agreed to, 33-19, the two Democratic senators from Louisiana voting with the Republicans in the affirmative.

The reciprocity clause empowers the president with the advice and consent of the senate to make reciprocity treaties giving 20 per cent reduction in duties on designated articles, or placing articles on the free list. The amendment brought out much opposition, Senators Mills, Pettus, Vest Teller and White arguing that it evaded the constitutional right of the house of representatives to participate in measures affecting revenue, while Senators Morgan, Gray and Chandler defended its legality and propriety. Late in the day the vote was taken and the reciprocity clause was agreed to, 30-18, two Democrats—Gray and Morgan—voting with the Republicans in the affirmative.

Early in the day, Mr. Wellington (Rep. Md.), rising to a question of personal privilege, vehemently upheld his senatorial prerogatives in the matter of federal appointments.

Threatened Rebellion In India.

London, July 3.—The newspapers of this city express anxiety at the occurrences in India, intimating that the mass of the natives there are less content under British rule than was generally believed and that a rebellion of unpleasant proportions may be threatening. Constant communications are passing between the Indian and home governments.

Gould Appraisement Decision.

New York, July 3.—The appelate division of the supreme court has affirmed the order of the surrogate appraising the estate of Jay Gould at about $73,000,000 and also affirmed the order of the surrogate deducting the legacy of George J. Gould $5,000,000 and the expenses of administration at arriving at the value of the property for purposes of taxation.

THE CURRENCY PROBLEM.

President McKinley May Send a Special Message to Congress.

Washington, July 3.—The question whether the president will send a special message to congress recommending the creation of a currency commission will be definitely decided next week.

The president is strongly inclined at this time to send a special currency message to congress, regarding himself as in a considerable measure pledged to this course. In fact it was semi-officially announced at the White House late yesterday afternoon that such a message would be sent to congress next week, but some of his most influential advisers on financial questions are opposed to a message as unpolitic at this time, owing to hostility to a commission on the part of congress, and the final determination, as stated, will not be reached until Mr. McKinley's return from Canton.

The executive committee of the Indianapolis sound money convention have been actively advocating the commission scheme ever since the advent of the present administration. It had also the sympathy of the president, who committed himself to it in his inaugural. President McKinley, however, did not care to recommend it to congress while the tariff bill was pending, lest it might complicate and delay action upon that measure. But all along the chief difficulty which presented itself to those who favored a commission for the investigation of the currency system has been the opposition it would encounter in congress.

While a bill for the creation of the commission could easily be passed in the house where factions' opposition would be unavailing against the operation of a cloture order that would bring it to a vote, such opposition in the senate might be almost interminable.

Several of the silver senators have openly avowed their unalterable hostility to the creation of a commission, and Senator Teller of Colorado has declared that he would remain here until December to defeat it.

This being the situation, it is understood that some of the members of the executive committee of the Indianapolis convention are now inclined to believe that it would perhaps be a mistake to press their request for the creation of a commission by congress. The better and wiser thing to do some of them now think would be to withdraw their request for a commission and to use the provisional power vested in the Indianapolis convention and themselves select a committee to investigate the currency question and present their conclusions through the public press.

If these conclusions were such as the administration could subscribe to they could be made the basis of administration measure modified, as Secretary Gage, conducting an independent investigation, might suggest. The secretary has been at work for some time on a comprehensive currency reform scheme, and some suggestion has been made as to the wisdom of not having a further agitation of the question, but of permitting Mr. Gage, who has the full confidence of business men generally to frame a measure after consultation with financiers, business men, members of the house and senate and others.

The matter was under discussion at the cabinet meeting yesterday, but not in a manner to lead to a definite conclusion of policy, and the matter went over until the president's return next week, when it is probable that H. H. Hanna, who is chairman of the executive committee of the Indianapolis convention, and perhaps other members of the committee will come to Washington to discuss the situation with the president and Secretary Gage. Upon the result of the conference will probably depend President McKinley's action as to a special message to congress.

Lodge Draws Bond Tax Amendment.

Washington, July 3.—Senator Lodge has prepared a draft of an amendment to the tariff bill providing for a stamp tax on stocks and bonds in accordance with the action of the Republican senatorial caucus of Thursday night, and submitted it to the finance committee. As prepared, the amendment provides for a tax of 5 cents a share of $100, or fraction of the face value of capital stock or of bonds on their issuance, and of 2 cents for each $100 or fraction on each transfer of stock or bonds. United States and state bonds are exempted, as are individual bonds to secure mortgages, and also the stock and bonds of mutual benefit buildings associations. The amendment has been submitted to the Republican members of the judiciary committtee and approved by them as to form.

Corwine's Father-In-Law Prosecuted.

New York, July 3.—T. C. Smith, father-in-law of Paymaster Corwine, U. S. N., has been indicted by the United States grand jury in Brooklyn. The charge is embezzlement, the specification being that Mr. Smith received government moneys in payment of personal debts in settlement of the amount paid on the bond of Paymaster John Corwine, U. S. N., who is Mr. Smith's son-in-law. It had been concluded by the defense that when United States Commissioner Morle dismissed the complaint against Mr. Smith, a few days ago, the government would discontinue further proceedings in the case. The surety company that went on Corwine's bond is said to be interested in the prosecution of Mr. Smith.

CORNELL'S WONDERS.

Another Four-Mile Race Won by That Invincible Thirty-Two Stroke.

Columbia Second; Pennsylvania's Boat Swamped.

Time Was Slower Than That of Last Week. Final Race a Fizzle.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 3.—Cornell last evening won her third victory in the regatta that ended yesterday with the four-mile eight-oared shell race between the Ithacans and Columbia and the University of Pennsylvania. Cornell got the lead in the race at the first half-mile and gradually increased it to over-nine lengths over Columbia at the finish. The race was started against a head wind and in water that was too rough for shell racing.

Pennsylvania's shell swamped before the two-mile-and-a-quarter point had been reached. The Quakers had led at the start, but had been passed by Columbia just before the mile-and-a-half point. When Pennsylvania's boat swamped she was more than four lengths behind Columbia.

Cornell offered to row the race over again with Pennsylvania today. This courteous proposition was declined on the ground that it was asking too much of an eight to row two races within 48 hours.

There was really no race to describe, at least not after the second mile. During the first three-quarters of a mile the contest was rather pretty. Pennsylvania took the water first with a quick, jerky stroke, Columbia following and Cornell hanging to the rear. At the quarter of a mile Pennsylvania had a lead of one-half a length over Columbia and Columbia one-half a length over Cornell. Pennsylvania was, however, splashing badly, No. 7 in particular hitting the water every time on his feather. At the half mile Pennsylvania was rowing 34 and Columbia 33, while Cornell with her 32 stroke was decreasing the lead. At the three-quarters of a mile, Pennsylvania had three-quarters of a length still over Cornell, who had pulled on beyond Columbia for about half a length. It was here that the trouble seemed to begin in the Pennsylvania boat.

Just prior to the starting of the race the steamer Tremper of the Albany and Newburg line came down the river as the boats were lined up, and although warned by the referee and the police boats would not stop. The swells that she made were blown back by the south wind, and the local referee, Harris S. Reynolds, started the crews while the swells were running, though Coach Ward of Pennsylvania protested against starting. When Cornell's boat, on the outside, hit them they were long swells and the short boat cut them in two, converting them into a choppy sea, so that when they hit Pennsylvania's shell they swashed over the side.

It was here that Cornell's clever rowing was in evidence, for while the beautiful form of that crew kept the oars from touching those swells during the feather, the Pennsylvania oars hit them with so much force as to throw part of them into the boat. By the time the crews had reached the mile and a quarter, the Pennsylvania boat was lumbering along filled almost to the gunwales, but the men continued bravely pulling, although falling far behind Columbia, who in rowing inshore to avoid the swells, had lost considerable distance to Cornell. From a mile and a half down the ludicrous procession began.

Cornell's boat went along against the head wind as if it had wings, while Columbia's crew pulled along violently, losing nearly a length in every quarter of a mile. Pennsylvania splashed along slowly going to the rear until the two mile and a quarter point was reached when Coach Ward came around in the Ben Franklin and took them aboard.

From that time on the race practically lost its interest to the thousands of people along the shore. Cornell's rythmical 32 swing carried it along at an excellent pace, although the shell had taken in some water, while Columbia rowed at 33, but with indomitable pluck struggled along to catch her with a precision that was exasperating. The Cornellians drew away from the Columbia boat until at the bridge there was at least 10 boat lengths between them.

It was here that the Columbia crew made a desperate effort to spurt, but Cornell perceived it and without evidently increasing the stroke put a little more back and leg work in and carried their boat another length and a half ahead of the white and blue, crossing the line an easy winner.

Officer Held on Assault Charge.

Chelsea, Mass., July 3.—The preliminary hearing in the case of Patrolman Fred R. Sackett of Revere, charged with assault with intent to kill Cornelius Phair for alleged highway robbery in Revere, on the night of June 19, was finished yesterday in the police court, here. Judge Bossom found Sackett probably guilty and held him in $1000 bonds for the grand jury. Bail will be furnished. Phair was shot through the left arm. He was one of the several young men in a group chased that night by the officer, who claimed that he saw Phair steal a bundle from a passing wagon. Sackett's defence was that the shooting was accidental. Phair is now on trial for the alleged highway robbery.

Loan Associations Fail.

Louisville, July 3.—Within 72 hours four building and loan associations, whose estimated assets and liabilities foot up over $1,250,000, have gone to the wall in this city, finding it impossible to conduct business under the recent decision of the court of appeals in regard to the legal rate of interest. At the offices of all the building and loan associations in the state the greatest uneasiness prevails, and stockholders are hourly giving notice of withdrawals. It is the general opinion among local financiers that the building and loan business has suffered its death blow in Kentucky, and thousands, perhaps millions, of dollars will be lost to the shareholders in these institutions.

PARDONED BY GOVERNOR.

Editor O'Sullivan of Lawrence Given His Freedom to Save His Life.

Salem, Mass., July 3.—Editor Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan of Lawrence, who was serving a sentence in the Salem jail for criminal libel, was pardoned yesterday afternoon by Governor Wolcott upon the recommendation of District Attorney White and the certificate of Dr Charles A. Carleton, jail physician and medical examiner, and Dr. Frank S. Atwood of Salem, declaring their belief that the prisoner is suffering from catarral pneumonia, and that his continued imprisonment would jeopardize his life.

For several days past Mr. O'Sullivan has suffered from hemorrhages, and his condition had become so serious as to alarm his friends and such as to call for prompt action.

Mr. O'Sullivan had a severe hemorrhage Thursday night, and when Dr. Carleton visited the jail yesterday he found his patient much worse and weaker than when he saw him Thursday. His report to Governor Wolcott consequently was of such an alarming nature that the chief executive was moved to take prompt action in the matter. A personal petition for a pardon, based upon his critical condition, was also presented to the governor by Mr. O'Sullivan's counsel, John B. Moran.

Messengers were hurriedly dispatched by Governor Wolcott, summoning the members of the executive council to meet at once at the state house to consider the petition for a pardon. The members convened, and after the matter had been laid before them by the governor and the circumstances calling for the meeting, fully explained, the pardon was decided upon and Governor Wolcott attached his signature. The document was then given to Mr. Moran, who carried it immediately to O'Sullivan.

Mr. O'Sullivan is too sick to be taken to Lawrence at present, but today, if his condition permits, he will be removed to the Salem hospital, where he will be given the best care and attention possible. If in the course of a week or so he rallies sufficiently to be removed he will probably be taken to some mountain resort in New Hampshire for several weeks to recuperate. The physicians are of the opinion that if he recovers from his present sickness he will have a serious permanent lung trouble.

Although Mr. Moran conveyed the pardon to the jail, he was not allowed to deliver it in person, as no one save the jailer, physician, attendant and Mr. O'Sullivan's father have been allowed to approach his bedside.

Mr. O'Sullivan has had no more hemorrhages, and he has brightened up considerably since he received the news of his pardon.

Dr. Carleton says that were it not for the dampness of the prison walls he should not think of having the sick man removed from the jail for a few days at least, but under the existing conditions he feels it to be imperative that he should be taken from the institution at the earliest possible moment.

Bicyclist's Frightful Death.

Newton, Mass., July 3.—William H. Mailes, a carpenter of West Newton, is dead as the result of a collision with a delivery wagon while riding his bicycle. Mailes was thrown from his wheel and his breast pierced by the shaft of the wagon. The wound was a frightful one, and in addition several ribs were fractured. The driver claims that Mailes was on the wrong side of the road, and that he did not see him until an instant before the collision. Eye witnesses say that both bicycle and team were moving rapidly. Mr. Mailes was about 32 years old, and unmarried.

New Trial Ordered.

Boston, July 3.—A verdict of $24,500 in favor of Lewis Olsen, who sued the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for damages, was set aside and a new trial granted by Judge Hopkins of the Suffolk superior court yesterday. Olsen, who lives in Cambridge, lost both legs by being run over while at work for the Boston bridge works on April 13, 1896, building a drawbridge over Fort Point channel. The verdict was the largest returned in the superior court for Suffolk in a personal injury case for a year.

Lived Nearly a Century.

Montpelier, Vt., July 3.—Mrs. Eliza Jewett Shafter died at the age of 99 years and 6 months yesterday at her home in this city. She was a sister of Colonel F. P. Jewett, who died three years ago, aged 95. Mrs. Shafter belonged to a family which was one of the oldest and one of the most prominent in Vermont. Her husband died nearly half a century ago. She was a step-mother of the late James Shafter, once secretary of state of Vermont, and Judge Shafter of the supreme court of California.

Finneran and Mulrey's Cases.

Boston, July 3.—The exceptions taken by Thomas Finneran, the contractor, who stands convicted of obtaining money from the city of Boston by false pretenses, were allowed by Judge Bloggett yesterday in the supreme court. This puts his case in shape for argument before the supreme court on questions of law. The court also allowed Mulrey's exceptions. A further step has been taken to get a stay of the sentences which both Mulrey and Finneran are now serving.

Another Investigation.

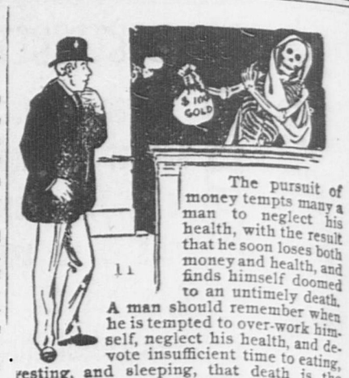

Boston, July 3.—The Journal says on authority of District Attorney Stevens that "an investigation by the criminal prosecuting officers, relative to the management of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, has been begun. If proofs of crime, committed by its officers, can be obtained it will be placed before the grand jury, possibly at the next term, beginning next Tuesday."

Bar's Testimonial to a Judge.

Haverhill, Mass., July 3.—The lawyers practising at the local bar tendered an informal banquet to Judge Henry Carter in observance of the 30th anniversary of his appointment as judge of the local court last night. Letters were read from members of the Essex bar in other cities and several speeches were made, including one by Congressman Moody.

Taunton, Mass., July 3.—Samuel Willis, father of Herbert Willis, who is now serving a life sentence for the murder of Frank N. Strange, has mysteriously disappeared and left no trace of his whereabouts. He left town June 14, ostensibly to go to Plymouth to transact some business.

The pursuit of money tempts many a man to neglect his health, with the result that he soon loses both money and health, and finds himself doomed to an untimely death. A man should remember when he is tempted to over-work himself, neglect his health, and devote insufficient time to eating, resting, and sleeping, that death is the tempter that holds out money as a bait. If a man will take proper care of his health, he will feel like work, and will find that he can do all the work that he cares to do within working hours.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gets a man into working shape and keeps him there. It invigorates the liver, keeps the digestion in working order, the appetite hearty and keen. It keeps the blood pure and plentiful. It keeps out and drives out impurities and disease-germs. It wards off nervous and wasting diseases. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It is the product of the life-work of an eminent and skillful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Druggists sell it.

Mrs. L. F. Coates, of Blythebourne, Kings Co., N. Y., writes: "Three years ago, I was so sick I could not eat, sleep or walk, for I coughed all day and night. My weight was reduced from 150 to 127 pounds. The first night that I slept for hours at one time, was after I had taken three doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The offensive matter expectorated grew less every day and when I had taken the whole of one bottle I could sleep all night without coughing, and have been well ever since and weigh 178 pounds."

A good, practical, medical book is worth more in a home than a thousand novels. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is that kind of a book. It contains 1,008 pages and over 300 illustrations. A new edition given away absolutely FREE. If you want a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps (the cost of mailing only), to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. NOTABLE EVENTS OF JULY FOURTH.

Three Ex-Presidents Died on That Day.

ANNIVERSARY OF TWO BATTLES.

Our First Tariff Bill Was Fought That Day—The Massacre of Wyoming Valley. The Amnesty Proclamation of 1868. Treaties Signed.

NOT alone as the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence is the Fourth of July entitled to the attention of patriotic citizens.

Other events of national importance are indissolubly connected with the day, so that, partly by intent and partly by pure accident, the Fourth of July, aside from its prestige as the nation's birthday, has become one of the most distinguished days in the chronology of our country.

The first tariff bill that the United States ever had was signed by President George Washington on the Fourth of July, 1789. This measure, which was the first important legislation of the congress of the new nation, was regarded as eminently patriotic, and that consideration had much to do with the selection of the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence as the day for its official promulgation.

At that time the national congress was sitting in session in New York city, and early in April James Madison, Jr., of Virginia, member of the house of representatives, made the proposition to meet the pressing financial necessities of the country by a system of impost and tonnage duties. The subject engaged the attention of the house until late into May, when the bill was passed that with slight amendments was subsequently concurred in by the senate and signed by the president. So our tariff system as well as our independence began on the Fourth of July.

Mr. Madison the father of the measure, condensed into 22 lines, with eight or nine words each, the essential principles that governed impost and tonnage legislation for many years to come. Specific duties the rule, ad valorem duties the exception, revenue the object, moderate duties, the burden of taxation upon luxuries—these were the characteristics of the measure as proposed and as finally adopted. The ad valorem duties ran from 5 to 15 per cent, the latter figure being fixed for pleasure carriages. Specific duties were also very moderate. The law was limited to expire in June, 1796.

The Wyoming Massacres.

Thomas Campbell has celebrated in "Gertrude of Wyoming" one of the most tragic and most pitiful events in our country's early history. The poem, as all know, is in Campbell's most charming style. The poet sings:

Delightful Wyoming! Beneath thy skies
The happy shepherd swains have naught to do
But feed their flocks on green declivities
Or skim perchance thy lake with light canoe
From morn till evening's sweeter pastime grew,
With timbrel, when beneath the forest brown
Thy lovely maidens would the dance renew,
And, aye, those sunny mountains half way down
Would echo flageolet from some romantic clown.

The Wyoming valley on the Susquehanna river was as beautiful a spot 100 and more years ago as it is now. Possession of the territory was in dispute between Connecticut and Pennsylvania, and strife between contending claimants was frequent. The Tories were turned out, and then, under command of Colonel John Butler, they allied themselves to the neighboring Indians and returned with a force of 1,100 men, 900 of whom were savages. Colonel Zebulon Butler commanded the settlers, but he and his little army were enticed out of their fort on the plea of a parley and, having been led into ambuscade, were slaughtered almost to a man. The fort was then attacked and forced to surrender, and many of its defenders were massacred. It is said that Queen Esther, a half breed Indian woman, tomahawked with her own hand 14 persons to satisfy her revenge for the killing of a favorite son. And when this dread Fourth of July ended it looked upon a devasted valley, ruined homes and mutilated corpses, while a little band of survivors—25 or 30 men and 200 women—were driven out into the trackless wilderness to find a way as best they might to a friendly settlement, a long journey that was only accomplished after much suffering.

The Washington Monument.

When the cornerstone of the Washington monument at Washington was laid, July 4, 1848, there was a brilliant assemblage. Among those in attendance were a few men and women who had been contemporaries of the Father of His Country. Upon the platform were seated side by side the widows of Alexander Hamilton and President Madison, both of whom had witnessed the birth of the republic. President Polk and his cabinet were present, and Robert C. Winthrop delivered the oration.

The date, July 4, 1851, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the nation's birthday, was selected as the occasion for laying the cornerstone of the extension of the capitol at Washington. The celebration was a distinguished affair. There were a grand military and civic procession and imposing ceremonies. Fillmore was president, and Daniel Webster, then secretary of state, delivered the oration, which was one of his most dignified, eloquent and impressive public speeches.

Memorable Battles.

It was an anxious Fourth of July that dawned upon the country in 1861. Civil war had become a dread reality. Confederate troops had been assembling for weeks across the Potomac in Virginia. Apprehensions for the safety of Washington were rife and Federal troops were throwing up fortifications and pushing into the field. Almost daily reports were coming in of skirmishes and light engagements between the opposing forces. In this crisis the Fourth was celebrated with renewed fervor. Congress met in special session on that day, the only time in the history of the country that the day has been chosen for such a purpose. There was a dramatic force in the arrangement that was not without its effect in stimulating patriotism in the then tense condition of the public mind. At once President Lincoln sent in his message calling for 400,000 men and $400,000,000 and urging prompt measures for the prosecution of the war.

The month of July, 1863, opened with much of hope and anxiety throughout the country. All eyes north and south were turned toward Gettysburg and Vicksburg, and there was little thought anywhere save for the opposing armies that faced each other. For several weeks the invasion of Pennsylvania by the Confederate army of the Potomac had been talked of. The state militia of Pennsylvania had been called, and President Lincoln had summoned troops from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland and West Virginia to repel the invasion. The Confederates had crossed the Potomac and several small engagements had already occurred. On the 1st of July the two great forces—the flower of the Confederate and the Union armies—met in what was to be one of the greatest battles of modern warfare. The world knows the sanguinary glory of Seminary Ridge, Rock Creek, Cemetery Ridge, Little Round Top and Oak Ridge, and the great deeds of Meade, Reynolds, Hancock, Sickles, Howard, Sedgwick, Lee, Longstreet, Hill, Early and others. For three days the country stood aghast and trembling, but when the Fourth dawned Lee was in full retreat back across the Potomac.

Nor does Gettysburg stand alone in making July 4, 1863, eminent. Vicksburg comes in for a share in the distinction. For many long weary months Grant by land and Porter by water had been besieging the strong city on the banks of the Mississippi. From the latter part of May the investment was complete. The doomed city was bombarded without intermission day and night, and it is estimated that 10,000 shells were thrown into its streets every day. Capitulation was only a question of days or at the most of weeks, and on the Fourth the wornout army of brave defenders surrendered, and the triumph of the Union forces was complete. General Halleck, in speaking of the tactics that secured this victory, declared that "no more brilliant exploit can be found in military history." Together, Vicksburg and Gettysburg have made the Fourth of July one of the most notable days in the military annals of this country.

The Great Portland Fire.

Portland, Me., has impressive if not agreeable reason to remember the Fourth of July. It was on the evening of that day in 1866 that the city had a display of fireworks unequaled before or since. Nearly one-half of the city was destroyed by fire. A tract 1½ miles long by one-quarter of a mile wide was burned over. The city and county buildings, churches, banks, wholesale business blocks and private residences were destroyed. Over 50 buildings were blown up to stop the progress of the flames, which, however, were not under control until the afternoon of the next day. The loss was $10,000,000, and the insurance only half that amount. A quarter of the population of the city was made homeless. This was the most notable event ever recorded in the history of the state of Maine, and until the Chicago and Boston fires followed a few years later it stood as the most disastrous conflagration ever known in this country.

A National Convention.

Only once has a national convention of a great political party been called to assemble on the Fourth of July. That single exception was the Democratic convention of 1868 at New York. The country was in a disturbed condition. The war had left its legacy of passion and of depression, that always follows civil discord. President Johnson had become separated from the Republican party that had elected him as Abraham Lincoln's associate, and the reconstruction measures, the carpetbag governments of the south and the use of the United States military in the states lately in the rebellion were the burning questions of the hour. It was felt that the Democratic party had now a fair chance to return to power, and the Fourth of July was selected as a fitting day for the convention to meet, in order to initiate the campaign with eclat. And on the same day a soldiers' and sailors' convention was also held in New York and indorsed the Democratic nominees in advance. The Democratic convention sat for several days and on the twenty-first ballot nominated Horatio Seymour for president. George H. Pendleton, Andrew Johnson, General W. S. Hancock, Sanford E. Church and Thomas A. Hendricks were prominent candidates, and it is almost forgotten political history that Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase—although a Republican—was seriously considered in connection with the nomination. But when election day came Grant defeated Seymour.

The Amnesty Proclamation.

July 4, 1868, was even more distinguished by the famous amnesty proclamation issued by President Johnson to those who had been on the Confederate side during the war. Devoid of its preamble and whereases this is the historical document: "Now, therefore, be it known that I, Andrew Johnson, president of the United States, do by virtue of the constitution and in the name of the people of the United States hereby proclaim and declare unconditional and without reserve to all and to every person who directly or indirectly participated in the late insurrection or rebellion, excepting such person or persons as may be under presentment or indictment in any court of the United States having competent jurisdiction upon a charge of treason or other felony, a full pardon and amnesty for all offense or treason against the United States or of adhering to their enemies during the late civil war, with restoration of all rights of property except as to slaves and except also as to any property of which any person may have been legally divested under the laws of the United States."

Deaths of Ex-Presidents.

Three ex-presidents of the United States have died on the Fourth of July. Two were signers of the great document that is commemorated on that day and both died on its semiannual anniversary. Thomas Jefferson, who drafted the Declaration of Independence, died at Monticello, Va., in 1826, at the age of 83. He had lived to see the republic firmly established among the nations of the world and himself abundantly honored by his countrymen. On the same day in Quincy, Mass., John Adams, who had been Jefferson's associate in the stormy days of the republic, passed away at the age of 91. One of the last acts of his life was to send from his sick bed to the Fourth of July celebration of the town of Quincy this toast: "I give you independence forever." His last words were "Jefferson still lives," but Jefferson had already by a few hours preceded Adams to the land of the hereafter.

Five years later, in 1831, James Monroe died in New York city on the Fourth of July. He was buried in the marble cemetery on Second street, east of the Bowery, but in 1858 his remains were removed to his native state, Virginia.

Chief Justice Marshall, who did more perhaps than any other person of his time to give permanence and explanation and judicial determination to the constitution, lay on his deathbed on July 4, 1835. He had served as chief justice for 35 years. Those about him thought he would expire on that day, but he lingered until July 6.

President Zachary Taylor was smitten with mortal disease on July 4, 1850. He attended the cornerstone ceremonies of the Washington monument and was overcome by the heat. Returning to the White House, he ate with imprudence and that night took to his bed, which he never left. A few days later he passed away.

Famous Treaties Signed.

Several of the treaties that the United States has made with foreign nations have been in some way associated with the Fourth of July. In 1827 the first commercial treaty with Sweden and Norway was concluded and signed on that day. So, too, the claims-treaty with France was concluded July 4, 1831, but was not proclaimed until July of the next year. Jackson was president then, and William C. Rives for minister of France negotiated the treaty. France agreed to pay 25,000,000 francs in claims to citizens of this country, but to this day, although 64 years have gone by, the United States has not yet paid over to all the claimants the money received from France. The treaty of peace with Mexico was concluded in February, 1848, ratified by the contracting powers in May and proclaimed by the president July 4. Another treaty with Mexico in relation to claims under the treaty of 1848 that our southern neighbor had never settled was concluded July 4, 1868, by William H. Seward, secretary of state, and Minister Romero of Mexico.

Two famous treaties with Great Britain come in this category. The first was the Clayton-Bulwer treaty negotiated by Secretary of State John M. Clayton and Sir Henry Lytton Bulwer. This treaty, relating to a canal across Nicaragua and recognizing the paramount authority of the United States on this continent, was ratified at Washington, July 4, 1850, and proclaimed on the following day. The treaty providing for a tribunal and arbitration over the Alabama claims was successfully arranged by Hamilton Fish, Robert C. Schenck, Samuel Nelson, Ebenezer R. Hoar, George H. Williams, the Marquis of Ripon, Stafford W. Northcote, Edward Thornton, John A. McDonald and Montague Bernard. It was concluded in May, 1871, ratified in June and officially proclaimed July 4 of the same year.

A commercial treaty with Honduras and a treaty with Peru were also signed on the Fourth of July, the one in 1864, during Lincoln's first administration, and the other in 1857, in the administration of President Buchanan. Several other treaties have escaped by only a few hours the distinction of having been signed on the nation's holiday, most notable of which is the Cushing treaty with China, signed late in the day of July 3, in 1844, during the Tyler administration. Other treaties signed on July 3 were those with Great Britain in 1815, Austria in 1856, Morocco in 1880 and Zanzibar in 1886.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

Visit to Mexico.

LETTER NO. XVII.

Sunday, Feb. 28, was the last day the editorial visitors had for sight-seeing in the city of Mexico. We informed our readers last week how the forenoon was spent, but the afternoon was almost of an opposite character.

There was to be a bull fight—one of the greatest attractions in that city for its inhabitants—and the most of our party, ladies and gentlemen, decided to improve the opportunity; the only one that they had had, or ever expect, of witnessing a genuine one; and we went with them.

The arena is in shape very much like the cyclorama buildings in America, only much larger, and without a roof. Inside is a great amphitheatre seating thousands of people, the seats rising higher as they go backward. Encircling the arena, which is about 200 feet in diameter, is a fence about five feet high, with a foot rail about eighteen inches from the ground, on the inside, on which the performers step and leap over the fence when too closely pursued by the bull, landing in an open space between the audience and the ring. The opening of the performance is very brilliant and exciting. The audiences are nearly always large, numbering today perhaps 5000 people, and still the seats are not half filled. Women are there as well as children. We are told that the really better classes do not attend, but there is fashion and the mask of femininity if not the gentler feelings ascribed to the sex. Gay colors abound, and the band is playing a lively air.

The price of admission is from twenty-five cents upon the "bleachers," up through successive grades, to $1.50 on the shady side, or for $2 a seat in a box. There was a grand rush for tickets and many boxes were open for the sale of them.

A president or grand master of ceremonies takes a position at the top of the rows of seats, and below him near the ring are judges who determine if everything is in accordance with established rules. A band enlivens the time in waiting and during intervals when fresh bulls are being brought in. A bugler makes known the commands of the president that new stages of the perfomance are to be entered upon.

When all is ready a gaily comparisoned horseman dashes in, gallops to the president's box and the key to the door leading to the bull pens is thrown to him. He catches it and retires. Another flourish of trumpets and amid the shouts of the spectators the entire company of performers enter the ring, clad in gayest, gaudiest costumes, in all colors, with gold embroideries. They include the matador, who is the star actor, the capeadores and banderillos on foot and the picadors on horseback. They proceed to the president's box, salute him, and the "sport" begins. The door to the pens is opened and in rushes a bull. The animal as he entered looked frightened. After advancing a few steps he stood still, and had apparently, no desire to attack any body or anything. It was only by wicked attacks on the animal that he showed any ugliness.

The bull hardly gets into the ring before a steel barb is thrust into his shoulders with ribbons attached showing the breeder's colors. The red cloak of the capeador is flaunted toward him and the bull finally starts for him. The man waits until the animal is almost upon him, then deftly steps to one side and the bull dashes past him. Advantage may always be taken of the fact that in charging, a bull lowers his head and shuts his eyes.

The trumpet sounds again and the picadores, or men armed with long lances enter on horseback. The horses are driven to such places as shall attract the bull's attention, and the poor beasts being blindfolded go willingly enough to their death. The bull charges and gores them at will, the rider meantime further exciting the bull by prodding him in the neck with the lance. This is the most horrid and disgusting part of the whole affair. The horse is frequently killed at the first attack, but sometimes will withstand a second or even a third charge.

The bulls are fine animals and said to cost a large sum, but the horses are poor old plugs, fattened and given life for this occasion only. If they were young and not blinded they would have a chance to avoid the danger; but unconscious of their fate, with blinded eyes they are held in position with bridle and spur to receive the onslaught of the maddened bull, while the rabble howls with delight. Think of women looking on these sights and applauding, and holding little children up. The poor old horse is disemboweled and soon, if not killed by the bull, is lead out of the ring and a fresh one brought in.

As soon as the bull was drawn away new torture awaited him. The banderillo now had his part to perform. The bull was in the ring wondering who he would charge next, when the banderillo approached him holding two banderillas, one in each hand. The banderilla is a dart about two and one-half feet long, covered its entire length with colored paper ribbons, and having a barbed point, so that when stuck into the animal it will cling to him, causing him sharp pain as he rushes about. The banderillo approached the bull warily, shaking these at him, and when the bull charged him he leaped aside, at the same time thrusting the two darts into the animal's shoulder as it rushed past. The enraged bull bellowed with pain and rushed after the first man or red cloak or horse he could find, and made things lively. The banderillo repeated his tricks till there were eight of these darts sticking porcupine-like from the animal's shoulders. When this branch of sport had continued long enough that fact was announced by a trumpet blast from the official stand, and now the last act was prepared for.

The bull is now to be killed and the star actor—the matador—comes forward. His skill is expected to kill the bull at one thrust of his sword, but he didn't do it in this instance. He must face the bull, sword in hand, and await the latter's attack. Very often the poor bull doesn't wish to attack; he has had enough of it, but he must be made to, so he is worried until he does. As he charged upon the matador the latter awaited a favorable opportunity for his act. He is not allowed to strike the bull while at rest nor in any other way but the proper way; and this is as the bull comes on with lowered head and closed eyes he receives the sword in the shoulders to the hilt so as to pierce his heart. In this particular instance it did not, but the point protruded five or six inches from the animal's belly. As soon as it was possible to do so, after the lapse of some minutes, during which the bull was running around the ring, the sword was grasped from the side and wrenched out; and the operation repeated.

The second attempt was successful and the point reached the heart, for it was not long before the bull, death sick, walked over towards the fence and laid down. The stroke of the matador was the signal for wild yells of applause, and a shower of hats, cigars and canes was thrown into the ring, women waved their handkerchiefs and the matador bowed his acknowledgements. The cachetero now came forward and with his short dagger slashed the finishing stroke between the bull's horns, and the signal sounded for the removal of the carcass. The band then played, the gates were opened and three gaudily decked white mules abreast were driven in, a rope thrown about the bull's horns and the carcass removed.

This closed the first act, or the killing of the first bull, and as there were six to slaughter, we thought it was a good time to leave, as did the most of our party. We learned afterwards that there were six bulls and eleven horses killed that afternoon.

It is, as one of our ladies expresses it, "the brutal cowardice of the whole thing which makes it so revolting. One could stand the performance if there were only fair play, for it is easy to tell when an unpleasant sight will take place and one is not obliged to look. But the disgusting part of it lies in the fact that while the men have every advantage on their side, are seldom hurt, and choose their profession voluntarily, the bulls and horses are forced into the contest utterly against their inclinations, and it is certain to end in their death. One's sympathies are wholly with them."

Coming from the bull fight of the course editors universally condemned it and vowed they would "show it up" on the return home. They were surprised and astonished to learn how strong a hold upon the affections of the common people this brutal sport has had in the past. They were even told that a certain bright and very successful bull fighter was the idol of the people and a formidable candidate for president of Mexico. Happily this sentiment is dying out, and President Diaz, with his clear head and firm hand, is guiding his beloved country toward the highest state of civilization—a goal not far distant and which he will soon reach if his life is spared.

PEERESS AS WAITER.

SHE MAY SUCCEED TO ESTATES VALUED AT $250,000 A YEAR.

Is the Only Direct Descendant of the Earl of Perth and Duke of Melfort—A Stirring Romance of the Scottish and the French Peerage.

While the Hon. Mary Harriet Geraldine Drummond of Brooklyn is looking for a position her great-grandfather, George Drummond, earl of Perth and Melfort and duke of Melfort in France, is said to be looking for her. She is ready to be found by the earl's attorneys and expects eventually to come into possession of his great estate.

May, as she calls herself, is 18 years old and worked until recently as a waitress in an ice cream parlor in Brooklyn. She is striving to make her own living and said recently that she would not cease looking for another situation because of the news that her great-grandfather had begun a search for her. She said she was the only direct descendant of the Scottish earl, whose income amounts to $250,000 a year.

The romance that finds its climax in the straitened circumstances of an apparent heir to an estate worth millions of dollars has been told heretofore, but it will be news to most Americans, as it was to Miss Drummond, that her great-grandfather, now 90 years old, is seeking information about her, probably with a view to the disposition of his estate. There are other claimants to the property, but it seems likely that the title will disappear upon the death of the present earl, as it has done before during the seven centuries since it was created.

George Drummond is the sixth earl of Perth and the fourteenth duke of Melfort. He was born in London, May 6, 1807. His lordship, in 1841, established before the conseil d'etat of France and the tribunal de la Seine his descent from the earls and dukes of Perth and Melfort and his right of succession to the French honors of Duke of Melfort and Perth. The earldom of Perth was revived in 1853 by the special command and recommendation of Queen Victoria, through an act of parliament unanimously passed by both houses.

George Henry Charles Francis Malcolm, Viscount Forth, the only son of the Earl of Perth, died eight years later, leaving one son, George Essex Montifex, Lord Drummond. It was he who while yet a boy married his grandmother's maid, a number of years his senior, came to this country and preferred menial employment and poor surroundings to deserting his wife for the old earl's favor. Lord Drummond died in New York city in 1887 and was buried in Trinity churchyard, the expense of the funeral being defrayed by several of the Scottish residents of that city. He left one child, a daughter, who for a number of years past has supported herself by her labor.

Miss Drummond remarked recently that she was making no plans on what she would do in case she inherited the vast estates of her great-grandfather.

"He knows where I am," she said, "and will have no difficulty in reaching me. Meanwhile I am not making any plans. I never have seen my great-grandfather and never have been on the other side. I have seen pictures of his estate, and they show that it is very beautiful. But I am most interested just now in earning my living."

Miss Drummond is a bright girl, rather good looking, and keen to keep in touch with the affairs of the aged Earl of Perth. She lives with her mother, Mrs. Henry Masters, in Prospect avenue, Brooklyn. Their home is neatly furnished, but Mrs. Masters, with a 4-year-old daughter to care for, shares Miss Drummond's anxiety that she may obtain a position. The heiress of the Earl of Perth, after a partial education in the Booklyn grammar and high schools, decided to be a trained nurse, but she found this work too trying for one of her age.—New York Herald.

A Hospital For Sickly Plants.

An English horticulturist recently hit upon an idea for a hospital where valuable plants of all kinds can be operated on and saved from death. The hospital will be built on the plan of an ordinary hospital for human beings, with separate wards for plants suffering from infectious diseases, dissecting rooms and outdoor departments. Many valuable plants suffer from peculiar diseases for which no remedy has been found. Orchids are subject to a disease not unlike consumption, which has hitherto defied the efforts of expert plant doctors. A strange withering malady is prevalent also among some classes of roses.

Hit by a Cow and Wants Damages.

George P. Marchand of Galveston has brought suit against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America for $500. He says that while a member of the organization on July 19, 1896, and while working at his occupation as a carpenter, he received severe injuries by reason of a cow being thrown from the track of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad company and against him with such force and violence as to dislocate his hip, right leg and knee, thereby disabling him for life. He claims that by reason of this disability he is entitled to $500.

The Pope Takes American Snuff.

It became recently known that the snuff used by the supreme pontiff is made in America. This particular snuff goes direct from Baltimore to the sacred precincts of the Vatican. It is the highest priced snuff in the world and its value is increased several times above the original cost after the customs duties have been paid to the Italian government. His holiness likes dainty, pleasing odors, and before it is packed the snuff is liberally sprinkled with attar of roses, the costliest perfume known to the trade.

Castle Square Theatre.

The charming comedy "School," the production of which marked the highest point in the successful career of T. W. Robertson, its author, is announced as the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week. The play is an ideal one in many ways, its bright witty lines, humorous scenes and ingenius situations, together with its refined characteristics making it a constant source of entertainment. The characters introduced by the playwright have become standards to test the merits of the artists to whom they are assigned and much interest is felt in the success which may confidently be anticipated in the work of the members of the Castle Square Company who are to appear in the coming production. The cast announced is as follows: Lord Beaufoy, Charles MacKay; Dr. Sutcliffe, Horace Lewis; Beau Farintosh, Lindsay Morison; Jack Poyntz, J. H. Gilmour; Mr. Krux, Wm. Humphrey; Vaughan, Howard Hall; Mrs. Sutcliffe, Agnes Findlay; Bella, Lillian Lawrence and all the other favorites. Following "School" on Monday, July 12th, there will be, by special arrangement with Augustin Daly, a production of "Pique," a play which had a remarkably successful run at the time of its first performances.

Keith's Theatre.

The principal reason why the changing seasons make no difference with the patrons of Keith's is that the theatre is perfectly ventilated and that the most up-to-date system of cooling the house is in use during the hot months. It is the place above all others that ladies visit after their shopping is over that they refresh their toilets and get rested. Hence, the auditorium of an afternoon is usually crowded with the fair sex, the majority of them from out-of-town. For the week of July 5 another delightful programme has been prepared, headed by the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Max Zach, who will perform a short programme of popular high class music afternoon and evening during July. The Biograph will have new pictures, including one showing a turnout by the apparatus in the Fort Hill Fire station, Boston, headed by Chief Webber, which is claimed to be the most realistic view yet given of this sort.

The Day We Celebrated.

THE NIGHT BEFORE.

No Noise Allowed on Sabbath Either Morning or Evening.

Allowed to Celebrate up to Midnight Saturday and Early Monday.

A Large Police Force Busy and Fire Department Had One Run.

As a whole, Saturday night, the night before the Fourth, was quiet. During the early evening, or rather from dark until midnight, the boys were permitted to make all the noise they wanted to, but after midnight, the orders issued by Chief Hayden were to keep them quiet and arrest anyone disturbing the peace.

Besides the regular patrolmen, Chief Hayden had on a large number of specials, the total force under pay of the city being 75 men. Besides these there were many others hired by private parties to guard property. At the quarries, where trouble and fires usually happens, there was an unusual number of police and watchmen, and for once, the night before the Fourth passed without a fire alarm from that section, and in fact there was no bell alarm from any quarter during the night.

Chief Williams had his department ready in case of a call, but none came.

During the evening Brown's Brigade band was engaged by the street railway and they gave an excellent concert in front of the First church which was enjoyed by thousands, and the band received many compliments for their fine music.

During the concert there was the usual amount of red fire burned and canon crackers exploded, but no one was hurt and no arrests were made until after midnight.

As an aid to the police, Chief Hayden had a "hurry-up wagon" which was kept in Hayden's stable with horse all harnessed and driver Faircloth ready to respond. This wagon came in useful shortly before one o'clock.

CHIEF HAYDEN.

At that time four men in an open wagon, who claimed to hail from Braintree, drove out from Boston. In the wagon was a quantity of fire crackers and fire water. As they drove through City Square they made considerable noise, as well as to make faces at Officer Barry and threw some uncomplimentary remarks at the Quincy police force in general.

Then it was that the hurry-up wagon was brought into service. With Inspector McKay, Officers Barry and George McKay hanging on to the sides, driver Faircloth whipped up his horse and started in pursuit. The party was overtaken near the Central fire station and brought back to the police station and locked up. A little later they were bailed out and they then completed their journey to Braintree in a more orderly manner.

Besides these four men, two more were arrested as they arrived on the late Boston train, and this comprised the arrests of Saturday night.

At West Quincy.

At West Quincy there was considerable noise early in the evening, but everything quieted down at midnight. The only damage done here was the smashing of a large plate glass show window in Kane's restaurant, which was done by a stone thrown by some unknown party.

Saturday evening two young boys, whose names are given as Leahy and Driscoll, ignited a lot of powder on Common street, and as the result of the explosion their faces and hands were somewhat burned, although not seriously. It was a narrow escape, however, and spoiled their fun for Monday.

Police Work Sunday.

Sunday the hurry-up wagon was called out several times and did good service. Word was received at the police station that a lot of toughs from Brockton were having a free fight in Mosquito woods, and a squad of blue coats went down. The Brockton gang had disappeared, however, when they arrived; but they found another gang of men and women and one of the men was showing the party how well he could swim, without a bathing suit or any clothing for that matter. He was arrested and locked up.

A little later a man came to the station badly used up and said the Colligan gang had assaulted him near Merry Mount park. A warrant was issued and the hurrry-up wagon went down and brought back one of the alleged assaulters.

About 5 o'clock a warrant was sworn out against George White and his wife who were said to be drunk at their home on Water street.

Again the hurry up wagon was called out and here the officer found a disgusting sight. They found both White and his wife as drunk as lords. Both had cuts over the eyes, the blood from which had run down their faces and had become clotted in their hair; to which was added a plentiful supply of dirt making them look filthy. Both were laying in a helpless condition upon a bed in a perfectly nude condition while near by was a half barrel of beer about half empty.

The officers succeeded in getting a semblance of clothing upon them when they together with the beer were loaded into the team and given a ride to the police station where the officers were not slow in washing the filth from their hands and the prisoners were placed in cells. This was one of the worst cases the police have ever been called upon to handle.

Sunday night another large force of officers were on duty and everything was quiet until after midnight, when the boys made all the noise they desired, and there was considerable of it in different parts of the city. Bon fires were numerous, but outside of the illuminations no damage was done.

Shortly after 1 o'clock a small building in the rear of Gustafson's store on Water street was set on fire and an alarm was sent in at 1.10 from Box 39. The fire was however extinguished before the department arrived and a recall was promptly sounded.

No arrests were made Sunday night.

At Wollaston.

The "Fourth" at Wollaston was observed in a very quiet manner. There were scarcely any acts of vandalism, but there was, however, an abundance of noise. In the evening there were many fine private exhibitions of fireworks, the most noticeable one being the "Fourth" party given by Mr. and Mrs. Amos T. Leavitt. After an hour's exhibition of fireworks lunch was served.

At Quincy Point.

The Fourth at the Point was noisily celebrated. No hoodlumism or vandalism being committed as far as learned this year; nothing but just common every day noise, good and strong.

—There is a growing conviction among leading men of the administration that Spain may offer a solution of the problem that will be satisfactory to both the United States and the Insurgents. Indications that something of the sort may be expected are already apparent. Spain is showing a disposition to end her embarrassment in any way that will not cause her pride to suffer.

The Handicap Bicycle Race the Event of the Morning.

Boston's Celebration and the Beaches Attract Many.

Monday many saw the bicyle race and ball games, which are reported elsewhere, while others went to the Boston celebrations or sought the beaches or some other cool resort, for it was the hottest day of the year.

Many citizens kept open house and entertained their friends around the flowing bowl, while others gathered about a barrel of iced beer. The latter were numerous, for hundreds of barrels were brought into the city Friday and Saturday by the several express companies. As a whole, however, drunkenness on the street was a rarity, although there were doubtless many jags on the outskirts.

The street railway as usual did an enormous business both on Sunday and Monday and thousands of passengers were carried upon both days on all lines.

THE BICYCLE RACE.

A Prize for Each and All to Finish —Hot Day for Racing.

The eight mile road bicycle race Monday morning was the one attraction at City Square and along the route; and as usual was witnessed by a large crowd. It was a hot day for a bicycle race and the riders well earned the prizes they received.

Like the race of Memorial Day, however, every man who finished got a prize, and several received three prizes.

The race was called shortly before 10 o'clock the route being down Washington street, through South street, Howard street, Quincy avenue, Hancock street, Temple street and repeat.

When the race was about to start a squad of officers kept the crowd back, giving the riders a clear field. There were eighteen starters, of which number fifteen finished.

There were but few accidents and these were not a serious nature, although one rider ran down a carriage at the corner of Washington and South street. It was fortunate the course was not twelve miles, or there would have been but few to finish. The heat was so intense that the riders were completely exhausted as it was.

The officers of the race were: Referee, W. Lamb; judges, F. M. Coe, H. J. Kolb and H. Von Emden; timers, F. A. Linscott and Herbert Thompson.

The prizes offered were as follows:

1—Silver tea set, $40.

2—Punching bag, $10, from H. N. Hanson.

3—Gold watch chain and charm, $6, from Whitney Jewelry Co.

4—Box cigars, $5, from Mr. Quimby.

5—Pair cycle shoes, $4, from Rice & Hutchins.

6—Revolver, $3 50, from F. S. Jacobs.

2—Box cigars, $10, from J. F. Merrill.

3—Brooks saddle, $4, from Thomas Raleigh.

4—Pair cuff studs, $1.

6—2 bottles cycle balm, $1.

Special prizes for leaders in first lap:

1—Box cigars, $2 50 from C. C. Hearn.

2—Book, $2, from J. B. Sutherland.

Special prizes for riders under 16 years of age:

1—Base ball and bat, $2, from G. B. Bates.

2—Necktie, $1, from Mr. Sweeney.

3—Cycle balm, 50 cents.

The winners of special prizes for the leaders in the first lap were: J. F. Delory, J. Leslie and J. H. Hall.

The six time prize winners were E. R. Lord, J. E. Lord, G. Anderson, J. G. Jacobs, J. Southerland, H. S. Wessell.

Special prizes for Quincy riders under 16 years of age were captured by J. Leslie and W. Littlewood.

The order of finish with handicap and time was as follows:

Reopening of Charter Oak Park.

Hartford, July 6.—The largest crowd that ever assembled at Charter Oak park and in fact the largest attendance at any light harness racing event in New England, was present yesterday at the reopening of this famous track. Though there was some disappointment at the time made by the acknowledged fastest side-wheelers in the world, in the free-for-all pace, and also John R. Gentry's failure to lower Johnstone's high sulky record of 2:06 1-2 at Chicago 13 years ago, still the card arranged by the management was so attractive that there was no satisfaction. Again pool selling was openly conducted though its prevention several years ago was the occasion of the track's decadence. A conservative estimate places the attendance at 25,000 as the lowest, and some dance at 25,000 as the lowest, and some claim 30,000. Star Pointer won the special race against John R. Gentry and Frank Egan.

Police Prevented Bout.

New York, July 6.—The exhibition sparring bout between Robert Fitzsimmons and John L. Sullivan, scheduled for yesterday afternoon at Ambrose park, Brooklyn, attracted a large crowd of spectators. The bout, however, did not take place. Martin Julian announced that the police had forbidden the contest, and that therefore the principals had concluded to withdraw rather than violate the law. Afer Julian had made the announcement Sullivan walked on to the platform. A warm reception was given him. He said that both he and Fitzsimmons were ready and anxious for a contest, but they would do nothing in opposition of the authorities. The veteran's remarks were wildly applauded. Fitz did not make a speech, but he gave an exhibition in Greaco-Roman wrestling with Ernest Roeber.

Hot Finishes at Springfield.

Springfield, Mass., July 6.—Fully 1500 people watched the events of the first annual regatta of the Connecticut River Amateur association yesterday afternoon, and the affair was pronounced a success in every way. There were good lists of entries in all the events, and there were some heart-breaking finishes, this being especially true of the intermediate eight-oared race, in which the Union Boat club of New York and the Springfields and Atlantas of this city were the starters. The race was won by the Springfields after one of the hottest finishes ever witnessed on the river, the time being 7:45, which is said to establish a new intermediate world's record.

All Around Individual Champion.

New York, July 6.—Ellery H. Clark of the Boston Athletic association, by winning six events, and running second and third, respectively, in two others, won the title of individual all-round champion of the United States at Bergen Point yesterday. The heat was terrific, and the contestants suffered a good deal.

Titus Sets a New Mark.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 6.—At the races of the Bridgeport Wheel club yesterday Fred Titus rode an exhibition mile in 1:53 3-5, paced by a triplet. This establishes a new professional record for the cracks this summer, and had the pacing been very poor better time would have resulted.

Death of Amasa S. Glover.

Brockton, Mass., July 6.—Councilman Amasa S. Glover, the inventor of the famous shoe sewing system, died at his home here yesterday of old age. He was born in Dorchester, Mass., July 25, 1817, and was a descendant of John Glover, who came to this country in 1630. He learned the shoe business here and started for himself in 1858. After the battle of Chicamaugua he was solicited by General Sherman to make shoes for the barefooted soldiers, and the general gave him 1000 men and plenty of raw material, and in 24 hours the men were shod.

Christian Scientists at Concord.

Concord, N. H., July 6.—Over 1700 Christain Scientists from all sections of the Union responded to the invitatiions sent out by "Mother Mary Baker Eddy, the acknowledged head of the society, to meet her at her home here yesterday. Mayor Albert B. Woorworth was present and welcomed the visitors in an appropriate address which was responded to by Judge S. R. Hanna of Boston and ex-Congressman Henry M. Baker of Washington. The principal feature of the reception was the address of Mrs. Eddy.

O'Sullivan Somewhat Improved.

Salem, Mass., July 6.—The condition of Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan has shown a general improvement. A specially detailed policeman was on duty at the hospital all day yesterday and he kept the noise thereabouts down to the minimum. Although Mr. O'Sullivan seems steadily, but slowly, gaining it will be several days before any attempt will be made to remove him from the hospital.

They Appreciated a Good Thing and Hoped to Return the Favor.

The bicycle tramp has made his appearance in New Jersey. On a recent afternoon Miss May Fletcher and Walter Armstrong of Millstone were riding along the Trenton turnpike, near Franklin Park. The day was warm and they finally stopped for a rest, leaving their wheels by the roadside while they stepped back under the shade of a tree. They were interrupted by the appearance of two tramps, tattered and bewhiskered, who approached the wheels and began to examine them.

One of them turned to the bicyclists and said: "We are delighted to meet you. We see that you are not using these wheels at present, so we will take the liberty of mounting them for a little spin."

Each seized a wheel and rode away. Armstrong and Miss Fletcher waited about half an hour, when another wheelman rode up. Armstrong told him what had happened, and he volunteered to pursue the thieves. He found them about a mile distant taking a rest.

"You had better take those wheels back where you found them," said the wheelman.

"Take them back?" said one of the tramps. "Why, my dear sir, we never intended to do anything else with them. We simply wished to compare these wheels with our own bicycles at home. If the lady and gentleman are waiting, we will return them at once."

The stranger escorted the tramps back, and they returned the wheels with profuse thanks and promises to return the favor at the first convenient date.—New York Journal.

Used by Smugglers.

Considerable smuggling has been carried on between England and the continent of Europe by means of the bicycle. An English custom house officer, in talking of the matter recently, said: "We fully expected that these machines would be used for smuggling. At the same time we had no idea of the number of people who would attempt this form of sharp practice. You see, the rates for carrying cycles are now so low that a great number of cyclists take their machines over to the continent with them and on the return journey fill the pneumatic tires with tobacco, small bottles of perfume, lace, cigars and even flasks of spirits specially made.

"When the steamers arrive from the continent and there are a number of bicycles on board, we adopt a very simple plan of inspection, but one which requires some practice and experience before it can be relied on. We do not unscrew the air tube, nor, of course, do we cut the tire. We simply cause the wheels to revolve sharply and then listen attentively."—American Cycling.

A Marine Bicycle.

Another marine bicycle is attracting attention, this time in Burlington, N. J., where a machinist has invented an apparatus which, it is said, was successfully experimented with recently on Silver lake. The bicycle is composed of three airtight casks, two in front and one in the rear. The two front casks are made of metal and are used for steering the machine, while the rear cask is made of wood, to which are attached the paddles. The operator sits on a saddle and pedals, the crank shaft being attached to an endless chain, which connects with the paddle wheels, similar to the bicycle.—Brooklyn Citizen.

The Correct Thing.

Had I wished to know the time the other morning in Hyde park I could have had it for the asking. Several gentlemen passed me, and with an ease which was wonderful took their watches out of their pockets to study the hour. It was pleasant to see the elegant manner in which they could perform the clever feat of steering with one hand. I really did not know it could be achieved so well. The correct thing is to look at your chronometer while indolently you hold the handle bar in the center by means of the right hand. All ye new cyclists, take the hint.—London Wheeling.

Novel Use For a Bicycle.

A novel use was made of a bicycle by the manager of a small electric line in a western town. Being anxious to ascertain the length of a particular stretch of road without going to the expense of having it surveyed, he had a bicycle equipped with a cyclometer ridden over the route and found the distance within the required limits of exactness.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

TRYING TO GET A VOTE

Allison Will Request Senate to Hold Extra Night Sessions.

Demands of Sugar Men Delay the Tariff Bill.

Measure Is Complete so Far as Sehedules Are Concerned.

Washington, July 6.—While the house spent nine minutes in taking a recess on Independence day until Wednesday, so as to be ready to receive the tariff bill if it should pass today, the senate spent the whole day disposing of amendments, and, in spite of a good deal of speech-making, got through with all that the finance committee managers had to offer, and, if it had not been for the demands of the beet sugar men, who are insisting on a bounty in addition to their duty, the bill, so far as the finance committee was concerned, might have been passed last evening. The tariff schedules are completed.

Senator Allison, in charge of the tariff bill, announced just before adjournment last night that as no agreement had been reached for a final vote on the tariff bill he would ask the senate to remain in session to night at least until the bill was reported from the committee of the whole to the senate. This promises a test of endurance, unless the opposition to the bill gives way. Mr. Allison's statement was made after another futile effort to have a time fixed for a final vote.

In some respects the senate made good progress yesterday, disposing of two important amendments, that placing a stamp tax on bond transactions being agreed to with little or no opposition and without the formallity of a vote, while the Spooner amendment, proposing a tariff investigation, was withdrawn after a protracted struggle. The stamp amendment as agreed to gives the following rate on bonds, etc.:

Bonds, debentures or certificates of indebitedness issued after Sept. 15, 1897, issued by any association, company or corporation on each hundred dollars of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents; and on each original issue, whether on oragaization or reorganization, of certificates of stock by any such association, company or corporation, on each hundred dollars of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents; and on all transfers of shares or certificates of stock in any association, company or corporation, on each hundred dollars of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents.

Exemptions from the tax are made in the case of state, state and county, and municipal bonds, and the stocks and bonds of co-operative building associations.

Late in the day several new amendments from individual senators were voted on. One by Mr. Mantle of Montana reducing the internal revenue tax on distilled spirits to 70 cents per gallon was defeated 23-41. An amendment by Mr. Mills of Texas, proposing a tax of 5 per cent on manufactured products, the proceeds to go toward reducing the bonded debt, was rejected, 19-38.

Also an amendment by Mr. Mills granting 20 per cent reduction in duties to those countries admitting gold and silver to their mints at the ratio of 16 to 1, yeas, 26; nays, 31. On this vote, one Republican, Mr. Carter, voted with the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, and two Democrats, Caffery and Gray, voted with the Republicans in the negative.

SUGAR BOUNTY.

Caucus of Republican Senators to Decide on Its Reintroduction.

Washington, July 6.—A caucus of Republican senators has been called for today to consider the advisability of reintroducing the beet sugar bounty amendment.

The decision to call the caucus was the result of a series of conferences which consumed the greater part of yesterday, but which developed such a divergence of views as to make it quite evident that only in a party conference could the bounty question be settled in a way to bind all.

At one time it appeared that the finance committee would reintroduce the beet sugar amendment in response to the representations of the advocates of a bounty. The senators holding the view that this was the proper course to pursue, based their arguments upon the ground that the last Republican senatorial caucus had decided in favor of such a bounty. This brought out the fact that there had been comparatively few senators at the caucus when the vote was taken, and that some of the absentees would not agree to be bound by its decision.

The committee decided on account of this conflict to resubmit the matter to a caucus.

It appears probable that the caucus will rescind the order of the previous session directing the committee to report a sugar amendment, but the sugar bounty advocates hope that at the same time the Republican senators will be instructed to vote for the amendment as offered by Senator Allen. They thus hope to put the party in the senate on record as for the amendment, while they avoid the responsibility for the delay which they admit the amendment will occasion.

The Democratic leaders still announce themselves as unalterably opposed to the bounty provision.

Venerable Priest Dead.

Woburn, Mass., July 6.—Rev. Father Quealey, for nearly 34 years pastor of St. Charles Barromeo church of this city, died at his home last night at the age of 77 years. He celebrated his golden jubilee as a priest on Jan. 21, 1896, and the event was a notable one, nearly 3000 citizens of Woburn attending a reception tendered to him in the skating rink. Father Quealey was born in Waterford, Ire., in 1820.

—Sensible people are predicting that if Eugene Debs ever gets one hundred thousand men together he will get them into serious trouble.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Improvement Noted All Through New England, Except In Maine.

Boston, July 6.—Reports from all the New England states, except Maine, show improved crop conditions with the coming of warmer weather, more sunshine and enough rain for surface needs. In Maine the season continues backward. The temperature during the past week has averaged seasonable, the week closing with a warm spell.

A general rain storm occurred on June 30, and heavy local storms visited southern sections on the 2nd, accompanied by hail. In Worcester county, Mass., it was destructive to the crops and was reported to have been the worst for years.

Maine.

Frequent showers, cool and cloudy weather during the past week have caused crops to make slow growth. In eastern sections a large amount of plowed land remains unseeded. Grass has improved somewhat on winter killed fields, owing to continued wet weather, and this promises to be the best crop. Early planted potatoes have rotted badly, which will tend to reduce the crop materially.

New Hampshire.

The week in New Hampshire was about all that could be desired for the growth and progress of all crops. Corn is looking much better, but is still about two weeks later than last year. Haying was continued under generally favorable conditions, although there are doubts expressed of as heavy a crop as was at first expected. Apples are falling badly and the later kinds will not be nearly a full crop. Potatoes are doing fairly well. A large crop if all berries.

Vermont.

Warm weather the past week made it the best thus far of the season, according to all reports. All vegetation improved rapidly, and the weather was especially favorable for grass and corn. The former is not quite as heavy as was anticipated, but it will nevertheless be a good crop. Oats look well on dry ground, and potatoes are growing fairly well. Fruit prospects are not of the best; apples dropping badly.

Massachusetts.

Reports indicate that in general the week has been favorable. Haying and hoeing are being pushed, with a fine grass crop secured. All crops have improved perceptibly, corn mostly so. Earliest potatoes are now showing full bloom. Peas and other vegetables are plentiful in the market. The fruit crop is regarded as generally good. Apples and plumbs are dropping considerably, but probably not too much so for benefit. In the cranberry district this crop is showing a fairly large percentage of bloom, and although fire worms are at work no great damage is mentioned.

Rhode Island.

Local showers have kept the ground in good condition. The grass crop is very good. Corn is slightly backward. Potatoes are looking well with no signs of blight up to date.

Connecticut.

The weather has been favorable for growth of all kinds. Corn is doing well, except on heavy lands. Considerable hay was caught by rain on two days. Tobacco is all set, with a good stand, but is uneven. Peaches have a large show of fruit, but not so of apples. Potatoes are in fine condition.

THE ENDEAVORERS.

Thousands Arrive Safely at the Golden Gate. San Francisco Decorated.

San Francisco, July 6.—The broad area of this city is a sea of color, the decorative ribbons of the Christian Endeavor societies, the Stars and Stripes and the bunting hung in honor of the national holiday, floating in the breeze in mingling waves of blue and gold, purple and white, with the motto of the young people's organization displayed on every hand. From the ferries to the outermost civic limits, by the Golden Gate buildings, both public and private, business houses and residences, were covered with variagated colors and inscriptions of welcome.

Arrivals are coming in on every train and boat. Ten special trains containing 85 cars and 2172 passengers have arrived over the Southern Pacific from Santa Fe alone.

Several distinguished delegates are already here, including John Willis Baer, general secretary of the organization, and Tamil Evangelist David of Ceylon, who has made the trip from his Cingalese home specially to attend the convention.

From now till the close of the convention members of the reception committee, which number 1000, will meet every arriving train and boat and escort the visiting delegates to the convention headquarters in the Mechanics pavilion.

The railroad company is at a loss to find accommodation for all the cars which will arrive this week. They expect to have the yard at West Oakland filled to its fullest capacity, as well as every available side track between Oakland, Niles and Port Costa. Over 1500 Pullman cars are expected.

Society of the Cincinnati.

The officers elected for the year are: President, Hon. Winslow Warren; vice president, Thornton K. Lothrop; secretary, David G. Haskins, Jr.; treasurer, Gamaliel Bradford; assistant secretary, Dr. John Homans, 2d; assistant treasurer, William F. Jones; standing committee, Hon. Edward S. Mosely, Alexander Williams, John C. Warren, Rev. James G. Vose, Charles U. Bell, John G. Hayward, General John C. Palfrey, Frederick A. Whitewell, Hon. Roger Wolcott, Horatio A. Lamb, Morefield Storey, Prentiss Cummings.

Floods In France.

London, July 6.—The Paris correspondent of The Morning Post says: The recent floods in the south of France are the worst that have occurred since 1875. It is believed that 50 persons have been drowned in the department of Gers alone. Similar reports, except with fewer fatalities, come from many other towns. Damage to the value of hundreds of thousands of pounds has been done by hailstones in the regions of Lyons, Limoges, Castres and [illegible]. Many laborers have been killed by lightning and hailstones.

SHE IS A RICH MINER.

Has Discovered Many Valuable Mines In California and Elsewhere.

Mrs. A. K. Rikert, the woman miner of Tuolumne, according to the San Francisco Chronicle, has for 14 years been steadily prospecting and developing different properties in California, and in that time she has discovered some valuable ones, from one of which nearly $2,000,000 has been taken. Mrs. Rikert recently told the strange story of how she happened to go into mining for the first time.

"I am the daughter of a cotton planter near Vicksburg who owned slaves. As Annie Kline I will be recalled for the part I took in the war, as will my sister, for we were both imprisoned. I think sometimes when I am worth $2,000,000 or $3,000,000, I may write a book and tell all about this.

"Fourteen years ago I came to the new mining camp of Calico and soon learned to find mines by the outcroppings and to make tests of the ledges which I had found.

"It was while prospecting that I found the famous Alhambra mine, which was bought by the late W. W. Stow and became a part of the great Silver Odessa.

"Among the mines was the enormous borax mine bought by William Alvord and Jerome Lincoln and managed by William T. Coleman. Its output since it came into the hands of Alvord and Lincoln has been increased year by year, until now the works erected on it are the largest of any either in Europe or America.

"At the time of the rush to the gold fields of Alamo I and my daughter were among the first to go there. We were two years there and did pretty well."

PUT HIS FOOT IN IT.

Had a Fight With a Bear Before He Got Free.

Recently Milton Pike set two bear traps on a big hill near Locatean, Me. A day or two afterward Jerry Perkins was walking along a trail near the trap, when he came suddenly upon an old she bear, which had been caught in a trap, the clog of which had stuck fast in some bushes. Perkins had an ax with him and stuck at the bear, but the brute dodged, and the blow struck lower on the skull than the woodsman had planned. At the same moment Jerry heard a sharp click and found he had stepped into the second trap, which held him fast by the ankle.

The bear was fresh, having dragged the clog no distance, and she went at Jerry in a very businesslike manner. After a fierce battle, however, she was finally dispatched, although not before she had terribly lacerated Mr. Perkins' left leg. Jerry managed to cut a sapling and with this put the spring of the trap down so that the jaws fell back and released him. He and Pike divided the bear between them.—Boston Herald.

Fared Well on Six Cent Meals.

Cheap living and good living are what the four students of the Y. M. C. A. training school in Springfield, Mass., who recently boarded themselves for eight weeks, with the aid of one of Edward Atkinson's Aladdin ovens, have had. An average cost per meal for each person of 6 cents, an average week's board of $1.26, did not preclude their having wholesome and appetizing fare.

How they lived can be judged by the bills of fare. For breakfast they usually had milk, cocoa, bread and butter and some cereal. Roasts, stews, soups, baked beans or eggs constituted the chief articles for dinner, and the cooking began directly after breakfast. Dessert consisted of some kind of pudding, with dates and figs. For supper, bread and butter, cake and some fruit sauce, with lemonade, made up the bill of fare.

From April 22 to June 13 an account of everything purchased was kept in itemized form. This demonstrated that the total expense during that period was only $38.60.—New York Herald.

Why the Congressman Wore Boots.

When Representative Updegraff of Iowa settled himself comfortably in the barber's chair of the house the other day and elevated his feet, it was noticed that he wore boots.

"You must be the only congressman who wears boots," said the reporter.

"No, he is not," interrupted the barber. "Judge Powers of Vermont wears boots. He and Mr. Updegraff are the only ones."

"And why do you stick to boots?" was asked of the Iowa member.

"Well," he replied, "I do not know what reason Powers can give, but I will tell you why I wear boots. It is so much easier, when I am riding a bicycle, to tuck in my trousers than to clip those little bands of steel around my ankles."—Washington Post.

Missed a Train and Got a Wife.

Albert F. Johnson, a native of Nova Scotia residing in New York city, and Mary De Mott, aged 18, of Newark, N. J., were married by Justice of the Peace Finnerty at Coney Island recently under rather peculiar circumstances.

The young woman seemed to be very much agitated.

Young Johnson explained that he had been paying attentions to Miss De Mott for some time, and that on the previous day they decided to make a visit to Coney Island. They missed the last train at night and were compelled to stop at one of the hotels at West Brighton. They concluded that the best thing for them to do was to get married at once.

For an American Exhibit.

Colonel George R. Davis spends much time in Washington endeavoring to hurry up the proposed appropriation for the American exhibit at the Paris exposition. He is endeavoring to impress upon the leaders in congress that they will be remiss in their duties if they do not go about this matter at a very early day and is telling them that three years are a very short time in which to get a creditable American exhibit in shape.

THE LEDGER feels under obligations to its reportorial staff who must have been busy at all hours since the publication of Saturday to have gathered so much news and to have forwarded it so promptly. The compositors, too, who have sweltered in the heat today to give the public a wide-awake newsy paper on time have also had a hard day's work, which has been faithfully performed.

WASN'T IT hot yesterday? But then we should be thankful it was not nigh as hot in Quincy as in many other places. How fortunate we are. This is the cool side of the question.

WHY WAS the bell on the First church, tolled on our glorious Fourth? Was the society or city in mourning?

The Decorations.

The Fourth of July decorations were not elaborate, but every one with a large flag had it displayed and others put out small flags, bunting and lanterns.

The Historical society decorated the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams with Continental colors, buff and blue, and bore three placards:

John Adams. Died 4th July, 1826. His last words were: "Independence forever! O, yes it is the glorious Fourth of July. God bless it! God bless you all!

Fellow Citizens—The first impulse of the regeneration of human liberty came from us. The Fourth of July is our anniversary day. John Quincy Adams.

Adams and Jefferson are no more. Their bodies are buried in peace, but their names liveth evermore.

Examinations at Adams.

The past week at Adams academy has been a busy one as far as examinations go. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday an examiner from Harvard has been holding examinations for admission to Harvard. Boys from Milton academy, the Hopkinson school, Adams academy and the High school, have been examined for Harvard; and one young lady took the Radcliffe examinations. Five Adams academy boys took the final examinations, and four the preliminary examinations.

On Friday, examinations for admission to the academy were held. Eleven boys were admitted to next year's fourth class. Additions are also expected in some of the upper classes. The omission of Saturday's session and the addition of a good physical laboratory seem to have made the school more popular.

The Holiday News at Quincy's Popular Seaside Resort.

Siss! Boom! Bang! Fireworks of every description made more noise than an artillery company. Booths all open doing good business! Cottagers having good time. Bay covered with white sails and row boats!

Mr. J. M. Fitts and family from Roxbury, Miss May Duggan and Mr. Frank Fleet from South Boston, and Miss Louise Norton, Miss Katherine Martin, Miss Aloyce Tierny, Miss Gertrude Donovan and Mr. Jack Feneno, Jack Kelley, William Smith, Thomas Glynn and Mrs. J. M. Rice will spend Sunday at the Loretto.

Mr. C. J. Emery was overcome by the heat on Monday.

A carpenter, whose name could not be learned fell from a house on the hill and sprained his ankle Monday.

It was said by the residents of the Neck that the boys of the wreck never behaved so well on the 4th. Of course there were a few youngsters whose mothers didn't know they were out.

Mr. MacNeil of Roxbury and family are stopping at the Murray cottage.

Miss Almira Powers, Joseph Woods, Mrs. Annie Burns, Miss Josephine Tirrell, Mr. and Mrs. Powers are spending the holiday week as guests of Mr. Charles Bleiler at the Heath cottage on Manet avenue.

Mr. Walter Curley and family of Jamaica Plain are spending the summer months at the Sunlight cottage on Babcock street.

The Harvard Athletic Association of Dorchester had a fine time at the Bo-Peep Monday night by setting fireworks off. Mr. Edward Normand of the New England railroad gave a few selections on the cornet, followed by piano solo by Mr. Robert Webb.

Mrs. L. E. Ryder of Somerville, Mrs. M. A. Darling of Roxbury, Mr. and Mrs. Phippen and son of Charlestown and Mr. W. H. Brown are the guests of Mrs. J. H. Maynard at the eight Bells cottage.

It was said at the city races that Mr. Harry Hopkins of the Eight Bells had the handsomest racing costume.

It has just been learned by friends that Mr. Warren Gifford of Brockton, formerly of Houghs Neck, is considered very low in health. He was stricken with consumption a short while ago, and was sent for his health to Cape Cod.

The orchestra at the dance hall is considered very fine.

The people of Houghs Neck, Manet avenue and Rock Island will confer a great favor on the correspondent at the Neck by dropping news items into the boxes at Harvey's cafe or at Milton's bakery.

Mr. Brandt and family are spending their summer months at Mr. Thompson's cottage on Bird street. Among his guests are Mr. George and Charles Voorhees of Voorhees' orchestra of Dorchester.

The officers for once were on the alert.

A big bon-fire was set on the flats the night before the Fourth.

A crowd of young men called Mr. Dunham the postmaster out of bed about 12 o'clock the other night to get some fireworks and horns.

Mr. R. Andrews and family from Roxbury spent the week with friends at the Spot cottage.

A party of men from Roxbury were driven from the beach no the 4th for disturbing the peace.

Mr. F. U. Mowry and family of Malden have taken possession of the Fayolin cottage on Bell street for the summer.

There was a good view here on the Fourth of the yachts of the first-class in the City of Boston regatta. The course was around the Wreck Rock buoy off Nut island. In this class were the Beatrice, Harbinger, Little Peter and other flyers.

Fire in Braintree.

There was a very bright light in the heavens between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning, occasioned by the burning of the old house of the late Sally Hunt, in Braintree, near the new residence of Mr. George H. Arnold.

The building was of no great value, and had not been occupied for several years. The owner had thought of taking it down but the "boys" who wanted to celebrate the Fourth, thought they would save him the trouble. Being on elevated ground it made a bright light for miles around.

There were two alarms rung in, but the Braintree fire department had little to do as there were no buildings very near.

Narrow Escape.

Mr. William Fenton of Wollaston came near meeting with a serious accident as he was attempting to board the 8.15 inward train at that station on Saturday morning.

He came hurrying down the hill just in time to catch the last car as it was leaving the station. He slipped and fell, being dragged along some distance before he released his hold. The train was brought to a standstill. Mr. Fenton, although quite badly bruised about the face, pluckily continued his journey to Boston.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

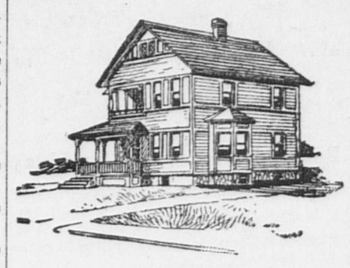

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

COZY COTTAGE HOME.

Plan For a Sensible and Well Arranged House to Cost $2,500.

[Copyright, 1897, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

In the fitting into life's groove it is but reasonable to suppose that each of us will to some extent preserve a sort of individuality and that this will be governed largely by the surrounding circumstances which go to make up the whole. So it is in the building of a home. Tastes differ as men are accustomed or educated to a subject. So it is one man wants this and another that, and what may be deemed good by one is just what impresses the other least. For this reason it requires careful judgment and a knowledge of the subject even to select a style that will fit a particular site.

Every one has his ideals, his likes and dislikes, although he may not know why he likes or dislikes a thing. The suitability of every design should be measured by its practical utility. Every plan and design ought to be carefully studied and criticised from its various standpoints in order to arrive at a just and proper conclusion.

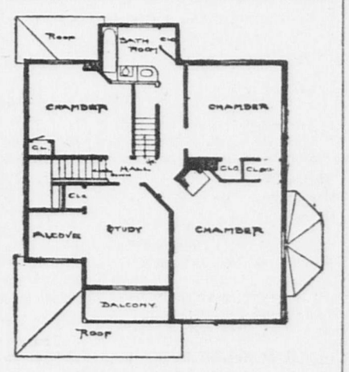

This cottage shows a very simple and inexpensive plan, yet it makes a sensible, well arranged home, and for a good many families might serve as a model, and for a family of fair size is all that can be desired. It was built in a Connecticut city for $2,500 and is a fair example of what that sum will purchase at a given point when good management and a limited purse are combined.

It is 35 feet square without side bay. The cellar is of stone 7 feet deep, with cemented floor. The first story is 9 feet high; the second, 8 feet in clear, finished plainly and neatly. The large front hall serves as a reception room, and, with the small fireplace, makes a cozy place for this purpose. Combination stairs from the kitchen to the main stairs render the upper floor accessible from the kitchen and protect the privacy of the front hall. The connection to the cellar stairs is also from both hall and kitchen and is a convenient arrangement where the privacy of the latter is desired. The master of the house must himself attend to the furnace and such other daily requirements.

Comfort and convenience here go hand in hand, and from these will come peace and contentment. The small cottage home is entitled to all that thought and science in the housebuilding line can suggest, and in this case the bill is filled. The price, however, may be very hard to duplicate, as locations differ greatly, and it is not every one that has the benefit of an economical place to build. But that is another story.

Building Cottages.

There is a growing disposition in this country for wage earners to become householders. It is not difficult for the laboring man and the small artisan to render themselves independent of landlords. The suburbs have abundant room for growth, and the land is not in the possession of a few families. Every day it is proved possible for a man with shrewd management, prudence and a little self denial to build and own a home for himself, with scarcely more of a weekly outlay than he was called upon to expend in rent. A dollar or two more a month for a few years is not difficult to manage when it means in the end a neat and attractive home instead of a mere memory of a shelter and profit in the pocket of a landlord.—Chicago Record.

The Kitchen Floor.

If there is any one floor which should be in perpetual readiness for scrubbing or holystoning or operations having a similar use and object, the kitchen has that floor. Yet often it is given the widest, knottiest, poorest quality of boards, and these absorb grease and repel or defy the cleaner. Perhaps the best kitchen floor would be of narrow boards, secret nailed, alternating dark and light, and well filled with silicate or some such filler. Such a floor would defy mud, grease, kerosene, water, and even an occasional small live coal.—Boston Herald.

Have Roomy Halls.

Many a small house is spoiled through not having enough hall room, no place to put a hat rack, or the baby carriage, or lots of other things which take up room and which are put into a hall or an entry where there is one.

About Our Coffee.

Do you know the prices we are making on Coffee? Are you acquainted with the quality of Coffee we sell? The very best Coffee only costs half a cent per cup if it is properly made. The best Mocha and Java we sell for 35c. per lb. There are very few dealers who carry this high grade Coffee, for, as they say, they can't make as much money on it as they can on cheaper grades—that is why they all try to sell something cheaper.

We always try to sell you something better than you had last. We don't want you to think that this is all the kind we carry in stock, however, for we keep all the different grades in Coffee, and we are bound to suit you.

We believe in giving credit where credit is due, and from a long trial (more than ten years) of Chase & Sanborn's Coffees, we are convinced that they are of the best grown and imported into this country. The Seal Brand in cans and Old Government Java are especially nice and you will make no mistake if you buy and use either. We have cheaper grades like Rio and Mararíato and all kinds of good, sound, reliable goods. Our coffee trade is large and is a feature in our business.

A movement is on foot to buy Mr. Fred Thayer a cow. Mr. Thayer, as reported recently lost his cow by sickness. Mr. W. F. Sidelinger has the matter in charge and already has quite a large amount subscribed. He will call on the residents of Point this week.

The heat on Monday was intense. At Quincy at noon the thermometer registered 94, at Wollaston 95 degree, and at the Quincy Yacht club house 102. Down in the harbor the heat was so powerful that many of the crews of yachts felt its effects seriously. It will be handed down as one of the hottest holidays on record.

Among the large number who enjoyed a fish dinner at the Anderson House, Fort Point, Friday evening, were eight members of the "Merry Go Round Whist Club" of Atlantic: Miss Louise Williams, Miss Annie Hall, Miss Sara Melzard, Miss Lillian Waterhouse, Miss Lela Moxon, Dr. Frederic I. Pierce, Mr. George H. Briggs, Dr. Charles E. Monroe.

A good attendence listened to the patriotic address by the pastor, at the Washington Street Congregational church Sunday morning. Extra singing added much to the service and Mrs. Fred Drake sang the Star Spangled Banner very nicely. In the evening there was not so large an attendence. Mrs. R. H. Newcomb sang "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean." The pulpit was prettily trimmed for this service.

As the bicyclists in the race yesterday came around the corner of Washington and South streets on the second time around, the leader ran into an approaching team and was thrown from his wheel which was dragged some distance under the wheels of the carriage. The young man was plucky and picked up his wheel and started off still maintaining his lead. He had a narrow escape from being badly hurt.

Fred Scammell met with quite a serious accident at his father's shop, on Quincy avenue, Saturday afternoon. He was at work on a windlass, hoisting a carriage body, when his hand slipped and the handle flying around struck him a savage blow between the eyes, the force of the blow being enough to drive the bridge of his glasses deep into the flesh, making a bad cut. He also received a bad cut in the forehead and that he was not seriously injured is a wonder.

Monday morning as Mr. J. Dorley was delivering his orders with his butcher wagon, he was run into by an electric car, in charge of Motoman Weeks and Conductor Harry Pray. The rear wheels were completely wrecked and the wagon otherwise damaged. Mr. Dorley was on the point of turning into Mr. Walter Redding's yard and waited until one car passed. He then turned, not hearing any warning bell from the other car which was following.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), don't get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

Mrs. Samuel F. Howard, Miss Howard, and Mr. William E. Howard of Wollaston, are at Long Island, Casco Bay, for a few week's sojourn.

The Y. M. C. A., Sloyd (elementary wood work) class will be organized Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, instead of tomorrow as was announced.

It is reported that Edward Sheahan of West Quincy and Mrs. James Clark of Nightingale avenue had their hands lacerated by fire crackers Saturday night.

The last Burgess cup race of the Wollaston yacht club which was reported as a tie between the Burgess and Clara Lou was an error, as the race was won by the Burgess by five seconds.

Councilmen Bryant enjoys celebrating the Fourth as much as anybody. His hobby is to get strings of Chinese fire crackers having 3,000 crackers in a string, attach them to long poles and set them off. They sound a good deal like a battery of gattling guns.

Saturday was a gala day for the choir of Bethany Congregational church, for through the kindness of the music committee they enjoyed an outing at Anderson's, Fort Point. At 1 o'clock a special car took them from City Square to their destination. They made things lively along the line with songs and horns.

The Wollaston Baptist church was very prettily decorated with flags on Sunday one very large one extending from the high cross beam to the back of the pulpit forming a canopy. The pastor the Rev. Preston Gurney took his text from Psalm 16:6. "Yea, I have a Goodly Heritage," preaching a very patriotic sermon.

The residents of Field and Brackett streets did not worry much over the things that might happen on the glorious Fourth since Chief Hayden had deputed Frank Garbarino of Newcomb street to look out for bonfires and small boys. This the officer did in a truly zealous manner and as a consequence though many fires were started they were not allowed to burn long.

There was a large attendance Saturday at the annual picnic of the Italian Mutual Relief Association at New Downer Landing There was a number of Italian sports during the day and dancing. Music by the West Quincy band. At the close of the picnic cars were taken to City square and the band marched from there to West Quincy.

Sunday and Monday were busy days with the street railway, Monday being the largest day in the history of the road in the number of passengers carried, and some idea of the amount of work done can be had when it is said that one conductor rung up 245 fares between Neponset bridge and Thomas corner, North Weymouth. Something like 26,000 passengers were carried Sunday and 35,000 Monday.

DYSPEPSIA DID IT

Weakened One Man's Constitution Until It Brought Him to Death's Door.

Mr. James S. Harrison, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Cleveland, O., was for years a sufferer from dyspepsia and general debility, and in his weakened condition, resulting from the above causes, he had the additional ill-luck to fall a victim to malaria from this complication of disorders. Mr. Harrison's condition was becoming very serious, when he commenced to take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. Its effects were marked and immediate. Read his letter to us. Its earnestness is apparent:

GENTLEMEN: For the benefit of all suffering from dyspepsia and general debility I beg to submit my testimonial as to the efficacy of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, as a positive cure for all the distressing complaints from which I suffered.

My system was also full of Malaria and my condition was growing very serious; I had no appetite, was losing strength and was completely broken down in health, but now my health is completely restored, and I can eat like a field laborer, without the slightest fear of any serious results.

I take great pleasure in telling the world that P. P. P. did the grand work of restoring me to my accustomed health. Yours truly,

JAMES S. HARRISON,
Cleveland, O.

If you get up feeling tired and stupid, P. P. P. should be taken—it will make you feel well.

P. P. P. cures eczema, that torturing, itching disease of the skin and blood. If your blood is kept pure, you will not be disfigured with pimples, boils and blotches.

P. P. P. is the deadly foe and vanquisher of rheumatism. Its effects are immediate and lasting, and it not only relieves, but permanently cures.

Scrofula, which is hereditary and deep-seated in the blood can be cured by P. P. P. It is the one and only positive cure for this dread disease.

Sufferers from kidney troubles find immediate relief when they take P. P. P. as it cures all irregularities and restores to nature her proper functions.

Sold by all druggists.

WAS KILLED BY A BOMB

Henry B. Stone, ex-President of C. B. and Q., Meets Instant Death.

Two Fireworks Men Drowned at Springfield.

Boy Killed at Lynn--Coxswain of Millstream Crew Drops Dead.

New Bedford, Mass., July 6.—Henry B. Stone, president of the Chicago Telephone company, and ex-president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railway, was instantly killed at his summer home Nonquitt yesterday by the bursting of a bomb.

Mr. Stone, with his wife and four children, reached Nonquit on Saturday. There they have an elegant cottage in the vicinity of the summer home of Mrs. Philip Sheridan, where General Sheridan died a few summers ago. It was the intention of the Stones, after spending part of the summer at Nonquitt, to travel in Europe during the rest of the time.

Mr. Stone had purchased a lot of fireworks for the celebration of the Fourth, and it was while he was firing these that he met his death.

Among the fireworks were several bombs, which, when they have reached a considerable hight, release tissue paper animals, which float away on the breeze. Mr. Stone's family and a number of friends were gathered about him when he touched one of these pieces off.

The fuse sputtered for a moment and then apparently went out. Mr. Stone incautiously returned to the bomb to see what was the matter, and as there appeared to be no fire about it, picked it up for closer examination. It is probable that the motion of picking it up fanned a spark which had been unobserved, for no sooner had the bomb reached the level of Mr. Stone's face than there was a flash and a loud report.

Those gathered about, apprehensive of danger, had turned to run to a place of safety, and nobody saw the accident at the moment it happened. They were horrified after the report to see Mr. Stone fall to the ground with blood streaming from his powder-blackened face. Before any one could reach him Mr. Stone was dead.

Dr. John T. Bullard of New Bedford, a relative, who was spending a few hours at Nonquitt, immediately made an examination. Mr. Stone's skull had been fractured by the explosion.

Double Drowning at Springfield.

Springfield, Mass., July 6.—The illumination and fireworks display on the river last night were marred by the drowning of the two men who were handling the fireworks, W. Malone of Essex street, Brooklyn, and John T. Nolan of 77 Courtland street, New York. Both men were on a float in the middle of the river and had been drinking freely. Malone was on one end of the float arranging some fireworks, when he slipped and fell into the river. His body went under the float and came up on the other side. As it did so Nolan saw it and jumped into the water. Hardly had he struck the water when Malone grasped him with a drowning man's clutch, and Nolan was unable to loosen his hold. Both men sank before the accident was known to those on shore or in boats nearby, and the first intimation the spectators had that anything was wrong was the delay in the program. In Nolan's pockets were found a New York policeman's badge bearing the number 4552 and a policeman's fire key and whistle, as well as a small metal tag bearing the same number as the badge. Malone was an employe of the Pain Fireworks company, and was sent on by the company to handle the fireworks.

Coxwain Fell Dead.

Boston, July 6.—The rowing regratta on the Charles river yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the city of Boston and the New England Amateur Rowing association was among the most successful ever held here, and the races were witnessed by immense crowds that lined the river bank and the Harvard bridge. The most exciting race was the senior eight-oared race in which the Riverside crew won by six feet over the Millstreams of Chelsea, the B. A. A. crew finishing 10 feet behind the latter. After the Millstreams' boat had returned to the boathouse wharf, the coxwain, H. Sader of Chelsea, alighted and just as he was entering the boathouse fell to the floor and expired almost instantly, his death being due to heart disease, aggravated by the excitement and heat of the day. The professional single skull race was an easy victory for Rogers.

Boy Killed at Lynn.

Lynn, Mass., July 6.—Thomas Farrell, 13 years old, of 9 Richmond street, is dead, as the result of a gunshot wound. He was around a bonfire which some boys had started early yesterday morning, with a lantern in his hand. Another lad, John Rooney, who had a gun loaded with a blank cartridge in his hand, aimed and fired at the lantern at short range. The wadding and powder missed the lantern and struck Farrell in the calf of the leg. The lad was carried to the hospital, where he died from the shock and loss of blood. Rooney has not yet been arrested, and it is not certain that he will. A 9-year-old brother of young Farrell was burned about the face and body yesterday while playing with fire crackers, but his injuries are not serious.

Fell Dead From Sulky.

Rockland, Me., July 6.—The immense crowd attending the races at the trotting park here yesterday afternoon went home very sadly. As the horses came before the stand in the first half mile of the fourth heat, Dr. W. D. Farnham, the driver, and owner of Ikey M, swayed and fell from his sulky. When picked up it was found he was dead of heart disease caused by the excitement. Dr. Farnham was a veterinary surgeon, and a highly respected citizen.

Five Killed by Heat at Chicago.

Chicago, July 6.—Five persons were killed and an unusually large number were injured as a result of the Fourth of July celebration. The total number of deaths in the last four days, attributable to the heat was 27, and there were 138 prostrations, some of which may prove fatal.

BOSTON SIZZLED.

Torrid Wave Has Reached the East---Many Prostrations Reported.

Boston, July 6.—Torrid weather struck Boston yesterday.

Bostonians are used to sudden changes from heat to cold and from cold to heat, but Monday's caloric deluge was a big surprise and somewhat bewildering.

Several were overcome by the heat.

A veritable sunburst broke over the city, and with the terrific heat came an excessive humidity. All over the city it was a season of discomfort. The thinnest garments were in order, and even the thinnest were too heavy to wear.

The morning was sunny and warm, but toward noon the heat became overpowering, and continued so during the day. The city fairly sizzled, and there seemed no relief from the sun's pelting rays.

People crawled along the streets in a melancholy way, their faces wearing a worried look, fanning themselves nervously and mopping their foreheads, necks and wrists. The dealers in straw hats who were fortunate enough to have their stores open did a rushing business, and the soda water vendors were kept busy dispensing cooling beverages.

Washington and Tremont streets from end to end were bathed in a scorching hot wave, and the business section of the city was heated as if by a furnace, with a vexing, enervating, deadly heat.

Local Forecaster Smith's records say yesterday was the hottest on which patriotic Americans have tried to keep their patriotism aflame and themselves cool for many years.

Record Breaker at Montpelier.

Montpelier, Vt., July 6.—Yesterday was a record breaker for heat in this section. The mercury registered 107 in the shade, the highest point ever known here and 2 degrees warmer than the phenomenal hot days of last August. Almost all labor was stopped where the workmen were exposed to the sun. Farmers accustomed to outdoor labor were driven from their farms. Nearly every town in this vicinity reports that persons succumbed to the heat. No deaths are reported here thus far. At 6 o'clock last evening the mercury stood at 98 degrees Farenheit.

In Western Vermont.

Fair Haven, Vt., July 6.—Yesterday was the warmest experienced in western Vermont for many years, the thermometer registering 97 in the shade. Two men named Brown and Pond, both 75 years of age, succumbed to the heat, dying in Castleton. There were numerous prostrations in several districts hereabouts, but happily without any further fatalities.

Newport, Vt., Sizzles.

Newport, Vt., July 6.—Yesterday was the hottest ever experienced in this city, the thermometer registering 104 in the shade. All the mills and the factories were obliged to shut down owing to the intense heat, and fully a score of people have been prostrated, but none fatally.

At 100 In the Mountains.

Lancaster, N. H., July 6.—Yesterday was the hottest day among the mountains recorded for many years, the thermometer ranging from 95 to 100 in the shade. One man, name unknown, was found unconscious from the heat. His condition is critical.

Manchester Baked.

Manchester, N. H., July 6.—In a number of localities in this city yesterday the thermometer showed markings of 106 degrees in the shade. The average temperature was 96. There were a number of heat prostrations.

A Death at Millville.

Millville, Mass., July 6.—Peter Duffy of Fall River, while standing on the platform of the railroad station yesterday, was overcome by the heat and died at the hospital.

Socialists at the Hub.

Boston, July 6.—The second annual convention of the socialist trades and labor alliance convened in German Workmen's hall, Roxbury, yesterday. The convention organized with choice of Lawrence Timilty of the Silversmiths of New York city as permanent chairman and Ernest Bohm permanent secretary. The committee on credentials reported 50 delegates present and entitled to seats in the convention from New York Newark, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Newport, Chicago and Boston. After this report was accepted the various committees were announced. The convention listened to reports from the committee on rules and regulations during the afternoon session. It is understood that the aim of the organization is the total abolition of the wage system and the establishment in place thereof of the co-operative commonwealth. It calls itself a class-conscious movement.

Polish Riot.

Wilmington, Mass., July 6.—The police of this town attempted to raid a Polish picnic in a grove just north of the Woburn line yesterday afternoon in order to confiscate a lot of beer. The Polanders, however, attacked them and a riot ensued, in which clubs and revolvers were freely used, and two, if not more, of the picnic party were wounded. Chief of Police Rice was roughly handled by the crowd, and a number of officers more or less bruised. The ringleaders were arrested.

Turks Destroy Town.

Athens, July 6.—The Turkish troops, after a sharp fight with the inhabitants, have reoccupied the village of Kalabaka, north Thessaly. The attack was made last Thursday by Turks and Albanians, 200 strong. The inhabitants fought desperately, killing many Turks, but were finally overpowered. Most of them fled to the mountains. The others have probably been massacred or been taken prisoners. The Turks, after pillaging the town, destroyed it.

Excitement Killed Him.

Revere, Mass., July 6.—Dr. L. B. Holbrook, a prominent physician, dropped dead Monday morning from heart trouble, brought on by excitement over a fire that occurred near his residence a short time before. He was 60 years old, and prominent in the Grand Army, Knights Templars, Knights of Malta, N. E. Order of Protection and Order of Pilgrim Fathers.

Americans Abroad.

London, July 6.—The Americans in London, Paris, Rome and other foreign cities celebrated the Fourth of July yesterday with the usual dinner.

WONDERFUL TELEGRAPHY.

An Expert Talks of the Recent International Cable Chess Match.

"I think the public has not thoroughly appreciated the fact that the telegraphic work done in connection with the recent international chess contest between members of congress and the British parliament was in a number of respects the most remarkable feat of skill ever accomplished in the history of telegrahing," said Mr. M. Marean, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company.

"It took on an average only 15 seconds to transmit the moves between Washington and London. During the two days of the game not a single telegraphic mistake was made, and the overland and cable service was without other than momentary interruption. The line ran from Washington to Heart's Content, Nova Scotia, over the Western Union system, thence by the Western Union and Anglo-American Cable company to Valencia, Ireland, thence to the house of parliament.

"Six operators were engaged in the work, one at each end of the three lines. When preparation was being made for the match, it was questioned whether moves could be telegraphed as rapidly as 15 per hour. The service given demonstrated that there might have been 100 moves an hour, so far as their transmission over the ocean was concerned. Of course abbreviations were used, and no time was lost in sending either addresses or signatures."—Washington Star.

BURIED DURING THE WAR.

Searching In Wisconsin For $35,000 In Gold Coins.

James Arthur, a veteran of the civil war, now a resident of Buffalo, arrived in Superior, Wis., by steamboat recently to make inquiries concerning a transaction dating back nearly 40 years. According to Mr. Arthur's story, a bag containing $35,000 in gold was buried by a man named Eli Pingers in the year 1861 and has never been discovered to this day, though several expeditions have gone in search of it.

Arthur and Pingers were partners in a bank at La Pointe, which they closed and joined the army. Eli Pingers was killed at the battle of Richmond, Ky., on Aug. 30, 1862. A thorough search through the Pingers home in New York failed to disclose any information concerning the location of the hidden treasure. After the war Arthur married the sister of Pingers. He has made several trips in search of the treasure, but in vain. Recently, while turning the pages of an old book which had once been the property of Eli Pingers, a small piece of note paper was found by Mrs. Arthur which contained a memorandum written in the handwriting of the dead soldier. This note, Mr. Arthur claims, will no doubt lead to the discovery of the treasure in time, but the reference it makes to roads, trees and other landmarks is of little avail now.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Beggar's Ingenuity.

At a recent meeting of the Charity Organization society at Denver the usual routine reports were varied by an account by the secretary, Mrs. George, of a girl who came to ask for a decent dress in which to bury her mother, who had just died. The secretary's first impulse was to give the dress without further inquiry, but she decided to follow her usual plan and investigate. The result was that she found that the story was a canard and the girl a peculiarly ingenious impostor.—Rocky Mountain News.

Fear Drove Colored Folk to Prayer.

A brilliant meteor going southwest passed over Troy, S. C., recently and exploded with a thundering noise. The colored people were terribly frightened and began praying.

The meteor passed over when people were returning from a college commencement. The sparks seemed by fly from it and strike in the trees. The noise when the meteor exploded was like a blast in a quarry. The air was filled with thousands of sparks.—New York Telegram.

Change Their Name For a Fortune.

Justice Beekman, in the supreme court, New York, lately granted permission to Harry Knebel Staples, Joseph Staples, Herbert C. Staples and Leslie Curtis Staples to change their name to Savage.

The petitioners are the children of Joseph Staples, who died in 1892. The widow, Henrietta K., married a rich man named Savage, who proposed to bequeath money to them if they would take his name.

Foretold the Date of Her Death.

Mrs. Abby A. Darling, known for years throughout New England as a clairvoyant and whose headquarters were at Providence, was found dead in bed in Boston recently, she having prophesied three years ago that she would die on that particular day. She was 69 years old.

Resentment.

The summer girl is angry. As she scans the tariff bill
Her eyes fill up with moisture and her voice shakes with a thrill,
Which shows that rage volcanic smolders, dangerous, in her heart.
It proclaims that there'll be trouble if she ever takes a start.

Says she: "'Tis worse than monstrous, this tyrannical display
Of the power which congressmen enjoy to take our rights away!
I care not what they choose to do with coffee, tea or malt,
But it's wicked usurpation when they put a tax on salt!

"Their ways are dark and secret, but the genius feminine
Is quick to find deception, and their purpose I divine.
This is, plainly, but a portion of their woman hating scheme,
For they know large quantities of salt are used to freeze ice cream."

—Washington Star.

Did ever a woman experience true happiness until she bent over her rosy-cheeked, sleeping babe, tired of play and forgetful of toys. Never. True happiness for a childless woman is nature's most emphatic impossibility. The world teems with otherwise happy wedded couples that only need the link of a babe's divided caresses to unite them in mutual happiness through all eternity. Any woman may assure herself of happy wifehood, long life, love, and the great blessing of motherhood, who will take proper care of her womanly-self, and resort to the right remedy for weakness and disease of the delicate organs peculiar to her sex.

The best of all-known remedies for the special weaknesses and diseases from which women suffer is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on the organs that bear the burdens of motherhood. It makes them strong and healthy. Taken during the expectant period it banishes the usual discomforts and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It insures a robust newcomer and an ample supply of natural nourishment. All good druggists sell it.

"It is my heart's desire," writes Mrs. M. E. Jimpson, P. O. Box 31, Kinderhook, Columbia Co., N. Y., "to tell you what Dr. Pierce's medicine has done for me. Two years ago I was in a very bad state. I took nine bottles in all of your 'Favorite Prescription.' I had been married five years and had not had any children. I now have a young son one year old. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription effected a positive cure—words cannot express my gratitude for the relief from the great suffering I so long endured. I do not think I should be here to-day had it not been for Dr. Pierce's medicines."

—Now that the tariff bill is about completed the administration will soon determine whether it shall ask Congress to immediately take up the currency question or allow it to adjourn and give the country absolute rest and an opportunity to adjust business to the new tariff law, leaving the currency question to the regular session which meets five months hence. There are many people who think that the latter plan would be advisable and it may be that the President will conclude to leave this question to the regular session instead of prolonging the special session for that purpose.

WEEK OF YACHTING.

Quincy Boats Show Up Well in the Boston Race.

Ladies' Day of Quincy Club Tomorrow a Society Event.

Open Races Thursday at Hull, and Saturday at City Point

The Beatrice of Quincy surprised the flyers in the first-class in the City of Boston open race, setting all her kites on the home run and taking first prize of $25, allowing the Emma C. $15, Ida J. $10, and Harbinger, but $5. The prize in Class A went to the Chiefton, and in the second open class to Hoodlum and Romance. The Rex took first money on time allowance in the second cabin class, with Murid, Privateer, Nettie Whisper, Harolde, Yankee, Misitt, and Tantrum in order named. As a Boston paper says, the Adams Bros. Rooster just ate up the third class taking first prize of $20 with about four minutes to spare, giving Faxon's Cleopatra $15, Arab $10, and Harriet $5. The Hobo had a walkover in the Knockabout class. In the fourth class, first prize went to Fantasy, $15 to Alpine, $10 to Gnome, and $5 to Circe. The winners of the fifth class were the Atilla, Eva and Cutty Lark.

The Wollaston Race.

The second race for the silver cups offered by Commodore F. Burgess, of the Wollaston Yacht club, was sailed Monday afternoon off the club house, over the club's regular 7 mile course (3½ miles and repeat.) There was a fairly good south west breeze, making it a reach to the first and second turns and a beat home.

It was an interesting race between the Burgess and Clara Lou, but it would have been a close triangular had the Mognolia been ready to start with them, her time being about 22 minutes better than shown in the summary.

The Burgess crossed the line thirteen seconds ahead of the Clara Lou and finished the first lap thirty-eight seconds good. On the second lap the wind increased slightly which seemed to favor the Clara Lou, for she began to crawl up fast and turned the first mark off Nut Island slightly ahead of the Burgess, and increased her lead from that out, winning by 1 minute, 15 seconds actual time, and 2 minutes, 42 seconds, corrected time.

In the fourth class which started five minutes after the second class, the West Wind got a start of 26 seconds over the Beatrice, with the Remona 2 seconds later. The Sea Gull met with an accident just before the gun which delayed her twelve minutes. The West Wind now has one leg for the second prize.

In the race among the little fellows for the A. L. Baker cups, the Gypsy crossed the line first, but was soon passed by the Marion and Splash in the order named. The race between the two was a pretty one and was fought to the end, the Marion winning by 23 seconds.

This gives Mr. Green, owner of the Marion, the first prize cup, he having won a leg in the first race for this cup on the Seventeenth of June.

There is a tie for the second prize between the Gypsy and Splash, which will be sailed off on Saturday, Aug. 14.

The Squantum Race.

The second Burkhardt cup race of the Squantum Yacht club was sailed Monday afternoon in a light breeze. There was but one class to participate in the race which was uneventful. The summary:

Name and owner,	Length. ft. in.	Actual time. h.m.s.	Cor'ted time. h.m.s.

The Cock Robin lost two races at Marblehead Monday, being seventh and fifth.

Ladies' Day Tomorrow.

All that is needed to make Ladies' day of Quincy Yacht club a grand event, is a continuation of the pleasant weather. The review and sail is of course the feature of the day, and with many it is the only sail of the year. Commodore Sanborn will entertain many on the flagship, and most of the yachts of the large Quincy fleet will take out parties.

The preparatory gun will be fired at 2.45, when the number of the course will be displayed from the club float, which will be one of the following:

Course No. 1. Passing in review, leaving flagship on port, thence leaving Jack-knife ledge buoy on port, Pig Rock beacon on starboard, Black Can buoy off Bumkin island on starboard, to clubhouse, passing between Sheep and Grape islands.

Course No. 2. Passing in review, leaving flagship on starboard, thence leaving Pig Rock beacon on starboard, Black Can buoy No. 1 in Hingham bay on starboard, Jack-knife ledge buoy on starboard, Red Spar buoy No. 2 off Sheep island on port to clubhouse.

The second gun at 3 o'clock will be the signal for the fleet to pass in review, and sail over the course.

Lunch will be served at 5.30 upon the return from the sail, and in the evening there will be dancing from 7 to 10.

Ladies' day promises to be the social event of the summer.

East Boston Race.

Again on Saturday the Omeme and Privateer of the Quincy club took first prizes in the open regatta of the Jeffries club. The order in the first class by corrected time was: Little Peter, Ida J., Elfreda, Emma C. and Beatrice; in the second class, Privateer, Muriel, Yankee, Whisper, Rex, Nettie, Judith and Mist; in the third class, Omeme, Zoe and Vamoose (seven boats sailing the wrong course); in the fourth class, Vitesse, Alpine, Fantasy, Circe, Ripple and Hector.

Races at Hull.

The Hull yacht club will hold an open race on Thursday at 2.15, for which liberal prizes are offered. The first class will go out through Hull gut around Hardings ledge bell buoy, while the other classes will sail inside.

On Friday there will be an invitation at Hull for second cabin, knockabouts and third classes.

Saturday Races.

At City Point Saturday the Boston Yacht club will hold an open race, and the Winthrop club will have sweepstake races. It is also ladies' day at Revere.

ROSEMARY COTTAGE at Eliot, Maine, is the paradise of tired mothers and the children of the poor in the summer heats. The two weeks' vacation under its green trees, provided by the Fresh Air Fund, Boston, to which the public has so generously contributed for eighteen years, means new life and hope, fresh strength and rosy cheeks, a love for simple pleasures and a store of happy memories laid up for months to come, for those who are fortunate enough to share its hospitality.

"We spent a very happy two weeks," writes a mother. "It was the first holiday I have had for eleven years. I feel like a new person altogether and the children have a different appearance. They had such a dreadful good time every minute they were there." The adjective may provoke a smile, but the sincerity of the pleasure who can doubt? It is worth something to have made so much happiness available for the first time in life to this mother and her little children.

Rosemary is a homelike place, managed with a motherly tact and understanding which win the hearts of the children. "We are all in the country except papa," writes a little girl. "This place is so beautiful that mamma calls it heaven on earth, with great big hills. The hotel we live in is on a big hill, and it has lovely rooms. We love it very much."

"My sister and I are getting rosy cheeks," writes a girl of eleven. "We have good times in the grass and swings; and we get all the cow's milk we want to drink, and plenty to eat. The matron is a lovely lady. She reads us stories and sings with us. Two weeks have gone so fast we wish it was just at the beginning."

In these good times the boys have their full share. "I had a fine time," writes one. "We played ball and went picking berries. I went to church both Sundays. I like the matron very much, and I ought to, for she does a great deal for us so that we can have a good time. She plays games with us every night in the parlor. She let four of us boys go to Greenacre. She gave us lunches, and we had a fine time. We d dn't come home until it was quite late. They gave us our supper in the kitchen, and we told them that all us boys would like to eat our supper in the kitchen every night.

The visits to Rosemary are not, however, the only form of hospitality provided by this charity. Ten dollars will give two hundred people a long ride on the street cars; $24, a party of fifty children a day at the beach with a fish dinner; $35, a hundred people a day's outing at Franklin Park.

This is a widespread and flexible charity. Its work is done by the help of many gifts both large and small, and letters of renewed cooperation year by year show that those who give take genuine pleasure in thus entertaining strangers and making the pleasures of the summer time available to the poor. To give this opportunity to a wider circle of generous souls, and to remind former helpers of the recurring need of their liberality, is the purpose of this article. Contributions should be sent to Rev. D. W. Waldron, 7-A Beacon street, Room 19, Boston, Mass., and will be promptly acknowledged.

HOLIDAY BASE BALL.

The T. R. & S. Nine Credited with Two More Victories.

Tnere was a large attendance at the park Monday morning to witness the game between the T. R. & S. Co. nine and the Phœnix of Whitman. The visitors took the lead and the home team tied them but once, but as the T. R. & S. boys usually pull out a game in the last innings they would probably have won by merit, had the visitors not felt obliged to leave at the end of the seventh innings for an afternoon game. The score was 10 to 9 in favor of the visitors, but was given to the home club 9 to 0. The feature of the game was the streaks of heavy batting by both teams, including a home run by Gaston.

T. R. & S. Won Prize.

In the afternoon the T. R. & S. defeated the East Weymouth for a $50 purse. The batting on both sides was very heavy. The T. R. & S. knocked Lynch out of the box, but Poole doing no better, Lynch was put back. H. Faircloth batted out two home runs and his brother one. The outfielders of the T. R. & S. put up a fine game.

The Benefit Game.

The T. R. & S. Co. defeated the Atlantics Saturday at the Park in a one-sided game by a score of 25 to 8. The features of the game were the heavy batting of the T. R. & S., they knocking P. Duffy out of the box in the third innings. Colligan, who took his place, did no better. The batteries were Dunn and Murphy; P. Duffy and Hayes.

—A member of the Utah Senate, a bachelor, charged a railroad official with using undue influence on legislation by the issuance of passes to the legislators. At the investigation it came out that the Senator had been refused a trip pass for his "wife and wife's sister." This was what made the honorable Senator turn pale on the end of his nose.

—The papers are hasty in their congratulations to the young man in Boston who wedded a millionaire last week, because he is suddenly raised to an independent position. But the sudden change in his temporal circumstances by no means presumes a state of happiness. The precedents in life rather accent it otherwise. To enjoy wealth and to appreciate its real benefits, money should be earned and invested by the slow process of labor and economy. The average man may not become a millionaire, but his competence obtained by his own industry will be better appreciated. No man can truly estimate the worth of a dollar until he has earned it and saved it.—Whitman Times.

CORBETT AND O'ROURKE.

It Was Not a Fight, but There Were Some Symptoms.

A difference that might have resulted in a scrapping encounter between Jim Corbett and Eugene O'Rourke started shortly after 4 o'clock on a recent morning in Martin's oyster house, Broadway, near Fortieth street, New York.

"Pompadour Jim" entered the restaurant accompanied by Arthur Moore, "Honest" John Kelly, Eugene O'Rourke, Billy Brady and a number of other sports who have been associated with the Californian during the past two years, and the entire party drank foaming beakers of seductive fizz. The conversation naturally turned to the veriscope reproductions of the battle at Carson City, and the sporting men around the table expressed their opinions of the fight as projected on canvas.

O'Rourke's remarks were offensive to the ex-champion, and the former finally arose from the table, saying:

"Jim, I'll kill you, anyhow."

"No, you won't. You don't mean that," said the pugilist as he jumped to his feet and clasped O'Rourke around the body.

Friends separated the would be fighters, and after harmony had been restored and healths pledged again Corbett and O'Rourke left the place arm in arm, vowing eternal friendship.

WHEELMEN MUST DISMOUNT

Damages Not Allowed For One Who Did Not and Was Killed.

A man on a bicycle came to a railroad crossing where there were four tracks. A freight train was passing, and he could not cross. He did not dismount, but rode round in a circle several times. As the last car passed he started across and was killed by a train moving in the opposite direction, but which he could not see while riding round.

A suit was brought for damages, and the supreme court of Georgia has just delivered its decision denying the right of the heirs to damages. Justice Miller, delivering the opinion, said that the deceased should have dismounted and taken reasonable precautions himself. Circling round and round did not constitute a legal stop, according to the court.

"Considering the case of dismounting and the control of the rider over his instrument, a bicycler must, under all ordinary circumstances, be treated as subject to the same rules as a pedestrian. He must dismount or at least bring his wheel to such a stop as will enable him to look up and down the track and listen in the manner required of a pedestrian."—Atlanta Constitution.

PUBLIC PRINTER PUZZLED.

Government Printing Office Found Itself Short of Funds.

The policy of inaction in the national house of representatives is likely to cause some annoyance to employees in the government printing office. The senate, on the representation of the public printer that there was only a little money on hand, promptly passed a joint resolution making an appropriation of $225,000, which it was expected the house would consider at once. But no opportunity was given, and upon the first vote being taken, the house being without a quorum, adjournment followed.

Mr. Palmer states that the office will be seriously hampered if this money, or a portion of it at least, is not made immediately available. An effort will be made to have the committee on rules bring in an order for the consideration of the joint resolution, for it is already known that objection will be made to its consideration by unanimous consent.—Washington Post.

Dynamite Thawed Too Fast.

At Hermantown, seven miles from Duluth, recently Frank Lucek, a farmer living there, was thawing some dynamite to be used in clearing land of stumps. He was heating it over a fire, when it exploded, tearing the house almost to pieces and killing Lucek and two young sons. Another boy was blown through a window, Mrs. Lucek was injured and what remained of the house caught fire and was destroyed. The mother and son were brought to Duluth and are in the hospital here. The boy may die, but the mother will recover.

Forged Her Mother's Name.

Ellen Cadman, the 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. L. A. Cadman of Chattanooga, was arrested recently at the instance of her mother on a charge of forgery. The young lady had cashed checks to the amount of $80 purporting to have been signed by her mother. A friend of the girl, in order to save her from spending the night in the city jail, made up the amount, and she was released. The girl is very handsome and unusually bright for one of her age. The mother and daughter were later reconciled.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SUFFERING FROM HEAT

One Death and Ten Prostrations Reported at Boston.

Hottest Day of the Year In New York.

Hundreds Overcome Throughout the East Many Deaths.

Boston, July 7.—Yesterday's official record of death and prostration in Boston is a sad one, recalling that last memorable hot day in August of last year.

The police and hospital records for yesterday show a list of 10 prostrations of various seriousness, and one death.

There was a death and a serious prostration at the Charlestown navy yard yesterday morning. Both were civilian employes of the yard, William Handy, 73 years old, who lived at 4 Florence street, Somerville, was the one who died, and John Johnson, 48, of Cottage street, East Boston, the victim of prostration.

A few minutes before 8 a. m., Mr. Handy, who for many years was one of the most competent and faithful of the shipwrights at the yard, called at the office of Master Shipwright Hersey, in the construction building, to consult with Mr. Hersey in relation to going to work Wednesday morning.

Mr. Handy arrived at the office of Mr. Hersey just before 8 o'clock. After shaking hands with Mr. Hersey he tottered and fell upon a sofa near which he was standing. Death must have been instantaneous.

HOTTEST DAY OF YEAR.

Old Sol Turns His Hottest Shafts on the City of New York.

New York, July 7.—The warm wave which is said to be due to a combination of an area of low pressure to the north, and a high pressure to the south, struck this city yesterday and at noon the thermometer on the street level registered 102 degrees, while the humidity recorded was 91 per cent. It was the hottest day thus far of this year.

As the result of the intense heat there were three deaths and 14 prostrations. Toward evening the sky became overcast and there was a drop of 12 degrees between 5 and 10 p. m. This drop, however, was in the thermometer of the weather bureau, where it registered 88 degrees at 5 o'clock, and at 10 o'clock, but 76, while at 9 o'clock on the street, in the neighborhod of the city hall, it registered 83 degrees.

Maggie Eihl, 60 years old, a nurse, was overcome by the heat in front of 172 Avenue C, during the afternoon and died before the arrival of the ambulance.

Bernard McGarry, aged 4, was overcome by the heat and fell from the fifth story window and was killed.

William Smith, keeper of the City hospital on Blackwell's island, died in Central park of heart failure induced by the heat.

The following persons were prostrated by the heat: John Feigel, R. M. Yeason, a sailor on board the U. S. S. Essex; John Libie, George Stewart, Frank Green, Christopher Haler, Lawrence McCarthy, Elizabeth Bunnell, Stephen Lessare, Samuel Kennedy, Henry C. Chalmers, Christopher Foley, Owen O'Neil and two unknown women.

All of the above were taken to the hospitals.

The following heat prostrations were reported from Brooklyn: Casper Spegel, will probably die; Peter Healy, Daniel Gallagher, Maggie Skuts. Edward Cox, works display at Sshenley park was 45 years old, of Bristol, Conn., at Clinton and Fulton streets, became sick from the heat and was sent to the City hospital.

One Death at Lowell.

Lowell, Mass., July 7.—W. M. Mulcahey, about 65 years of age, residing at 159 Appleton street, was prostrated with the heat yesterday afternoon. The ambulance was called, but when it arrived the man was dead. The ambulance also removed five other victims of heat prostration to the St. John's hospital during the afternoon.

Hailstorm at Brattleboro.

Brattleboro, Vt., July 7.—One of the severest rainstorms in years swept through this section yesterday afternoon. It was accompanied by hail, which did great damage to tobacco, corn and other crops. The houses of E. E. Stockwell and F. E. Young were struck by lightning, but only slightly damaged.

Hot at Poughkeepsie.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 7.—Thermometers in this city registered 104 in the shade at noon yesterday, and it was the hottest day of the year. During the afternoon this section was visited by a terrific storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning. The lightning struck a stable and killed two horses.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

MARTIN THORN ARRESTED.

Alleged Murderer of William Guldensuppe Is Now In Custody at New York.

New York, July 7.—Martin Thorn is a prisoner. The man who has been sought by the police for the last 10 days, and who will answer, with Mrs. Nack, to the charge of murdering William Guldensuppe, was caught last night by eight men from the central detective office, at the corner of West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Eighth avenue. Acting Inspector O'Brien made the arrest, assisted by two detectives and five other central office men.

Thorn, for whom the detectives have been looking for everywhere since the arrest of Mrs. Nack, was much changed in appearance when he fell into the hands of Inspector O'Brien's men. He no longer wore the luxurious mustache which prompted his friends to class him as a handsome man. He was smooth-shaven. But he was, if anything, rather more neatly dressed than has been his custom.

The detectives made no effort to question him for several hours after the arrest had been made, but if he talks as freely with them as he has with his most intimate friend, John Gartha, he will throw some highly important light on the manner in which Guldensuppe met his death. Thorn, it is said completely exonerates Mrs. Nack from being in any way responsible for the death of Guldensuppe, nor does he admit that he had anything to do with the crime, or, if he has admitted it, Gartha would not acknowledge it.

AMERICAN WHIST LEAGUE.

Reports of Officers Show Healthy Financial Condition---Championships Being Played.

Put-In Bay, O., July 7.—A business session of the American Whist league congress was held yesterday. Reports of officers were read showing the league to be in a healthy financial condition and an increase of 20 clubs in membership during the past year. The first championship contest of the present congress took place, 60 players divided among three auxiliaries, battling for the Brooklyn trophy. Those entered were the New York State association, New England Whist league and the Atlantic league.

New York won the trophy by winning both matches against their rivals. Atlantic won one match from New England and lost one to New York, New England lost both matches.

In tricks gained, New York beat New England nine and Atlantic one, Atlantic beat New England 13 tricks, but lost the trophy by losing their match against New York. The Tormoy system of scoring was used and proved a brilliant success.

Yesterday afternoon the contest for the Hamilton trophy began with 15 entries. The contest will last all week. Last night the battle for the A. W. L. trophy commenced with 15 entries.

Dying Prisoner Paroled.

Indianapolis, July 7.—Governor Mount has paroled Benjamin R. Musgrave, who was sentenced to state prison from Terre Haute for 10 years for swindling a life insurance company. The parole is issued upon the showing that the prisoner is dying of consumption. Musgrave had about 15 months to serve. Musgrave's crime was one of the sensations of the time, and consisted of an attempt to collect $30,000 life insurance by placing a cadaver in his house and burning it for his own body.

Sensation In Arson Case.

Plymouth, Mass., July 7.—The hearing on the motion for a new trial in the case of Finley and Murphy of Brockton, convicted last week of attempting to set fire to their own factory, was of a decidedly sensational character in the superior criminal court yesterday afternoon, Counsel Kingman claiming that certain members of the jury were tampered with while the trial was in progress.

End of Assault Theory.

Lynn, Mass., July 7.—Mrs. Margaret Lee, wife of Officer David Lee, who was found badly hurt in her home last week, has recovered sufficiently to say that she fell down stairs. This disposes of the assault theory.

Electrical Storm in New York.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 7.—A terrific electrical, hail and wind storm passed over this city late yesterday afternoon. Fruit gardens were greatly damaged, and reports from the surrounding towns are to the effect that the storm nearly ruined the crops, particularly the rye.

Two Prostrations at Amesbury.

Amesbury, Mass., July 7.—The thermometer read 99 in the shade yesterday. W. F. Cogswell of Haverhill was prostrated by the heat, and E. L. Woglemanth, a conductor, is in a critical condition from the same cause.

In the Genesee Valley.

Geneseo, N. Y., July 7.—The heat in the Genesee valley has been intense for the past three days, the temperature ranging from 100 to 106. An Italian employed in the pea fields died from the effects of the heat.

Defendants In Lowell Bribery Cases Sentenced by Judge Pond.

The Sentences Were Then Revoked, Pending Appeal.

Attorneys For Convicted Men Pleaded For Mercy From the Court.

Cambridge, Mass., July 7.—Sentences were imposed in the Lowell bribery cases yesterday afternoon, and then revoked until today in order that the three defendants could furnish sureties until the exceptions are decided by the supreme court, which will not be until next winter.

The cases came up before Judge Bond in the Middlesex superior court at East Cambridge. Motions for a new trial and an arrest of sentence were argued last Friday, and were overruled. Appeals were taken, and will be argued before the supreme court.

Judge Bond sentenced each of the three men to one year in the house of correction, and imposed a fine of $500 on each.

Before sentence was passed, counsel for the defendants appealed for leniency and mercy. The defendants are James C. Donovan of Lowell, who was convicted of bribing Arthur W. Lang, a member of the Lowell common council, and his brother, Edward R. Donovan, and Lawyer Bernard D. O'Connell, who were declared guilty of being accessories before the fact.

Lawyer Burke spoke for Lawyer O'Connell, and in appealing for mercy asked that the sentence be not one that would put his client behind the bars. He referred to O'Connell's previous good character and of the fact that, since a young man, he has been the main support of his mother and family of children. He argued that the evidence against his client was very weak, although he was mindful of the fact that his honor had to act according to the verdict returned by the jury. He said that Lang had testified to his own dishonor, and that he had tempted his client.

Lawyer Elder spoke of the good character of the Donovans, and said that he believed a fine was sufficient punishment.

District Attorney Weir said that he believed the public demanded a substantial punishment in these cases.

Judge Bond said he didn't think that Lang intended to be bribed, although he should not have tempted the men to do an act of the kind.

More Alleged Counterfeiters.

New York, July 7.—The United States secret service agents here made four more arrests yesterday in connection with the counterfeiting of about $500,000 worth of Costa Rican bank notes. The prisoners are Louise Hausman, Mrs. Betsy Chevin, Frederick Mora and Herman Dohn. The arrests were made at the request of the Costa Rican officials in Washington. Hausman is the foreman of the Spanish-American Printing company, this city. Ricardo de Requesens is the president of the concern. The latter, with Mrs. Reineman, was arrested some time ago as the principal in the counterfeiting scheme, the object of which, it is said, was to help on a revolutionary movement in Costa Rica. Mrs. Chevin is the mother-in-law of De Requesens. She is a respectable and matronly looking person. Dohn, who is a lithographer, is believed to have printed the counterfeits. What Mora had to do with the case has not developed.

Street Car Wreck.

Pittsburg, July 7.—Four people were fatally injured and 18 others were more or less hurt in a street car wreck last night on the Forbes street line of the Consolidated Traction company. The seriously injured were removed to the hospitals and the others were taken to their homes. The wreck occurred on the Soho hill at the time when the immense crowd, which attended the fireworks dispay at Ashenley park was returning home. An Atwood street car had gone about half way down the hill when it jumped the track. Closely following it came an open car with a trailer, both packed with people. Before the second train could be stopped it crashed into the derailed car. Hardly had the first collision happened before a third car, heavily ladened, came down the hill at full speed and forced its way into the wreck ahead. It was the second crash that did the most damage.

Wiscasset and Quebec Proposition.

Waterville, Me., July 7.—A financial proposition concerning the Wiscasset and Quebec railroad has been made, it is announced, by the Franklin, Somerset and Kennebec railroad management to several monied men of this city. The proposition is that if a connecting link with the Wiscasset and Quebec railroad is built from Weeks Mills to this place, the Franklin road will also run into Waterville. The distance for connection will be 14 miles, at a cost of $75,000, and the connection would run to Windslow, North Vassalboro and China. The financiers of Windslow and Vasalboro will also be asked to consider the plan.

Warrant For Three Millions.

Washington, July 7.—Assistant Secretary Vanderlip yesterday issued a warrant in favor of the Monongahela Navigation company for $3,601,615, being the amount of a final judgment of condemnation of all the property and appurtenances of that company. The property was condemned for the purpose of improving the Monongahela river in accordance with the river and harbor act of June 3, 1896.

Heat Increased at Waterville.

Waterville, Me., July 7.—The hot wave that swept over this section Monday increased in intensity until yesterday the average thermometer reading was 99 degrees, the highest point for many years.

CHECKS WERE GOOD.

But the Police Were Suspicious and Detained Cambridge Man.

For a time this morning the police thought they had captured one of the gang that is going about the country passing worthless checks.

It was about 10.20 when a young man entered one of the banks to get a check cashed. He had several checks signed by different names made payable to bearer and drawn Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut and Cambridge banks for amounts from $1 to $15.

The police were promptly notified and the fellow taken from a Neponset car. At the police station, he told a good story and gave his name, and his residence as Cambridge.

The Cambridge police were notified and soon learned that the fello'ws story was true and that he was the steward of a well known Cambridge club. The police then released him and he left for home.

It seems that he went to Nantasket Tuesday for an outing. He had $30 in money besides the checks. He got drunk and lost his money and this morning had walked to Quincy and was trying to cash the check to get money enough to ride home.

Montclair Wants Trains.

There was a hearing before the Railroad Commissioners on Tuesday on petition of residents of Montclair, a portion of Quincy, on the Old Colony R. R., to have trains stop at that station.

C. C. Barton appeared for the townspeople, and said that the railroad had agreed to run trains stopping at Montclair if a station was furnished. This was done without expense to the road in the spring of 1892, and up to last summer trains stopped at the station on flag.

Then the station was dropped from the railroad's schedule, and the railroad refused longer to recognize it as a station.

E. G. Allen appeared for the railroad and said that the station only accommodated a very few people who could just as easily take train at Atlantic and Norfolk Downs stations. He considered the station unnecessary and stated that it had been forced upon the railroad.

Tenth Inning at Benfit Game.

The benefit game last Saturday between the T. R. & S. Co. team and Atlantics for catcher Mahoney, was a great success financially and otherwise, a very good purse was collected. After the game both teams repaired to Mr. Frank Merrell's where a very nice collation was served, after which a number of the gentlemen present rendered some very nice vocal selections. Mr. J. McKenna started the ball rolling with a solo, followed by Mr. Cannfield, Mr. Mahoney, Mr. Murphy and others; also a clog dance by Mr. Frank Merrill, and very fine imitation of a cornet solo by Mr. Tott Merrell. A vote of thanks with three cheers was given to Mr. Merrill for the fine manner he prepared the collation, also three cheers for catcher Mahoney.

Hancock and Adams.

Rev. Edward Everett Hall, D. D, in his Boston Fourth of July address spoke of John Hancock and John Adams. Of the latter he said:

John Adams himself has left to us the history of his time, in which he filled a place so large. Impetuous even to audacity, a magnificent hater he made enemies with the greatest ease. It has been once said of the Adams family that 'they never turn their backs on any but their friends.' (Laughter.) It has followed with John Adams, that he also has not had the honor that he deserved. He was not in the ranks of battle, but in debate and in diplomacy he showed that fight was in him, to the very sole of his foot, if he were sure that he was in the right.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

The Consolidated Loan Order is Put Through.

Tool House at Cemetery Not a Public Building.

Hearing Ordered on Sea Street and Russell Park.

The meeting of the City Council Tuesday evening was an exceptional one, in that there was no citizens outside of city officials present. It was a short meeting, however, and the only important matter was the financial policy of the city as to loans.

The absent members were Councilmen Cain, Geary, Nash, Poland and Sidelinger.

Petitions.

J. R. Gourd petitioned for a bowling alley license, and A. E. Yongquest for a common victualler's license. Referred.

Improvement Loan.

The Committee on Finance reported a slight amendment to the order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow $2400 for improvements.

The amendment was adopted, the order took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Field moved to amend by making the note payable one year from August 1.

Councilman Anderson opposed. Next year is loaded more now than it should be.

Councilman Field said this was the first time the future was ever loaded with current expenses, as he believed the whole order to be. As he understood it some of the debt falling due next year could be extended. Money could not be borrowed for current expenses on a loan. It was poor policy to borrow these small notes. He believed in pay as you go. The only thing that will keep us within our debt limit is to keep down these small loans.

Councilman Pinkham thought the order a legal one. There was not a single item in it for current expenses. It looked to him like permanent improvements. It was inconsistant to extend our debt and then make others to take its place. It would injure credit of city more than to put over this loan.

Councilman Field said he believe these loans were for what was to be used immediately.

The amendment of Councilman Field was lost.

The order was then passed to be ordained, Councilman Field alone voting nay on roll call.

Licenses.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting several minor licenses which were adopted.

Not a Public Building.

The Committee on Finance on the communication from the City Auditor on bills for repairs on tool house at Mount Wollaston cemetery, reported that they should be paid from the appropriations for Public Burial places, and recommended that the Auditor charge them to that. Adopted.

Russell Park and Sea Street.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing August 2 on the petition to accept Russell park as a public way, also for a public hearing the same evening on the petition to define the bounds or re-locate Sea street near the causeway. Adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Anderson, rule one was suspended, and it was voted when the Council adjourn, it be until August 2.

Adjourned at 8.04.

Tired people are tired because they have exhausted their strength. The only way for them to get strong is to eat proper food.

But eating is not all. Strength comes from food after digestion. Digestion is made easy with Shaker Digestive Cordial.

People who get too tired, die. Life is strength. Food is the maker of strength. Food is not food until it is digested. Tired, pale, thin, exhausted, sick sufferers from indigestion, can be cured by the use of Shaker Digestive Cordial.

It will revive their spent energies, refresh and invigorate them, create new courage, endurance and strength, all by helping their stomachs to digest their food.

It aids nature, and this is the best of it. It gives immediate relief and, with perseverance, permanently cures.

The fruit store of James McConnell was entered by burglars sometime Monday night and a dollar in money and about $5 of cigars taken. Entrance was made by breaking a window on the north side and turning the catch.

Harry Huntington of West Quincy had a narrow escape from a serious accident Monday morning while celebrating the Fourth. He was pounding a cartridge into a brass cannon when it exploded cutting his face quite badly and burning him about the eyes.

Among the large crowd who participated in the sports at Glen Echo lake, Stoughton, was the Ladies' Wide Awake club of South Boston, of which Miss Lena Berry of Atlantic is a member. They gave a barge party to their gentlemen friends, about a dozen in number and a thorough good time was enjoyed.

Officer Landers had a lively tustle with two young men on Billings street, Atlantic, Tuesday. They were about to steal his horse and had gone considerable distance with it headed toward Neponset and undoubtedly would have escaped but for the timely appearance of Mr. Landers, who took them to Quincy.

The events of the Quincy Yacht club almost overlap themselves this summer, making it an unusually active season for the club. Before the ladies' day takes place the announcement is made for the club cruise which will start Saturday, July 17, and spend nights at Winthrop, Marblehead, Manchester and Gloucester.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. J. N. Namer will occupy the "Orient" cottage for the month of July.

The Delmonte cottage is now run by the same management as the Loretto.

It is reported that Mr. Frank Willcott of Dorchester, formerly of Houghs Neck, was a short while ago drowned at sea. His death creates a surprise to his young chums at the Neck.

Mr. Geo. Rice, manager of the "Jack in Beanstalk Company, spent the Fourth at the Bell cottage.

Some boys while trying to pull a sign off a certain photographer's establishment came near meeting with an accident. It was charged with an electric attachment.

Mr. Horace Davis is a guest of Mrs. J. N. Maynard at the "Eight Bells."

In a cosey little cottage not a mile from the car house lives a happy pair.

His Honor, Mayor Adams, and Miss Adams, rode horse back through the streets of the Neck last night.

Mr. Petts of the Bald-eagle cottage, gave a very pretty showing of fireworks.

The people of the West Side enjoyed the fireworks at Marine park, Boston, as well as the people there. They could be seen plainly from their piazzas.

A very exciting race occurred yesterday afternoon between a small Shetland pony owned by Mr. Petts and Mr. Fred Maynard its keeper. The pony had heard of Independence day and sought liberty.

The hearing on the relocation of Sea street at the causeway ordered by the City Council for August 2 is a matter of interest to our people who enjoy the shore ride at this point. If the street is moved inland much of the beauty of the ride will be lost.

Stricken With Epilepsy.

Samuel Richards of Town hill was stricken with an epileptic fit in City Square last evening and was carried by Officers McKay and Barry to the police station. The officers were inclined to believe that the man was drunk, but Harry A. Matthews, who happened to be about, thought differently and told the officers the nature of Richard's ailment. Matthews is a member of Company K and at the annual muster at Framingham has served in the ambulance corps, and the knowledge gained there proved to be of inestimable help to the police officers last evening, as a wrong diagnosis might result in serious consequences in a case of this kind. Later the man was removed to the City hospital by advice of Dr. Hallowell, who had been summoned by the police. Mr. Matthews was complimented by the doctor for the knowledge and cleverness he displayed in caring for the stricken man.

JOHN AND THE PRINCE.

The Colored Servant Was Worried, but Rose to the Emergency.

Washington, cosmopolitan though it is, contains elements which refuse to become reconciled to the intricate superficialities of official etiquette. It is not for lack of effort that an American citizen (colored) named John fails sometimes to understand the obligation of the moment in the way of titles and salutations at the Korean legation, where he is employed. But John does his best. The presence of the newly arrived Korean prince has been a source of great apprehension, for he appreciates the importance which Asiatic people attach to ceremony.

"If he calls me, what mus' I say to him?" inquired John of a young man of this city who is attached to the legation.

"Don't say anything. Simply do as he tells you."

"Kin I understan 'im when he talks?"

"Yes. He speaks English very well."

"But spos'n de house ketches on fire or sumpin like dat, so's I's gotter talk ter 'im. What's his name?"

"You needn't mind about his name. Simply address him as 'your royal highness.'"

In the course of time the prince had occasion to employ John and sent for him. The colored man entered the room with a stately stride, and without looking to the right or the left walked up to where the prince was seated. Then he took a long, deep breath, and bowing very low inquired, "Whut do yoh royal harness wish?"—Washington Star.

The Very Man.

The boy was limping about the little house by the seashore when the stranger approached.

"Hullo, bub!" called the stranger cheerily.

The boy stopped long enough to look at the stranger inquiringly, and the latter continued pleasantly:

"Your father's a sailor, I suppose?"

"Yep," answered the boy.

"Well, I'm looking for a man about here—the captain of a whaler. Is your father the captain of a whaler?"

"He's the whole thing himself," returned the boy.

"The what?"

"The whaler. Oh, he's a corkin whaler."

The boy put one hand where it hurt the worst and continued his limping.—Chicago Post.

Too Offish.

Bacon—Have you seen Sprocket lately?

Egbert—No.

"He's a sight—face all cut, arm in a sling and walks lame."

"How did he do it—on his bicycle?"

"No; if he could have staid on the bicycle he'd have been all right."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Play.

"Where are you going in such a hurry?" asked one trout of his fellow, which was rapidly heading for the surface of the stream and the open air beyond.

"I'm out on a fly," gasped the trout.

And he was.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Not a Born Inventor.

"They do say that every American is a born inventor," said the patriotic gentleman.

"My husband," said the fat lady, "is an exception. He uses the same old excuses for being out late that I used to hear my father use."—Indianapolis Journal.

Retiring.

Wallace — Don't you think Hargreaves is a little stingy for a man who makes the pretensions he does?

Ferry—I would not like to say that about him, but I must concede that he is a little reticent with his money.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Homing Instinct.

"It is so aggravating to go house hunting every spring," said the lady in the city.

"We generally have to hunt ours up two or three times a summer," said the cousin from the cyclone belt.—Typographical Journal.

So Ingenious.

"Simplex answered an advertisement in which somebody offered to sell him the secret for preventing trousers from getting fringes around the bottom."

"What did they tell him?"

"To wear knickerbockers."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tragical.

A weary traveler thirsted
And made the echoes wake
As toward the fall of evening
He viewed the billowy lake.

For as he reached the edges
He hoarsely muttered: "Foiled!
Water, water everywhere
And not a gallon boiled."

BREAKING THE RECORD

Caylor Comments on Recent Baseball Surprises.

PITCHERS GET IN GREAT WORK.

New Phase Put on the Championship Race. Narrowing Down to Four Clubs—Australians Royally Entertained, but They Cannot Play Ball.

Record breaking has been a rather frequent occurrence in the National league recently. There were three such events within one week. First the New Yorks shut out the Clevelands on two successive days. Then they beat the Baltimores on the latter's grounds twice in one day. Finally the Bostons made their victorious run of successive victories 17. Each of these feats created considerable comment wherever baseball is talked about.

The failure of the Cleveland team to get a run against the Giants in 18 successive innings is something which I believe has not occurred to any other club in the National league for years. Rusie shut out the Chicagos in 1895 twice in one series, but a game intervened between the two runless games. To Meekin and young Seymour belongs the credit of the double whitewash of Tebeau's men. The latter pitcher, by the way, is attracting a great deal of attention and seems to be the coming left hander. Anson has so tabbed him, and when Anson grants supreme praise to any player not on his own staff his words are based upon a veteran's strong convictions. Seymour is not 20 years old, but is 6 feet tall and has muscles of iron knit. His former weakness was lack of control and what is called an inclination to go "up in the air." Good coaching has rid him of both faults to a large degree, and he is improving rapidly in both respects. His speed is something marvelous. On this point all batsmen who face him agree.

The double defeat of the Baltimores by the New Yorks at Baltimore on June 21 aroused enthusiasts in all parts of the country and at once put an extra phase to the championship race. Here is a team which is all but invincible on its own grounds, which had won 33 games and lost but 10 during the season, succumbing twice in one afternoon to a visiting rival in the presence of 6,000 supporters. It was something which had not happened to the Baltimores since the city has had a championship team.

To the great pitching of Rusie and Meekin was due much of the honor thus won by the New York team. The grand work of these two men in the latter part of 1894 has not been forgotten, but was brought forward and talked over by reason of the Baltimore double achievement. It served notice on the public that, barring accident, these two notable pitchers are going to duplicate their deeds of three seasons ago. Then they had practically no assistance, and they pulled their team up from ninth position on June 20 to second place when the race ended. This time the team is in fourth place, and they have the aid of Seymour, Sullivan and Clarke.

Such are the circumstances which put a new phase to the championship race within one week's time and set critics, as well as close students of "form," to asking the question, Why are not the New Yorks a dangerous factor to other aspirants for pennant honors? The playing of the Giants improved so materially with the improved work of the pitchers that the query was but natural. Whatever superiority the New Yorks may have lies in their pitching department, and, after all, that is the surest element of strength in the game. Any club whose pitchers can, day after day, hold opponents down to from two to five runs needs not much of a batting team to manufacture the other part of the victory. But the New Yorks this year are very strong as batsmen. If Rusie, Meekin and Seymour continue in their June form, and no serious accident happens to the rest of the nine, the New Yorks may be safely set down as one of the teams which will be contending for pennant honors when the home stretch is reached in September.

The Bostons' feat of winning 17 successive games I believe is the National league record in that respect. It certainly is the record for the last seven years. The Philadelphias under Harry Wright's management boasted of "16 straight," but that honor was taken from them by the Bostons at Brooklyn on June 21, when by the Baltimore's double defeat on the same day Selee's men took first place for a day, only to lose it 24 hours later.

The situation when the two leaders met in Boston for their first series, June 24, 25 and 26, has seldom been duplicated in a baseball championship. With the two leaders as nearly a tie as was possible, those three games took on an interest which is almost unprecedented. There was scarcely a hamlet or village in the Union where some interested persons did not anxiously await news from each of those games. It was a time when ball players' nerves were put to the full test, when courage and faith were half the battle. And the end is not yet. True, this series gave one club a slight advantage, but when the long season ahead is considered it becomes plain that only the skirmishing has been done. The real fighting is to come. It may result like some horse races, where the two favorites kill themselves off by running a destroying neck and neck race in front and then let a second or third choice come up and win at the end. It begins to look like a narrowing down to four clubs, with but small chances for the Cincinnatis on account of their long series of games on the road at the close.

The visiting Australian ball players are not making a professional impression on this continent, but they certainly have no reason to complain of American hospitality. Although they have made a woeful failure in their exhibition of playing, they have been most royally entertained everywhere, especially in Chicago and the east. The chief feature of their visit will be the game which they played in Boston June 21 against a picked nine of old time American stars, among whom were A. G. Spalding, T. H. Murnane, John Morrell and James O'Rourke. They had skill enough to easily excel the rusty efforts of the long ago retired diamond heroes.

As the season advances the dismal failure of the Chicago, Cleveland and Philadlephia teams causes wonder all along the line. Even Uncle Anson is dazed. The most courageous thing he says these days is, "Some of those fellows in the first division must make room for me." What a fall is that for Anson! O. P. CAYLOR.

LEO IS A WRESTLER.

A Great Dane Unites Exceptional Strength and Dexterity.

Leo is a black Great Dane. No other dog undertakes to wrestle with him, but an occasional man is found equal to the ordeal. Leo is owned by Colonel Schult of New York, who declares that the enormous brute is as mild as a lamb. It is no joke to struggle with a huge animal that keeps up an angry yelping, with his mouth stretched wide open within a couple of inches of one's throat and his long fangs within reach of a vital spot. In a recent contest a gigantic man, who had opposed himself to Leo, braced his body for the shock, but he was nearly reversed, and the dog, with his paws uplifted, was pushing and squirming with all his might. It seemed for a moment as though the wrestler would not regain his equilibrium, but he managed to twist himself straight and get a firm grip around the body of the Great Dane.

They whirled from side to side, up and down the stage. The man kept lifting the dog and trying to dash him off his hind legs, but the animal struggled bravely, and although the boards creaked under his weight as he was pitched about he did not fall. Both were panting, and there was an ugly look in Leo's eyes and his yelps grew fainter. The man made a supreme effort, tripped the Great Dane and fell upon his quivering body with bone crushing force.

Leo had lost the first round. He retired to his side panting, while the man wiped the perspiration from his face and hands and chalked the soles of his shoes. There was a brief rest, and Colonel Schult again counted three. The wrestler advanced, shook Leo's paw and retreated to await a second attack. Leo hurled himself forward and forced the battle to an even issue. The man's body bent and his eyes bulged in his effort to right himself. The dog, realizing his advantage, threw all his weight on his antagonist. They spun about for a few instants, and the man sank, with Leo squarely on top of him.

Cycling Through Russia.

The North China Herald gives an interesting account of a cycling tour through the steppes of Russia. The writer says: "After leaving Jekaterinddar we cycled and walked, fought and choked and shivered our way for five days over a country as level as a billiard table and about as variable in scenery as a desert itself. The first afternoon we were overwhelmed by a dust storm, one of those howling, soughing monsters of the dreaded steppe. Every man, it is said, must eat a peck of dirt before he dies. We each ate our peck all at once that afternoon." They found themselves under the protection of skin enwrapped Cossacks, "who spoke in guttural whispers and crawled about the place like melodramatic stage villains." But they were not such dreadful beings, after all, and gave secure protection to the cyclists.

An Attractive Bicycle Costume.

One of the very latest and prettiest of bicycle costumes is that worn with the short open jacket. The novel and smart skirt of this costume will be found equally comfortable and becoming on and off the wheel. The jacket tabs are trimmed with buttons at the sides and cut in one with the skirt, which is unlined, but for a wide band of stiff interlining or linenette, on which the false hem of brown sateen is mounted. A stripe of brown velvet is put on, instead of a braid binding, at the extreme edge.

GENERAL SPORTING.

The only subject upon which the college rowing crews agree is that they would prefer some other course than Poughkeepsie.

A joint meeting of the directors of the Midcontinental Poultry association and the directors of the Western Pigeon Fanciers' association has resulted in an agreement being reached by which the meeting of the pigeon fanciers of the entire west will be consolidated with that of the poultry show at Kansas City next December.

The stroke question was not wholly settled at Poughkeepsie. Cornell and the general public naturally conclude that Cornell's success establishes the superiority of the American style of rowing, but Harvard is still loyal to Coach Lehman and his English methods. Yale's conclusions, like her stroke, are a compromise between the two extremes.

Before the recent race at Poughkeepsie it is said that Yale and Harvard had agreed to retire to a dual combination for future aquatic contests. Cornell had claimed the right to be admitted. Her past victories had left no doubt of the perfect fairness of this claim so far as capability was concerned. The recent race has made Cornell's claims more logical than ever.

George Standing, the champion racket player of New York, has gone to England to meet Peter Latham, the champion of Great Britain, at the Queen's club, West Kensington, London, on Oct. 16. Latham is professor of rackets at the Queen's club, and is the present champion of the world. The coming match will decide who is master of the game and winner of $10,000, the value of the purse to be played for.

DANGER IN THE DELAY.

Salisbury Speaks of Turko-Greek Peace Negotiations and Sultan's Proclamation.

London, July 7.—In the house of lords the Marquis of Salisbury, replying to Lord Connemara, said the delay in the settlement of the peace terms between Turkey and Greece was entirely the fault of the former. There was no delay so far as the powers were concerned, but Turkey had carried deliberation and circumspection to such an excess that the delay was not without danger. Though the danger was not immediate they were at present no nearer to a solution of the question than before.

Having referred to the situation in 1878, pointing out that then a Russian army was at the gates of Constantinople, the Marquis of Salisbury remarked that, as proportioned to the circumstances, the year 1897 became analogous with the year 1878, so his hopes of a satisfactory result increase.

The Marquis of Salisbury further remarked:

"If Prince Bismarck were presiding at the conference, as he did in 1878, the result would be different. A powerful Russian army was then within a stone's throw of Constantinople, and any suggestion from Prince Bismarck that a failure of the conference would result in the movement of that army undoubtedly produced that effect on Turkish deliberations, which is the desideratum now."

ELKS' GRAND LODGE.

Annual Session Now Being Held at Minneapolis---Reports of Officers.

Minneapolis, July 7.—The grand lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks met here yesterday in the Metropolitan theatre. After a few words of introduction by Grand Esteemed Leading Knight Charles M. Foote of this city, Hon. Frank M. Nye, also of Minneapolis, made an address of welcome in behalf of Governor Clough, who is absent at the Gettysburg dedication.

The grand lodge them met in secret session and listened to the reports of its officers. Grand Exalted Ruler Detweiler's report was a long document which recommended among other things a new constitution and a new ritual.

Grand Secretary George A. Reynolds of Saginaw, Mich., made a report showing the order to be in a prosperous state. The membership is now 35,000, an increase of 7000 during the year. Thirty-three new lodges have been added to the roll and there is $10,000 surplus in the treasury to contrast with the $10,000 deficit that faced Mr. Reynolds when he became secretary, three years ago.

At Philadelphia—

Philadelphia was never a factor in yesterday's game with Boston. Stivetts kept the local players down to seven hits and, barring a wild throw by Long, his support was faultless. Fifield also piched a good game, but his support was ragged at times.

Suggestion From Secretary Gage.

Washington, July 7.—It is learned that Secretary Gage has written a letter to Senator Allison suggesting the advisability of putting a tax of 1 cent a pound on all refined sugar made from stock imported prior to the passage of the pending tariff bill. It is the opinion of the customs officials of the treasury that this duty would increase the government revenues by several millions, and that the hardship would fall on those best able to bear it.

AGREEMENT REACHED.

Final Vote on Tariff Bill Will Be Taken In Senate Today.

Closing Speeches Are Limited to Five Minutes.

Amendments Are All In---Allison Says White Pine Duty Will Not Be Changed.

Washington, July 7.—The end of the tariff debate is at last in sight, which will give a long suffering country much relief. A few minutes before adjournment last evening Mr. Allison asked unanimous consent that a vote on the bill be taken before adjournment today. Before publicly making this request Mr. Allison had privately consulted with the leaders on his own side of the chamber and those on the Democratic side. He had found no objection. The Republicans were only too anxious to have the bill disposed of, and the Democrats have all along said they would permit the bill to be brought to a vote whenever the Republicans said they were willing.

Having found the track clear, Mr. Allison officially announced the proposition. There was a nervous silence following his request, and senators glanced around the chamber apprehensively, afraid at the last moment that some man who had not been consulted would prove fractious and object.

Before the vice president could put the request, Mr. Pettigrew got up. There was a feeling of alarm. Pettigrew was evidently going to object, every one thought, and a single objection would prevent an agreement being reached. But Mr. Pettigrew was not in a fighting mood. He simply wanted to know if the duty of $1 a thousand feet on white pine lumber would be permitted to stand or whether an attempt would be made to restore the duty to $2, the rate originally agreed upon by the finance committee.

Mr. Allison told him that the committee would make no attempt to change the rate agreed upon by the senate. Mr. Pettigrew expressed himself as satisfied, and then without more ado the agreement to vote today was made binding on both sides.

A vote may be reached as early as 4 o'clock this afternoon, but it probably will be taken an hour or two later. Under the terms of the agreement commencing at 1 o'clock only five-minute speeches are to be permitted, and then when these are exhausted the voting commences, the agreement being that a vote must be taken before adjournment, which is an indefinite hour. But both sides being anxious to reach a vote there will be no attempt made to stave it off.

Immediately after the senate has voted upon the bill it will go over to the house, that is to say, it will reach the house tomorrow. The house expected that it might have to deal with the bill today, and for that reason it adjourned on Monday until Wednesday instead of customary Thursday. Today it will recess so that the when the bill is returned to the senate "with sundry amendments," no time will be lost in referring it to the ways and means committee.

The Wool Market.

Boston, July 7.—The wool market here has shown considerable strength during the last week in all departments, although the greater demand has been for foreign wools. The sales of territory wools have been brisk, but dealers are not anxious to sell at the prices asked by buyers. In fleece wools there is little doing, and little to do with. The cost of new wools is considerable above the present market here, and prices are largely nominal in the absence of business. Sales of Ohio No. 1 washed fleeces have been made this week at 23 and 24 cents for clothing and combing, while a small lot of X and above Ohio sold at 20 cents. The demand for Australian wool continues good at full prices.

Balloonist and Assistant Crushed.

Eureka, Cal., July 7.—George Weston, the aeronaut, and his assistant, H. S. Colton of Aberdeen Wash., were fearfully cruched while the former was attempting an assension and parachute jump. When the balloon was inflated and the restraining ropes cast off it shot up 60 feet with Colton tangled in the ropes. He was dropped to the earth and sustained fractures and bruises from which he will die. Weston clung to the parachute and a strong wind carried him with terrific force through the tops of some trees, and he too dropped to the earth, crushed and mangled in a horrible manner.

Bonfire Touched Off Ahead of Time.

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., July 7.—Late Sunday night a large pile of tar barrels and wood which had been accumulated for a bonfire on the night of the 5th was touched off by some unknown parties and burnt up, much to the disgust of the citizens of the town. Yesterday, Randolph Tucker, son of William A. Tucker, and Reginald Boardman, son of T. Dennie Boardman, were arrested on a charge of malicious mischief, and accused of taking part in the affair. They were bailed out in the sum of $300 each, and will appear in the police court at Gloucester today.

Marion Mills, 2:05 3-4.

Medford, Mass., July 7.—At Combination park yesterday afternoon Marion Mills, the wonderful guideless pacer, lowered her record of 2:07¼, made last year, to 2:05¾. The little mare bowled around the track without driver or sulky, and few who saw her realized she was making such good time. The track record at Combination, which is a half-mile track, is 2:04½, and it is thought that the mare may break even this record before the week is over.

Actor Ratcliffe's Case.

Chicago, July 7.—Justice Martin yesterday struck from the docket the charge of being a fugitive from justice pending against Edward J. Ratcliffe of New York, the actor, arrested for wife-beating. Since the case was last called in the police court Judge Goggin of the superior court admitted Ratcliffe to bail and fixing a hearing for habeas corpus proceedings for Thursday. This Judge Martin decided yesterday, took the matter out of his jurisdiction.

KING COAL MINERS.

Conflicting Reports as to Number of Men Out In Pittsburg District.

Pittsburg, July 7.—The strike order of the national executive committee of the United Mine Workers of America was obeyed by from 10,000 to 15,000 of the 21,000 miners in the Pittsburg district yesterday. The great struggle is now on in earnest, and the developments of the next few days will determine the success or failure of the fight for a uniform mining rate. Pittsburg is the pivotal point in the five states engaged in the contest, and the success of the local officials in their efforts to secure a general suspension in this district will have an important bearing on the outcome of the movement.

While it is estimated that at least two-thirds of the miners have thrown down their picks enough men are still at work to seriously impair the strikers' chances unless they can ultimately be brought out. This President Dolan confidently claims can be done. The operators on the other hand are in nowise disconcerted, and assert that the strike cannot succeed. The first break in the operators ranks was made yesterday afternoon by J. W. Steen of the O. I. C. mines at Rossville. The diggers refused to work, and the mine was closed, but a notice was posted that the 69-cent rate would be paid.

It is not likely that the officials will allow the men to work until a majority of the operators have agreed to the miners' demands.

End of Gold Exports In Sight.

New York, July 7.—The Tribune says: All of the gold that has been exported in the last two months has gone by the steamships of the German and French lines for the reason that Vienna and Paris were the points of destination. No gold went by the French boat which sailed Saturday, and none will go by the German boat which sails this week. While it cannot be stated positively, it looks like the efflux of gold had come to an end. When it started in the first week in May the estimate was made that the total of the gold would be about $25,000,000. The shipments have just been within that figure. Owing to the heavy exports of merchandise and to the fact that cotton and grain futures will from this time forward be offered in large numbers, there can be no rise in exchange for several months, on the contrary it would seem as if the exchange rates must, in less than 60 days, sink to a level which will start a flow of gold to the United States from the other side. The tremendous shrinkage in Kaffirs will do more than anything else to turn the attention of English investors and speculators to American securities. Their purchases will, of course, create additional exchange. Altogether the outlook in the exchange market may be pronounced very favorable.

Baron Von Thielmann to Return.

Springfield, Mass., July 7.—Baron Ernest Von Thielmann, the imperial German ambassador, who is stopping at his summer home in Lenox, has confirmed the report that he has been recalled to Germany to become the minister of the treasury in the new government, now forming. He stated that the first intimation he had received of his recall was the recall itself, which was sent by cable and received 10 days ago. He had planned to spend the season at Lenox, but has arranged to leave for Germany on July 20. Saturday he received the cablegram advising him of his appointment as minister of the treasury. Baron Von Reichemau, chancellor of the German legation, will be charge d'affairs until the new ambassador arrives. Baron Von Thielmann will give a farewell dinner to the Lenox cottagers next Tuesday evening.

Made His Child Take Poison.

Los Angeles, July 7.—W. P. Person, formerly employed in the freight department of the Santa Fe railroad in this city, but lately out of work, attempted to murder his 5-year-old daughter yesterday and then committed suicide. Before the deed he told the child of his plan, and persuaded her that she would see her mother, who is dead, if she took poison with him. He made her drink carbolic acid and drank prussic acid himself. The girl was taken to a hospital and although her tongue and throat were burned her life was saved. She told her father she did not want to die, but took the acid because she thought she must obey him.

Trouble Brewing at Calcutta.

Calcutta, July 7.—All sections of the community are in a state of anxious expectancy as to the developments of the early future. It is rumored that all the mill hands up the Hoogly have struck work, and that they are preparing to march, 8000 strong, to re-enforce the rioters here. The government has ordered the military to intercept them. The Mohammedans at Garden Beach, a south suburb of Calcutta, and a fashionable place for Europeans, are showing signs of dangerous restlessness, and the government has stationed strong guards at all the bridges leading to that quarter.

An Expert Navigator.

Plymouth, July 7.—The steamship Lahn, which arrived here last night from New York, reports having experienced cloudy weather the first six days out, during which time no observations could be taken, and the ship was run on dead reckoning. An opportunity was afforded on Monday to make an observation, which was found to be identical with Captain Pohl's dead reckoning. The passengers were much pleased with the accuracy displayed by the captain and unanimously passed a vote of thanks, in which they praised his splendid seamanship.

Clothing Caught Fire From Stove.

Springfield, Mass., July 7.—Mrs. Thomas Harrington of Holyoke died from the effects of burns last evening. Her clothing caught fire at a stove and she ran to the second floor of the house, where she fell in a swoon. An 18-year-old daughter attempted to put out the flames and was badly burned about the face. The house took fire and a daughter who was sick on the second floor was removed by Dr. J. H. Coghlan, who carried her down a ladder.

Volcano In Eruption.

Tacoma, July 7.—Alaska papers of June 26 state that the volcano on Douglass island, opposite Juneau, is in a state of eruption. The entire town of Juneau was watching with interest, the immense clouds emitted from the crater. This volcano is one of the highest peaks on Douglass island.

PASSED BY TEN VOTES

Senate Debate on Tariff Bill Lasted Six Weeks and One Day.

Several Important Changes In House Measure.

Conferees Appointed---Over Eight Hundred Amendments to Be Considered.

Washington, July 8.—By a vote of 38 to 28, the senate at five minuets to 5 yesterday afternoon passed the tariff bill. It was a very humdrum proceeding, and there were none of the usual exciting or interesting scenes which generally attend the culmination of important party legislation. It was such a foregone conclusion that the bill would be passed by a substantial majority that the final scene was robbed of any interest which might have attached to it had the issue been in doubt, or had the minority resisted the passage of the bill with all the force and energy which frequently characterizes legislation in the upper house of congress.

But from the very outset of the debate it had been conceded that the Republicans had a majority sufficiently large to pass any bill which might be acceptable to their own party, and the Democrats had announced that they would not necessarily delay the bill or strive to prevent its passage. They were willing that the measure of the majority should become a law, and that they should be eld responsible for its good or evil results.

The main interest centered in the final vote, and aside from this there was little of a dramatic character in the debate. The early part of the day was spent on amendments of comparatively minor importance, the debate branching into financial and anti-trust channels. By 4 o'clock the senators began manifesting their impatience by calls for "vote, vote," and soon thereafter the last amendment was disposed of and the final vote began. There were many interruptions as pairs were arranged, and then at 4:55 o'clock the vice president arose and announced the passage of the bill, yeas 38, nays 28. There was no demonstration, but a few scattered hand claps were given as the crowds dispersed.

The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Allison, Baker, Burrows, Carter, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Gallinger, Hale, Hanna, Hawley, Jones (Nev.), Lodge, McBride, McEnery, McMillan, Mantle, Mason, Morrill, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Platt (N. Y.), Pritchard, Proctor, Quay, Sewall, Shoup, Spooner, Warren, Wellington, Wetmore and Wilson—38.

Nays—Bacon, Bate, Berry, Caffery, Cannon, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Faulkner, Gray, Harris (Kan.), Jones (Ark.), Kenny, Lindsay, Mallory, Martin, Mills, Mitchell, Morgan, Pasco, Pettus, Rawlins, Roach, Turner, Turpie, Vest, Walthall and White—28.

An analysis of the final vote shows that the affirmative vote was cast by 35 Republicans, two Silver Republicans, Jones of Nevada and Mantle, and one Democrat, McEnery. Total, 38.

The negative vote was cast by 25 Democrats, two Populists, Harris of Kansas and Turner, and one Silver Republican, Cannon. Total, 28.

Eight Republicans were paired for the bill and eight Democrats against it. The senators present and not voting were: Populists, five, viz.: Allen, Butler, Heitfeld, Kyle and Stewart; Silver Republicans two, viz.: Teller and Pettigrew.

Following the passing of the bill a resolution was agreed to asking the house for a conference, and Senators Allison, Aldrich, Platt of Connecticut, Burrows, Jones of Nevada, Vest, Jones of Arkansas and White were named as conferees on the part of the senate.

The tariff debate began on May 25, on which day Mr. Aldrich, on behalf of the finance committee, made the opening statement on the bill. The actual consideration of the bill began the next day, May 26, when schedule A, relating to chemicals, was taken up. The debate has been continuous since then, covering six weeks and one day. It has been notable in some respects, although it has lacked many of the dramatic and oratorical features marking past debates.

From the outset the advocates of the bill refrained from set speeches, and the discussion was narrowed to a consideration of rates and schedules, rather than general principles. Mr. Aldrich's sickness took him from the chamber after the first day, and since then the bill has been in immediate charge of Mr. Allison.

The opposition has been directed in the main by Mr. Jones of Arkansas and Mr. Vest of Missouri, while Senators White, Caffery, Gray and Allen have frequently figured in the debate.

The bill as it goes back to the house re-enacts the anti-trust sections of the Wilson act, while the reciprocity and retaliatory provisions are substitutes for those of the house. One of the most important new provisions added by the senate is that placing a stamp tax on bonds, debentures and certificates of stock.

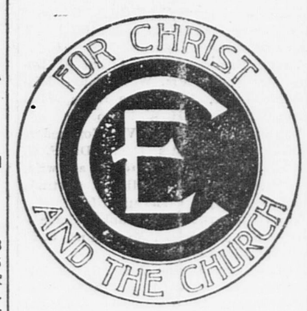

Aside from these more important changes the bill as it goes back to the house has 874 amendments of various degrees of importance, which must be reconciled between the two branches of congress.

SAN FRANCISCO'S GUESTS.

Thirteen Thousand Christian Endeavor Delegates Have Arrived at Golden Gate.

San Francisco, July 8.—San Francisco is filled with Christian Endeavorers. About 13,000 delegates have registered at the convention bureaus, 5000 of whom are Pacific coast people.

Mechanics' pavilion, where the various offices are located, presented a busy scene yesterday. The delegates as they arrived were taken there and in charge of the members of the reception committee conducted to the hotels and lodging houses assigned. Booths are being built in the pavilion by the different missionary societies, and several of the states are fitting up specially.

In addition to the regular religious services of the convention arrangements are being made for gospel meetings in various halls throughout the city. Assignments of clergymen have been made from among the most prominent speakers of the East, as well as from the pulpits of this city. Services will also be conducted in many of the public squares and on the grounds of the several large labor employing establishments. The hospitals, jails and almshouses will also be visited by bodies of Endeavorers in charge of Rev. William Raeder. The Salvation Army will hold a series of revival meetings. Two gospel wagons have been hired, from which addresses will be delivered in various parts of the city.

The most noted arrival of the day was "Father" Clark, founder and president of the society. He came on the Massachusetts special and was greeted with a genuine ovation. He expressed surprise and pleasure with the completeness of the arrangements for the convention.

Mrs. Sydney Culeck of Japan is here as the representative of the Christian Endeavor society formed among the children of the missionaries of the American board in Japan.

There were 11 simultaneous meetings last night in this city and Oakland, constituting the first series of services connected with the convention.

New Suicide Route.

New York, July 8.—An attempt at suicide was made yesterday by John Scott Oliver, the Californian deputy sheriff, who came from Los Angeles and is held to answer by the Coney island police to the charge of abducting 15-year-old Stella Robb of Brooklyn. While Oliver was in the prison van, on his way to the jail, he thrust a horseshoe scarfpin, which he wore in his tie, into his left side, and a stream of blood trickled down his clothing. Oliver was restored to consciousness and taken to the hospital at Raymond street jail, where he informed the doctor that he did not wish to live with such a serious charge hanging over him, and said that, in addition to the attempt to puncture his heart with the scarfpin he had swallowed a silver pencil and watch key. The physician says he will recover.

Hot Wave Easing Up.

Boston, July 8.—There was a general easing up of the warm wave yesterday, particularly in the eastern half of the country, though the aggregate of heat dispensed was more than made up in the Southwest, where some scorching readings were noted, quite eclipsing any previous record of this wave for extended and sustained warmth. There was not so much suffering from the heat in the city and suburbs as there was on the previous days. In many cases work was suspended during a portion of the day on account of the heat, and this was particularly the case where the work was of an exhausting character and in exposed places.

Jury Acquitted the Cashier.

Baltimore, July 8.—The jury in the United States court yesterday acquitted Assistant Cashier Edward Hoffman on three indictments charging him with making false entries and with misappropriating the funds of the People's National bank of Hagerstown. On the fourth indictment, charging him with a false entry of $12,000 check, the jury disagreed.

MAINE GRAND LODGE, K. P.

Portland Crowded With Visitors In Attendance at Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

Portland, Me., July 8.—Festivities incident to the opening of the Pythian grand lodge of Maine occurred last night when a reception was tendered to the supreme officers and other prominent visitors. Companies of the uniformed rank from all sections of the state as far east as Oldtown are here, and the hotels are well filled. Governor Powers and his staff, including Adjutant General Richards, Colonel Kendall of the First regiment of the national guard, Colonel Philbrook of the Second, Lieutenant Royden of the regular army, and others came on the evening trains.

Supreme Chancelor Philip T. Colgrove of Hastings, Mich.; Past Supreme Chancellor Walter B. Richie of Lima, O.; Supreme Vice Chancellor Thomas G. Sample of Alleghany, Pa., and Major General James R. Carnahan of Indianapolis arrived on the New York boat.

The reception at Pythian hall began at 9 o'clock and it proved to be a most enjoyable occasion.

Died From Acute Diabetes.

Haverhill, Mass., July 8.—George Edward Cross of Lakewood, N. J., was found yesterday morning in an unconscious condition on the side of the road at Riverside, a suburb of this city. He was taken to the house of a friend, with whom he had been staying while here, and yesterday afternoon he died, without regaining consciousness. Mr. Cross left his friend's house Tuesday evening for "The Pines," a resort on the river. The medical examiner viewed the body and decided that death was due to acute diabetes. Walter H. Sturgis, who lives not far from where Mr. Cross was found, reported to the police that two attempts were made Tuesday night to enter his house. The second time the supposed burglar made his attempt, Mr. Sturgis heard him trying to batter in the cellar door. Mr. Sturgis warned the man away and then fired two shots at him. The police believe now that Mr. Cross was the supposed burglar.

Epworth League Convention.

Portland, Me., July 8.—The fifth annual state convention of the Epworth league opened yesterday afternoon in Chestnut church. After a praise service, addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Randall and Rev. Dr. Parsons, pastor of the church. The response was given by F. M. Strout, president of the state league. After gratifying reports by the various state officers, the convention sermon was delivered by Rev. J. M. Frost of Bangor. The evening session opened with a praise service, followed by an address from Rev. E. O. Thayer, presiding elder of the Portland district, whose subject was "The Missionary Work of the Chapter." Rev. J. D. Pickles of Boston then spoke on "The Palace and its Purposes," the address being the concluding feature of the day's exercises.

Ashley Took a Header.

New Bedford, Mass., July 8.—Mayor Charles S. Ashley took a header from his bicycle Tuesday afternoon and was seriously hurt. His shoulder was dislocated and from the fact that he had a hemorrhage from the stomach it was feared the he might have suffered internal injuries of a critical nature. He has been unconscious and delirious as the result of a concussion of the brain, and only the immediate family have been allowed to see him. Mayor Ashley is well known throughout the state, being a members of the Democratic state committee and of numerous fraternal orders. He resigned the postmastership of New Bedford to become mayor at the beginning of the year.

Dedicated to Public Use.

Salem, Mass., July 8.—A deed was filed in the Essex county registry yesterday by which Sidney G. Haskell of Gloucester transfers to William Minot, Charles Minot, Robert S. Minot and Lawrence Minot, eight large tracts of land in West Gloucester for the use of the trustees of the public reservations, who shall maintain such premises as a wild park, "the same being herein dedicated as such for the use of the public forever," in memory of Henry Davis Minot, late of Boston, a deceased brother of the grantees named. The lots comprise several hundred acres.

Fire at Milliville.

Milleville, Mass., July 8.—Fire broke out this morning in the Clarendon hotel, a four-story structure near the N. Y. N. H. and H. R. R. station, and so quickly did the fire spread that the whole structure was soon enveloped in flames. The fire communicated to several dwelling houses in the neighborhood and was beyond control of the local firemen. Help was summoned from Woonsocket. Daniel Kehoe, a fireman, fell from the fourth story of the hotel and was badly injured.

Ida Lathrop Couldn't Appear.

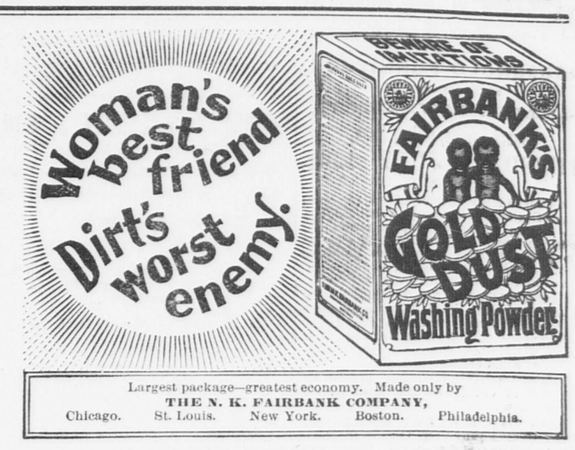

Lisbon, N. H., July 8.—The hearng in the Ida Lathrop case, which was to have been held yesterday, has been postponed to a date not yet determined. Miss Lathrop's condition of mind is such that it would be impossible for her to appear in court, and without her testimony a hearing cannot be held. It is likely, therefore, that the hearing will not be held for two weeks or a month. No new developments in the case have come to light.

Sheriff and Receiver Clash.

Middletown, Conn., July 8.—F. S. Smith, the newly appointed receiver of the Worcester Cycle company, yesterday afternoon made a demand on Sheriff Brown that the business of the company be turned over to him, and the keepers now in charge of the business removed. Sheriff Brown refused the demand, and Judge Townsend of New Haven, who appointed Smith as receiver, will be asked for instructions.

B. and M. Secured Control.

Portland, Me., July 8.—At a meeting of the charter members of the Atlantic Shore Line Electric Railway company yesterday at Kennebunk, the outcome was that the Boston and Maine secured control, and it is very naturally concluded that the proposed road will not be built. The electric line would have paralleled the Boston and Maine for 36 miles along the coast from Rye Beach to Cape Elizabeth.

The New Master.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. William A. Reed as principal of the Lincoln school has been promptly filled by the School Committee, and the new man comes with high endorsements. For the past year Chester Howard Wilbar has had charge of the Laurel Street and Rollstone Street schools at Fitchburg, the two schools having ten rooms and 400 pupils. Mr. Wilbar, however, is a Brockton boy, being born in that city in 1869. He attended the public schools in that city, graduating from the High school, and in 1890 was graduated from the Bridgewater Normal school. He has had seven years experience in teaching, the first three years in the Hyannis grammar school, then three years at the Bates grammar school at South Weymouth, and the past year at Fitchburg as already noted. He is at present president of the Fitchburg Teachers' Association. Mr. Wilbar is a Mason and Odd Fellow, and is also an active worker in educational lines of the Y. M. C. A. The Lincoln school and the city is fortunate in securing Mr. Wilbar.

Evening News.

This is the heading to a new and bright daily started this week at South Framingham, by C. J. McPherson; a gentleman who has had large experience in publishing newspapers, which is a good guarantee that the citizens of Framingham and vicinity will have an excellent daily. One that will be a credit to the town and its publisher.

The new sheet comes to us full of wide-awake advertising which is one of the essential things needed in any community to give a daily paper a success.

Mr. McPherson has a complete new plant for his daily, which gives the sheet a very attractive appearance. We wish our brother great success with his new infant.

Birthday Party.

The spacious grounds about the residence of Mr. Frank C. Packard on Chestnut street were brilliantly illuminated Wednesday evening with numerous Chinese lanterns tastefully arranged in honor of the birthday anniversary of his daughter, Miss Alice G. Packard. A large number of Miss Packard's friends were present to help celebrate the event and the evening proved to be one of enjoyment to all present. Hanson's orchestra furnished music during the entire evening and there were games and dancing upon the broad piazzas and lawn. Before the party adjourned an elegant lunch was served by Caterer Nash.

Young Men's Christian Association.

Summer Sloyd school opens today. A splendid opportunity for the "stay at home boys" to make the vacation profitable.

Members of the Association are invited to participate in the moonlight excursion down the harbor Friday evening, July 16, on the steamer "Victor." The excursion is under the auspices of the Brockton Association. Tickets can be secured at the rooms.

☞ Fly proof adjustable window screens and screen doors. They are worth ten times what they cost if you buy them here. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

☞ The Unitarian Sunday School will hold a basket picnic at Merrymount park on the afternoon of Friday, July 9th. Meet at the pavilion at 2 o'clock. All the scholars are invited to come and bring their parents. J. O. HALL, JR.

☞ Vapor stoves for Summer use, cost a penny an hour to run. They save your time, money and patience. All prices, we're glad to have you call and look them over. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), don't get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

FAIR ONES AT HELM.

Ladies' Day of Quincy Yacht Club a Social Event.

A Perfect Day and a Delightful Sail.

Refreshments by Cook Followed by a Hop in Evening.

There were just enough clouds yesterday to prevent the sun from making its heat oppressive and wind enough for an enjoyable sail, so that it was perfect weather for Ladies' Day of the Quincy Yacht club. The arrangements also were perfect, and while some remarked that there was not such a crowd as last year, it was probably because the large number present were so well handled by Commodore Sanborn, Fleet Captain Saville, Secretary Whiting and the other efficient officers of the Quincy Yacht club. To accommodate all who desired to sail, there was in addition to the large fleet of yachts, the steamer Sky Lark with a capacity of 100, used by Commodore Sanborn as the flagship, and the large sloop Acteon, in command of Fleet Captain Saville. So that a large number enjoyed a delightful sail in the beautiful bay.

COMMODORE JOHN W. SANBORN.

Commodore Sanborn's flagship was anchored a short distance off the club house and the yachts passed in review between, each upon passing saluting the Commodore and receiving a gun. It was a pretty sight from the flagship and the verandas of the clubhouse, and the camera fiend obtained many good snap shots.

The course was No. 2, leaving flagship on starboard, thence leaving Pig Rock beacon on starboard, Black Can buoy No. 1 in Hingham bay on starboard, Jackknife ledge buoy on starboard, Red Spar buoy No. 2 off Sheep island on port to clubhouse.

When all the yachts had passed in review the flagship weighed anchor and steamed after the fleet, and Commodore Sanborn gave his guests a grand outing which all fully enjoyed. There were salutes and cheers between passing boats, and the query "What's the matter with Commodore Sanborn?" was invariably answered: "He's all right!"

Among those who enjoyed the scene from the clubhouse were the first two commodores of the club, James H. Slade, who served from 1874 to 1877, inclusive, and City Clerk H. A. Keith, who held the position in 1878 and 1879, Ex-Commodores Morton, Shaw, Faxon and Pettengill enjoyed the sail.

Shortly after five o'clock the yachts landed their fair passengers at the Yacht Club pier, and soon all were enjoying the hospitality of the club around the refreshment tables. There was a bountiful supply of sandwiches, ice cream, sherbet, cakes, etc. served by T. D. Cook & Co.

An hour was then enjoyed on the verandas of the clubhouse, or in strolling about Houghs Neck or over Great hill.

Dancing began early, and the capacity of the hall of the clubhouse was fully tested by those who trip the light fantastic. It was a grand night for dancing, the cool breezes from the bay making it delightful, and the music was inspiring. It was not a full dress party, the yachtsmen and ladies appearing in their yachting dress. The young ladies, however, wore natty sailor gowns mostly of white duck, while the young gentlemen in negligee rig looked comfortable and appeared happy. The hop was in charge of Messrs. Eaton Pierce, Gordon Keating and Herbert Barker of the House committee.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

HOUGHS NECK.

Ladies' Day of the Yachts Makes it Lively at Beach.

The cottagers of Houghs Neck who are not fortunate in being members of the Quincy Yacht club enjoyed the festivities from afar. The large fleet of boats with their fair passengers made a beautiful sight from the shore and the hill. To the summer residents the sail is not such a treat as to those who go upon the water but once a year. Many of the cottagers however, had friends in the club and these enjoyed the hospitality and the hop.

W. F. Walker of the Walker chocolate mills of New York with family are spending the summer at the Littlefield cottage, Miss Kitty Havey being their guest.

Miss J. W. Maynard and family and friends are planning a lawn party for the young people of the Neck the latter part of this month.

The Houghs Neck Juniors would like a game with some team averaging 12 years or under; address Box 16, Houghs Neck.

The Heath Social club of Roxbury held a social at the home of Mr. Albee Bleiler on Manet avenue Wednesday evening.

The people of Houghs Neck are not very well satisfied with the roads over to Manet avenue. They are filled with water at high tide, making it impossible for a carriage to drive over.

Mr. A. W. Jackson, formerly of Houghs Neck, will spend a few days with friends at the Cape.

More guests have arrived at the Loretto.

The perch fishing at Houghs Neck is considered very uncertain, the dealers being unable to supply their customers.

The Taylor cottage at Rock Island occupied by Capt. N. C. Reed was the scene of a jolly party on the Fourth. It included the captain's children, grandchildren, sisters, brothers and cousins to the number of nineteen. A fine shore dinner was served after which the party was photographed.

J. H. Costello will open the Casino on Monday evening next with a Hurdy Gurdy party, at which Marie Grosse will be the tamborinist.

—The Hull Yacht club had a concert and hop Wednesday evening; the music was by the Germania band.

Travelers shudder with horror at the thought of the train-wrecker who stealthily undermines the supports of a railway bridge and precipitates a passenger train with its load of precious human freight to a horrible death by fire and water. There is a deadlier enemy than the train-wrecker that menaces not only travelers but stay-at-homes. Its name is indigestion. It slowly undermines the supports that hold up the bridge of life and yearly precipitates untold thousands into the dread valley of consumption. If people will only take the right precaution they can avoid this calamity and even remedy it after it has occurred if they will act in time.

All cases of indigestion and every disease that has its inception in indigestion or faulty nutrition are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures wasting diseases. It is an unfailing remedy for nervous prostration. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. Thousands have testified to its merits. There is nothing else "just as good." Druggists sell it.

"I beg leave to inform you," writes Mrs. J. Shely, of No. 1701 Thomas Place, Minneapolis, Minn., "that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured my trouble in my neck—Goitre. It went away in three months. At the sixth bottle it began to grow smaller. Before, it had grown larger very perceptibly. I am very grateful for the cure."

Healthy babies. Healthy mother. Healthy father. These are what you find in the homes that have a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth binding, 31 stamps.

WITHOUT WATER.

Standpipe of Water Works Emptied by Break.

Fortunately There Were No Fires During Repairs.

Considerable Damage Done to Columbia Street, the Scene of Break.

It is perhaps not generally known that the city was without water service last night from 10.30 until 2 o'clock, owing to the blowing out of a dead end plug in a four-inch main leading from a twenty-inch main at the corner of Penn and Columbia streets.

When the old Quincy Water Co. laid its mains it put this short piece of pipe on Columbia street and it has never been touched since that time.

Engineer Spear of the pumping station had been running his pumps and at 10.30 had filled the standpipe full. He was just shutting down when he heard a roar and in an instant he knew something was wrong.

The trouble was the blowing out of the four inch plug, and the water shot into the air about 25 feet at that point and then it ran down Columbia street tearing up the street and undermining the fire alarm and electric light poles. Before any gate could be shut the standpipe had been emptied and the city was without water.

Supt. Cavanagh and foreman Gleason were immediately notified and then came a house to house trip to get out the water works laborers. As soon as possible fifty men were at work locating the trouble which was at first thought to have been the twenty inch main.

Chief Engineer Williams and Supt. Austin were also notified and soon had men on the spot proping up the poles which had been undermined and were topling over.

At one time it looked as though the Electric Light Plant would have to shut down for lack of water, but by pumping they managed to pump enough from the pipes to keep going.

It was about 2 o'clock this morning when the break was repaired and the stand pipe was filled again.

Considerable damage was done to Columbia street and had the blow-out taken place while the pumps were working the releasing of the pressure would doubtless have blown out the pump heads and the damage would have been serious.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of John T. Burns for the illegal keeping of intoxicating liquor at Randolph was called. The defendant retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Case continued for judgment until July 29.

Daniel Gilligan and Henry Anderson were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Weymouth.

The liquors seized from John T. Burns at Randolph were forfeited.

The continued case of Owen Smith of Weymouth for non support was called and again continued until next Monday.

Martin G. Holbrook of Randolph was arraigned for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell at Randolph. Case continued until July 15.

The continued case of Mary S. Trainor for larceny from the estate of Ellen Leahy was called. She was found not guilty, and was discharged.

The continued case of John and James Colligan for assault on William Mewse at Quincy was called and they were discharged upon payment of costs, amounting to $1.

John and James Colligan was arraigned for assault on Annie Mewse at Quincy. John was fined $3 and James was discharged.

New Bedford to Celebrate.

New Bedford's celebration during the week of Oct. 10 of the semi-centennial anniversary of the city's incorporation is to be made the occasion of a grand reunion of the old residents and a gathering home of the old town's sons and daughters from the four corners of the earth. Probably no city in America has a more diffuse representation throughout the world. In the good old days when the whale fishery flourished, the keels of the New Bedford's ships visited the waters of every sea and carried the flag into every port. The sturdy mariners were pioneers in many directions. It was in the order of things that many of them should make for themselves new homes in far away places and in strange lands. They were a thrifty anp enterprising set of men and quick to grasp new opportunities. Thus it was that many great projects at distant points were conceived, established and successfully managed by New Bedford capital.

For the entertainment of the visitors an elaborate programme has been arranged, and four days will be given over to the commemoration. Following in the good old ways of the fathers, special services will be universally held in the churches on Sunday, Oct. 10. Commencing on Monday the festivities will have full sway. Parades have been arranged which will be the most imposing pageants ever seen in this section of the state.

In honor of the occasion at least one of the new warships will be stationed at the port during the celebration. Yachts and floating pleasure palaces by the score from various ports in addition to the large local fleet will dot the harbor, their owners having already signified their intention of attending. The city has one of the finest road courses in the country—the Point road—and here will be held many bicycle races, the wheelmen having had one day assigned to them. This will be one of the largest gatherings of riders during the year. Sports of all kinds, including numerous aquatic contests will be arranged. An extensive industrial exhibit is to be made one of the leading features.

Sunday Excursions.

The Police Commissioners of Boston and the Railroad Commissioners are each waiting for the other relative to Sunday steamboat excursions. It is understood that so far as the Railroad Commission is concerned boats would be allowed to run as last year, unless somebody appeared in protest, in which case the board would give a hearing.

Is He from Quincy?

The Quincy police received word from Danvers today that the body of a man had been found there this morning which was thought to be a Quincy man, by the name of Shea. His brother from Quincy is said to have been with him yesterday, but his whereabouts today are unknown. The Danvers police say that Shea also has a sister here, a Mrs. Putnam. Thus far the Quincy police have been unable to identify Shea or his relatives. He was an oldish man, with long grey whiskers.

Weak Backs.

JULIUS HOBBS, M.D.

They cure by healing the Kidneys and Purifying the Blood from Uric Acid and other impurities. They Cure Rheumatism, Backache, Neuralgia, Diabetes, Dropsy, Bladder Troubles, Female Weakness, etc.

I have tried Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills with the Little Liver Pills as a laxative. I have taken nearly two boxes of the Sparagus Kidney Pills, and find myself greatly benefitted. My motto is "Honor to whom honor belongs." About a year ago I tried the doctors to see what could be done for me, with the result of no benefit whatever, but Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills have done more good than anything ever before I feel like a new man so far. I shall keep on taking the pills and believe they will result in a complete cure of my kidneys and bring me good general health. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills are a good blessing to suffering humanity. I have suffered awfully, restless, sleepless nights, aching lower half of my body, but now get some rest, thank God, and feel some refreshing sleep.—HAROLD HOLLAND, 334 Boston street, Lynn, Mass.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

DECOYED TO HIS DEATH

William Guldensuppe Went With Mrs. Nack to Lonely Cottage.

Thorn Hid In Closet and Shot Unsuspecting Victim.

Murderer Made Full Confession to a Friend Who Betrayed Him to Police.

New York, July 8.—The horrors of the Guldensuppe murder mystery are being laid bare to the world.

Martin Thorn, the murderer, who was arrested Tuesday evening, has made a partial confession, and Inspector O'Brien was able yesterday to make public the main facts in the story of the crime. The inspector was much assisted in the matter by the information given by John Dolpha, a barber, who has been Thorn's most intimate friend for several years. To Dolpha, Thorn confided the story of the murder, and it is to Dolpha and his wife that Thorn owes his arrest.

Acting Inspector O'Brien says he has the confession of a friend of Thorn. This friend told O'Brien how Thorn had explained in detail every move in the killing of Guldensuppe. Who this friend is O'Brien will not say, but he is supposed to be John Dolpha. This man is the barber who betrayed Thorn to the police.

According to the confession of Thorn's friend, Mrs. Nack had tired of Guldensuppe and had decided to be rid of him. She was loved by Thorn, and the two talked together about Guldensuppe. Thorn was already the bitter enemy of Guldensuppe. Thorn and Mrs. Nack arranged the plot, and according to the police carried it out on a perfect schedule.

Early in the morning of that fatal Friday, Thorn was in the vacant house at Woodside. Among other things he had a loaded revolver and two pounds of plaster of paris. The first was to kill Guldensuppe and the last to be used to encase his head after it had been severed from the body.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock that morning Thorn was in the closet on one of the upper floors. He was in his stocking feet, and held his revolver in his hand. At this hour Mrs. Nack reached the house. Guldensuppe was with her. From his hiding place Thorn could hear the door down stairs open, and then he heard the two speak. He heard Mrs. Nack ask what the man thought of the place, and heard Guldensuppe answer that it appeared satisfactory. Then Mrs. Nack explained that she was going into the rear garden, and, according to the statement, Mrs. Nack said:

"Don't wait for me; go through the house and see if you like its arrangements." Guldensuppe answered:

"Oh, I'll just stay here until you come back."

Mrs. Nack Didn't Want to See Murder.

But the woman did not want that. She did not want to see a murder. She feared she would weaken. She said:

"Don't wait, go and see the rooms up stairs; I think you will like them."

Guldensuppe laughed as he bounded up the stairs. Mrs. Nack walked out of the door. Guldensuppe walked through the rooms. Thorn listened and waited. Then Guldensuppe opened the closet door. He thrust his head in. At that instant there was the flash of a revolver and Guldensuppe fell with a bullet in his head. Thorn bent over the fallen man and examined him. Guldensuppe was dying.

Then Thorn picked up the man and dragged him to the bathtub. He ran down stairs and met Mrs. Nack standing at the lower landing.

"It's done," said he.

Mrs. Nack answered: "I know, I heard."

"Now go back to the city. Come here at 5 o'clock. Be assured everything will be ready," said Thorn. The woman went away. Thorn went back to the bathtub. With a razor in his hand he bent over Guldensuppe, and the friend in his statement declares Thorn told him, "I heard him snore." It was a death rattle he heard.

After that the legs were severed. Then the nether portion of the trunk. Then, as if he were packing so much beef, he did up the different portions of the body in the cheese cloth and oilcloth, tied the bundles neatly, lighted a pipe and waited for Mrs. Nack. She came at the appointed hour.

The various portions of the body were taken on a ferryboat and thrown into the river.

Guldensuppe had worn a gold watch and chain. The police say Thorn took these and pawned them.

Acting Inspector O'Brien said he believed the foregoing statement to be true.

Then the statement details how Thorn described the manner in which he cut off Guldensuppe's head, and next coated it with plaster of paris that was near at hand, and which he first made into a paste with water.

And still O'Brien declares there was no trace of blood in the Woodside house. He admits that one of his detectives who had been a plumber before he was a policeman, went to the house and carried away sections of the drain pipe from the bathtub. No trace of blood could be found by him. O'Brien also said that a portion of the floor was scraped in the hopes of finding some show of blood stains. And he also admits that mud from the trench into which the drain pipe leads was taken up in the hope of finding traces of blood. So far as the police will admit there was no blood to be found. The acting inspector said these scrapings, pipe joints and mud will undergo chemical analysis. Then traces of blood may show.

Dolpha, the man who is supposed to have made the statement to O'Brien, is a barber, who lives in East Ninety-third street. He works in the shop of Antonio Martinelli at 2335 Eighth avenue. He had long been a friend of Thorn, who was also a barber.

Young Bonner Reported Dying.

New York, July 8.—Robert Edwin Bonner, son of Robert Bonner, the publisher and horse breeder, was said to be dying at his summer home in Averne, L. I., last night. About two weeks ago Mr. Bonner fell and was seriously injured.

TESTING THE POWERS.

The Sultan Does Not Intend to Give Up Thessaly---War May Be Resumed.

London, July 8.—Graeco-Turkish affairs appear to be re-entering an interesting stage.

The porte has dispatched a circular to its representatives abroad containing a skillful defence of the Turkish case and declining to consider any frontier line in Thessaly north of the river Pennios, which is regarded as the natural boundary.

It appears that the sultan has convinced himself that the powers will not resort to coercion and he has decided to test the alleged concert of Europe to the utmost. On Monday he summoned a council of ministers for an extraordinary sitting to the Yildiz Kiosk, with the result that after a heated discussion a report was drawn up in favor of resuming hostilities if peace should not be concluded within a week.

The minister of war sent a telegram to Edham Pasha announcing the decision.

This accords with all the news received for the last 10 days. The Turks are rapidly strengthening their positions in Thessaly, massing troops in Domoko, fortifying Velestino and in other ways entrenching themselves more firmly. The Thessalian harvest has already been reaped by the Turkish soldiery and large quantities of grain have been stored at Elassona.

Minnesota Cyclone.

Duluth, July 8.—Fourteen people are now known to have been killed in the cyclones and cloudbursts in this section of Minnesota Tuesday and yesterday. The storm was general, and it is impossible to estimate the amount of damage. The cyclone, which was central near Glenwood, was the worst that ever struck this state. The telegraph lines are down for 75 miles each side of there and particulars are hard to get. Railroad traffic is paralyzed because of the heavy fall of rain. The rain came so suddenly and so fiercely in some places that trains ran into washouts before they had any intimation of danger. Crops have been damaged and a large amount of live stock killed. Reports of washouts, floods and cyclones are being received almost hourly. Every railroad in the state has had some damage to the tracks and rolling stock. The damage will probably exceed $1,000,000.

End of Davis Will Contest.

New York, July 8.—The contest for the estate of the late Andrew J. Davis of Butte, Mont., is in process of settlement after having been in the courts for nearly eight years. The estate seven years ago was said to be worth $14,000,000, but this estimate former Judge Logan and Simon H. Stern of New York city declare to be much too high. A conservative estimate of the value of the estate is said to be $4,000,000. Over $1,000,000 have gone to lawyers and experts in handwriting and other witnesses. Nearly all the claimants of the estate are aged. Edward Davis is over 64, Mrs. Bowdoine is 63, Mrs. Ward is 80, Calvin H. Davis is 72, and Dina Davis, a sister, is 81. A basis of settlement has at last been reached, but certain signatures are yet necessary to the agreement.

General Kitchener Starts For Gondola.

Cairo, July 8.—General Sir Herbert Kitchener, who is in command of the Anglo-Egyptian expedition for the reconquest of Dongola, embarked for the front yesterday, and it is expected that the attack on Abu Hamed will be made about the 30th. The Egyptian intelligence department ascertains from its spys that owing to the disaffection of the Sudanese little opposition will be encountered by the column in passage up the Nile beyond Merawi to Abu Hamed. The forces of the Khalifa are entrenched at Omdurman, variously estimated at from 30,000 to 60,000 men.

Jew Sues Ex-Governor Brown.

Providence, July 8.—Albert Steinert of the M. Steinert & Sons company has brought suit against ex-Governor D. Russell Brown, proprietor of the Oakland Beach hotel. Mr. Steinert claims that after securing rooms at the hotel his order was cancelled on the ground that he was a Hebrew, the management claiming to be acting under orders from Governor Brown. Governor Brown denies that he refused the rooms to Mr. Steinert, and claims that he rents houses to several Hebrew families.

Her Shaft Bent.

London, July 8.—The disabled Cunarder Cephalonia reached Queenstown harbor at 9 o'clock last evening. The accident which disabled the Cunarder took place on Sunday morning last about 6 o'clock. Her shaft became bent and the propeller was disconnected. The weather was beautiful, and there was no alarm among the passengers.

Free to Commerce.

Pittsburg, July 8.—The formal transfer of the property of the Monongahela Navigation company to the United States government was made yesterday afternoon, and the Monongahela river is now free to the commerce of the nation. The transfer will release nearly 10,000,000 bushels of coal.

NO DOUBT OF VICTORY.

President Ratchford of the Miners Talks of the Situation.

Moral and Financial Assistance From Labor Unions.

Diggers Seem to Have a Slight Advantage at This Time.

Columbus, O., July 8.—In an interview President Ratchford said:

"There is no longer any doubt that an ultimate victory for the miners is assured. The Cincinnati Central Labor council has taken up the matter of relief and submitted its proposition to the president of the American Federation of Labor, recommending that the entire membership of that organization be assessed 10 cents per man per week, which will amount to $60,000. Assurance of support from Mr. Gompers of the American Federation of Labor justifies us in the belief that he would be glad to carry out their wishes.

"To carry but this movement and insure its success the presidents of the various organizations will in a few days meet in conference to deal with this subject.

"Indications also point to the fact that railroad employes are taking a deep interest in the mining troubles, which interest may lead to their refusal to handle non-union coal during the present disturbance. The shipment of coal from the West Virginia fields to the market has never exceeded 6 per cent of the whole stock in any season. We recognize, however, that it is a difficult matter to displace coal to which consumers become accustomed.

"The remedy for this evil, if it be an evil, lies in the hands of some of those who complain most bitterly. It is a deplorable spectacle to witness coal from West Virginia finding its way to the lake front over coal roads of Ohio, while the mining properties on such roads have been standing in idleness, and the managers, both of the roads and the mines, are giving a rate to West Virginia shippers which enables them to enter the market at a less price than themselves.

"Months ago we served timely warning upon the operators of the Pittsburg district that West Virginia coal would enter the markets in greater quantities this season than at any previous time."

"I notice from the press that steps are being taken to operate certain mining properties in Ohio which are now in the hands of receivers, and under the protection of United States marshals. This is a sad commentary upon the freedom of American citizens who are striving for bread for themselves and their little ones. Independence day is hardly over until cruel laws by which working people are ground down are put in force. When the former black slave refused to obey he was whipped. When the white slave of today refuses to obey under the protection of law he is shot."

IN PITTSBURG DISTRICT.

Both Sides Express Great Confidence and Predict the Outcome.

Pittsburg, July 8.—Sixty hours after the inauguration of the great coal miners' strike, a comparison of statements from both sides engaged in the contest show favorable results for the diggers. Discounting the miners official announcements by the operators there seems to be no question that the workmen have scored a decided advantage in th's district and it is believed as the Pittsburg district goes so the country goes.

The key to the entire situation from present appearances lies in the success or defeat of the strikers in securing the co-operation of the men now working for the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. Without these men the strike can hardly succeed, because they will be able in a measure to supply the demand long enough to tide over the present embarrasment.

Patrick Dolan, president of the Pittsburg district miners, is confident that before the present week he will have succeeded in getting all of these men to join the ranks of the strikers, and when this result is affected the battle will be practically won.

The operators are just as confident of success as the miners are and have issued a statement claiming a large accession of men in different parts of the district and a heavier shipping list than usual. One thing slightly in favor of the operators is the freeing of navigation on the Monongahela river which went into effect yesterday. Ten million bushels of coal which have been stocked in the pools above here awaiting this event will be brought to this harbor at once, and be available for the present demand.

Railroads Confiscate Coal.

Cleveland, July 8.—The railroads have already begun to seize coal for their own use, no matter to whom it is consigned. Whole trains are sent to railroad yards and unloaded, regardless of who the coal is destined for. The confiscation began slightly at the first talk of the miners' strike, and now is becoming general. Nearly every manufacturing establishment in this city has been the loser by this, and with some of them the situation it so serious that the closing of the works will soon be necessary. The railroads take the coal by virtue of the fact that they carry the United States mails.

Swearing In Marshals.

Cincinnati, July 8.—The office of the United States marshal yesterday afternoon resembled a recruiting office of the regular army. Deputy marshals were being sworn in and preparing their arms, ready to go to Dillonvale, where it is expected the first trouble from the coal miners' strike may develop. No acts of violence have so far been committed, but it is represented that a riot is imminent.

Hiring Armenians.

Boston, July 8.—The labor union leaders of this city claim that the L. D. Apsley Rubber company of Hudson is hiring Armenians to fill the places of strikers in the factory at wages much lower than have been paid.

CONFERENCE AT WORK

Republican Conferees Waste No Time In Preliminaries.

Hope to Report Tariff Bill Inside of Two Weeks.

House Members Are Well Posted on Senate Amendments and Their Necessity.

Washington, July 9.—The tariff bill is now under consideration in the conference committee of the two houses, which held its first meeting yesterday afternoon and cleared the way to a prompt consideration of the principal contested points, with the hope on both sides of an early report.

President McKinley, in conversation with the leading Republican conferees of both houses urged them to get together on the inevitable compromises quickly, so as to report the bill from the conference as soon aspossible. In each case he was told that if the opposing conferees would only be "reasonable," the bill could be reported to both houses in 48 hours, and the president's reply invariably was, "Well, you be reasonable."

President McKinley has served on the tariff conference committee with the leading members of the present conference committee, and knows just how they do their work, so that he was able to give them pertinent advice.

They were unable—after their first meeting yesterday afternoon, when, after the formal assembling in the finance committee room of all the conferees, Democrats as well as Republicans, the Democrats, according to custom, immediately withdrew and the Republicans remained in session for three hours—to say just when they would reach an agreement on a report, which, after letting the Democrats vote against it, they could submit to the two houses. But after another meeting or two they will be able to tell about how long it will take.

The Republican members of the conference remained together until after 6 o'clock, devoting themselves assiduously to an adjustment of the differences between the two houses. Contrary to the usual practice, which is to regard the first meeting as informal and not intended for serious business, they plunged into the work and made excellent progress. The members of the house were found to be excellently informed upon all the changes made and also to be so familiar with the reasons for making them as to render explanation upon the part of the senators unnecessary. This happy condition facilitated work to a remarkable degree, and led to the conclusion that the conference would be of comparatively brief duration.

The members of the house were also found to be, in the main, willing to concede much on account of the peculiar condition existing in the senate, but while generally willing to accept increases made to insure the passage of the bill through the senate they were not so willing to concede the reductions. The members of the conference refused to give out the details of the proceedings, having entered into a general pledge to this end. This understanding was reached because of the conviction that any revelation of the rates agreed upon would add immeasurably to the work of the conferees by bringing down upon them the remonstrance of those whose wishes were not met in the adjustment.

The conference will meet daily at 9:30 a. m. and continue in session until 6 p. m., with an hour for lunch. They will reassemble after dinner and continue in session until 11 o'clock. It is expected that this will enable them to report the bill back by Wednesday of next week. It is understood that the agreements reached as the conference progresses will be considered as tentative, and upon the last day they will be bunched and agreed to. This will be done in order to prevent the action of the committee upon each amendment from becoming public and probably causing renewed efforts from interests affected.

House Proceedings.

Washington, July 9.—The house yesterday sent the tariff bill to conference. Chairman Dingley, Payne (N. Y.), Dalzell (Pa.), Hopkins (Ills.) and Grosvenor (O.), Republicans, and Bailey (Tex.), McMillin (Tenn.) and Wheeler (Ala.), Democrats, were appointed conferees.

The proceedings were in no wise sensational. This action was taken by a special order brought in from the committee on rules. The minority made no objection to it, but protested because the majority refused in advance to enter into an agreement as to the length of time to be allowed for debate when the bill is reported back by the conferees. They also attempted to make some political capital out of the refusal of the majority to permit action on the Cuban belligerency resolution and the bankruptcy bill.

The remainder of the day, after the tariff bill had been sent to conference, was occupied by the house in paying tribute to the memory of the late William S. Holman, the old "watchdog of the treasury."

Musical Festival Assured.

Bangor, Me., July 9.—The musical festival will be held here next fall as intended. A company has been formed for the purpose and a building will be erected.

THE ENDEAVORERS.

Two Big Meetings Were Held In San Francisco Last Night.

San Francisco, July 9.—The sessions of the Christian Endeavor convention last night, both at the Mechanics' pavillion and Woodward's pavillion, were even more largely attended than those held in the morning. Fully 20,000 people listened to the proceedings at the Mechanics' pavillion. The services were conducted by Rev. Robert F. Coyle of Oakland, Rev. Ezra Tinker of Washington leading in the devotional exercises.

The first address was delivered by Rev. Howard J. Russell of Columbus, O., his subject being "Christian Endeavor versus the Saloon."

He explained at length the objects and methods of the anti-saloon league, which he heartily endorsed.

The handsome banner to be presented to the local city union having reported the best progress during the past year, which had been in the possession of Cleveland, was awarded to Indianapolis. Rev. Courtland Myers of Brooklyn then spoke on "Christian Endeavor and Civic Righteousness."

The monster meeting in Woodward's pavillion was presided over by Francis C. Clark, president of the Endeavorers, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Charles A. Savage of Orange, N. J. A vigorous attack on the pernicious reading matter of the day was made by Rev. George F. Pentecost of New York.

The banner presented by Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts for the best work accomplished during the past year in defending the Lord's day was awarded to California.

After an earnest address by Josiah Strong of New York on "Christian Endeavor and Citizenship," the convention adjourned.

Opened Old Sore.

Portland, Me., July 9.—At the meeting of the state Epworth league yesterday, Rev. W. T. Ferrin of the First Methodist church of Boston, in the course of an address, opened the old sore of the Frank Jones connection with the Kents Hill seminary. He said: "In their action the trustees of Kents Hill seminary have brought sorrow and chagrin to Methodists everywhere. When I see the name of Frank Jones in the windows of the liquor saloons, I recall the action of the Methodists of Maine in elevating him to a position of honor in their state educational institution," Mr. Perrin added that he hoped the Epworth league of Maine would never get caught making such a mistake as was made in putting a brewer on the board of trustees of a denominational institution.

Ruiz Indemnity Claim.

Washington, July 9.—The state department officials, after weeks of hard work, have completed the preparations of our case in the prosecution of the Ruiz claim, and after receiving the approval of the president it will be turned over to Minister Woodford for presentation to the Madrid foreign office. In the preparation of this case, Mr. Calhoun, the United States special commissioner, has contributed the principal part, but the law officers of the state department have done much to present the facts collected by him in the strongest light and establish a good basis for the claim of indemnity, originally fixed at $150,000, which is to be urged against the Spanish government.

Hurrying to Become Citizens.

Philadelphia, July 9.—The alien tax law signed by Governor Hastings two weeks ago has resulted in an unusual number of applications by foreigners for first papers. Over 1800 first papers have been issued. The law requires that employers pay a tax of 3 cents each working day for each unnaturalized foreigner employed. Employers generally have determined to compensate themselves for this outlay by deducting the amount from the foreigners' wages. To this fact is attributed the hurry to become citizens. The exaction of the per diem tax is required until the final papers are taken out.

Neither Could Swim.

Kingston, N. Y., July 9.—Benson Everett, only son of Assemblyman James H. Everett, and a student of Yale, class '99, and James Treadwell, son of Joseph H. Treadwell, partner with Captain Everett in the wholesale flour and feed business here, were drowned in the Esopus creek near the Ulster and Delaware railway bridge at this city while bathing last evening. Neither could swim. The body of Treadwell has been recovered.

Navy Yard Foreman Removed.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 9.—The first removal of a foreman at the Portsmouth navy yard under the present administration was made yesterday afternoon in the discharge of Foreman Boilermaker Tobias E. Burke, while at the same time Michael Long, who held the position under the Harrison administration, was reinstated. The removal has caused a sensation in political circles, as it was generally supposed that the civil service covered the appointment of foremen.

MINERS ARE ELATED.

Strikers Rapidly Gaining Strength In the Pittsburg District.

Price of Coal Raised Forty Cents a Ton.

Baltimore and Ohio Men Forfeit $8000 Under Ironclad Contract.

Pittsburg, July 9.—The close of the third day of the miners' strike finds the diggers gaining strength rapidly in the Pittsburg district, elating the officials and men correspondingly.

The net result of the struggle up to date, as gleaned from unbiased, as well as from partisan, sources, is about as follows:

Nineteen thousand men idle, an almost total suspension of work in the mines along the Monongahela river, suspension practically total whole of Wheeling divisions of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, only about 50 men working there; all the railroad mines, with the exception of the M. A. Hanna & Co. mines, along the Pan Handle, the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company and a few individual mines, which can have but little effect on the situation.

The Hanna mines have about one-third of their usual number of men at work, and this slight increase over Wednesday appears to be the only advantage the operators have gained.

The coming out of the men along the Baltimore and Ohio is a decided victory for the miners, because these men were working under an iron-clad agreement, and by their loyalty to their brethren forfeit $8000 in wages which the company holds out.

The situation as to the supply of coal cannot be called serious as yet, because there are from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels of the black diamonds in stock at the various pools along the river which can be placed in this city at short notice, and if need be a portion of it could be shipped to the lakes.

Up to the present time no sign of unlawfulness has developed among the strikers and no evidence whatever that there will be. Today promises to be a day of decided action on the part of the miners. It is reported that a meeting has been scheduled between President Ratchford of the Mine Workers' association and President Gompers of the Federation of Labor in this city, and the miners' officials announce that a systematic movement will be started to bring out the diggers now at work for the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. The meeting between Ratchford and Gompers will be important, as plans for carrying on the strike are to be discussed. It is claimed that one of the principal topics will be a scheme to raise funds from which it is proposed to pay all the miners that are now working full time in order to induce them to make the tieup complete. It is said that President Gompers will offer to raise a fund of $60,000 per week to assist the strikers in their struggles.

The miners' officials are likely to meet with a serious stumbling block in their efforts to induce the miners of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company to join in the movement, notwithstanding their confident assertion that these men will be out before Sunday night next. A visit to the mines yesterday disclosed the fact that a large number of the men are opposed to striking at this time, because of their contract agreement. The officials of the company say the men have given positive assurances that they will remain loyal, and are in nowise alarmed over the claim of the miners' leaders that they will have the men out before the week closes.

Groom Commits Suicide.

Springfield, Mass., July 9.—Joseph Bedour, aged 27, committed suicide by shooting yesterday. He was employed by Remi Gauvin as a driver, and was married to Emma La Valley of Agawam last Saturday. He has a father and stepmother living in North Williston, Vt. Despondency caused by sickness led Bedour to take his life.

Husband and Wife Found Dead.

Lawrence, Mass., July 9.—John Logan and wife were found dead in bed at their home, 383 Elm street, this city, last evening, at 7:30 o'clock. The bodies were most horribly decomposed, and evidence of prussic acid poisoning was apparent. Logan and his wife were working people, and have lived together for many years.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

By direction of the president a congressional medal of honor has been awarded to Brigadier General John M. Wilson, chief of engineers, for most distinguished gallantry in action.

The Woburn Rifle team, company G, Fifth Massachusetts regiment, visited Rockland, Me., yesterday, and defeated the rifle team of company H, N. G. S. M., in an exhibition shoot, by a score of 393 to 342.

The Portsmouth (N. H.) Board of Trade has been notified by Secretary of the Navy Long that the North Atlantic squadron will visit there on Aug. 16. An effort wil be made to have the date changed to Aug. 30.

In the Senate.

Washington, July 9.—The session of the senate yesterday was uneventful, the deficiency bill being considered throughout the day. Among its provisions is one accepting the invitation of France to participate in the Paris exposition of 1900.

The bill was not completed up to the time of adjournment. During the day Mr. Berry of Arkansas offered a resolution requiring the president to demand of Spain the release of Ona Melton, one of the Competitor prisoners. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Cadets at Hingham.

With electric cars direct to Hingham Quincy people will find it more convenient this year to attend the camp of the First Corps of Cadets. The tour will extend from the afternoon of July 10 to the morning of July 17, when camp will be broken shortly before noon, and the corps proceed to Boston. Colonel Edmands's orders are for the companies to assemble at the armory at noon on Saturday. Undress uniforms will be worn, with haversacks and canteens, and overcoats rolled in yoke. The canvas working suits and shakos will be packed in knapsacks, the white coats and dress equipments in bags. Governor's day is set for Tuesday, July 13, when the commander-in-chief will review the corps.

Be Kind to Horses.

George T. Angell sends out the following suggestions for the comfort of the horses: "On a very hot day keep a sponge, a towel, or your handkerchief soaked with pure cold water, on the top of your horse's head. If your horse's back is sore, use pure cold water on it freely every time the saddle is removed. In hot weather tell the driver of your herdic, cab, or carriage, to drive slowly, especially up hills, and give him five or ten cents extra for doing it. In hot weather be sure your check-rein is loose and your horse frequently watered. In hot weather, a mouthful of grass, or a piece of bread, or a cracker, even, will help your horse wonderfully."

Copeland Street Sewer.

The Sewer Commissioners opened bids Thursday night for laying half a mile of eight-inch sewer pipe and drain on Copeland street. One of the conditions of the contract was that the work shall be done by Quincy labor. The several bids were as follows:

T. H. & G. M. Bryne of Hyde Park, $5,432.

John Cashman of Quincy, $5,693

C. A. & C. E. Trumbull of Boston, $6,979.

Myrick Bill & Co. of Malden, $9,179.

Street Railway Commission.

Gov. Wolcott has nominated as special commissioners to investigate the relations between street railway corporations and municipalities, Hon. C. F. Adams of Lincoln, Hon. W. W. Crapo of New Bedford, and Hon. E. B. Hayes of Lynn. They are to report to the next legislature. The chairman is to receive a salary of $3000, and the other two commissioners $2500.

CITY SQUARE,

FENCE PROPOSED.

Wollaston People Must Go to Depot via Beale Street.

A Strong Protest Against the Plan Anticipated.

Would Not Object to Fence if There Was a Subway.

The LEDGER is in receipt of the following communication from the Board of Railroad Commissioners:—

Board of Railroad Commissioners,
BOSTON, July 7, 1897.

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

Replying to your inquiry of July 3d, I would say that the Board has reached no decision as to securing safety at the station of the New Haven road. The management of the railroad has proposed certain measures by way of experiment to see if the necessary security could not be so provided.

The proposition is to erect a fence on the line of the railroad location on the south side, enclosing the location on that side, and to place steps at the north end of the bridge down to the platform of the station. If this does not accomplish the purpose intended, the railroad management will remove the fence and take such other steps as this Board may recommend.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM A. CRAFTS, C. M.

There is but little doubt but what Wollaston citizens will make a strong protest againt the proposed fence unless there is a foot-way beneath the tracks, at say the end of Brook street or some other convenient locality. A more inconvenient safeguard than this projected fence could not be devised, taking into consideration the environments of the station, the business section and the post office. It should not be built so as to compel passengers to climb up the steep Beale street bridge hill for both outward and inward trains. The city should act in this matter if necessary.

MISSING BUOY SPOILED RACE.

Three Classes at Hull Must Sail Again—Little Peter and Rex Win.

The Hull open race on Thursday was not a great success from the fact that a buoy was missing and the third, fourth and knockabout classes did not finish. The Omeme, Rooster and Arab were having it nip and tuck in the third class and the Vitesse and Gosling were leading the other two, when the boats were unable to find a buoy at Pig rocks as laid down in the course.

In the first and second classes cash prizes were won as follows, there being three in each class:

Ladd—Williams.

A pretty home wedding was solomnized at the residence of Mrs. Richard Williams on Cross street on Thursday evening, when her daughter, Emma Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Benjamin Franklin Ladd, a well-known West Quincy gentleman. The ceremony being performed by Rev. E. W. Virgin of Dedham, formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at West Quincy.

The bride was becomingly attired in white muslin, with tulle veil and roses. The bridal party was attended by Mr. William Williams and Miss Sadie Williams, brother and sister of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ladd left for a brief trip to Martha's Vineyard, returning they will reside at 15 Cross street.

TODAY'S COURT.

The case of Michael Crowley, Jr., for drunkenness at Weymouth was called and he was defaulted.

The case of Edwin W. Davis for neglecting to send his minor child to the Braintree school was continued to July 23.

William McDonald was fired $10 for cruelty to a horse in Quincy.

☞ A decree has been entered by the commissioners of Norfolk County ordering the widening and relocation of Border street, Cohasset, from Summer street to the bridge, over Gulf river. The town is to make the changes within a year, and of the expense the county will pay $1,905. Several awards for land damages were made, amounting to about $2,000.

The county will also pay $3432 toward the widening, straightening and relocation of Washington street in Norwood.

You may hunt the world over and you will not find another medicene equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Marion Hawkins of Appleton street is in New Hampshire.

The crash suits have blossomed out in large numbers this week.

Miss Amelia Cox of Appleton street is visiting in New Hampshire.

Miss Isabelle McLaughlin of Appleton street has gone to Nova Scotia.

Ernest M. Shea, clerk for Timberlake & Small, is on a ten days' vacation.

Harry W. Read and family go to New Hampshire today for three weeks.

Mrs. Arthur Murphy of Copeland street has returned from a visit to Munson.

George Turner of Miller street has gone to China, Maine, to pass his vacation.

Mrs. George H. Ferguson of Payne street, is quite seriously sick at her home.

Two car loads of West Quincy people went to Highland park, Avon, on Wednesday.

Atlantic has had a great scrape the past week and the streets in consequence are looking very tidy.

Martland's band will go into camp with the fifth regiment at South Framingham the week of July 19.

Miss Ada Nightingale, clerk to the executive department at City Hall, is enjoying her vacation at Montreal.

The creditors of the Paine Shoe Co. of Holbrook have accepted fifty cents on the dollar and work will probably be resumed.

The bathing season has opened in good earnest at the Atlantic shore and some afternoons as many as fifty are in the water at one time.

We are informed that work on the electric road to Squantum will be started at once and cars may be running by the middle of August.

Rev. John P. Cuffe of this city attended the obsequies of Rev. Fr. Quealy, late pastor of St. Charles' church, Woburn, on Thursday morning.

Rev. Mr. Englund and several from his church attended the Swedish Baptist picnic of a Brockton Sunday School at Highland park on Tuesday.

The celluloid department of the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co. shut down this afternoon on account of the heat, thus giving the employes and extra half holiday.

While it is decidedly hot in the sun, one who keeps in the shade and the breeze can keep comfortable. It is not as hot in Quincy as in the inland. Ninety degree weather promises to continue a few days.

There will be a game of base ball on Merry Mount park Saturday afternoon at 3 P. M. between the Jackson, Caldwell Co. and T. R. & S. Co. As the above teams are very strong the game will undoubtedly be very interesting.

The Wollaston Yacht Club will hold its first moonlight sail on Monday evening, July 12, at which social members are invited. If the wind and weather is favorable they will make a friendly call upon the Quincy Yacht club.

Through the generosity of the street railway, and at the request of many who listened to the excellent band concert in City Square last Saturday night by Brown's Brigade band, the concert will be repeated Saturday night in City Square.

A lawn party in aid of the Steadfast Ten, King's Daughters, will be held on the grounds of Mr. Charles R Sherman, Wollaston, on Saturday evening. Marie Grosse, the famous Italian tambourinist with her hurdy gurdy will be one of the attraction.

Some few necessary repairs are being made to City Hall. In the basement a new coal bin is being built and in the Commissioners and Assessors rooms some of the plastering that was in danger of falling has been taken down and replaced with new.

William McDonnell of Elm street and his uncle, the Rev. M. F. McDonnell, have just returned from a very pleasant vacation; visiting Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Gettysburg and other places of interest. The last two weeks were spent very pleasantly at Atlantic City.

Mr. Frank Coe of Atlantic, Jacobs of Wollaston, and Dunn of Quincy, were in the ten mile bicycle race at Stoughton on the 5th and made a most excellent record among the fast ones. Henry Kolb and Ed. Ago of Atlantic participated in the big race at Mattapan. Atlantic now has several fast riders and would make a good mark in any race.

A very jolly party of ladies from Atlantic went to Fort Point Wednesday for one of Anderson's famous fish dinners. The party was made up of the following: Mrs. Chas. R. Safford, Mrs. Ida Waterhouse, Mrs. S. O. Moxon, Mrs. Alfred Jeineck, Mrs. Chas. L. Coe, Mrs. Elijah Hall, Mrs. Wm. Cummings, and Mrs. Alonzo Priest. After a feast and good time a car ride was taken to Nantasket beach.

Mr. John Wilder, the veteran bicycle rider of Atlantic is now on one of his long summer trips. His destination this time is Washington, D. C. He left home at 5 o'clock Thursday morning and will pass through Hartford, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on his journey. The round trip will take about ten days and the whole distance will be covered on his machine. For pluck and endurance he has quite a reputation among the wheelmen.

About fifty from Atlantic went to Highland park, Avon, Wednesday.

Mr. W. A. Reed, formerly principal of the Lincoln school, has been spending a few days at Newton.

The Quincy police have been unable to find any relatives of the man named Shea who was found dead at Danvers.

The officers of Philedian Senate, K. A. E. O., were installed Thursday evening by D. D. G. S. Estes and suite of Campello.

Two of the Quincy school teachers have resigned: Miss Elva F. Bell, who will enter college, and Miss Jennie A. Faxon, who accepts a position at the Agassiz school, Boston. They have taught two years and one year respectively.

TALK ABOUT HEAT.

New England is Not in it With the West and South.

Westward, where the really high temperatures have prevailed, there was no lessening of the severity of the wave, says the Herald. The area where excessive temperatures were prevalent had materially increased during the 24 hours ending at 8 P. M., and the eastern edge of the feature was well to the eastward of the Mississippi. Some of the temperatures in the appended table, giving the 8 P. M. reading, will sufficiently outline the area: St. Paul, Minn., 92; Huron, S. D., 82; North Platte, Neb., 92; Dodge City, Kan., 94; Abilene, Tex., 94; Memphis, 92; Cincinnati, 90; St. Louis, 92.

The above stations are the boundaries only of the above-mentioned area, and are eloquent of conditions, well-nigh tragic, when it is remembered, that it is a renewal of what has prevailed now for a week.

East of this area the mercury has gone into the nineties, generally, during the day, but had fallen to more merciful figures at 8 P. M., though the readings above 80 at the late hour extended as far east as Albany. The general weather plan was exactly as has prevailed for a week, with no change that was appreciable, or indicative of much improvement in comfort. There was a very evident easterly trend of the warmest area, which is unwelcome news.

SEWER IN STREET.

Rich Man Builds Sewer in Front of Neighbor's House.

Some of the residents of Chestnut street in the vicinity of Faxon hall are somewhat exercised over the liberties taken by the family which is the largest land owner on the street. It seems Mr. C. T. Hardwick has had considerable trouble from his cesspool which is near the street, A runover cesspool was constructed near by, a short time ago, but this falis to carry off the water. Now a gang is engaged digging a drain into Chestnut street and down the hill in the gutter, and another overflow cesspool is being constructed in the street directly in front of the front door of his next door neighbor.

This is not only a cheeky thing to do, but would not be tolerated where a man had a 5000 foot lot. There is also fear that the water of the public pump at Faxon hall may be contaminated. The Hardwick estate is a large one extending from Chestnut street to Washington street, and there was nothing to prevent the construction of a drain to the lower level in the rear of Mr. Hardwick's house, and the expense would not have been more.

Whether any permission has been obtained from Commissioner Knowlton has not been ascertained, but the City Council alone would seem to have authority, as in the case of a guy rope. A section of the city charter provides for "right in, over or under any street," and must be granted by the City Council.

The work on the cesspool began Thursday, and will be completed tonight, and if the sewage get a way through the hardpan it may be impossible to stop it.

The Hurdy Gurdy Party.

One of the leading society fads in Boston the past season has been the hurdy gurdy party. Mrs. Jack Gardner was the first to endorse this novelty in music for dancing, and society followed as a natural course. Marie Grosse, the pretty Italian tambourine girl, was Mrs. Jack's especial favorite on these occasions and society went wild over her clever juggling and dancing.

There was a time when Marie could be seen most every day on Temple place or Washington street, Boston, with her piano organ, but like all public favorites she has become capricious of her charms and of late she has appeared only in the society circles of the Hub.

But Marie has consented to assist with the tambourine at the opening of the Casino at Houghs Neck on Monday evening, and her brother Antonio will play the piano organ.

The organ is not the ordinary street piano but is one that has been adapted especially for dancing music. It is Marie's own organ, one she accompanied so often at private parties last winter, and the public can feel assured that there will be some lively music. The new floor in the Casino occupies 4000 square feet of surface and the building is open on all sides.

—Fred A. Taft, informs the Dedham Transcript the amount of rain that fell in that town during April, May and June this year; also last year and the year before: In 1897, 10 inches; in 1896, 6 3 8 inches; in 1895, 7 13-16 inches; in 1894, 7 11 16 inches.

ADVICE TO STUDENTS.

Prof. Shaler Advises a Visit to the Quincy Quarries.

Prof. Shaler, in addressing the members of the summer school last night in Seaver hall, Boston, was in his happiest mood, and those who heard him carried away suggestions full of value for their forthcoming studies. He spoke without special preparation, yet managed to talk for three-quarters of an hour out of the fulness of his knowledge. His remarks, delivered in a conversational way, were intended to help the students to make the most of their opportunities during the period of their attendance at the summer school.

Beginning with first principles, he laid emphasis on the extent to which, even in the animal world, intelligence had been developed by the constant adaptation of mind to the opportunities afforded by environment, and went on to show how much of success or failure in human life depended upon the wise use upon a higher plane of the same process of adaptation. Then the professor gave some concrete examples. He urged upon his hearers the advantage which would come to them from a study of the institution of learning where they were gathered. He reminded them that Harvard University was a type of New England life, and represented more of the Puritan inheritance than any other of our institutions. Next, they could study with no less profit the town of Cambridge, with its perfect governing system. The Salem and Plymouth settlements ought also to be studied, with Providence as well—all characteristic New England towns.

Turning to the study of nature, the speaker pointed to the interesting objects which were offered by the splendid shore line within easy reach of the students. He mentioned the Ipswich country, with its lenticular hills or drumlins, and the country about Essex, where the phenomenon of marching sand dunes could be seen, and Cape Ann, with its rocky coast, its splendid quarries, its dykes and glacial moraines. The old ports, such as Salem, all due to changes wrought during the glacial period, should also, he said, be visited, as well as the best managed quarries of the world at Quincy.

NOT A SCRATCH.

Bicyclist Run Down by Electric in City Square.

A young man riding a wheel attempted to cross the street railway track this morning in front of the LEDGER office, but failed to notice an approaching car from Braintree. He was knocked down and his wheel went beneath the car, but the fellow got across safely and unhurt. The wooden rim of the rear wheel of the bicycle was broken and the spokes doubled up. The fender on the car was badly bent in the collision. Had the motorman not had full control of his car and stopped it within six feet the accident might have been more serious.

It seems the young man was deaf, which accounts for his not hearing the car. He refused to give the press his name, but told the police it was William Brackett. He was without funds to pay for repairs to his machine or to continue on his journey

Plans Failed.

Last Sunday night the boys of Atlantic had a carefully prepared plan to ring the bell on the Memorial church at midnight. The police on duty were aware of the fact, but the boys were too sharp for them and succeeded in attaching a string to the fire alarm hammer. This string was carried across the field and the end was in the hands of one of the boys. The only mistake the boys made was that they did not attach something stronger than a fish line to the hammer, for at the first pull the string parted and they had all their trouble for nothing, as they were unable to make fast another string.

A LIFE LESSON.

There, little girl, don't cry.
They've broken your doll, I know,
And your tea set blue
And your toyhouse, too,
Are things of the long ago.
But childish troubles will soon pass by.
There, little girl, don't cry.

There, little girl, don't cry.
They've broken your slate, I know,
And the glad wild ways
Of your schoolgirl days
Are things of the long ago.
But life and love will soon come by.
There, little girl, don't cry.

There, little girl, don't cry.
They've broken your heart, I know,
And the rainbow gleams
Of your youthful dreams
Are things of the long ago.
But heaven holds all for which you sigh.
There, little girl, don't cry.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

AN INDIAN LEGEND.

In the county of Berkshire, state of Massachusetts, the lofty Monument mountain rears its gray form. If there is anything sublime attached to a mount, a rare beauty will be admitted to linger around this wild and towering line of rocks. Its bold and frowning front extends about one mile, and so roughly is it flung together by nature and standing at the same time so perpendicular that a tremulous chill hurries over the body as the awestruck beholder gazes up at it. A few knotty, dwarfish pines are to be seen peering obliquely from the narrow crevices, looking green even among rocks, like hope flourishing on the borders of despair.

The red bolt from the thundercloud, the winds and the power of centuries have torn way many fragments of stone from on high and sent them smoking to the base, where already a long pyramidal line is strung along, quite a mountain in itself. The rear of this place falls off with a gentle slope, which is overshadowed by tall and regal looking trees, whose giant roots have never been broken. It presents a fearful yet magnificent appearance. There is no village near to wake the solemnity of its solitude, and silence is as profound at the sun's meridian as at the hush of midnight. It always seemed to me this spot was a favorite with the sun, for the first rosy flush of morning appeared uneasy until drinking the dew from the trees upon its brow, and his last rays lingered there at evening, even after a partial twilight began to fling a dusky shade over the vast valley below. But this may be imagination.

I must just mention a circumstance in relation to this mountain which gave to it the appellation which it has received.

Once this backward slope was studded with the wigwams of the Indians, called the Stockbridge tribe, and tradition has handed down many an ambiguous and chilling tale in regard to them. It was an established law among them that when an Indian committed a deed the penalty of which was death he should plunge himself, or, refusing to do this, be plunged by some one of his tribe, over this frightful precipice. Many had been dashed to the rocky vale below, and so high was the spot from where the victims were cast off that it was generally supposed that the rapid descent through the air deprived them of breath, and few if any had ever been conscious of anything when they had reached the earth.

A beautiful squaw transgressed by marrying into another tribe, and the penalty for such an offense was and ever had been death. She was well aware what her fate would be previous to her sealing it, but it did not restrain her. She disobeyed, and nothing could atone but the full extent of the law. Although she had courage sufficient to face death in marrying, she did not feel willing to sacrifice herself according to the mandate, and it therefore devolved upon some one to precipitate her over the cloud capped mountain. All her limbs being bound except her hands, she was borne to the verge and launched away with all the stoicism for which the Indians are famous. But here a thing occurred which had never been known before. In her downward flight she came in contact with the long branch of a pine which swung out many feet from the rocks, and, grasping it with the clutch of death, succeeded in breaking the force she had attained, and remained holding fast, suspended between the top and base of the mountain.

There she hung at the mercy of a slender branch, without even a hope of rescue. The space between her and the rocks was too much to think of touching them, and her strength, even in the cause of life, was not sufficient to draw her up to the limb. She cast her eyes up, but nothing was there but her relentless enemies, whose diminished and dusky forms were arranged along the edge of the mount.

They mocked her in the situation in which she was placed, and the aisles of the forest reverberated to their hideous and unearthly yells. Below all was in miniature—the rocks were dwindled to a level with the surrounding vale, the trees had shrunk away to bushes, an old chief, who was sitting on a rock stringing his bow, was but a speck, and the outline of his form could scarcely be traced.

It was morn when her sentence was executed, and tradition says that when the shadows of evening began to gather round she still was there, and her shrill cry was heard disturbing the quietness of the hour. Night came and passed away, and still she was swinging on this sloping pine, and the noise which she uttered told that hunger was doing his work upon her. Late in the morning some of the Indians, going over to the verge of the precipice and bending over, saw a few crows circling round the unfortunate victim's head, as if impatient for her wasting body, which they evinced by diving and darting at her form and then, rising suddenly in the air with outstretched wings, as if some motion of life had deterred them from their purpose. Often did they rest their weary wings upon the very tree by which she was supported, and the long day passed with some one of these sable creatures watching the moment when the grasp should fail and her body fall below.

It was on the night of the second day that a scene took place which has never been forgetten. The sun fell away at eve with a peculiar splendor, turning every object in the valley to a golden light and causing the Housatonic, in its serpentine course, to gleam up and spangle like liquid fire. Many was the hunter who lay watching the beauty of the beams which were flung around him, and when the last gorgeous streak had faded over Monument mountain the broad heavens were clear and blue, except the crimson folds which floated in grandeur along the west. Yet the squaw still hung by the branch of the pine, and her cries alternately rose through the deep stillness that reigned around.

But soon a leaden haze began to rise along the azure wall of the west and was shortly succeeded by dark, dismal looking clouds, around whose edge the lightning played, as if to light them on in their sad and gloomy pathway. The thunder muttered faintly, then sent its roll up to the meridian, and finally, with increased power, cracked and shook through the very heavens. The shriek of the squaw was heard in the profound pause after the roar had died away, but its echoes stirred not the sympathies of any one of the tribe. Higher and higher rose the storm. The lightning crinkled over the sky more vividly, and the report followed so soon and heavy that the gray old trees of the mount trembled as the peals burst through the upper world.

Night had set in with all its blackness, when a party of the tribe proceeded to behold the situation of the squaw. Soon after their arrival a flame of fire suddenly lit up the woods. The pine was struck by a thunderbolt, setting it on fire, which, being parted from the cleft of the rock, spun round and round so swiftly that naught could be traced of the tree itself or the squaw whom they supposed to be attached to it. Upward it hurried into the air, burning and whizzing in its course, the torrents of rain not even dimming its glare. Tradition says it whirled with such velocity that it did not seem to the eye to turn at all. Away it went, and it is said the Indians gazed at it until it seemed no bigger than a star, when finally it was lost in the blackness of the sky. The base of the mount was immediately examined, but nothing was to be seen either of the pine or the squaw, when it was finally concluded in council that it was the work of the Great Spirit. The Indians, therefore, raised a monument by rolling stones together, which stands to this day, and from which the mountain takes its name.

The untutored urchin quickens his pace when passing this spot after daylight has departed from its summit and whistles a lively air to elevate his drooping spirits, and the teamster, as the crack of his whip rings among the rocks, starts from his seat as if a spirit spoke, so strange are the associations connected with Monument mountain.—New York News.

Drew on Sight.

Commercial law terms are not entirely safe at all times. John E. Watrous, deputy United States marshal for the southern district of Kansas, sends in this story:

Mart Hoover years ago, when Kansas was not the cultivated commonwealth it has since become, had sent a consignment of corn to a commission merchant in Kansas City. The merchant telegraphed, telling the consignor: "Your credit is $27.40. Draw on me at sight."

But Hoover was mad. He had expected his money, and none came. He felt he had been duped, and he treasured up the grievance. One time, about six weeks later, the commission man came to Hoover's town, got out of the bus and started to walk down street. Hoover saw him and instantly drew his revolver and fired. His eye was fairly good. The bullet cut away the merchant's necktie and unfastened his collar.

Then Hoover put up his gun.

"That's expensive shootin," said he, "but I reckon you're as sorry as I am."

"What do you mean?" demanded the town constable, arresting the gun man.

"He told me to," said Hoover, surprised.

"Told you to?" demanded the white cheeked city man. "I never did anything of the kind."

"You did," said Hoover, and drawing out the telegram he read:

"'Draw on me at sight.'

"I done it," said he.—Chicago Post.

How a Great Canvas Was Moved.

The moving of a painting from a pavilion of the city of Paris in the Champs Elysees to the Auteuil gallery offered a very difficult problem to the Paris city authorities. The painting, by M. Roll, representing the celebration of July 14, is 32 feet long by 23 feet high and with the massive frame weighs over 2,200 pounds. It was impossible to move the painting in the ordinary way, by taking the canvas off the frame and rolling it, for the painting, being varnished, it would probably have cracked in several places. It was therefore decided to move the canvas and frame as a whole. After much deliberation a special chariot was constructed over two of the floats which were used in the Mardi Gras procession. The city engineer, with eight laborers, proceeded to the pavilion and the painting was carried by eight men, eight others bracing the upper part of the picture to keep it in an upright position until it was deposited in the chariot. It was finally got out without accident and slid upon greased planks upon the chariot. Arrived at the Gallerie d'Auteuil, the picture was similarly carried to its new quarters. The painting is one of the largest in existence and was painted by order of the French government in 1880 to perpetuate the memory of the first national holiday of the third republic.—Paris Letter.

Price of Coal Raised.

Chicago, July 9.—Railroad companies yesterday issued orders to confiscate all coal being carried over their lines. The order carried confusion in its execution, and local coal companies who expected to receive special shipments were embarrassed. The price of common soft coal also jumped 40 cents a ton, while the new screenings were rated at double their customary value. Fully 15,000 carloads from the mines in southern Illinois were confiscated by the railroad companies.

Packing Company Assigns.

Boston, July 9.—The Public Market and Packing company of this city has made an assignment to Fred J. Flemings, S. P. Pike, James F. Bunting and Burnett B. Hart. The firm has branches in Lawrence, Lowell, Worcester and Manchester, N. H. By the last report the company owes about $100,000. The company is incorporated under the laws of Maine and its Boston place of business are at 880-94 Washington street and 1210 Tremont street.

Fred Kent Pardoned.

Ellsworth, Me., July 9.—Fred L. Kent, formerly cashier of the Ellsworth National bank, was pardoned from the state prison by President McKinley yesterday. His accounts on June 20, 1893, were short $19,000. He was arrested and convicted and sentenced to 10 years. He has been in the state prison nearly four years. Kent has been in ill health of late.

Big Mortgage Authorized.

New York, July 9.—It was officially announced yesterday that the directors of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad company have authorized a mortgage for $165,000,000, to be dated Nov. 1 next and to run 90 years. The rate of interest was not announced. The bonds, it is thought, will be placed on the market at an early date.

DEADLY HEAT.

Many Fatal Prostrations Reported From New England Points.

Concord, N. H., July 9.—The first fatal prostration in this vicinity by the extreme heat came yesterday, and the victim was John Linehan, 80 years old, at his home in Penacook. Mr. Linehan was born in Cork, and came to Penacook in 1852, where he engaged in the construction of the Northern railroad. He is survived by five sons and three daughters, one of his sons being Insurance Commissioner John C. Linehan of this city.

Augusta, Me., July 9.—The Kennebec valley continues to suffer under a hot wave, which showed a registration at Augusta of from 90 to 95 degrees in the shade and 120 in the sun; Hallowell, 97 degrees and Gardiner 95 in the shade. No prostrations have been reported.

Lancaster, N. H., July 9.—There has been little change in the temperature here since Monday, the thermometer reaching 95 daily and averaging 90 for the past week. No fatalities have, however, been reported.

Lowell, Mass., July 9. — Thomas Roughan, a young man, who had been in this country only four months, was overcome by heat yesterday while working with others in a hay field owned by Jesse Trull, in North Tewksbury. He died just on the arrival of the ambulance.

Boston, July 9.—Yesterday afternoon John Shea, a teamster, was overcome by heat in Faneuil Hall square and died in the ambulance while being taken to the hospital. Two other prostrations by heat were reported yesterday.

Newton, Mass., July 9.—John Wilson, 27 years old, a laborer on the track of the Boston and Maine railroad at Auburndale, was overcome by the heat yesterday. He is reported in a critical condition.

Manchester, N. H., July 9.—Ernest J. Rice of Malden, Mass., a student at Harvard university, died as the result of a sunstroke at the Old City hotel in this city yesterday. He wheeled down from Salisbury with his brother Willard yesterday morning, and was taken sick on the road. When he arrived here he was completely prostrated by the heat and sought medical assistance. He was put to bed and every effort made to save his life.

Michael O'Neil, a laborer, was prostrated by heat yesterday afternoon while working in a hay field. He died late last night.

Epworth Officers Chosen.

Portland, Me., July 9.—At yesterday's session of the Epworth league annual convention the following officers were chosen: President, F. S. Robinson, Rockland; vice presidents, James Bates, Gardiner; Miss Wentworth, Bangor; Emma J. Stearns, Saco; Miss Alice May Douglass, Bath; secretary, Miss Sadie A. Lovell, Dexter; treasurer, W. H. Perry, Hallowell; Junior league superintendent, Rev. C. L. Banghart, Oldtown. The place of holding the next convention was left open. There has been no invitation extended, and the matter was left to the cabinet to be settled upon before the next convention. Today will be spent in making excursions to points of interest.

Dispensary Accounts Short.

Coulmbia, S. C., July 9.—Shortages in the moneys due by county dispensers to the state were brought to light by the dispensary board of control yesterday. The books are in such a state that no report can be made of all the shortages but it is probable that the total sum will be very large. For the period between March 28, 1895, and Nov. 30, 1896, the shortage is $12,702. Examination reveals the fact that the bonds given by the dispensers who have fallen behind in their accounts are in each case worthless, and that no steps have ever been taken to punish any of the offenders The showing has created a sensation.

Girl Missing From Home.

Boston, July 9.—Pretty Grace Stevenson left her home in Brookline on the evening of April 26 to go on a short errand and she has never since returned to comfort her distracted parents, while a search high and low throughout the city and vicinity, an examination of steamship lists and inquiries directed to all points reached by railroads from Boston, have failed to reveal the slightest inkling of her whereabouts. She is the daughter of James Stevenson, the millionaire real estate operator and owner of the city, and she lived with her mother at 1478 Beacon street, Brookline.

Corwine's Sentence Modified.

Washington, July 9.—The president has accepted the recommendation of Secretary Long and Judge Advocate General Lemly in the case of Paymaster Corwine, late of the Newport torpedo station, and has dismissed him from the naval service, while remitting that part of the sentence of the court-martial which called for his imprisonment for two weeks. The remission was made not only upon the recommendation of the secretary and judge advocate general, but also upon the court-martial's expression that the case called for clemency in view of the officer's fine record.

Refused Promotion.

Washington, July 9.—The senate committee on military affairs yesterday decided upon an adverse report on the promotion of Lieutenant Colonel Henry E. Noyes of the Second cavalry, nominated by the president to be colonel. The charge made against Colonel Noyes is that of failing to meet his financial obligations.

Railroad Commissioners to Meet.

Augusta, Me., July 9.—Arrangements have been made for a meeting of the railroad commissioners of the several states in New England and the state of New York with the members of the Maine board. The meeting will doubtless result in an organization of the commissioners of the states represented.

Had to Give Up Experiments.

Waterville, Me., July 9.—Professor W. A. Rogers of Colby university, the designer of a new X-ray machine, upon which he was to have experimented this summer with Professor Trowbridge of Harvard, has been obliged to give up his work, owing to poor health, and will take a two months' trip to the Azores.

Endeavorer's Injuries Were Fatal.

Colorado Springs, July 9.—Fred W. Everson of Abington, Mass., who was thrown from a coach while going through the Garden of the Gods, about four miles west of here, last Friday, is dead. In the overturning of the coach a dozen passengers were injured. Everson received internal injuries.

SENATOR HARRIS DEAD

Famous Figure In American History Passes Peacefully Away.

Was Confederate Governor of Tennessee.

He Was First Elected to Congress In 1849 Twenty Years a Senator.

Washington, July 9.—Senator Isham Green Harris of Tennessee, who would have been 80 years old on Feb. 10, next died yesterday afternoon at his residence here, all attempts to revive his strength sufficiently to get him away having failed. His stomach had given away and he lived all day on a hypodermic injection in the leg of some 50-year-old whiskey sent him by an admirer.

The senate adjourned today out of respect to his memory, with real regret for, in spite of his peculiarities of manner, which made him one of the most picturesque public characters, he was generally liked by all the older senators who were his warm personal friends.

Probably no man in public life has been identified with more of the history of this country than had Senator Harris. He had almost completed his 79th year having been born in February, 1818, and first became a member of congress in 1849. His congressional career thus began earlier than that of any member of either house, ante-dating Senators Morrill and Sherman by seven years, and Hon. Galusha A. Grow, now a member of the house from Pennsylvania, by one year. Mr. Harris had, when he was elected to the national house of representatives, already become a man of state reputation in Tennessee, having previously served as a presidential elector of the Democratic ticket, and two before been elected a member of the legislature of the state.

SENATOR HARRIS.

Mr. Harris represented the Ninth Tennessee district in congress for two terms, ending in 1853, when he declined a renomination. He then moved to Memphis, where he had since resided. Here he was engaged in the practice of law until 1857, with the interruption necessary to allow him to become a presidential elector in 1856. He was three times in succession before the war beginning in 1857, elected governor of his state, and was serving in that capacity when the war broke out. He took a pronounced stand for the Southern Confederacy, and was known as one of the Southern war governors. The vicissitudes of conflict rendered a frequent change of residence necessary, and he was often with the army in the field. He attached himself at different times to the staffs of General Albert Sidney Johnston, Joseph E. Johnston, Beauregard and Bragg. Albert Sidney Johnston fell from his horse into Senator Harris' arms when he received his death wound. After Lee's surrender Mr. Harris was one of a small party of political refugees who escaped to Mexico.

Parson Brownlow, who had become the military governor of Tennessee, offered a large reward in a characteristically worded poster for the capture of his predecessor, but the latter remained absent from the country until his return was safe. He remained in Mexico for several months, going thence to England, where he remained until 1867, when he returned to Memphis and resumed his practice of the law. Mr. Harris was allowed to follow the pursuits of the private citizens until 1877, when he was elected to the United States senate, defeating Hon. L. L. Hawkins, Republican. He had remained a member of the senate ever since, and would have completed his 20th consecutive year in that body on the 4th of next March if he had lived to that date. He had been four times elected to the senate, the last time in 1895.

Senator Harris had received almost all the honors that the senate could bestow. He was the president pro tempore during the Fifty-third congress, a leading member of the committees of finance and rules, and also of the Democratic advisory or steering committee.

He had long been awarded by common consent the front place on both sides of the chamber in parliamentary questions, and in recent years he had been more frequently heard in expounding these questions than in the elucidation of other subjects. He was possessed of a very positive manner, and never failed to throw into his statements concerning parliamentary practice the fullest force of which he was capable. His language on these and other occasions was generally so uncompromising that he was regarded by those who knew him not as a man of little feeling. That, however, was not true, and that the country was true, none are now so willing to testify as his opponents in the senate, who unite in attributing to him a warm heart.

Senator Harris has not been especially active in the senate since the passage of the Wilson-Gorman tariff act in 1894. He was one of the three Democratic senators intrusted with the arduous duty of putting the bill in shape in committee, and to him was delegated the control of the parliamentary work of getting the bill through the senate.

Senator Harris was a native of Tennessee. His father was a planter, who had emigrated to the state from North Carolina. He was admitted to the bar in 1841.

BAREFOOTED AND MANACLED.

Escape of a Desperate Man From a Deputy Sheriff In Maine.

Sanford, Me., July 9.—Eugene Herson of Center Lebanon, who broke away while handcuffed from a deputy sheriff who had him under arrest, is wanted by the York county officers in a peculiar case. On Tuesday, Herson went to the home of his brother, Orrin Herson, and it is alleged began abusing Mrs. Herson and her daughter Ethel.

Finally Mrs. Herson sent one of her boys after her husband, who was in the field. This action made Eugene very mad, and it is alleged he hit Mrs. Herson across the neck, and one of the boys across the chest with a crowbar. By this time Orrin Herson had come in and Eugene threw a hammer at him. Then Miss Herson went to her father's assistance. Eugene, who was armed with a double-barrelled shotgun, raised the gun and aimed at the young woman, pulling the trigger. It happened that this barrel had been discharged the day previously by one of the boys, but the second barrel was loaded. Eugene again raised it, but his brother seized it, and the men, in their struggle, rolled down stairs together. Eugene was the under man, and Orrin held him while Mrs. Herson bound him hand and foot. A sheriff was sent for, who left Eugene in charge of two men while he sought a warrant. This he obtained, and early Wednesday morning served it. The sheriff delegated Ramson Roberst as a deputy sheriff to guard the prisoner. Eugene asked Roberts to get him a drink of water, and while he did so Herson broke his bonds, except the handcuffs and escaped. Although barefooted, Herson has not been overtaken.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Chicago—

The Colts defeated the Bostons yesterday in a 10-inning contest, the most exciting and best played here this season. The Bostons scored their only run in the first on two singles and a wild pitch. A double, a sacrifice and a single tied the score in the fifth, and the winning run came in the tenth, Griffith batting it in, after a single and a steal. The Bostons played a wonderful game in the field, but were unable to hit Griffith.

Tramped Around the World.

New York, July 9.—Eighteen months ago yesterday Frank Burton left the city hall on a trip around the world. He began the journey as the result of a wager made by two prominent sporting men in this city. One, who was an admirer of Burton, declared that he could go around the world, starting without a cent in his pocket and make the trip without begging, borrowing or stealing a dollar. Each of these two men staked $5000 on the trip. Yesterday afternoon Burton walked into the mayor's office, his journey completed. He arrived in New York with $3000 earned on the trip, and will receive $2500 of the money wagered on the trip. Burton says that he was sick with typhoid fever for 14 weeks in Shanghai, and that he was wrecked on the steamer Angie Maud in the Indian ocean. The steamer ran upon a reef and was a total loss.

It's wiser being good than bad;
It's safer being meek than fierce;
It's fitter being sane than mad

Though a wide compass round be fetched;
That what began best can't end worst,
Nor what God blessed once prove accurst.

First Church Picnic.

About 100 of the members of the First church Sunday school braved the heat yesterday and went to Merry Mount park for a picnic. A hurdy gurdy made music for dancing and enlivened the affair. There was lemonade in great supply. The children scrambled for peanuts, ate ice cream furnished by Mr. Faxon and romped as much as the heat would allow. Owing to the extreme heat games which had been arranged, were abandoned, but there was a race to see who could eat a doughnut first suspended by a string. Morton Smith took the prize among the boys, and Miss Higgins was the most agile among the girls. As evening came on, it became cooler, and the children separated, agreeing that the picnic was a great success.

CONCLUDED.

CHAPTER IV.

How weary are the years of enforced resignation and suppressed desire that span the arid places between the few real oases of our lives! Those scant, brief periods of fulfillment, when heart and soul revel in the joy of earthly fruition, come to many like drops of water upon a tongue parched by an unquenchable thirst. Yet it is the self denials of our lives that chiefly render our place in the world endurable to others.

The sun did not cease to shine because of Jim Cheek's affliction. As soon as he realized that the earth remained unchanged the isolation of his own change inspired him to work and toil on and give no sign.

So the seasons came and went, and as his little girl grew his heart expanded. She had been called Darthuly Ann. Jim quietly dropped the former name, and in time little Ann Cheek became known all round Hiawassee gap as "jist the sweetest and purtiest young un in the settlement." She had roguish brown eyes and brown hair, with an added tinge of gold, as though the last faint flush of a dying sunset had found refuge there.

The clink, clink of the blacksmith's hammer rose over the roar of the river winter and summer. People crossing the ferry at night saw the light of his cabin fire, far up the obscure mountain wall, flashing down upon them like the twinkle of an inaccessible star. The inscrutable frown of the cliffs lowered over them, clad, as of old, in the ever alternating garb of the seasons.

The child developed like the unfolding of a double rose, and Jim found the many quirks and oddities of the juvenile mind a never failing source of wonder. Though his understanding was limited, his faith in the feminine capacity for surprise was unbounded. Little Ann's brisk, vivacious prattle and cunningly unique ways became to him the most deliciously incomprehensible muddle in the world.

At 10 years of age she had assumed such charge of his ungainly person and simple habits that, in his own mind, he hardly knew where his own obedience began or her playfully precocious authority ended. There was such a harmonious reversal of their mental relations toward each other that Jim often averred that "ef that thar young un didn't shoe the hosses and p'int the plows hit weren't bekase she couldn't or dassn't."

The vulgar associations connected with the stillhouse shrank from her approach as the foul exhalations of a dungeon yield to the pure influx of the outer air. As years advanced Jim himself became charier of their evil influence, feeling instinctively the unsullied guardianship of his child hovering around him.

In summer time, when he went to the railroad towns or to the great hotel at White Cliff with butter, eggs and garden truck, she always accompanied him. A sultry day in August found them at the latter place.

Having disposed of their produce, Jim was talking to a group of sportsmen who desired a guide to some hunting grounds in the Tellico mountains when a waiter called him to one side and said that a lady guest of the hotel wished to see him.

"Whar's little Ann?" quoth Jim, not seeing his child around.

"She's with the lady, sah," said the waiter. "Las' door at the far end of this long piazza. Bettah hurry, sah. Lady pow'ful anxshus to see you."

"Wants ter see me bad, does she?" muttered Jim, slouching along toward the door in question. "'Tain't offen that these yer big folks gits in that way about Jim Cheek. I am erbleeged ter think she'll find she's barkin up the wrong tree atter all."

The door stood open. Jim cleared his throat, pulled off his ragged hat and entered the room, saying:

"Yer I be, ma'am. What kin I do fer ye"—

He paused, open mouthed, for seated on a sofa in the richly furnished room was a fashionably dressed lady with her arms around Ann—his little Ann—in an attitude of undisguised emotion and endearment, to which the child submitted with evident wonder and reluctance. She now broke loose from the woman and ran to Jim, exclaiming:

"Pap! Oh, pap! She called me in, and she says she knows we uns. She says she's my mammy. But I jest know she ain't, for I ain't got nary mammy, have I, pap?"

The lady rose hurriedly. In her manner embarrassment and wistful eagerness strongly contended. Her dark, splendid, mature beauty shone out from the quiet elegance of her attire like a ruby above its golden setting. Jewels sparkled on her fingers and her dress was of Parisian origin. From beneath a hat that was a trophy of the milliner's art rich tresses of wavy black hair escaped in that charmingly disordered profusion which is now the type of the highest art.

Jim dropped his hat and stood, the embodiment of awkward stupefaction, with little Ann clinging to his legs and looking round at the strange lady, who, quickly recovering herself, passed behind them and closed the door. Jim picked up his hat.

Then the lady placed one hand on Jim's ragged shoulder as he rubbed his head helplessly and gazed upon his weather beaten features long and earnestly.

"Jim."

Her voice had the clear, wonderful ring as of old, to which was added that perfection of accent which social polish gives.

"Jim Cheek, do you know me?"

With a great effort Jim again brought his eyes to bear upon this vision of beauty. As comprehension began to dawn upon his slow moving intellect, his gaze grew steadier, but there was no answering tenderness or eager acknowledgment foreshadowed therein.

"Don't you remember me, Jim Cheek?"

"Waal, I reckon I do now. Ye air the woman as runn'd off with Dick Bufford."

She cowered for an instant and removed her hand from his shoulder. He mechanically brushed the spot, while his face gradually hardened. The splendor of her appearance was that of too different a world from his own to inthrall him now.

"He is dead," she murmured. Then, clasping her hands, she exclaimed passionately, "Oh, Jim, I want my child, my only child!"

"Yer child? Waal, I reckon ye don't mean this yer little gal, fer ef ye do ye air a-laborin under a small mistake. She ain't yer child now, whatever she mout hev been onct."

Little Ann, having possessed herself of one of Jim's hands, looked from one to the other in childish bewilderment. She was barefooted, yet neatly clad in striped linsey, with long, tumbled hair falling upon her shoulders. The lady's face flushed, then grew slowly pale as she realized that all her beauty and luxury made no impression upon the man she had once deserted.

"Jim," she again began, "I don't defend myself. My life was all wrong, even before I met you, and I deceived and wronged you most of all. But I didn't know myself. I couldn't help doing as I did. He—made me do it. He ruled me. But, oh, how I have repented,

"Go—now, please."

even before his death. Amid his wealth—for we went to Colorado, and he made money there—I became wretched. My heart went back to my child, my only child."

"I knowed—after what happened—I knowed in reason ye couldn't hev keered much fer me. I allays wondered how ye come ter keer fer me at all, fer I ain't much ter keer fer nohow. But little Ann, she's defer'nt, of course."

Jim allowed his fingers to close over the child's small hands fondly; then he resumed:

"She keers fer me, don't ye, honey? But I'm a-fearin she can't under the pecoolyer sarcumstances partiklerly keer fer both on us ter onct like."

Here Jim straightened himself and looked full at his former wife unflinchingly. Could she, now standing before him, clad, as it were, in purple and fine linen, with a delicate perfume exhaling from her presence over his unaccustomed senses, could she be—his faithless Darthuly? He knew it must be so, yet the realization seemed impersonal and vague.

"At first I didn't care much for you," she said, "I wanted shelter and a home so badly. My life had been a hard one. But your love and kindness soon made me care for you. If he had not come back, all would have been well. But he—he—I"—she blushed and hesitated under the stringency of her self impelled confession—"he had met and deceived me before you knew me. I cannot explain, but somehow I could not resist his power. But I have repented—indeed I have repented."

She hid her face in her hands, while little Ann shrank from the vehemence of the strange lady's actions and words. Jim's eyes wandered from her dress and jewelry to the big Saratoga trunks against the wall and around the luxurious appointments of the room.

"Does these yer fixin's," he asked bluntly, "and all yer fine dressin and ways and sech come of Dick Bufford's money what he left ye?"

She appeared not to hear him, but as he repeated the question her hands fell and a look of confusion appeared on her face.

"People are obliged to have money in this world," she replied almost doggedly.

"We uns yer in the mountains gits along on powerful leetle," said he. "But air ye a-usin of his money now?"

"Yes, Jim, I am. He has gone where he'll never need money again"—

"If he ain't in hell, he ought ter be," interrupted he emphatically. "And was ye a-goin ter tempt me and Ann with some of the cussed stuff too?"

Facing him there, she felt that all the power and pleasure her wealth had invoked to appease the deep longings of her heart toward her husband and child were rising as a curse to still further separate her from her desire. Had she not dreamed fondly of how this money would relieve their wants, expand and minister to their crude enjoyment? Had she not planned how, in a new land unhaunted by the past, this same money should gild the path of forgiveness and forgetfulness with ease and pleasure until conscience slumbered, love renewed itself and retribution was forgotten?

Yet here was Jim—poor, simple, honest Jim—repulsing the golden bribe which she had felt ought to bridge the chasm of shame yawning between their honorable poverty and her own repugnant splendor. There is nothing so inaccessible as virtue under certain contingencies. Clothe it in rags, pinch it with penury, grind it beneath a worldly scorn, yet its hollow eyes and wasted features illumine the vale of humility like diamonds in the mire, gleaming unsullied from out the filth of their surroundings upon the spurious glitter, that envies through all its false exaltation the purity no tongue can smirch and from which it stands forever barred.

She did not reply at once. Jim, totally unawed as yet, hitched at his "galluses" and went through sundry awkward movements for no apparent cause whatever.

"Who is she, pap?" whispered Ann, who had interposed Jim's body between herself and the object of her curiosity.

"Waal, honey," said Jim, slightly embarrassed by the directness of the inquiry, "this lady is—she—waal, hit seems like she was onct"—

"Child, I am your mother—your own, only mother, as I told you before!" exclaimed the woman. Then with sudden abandon she clasped little Ann's face between her hands and kissed her once, twice, thrice. The child shrank back, frightened, while Jim coolly interposed his own bulk between them, saying:

"Thar, now, thar! Ann's ways and mine air turrible defer'nt from your'n now, and we mout as well git outen yer. Ye hev got yer money, and little Ann and me hev concluded that we jest p'intedly don't want any smidgeon on it."

"But, Jim, Jim, think what money can do! I want your love. I want my child's love. I don't deserve it, but my heart yearns for you both. And—and I can make your hard lives so easy and pleasant now. It is all yours"—

"That thar'll do now." It is noticeable that while she called him Jim repeatedly he never mentioned her name. "We're purty poor, me and Ann, but we're honest, and we hev got a little mite of pride left yet. Ye needn't loom off any more on that subjeck, I reckon. Ye did yer level best ter bodaciously ruin both on us, but the good Lord ho'ped us ter git through somehow. We uns hain't got nary grudge ag'in ye, yet we p'intedly can't take up with yer projeck."

A momentary silence ensued, while the man and woman surveyed each other. In the long suffering blacksmith's eyes the wife read no answering tenderness to the seductive appeal that glistened in her own. Then gradually came the conviction that all these years of neglect had quenched forever the old love and hardened patience into indifference.

As she realized the futility of her efforts her heart sank within her. The longing that had brought her 2,000 miles to repair the past was merged in a greater pain than any that had yet come to her. But the pride she had long nursed came to her assistance now. She resolved to show her weakness no more where humility invoked only reproach. Her gaze grew cold and collected, and she withdrew a step as she said indifferently:

"Well, sir, you doubtless know what is best for yourself and—our child. I feel that I have no right to insist on anything that is repugnant to you. Believe one thing, though—it was not for myself alone that I have offered you wealth and ease, but," her lip would quiver though she bit it fiercely, "it was to make amends to you for the sake of her."

She pointed to little Ann. Jim became embarrassed, though he knew not why. While he stood fumbling at his hat the lady, with a sudden movement, kissed the child, and as Jim was about to speak said hurriedly:

"Say no more. I cannot bear it. Leave me. If you are ever in trouble and need money—for her—here is an address where you can always obtain it while I have it. Go—now, please."

She pointed rather imperiously toward the door. Jim hesitated, cleared his throat, spit recklessly on the carpet, then took Ann's hand, saying:

"Le's go, honey. She air right. Hit air the best all round, I reckon." Then to his wife: "Don't think as I ain't pestered about ye, or that we uns wishes ye any harm. But I jest can't hope doin what I believe ter be right—I jest can't hope it. Goodby, Darthuly."

It was the first time he had called her by name. She almost broke down, and motioned for them to go, which they did, Jim leading little Ann, who still looked back uncomprehendingly.

As the door closed behind them the wretched wife and mother stood like one in a trance until the shambling echo of their footsteps had ceased to sound along the piazza; then, with a long, tremulous moan, she sank to the floor and buried her face in her arms upon the sofa.

In an hour came the summons to dinner. She rose, dressed herself with care and glided into the great dining hall, a vision of cold, superb and indifferent loveliness. By the next afternoon the "rich Colorado widow" was gone, some said back to Pueblo, others to the White Sulphur Springs, others to this place or that. No one seemed to know, and soon no one cared.

Meanwhile Jim trudged on home beside his steers, with little Ann coiled up in the hay at the bottom of the wagon.

"Pap," said she after an hour or so of silence, "pap, who is that thar fine lady? I jest know I haven't got nary mother, hev I, pap?"

Jim flicked his goad gently over the nigh steer's horns before he replied reflectively:

"Waal, no; I reely can't p'intedly jest say as ye hev, honey, and yet"—

Jim hesitated, and Ann again asked:

"Waal, pap, who is she after all?"

"Durned if I can tell ye, child."

And he never did.

THE END.

Yellow Jack at New York.

New York, June 22.—The Columbian line steamer Finance, Captain Daly, arrived yesterday from Colon with three of her cabin passengers sick with yellow fever. There were also three deaths during the voyage to this port. Two of the bodies were buried at sea and the other was brought to port. The passengers were taken to Swinburne island and the vessel held in quarantine.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 11.
Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Individual responsibility for the conversion of the world.—Rom. ix, 1-3; x, 1, 13-15. (A missionary topic; prayer for the international Christian Endeavor convention.)

The individual to some extent today is being lost in the organization. It is an age of organization. In the church we have societies and organizations without number. In the business world there are trusts, syndicates, combinations, trades and labor unions without number. The same thing is true of the political, social and philanthropic world. The danger of all this is that the individual may be lost sight of, and with the passing away of the individual there may also pass away individual responsibility, which would be a serious calamity, for nothing could repay the loss of individual responsibility.

Organization also characterizes the missionary world. The conversion of the world is sought largely through missionary societies, boards, committees and bands. This is necessary. Individuals must be banded together in this great work if it is to be effective and successful. But the danger to the individual is the same here as in other spheres of life. We should always remember that our greatest responsibility to God in all His work is our individual responsibility. We will not have to give an account for the society or for the committee, but we will have to render an account of ourselves to God. This applies to our relation to the conversion of the world, as to every other Christian duty.

How can we meet this individual responsibility so far as the conversion of the world is concerned?

1. By individual interest in missions. Paul leaves us an illustrious example. He was intensely interested in spreading the gospel all over the world. He had "great heaviness and continual sorrow" in his heart for un-Christian Israel and would have given up his own hope of heaven if it could have saved them. How many of us have such a personal interest in the unchristian millions of the world today? How many of us sorrow and agonize for the lost souls of the world? Is it not a fact that our individual interest is low and that we leave the heaviness of heart for the missionary committee and think we have done our part toward saving the world if we give the committee 2 cents a week for missions?

2. By individual information in missions. How few Endeavorers know anything about missions! How often the accumulation of missionary knowledge is left to the committee also! If as individuals we knew of the awful needs of heathendom, it would not be so hard to interest us in the work of sending the gospel to all.

3. By individual gifts to the cause of missions. How much do we give for missions? Look over the past year and, with emphasis on the "I," ask yourself the question, "How much did I give for missions in the past year in comparison to what I spent upon myself?" Was it all that you could or should have given to save the world for Christ?

4. By individual prayer for missions. How many never pray for the unsaved world! How many leave this great subject for the missionary committee and in private, personal prayer never think of praying for the world!

Each Endeavorer, each Christian, has an individual responsibility toward the conversion of the world. May God help us, each one, to meet it!

Bible Readings.—Isa. xxxv, 1-10; xlii, 5-7; xlix, 6; Nah. i, 15; Dan. xii, 3; Math. v, 16; xxviii, 19, 20; Luke ii, 25-32; Acts i, 8; viii, 26-40; xiii, 1-5, 46-49; Rom i, 14, 15; I Cor. ix, 16; I Pet. v, 19, 20.

Called Upon Again.

No doubt most true Christians have much sweet peace and many bright and happy days in this world, but their peace is like that of the mariner who has battled with the tempests of the night, but when the morning comes the sky is bright and the sea unruffled, and with light and happy heart he voyages onward to the desired haven, or like the soldier who has made the march and fought the battle and gained the victory, and, though enjoying the soldier's rest and with it the sweets of triumph, knows not how soon the bugle may sound and he again be called to struggle with the foe.—United Presbyterian.

Sadness.

Sadness serves but one end, being useful only in repentance, and hath done its greatest work, not when it sighs or weeps, but when it hates and grows careful against sin, but cheerfulness serves charity, fills the soul with harmony and makes and publishes glorification of God.—Jeremy Taylor.

"Touchy" People.

Let a person get the reputation of being "touchy," and everybody is under restraint, and this way the chance of an imaginary offense is vastly increased.—Christian Observer.

Down, Not Up.

Life is to be measured down from God, and not up from man.—Episcopal Recorder.

The Outdoor Church.

The carven pillars of the trees,
The flowered mosaic of the grass,
The green transparent traceries
Of leaf on leaf that lightly lies
And lightly move when breezes pass—

The anthem of the waterfall,
My chorister the blackbird's lay,
And mingling with, suffusing all,
Borne by the wind and still let fall,
The incense of the new mown hay—

This is my church, my altar there.
Here earth, the kindly mother, kneels,
Her mighty hands outspread in prayer,
While o'er her brow the sunny air,
A south wind full of blessing, steals.

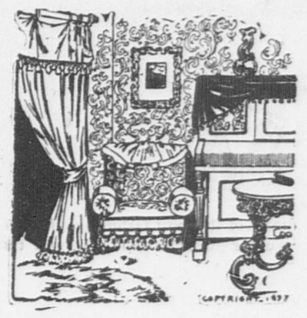

She wraps me in her mantle fold;
I kneel and pray beside her there
As children do whom mothers hold,
And living air and sunlight gold
And wood and meadow pray with me.

REVIVAL OF TROTTING.

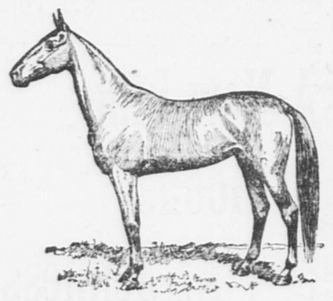

Plan For a $25,000 Free For All at Fleetwood.

BIG HORSEMEN IN THE SCHEME.

An Eventful Season In Kentucky—Rich Futurities For Youngsters—Strong Entries For the Famous Transylvania and Ashland Stakes—New Records Expected.

The exceptional popularity of the Suburban Handicap this year, won in 2:07 1-5 by Ben Brush, has given so great prominence to running racing that the owners of trotters have been stimulated to get up some vent of equal importance. Substantial horsemen are endeavoring to arrange a free for all at Fleetwood late in the fall for a purse of $25,000. It is proposed to place the entry fee at $500. The field from which to draw is large enough to insure a good lot of starters, and it is by no means limited to horses of the very fastest class, as shown by the records of 1896 or previous years. Here is a list of 35, all having claims to be considered in the first flight of this year, or likely to be so before the season is over: Alix, 2:03¾; Azote, 2:04¾; Fantasy, 2:06; Beuzetta, 2:06¾; Kentucky Union, 2:07¼; William Penn, 2:07¼; Onoqua, 2:08¼; Lockheart, 2:08½; Pat L, 2:09¼; Dan Cupid, 2:09½; Page, 2:09¾; Bouncer, 2:10¼; Baron Crisp, 2:12¾; Cephas, 2:11¼; Baron Rogers, 2:10¼; Baron Dillon, 2:12; Franklin, 2:10¼; Governor Strong, 2:10¾; Boodle, 2:12¾; She, 2:14¾; George G, 2:12¾; Iago, 2:11; Praytell, 2:12; Elloree, 2:11½; Newcastle, 2:11¾; Rex Americus, 2:11¼; Athanio, 2:11¾; Fred B, 2:11¼; Derby Princess, 2:11¼; Pilot Boy, 2:10¼; Gazelle, 2:11½; Stam B, 2:11¼; Grace Hastings, 2:12; Que Allen, 2:10½; Larabie, 2:12¾.

Trotting authorities concede that of the trotters in training C. J. Hamlin's Fantasy would have a little bit of advantage from a time standpoint, but the marked improvement steadily shown by William Penn, Baron Rogers, Onaqua, Kentucky Union, Lily Young, Harietta, Lockheart and Pat L. leads to the belief that Mr. Hamlin's great trotter would have to cover a mile in 2:05 to win. Efforts are now making to have James W. Cooke name Onaqua and to have H. O. Havemeyer indicate his purpose to start Harietta. With Fantasy and Kentucky Union sure to go in the rich stake there would be no doubt about the others coming in, as, with $25,- 000 to distribute, the fourth money would be $2,500, and any of last season's 2:10 horses would have a look in for this money.

FANTASY.

Racing in Kentucky promises an eventful season. At Lexington, in the $15,000 Futurity for 3-year-olds, 67 of the original nominations have been paid upon, while 68 remain in the $6,000 Futurity for 2-year-olds. The $5,000 Transylvania stake for 2:14 trotters received 20 nominations. The horses in this stake do not have to be named until later in the season, but the quality of the field that will finally start may be judged from the names of the subscribers, which are as follows: Bowerman Bros., Lexington, Ky.; Ira Bridge, Detroit; Richard Curtis, Lexington, Ky.; Village Farm, East Aurora; Marcus Daly, Anaconda, Mon.; C. F. Emery, Cleveland; C. L. Griffith, San Francisco; William Hopps, Baltimore; Scott Hudson, Lexington, Ky.; W. B. Fasig, Cleveland; E. M. Lockwood, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; E. D. Moore, Ottawa; H. C. McDonald, Lexington, Ky.; J. B. McFerran, Crescent Hill, Ky.; Oakwood Farm, Prairie View, Ills.; Pine Valley Farm, Dillonville, O.; C. C. Prouty, Des Moines; Splan & Newgass, Chicago; George Starr, Terre Haute, Ind., and C. W. Williams, Galesburg, Ills.

The Ashland stake for 2:11 trotters will bring together the following lot of racing cracks: Bouncer, 2:10¼, by Hummer; Baron Crisp, 2:12½, by Baron Wilkes; Cephas, 2:11¼, by Cyril; Baron Rogers, 2:10¼, by Baron Wilkes; Franklin, 2:10¼, by Gold Leaf; Baron Dillon, 2:12, by Baron Wilkes; Governor Strong, 2:10¼, by Dr. Strong; Boodle, 2:12½, by Stranger; She, 2:14¾, by Abbotsford; George G., 2:12¼, by Ayer's Gift; Iago, 2:11, by Tempest; Praytell, 2:12, by Axtell; Newcastle, 2:11¾, by Cornelian; Elloree, 2:11½, by Axtell; Rex Americus, 2:11¼, by Onward; Athanio, 2:11¾, by Junio; Fred B., 2:11¼, by Reveille; Derby Princess, 2:11¼, by Charles Derby; Pilot Boy, 2:10¼, by Pilot Medium; Gazelle, 2:11½, by Gossiper; Stam B., 2:11¼, by Stamboul; Grace Hastings, 2:12, by Bayonne Prince; Que Allen, 2:10½, by Champion Medium; Larabie, 2:12¾, by Jay Bird.

Cycle Preaching.

The latest bicycle preacher is the Rev. J. B. Randolph, colored, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church, Trenton. His congregation is mixed as to hue of skin, but is said to be highly cultured. When he took the church, a few months ago, the congregation was slim, while now every pew is filled. "I don't want bicyclers," says Mr. Randolph, "to get the idea they must dress up before coming to my church. If they are riding by with knickerbockers on, let them come in, knickerbockers and all. They can worship God just as sincerely and successfully in knee breeches as in any other kind of dress." "How about bloomers?" he was asked. "If a woman wants to come to my church with bloomers on, let her come. Bloomers are just as holy a garb as any other kind, and there is no reason why a woman shouldn't wear them to church if she feels disposed to."

Take Care of Your Wheel.

When you come in after a long ride, you doubtless do not feel much inclined to look after your bicycle, to rub it down or to oil it. However, you should brace yourself and look to your wheel before you attend to your own comfort. It will pay you to do this. It will also pay you not to let the air out of your tires when the wheel is resting. Nothing so quickly cracks a tire as to be left with the weight of the bicycle pressing on it with no air in the tubes.

ERRORS OF SPEECH.

A Few Common Ones That Should Be Guarded Against.

It is strange how many educated people say "Between you and I" for "Between you and me," "The book lays there" instead of "The book lies there," "Who do you mean?" for "Whom do you mean?" "It is awful cold" for "It is very cold," etc.

Among other errors may be named the following:

Guess, for suppose or think.
Fix, for arrange or prepare.
Ride and drive, interchangeably (Americanism).
Real, as an adverb, in expressions real good, for really or very good, etc.
Some or any, in an adverbial sense—e. g., "I have studied some," for somewhat; "I have not studied any," for at all.
Some ten days, for about ten days.
Not as I know, for not that I know.
Storms, for it rains or snows moderately.
Try an experiment, for make an experiment.
Singular subject with contracted plural verb—e. g., "She don't skate well."
Plural pronoun with singular antecedent, "Every man or woman should do their duty;" or, "If you look any one straight in the face, they will flinch."
Expect, for suspect.
First rate, as an adverb.
Nice, indiscriminately. Real nice may be doubly faulty.
Had rather, for would rather.
Had better, for would better.
Right away, for immediately.
Party, for person.
Promise, for assure.
Posted, for informed.
Stopping, for staying.
Try and do, for try to do.
Try and go, for try to go.
Cunning, for small, dainty.
Cute, for acute.
Funny, for odd or unusual.
Above, for foregoing, more than or beyond.
Does it look good enough, for well enough.
Somebody else's, for somebody's else.
Like I do, for as I do.
Not as good as, for not so good as.
Feel badly, for feel bad.
Feel good, for feel well.
Between seven, for among seven.
Seldom or ever, for seldom if ever, or seldom or never.
Taste and smell of, when used transitively. Illustration, We taste a dish which tastes of pepper.
More than you think for, for more than you think.
These kind, for this kind.
Nicely, in response to an inquiry for health.
Healthy, for wholesome.
Just as soon, for just as lief.
Kind of, to indicate a moderate degree.
The matter of, for the matter with.

Interest Rules.

Answers all being in cents, separate the two right hand figures to express dollars and cents:

Four Per Cent.—Multiply the principal by the number of days to run, separate right hand figure from the product and divide by 9.

Five Per Cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by 72.

Six Per Cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right hand figure, and divide by 6.

Eight Per Cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by 45.

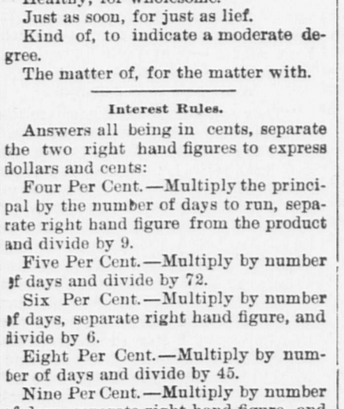

Nine Per Cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right hand figure, and divide by 4.

Ten Per Cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by 36.

Twelve Per Cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right hand figure, and divide by 3.

To find the time in which a sum of money will double itself at a certain rate of interest, divide 72 by the rate of interest, and the result will be the number of years. For example, at 4 per cent money will double in 18 years; at 8 per cent it doubles in 9 years. The rule is correct to within a fraction of a year for all rates from 3 per cent upward.

Boy Wanted.

A jolly boy.
A boy full of vim.
A boy who is square.
A boy who can say no.
A boy who scorns a lie.
A boy who hates deceit.
A boy with "stick to it."
A boy who despises slang.
A boy who is above board.
A boy who saves his pennies.
A boy who will never smoke.
A boy who is proud of his big sister.
A boy who has forgotten how to whine.
A boy who thinks hard work no disgrace.
A boy who stands at the head of his class.
A boy who does chores without grumbling.
A boy who believes that an education is worth while.
A boy who is a stranger to the street corners at night.
A boy who thinks his mother, above all mothers, is a model.
A boy who plays with all his might—during playing hours.
A boy who does not know more than all the rest of the house.
A boy who does not wait to be called a second time in the morning.

Lives of Animals.

A bear rarely exceeds 20 years.
A tortoise has been known to live to the age of 107.
A squirrel or hare lives 7 or 8 years, rabbits 7 years.
A dog lives 20 years, a wolf 20, a fox 14 to 16 years.
Elephants have been known to live to the age of 400 years.
Sheep seldom exceed the age of 10, and cows live about 15 years.
Camels sometimes live to the age of 100. Stags are long lived.
A swan has attained the age of 200 years. Pelicans are long lived.
Cuvier considers it probable that whales sometimes live 1,000 years.
Pigs have been known to live to the age of 30 years, the rhinoceros to 20.
A horse has been known to live to the age of 62, but averages from 20 to 30.
Insects, as a general rule, are short lived, though there are a good many exceptions to the rule.

"How did you come to know her?" asked a mother of her little girl, as she saw her bidding goodby to a poorly dressed child at the church door.

"Why, you see, mamma, she came into our Sunday school all alone, and I made a place for her in my seat, and I smiled and she smiled, and then we were well acquainted," was the pleasant answer.

GEMS IN VERSE.

A Fogy.

Of course I keep my Shakespeare near and dote on Milton, too;
Preserve my Homer from the dust and Dante bright and new,
For some one might inquire, you know, about these poets old
Who hid in mountain deeps of words their scattered thoughts of gold.

But when I'm fain to spend awhile away from traffic's mart,
Like Longfellow, then I seek some bard "whose songs gushed from his heart."
"The Old Armchair," by Hannah More, or Lowell's "First Snow Fall," Or "Highland Mary," by Bob Burns—these please me more than all.

They seem to nurture sympathy and lighten
all my dole
And wash the dust of worldliness from off the burdened soul.
Oh, yes, I love my Shakespeare much and Milton's lines indeed.
I keep the masters but to praise, the others but to read.

Self Dependence.

Weary of myself and sick of asking
What I am and what I ought to be,
At this vessel's prow I stand, which bears me
Forward, forward o'er the starlit sea.

And a look of passionate desire
O'er the sea and to the stars I send.
"Ye who from my childhood up have calmed me,
Calm me—ah, compose me—to the end!

"Ah, once more," I cried, "ye stars, ye waters,
On my heart your mighty charm renew!
Still, still let me as I gaze upon you
Feel my soul becoming vast, like you!"

From the intense, clear, star sown vault of heaven,
O'er the lit sea's unquiet way,
In the rushing night air came the answer:
"Wouldst thou be as these are? Live as they.

"Unaffrighted by the silence round them,
Undisturbed by the sights they see,
These demand not that the things without them
Yield them love, amusement, sympathy.

"And with joy the stars perform their shining
And the sea its long moon-silvered roll,
For self poised they live nor pine with noting
All the fever of some differing soul.

"Bounded by themselves and unregardful
In what state God's other works may be,
In their own tasks all their powers pouring,
These attain the mighty life you see."

O air born voice, long since severely clear,
A cry like thine in mine own heart I hear,
"Resolve to be thyself and know that he Who finds himself loses his misery!"

—Matthew Arnold.

By Their Works.

A man, not of the common clay,
But who had dreamed his life away,
Conscious of kinship with the great,
Knocked fearlessly at heaven's gate.
Admitted there, he straightway caught
The circle of those minds whose thought
Had been his own. * * * Not recognized
By those whose company he prized,
Disconsolate, he went away,
And then he heard an angel say,
"Here, as on earth, you find yourself alone,
Because by works, not thoughts, the man is known."

—Claude F. Bragdon.

My Mother's Song.

When the thrushes cease their singing and the wild bees leave the clover,
When the glory of the sunset fades and leaves
the heavens pale,
When above the hill and mountain misty shades of twilight hover
And the discords of the daytime far away in distance fail,

When the rath wheat gently rustles, and the timid aspens shiver,
And the west winds, sighing softly, scent from sleeping flowers bring,
When the peewits cry together plaintively by brook and river,
Then it is that I hear the old song that my mother used to sing.

Round my neck I feel the pressure of her fingers, warm and slender,
And in sleeping dreams and waking I have felt it many times,
Just as when of old I listened to that ditty,
quaint and tender,
Till the boughs that waved above us caught the cadence of the rhymes.

And my heart throbs loud and quickly as I hear it rising clearer.
Youth is mine—its hopes and visions, dreams
and plans, are mine—again;
Earth is fairer, life is sweeter—aye, and heaven itself seems nearer—
To me as I list in fancy to that ne'er forgotten strain.

—Chambers' Journal.

The Flight of the Years.

When one by one the silent, stately years
Glide like pale ghosts beyond our yearning sight,
Vainly we stretch our arms to stay their flight
So soon, so swift, they pass to endless night.
We hardly learn to name them,
To praise them or to flame them,
To know their shadowy faces,
Ere we see their empty places.
Only once the glad spring greets them.
Only once fair summer meets them.
Only once the autumn glory
Tells for them its mystic story.
Only once the winter hoary
Wears for them its robes of light.
Years leave their work half done. Like men alas,
With sheaves ungathered to their graves they pass
And are forgotten. What they strive to do
Lives for awhile in memory of a few.
Then over all oblivion's waters flow.
The years are buried in the long ago.

—Julia C. R. Dorr.

It Will Be Adjusted.

Don't blame the world because the thorns are found among the roses.
The day that breaks in storm may be all sunshine when it closes.
We cannot hope to always meet with fortune's fond caressing,
And that which seems most hard to bear may bring with it a blessing.

That buried seed must rot in earth ere it produce the flower,
And the weak plant to fructify must have both sun and shower.
So man to gain development must struggle with life's crosses
And view with calm philosophy his trials and his losses.

A deadly, pois'nous weed may yield a salve of surest healing.
The sweetest blossom may pois'nous be although its bane concealing.
Things are not always what they seem, but still 'twas heaven designed them,
And we should class them all as good and take them as we find them.

Little we know of this brief life and nothing of its sequel.
Then let us take in humble trust all that may seem unequal.
God's ways are not our ways, and he should certainly be trusted.
All that is wrong in his good time will surely be adjusted.

CLUB CRUISE.

The Quincy Yachts to Start Next Saturday for the North Shore.

The itinerary of the Quincy Yacht Club's annual cruise furnishes interesting reading for the captains of the fleet. Commodore Sanborn and Fleet Captain Saville are making preparations which cannot but help make the cruise a success.

The yachts of the fleet will rendezvous off the club house on Saturday, July 17. The captains will report at club house at 1.30 P. M. On signal from the flagship the yachts will pass in review on the starboard tack, Vice-Commodore leading, and proceed to Winthrop, where they will come to anchor near the flagship. No time will be taken on this run.

On Sunday, the 18, the fleet on signal will go to Marblehead. The time of each yacht will be taken as she passes the flagship. The first yacht to reach the harbor of Marblehead, will anchor and take the time of all yachts as they arrive.

On Monday, the 19th, the fleet will go to Manchester to witness the first race of the Manchester Yacht Club series.

On Tuesday, the 20th, the fleet will go to Gloucester. This will be a time run. The time of each yacht being taken as she passes the flagship, and the first yacht to arrive off Five Pound Island, Gloucester harbor, will anchor and take the time of all yachts as they come in.

Further movements of the fleet will be determined at a meeting of Captains on board flagship.

For the time runs the yachts will be divided into two classes. Those over 23 feet water line in one class, and those 23 feet water line or under in the other. Any sails may be carried. Each yacht must tow its tender. A pennant will be given in each class to the boat making the best actual time.

The party on board of the flag-ship, the large schooner yacht Bonita, will be composed of Commodore Sanborn, Fleet Captain Saville, Secretary Whiting, Mr. Fred. B. Rice, Ex-Commodore Pettengill, Mr. George W. Jones, Mr. Arthur T. Reed, Mr. Edwin W. Newcomb, Mr. Dunbar, Dr. N. S. Hunting and Mr. Gordon M. Keating. The squadron will probably return on Wednesday afternoon.

The Chestnut Street Drain.

Inquiry at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works disclosed the fact that Mr. Hardwick obtained permission from Commissioner Knowlton to open up the street in front of his house for a blind drain from his cesspool. It was represented to the official that from the nature of the grounds of Mr. Hardwick, it would be useless to construct the drain upon his estate. As the drain constructed was deep he did not think it would cause any damage to the street or become a nuisance. It was only a temporary arrangement until the sewer system of the city was ready. Should the drain ever cause a damage or nuisance, it must be discontinued.

The agent of the Board of Health was of the opinion that the drain would be operative for ten or fifteen years and that it would cause no nuisance. Being familiar with the soil, he thought it the only reasonable thing that could be done.

Orangemen to Parade.

The Orangmen of Massachusetts will celebrate the anniversary of the Battle of the Bayne, with a parade and picnic on Monday, July 12. Bay View Lodge of Quincy anticipate having a short parade in Quincy the morning before leaving for Boston to join the main procession.

They will form in front of their hall on Hancock street, and parade the following route headed by the City Band: Hancock to Canal, Canal to Chestnut, Chestnut to Hancock, Hancock to Saville, Saville to the depot, where the 7.42 train for Boston will be taken.

TRADE WITH EUROPE

LARGE INCREASE IN COMMERCE OF SOUTHERN PORTS.

Direct Trade With Europe Has Enormously Increased of Late—Ports of the South Beat Those of the North In Percentage of Increase.

The southern cities are making a good record this year in the matter of our foreign trade, as the following statistics show:

	1896.	1897.	Inc. P. C.
North Atlantic.	$412,010,708	$453,042,655	9.9
South Atlantic.	120,821,788	163,281,548	35.1
Gulf	129,035,469	178,047,808	37.2
All other	80,804,847	105,533,558	21.5
Southern	250,317,254	341,329,416	36.2
All other	408,815,550	558,576,213	10.1
Total	$749,332,804	$899,905,629	20.0

Direct trade with Europe is what the south has always needed for the development of its business. It would be best, of course, if this increase were in imports as well as exports, but then the export trade is likely to bring a reciprocal business from Europe in time.

General I. W. Avery, who has given the subject of direct trade much study and consideration, is particularly struck with the favorable showing of these figures and says:

"We see that of the 126 United States ports the 29 southern seaports, 22.3 per cent of the number, did 71.4 per cent of the whole increase, while the rest, 77.7 of the whole number, only did 28.6 per cent of the increase.

"Of the southern ports Galveston leads with $21,307,697 increase; Baltimore, $19,962,997; New Orleans, $17,821,043; Norfolk, $11,199,463; Newport News, $5,454,853, and Pensacola, $4,059,639.

"Compare the percentage of the southern individual port increase with the great eastern and other ports, and the contrast is the more striking.

"Norfolk's increase, 200 per cent; New York's increase, 10.5 per cent; Pensacola's increase, 105 per cent; Philadelphia's increase, 17.5 per cent; Galveston's increase, 66 per cent; Boston's increase, 6.3 per cent.

"These official figures are amazing when we consider that there were no regular southern lines of steamers for foreign trade but from New Orleans, Norfolk and Baltimore. Only tramp ships ran irregularity to other southern ports."

It is probable that all this export trade which has latterly been handled by the southern ports has been permanently secured by them and will not be lost, but we should not be satisfied with this business and should make every effort to develop and increase our foreign trade. All the conditions are favorable for it.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Railroad Building In Mexico.

Francisco Armendaiz, a millionaire mining man of Monterey, was in the City of Mexico recently concluding arrangements for building a railroad from Monterey to Matamoras, on the Rio Grande border, opposite Brownsville, Tex. The federal government will give the road a subsidy of $8,000 a kilometer, and the state of Tamaulipas will give the road $120,000. It will be an important military line and will give the government easy access to that part of the Rio Grande border.

An American company proposes to build a railroad from some point in Texas to connect with the Mexican road at Brownsville. The building of these lines will shorten the distance between the eastern and central parts of the United States and Monterey and the interior of Mexico by 200 miles.

The Forewoman Was a Man.

All of the employees of Henry Wallner & Bros.' hat factory, Wooster street, New York, were the other day discussing the sudden transformation of Beckie Feingold, forewoman of the shop, into Max Feingold, husband of Sophie Goldstein, who worked in Rudnick Bros.' paper box factory in the same building.

The person known as Beckie had worked for Wallner & Bros. for the last seven years until three weeks previously. The employee had risen from the place of an ordinary operator to that of forewoman, as she was called.

One day the employee went over to Brooklyn, changed his dress for man's clothes, cut his hair short and married Sophie Goldstein. A letter which has been received says that Feingold is now working as his real self in a Chicago cap factory. His wife is with him.

THREW AWAY A THRONE.

How a Shipwrecked Sailor Became King of the Cannibals.

Captain Curtis of the British ship Eurydice, which recently sailed for Europe from Tacoma, Wash., grain laden, had a thrilling experience last year, part of which is now made public for the first time. He was first mate on the ship Flora Stafford when she foundered in the south Pacific ocean. The crew embarked in boats, and after 15 days of hardships, during which both provisions and water gave out, Curtis' boat landed on one of the main Caroline islands. Though they sometimes practice cannibalism, Curtis and his fellow sufferers persuaded the natives to treat them kindly. In fact, the sailors claimed to belong to European aristocracy and announced that warships would be sent to exterminate the natives if they were molested. Curtis was received with greatest deference and made friends with King Ikickikee, who he claims abdicated in his favor. Curtis describes his reign as follows:

"My reign was brief, but brilliant. Proclamations were sent to all subjects to desist from eating the flesh of any white men who might thereafter be cast upon the shores of my dominions, this being done so none of my helpless shipmates who were yet at sea would meet death at the hands of the subjects of their erstwhile first officer. Ikickikee had a daughter. She had most exquisite golden skin and was tall, lithe and graceful. I wooed the princess and won her, and we had a gorgeous wedding. My reign ended after six months. When the first steamer passed the islands, I had become tired of royal life and actually disgusted with the smallness of my kingdom. I kicked over the throne, threw away my scepter and swam off to the ship. My guard of honor witnessed the last act of my reign and summoned the former king from his banana patch."

After several months Curtis reached Hongkong, where he was made skipper of the Eurydice.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DIED TO SAVE A DOG.

Rescued His Pet, but Was Himself Struck by the Engine.

As the engineer of the Erie express, New York bound, approached the Riverside bridge, near Paterson, N. J., recently he saw a young man, with a couple of hounds at his heels, hurriedly cross the tracks.

The young man and one of the dogs got safely over. The other stopped between the rails directly in the path of the onrushing locomotive and stood as if dazed. The man turned, called the dog and whistled shrilly, but the hound stood as if fascinated, heeding neither whistle nor call.

Just an instant the young man hesitated. Then he made a dash in front of the locomotive, seized the dog and threw it out of harm's way. But he had miscalculated the speed of the train. The pilot of the engine struck him squarely and his mangled body was thrown far into the air and out to the side of the tracks.

The impetus of the train carried it a mile or more. As soon as it could be stopped it was backed slowly to the scene of the accident. When the trainmen alighted, the body lay still where it had fallen. The two hounds were standing over it, baying mournfully at the top of their voices. The trainmen had to remove them by force while they examined the man lying, bruised and bleeding, on the ground.

The examination was brief. The young man was dead. He had died instantly, nearly every bone in his body being broken.

He was afterward identified as Jacob Tiggelman, who lived at Riverside. He was 22 years old, and his fondness for his dogs was known to everybody in the little suburb.—New York Journal.

A Retired Rear Admiral.

"They can put me off the active list because I've reached the lawful age," says Rear Admiral Brown, who has just been retired, "but they can't send me to the junkyard yet awhile. I've got lots of good stuff in me yet, and I don't propose to be tied up to rot. That's another reason why I want to go to Indianapolis. There's nothing for a retired admiral to do in Washington but go to the club and act as pallbearer at funerals. I told John Walker the other day that he would better die now, so that the secretary of the navy would name a torpedo boat after him, but he said he'd be hanged if he would. Walker is looking for a job too. We may go into partnership. But there is nothing to do in Washington but rot. We go to the club in the morning and read the paper and gossip awhile, then go home to luncheon, take a nap, go back to the club, play a game of whist, gossip awhile, go to a funeral (if there is one), home to dinner, another game of whist and then to bed. I'm too young a man for that routine."—New York Tribune.

A Flower Valued at Over $5,000.

A unique orchid was shown at a recent London floral display. It was the superb Cattleya reineckiana in bloom—the flower winged like a sea gull, pure white, with a body of gold and vermilion eight inches long. The famous orchid hunter Arnold found it shortly before his death in Venezuela on territory which he had cleared of rival collectors by threatening to "shoot at sight." Its price in the market is 1,000 guineas—which is pretty tall, even for a new variety.

Girl Graduates.

So stately and so dignified
She looks in cap and gown,
I hardly dare to speak to her,
This grad of great renown.

I scarcely can believe my eyes!
It surely can't be she
Who always seemed so very shy,
So very coy to me!

But suddenly the spell departs
And I give thanks to fate,
For anxiously she asks me if
Her mortarboard's on straight.

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION

For the Formation of a Street Railway Corporation.

Norfolk Southern Street Railway Co.

WE, the Subscribers, hereby associate ourselves together with the intention of forming a Corporation for the purpose of constructing and operating a Street Railway for the conveyance of passengers, agreeably to the provisions of chapter one hundred and thirteen of the Public Statutes and all general laws in addition thereto or amendment thereof.

The name of the Corporation shall be the NORFOLK SOUTHERN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY.

The proposed Railway is to commence at or near the junction of Washington street and Railroad avenue in the town of Norwood and County of Norfolk, and to extend through said town of Norwood to the town of Walpole, in said County, and through said town of Walpole to the town of Foxborough in said County, and through said town of Foxborough to the town of Mansfield in the County of Bristol, and through said town of Mansfield to a point near the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Depot in Mansfield, its terminus.

Its length will be about seventeen miles, and its guage four feet eight and one-half inches, as required by law

The Capital Stock of said Company shall be one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. ($150,000)

The seven following-named persons, being subscribers to these Articles, and a majority of them inhabitants of Norwood, Walpole, Foxborough or Mansfield, shall act as a Board of Directors, until others are chosen by the Corporation, viz.:

JOHN C. LANE of Norwood.
ROBERT S. GRAY of Walpole.
JOSEPH J. FEELY of Walpole.
EDWARD F. DRAPER of Boston.
GEORGE S. FORBUSH of Brookline.
FREDERICK S. LANE of Foxborough.
AARON R. SANDERSON of Boston.

And we hereby agree to take the number of Shares in the capital stock of said Corporation set against our respective names.

Witness our hands this first day of July, 1897.

Keith's Theatre, Boston.

The Symphony Orchestra players have scored another success at Keith's, where they have been giving concerts afternoon and evening during the past week, and they will be continued throughout the month of July. The idea of having a solo singer is an excellent one, and the selection of that wonderful boy vocalist, Witter Peabody, was a happy one on the part of the management. Isabelle Urquhart, formerly a Junoesque queen of burlesque and comic opera, is to appear in a little comedy, especially written for her, entitled, "In Durance Vile." The latest pictures in the Biograph are pronounced the best that have yet been exhibited in this wonderful invention, and a new lot of interesting and comic subjects will be added next week.

RELIEF FOR QUINCY.

A Sea Turn at 7 A. M. Made It Chilly This Morning.

The morning started in clear at sunrise with indications of a continuation of the hot weather, and the morning dailies predicted more heat, but old ocean frequently has surprises for the weather man, and shortly before 7 A. M. the wind "went east" and a cold damp wave swept over Quincy. It was hazy and cool all the morning with indications the first of the afternoon of burning off, and the temperature will probably rise some. The mercury stood at 75 at noon.

TODAY'S COURT.

Dennis Whalan was arraigned for breaking and entering the house of Elbridge Jones at Randolph. Case continued until Monday.

Robert O. Hamilton was arraigned for breaking and entering the shop of Nathaniel H. Tirrell at Randolph and the larceny of one gallon of varnish valued at $3. Case continued until Monday.

Frank J. Smith was arraigned for assault on Mary E. Smith at Randolph. He was discharged. Mary E. Smith the plaintiff in the case was fined $5 for neglecting to obey the summons of the court as a witness.

William H. Davis was arraigned for using profane language on the public streets of Weymouth. He was fined $5.

Ernest W. Phillips was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued one month.

The liquors seized from Gilmore Spring of Weymouth were forfeited.

James E. Mahoney came into court and paid his fine of $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

The case of William Connors for assault at Weymouth was again continued until next Tuesday.

Michael Fitzgerald was arraigned for assault on Mary Fitzgerald, his wife, June 29, when he struck her four blows on the back. She has been in poor health and under the physician's care since. The Court said the assault was a very serious one and bound him in $200 to keep the peace for two months.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Hold Up at Braintree.

Thursday night about 11 o'clock as Eddie Trufont and Frank Walker were on their way to South Braintree, they were stopped by men who asked for a match. The young men did not like their appearance and made a hasty escape, followed by brick bats and stones. They reported the matter quickly and a crowd of young men with guns of all sizes from the toy pistol to the shot gun headed by Officer Hunt started for the scene; the drum major falling in the rear.

While the boys were getting ready, it seems that Charles Wordworth, who was on his way home from South Braintree was also stopped. He made his escape and, going to his home secured two pistols and started after the rascals. He had not gone far before he met the South Braintree squad, and it was with some difficulty that they made themselves known to him, in order to prevent a volley of cold lead.

All hands then went down the street as far as Braintree and notified officer Galvin, but no trace of the men were seen. The boys meant business and if the guilty ones had been discovered there would have been several places made for the moonlight to enter, that did not exist before.

Visit to Adams Houses.

Quincy with her array of honorable representations of honored families and cherished remains of departed greatness, together with the rock-ribbed structure of her old-time commons has always aired herself with a patrician solidity which provoking as it may be to parvenu towns is accepted and acknowledged for its very stable foundation: in the "restored cottage" of John and Abigail Adams is added another to the list of the city's attractions which will be admirably augmented when the John Adams birthplace is also restored and opened to the public.

It was my privilege recently to entertain a party of thirty young people from Boston and among other places of interest, we visited these two Adams houses. While the children keenly enjoyed seeing all of historical interest so admirably displayed at the John Quincy Adams house and were delighted to be allowed to ramble through the rooms so closely associated with the memory of two men they have learned to honor, I think they appreciated more than all else, the curator's manner of presenting facts, and entertaining them. Not once during the hour did I hear from him any request that the children should desist from this or that, or do thus and so.

At the John Adams birthplace where the work of restoration has not yet begun, the house itself is the object of interest and here again we were met with a courtesy which delighted us all. Mrs. Titus, regent of the local chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution, kindly opened the house to us and graciously explained all of historical interest associated with it. So while the children gained much to aid them in their history work, I am certain they garnered something even better—the beauty of courtesy and kindly civility.

There is much, it seems to me, that our townspeople can do to help in the good work which the two societies have begun; each needs the loyal support of all who wish for the preservation of the two houses and perhaps this can be in no better way demonstrated to the Historical society than by visiting the "cottage," especially with out-of-town friends, that it may be noised abroad how well appointed and interesting the rooms of the society are.

Our patriotic society is about to set up housekeeping in the colonial way and there must be many connected with families that long since relinquished such housekeeping who would gladly give something to aid in the furnishing. Step into line! Lend a hand!

A Better Market.

The banking house of Henry Clews & Co., of Wall street, New York, issues the following review today:

The stock market experienced a fair reaction under sales to realize the handsome profits offered by the June rise. Efforts to depress values till further by repeated bear raids had little effect. Confidence has already revived far enough to effectually check any prolonged downward movement and those who hold stocks cannot be induced to sell. Of course this welcome change of sentiment is based on the conviction that we are on the eve of a genuine recovery in business. The prospects of such a change are brightening daily. Crop reports are satisfactory, and the farmers are likely to have plenty of wheat, corn and cotton to sell and to secure better prices for them than lately. From all parts of the West come encouraging reports of the business outlook. Industry revives slowly, but the improvement is real and promises to make headway.

—Two years ago Mrs. Price King of Labette County, Kansas, divorced her husband, who, being thus deprived of his means of support, went to the county poorhouse, where he has since remained. A few days ago Mrs. Price went to the poorhouse, took her ex-husband out and married him over again.

—The shipbuilders of the Pacific coast are anxious for the annexation of Hawaii and they expect the islands to become one of the important marine centres of the world.

—George Matthews, a Dorchester boy, was drowned in Houghton's pond at Canton yesterday.

HOT WAVE CONTINUES

Equatorial Weather from Maine to the Rocky Mountains.

New England Thermometers Range at 100.

Many Deaths and Prostrations Reported from All Sections.

Boston, July 10. — Thermometers throughout the country, from Maine to the Rocky Mountains, ranged about the 100 mark. The high humidity accompanying this hot wave has increased suffering greatly. The atmosphere in New England for the past five days has been suffocating, and there were an unusual number of fatalities. Another unusual feature of the "spell" is the ratio of prostrations in the country as corresponded with the cities.

In this city there have been numerous prostrations, but the fatalities were not numerous.

In Massachusetts.

Worcester, Mass., July 10.—Patrick O'Keefe, a paver in the city street department, was overcome by the heat yesterday afternoon and died late in the evening. He gave no evidence of prostration until after returning home and eating his supper. A physician pronounced it a case of sunstroke.

Holbrook, Mass., July 10.—Daniel J. Bresnaham, a laborer, about 55 years old, was overcome by the heat while haying yesterday afternoon. Bresnaham started from the field, but fell insensible by the wayside. He was carried home, where he now lies in a critical condition.

West Medway, Mass., July 10.—Thomas Coggins, a spinner, sustained a sunstroke yesterday while walking to this place from Caryville, one mile distant. He was taken to his home in Franklin, and it is expected he will not recover.

Watertown, Mass., July 10.—Thomas Coffee, 54 years old, was sunstruck while working on Main street and died an hour later. He leaves a widow and five children.

Walpole, Mass. July 10.—Joseph Elliott, who was sunstruck Thursday, is dead, after much suffering. He was 30 years old, and unmarried.

In Maine.

Augusta, Me., July 10.—The thermometer registered 101 degrees in the shade in this city yesterday at noon, the hottest known for years. The mercury stood at 130 in the sun. No prostrations reported. Many employed out of doors were obliged to discontinue work. The temperature at 9 o'clock last evening was 82. Gardiner's temperature stood at 101 yesterday at noon. Hallowell's was 102 degrees in the shade at noon and 129 in the sun. The men at work at the quarries had to discontinue. Yesterday was the fourth day of intense heat.

Waterville, Me. July 10.—There have been four successive days of intense heat, the thermometer registering 106 in the shade yesterday afternoon, with considerable air stirring. Though this is the hottest weather by 4 degrees known here there has been but one case of prostration. J. M. Cross, the well-known agriculturalist, reports the Maine crops miraculously improved by the warm wave.

Skowhegan, Me., July 10.—John Brown was overcome by the heat here yesterday and is not expected to live. At noon the thermometer registered 104 in the shade and 110 in the sun. It was the hottest ever known here.

South Berwick, Me., July 10.—Joseph W. Hasty, 31 years old, died here from sunstroke yesterday afternoon. He was haying when stricken. There were several other prostrations, but all will recover.

Bangor, Me., July 10.—The mercury reached 99 in the shade here yesterday, and much higher in other parts of the county. No prostrations have yet been reported.

In New Hampshire.

Manchester, N. H., July 10.—Francis X. Parent, 59 years old, died in the woods five miles southeast of this city last night as the result of heat prostration. Parent was the foreman of a gang of wood choppers. He leaves six children, all married. At midnight the thermometer in the doorway of the city hall registered 76.

Dover, N. H., July 10.—The first fatal case of sunstroke in this city occurred yesterday afternoon when James F. Cook, aged 60, a well known painter, fell prostrate while painting at the Granite State park. He died a short time later in convulsions.

Plymouth, N. H., July 10.—William Harriman, a farmer of West Plymouth, was stricken by the sun while haying yesterday afternoon and died almost immediately. He was 63 years of age and leaves a family.

Exeter, N. H., July 10.—Charles Riley, aged 30, unmarried, employed by the Boston and Maine railroad at the depot in Epping, died from the heat yesterday afternoon.

Rollingsford, N. H., July 10.—Henry Moses, a farm hand, while working in the field yesterday afternoon was overcome by the heat and died within a short time.

Concord, N. H., July 10.—The thermometer registered 110 in the shade on Pleasant street at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

From Other Places.

Chicago, July 10.—There were more deaths of human beings and of small animals, and the number of prostrations was greater than upon any other day of the long hot spell that has hung over Chicago. Sixteen people are dead from the heat, two are insane, and out of a large number of prostrations ten cases are critical. The dead: Charles Benson, committed suicide while insane, caused by heat; John Eaton, shot himself while suffering from heat; Rev. Father Otto Greenbaum, priest of St. Nicholas church; Henry Hahemann found dying near Park Ridge, driven to the deed by heat; Helen Halloran, Dora Johnson, Frederick Kraiser, Thomas Lynch. Annie O'Donnell committed suicide by taking carbolic acid, driven to the act by heat; Rachael Riston, Fred Schlemann, Jacob Staub, William Sienberger. Rev. Father August Tolton, priest in charge of St. Monicas colored Roman Catholic church; unidentified man, found in Washington park; August Vanderslee, hanged himself while insane from heat; two men were driven insane by heat. Out lin the Bridewell, where seven prisoners went insane Thursday because of the heat, three men ysterday took their lives. The night was a sizzling horror, there was comfort to be found nowhere, it was the hottest night Chicago has ever known.

New York, July 10.—The temperature at 11 o'clock last night in this city was down to 74 degrees, which was 11 points lower than it registered at 1 p. m., the hottest part of the day. The police report 11 prostrations, seven sudden deaths which were indirectly due to the heat.

Montpelier, Vt., July 10.—Deacon George S. Goodwin of East Montpelier was stricken by the sun while in his hayfield yesterday. He died soon after. He was 60 years old, and widely known in Washington and adjacent counties. All outdoor work in this city was suspended and prostrations were numerous.

DAVIS WAS EMBARRASSED.

Hyde Park Suicide Was Always Honest and Straightforward.

Dedham, Mass., July 10—An interview was had with Alfred C. Smith, the Dedham lawyer, who today was to have had a hearing on an application for a certificate of arrest on an execution against Edmund Davis, the Hyde Park lawyer who committed suicide. Mr. Smith's story is as follows:

Edmund Davis gave his note for $500 to a person who resides in Somerville. The note became due last winter, and not being paid when due was protested and suit was immediately brought against Davis in the district court for southern Suffolk. After a somewhat lengthy trial judgment was given for plaintiff for the full amount of the note, with interest and costs. Davis appealed from this judgment to the supreme court, but neglected to enter the same. The superior court affirmed the judgment of the lower court and Mr. Smith obtained an execution against him. The execution was given to a deputy sheriff about five weeks ago, and he made a demand on Davis, but failed to get any satisfaction. On the day the citation was returnable to the court counsel appeared for Davis and asked a continuance for two weeks, on the ground that Mr. Davis was sick, and Mr. Smith assented to the continuance. On the date to which the case was continued, Mr. Davis prsented a physician's certificate saying that Davis was under his care and would not be able to appear for two weeks more.

Not being satisfied, Mr. Smith summoned the physician and cross-examined him as to Davis' condition, and the doctor stated that Davis was in a bad mental state, verging on mental prostration, and seemed to be worrying very much about his business affairs. The doctor also said he had sent Mr. Davis to Paxton in order that he might recuperate, and that he would be able, without any question, to appear in court in two weeks. The matter was accordingly continued to Saturday, July 10, at which time Mr. Smith would probably have proceeded in the case had not Mr. Davis' death occurred.

Mr. Smith stated that, on looking up his case, he found Mr. Davis' financial standing very much embarrassed. Mr. Smith further stated that he had known Mr. Davis many years, and had had many business transactions with him. He always found him honest and straightforward in his dealings and zealous for his client's interest.

Pursuit Race Arranged.

Boston, July 10.—The intercity team match Boston vs. Philadelphia, has been arranged. Philadelphia has accepted the challenge, and Charles River park has put up a purse of $600. The event will be run off on the evening of Wednesday, July 21. The conditions of the race are as follows: A pursuit race with five riders on each side, starting at opposite ends of the track, the riders to each take turns in setting the pace, changing every lap, the leaders of either team to lap the rear wheel of the leader of the opposing team in order to win. With the expectation that the race will be a furious one, the management has set the limit at 10 miles. If at the end of 10 miles neither team is caught then the leader making the fastest time will be declared the winner.

President Wants Relief.

Washington, July10.—It can be announced on authority that with the presentation to the senate of the large list of diplomatic and consular nominations which has been prepared, and will go to the Capitol today or Monday, the president will decline positively to make another appointment to places of this character until after the adjournment of congress. This notice is inspired by a desire to spare useless importunities by seekers after diplomatic and consular places, and also to afford the president some relief.

Dragging East River.

New York, July 10.—All day yesterday experienced grapplers in the naphtha launches of the harbor police searching the bottom of the East river along the routes taken by the Long Island city ferry boats which run into the slips at Twenty-third and Ninety-second streets, this city, in the hope of finding Guldensuppe's head. They had no success, however, and if today, when the track of the Thirty-fourth street line of ferry boats is to be followed, the head is not recovered, the grappling will probably be abandoned.

Finals In Whist Championships.

Put-in Bay, O., July 10.—The preliminary contests for the Hamilton and American Whist league trophies closed last night and the finals will be played off this afternoon and evening between the two highest teams in each event. In the A. W. L. trophy contest the Americans, of Boston, are in the lead by three tricks over Toledo, who is second, and four tricks ahead of Albany, who is third. The rest of the 12 clubs are out of the race. The congress will adjourn tonight after the big contest is decided.

Female Footpad.

Haverhill, Mass., July 10.—George Farrington of this city was held up by a woman on the Lawrence road near the Bradley farm Thursday night. The woman, who was accompanied by a man, asked Farrington for a match, and when he offered her one she grabbed his watch chain and broke it, but secured nothing. He got out of the way as quickly as possible.

WORKING OVERTIME.

Tariff Conferees Held Long Sessions, With Two Intermissions.

Proceedings Kept Secret to Avoid Annoyance.

It Has Been Agreed to Make but One Report to Senate and House.

Washington, July 10.—The conferees on the tariff bill worked hard all day yesterday and until 10 o'clock last night, with only two intermissions. The members report that satisfactory progress is being made, but will not give any details of the proceedings or the rates considered. It has been agreed among the conferees to keep secret their doings until a final agremnt is rachd.

If the conferees' actions on the various items should be divulged they realize that it would involve them in no end of complications, as all those who are dissatisfied with the rates agreed upon would be down here en masse protesting and insisting that the controverted questions should be reopened. As it is the conferees are being deluged with telegrams and letters and fairly hounded at their hotels by those who are interested in securing either the senate or the house rates.

About the most important thing thus far agreed upon is that there will be but one conference report. Not until a final agreement is reached will either of the two houses be called upon to act. This course has been decided upon as the best means of expiditing final action as it would be much easier to convince those who might be dissatisfied with the rate fixed on a particular item to abandon their opposition if by so doing the struggle would end and the bill become a law. Partial reports on the other hand would give each house an opportunity to instruct on particular items and necessarily entail delay.

The conferees will leave the main points in dispute until those of minor character are out of the way. About 600 of the 800 amendments are comparatively unchanged and are being disposed of without difficulty. One of the conferees is responsible for the statement that in their deliberations the conferees have as yet encountered nothing over which there has ben any great clash. The statement that an attempt would be made by the senate conferees to compel the house to accept the bill as it passed the senate, which was widely circulated, is emphatically denied on the authority of one of the house conferees.

Civil Service Revision.

Washington, July 10.—The president and the members of the civil service commission have had a number of conferences recently on the question of a revision of the civil service rules so as to exempt certain important places which were included in Mr. Cleveland's last extension order. A final determination, however, has not been reached, but it is altogether probable that about 200 places will be taken out of the classified service. These will include deputy collectors of customs who are in charge of sub-stations and deputy collectors of internal revenue who have charge of the distribution of revenue stamps. There are approximately 150 of these places in each class. It is argued that the positions which it is proposed to restore to the excepted list are of great importance, and that as the stations of these offices are often far removed from that of their chief, who alone is responsible for their acts, he should have some voice in their selection.

President's Summer Plans.

Washington, July 10.—The president's summer plans were informally talked over with the members of the cabinet yesterday. If congress adjourns in season he will go to Chicago to attend the Logan day ceremonies on the 23d inst., and it is possible that he may seize the opportunity to go further West, as he is not expected at the Champlain resort before Aug. 1. The selection of the Lake Champlain region as the place for spending the heated term was owing originally to a suggestion from Secretary Porter and upon Secretary Gage's hearty indorsement of the place, the manager of one of the lake hotels was summoned to Washington and the conditions of the president's stay were definitely arranged.

WASHINGTON BREVITIES.

Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii will leave Washington today for the summer, going first to New York and later to Cape May, Newport and other Eastern resorts. In the autumn she, perhaps, may return to Honolulu.

The president has awarded a medal of honor to Major William S. Beebe of Thompson, Conn., for most distinguished services in action at Cane River crossing, La., April 23, 1864.

The order of President Cleveland, issued last February, reducing the number of pension agencies in the United States from 18 to 9, will be revoked by President McKinley within a few days.

The Dolphin sailed yesterday from Boston for Washington. She is expected here early next week, and the president will avail of her presence to make a trip down the Potomac for a short rest in company with Mrs. McKinley.

The senate committee on foreign relations made two efforts yesterday to secure a full meeting for the purpose of taking up, and, if possible, disposing of the Hawaiian annexation treaty, but failed. The treaty was discussed at some length, and the more pronounced of the advocate of the treaty suggested the advisability of early action. This suggestion was antagonized, however, by the opponents of ratification and by at least one of the supporters of annexation on the ground that the matter is too important for immediate action. The committee adjourned until next Wednesday.

Bayard Booked For England.

New York, July 10.—Thomas F. Bayard, former ambassador to the court of St. James, is booked to sail for England on the American liner St. Louis next Wednesday.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Trade Checked by Excessive heat and Storms and Miners' Strike.

New York, July 10.—Bradstreet's says: There is only a moderate volume of trade throughout the country, the more noteworthy changes being a checked demand West and Northwest due to excessive heat and to storms, continued favorable reports as to cereal and other crop prospects, and disturbances in industrial lines due to the strike of about 120,000 bituminous coal miners. The reluctance of West Virginia operatives to join in the strike complicates the situation.

The prospect of an early settlement of the tariff has strengthened the widespread feeling of hopefulness that the autumn will bring a revival of consumption. Orders for clothing, shoes and hardware for fall delivery are already more frequent at Baltimore, Chicago and Omaha. The movement of dry goods is checked by mid-summer stock-taking, but retail business in seasonable lines has been stimulated by mid-summer weather. There is no improvement in demand for cotton or woolen goods, but the latter are higher, based on the cost of wool.

Prices as indicated in Bradstreet's index number shows an advance of one-fifth of 1 per cent during June, and marks the beginning of a turn in the outward flow of the tide of prices which continued from Jan. 1 to June 1.

Prices this week continue the favorable indication of the June movement, those for wool, men's wear woolens, hides, leather, wheat, corn, oats and sugar being higher; for coal, lumber, cotton, print cloths and petroleum, unchanged, and for pork, lard, coffee, pig iron and steel billets lower.

There are 215 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 225 last week, 219 in the week a year ago, 266 two years ago, 229 three years ago, and as compared with 389 in the first week of July, 1893.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Chicago—

The Bostons were again defeated yesterday in a close, but loosely played game. Lowis was batted hard while but little could be done with Friend. Both captains were fined and sent to the bench in the seventh inning on account of a heated argument with Lynch.

The Sultan's Pretext.

London, July 10.—The appeal of the sultan to Emperor Francis Joseph and the unusual fact that the text of the latter's reply has been published, taken together with Emperor William's advice, indicate that Abdul Hamed is seeking a pretext to enable him to resist successfully the demands of the Turkish war party by representing himself as compelled to comply with the demands of united Europe.

Actor Gillette Sick.

London, July 10.—William Gillette, the American playwright and actor, has been dangerously sick for more than a week and is confined to his bed most of the time. He will be compelled to retire from the stage for the present and to relinquish playwriting indefinitely. As soon as he is able to be moved he will return to the United States. His health is very much broken.

The newly wedded couple step through the door of the future. They pass from the happy, thoughtless present into an avenue of possibilities. The future is what they make it—what their health makes it—happy or miserable—a success or failure—full of the love and brightness and joyfulness of mutual love and helpfulness, and healthy, rosy, rollicking children, or, tortured with pain and sickness and mutual fault-finding and dependence, and lacking the binding tie of healthy, happy offspring. A world depends upon the young wife. If she has taken proper care of herself and is healthy in a womanly way, the probabilities are all in favor of a happy home filled with the music of childish laughter. Too many young women neglect to take care of their womanly selves. They shrink from the distasteful "examinations" and "local treatment" upon which most physicians insist. There is no need for this.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly on the important and delicate organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood. It makes them strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and gives the tortured nerves rest and tone. It prepares for wifehood and maternity. Taken during the expectant period, it banishes discomfort and makes the coming of baby easy and comparatively painless. It insures the new-comer's health and an ample supply of natural nourishment. Over 90,000 women have testified to its merits. Druggists who offer substitutes aim to get a few pennies extra profit.

Dr. Pierce's great book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," would prevent more than half the sickness in any family. It gives the best advice for curing common ailments without a doctor. It tells all about anatomy and physiology and the origin of life, and is the most valuable, practical medical work ever printed. LABOR LEADERS MEET.

Representatives of Great Organizations Confer on Miners' Strike.

United Action to Stop Work In West Virginia.

Coal Famine Impending at Cleveland--Hanna's Miners Quit Work.

Pittsburg, July 10.—The situation of the miners' strike shows but little change though yesterday was fraught with incidents leading up to decisive action in the immediate future.

The principal movement made by the strikers was the securing of a conference of the national leaders of the powerful labor organizations of the country.

It is known that concerted action will be taken at once to make the suspension of mines in West Virginia complete, which move, if successful, will kill off the most effective enemy the strikers have to encounter. It was this field that broke the strike in '94, and no effort will be spared to bring the men into line at this time.

To supplement the conference of last evening a special meeting of the state labor league has been called for Sunday night in this city, at which further means of support will be devised.

Trouble is expected on the Wheeling division today, as it will be payday. It is estimated that fully $40,000 will be paid out in cash. An effort will be made by some of the operators and railroad officials to have the licensed saloons at Finlayville closed, claiming that there will be rioting if the men who have money patronize these places. There are many foreigners employed at the mines and they are considered dangerous when under the influence of liquor.

The shortage of coal is severely felt by the railroads. Wholesale confiscations are the rule on all lines shipping West. Beadling Brothers reported that the railroad had taken eight loaded cars shipped by them Thursday, but by making a vigorous protest the firm got three of them back.

The movement among the operators to get a conference with the miners' leaders has not yet assumed any definite form. Colonel Rend, the Chicago operator, and several others are working hard to this end. The Colonel believes the controversy can be arbitrated, but the majority of the operators will not hear of the proposition.

COAL SCARCE.

Business at Cleveland May Be Suspended. Hanna's Men Out.

Cleveland, July 10.—The surprise of yesterday came when Dan R. Hanna, the manager of M. A. Hanna & Co., received a message stating that every single miner employed at the company's mines had gone out. The Hanna people have been confident of their ability to hold their men. Information received here shows that the shut-down of the Wheeling division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is absolute.

Unless coal begins coming into Cleveland the situation will be serious. The lighting companies fear the city will be left in darkness. The director of the public water works is alarmed over his ability to keep the water supply going. The street companies fear a suspension of travel and manufacturing concerns with orders to fill are fearful lest their plants will have to shut-down for want of fuel.

There is a strong probability that the street railroads and the suburban electric railroads will have to shut-down for want of coal. The big and little consolidated railroad companies have only coal sufficient for three days. Fifteen cars consigned to the big consolidated were confiscated by the railroad companies yesterday. The street railroads are much concerned over the matter.

Old Mills Unprofitable.

Woonsocket, R. I., July 10.—Today the frame spinning in the cotton mills of E. K. Ray—the Ballou, Lyman and Partlett mills—will stop preparatory to a probably indefinite shutdown. It will take a month, however, to finish up the orders now on hand. The mills employ 250 hands, and run about 15,000 spindles and 350 looms. It is stated that only the largest and most modern cotton mills can at present be run at a profit, and as these mills are old the probability is that they will eventually be abandoned. Mr. Ray is a heavy stockholder in the Woonsocket Electric Light company, which has had considerable trouble with the city council over contracts for city lighting, and it has been common talk that Mr. Ray has decided to build a modern mill in Putnam, Conn., and continue cotton manufacturing there, where his business will not be subject to hostile attacks by politicians. Mr. Ray's property interests in this city are larger than those of and other taxpayer.

Lee's Relief Account.

Washington, July 10.—United States Consul General Lee has been rendering some account to the government of his expenditures from the funds appropriated by congress for the relief of destitute American citizens in Cuba. His figures were presented to the cabinet yesterday, and the showing was remarkable for it appeared that of the total of $50,000 at the disposal of the consul general, he had expended only $6000, and yet had given substantial relief to every distressed American whom he could find ready to receive aid, and besides had shipped some back to the United States.

Violated Shipping Laws.

Boston, July 10.—The United States steamboat inspectors of this port have made their report to the collector of the port on the case of the Dominion line steamship Canada, which sailed last Saturday with a greater number of passengers on board than the laws of the United States allow her to carry. A duplicate report has been sent to the department at Washington. It is possible that the case of the Canada may be made a test case. The fine for such a violation of the law is only $500, and is not regarded as sufficient penalty to act as a deterrent in the overloading of vessels.

STILL A MYSTERY.

Disappearance of Miss Grace Stevenson of Brookline Is Complete.

Boston, July 10.—There are no really important developments regarding the mysterious disappearance of Miss Grace Stevenson, daughter of James Stevenson, the millionaire real estate operator of this city and Brookline, who has been missing since April 26.

A responsible gentleman stated yesterday that he saw a young lady, undoubtedly Miss Stevenson, on a nelectric car one night the last of April in Boston, and he noticed particularly that she wore slippers, which he thought strange for a young lady of her refined appearance. This is the very latest report of her having been seen by any one.

There have been domestic troubles between Mr. Stevenson and his wife and Grace, who has lived with her mother, has acted the part of peacemaker, being strongly attached to both. One theory is that these troubles may have preyed upon her until she determined to leave home and escape them.

As opposed to this theory is the fact that she took $6 with her when she could easily have taken a much greater sum. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson state positively that they have no knowledge of her whereabouts, and the mystery of the girl's disappearance is as deep as ever.

BLOOD CLOT IN BRAIN.

Man Found Dead at Peabody Did Not Die of Alcoholism---Suspicion of Foul Play.

Salem, Mass., July 10.—By order of District Attorney A. B. White, Drs. H. K. Foster of Peabody and H. J. Caffney of Salem made an autopsy yesterday afternoon on the body of D. W. Shay, who was found dead under rather peculiar circumstances in the barn of J. E. Miller in the rear of the Woodbine saloon in Peabody on Wednesday night.

The physicians decline to make public their finding, but it is understood that death was not caused by alcoholic poisoning, as at first believed, but by a clot of blood on the brain.

Its presence, however, is not fully accounted for. Deceased has been known for the past three years hereabout as Dean Shay, but is is now believed that his name was George Cutter.

It is said that he was possessed of $800 or $900, and that he made over this money to his brother the day before he died, which fact has given rise to a suspicion of foul play. State Officer George E. Neal is working on the case in conjunction with Peabody officers, but thus far the affair is enveloped in mystery.

Sentenced at Plymouth.

Plymouth, Mass., July 10.—The afternoon session of the superior court yesterday was given up to arguments on exceptions by counsel for Murphy and Finley of Brockton, convicted of setting fire to their shoe factory. The exceptions were finally overruled and the court imposed sentence, which was not less than five nor more than seven years in state prison at hard labor, and one day to be in solitary confinement, for both defendants. The jury in the Donovan and Farrell case, wherein Donovan was charged with arson and Farrell with being an accessory, in the burning of the Nash house at Abington, brought in a verdict of guilty against Donovan after being out nearly four hours. Farrell was acquitted. The court then sentenced Donovan to not less than 2½ years nor more than three years in state prison, in addition to a similar sentence on a similar conviction, imposed just before the jury came in. Devlin, who was a co-defendant with Donovan in the first case, also got a sentence of 2½ years.

Insurgent Leader Captured.

Havana, July 10.—It is officially announced that the Spanish forces have captured, in the mountains of Bejaramo, province of Pinar Del Rio, yesterday, the well-known insurgent leader, Federico Alfonso, his wife and his five sons. Advices from Cienfuegos, province of Santa Clara, say that the insurgent forces under Generals Pancho, Carrillo, Rego and others, which have been trying to advance toward the province of Matanzas and Havana, have been engaged by the Spanish troops at Lomitas, near Cienfuegos, and have been compelled to retreat towards Remedios and Trinidad by way of Manajaho, Palo, Priepo and El Baga. Captain General Weyler has given a reward of $100 to the man who gave the notice to the authorities which enabled them to capture the insurgent depot of arms, ammunitions, etc., as well as the documents of the Barcelona expedition found at Seborucal.

The Wool Market.

Boston, July 10.—The Boston Commercial Bulletin says of the wool market: The sales are just 10 times as great as for the same week last year, and the average level of the market is just about 440 per cent higher. Ohio XX is now 24 cents, against 17 cents a year ago, and scoured fine territory delaine is 45 cents, against 30 cents a year ago. The market continues active in spite of the hot weather. The delay of the tariff is encouraging speculators to pitch in and buy abroad, and all swift steam freight is filled with wool and wool stock for the United States. American speculators have jumped prices in London 1 penny a pound. Boston buyers paid 14 cents in Montana this week. The wool brought 10 cents last year. Prices in Boston have stiffened about 1 cent a pound this week. The demand is general.

Water Commissioners Give Bail.

Cambridge, Mass., July 10.—William H. Doyle and Simeon E. Kendrick, two of Woburn's water commissioners, who are charged with having violated the civil rules in voting to elect William W. Wade water register, yesterday pleaded not guilty in the Middlesex county superior court at East Cambridge. They were ordered to give bonds in the sum of $500 each. The case was sent over to the October term. The case against Messrs. Doyle and Kendrick was brought originally at the suggestion of the attorney general. They were indicted this term because they had elected at their meeting last January a register of the water board without first calling on the civil service commissioners for a list of names of persons eligible to the office.

Cycle Trade Demoralized.

Birmingham, July 10.—The cut in cycle prices announced by the Rudge-Whitworth company, limited, of London, has caused a general fall of cycle shares on the Stock exchange, and almost a panic throughout the trade.

Visit to Mexico.

LETTER NO. XVIII.

With this number we close the letters about our pleasant trip to Mexico. There are many more things that might be alluded to, but perhaps the more important ones can be mentioned before we close this number.

There are a lot of things we have skipped just for want of room, and for fear of wearying the reader's patience; but right here in the patio, where the repairs of the hotel are going on, let us call your attention to something which would be a decided novelty to our carpenters and masons at home. The scaffolding, running up four stories, is very strong, and yet never a nail or a spike is used in all Mexico for such construction. All the heavy timbers are lashed with ropes, and the splicings are so firmly wrapped that there is never any giving way of the structure.

One of the great attractions in this city after church on Sunday are the band concerts on the Alameda. It is one of the regular institutions of the Mexican capital, and from eleven until one o'clock the long awning covered broad walk of the Alameda, is thronged with the best people of the city, promenading back and forth; the ladies in their brightest and most attractive array, and looking like a stream of human flowers, while intermingled in the the throng are the natty cadets from Chapultepec Castle, in their smart uniforms, with side arms; the brilliant officers of the regular Mexican army; gentlemen of high degree; students from the colleges and various schools with which the capital abounds, and bright faced happy children, all passing and repassing as you sit in one of the chairs that line either side of the way, and which for six cents is yours as long as you choose to occupy it.

The band is that of the National Zapatores, or sappers and miners of the regular army, corresponding to our engineer corps, and is a superb musical organization. There are forty-two pieces, and their playing is the acme of musical performance.

Here on the Alameda one sees more of Mexican middle society on Sunday than at any other time or place; and we can say they were well dressed, fine looking people.

Just before leaving this beautiful Sabbath afternoon we with others ascending to the top of the Iturbide hotel, once the residence of the emperor of that name, to take a final look of the grand heights of Papocatapetl and Ixtaccihuatl. Far away over the valley the grand peaks of these majestic mountains covered with snow, appear to our view. Although it never snows in the city of Mexico, the tops of these mountains are constantly covered with snow; and presents a lovely sight to both natives and visitors to the city. One of the mountains is 16,000 feet high; the other 17,782.

As it is getting dark and our train is to leave tonight for the States, we must start for the station. All our coaches were found in line ready for the journey except the Pennsylvania car, which we were to leave behind, as the delegates from that State wished to visit Vera Cruz, a city on the coast, 263 miles from the capital. It is a most delightful trip, we should judge from the glowing accounts given by Editor Lake of the Rhode Island Real Estate Register.

"Reaching Cordova," he says, "we were in the very midst of the tropical country. Here we are surrounded by a wealth of vegetation, the equal of which we have not before seen. Palm trees of immense size, mango manilla trees, from which a luscious fruit is obtained, pomegranates, rubber trees, coffee, sugar cane, tobacco, bananas, both the yellow and red varieties, oranges, limes, olives, pine-apples and other tropical fruits and vegetables are seen in abundance, while flowers of many kinds and colors growing wild in the fields and woods fill the air with fragance. Among the latter we notice azalia, ageratum, jessamine, morning glories, roses, wisteria, begonia, clematis and others with which we are not familiar, all growing to perfection under the sole guidance and care of that greatest of all florists—Nature.

"On the platform of the railway station women and children offer for sale fruit of various kinds. Pineapples and oranges can be bought for one cent each, and other fruits are sold at proportionately low prices."

Probably some of our patriotic readers would like to know more about the political situation of Mexico than what has been mentioned in previous letters. For this reason we will give a brief account gathered by the editor of Connellsville, Pa., Courier:

"Mexico, be it understood, is a republic in name only. No nation has a more autocratic government so well concealed under the forms of law. President Diaz is a Dictator. The elections are a mere farce. The ballot-boxes are in the hands of a squad of soldiers. The citizen may vote if he desires, but few desire. Their votes are cast for them. More complete than the census returns are those of the elections. The voting lists show the name of every citizen. At the last election for president, the unanimous vote of the citizens of the republic was returned as cast for Diaz. He dictates the nominations of congressmen, governors and other principal officers. He is, in short, supreme. But he uses his power wisely. His aim in life seems to be the advancement of Mexico and its people, and in this line he has accomplished wonders in the past ten years. He is intelligent, progressive, tactful and masterful, and the wonderful resources of the home of Aztec civilization are, under his direction, being gradually developed. But the system he has built up is essentially inimical to the republican form of government, and, unless his successors are equally public-spirited and patriotic, there will be a retrograde movement in Mexican history."

The strength of the Diaz government is that it does not attempt to advance too rapidly.

Mexico depends for her revenue upon her custom duties and her internal revenue. She does not levy a tax upon real estate, but collects a tax on the income derived from it. About everything is taxed. You pay a tax on the telegram you send, or a receipt for money. If you stick up an advertisement it has to bear a stamp. The women of the town pay a tax and so do the preachers. The miners pay an annual tax which entitles them to every ounce of metal they can dig out of their claims, unvexed by any question of dips, spurs and angles. Liquors and cigars pay a tax, and, in reality, everything except unimproved real estate.

Our special train left the city of Mexico about 10 P. M. The run northward over the arid plateau was made in quicker time in returning as we were steadily descending to lower levels. We reached Zacatecas about four o'clock Monday afternoon and stopped there until dark. This is a compact mining city of 75,000 people, and from its oriental appearance is sometimes called the Jerusalem of Mexico. Nothing of special interest to our readers occurred after leaving this city. On Wednesday morning we arrived in New Orleans, over the Southern Pacific and had a very pleasant trip through the city. On the evening of that day we again proceeded north over the Illinois Central to Chicago and from there home, stopping at Niagara on Sunday and arriving in Boston on Monday morning.

The delegates from New England leased a large Wagner's coach in Boston, and went the entire trip—some eight thousand miles—in it. Travelling often by night, and yet not a lady or gentleman received the slightest injury during the entire journey. We mention this, simply, to remind our readers that the railroads are very carefully managed. Of the hundreds of thousands of people travelling each day and night in the year, it is surprising how few are injured.

WARSHIP PREMIUMS.

SYSTEM OF BONUSES ENDED WITH AWARD TO THE NASHVILLE.

Total Given In Premiums For Horsepower or Speed $3,296,626 — Contractors Will Henceforth Be Paid the Contract Price Only.

With the speed run of the Nashville the last of the premiums open to our warships has been earned, and it is possible, now that the official report upon her has been made, to reckon up the results of the system from the start.

It began under Secretary Whitney with awards for horsepower at the rate of $100 per unit in excess of the contract requirement. Under that system the Yorktown earned $39,825, the Newark $36,857, the Concord $453, the Bennington $3,609 and the Baltimore $106,442. In all cases there was a penalty of $100 per unit for any shortcoming in horsepower, and under it the Charleston lost $33,384, which was afterward remitted by congress for special reasons; the Monterey $32,823 and the Petrel $485. There were also some premiums for machinery furnished by private works to ships built by the government in its navy yards.

But soon a change was made to premiums for speed, irrespective of horsepower. It was urged that speed, after all, was the thing valuable to the government, not the means by which it was achieved, and accordingly the premiums and penalties were changed to this basis, the rate being usually fixed at so much per even quarter knot of excess or deficiency, while in most of the latest cases an allowance at the same rate was also made for fractions of a quarter knot.

Under this plan the Wilmington has earned $41,500, the Bancroft and the Machias $45,000 each, the Nashville $45,980, the Helena $49,940, the Castine and the Indiana $50,000 each, the Philadelphia, the San Francisco and the Massachusetts $100,000 each, the Marblehead, $125,000, the Detroit $150,000, the Oregon $175,000, the New York and Monterey $200,000 each, the Iowa $217,420, the Olympia $300,000, the Columbia and Brooklyn $350,000 each, while the Minneapolis broke all records with earnings of $414,600, her contract being one of those that allowed for fractions of a quarter knot. Not a single vessel has lost anything on this speed basis, and one vessel which on her official trial fell far short of her estimated horsepower, so that she might have had to pay a very heavy penalty on that basis, really gained a magnificent premium for speed.

The highest excesses of speed were those achieved by the smaller gunboats, the Castine, for example, making 2.62 knots over her guarantee, the Machias 2.46 and the Bancroft 2.37. Nevertheless theirs have been among the smallest speed premiums paid, since on the smaller vessels smaller rates of premium were allowed, the three mentioned receiving only $5,000 per quarter knot. The great successes of the three final premium winners, the Newport News trio, achieved this year, tell exactly the same story. On the other hand, the Philadelphia and the San Francisco earned $100,000 each for somewhat over half a knot in excess of their contracts, because they had the great bonus of $50,000 per quarter, or ten times as much as the gunboats just spoken of, while the enormous earnings of the Minneapolis, Columbia, Olympia and Brooklyn, amounting to $1,414,600 for these four vessels alone, are accounted for in the same way. A single firm, the Cramps of Philadelphia, earned, according to the figures just given, the great sum, above the contract price, of $1,865,144, never losing a dollar for penalties, either in speed or horsepower.

The total amount earned in premiums for horsepower or speed, excluding premiums for the machinery of ships built in the navy yards, is, if our figures are correct, $3,296,626. While this is a large sum, yet no doubt the contractors have improved vessels for the purpose of producing extra speed, with the consent of the authorities, and such changes, if made for that purpose only, have been, according to a statement of Chief Engineer Melville, "at the expense of the contractors." Again, as the speed requirements have been studied carefully, whenever builders were confident that they could surpass them, and so earn a premium, the effect was to lower their bids, of course to the benefit of the government.

The speed premium system was stopped after the prodigious winning of the Minneapolis had been recorded, although subsisting contracts for premiums were of course carried out. Perhaps a reaction was then natural, and if the system should ever be revived perhaps smaller bonuses would be paid than those which allow $200,000 for an extra knot. But at present the view taken is that, with the experience gained, premiums are not needed, and, in fact, the composite gunboats and the torpedo boat Porter, without premiums, have far exceeded their contract speed. However, contractors now take into view that no premiums are payable when they make their bids.—New York Sun.

To Explore the Yosemite Valley.

The high Sierra back of the Yosemite valley and the famous Hetch-Hetchy valley, which has only been partly explored, will be carefully surveyed and prospected for minerals and fossils by H. W. Turner, head of the government geological work on the Pacific coast. He started recently with a party, including John C. Brauner, professor of geology of Stanford university, and several students from Stanford and State universities. Their scheme is to survey and make geological and topographical maps of the Yosemite national park and to locate minerals, metallic ores and fossils. Much of the ground they will traverse has never been explored.—New York Tribune.

SUTTON AS A BILLIARDIST.

Recent Work Entitles the Canadian to Rank With the Best.

George Sutton, the Canadian billiardist, recently made the highest run, 215, ever scored by a short stop in a record game at 14 inch balk line. Several years ago Sutton concluded that he could not play billiards, and took up pool, but afterward regained his courage and returned to his first love.

He has mastered the intricacies of the balk line nurse to perfection, and his efforts from the moment he starts to play until the game is ended are directed to securing the balls in position for the exercise of his talent in this direction. At times he shows the effects of his long association with pool, particularly in his method of driving an object ball around the table, when the pool stroke is quite apparent. He is a hard student, practicing steadily for hours every day, and there is no reason why any defects in his style which now exist may not be remedied before the next season is inaugurated. That he is a player of great promise is admitted by all who have watched his career, and if he continues to develop in the next two years he may occupy a position equal to that of the great leaders in the game. While it is true that his system is not a new one, but simply a reproduction of the one introduced by Ives, the fact that he has attained proficiency in it is sufficient to induce his admirers to hope that he may eventually evolve something of his own conception which will equal and perhaps surpass the masterly reproduction of the young Napoleon.

TESTS OF STRENGTH

Dr. Sargent of the Harvard Gymnasium Criticises Yale Records.

In a letter to a Yale publication Dr. D. A. Sargent says that while he has no intention of questioning Mr. Chadwick's remarkable performance of 2,135 kilograms in the strength test, yet attention should be called to the fact that at Yale the back and leg lifts, two of the principal tests, are made in harness over shoulders and arms and around the hips, while at Harvard the same tests are made by the use of the hands alone. Mr. Sargent continues: "That there is a vast difference between the amount that can be lifted with and without a harness may be inferred from the best known records of these performances—that of J. W. Kennedy, who lifted in harness 3,242 pounds at Lynn, Mass., April 2, 1892, and that of C. G. Jefferson, who lifted with the hands alone 1,571¼ pounds at Clinton, Mass., Dec. 10, 1890. At Harvard the grip test is taken with a dynomometer, which is held in the hand away from the body and all other objects, so that the muscles of the hand and forearm alone may be brought into action. The best grip test made on the hand dynomometers was that of Cyclops, the professional strong man, who made a record of 102 kilos with his right hand. At the time that he made this test he also gave the students at Harvard another exhibition of the strength of his fingers and hands by breaking a silver quarter into two pieces."

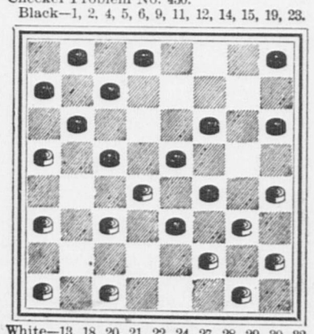

Thrift In Racing.

Although John Splan is considered one of the greatest trainers and drivers of trotting horses in America, he is not averse to campaigning on half mile tracks or anywhere else where they hang up the money and he has a possible show of getting it. A number of trainers might as well take a lesson from Splan, as the majority of them seem to think they are out of the hunt unless they are racing in the big circuits.

HE YEARNED FOR CHICKEN.

Pay Day Seemed Afar Off and the Theft Quickly Expanded.

Colonel Henry A. Newman confesses to a normal liking for the good things of life, among them such edibles as are calculated to tickle the inner man. He tells with gusto a story of his efforts to gratify this liking.

"In the eyes of superior officers I may have lacked a good many essentials as a soldier of the Confederacy, but no one can say that I ever lacked an ablebodied appetite," says the colonel. "During my service nothing after the success of the Confederacy so much worried me as my appetite. Toward the close of the war I suffered very much on this account. One night, after a long day's march and nothing to eat, I stole two chickens, and the circumstances attending the theft are still fresh in my memory.

"It happened in the Tennessee mountains. The country had been pretty well foraged by both sides and there was not much chance to find anything. Passing by a humble log house after dark, I observed a few chickens roosting in fancied security on the fence inclosing the house and small patch of ground. A hungry soldier has little conscience, and I didn't waste any time in debate with mine about taking a pullet. I had intended to grab the chicken by the throat so as to shut off its wind, but missed calculations and it squawked loudly. With the first squawk the cabin door flew open and a woman came out. Taking in the embarrassing situation at a glance, she shook her fist at me and angrily said:

"'You thief, you'll pay for stealing my chickens on the day of judgment.'

"'Madam,' I said, with my accustomed politeness, 'if I am to have that long credit I will take another one.'

"And so it happened that I arrived in camp that night with two chickens."—St. Louis Republic.

At Washington's Tomb.

There are times when bathos is showered only upon the dead. T. F. Silleck says that on one of his holiday excursions he visited Mount Vernon, and there, in the grounds, he came upon a middle aged lady, kneeling before a building at some distance from the monument. She was bathed in tears. Mr. Silleck walked up to her and asked if she were in trouble.

"No, sir," said she, "thank you very much. I am not in trouble, but my patriotic feelings overcome me when I gaze upon the tomb of the Father of His Country."

"I quite understand," said Mr. Silleck gently, "but, my dear madam, you have made a mistake. This is not the tomb of Washington. It is over yonder. This is the icehouse."

And, drying her tears, the lady moved quietly away.—Youth's Companion.

Boston Culture.

She had just returned from a visit to Boston.

"Is it true," asked an acquaintance, "that there is an air of culture and educational refinement plainly noticeable in the speech of Boston residents?"

"My dear," she replied impressively, "even the owls around Boston hoot 'To whom,' instead of 'To whoo,' as they do in the west."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Had Considered.

"Another picnic, Johnny? Seems to me you don't want to do anything but go to picnics. It is needful to do some work, my boy. We can't all be drones. 'Go to the ant, thou sluggard. Consider her ways and be wise.'"

"Yes, but, Uncle George, I never went to a picnic where the ants wasn't havin a better time than anybody else was."—Chicago Tribune.

Drawing the Line.

Sprockett—I was sorry not to keep my appointment with you, but, you see, my wheel broke down.

Hudson—Why didn't you come in on the train?

Sprockett—Heavens! And ride with those miserable nonbikers? Never.—Philadelphia North American.

His Preparations.

"What preparation have you made for the future?" asked the old man, whom he hoped to make his father-in-law.

"Well, sir," he said confidently, "I am a Methodist, but if that doesn't suit your views I am willing to change."—Chicago Times-Herald.

It Made a Difference.

Hanford—Are you opposed to bloomers?

Jackson — Well, not particularly, when some other fellow's wife or sister wears them.—Cleveland Leader.

Not a Dead Game Sport.

The Parrot—I'm going to move if that kid don't stop using my cage for a baseball mask.—New York World.

—Reports indicate that in general the week has been favorable in Massachusetts. Haying and hoeing are being pushed, with a fine grass crop secured. All crops have improved perceptibly, corn mostly so. Earliest potatoes are now showing full bloom. Peas and other early vegetables are plentiful in the market. The fruit crop is regarded as generally good. Apples and plums are dropping considerable, but probably not too much so for benefit. In the cranberry district this crop is showing a fairly large percentage of bloom, and although fire worms are at work no great damage is mentioned.—Crop Bulletin, July 5.

—It is now believed that the President will nominate Mr. T. V. Powderly, ex-leader of the Knights of Labor, as Commissioner of Immigration. Mr. Powderly's candidacy is being strenuously fought by the present officers of that organization.

—The senators refused to the last to give the Bible free entry into the United States. What must the evangelists think of this persistent determination to lay a tax on the word of God?—Boston Globe.

THINK OF THE DIFFERENCE
between the nature of the cotton-plant and the habits of a hog, and you have the difference between Cottolene and lard. Cottolene is all that's pure and wholesome; lard has few redeeming features.

COTTOLENE

makes your food light, crisp, digestible. Rightly used, it greatly improves the food and the health of those who eat it.

The genuine Cottolene is sold everywhere in one to ten pound tins, with our trade marks—"Cottolene," and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin. Not guaranteed if sold in any other way. Made only by Bicycles At Cut Prices.

It's better to buy a wheel you know to be good, than to buy a wheel you think, but don't know, may possibly be better.

It's better to buy at a safe store, a store that's in business to stay, a store with a good name to uphold. The guarantee of such a store should be worth your consideration in bicycle buying.

There's a limit to everything, even to prices on bicycles, and if you wish to touch the lowest limit on servicable wheels, this store can accommodate you.

For best of reasons we will not quote prices; if you want a wheel it costs you nothing to call and get our prices. We are on the inside, our tips on lowest prices are yours for the asking. STANDARD WHEELS ONLY.

New Bicycles and Tandems to rent by the hour, day, week or month.

NO FRICTION THUS FAR.

Senate and House Tariff Conferees Are Getting Along Famously.

All Parties Showing Conciliatory Spirit.

Date of Final Agreement Is a Matter of Doubt, However---Sunday Session.

Washington, July 12.—The conferees on the tariff bill had a four hours' session yesterday. The anxiety to reach a complete agreement as early as possible induced them to meet on Sunday, and both the house and senate conferees appear satisfied with the progress that has been made. Several hundred of the minor amendments have been agreed upon, many of them mere changes of phraseology, and on a large majority however of these the house conferees naturally have yielded.

None of the real important problems in the bill, however, have as yet been solved. All of them have received more or less consideration, and there has been a free exchange of opinions. The temper of the disposition of the senate and house conferees on these important matters have in this way been ascertained. In several cases the conferees are very close to an agreement. Both sides, so one of the conferees said, show a commendable spirit of conciliation, and while in several instances each side seems to be holding out strongly for its contention as to rates, he said that there had not yet appeared on the horizon anything which portended such difficulty as would not in time be surmounted.

There is the best of reasons for believing that several of the main points of contention will be compromised. This is especially believed to be true of lumber, hides and wool, and possibly sugar, though on the latter the house conferees are standing particularly firm for their schedule. On the subject of reciprocity the drift of opinion seems to be in the direction of the senate substitute, with some of the house provisions; that is, that the list of articles which can be used as a basis for reciprocity treaties will be broadened, but the senate provision requiring the ratification of the treaties will be discarded.

Several of the eminent lawyers in both branches of congress question the constitutionality of the power conferred upon the president by the senate reciprocity provision. The stamp tax on bonds and stocks provided for in one of the senate amendments has not yet been accepted.

The revenue afforded by it furnishes a strong argument for its acceptance in view of the heavy anticipatory importations, and there is talk of widening its scope so as not only to include a tax on actual transfers, but on all recorded sales. This necessity of revenue also furnishes a strong argument for the restoration of the house rates on imported tobacco. It is impossible to estimate yet when a final agreement will be reached, although various dates are given as to the length of time the bill will remain in conference, ranging from tomorrow to a week from today.

One of the most influential of the conferees said that all estimates were necessarily pure guesswork. He said that the decisions on the matters of transcendent importance in the bill were so interdependent that an ultimate decision on one might involve a complete agreement on the others, and this final agreement might come at any time after the rest of the matters of secondary importance were out of the way. When the report is completed it will at once go to the house, where it is not likely that more than one day will be allowed for debate. The anxiety to get the bill on the statute books and the great loss of revenue involved in each 24 hours delay, it is argued, justifies the Republican managers in declining to give more than a single day for discussion.

WHAT SENATE WILL DO.

Deficiency Bill to Be Passed and the Executive Calendar Cleared.

Washington, July 12.—Beyond the fact that the general deficiency appropriation bill probably will be passed and that the senate will stand ready to take up the tariff bill at any time that a report may be brougt in by the conference committee, little can be predicted of the course of events in the senate during the present week. The disposition is to do little in the way of general legislation, and there is a proposition under consideration by the leaders of the two sides of the chamber to adopt the plan now in vogue in the house for sitting only every third day after the deficiency bill shall have been disposed of.

This suggestion has been made in view of the possibility of pressure to take up the matter of the appointment of a currency commission. The general impression is that the house will pass such a bill on this subject as the president may recommend, but there is no probability that the senate will take the matter up seriously. The desire is to make this intention clear by infrequent meetings.

There are, however, some matters on the executive calendar demanding attention, and there may be an effort to clear this calendar off during the week. If such should prove to be the case there would be more or less discussion in executive session over the McCord, Warner and Goodnow nominations.

The friends of the Hawaiian annexation treaty on the foreign relations committee also hope to be authorized to report a ratification resolution at their meeting next Wednesday, but it is by no means certain that the committee will be able to reach an agreement so soon.

Today will be devoted to the general deficiency bill, particular attention being given to the provisions for the purchase of armor plate at $425 per ton. This portion of the bill will be seriously antagonized and quite fiercely debated. Senator Harris of Kansas will endeavor to get up his resolution regarding the reorganization of the Union Pacific railroad during the week, but in this he will be opposed, and it is not likely to succeed.

The tariff conferees confidently expect to bring in the tariff bill by Thursday. The length of the debate on the report will depend upon how well the senate conferees may have succeeded in maintaining the integrity of the senate bill. The Democrats and other opponents of the bill make no secret of their intention to oppose the adoption of the report if it appears that the amendments which they were instrumental in securing, putting cotton bagging, cotton ties, burlaps, paris green, etc., on the free list, have been receded from.

The senate will insist upon final adjournment as soon as the tariff is disposed of.

The house will adjourn from today until Thursday. Its course thereafter will depend upon the condition of the tariff bill.

STILL NO TRACE.

Parents of Grace Stevenson Learn Nothing of Her Whereabouts.

Boston, July 12.—"No, there's nothing new—nothing," said James Stevenson, father of Miss Grace Stevenson, the young woman who disappeared so mysteriously on the evening of April 26.

Mr. Stevenson keenly feels the loss of his favorite child, and as he told of her many good qualities last evening the tears welled to his eyes and he was for the moment very deeply affected. In all his troubles this child has been his mainstay, and she undoubtedly had considerable influence with her father.

It was expected that some member of the family would go to Nashua, N. H., yesterday and endeavor to identify the girl in that place who was said to resemble Grace, and whose movements were regarded as so mysterious by some people, but nobody went, as the members of the family evidently felt that the young woman was not Grace.

Now it is said that this young woman in Nashua, who went under the name of Irene Chandler, has disappeared from that place, and as she has not been seen by any member of the family there may be some ground for the supposition that she is Grace Stevenson. Certain it is that the description given of Irene Chandler tallies in some ways with that of Grace.

Republicans Gathering.

Detroit, July 12.—The hotel lobbies are crowded with the advance guard of the delegation to the convention of the National League of Republican clubs, which commences tomorrow. The chief topic of interest among the delegates already on the field is the election of president. The prominent candidates for president are Marcus Pollasky of Chicago, Colonel George Stone of San Francisco, L. J. Crawford of Newport, Ky.; Edward H. B. Green of Dallas, son of Hetty Green, and Lieutenant Governor Timothy E. Woodruff of New York. Secretary Dowling also says he may be a candidate for president if the Minnesota delegation decides to present his name. The favorite is easily Marcus Pollasky of Chicago. His badges are everywhere, and from present indications he seems to have the inside track. He has received positive assurances of substantial support from nearly every state and territory.

Hawaii Offers to Arbitrate.

Washington, July 12.—Hawaii has offered to refer to arbitration the immigration question pending between herself and Japan, but the Tokio government has so far ignored the proposition. Telegraphic information to this effect has been received at the state department, and it is therefore possible to deny the report, that Japan has agreed to arbitrate the vexed question she is discussing with the Dole goverment. The proposition ws made in the reuly sent by the Hawaiian minister of foreign affairs, Mr. Cooper, to Japanese Minister Shimushura's last note reiterating the demand of his government that Hawaii recognize the principle of monetary liability as a result of her action in excluding Japanese immigrants.

Famous Catcher Died Insane.

Paris, July 12.—The grand prix cycle race at Vincennos took place yesterday. Bourillon finished first, but was disqualified on a claim that he had committed a foul, and the first prize, 8000 francs, was awarded to Morin, who agreed to divide the purse with Nossam, who finished third. The decision caused great dissatisfaction among the spectators, and a tremendous uproar ensued.

SOME HOMEWARD BOUND.

Endeavorers' Convention at San Francisco About Over---Yesterday's Meetings.

San Francisco, July 12.—"London in 1900." That is to be the rallying cry of the Christian Endeavorers for the next three years. It is the ambition of President Clark and his millions of fellowers to show the Old World something of the strength of their organization. Nashville has already been chosen as the place of meeting in 1898, and at the annual meeting of officers tomorrow morning the selection of a convention city for 1899 will be discussed, but the question may not be settled then, for the offers of a number of places are to be considered. Denver has put in a strong bid and both St. Louis and Cincinnati are anxious to have the Christian Endeavorers visit them. All that can be said now is that the matter is unsettled, and all applicants have an equal chance of success.

Sunday morning dawned with a cloudless sky, the atmosphere not cold nor in the least too warm for physical comfort. Never before has the California climate received so effective an advertisement, for, as though ordered for convention week, the weather has been perfect in every way since the arrival of the delegates and the thousands who came in their wake. The visitors are already beginning to depart, but it will be more than another week before the city will resume its normal appearance, for the decorations will remain and many of the strangers have announced their intention of spending several weeks in this vicinity. All of those who attended the various state rallies Saturday night are enthusiastic in their expressions of delight. After the informal receptions they were literally loaded down with flowers and fruit by their numerous guests.

Yesterday was a busy day for the members of the organization. Many meetings were held, all, however, being devotional in character, business affairs not interesting the Endeavorers on the Sabbath.

The topic for the early morning prayer meeting was "Prayer for Church Services and Pastors." Nearly every church found it necessary to close the doors before the beginning of the services, so great was the crowd of earnest worshipers.

At the regular morning services of worship the pulpits of all the Protestant Evangelical churches in the city, except the Emmanuel Baptist, the scene of the Durrant murder, of which Rev. J. G Gibson is pastor, were filled by prominent preachers from all parts of the world. Mr. Gibson is a Christian Endeavorer, yet did not offer his pulpit to guests of the local societies.

In several instances overflow meeting were held.

The greatest gathering of the day was the afternoon meeting in Mechanics' pavillion, presided over by President Clark.

Corrigan vs. Rockefeller.

Cleveland, July 12.—John D. Rockefeller has been sued in the common pleas court here by James Corrigan, the vessel owner, for an accounting. Corrigan, who was in Rockefeller's debt, gave the latter as collateral security, it is asserted, 2500 shares of Standard Oil company stock. Later the stock was credited to Corrigan on his indebtedness. He now insists that he was not allowed what the stock was worth. The petition is not on file in court, but it is said the stock was credited at the rate of $138 a share. It sold Saturday for $318. Corrigan declined yesterday to discuss the suit. He said he had asked for an accounting, and when asked the amount of his claim, he said: "I cannot tell. I don't know how much it will be. I contend only that I was not allowed what the stock was worth."

SAM SAW DIDN'T SEE.

Turned into Car Tracks Directly in Front of a Moving Electric.

A Russian Jew, who gave his name as Sam Saw, and his residence as East Boston, was run into by an electric car on Hancock street Sunday afternoon and quite severely injured. Parties who witnessed the accident excuse the railroad employes from all blame. Saw and a companion were in an open express wagon driving toward Boston. The wagon was empty save for a lot of old bags and empty beer bottles.

The two men were on the left side of the street when they met a carriage coming toward them. Saw in order to avoid running the team down turned onto the track directly in front of an approaching Hingham car. The motorman sounded his gong and he and the passengers shouted to the two men who did not heed their warning but drove directly in front of the car, which struck the wagon and overturned it.

Both men were thrown out and the horse started to run; the wheels of the wagon passed over Saw's stomach. The animal was soon stopped and Saw taken in Dr. Hunting's office and later to the City Hospital. It is said that both men were somewhat under the influence of liquor.

Accident to Bicyclist.

An Italian who resides on Penn street, but whose name could not be learned, was thrown from a bicycle on Washington street Saturday afternoon and quite badly bruised as well as having his wheel smashed. He and a companion were coming up Washington street and when opposite the residence of N. B. Furnald they met an empty produce wagon going toward Quincy Point. The Italian, who was evidently a new rider, attempted to turn out for the team but instead of doing so ran directly into the forward wheel. The driver of the wagon stopped his horse so quickly that he was thrown from his seat, but he avoided running the bicyclist down. The bicyclist however was thrown to the ground. He was cared for at Mr. Furnald's but was suffering from injuries and was removed to Dr. Hallowell's office and then to his home.

The Band Concert.

Although the weather Saturday night was rather dubious there was an unusually large number of people in City Square to listen to the band concert by Brown's Brigade band. The programme rendered was an excellent one and every number was encored. Considerable unfavorable comment was made about the sexton of the First church who came out with a lawn hose just previous to the concert and wet the stone steps down so that people could not sit there during the opening numbers of the concert. These Saturday evening concerts are very popular and many believe that the City Council should furnish concerts for the people throughout the summer or at least erect a good band stand in City Square.

Cadets in Camp.

All Hingham turned out Saturday afternoon to give the 1st corps of Cadets, M. V. M., a welcome, and saw them march proudly into camp, which is in full view from the Quincy electrics. Everything about the grounds is neat and clean. Sunday the corps attended services by Rev. John Cuckson of the Arlington St. church, Boston, in the mess hall. Today the real work begins, and tomorrow will be Governor's day.

Among the guests on Sunday were Gov. and Mrs. Wolcott, Gen. Dalton, Cols. Souther and Locke and Adj. Ballard.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

SUBWAY TO THE SEA

Street Railway Men the Guests of the Q. & B.

A Trip Through the Boston Subway the First Attraction.

Then Visits to Quincy and Nantasket and Trip in Harbor.

The Massachusetts Street Railway Association is holding its annual outing today and are guests of the Quincy & Boston street railway, who for the entertainment of the association arranged an outing that can not fail to please the most fastidious as it will include a trip in the subway and to the sea. The association with guests to the number of nearly two hundred assembled on Church street, Boston, at 10 A. M., where special cars of the West End were in waiting. After providing each guest with a badge which was to be the passport to turn on the juice during the the day.

The party entered the subway from the Public Garden entrance, and almost immediately there was a change in the temperature, which fell several degrees and the cool breezes were very refreshing. The three special cars made the run to Park street, thence around the loop back to the starting point, the round trip, including several stops, being made in twenty minutes. The work laying the rails in this section is about completed and about ready to be opened for public travel.

The interior is light and the air clear and cool, and the whole work is a wonderful piece of engineering. As one gentleman remarked, this subway was far ahead of those in Europe which were black, smoky and disagreeable.

Before the party entered the subway a photographer took a picture of the group.

Returning to the Public Garden entrance the special cars continued on to Field's Corner where barges were in waiting to take the party to the new model power house of the West End company at Commercial Point.

From here the journey was continued to Neponset bridge where two gaily decorated fifteen bench cars of the Quincy & Boston street railway, the largest street cars in service in Massachusetts, were in waiting to take the party through Quincy. They arrived in the City of Presidents shortly after 12 o'clock.

A brief stop was made in City Square after which the trip was continued to Quincy Point where the Quincy & Boston power house was inspected and an adjournment made to New Downer Landing for dinner.

Quincy is noted for many things, among which is the location of the first railway in America which was built from Bunker Hill quarry to Neponset tide water in 1826 to transport the granite for Bunker Hill monument. The sleepers used in this railway were of granite and at each plate at the dinner was a round polished granite disk upon the back of which was the following inscription:

"Massachusetts Street Railway Association, Quincy, Mass., July 12th, 1897. This souvenir was cut and polished from a sleeper used in the construction of the first railway in America, completed October 7, 1826, leading from the Granite Quarries of Quincy to Neponset River. Compliments of Quincy & Boston Street Railway Co."

After dinner there was a little speech making, after which cars were taken for Nantasket, via. North Weymouth and Hingham. At Nantasket the steamer City of Quincy was in waiting to take the party for a sail down the harbor to the lightship. The return to Boston will be made this evening.

Besides the dinner at New Downer Landing lunches were served at nearly every stopping place. The mere fact that the Quincy & Boston street railway were entertainers was a sufficient guarantee of a grand good time.

Among the well known Quincy people in the party were: Mayor Adams, Commissioner Knowlton, Sewer Commissioner Shea, President Bryant of the City Council, Representatives T. H. Newcomb and James Thompson, Senator J. H. Flint, Dr. J. H. Gilbert, Supt. Anderson of the Quarry R. R., R. F. Claflin of the Granite bank, Clarence Burgin of the Savings bank, ex-Councilman Herbert M. Federhen, Fred H. Smith, John R. Graham, T. H. McDonnell, W. G. A. Pattee, Roger H. Wilde, John F. Merrill, John A. Duggan, Elbridge Porter, B. F. Dyer, Geo. T. Magee of the LEDGER, Selectmen of Weymouth and Selectmen of Braintree.

Young Men's Christian Association.

On account of the hot weather and small attendance, the Sloyd class did not organize last week. Another attempt will be made today.

The quarterly meeting of the Association tomorrow evening will be an important one and a full attendance is desired.

Rev. Mr. Stuart, chaplain in the U. S. Navy, gave an interesting talk at the open-air service Sunday on Dimmock street. Rev. M. H. Turk will speak next Sunday.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Mary Moody is visiting in Westboro.

Rather warm today but the hot wave is broken.

Miss Beatrice Adams is at Barre, Mass., for a short vacation.

Miss Florence Wilson is spending a few days with relatives in Dorchester.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Houghton have gone to Elmwood for a few weeks.

Mrs. Pratt of New London, Conn., is at her summer residence at Squantum.

Elliot L. Green of Atlantic is in Springfield for the summer months on business.

Assistant Engineer M. P. Barry of the Central Fire station is on his vacation.

Master John Federhen, 4th, and Mr. Muse sailed with Capt. Fuller, for a short trip.

Our summary of temperature today shows that it was very hot on these dates last year.

The street railway is running another feed wire from the Power station to supply more current to the Neponset line.

Electric cars will be run to all parts of the city tonight after the hurdy gurdy party at the Casino, Houghs Neck.

Sunday School picnickers at Merry Mount park object with reason to the presence in the park of pedlers of tonic, fruits, etc.

Rev. H. Evan Cotton and son Bruce, formerly of this city, sailed on the steamship Gallia from Boston on Saturday for Liverpool.

Miss Kathryne A. Faircloth of Buffalo, N. Y., is spending her vacation with her aunt Mrs. William Faircloth of Quincy avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson of Norfolk Downs will give a reception to their son Samuel Edgar and Miss Jennie Traynor who are to be married Tuesday, July 27.

Mrs. Charles Nelson is anxious to procure washing, to be done at her residence on Copeland street. Having a small baby it would be impossible to do it at the residence of patrons.

Secretary Bird of the Winthrop Yacht club has cordially tendered on behalf of the club its hospitalities to the officers and members of the Quincy Yacht club on Saturday and Sunday next.

The picnic of the Bible School of Bethany church on Saturday at Merry Mount park was largely attended, it being difficult to provide enough barges. Games and refreshments and a general good time.

The signal corps of the second brigade which visited Portland last week under command of Lieut. Henry W. Sprague of Quincy, had a royal good time, and their fine showing in the parade was highly complimented.

The Wollaston Baptist Sunday school enjoyed its annual picnic at Highland Park on Saturday. Two electrics left Beale street at 9.15 and carried the picnickers directly to the park. The day was hugely enjoyed at this beautiful resort by the children.

The Steadfast Ten, King's Daughters, of Wollaston held a successful lawn party on the grounds of Mr. Charles R. Sherman on Saturday evening. The leading attraction was of course Marie Grosse, who with her tambourine and hurdy gurdy entertained the large crowd the entire evening.

The death of Miss Lucy Brown on Sunday removes from our midst a young lady of a lovable and beautiful character. She will be greatly missed by her parents and her large circle of friends. She was a graduate of the Quincy High school and has taught at the Washington school since November, 1895.

The local lodge of Orangemen turned out with about fifty members this morning and made a fine showing on their way to the depot to take the 7 42 train. They were escorted by the City Band and marched via Hancock, Canal, Chestnut and Hancock streets. They took part in the Boston parade on the anniversary of the battle of Bayne.

A bicycle rider hailing from South Boston, met with quite a serious accident on Washington street about 10 o'clock Sunday night. He was riding along at a rapid gate when his handle bar broke near the head throwing the rider off. He struck on his face with terrific force. Some of his teeth were knocked out and his face was quite badly cut and bruised. He was taken into Dr. Garey's office where his injuries were dressed, when he departed for home.

EXTRA

Slight Fire.

Shortly after three this afternoon fire was discovered in the tailor establishment of Mr. Parsons in the Wilson building between Wilson's market and the Durgin & Merrill block.

Box 23 was pulled and the fire department responded and made quick work of it, the loss being trifling to building or stock.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

The Eleventh Consecutive by the T. R. & S. Co. Ball Nine.

The T. R. & S. Co. scored another victory Saturday by defeating the Jackson Caldwell team by the score of 20 to 13. The batting on both sides was heavy and the fielding poor. Austin's pitching was the most effective, he striking out 8 and Duffy but 1.

This is the 11th straight victory for the home team.

The T. R. & S. play the Cambridge Reds next Saturday at the Park.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or cooffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction announced at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week is the comedy drama "Pique," a play that has not been given here for a dozen years. It is an adaptation by Mr. Augustin Daly and in its five acts, the scenes include widely varied fields of action into which more than a score of speaking characters are introduced. The story deals with an ill-advised marriage from pique and opens at a country house on the Hudson. The subsequent action passes at an old-fashioned home in Deerfield and in the best and worse sections in New York City. The strongly contrasted scenes and characters afford constant interest, and the story of the play is told with a directness that serves to maintain its effectiveness throughout. The cast is as follows :—Matthew Standish, Mr. J. H. Gilmour; Captain Arthur Standish, U. S. N., Mr. Charles Mackay; Doctor Gossitt, Mr. Horace Lewis; Mr. Raymond Lessing, Mr. Howard Hall; Sammy Dymple, Mr. Tony Cummings; Thorsby Gyll, Mr. Lindsay Morison; Ragmoney Jim, Mr. William Humphrey; Mabel Renfrew, Miss Lillian Lawrence; Raitch, Miss Mary Sanders; Mother Thames, Miss Rose Morison. Pique is announced for only a single week.

You may hunt the world over and you will not find another medicene equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

The Boston Open Race.

The Boston Yacht club has re-entered the field and the open race under its auspices on Saturday was a grand success, several of the prizes being taken by Quincy boats.

In the first class Ida J. beat Emma C., Little Peter taking third through beating Elfrida on time allowance. The Addie was fifth and Beatrice sixth, the Harbinger being disabled; prizes $25, $15 and $10.

In the second open, Higginson & Boardman's Hoodum had no trouble winning from Sears' Romance, the Princess being third, and Burgess withdrawing. Prizes $15 and $10. In the cabin class Nettie barely beat Privateer on allowance, Muriel, Rex, Whisper and Clara following in order, the Lottie withdrawing; prizes $20, $15 and $10.

The Gosling had to lower her colors to Cockatoo in the knockabout class, Hazard and Fly also finishing in order; prizes $15, $10 and $5.

Another mild surprise was Rooster's defeat by Arab in the third class. Wrinkle crossed second ahead of Rooster, but had to be content with third on time allowance. Omeme again disappointed the critical ones by finishing last out of seven entries. The Cleopatra was fourth, Tacoma fifth, Pioneer sixth and Omeme last; prizes $15, $10 and $5.

Vitesse beat Alpine in the fourth class, Circe, Fantasy and Sphinx following in order, and Gnome withdrawing; prizes $15, $10 and $5.

—Miss Ida Leonard of South Hanover had a strange experience while fishing with a party of lady friends, a few days ago. Miss Leonard's attention was attracted by a mournful whistling sound, and presently a strange animal was observed swimming in toward the shore. The animal, which proved to be a young otter, attempted to climb the rock upon which the lady was seated, and was picked up by her and taken home, where it is at present as lively and playful as a young puppy, following its mistress about the house and out-of-doors. The otter is about 18 inches long and is feed on milk and small fish.

A PRETTY ROMANCE.

She Secured a Consulship For Her Intended Husband.

There were not more than a dozen people present at the marriage in New York of Miss Laura Delphine Kilpatrick to Mr. Harry H. Morgan on a recent morning, yet it marked the conclusion of one of the prettiest romances of the year. Miss Kilpatrick is the youngest daughter of the late General Hugh Judson Kilpatrick, U. S. A. Mr. Harry Hayes Morgan is the son of Judge P. H. Morgan, late of the supreme court of Louisiana.

General Kilpatrick was once minister to Chile—in fact, he married in that country—and it was there his daughter was born. During her father's term as minister Miss Kilpatrick had formed a strong affection for everything diplomatic. She became suddenly imbued with the idea that her sum of happiness would be complete if she could only secure a foreign appointment which would carry her abroad as soon as she was married.

Miss Kilpatrick spent some time in Washington last winter. Her father and Vice President Hobart had been intimate friends. She called on him and blushingly explained the object of her visit, an appointment for her prospective husband. He gallantly offered to aid her and as the first step introduced her to the president.

When the president argued that there were a few others who wanted foreign appointments, she answered gently that there was surely none more deserving than she. Whatever her ways and her manners, at all events she won the day. The president surrendered completely and promised that before her wedding was celebrated Mr. Morgan should have a desirable position abroad.

What seemed to the young lover a tremendously long wait followed. Miss Kilpatrick was just contemplating another trip to Washington when a message from the White House summoned her betrothed to Washington. From the hands of President McKinley himself Mr. Morgan received a commission as consul to Horgen, Switzerland, an appointment with a salary of $2,000 a year.

"This is your bride's wedding gift," said the president. "I know you will prize it as much as you love and cherish her."

A few days thereafter the pretty story was carried to a charming finish in the private chapel in St. Patrick's cathedral. The following day the couple set sail for Europe to fill the diplomatic mission secured by the efforts of Miss Kilpatrick.

A number of handsome gifts are stowed away on board the vessel. But of all their gifts the one most highly prized is a life size portrait of William McKinley, which was received from the president, accompanied by an autograph letter of congratulation. The vice president sent a check for $1,000 and a note confessing his utter inability to select a present to suit the case.—Chicago Tribune.

Spider's Web Made Into Cloth.

M. Cachot, a French chemist, recently put in a claim for the reward of $5,000 which the Manufacturers' union of England offered two years ago to the scientist who would invent a use for the web of the common spider. When the manufacturers arrived the other day at M. Cachot's laboratory, they saw in the corner of the room running from the floor to the ceiling a queer arrangement of bobbins worked by a dynamo. Looking farther up on the walls, they saw a large number of spiders. They had long mandibles and an immense abdomen, from the rear end of which issued threads. As the threads came from them the bobbins wound it, and thus secured long strands of the unbroken thread. For experimental purposes a little of the spider web was made into cloth. It was found to give a fabric very silky to the touch and as fine as oriental silk. It may be that the delicate silks of the ancients was made from the web of the spider, for it has never since been duplicated. The silk robes which Cleopatra easily pulled through an earring might have been made from the spider's web.—New York Journal.

A Persistent Office Seeker.

The most persistent office seeker seen at the White House since the beginning of the McKinley administration is James Anderson McReady of Boston. He is a funny looking little man about 55 years old, with whiskers slightly tinged with gray and wears a bell top hat with a wide black band, black clothes, turn down collar and black tie. He usually walks with his head down and takes quick, jerky steps. He is a candidate for consul general in Montreal. Despite the fact that Representative Barrett of Boston told him that he had no chance whatever of securing the place Mr. McReady still comes to the White House and refuses to believe that he will not be appointed. He has been in Washington, according to his own statement, two solid months and has been at the White House twice nearly every day. Still he has seen the president only five times. He arrives in the morning at about 10 o'clock, waits around until noon without seeing the president, then returns again after luncheon and takes his place at the reporters' table and sits around until late in the afternoon. This has been his practice for weeks.—New York Sun.

He Was Attacked by Humming Birds.

Augustus Vanwyker of the town of Stillwater, Sussex county, N. J., went out after his cows on a recent morning, and in passing a small wood lot received a stinging blow in the face within half an inch of his right eye. Blood flowed, and the shock and pain nearly caused him to faint. Another jab in the back of the neck caused him to investigate, and he was astonished to discover that he had been attacked by two humming birds, whose diminutive nests containing their young was near by.

All Aboard for Newport.

The hot weather of July thus far has turned the attention of humanity in this region to localities that give promise of cooler breezes and situations than can be found in brick-built cities or crowded community centers, and among these localities Newport proves supremely attractive, her beautiful ocean shores, wonderful land and water scenery, and the winds blowing freely from off the sea expanses all around, inviting irresistibly to the enjoyment of their beneficences. In order that citizens of Boston may have opportunity for visiting this delightful watering place, another popular excursion from Boston to Newport will take place on Thursday, July 15 next, by special train through without stop, and at the extremely low rate of $1 for the round trip. For this excursion the number of round trip tickets will be strictly limited and they will be placed on sale at Park square station and No. 3 Old State House, three days in advance of the excursion.

A Bit of Lincoln History.

Louisville, July 12.—Henry Watterson publishes in The Courier-Journal this morning a statement in reply to Judge Reagan's denial that Mr. Lincoln contemplated payment for the slaves under certain conditions and that he said to Mr. Stephens: "Let me write 'Union' at the top of this page and you may write below whatever you please." Mr. Waterson sustained his position by profuse documentary evidence. He quotes Mr. Stephens account of the Fortress Munroe conference, and produces a joint resolution prepared by Mr. Lincoln to prove that indemnity for the slaves was contemplated. He cites several creditable witnesses, all of whom declare as Mr. Waterson declares himself, that Mr. Stephens did make the statement ascribed to him.

In Honor of Senator Harris.

Nashville, July 12.—This morning Governor Taylor, his staff and committees of citizens and state officials met the funeral train carrying the body of Senator Isham G. Harris to Memphis and conveyed the body to the senate chamber of the state capitol, where it will lie in state during the day. The United States troops encamped at the centennial and the local companies of state guards will act as an escort when the body is removed from the capitol this afternoon. A detachment of the state guards will act as guards at the capitol during the day. Governor Taylor and a large committee of officials and citizens will accompany the remains to Memphis and attend the funeral.

TRAGEDY ON THE ROAD

Holden A. Tripp Is Dead and Jerry Manchester Accused of Murder.

Two Westport Farmers and They Loved Sarah Reagan.

Woman Kept House For Tripp and Manchester Married Her and Took Her Away.

Fall River, Mass., July 12.—Three disreputable characters figured in an assault case that ended in murder early yesterday morning. One of the trio was so brutally assaulted that he died; a second, with blood spots on his clothes, is held to answer for the crime, while a third, a woman of degraded character, is detained as a witness of the murder, of which she was the cause.

Holder A. Tripp is dead, murdered, the police claim, by Jeremiah Manchester, and the cause of it all is Manchester's wife, who, up to 10 days ago, lived with Tripp at intervals for 10 years.

The marriage and the removal of the woman caused much jealousy and bad feeling between the two men, but what passed between them was known only to themselves and Mrs. Manchester. Saturday night Manchester and his wife drove into Fall River, and Tripp also came into the city with his own team. The two men were drinking together in Sexton's saloon in Flint village, but they are not known to have quarreled, and nothing is known of their movements after leaving the saloon, except by the statements made by Manchester after his arrest. About 11:30 p. m. the last car on the New Bedford and Fall River electric line, when one mile out of the city on its last trip, came across Tripp's body lying in the middle of the road. Mrs. Manchester was sitting in the road holding the injured man's head in her lap, while her husband was standing over them. Tripp's head was covered with blood, and he was fearfully bruised. He was then dying, and expired before a physician could be summoned.

The passengers on the car and such other citizens as had collected, while not laying hands upon Manchester, managed to detain him until Fall River officers could be notified, when he was taken into custody and brought to this city, where he was locked up. He protested his innocence, and told his story of the affair, as follows:

He said that he started first from Fall River for his home in Westport with his wife in their wagon. They stopped at a watering trough on Eastern avenue, just on the outskirts of the city, to water their horse, and while stopping there Tripp drove by alone in his wagon, also on his way home. After their horse had finished drinking they followed on after. When they reached the point in the road where Tripp's body was found later their horse shied, but he thought little about it and kept on to the Sanford road, where they overtook Tripp's team, but the driver of the latter was not in sight. Manchester says he then associated the shying of his horse with the fact that Tripp was missing, and that the latter had been drinking, and fearing that some accident had befallen the latter he got into Tripp's wagon, turned the horse around, and telling his wife to follow in his own wagon, drove back to the place where he found Tripp lying in the middle of the road bruised and bleeding.

An autopsy held yesterday afternoon by Medical Examiner Dolan and other physicians revealed that fact that death was caused by fractures of the skull. There were several fractures and many cuts and bruises, indicating that some blunt instrument had been used upon him. It is believed by the police that the men met and quarrelled about the woman, and that Tripp was kicked to death.

The woman made but few statements, among them one to the effect that "both these men were crazy about me, but I had no hand in this." She was covered with blood, there were blood stains on the prisoner's clothes and traces of blood were found in both wagons.

It is reported on what is considered excellent authority that Manchester has confessed that he had a quarrel with Tripp Saturday night while the men were on their way home and struck him with a beer bottle, causing his death.

According to the alleged confession, Manchester says that through jealousy, because his wife used to live with Tripp, he planned to do the latter injury, and to that end drank with Tripp in Fall River and started for home at the same time as the latter.

At the point of the road where the body was found he got out of his wagon and went forward to drink beer in Tripp's wagon. When they had emptied a few bottles they indulged in some angry conversation, and Manchester struck Tripp a savage blow between the eyes with a bottle, knocking him from the wagon.

Then going around the back of the wagon Manchester fell on his victim's prostrate form and hammered it with his heels. At this his wife sprang from his wagon and tried to interfere, and when she found that Tripp did not rise from the ground she raised his head and attempted to revive him. Meantime Manchester went after the two horses, which had strayed off, and returned with them. This accounts for the fact that the heads of both horses, when found, were turned toward Fall River. This story, too, if true, accounts for portions of a broken bottle and blood stains being found on Tripp's wagon, and for the blood upon Manchester's wagon as well. Manchester, after the affair, desired to leave the body in the road, but his wife grew hysterical and would not desert it. While the two were bickering the electric car came along and they were discovered.

MAINE FISH COMMISSIONERS.

Numerous Important Hearing Are to Be Held This Week.

Augusta, Me., July 12.—The inland fish and game commissioners have a week of hearings coming along which will keep them very busy, mostly on the all-important matter of closing tributaries to lakes and ponds that are being stocked with trout or land locked salmon by the state.

The commissioners will have a hearing at Eustis tonight on a petition to close certain waters, on Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at Rangeley on a hearing for an application for a fishway and also one to prevent the destruction of spawning beds for trout and salmon by the emptying of sewers into a stream. At this hearing will also be heard the cases of application for licenses from Messrs. Matthewson and Snowman, the two guides whose licenses were withheld by the commissioners for certain reasons.

A hearing will be held at the upper dam on Wednesday morning on a petition to close Rapid river, in the evening at South Andover to close certain waters, on Thursday morning at Standish on petitions to close certain tributaries to Weld pond, also from Brownville, Appleton, Wilton, Turner, Smithfield and Old Town.

Many applications for trout and land locked salmon stock have been received by the commissioners in the regular form from various parts of the state. No action can be taken on them until fall.

FIRE IN BERLIN MILLS.

Saw and Grist Mill Burned to the Ground. Loss $100,000.

Berlin, N. H., July 12.—A fire which originated from a hot box completely destroyed the large saw and grist mills connected with the immense plant of the Berlin Mills company yesterday morning, entailing a loss of $100,000.

The employes, firemen and citizens generally worked with a will. The company's steam fire engine did excellent service, and the automatic sprinklers served to materially check the flames, so that the rest of the great plant and the big lumber yards, together with the extensive plants of the business corporations in the village, and the town itself were saved from destruction. The property is insured for $100,000.

The mill will be rebuilt as soon as the losses are adjusted and debris can be cleared away.

Five hundred men are thrown out of employment temporarily. The mills were running day and night, and there are about 45,000,000 feet of logs in their booms. Work will be commenced today upon a coffer dam preparatory to rebuilding on the same site, mills perhaps not as large, but with fully as great a capacity as those burned, which handled 400,000 feet of lumber per day. The fire is a serious blow to the workmen at Berlin, although the company will employ, at one thing or another, all the men it can, especially those with families.

Lost Faith In Prohibition.

Old Orchard, Me., July 12.—Temperance mass meetings, under the auspices of the Washington society, were held at the camp ground yesterday, and were attended by large audiences. Rev. Samuel F. Pearson of Portland was in charge. He made two addresses. He declared that he had lost hope in the efficacy of the Maine prohibitory law, as at present observed, and that unless some radical change takes place in the attitude of the people and officers this state will, within the next decade, follow the example of Iowa and the distilleries be reopened. He said that in Portland alone there are 300 liquor saloons being run without any attempt to disguise them. Rev. C. W. Bradlee of Biddeford and George H. Blake of Portland were the other speakers. More than 1000 signatures to the temperance pledge were obtained.

Sheriff Favors Suicide Sheory.

Augusta, Me., July 12.—Sheriff Ballou of Sagadahoc county does not think that there was foul play connected with the recent death of 16-year-old Mrs. Mabel Davis of Bowdoinham, who was found June 17 shot dead in Mrs. Williams' house, where she and her husband were employed. He favors the suicide theory, and did not think it necessary to hold an inquest. Many people are still of a different belief, and County Attorney Rogers has been approached as to the advisability of exhuming the remains and having an investigation, and they still talk of raising a fund for that purpose. Davis, the husband, is still employed by Mrs. Williams.

Planning to Help Miners.

Boston, July 12.—The coal miners' strike was considered yesterday in the office of the Boston Central Labor union at a secret conference of local labor men and James O'Connell, vice president of the International Association of Machinists. The Boston men who attended the conference expressed the unmost sympathy for the striking miners, and considered plans by which assistance might be rendered. Mr. O'Connell spoke at length upon the situation in the mining districts and urged that the labor men in all parts of the United States should do all in their power to help the miners win the fight.

Subway Completed.

Newton, Mass., July 12.—The Boston and Albany Railroad company yesterday commenced running its trains through the "subway" from Faneuil to Auburndale, just one year from the date upon which the work was commenced. At the present but two of the four tracks are completed, and work will be commenced at once upon the remaining two. The completion of this portion of the subway marks the first chapter of the great work which is being done by the state, the city of Newton and the Boston and Albany, that of abolishing the grade crossings on the south side of the city.

Beds at a Premium.

Isle of Shoals, N. H., July 12.—Every room and bed on the island was occupied Saturday night and the billiard rooms and dance halls were turned into sleeping rooms in order to accommodate alll the Unitarians present at the summer meeting of the Unitarian association. The nine day's session opened yesterday with a sermon by Rev. Samuel M. Brothers and closed with a praise and conference meeting led by Rev. Alfred Gooding of Portsmouth. Over 500 members were present from all over New England at the opening.

Chicopee Girl Missing.

Boston, July 12.—James L. Humphrey of Chicopee came to this city yesterday and asked the police to assist him in finding his niece, Rosamond H. Humphrey, who disappeared from Blandford on July 1. She is a tall, rather slight girl of 22 years, and when she left home wore a light green summer dress and a blue sailor hat. Mr. Humphrey says that his niece has been subject to epileptic fits, and he fears that she has wandered away.

THE STRIKING MINERS.

Arbitration Boards Have Arrived at the Smoky City.

The Men Are More Confident Than Ever.

Every Effort Will Be Exerted to Bring Out West Virginia Diggers.

Pittsburg, July 12.—The arrival of the Ohio and Indiana state boards of arbitration, the meeting last night of the United Labor league of western Pennsylvania, and the report that a movement was on foot to import new men to take the places of the strikers at the Pittsburg and Chicago companies' mines, were the new features in the situation of the miners' strike yesterday.

At the United Labor league meeting 63 out of 72 labor organizations were represented. Resolutions were unanimously adopted pledging financial and moral support to the miners, and calling upon all the trades unions in western Pennsylvania to aid and assist in every possible manner in furthering the interests of the strikers.

This is the second week of the coal miners strike, and already it gives promise of being one of the greatest wage struggles in the history of this country. Nine days ago the coal operators in this district and the miners themselves little dreamed that within one short week such an area of general suspension could be wrought as now exists in the bituminous mining industry. Then the mouth of the many coal tipples that dot the Monongahela, Youghiogheny, Alleghany and Peters Creek valleys and the valleys of Toms and Millers' run, were open and turning out thousands and thousands of tons of the best coal that enters into the competitive markets of the world. Now all is changed. The vast caverns are like so many graveyards.

The success that has attended the movement has greatly elated the miners, and during the next few days every effort will be made to bring out the men in the few mines that are still working. This will be a difficult task, but they express confidence in their ability to make the suspension complete.

From the best information obtainable the Pittsburg operators are in no hurry to have the difficulty adjusted. So many of them had stocks on railroad siddings which they held for an advance. Much of this was disposed of Saturday at a good profit. One prominent operator said that it would take another week to determine the exact state of the market, and by that time a general cleaning up will have taken place. All interested will be ready to begin business an a new basis and probably at a higher price.

"This whole thing will result in a compromise," said another prominent operator. "The operators are in a position to stand it for some time, and I believe the miners are in about the same condition.

"It looks as if business will brighten up, and in that event the operators will be able to get better prices, and the condition of business and the condition of the miner will be simultaneously improved."

Just now the greatest obstacle in the way of success of the miner is the activity of the diggers in the West Virginia fields. They are working night and day and are getting ready to supply all the coal that is needed. They are repeating what they did three years ago, when a general suspension was declared. At that time there were a number of operators in the mountain state that were on the verge of bankruptcy. The general suspension was declared, and there came a great demand for coal at prices that insured a big profit. The operators rallied around them a large number of men, whose friendship and support they have encouraged ever since. The operators profited by thousands and thousands of dollars. When the season had finished and the strike was declared a failure they balanced their books and found things on the proper side of their ledgers. They realized that they owed much of their profit to their miners, and rewarded them for it. On every succeeding pay day the faithful miners were paid bonuses in the shape of gold pieces, and naturally the best of feeling prevails among the employers and employes.

This is the condition of affairs the organizers that will go into West Virginia district this week will have to encounter. It is argued by the miners that there are more men out in that section than there were three years ago, and they express the greatest confidence in bringing them out if they can get their ears. This failing, the railroad organizations will be appealed to. This plan of campaign has been outlined by the national officers, and the developments of the week will be watched with interest.

The miners' officials say that the success of the movement depends on th action of the West Virginia miners. They argue that many men in the Pittsburg district who were not affiliated with their organization sacrificed thousands of dollars and joined it. They will tell the mountain state diggers of the success in this district and make every effort to have them join. There are a number of operators in the Pittsburg district who have expressed a willingness to pay the price demanded. But the miners have said nay. They will insist that a majority of the operators in the district pay the 69-cent rate or none.

This is the ultimatum of the national officials, from which there is no appeal. It is known that some of the miners' officials would be glad to let all the operators paying the 69-cent rate operate their mines, but cannot, owing to the decision of the national officials, who desire to have all the surplus coal taken from the market.

High Humidity at New York.

New York, July 12.—The temperature did not rise over 80 degrees yesterday, but the humidity stood, until evening, at 98 per cent, and made it decidedly uncomfortable for the "stay-at-homes." Hundreds of thousands of persons went to the seashore, and many more sought the shade in Central, Bronx and Van Courtlandt parks, while thousands of bicyclists rode out in the country.

NOW COMES THE TUG.

Conference Committee on Tariff Has Reached the Rocky Places.

Senators Stubbornly Insisting on the Amendments.

House Members Are Equally Tenacious and Delay Is Probable.

Washington, July 13.—All sorts of guesses are being made as to when the conference report will be submitted, and although the conferees themselves do not at this moment know, the speaker is determined to keep his team well in hand and to be ready for action when the time comes.

Congressman McCall and other Massachusetts representatives are making a strong fight to have the ad valorem duty on hides reduced to 10 per cent, and with good prospects of partial success at least. Speaker Reed is strongly opposed to the hide duty, and is said to be using his influence with the house conferees. A canvass has been made of the house, and all advocates of free hides are bringing their influence to bear upon the conference. It is fair to suppose that a 15 per cent rate may be ultimately secured.

The house conferees are standing stiffly for the house schedule on wool, contending that the senate rates would be most oppressive upon manufacturers. The senate classification of third-class wools is especially objectionable to the carpet manufacturers, and Senators Penrose and Quay have been active in their efforts to secure an advance to 12 cents in the value of wool that may be admitted at 4 cents. The senate schedule makes 10 cents the figure of demarcation in value, fixing a duty of 7 cents a pound on all wool above that price. The Pennsylvania senators say that under this classification 99 per cent of the carpet wools would be made to pay 7 cents duty, and that the result would be to close out many of the carpet makers.

There is a proposition to compromise the differences by retaining the senate classification, but allowing a drawback on all wools which it can be proven are used in carpet making, on which 7 cents may be paid. The house is also standing for its rates on first and second-class wools, which were reduced by the senate, with a good prospect of success.

There was quite a movement on the Democratic side of the senate to insure a firm stand for free burlaps, cotton bagging, floor matting, cotton ties, etc., placed on the free list in the senate, and to hold white pine at $1 per thousand feet. This was because of the report, which was authenticated, that the committee had tentatively agreed to restore the $2 rate on white pine, and to restore the other articles mentioned to the dutiable list. These changes were made in the senate by majorities ranging from 1 to 5 votes, and the supporters of the senate's action expressed the opinion that they will be able to hold all the votes for a motion to reject the conference report that were originally cast for the amendments. To do this they would have to make sure not only of Senator McEnery's vote, but of some Republican votes as Senator Carter and Hansbrough. The problem bids fair to develop an interesting situation in the senate if the committee on conference adheres to its present determination with regard to these articles.

The conferees were together again last night until 11 o'clock, and at the conclusion of their session were even more uncommunicative than they have been heretofore. This might be explained either in the theory that they are close to an agreement or that they are wider apart than before.

In the Senate.

Washington, July 13.—A discussion of Union Pacific railroad affairs occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. The deficiency appropriation bill was taken up early in the day and Mr. Morgan proposed an amendment designed to prevent the consummation of an agreement made some time ago for the settlement of the government claims against the road. Mr. Morgan spoke throughout the day, severely arraigning the Pacific railway managers. Late in the day the entire subject was disposed of by the withdrawal of the paragraph to which Mr. Morgan had offered his amendment. The deficiency appropriation bill was not completed up to the time of adjournment.

"Forcibly Hurried Ashore."

New York, July 13.—Surveyor of the Port Maguire assigned Inspector C. A. Du Moutin, Jr., to count the passengers on board the steamboat Richard Peck of the New Haven line on Sunday. Yesterday Du Moutin reported that he was unable to carry out his instructions, because he had been ordered off the boat by Superintendent Geraty, and afterwards forcibly hurried ashore by one of the crew, who had the words "Ticket Seller" on his cap. If Du Moutin's complaint is correct the New Haven Steamboat company may be fined $500.

LAST SESSION HELD.

International Convention of Christian Endeavorers Brought to a Close.

San Francisco, July 13.—The last open session of the International Christian Endeavorers was held yesterday. The attendance at the morning and the afternoon meetings was large, and at night those who managed to obtain entrance to either of the main meeting places were fortunate, for only 25,000 could be accommodated and 10,000 more sought admission. Estimates made by leading business men agree that the people brought here by this great gathering will leave not less than $1,000,000 in the city.

The rivalries which have existed between two coteries of Chicago Endeavorers have culminated in open agitation. One faction was headed by Rev. C. S. Bullock, editor of The Christian Endeavorer, the other by E. A. Ransom, who represented "The Golden Rule" followers. En route to San Francisco the Chicagoans split at Denver on the Sunday traveling question, the Bullock party arriving at Salt Lake City on Saturday evening and the Ransom on Sunday evening. At this point the banners "Illinois Endeavorers" hanging on the Bullock coaches were taken by the Ransom people with the plea that the former did not officially represent the Illinois delegation. The Bullock passengers were all Illinois Endeavorers, and maintained their right to organize a separate California-bound excursion, and to so designate themselves on their couches. The banners, however, were not recovered.

The second chapter of this religious war has been written on the Pacific coast. The Bullock party, which arrived two days ahead of the Ransom party, planned under the leadership of Mr. Bullock, who had been officially assigned to slum meetings in connection with the convention, a series of gospel meetings in Chinatown and similar districts. When the Ransom people arrived they promptly had Mr. Bullock turned down as leader of slum meetings, and also ignored him in the Illinois rally Saturday evening.

The evening session in the Mechanics' pavilion led by President Clark was a most notable assembly. It is estimated that over 15,000 persons listened to the closing exercises of the convention.

In his remarks Mr. Clark said that nearly 400,000 men, women and children had attended the meetings during the week.

The consecration meeting at Woodward's pavilion in the evening was characterized from the first by an intense spirit of devotion. The great audience listened to an earnest discourse by Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., of Philadelphia, who spoke of "The Outpouring of the Holy Spirit."

A series of hallelujah songs was followed by the season of consecration, under Secretary Baer.

The last songs were given with animation only indulged in by Endeavorer hosts about to be separated for 12 months. With "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again," the great spiritual gathering in this pavilion had passed into religious history.

Admiral Beardslee's Instructions.

Washington, July 13.—Any aggressive interference on the part of Japan will result in the landing of bluejackets and marines, and the hoisting of the American flag over the Hawaiian islands, with or without the ratification of the pending annexation treaty. There is not a public man in Washington familiar with the situation who does not agree as to the absurdity of Japan's position on the Hawaiian question. The administration realizing that some crisis might arise while the treaty still hangs fire in the senate, has taken steps to prepare for an emergency. Rear Admiral Beardslee will have when the next steamer lands in Honolulu, instructions, giving him power to act in the manner indicated above, at the first sign of aggression on the part of Japan and trouble of any kind with which the local authorities are not able to cope.

BIG ADVANCE IN PRICE

Coal Goes Up One Hundred and Fifty Per Cent as Result of Strike.

Arbitrators Striving to Settle the Present Trouble.

Every Mine But One In Pittsburg District Is Is Now Shut Down.

Pittsburg, July 13.—The miners' strike is causing the price of coal to steadily advance and yesterday it was selling at $1.80, an increase of 150 per cent since the commencement of the struggle. The feature in matters pertaining to the strike is the presence in the city of the joint arbitration board, who are endeavoring by every means possible to bring to a peaceable conclusion the strife now in progress. The board held informal sessions yesterday and in the intervals interviewed a number of the operators, the big majority of whom are in favor of arbitration, provided all of the operators will abide by the desision rendered.

One of the dissenters is W. P. Dearmitt, president of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. He declares he has nothing to arbitrate and says the strike is the result of the machinations of politicians. The strikers made further advances in getting out practically every miner in the districts outside of Dearmitt's men, who still remain loyal to their employers.

At a mass meeting held at West Newton yesterday, Vice President McKay of the Miners' association said he believed the West Virginia mines would be closed down within two weeks. If they are not, he said, the railroad men would be called on to bring the work to a standstill in that state.

The operators claim the railroads will supply cars sufficient to carry the entire output of the West Virginia fields.

There is a strong indication of a coal famine confronting the country within the next 10 days. It is claimed by conservative operators that the marketable supply at present, which is placed at 10,000,000 bushels, would be only able to meet the demands of the market for about a month under ordinary conditions. With the scarcity of coal already prevailing at the lake ports, it is claimed the supply will not last over two weeks at the longest. In anticipation of such a condition the coal operators are not very anxious to fill orders, and are holding out for the advance in price that is expected to result. The only source of supply is from the river mines, as the railroads are confiscating for their own use all the coal ready for shipment along their lines.

This order was issued last week, and with the exception of permitting the railroad operators filling orders for coaling vessels at the lake ports, no coal is allowed to leave the district. With the supply limited to the Monongahela district, the prospects of famine is declared to be a certainty. There has been a marked increase in the price of coal within the present week. The retail dealers, as well as the operators in general, concede that a famine is imminent, and look for prices to advance beyond the limit reached during the previous general strike of the miners in 1894.

BOLT STRUCK TENT.

One Soldier In Militia Camp at Peekskill Is Dead and Many Injured.

New York, July 13.—Lightning struck the state camp at Peekskill yesterday afternoon, selecting the Y. M. C. A. tent as its object. One man was killed and many others were badly hurt. The storm at Peekskill was a terrific one. Rain fell during the entire day and as a result the men did not have many duties to perform. A great number of them gathered in the Y. M. C. A. tent, which was commodious and occupied generally by those who had reading or letter-writing to do.

About 2:30 a score or more of the men had gathered here. The storm was at its height. The rain fell in torrents and the thunder crashed. Suddenly there was a blinding flash of lightning, and in a moment the tent was down and in flames. A general alarm was sounded and the guardsmen and ambulance corps came at double quick. Almost every man who had been under the canvas was shocked by the lightning. Corporal J. J. McDonald of company A, Twenty-second regiment, was dead. Half a dozen of the men were unconscious. The body of Corporal McDonald was the first taken from the mass of ruins. The surgeons worked over it for an hour or more, but their efforts were fruitless. Those who were knocked unconscious were revived, some of them only with great difficulty, and one or two of the men are still in a serious condition.

Mrs. Ross Must Prove Kinship.

New York, July 13.—In an action brought by the heirs-at-law of William Henry King, the Newport millionaire, who died in an insane asylum, against Mrs. Eugenia A. Webster Ross to quiet their title to real estate in this country, against her claim that she is the only next kin of King, Justice Lawrence has directed Mrs. Ross to furnish a bill of particulars as to her kinship to King who is claimed by her to have been her uncle. Mrs. Ross was dismissed from a Rhode Island litigation for her refusal to supply similar information and it is possible that her answer will be struck out here, unless she gives the required information.

THE STREET RAILWAY MEN.

They Found the Q. & B. Company to be Admirable Entertainers.

The outing Monday of the Massachusetts Street Railway Association will go down in history as one of the most successful and most enjoyable outings that the association has ever had, and from this time out the reputation of the Quincy & Boston street railway as entertainers will stand pre-eminent among the street railway companies of the State.

From the time that the party entered the subway at 10 o'clock until they landed from the steamer City of Quincy at Boston or Quincy in the evening it was one round of pleasure.

Everything on the programme laid out moved with clock-like regularity and there was not a hitch in anything. After dinner at New Downer Landing the trip to Nantasket via. North Weymouth and Hingham was uneventful although the trip was enlivened by music by Brown's orchestra.

The first stop was made at the Nantasket chutes and fifteen minutes was passed in this delightful sport. The party continued their trip to the steam boat landing where the steamer City of Quincy was in waiting.

Owing to the lateness it was decided not to go out as far as the lightship but they sailed down to Boston Light, and on the trip to Boston sailed around the battleship Massachusetts, and although the party was not permitted to board her she was cheered lustily.

On the way up a lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts, crackers, cheese and coffee was served which was relished by the party which had become hungry again.

The wharf in Boston was reached shortly after 6 o'clock, and after the out-of-town guests had landed the steamed sailed to Quincy where she arrived at 8 o'clock with the Quincy contingent.

The committee in charge of the days' outing were President Graham, Supt. Weeks, and the board of directors.

The souvenirs of Quincy granite from sleepers used in the construction of the first railway in the country were greatly prized by the visiting street railway men.

Orangemen's Picnic.

The following lodges were represented Monday at the parade and picnic of the Orangemen: True Blue, Cambridge; Mt. Horeb, Somerville; Maiden City, Clinton; Martin Luther and Rising Star, Boston; Mt. Sinai, Malden; Standish, Chicopee; Bunker Hill, Charlestown; Cameron and Paul Revere, Boston; Chosen Few, Brookline; Gen. Garfield, Chelsea; Bay View, Quincy; Massachusetts, Roxbury; Standard, Cambridgeport; Linton, Everett.

The picnic was at Highland Lake grove and was attended by fully 1600. There was a dinner with speeches, followed by sports. The tug of war contest was particularly interesting to the Quincy members as they held the silver pitcher from their victory last year. The Camerons beat the Paul Reveres, and Quincys beat Bunker Hills. In the finals the Quincys lost on a close decision.

Quincy entries won in some of the other contests.

Yesterday's Fire.

The fire at the tailoring establishment of William Parsons, at 114 Hancock street, on Monday afternoon was caused by a gasoline stove which was located in a closet annex built upon the piazza. Mr. Parsons raised a cover over the stove and the flames burst forth, burning him some, and quickly setting fire to the building. The fire spread rapidly, but as the hose carriage from the central station arrived within two minutes after the alarm from Box 23 it needed only one stream to drench it in short order. Hose 2 from Wollaston and Hose 4 from Quincy Point were promptly on the scene, had they been required, the company from Wollaston being ahead. The loss was mostly to the building and is estimated at $40 by Chief Williams, and $150 by Mr. George H. Wilson, the owner.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Doggy.

Mr. John Chase is on his vacation.

Congressman Barrows sailed for Europe on Saturday.

That was a heavy rain about 6 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Clarence Seaman of Atlantic is home on his vacation.

Work has begun on the street railway track to Squantum.

A high wind prevails and makes the hot temperature endurable.

The Misses Gray of Atlantic have gone to Concord for two weeks.

Mr. Benjamin Redman and family have gone to Hedding, N. H.

Miss Emma Coughlin of Fall River is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Marden.

Mrs. Elizabeth (Souther) Ilsley is quite sick at her father's residence on Foster street.

Councilman and Mrs. John W. Nash are taking a ten days' rest at North Conway, N. H.

Miss Marion Hannum of Cedar Grove is the guest of her aunt on Newcomb place.

Mr. George S. Burr and family of Atlantic left on Monday for a month's visit to Eastport, Me.

The Knights and Ladies of Honor will hold their annual picnic on Wednesday at Salem Willows.

Members of Hodenosannee tribe of Red Men visited Pequot tribe of Brockton, Monday evening.

Mr. Wilson Tisdale and family have gone to Canton, Me., at the Herdsdale farm, for the summer.

At a meeting of the vestrymen of Christ's church Monday evening George H. Brown was elected warden.

Miss Annie Bugbee of Norfolk Downs has just returned from a fortnight's vacation at Worcester.

Mrs. Wm. Brandau of New York is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Loud.

George H. Hitchcock and family of Foster street are located for the summer at their pretty place, Marshfield.

City Clerk Keith has received several copies of the Acts and Resolves of the Legislature of 1897 for distribution.

Rev. N. N. Morten and family of the Swedish Baptist church of Campello are spending two weeks at Norfolk Downs.

A lawn party by the ladies of Bethany church will be held tomorrow evening at the residence of Mrs. George Macfarlane.

Mrs. G. O. Whitman, after an absence of a number of weeks in Connecticut, has returned to her home on Chestnut street.

Messrs. Elmer T. Noyes, Joseph A. Mitchell and Walter P. Ela of Wollaston are at Lake Winnepesaukee on a fishing trip.

Work on the foundation of the sewer pumping station is progressing rapidly and will be completed some weeks ahead of time.

A pleasant party of about 30 members of the I. O. G. T. from Atlantic and Wollaston attended the convention at Hyde Park Monday night.

Mrs. Wm. Davis of Granite street, who fell and broke her ankle ten weeks ago, is rusticating at Houghs Neck with Mrs. W. S. Williams for a few weeks.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Safford, formerly of this city, will be sorry to learn that they have lost their youngest son Frank, aged nine years, he being drowned in the Merrimac river.

Co. K will go into camp at South Framington Monday, July 19th for six days' duty. The men will report at the Armory at 7.30 A. M., in fatigue uniform. The following men are detailed on the ambulance corps: H. A. Matthews, H. Whitcomb, D. Foster and F. Tucker.

The recklessness of bicycle riders is a a frequent occurrence. Many seem to have no regards for the rights of carriage riding or pedestrians. They are on all sides of the street and all over it, and the wonder is that there are no more accidents, rather than that there are so few.

It is suggested in Brockton and would be a good idea in Quincy where there are many policy holders in the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association that they get together before the extra assessment is due and ascertain how many propose to meet it. Perhaps the amount due for death benefits could be taken from the emergency fund. It might be a good idea for the policy holders to get together, and it certainly could do no harm.

The people of the Universalist church will have an outing at Salem Willows, Thursday, July 15th. They will take the 8.12 train for Boston, and from Scollay Square will be provided with special electrics for the Willows. As the place is one of the most attractive on the New England coast, and a fish dinner and good time generally are included, many are expected to go. Mrs. Richard Newcomb and Mrs. Lombard of Hancock street, have the matter in charge and may be consulted respecting tickets, etc.

WOLLASTON ANXIOUS.

For Whereabouts of Mr. Geo. H. Murray.

Left Houghs Neck at 9.30 Last night in a Yacht.

Had One Companion—S. B. Willey, Jr.—Boat Missing.

Much anxiety is felt at Wollaston over the non-appearance of the yacht White Wings of the Wollaston Yacht club. The White Wings was one of the squadron which visited the Quincy Yacht club on Monday evening. She was in command of Capt. Stephen B. Wiley, Jr., an experienced skipper, with Mr. George H. Murray as mate. When she left the Quincy Yacht club's float at 10 o'clock she carried two reefs. The wind was blowing strong from the south-west at the time.

The White Wing was the first boat to start for home at exactly ten o'clock, and all the others which followed arrived safely last night.

This morning when the Wollaston club learned that the White Wings and her crew were missing, a volunteer crew of eight men started out in the new yacht Primier of the Wollaston club, and they are cruising among the island in the Quincy bay trying to find some trace of the missing men or boat.

At noon the families of the two men had heard nothing either of them or of the boat.

Mr. Wiley is a truckman who resides on Pine street. Mr. Murray is a wholesale dealer in shoes with an office on Lincoln street, Boston, and is a well known citizen of Wollaston.

The White Wings is a 17 ft. boat formerly owned by A. L. Baker and has participated in the races of the Squantum and Wollaston clubs.

Latest.

A report has just been received at this office saying that a yacht, supposed to be the missing White Wings of the Wollaston Yacht club lay at anchor this forenoon under the lee of Bradley's point, at the entrance to Weymouth Back river. The gale increased to such fury Monday night that the yacht was probably making heavy weather, and Capt. Wiley decided wisely to run under a lee and wait for it to blow out.

People at Bradley's Phosphate works when communicated with said that no yacht answering that description was anchored off that point and none had been seen there last night or this morning.

The clerk in Mr. Bradley's office, however, says that the captain of their vessel which arrived at the Point at 12 o'clock this noon reported that he passed a large yacht upside down off Hangman's island, but was unable to make out her name.

If it was a large boat that the captain saw it is probably not the White Wings, for the latter is a small boat.

On the run down to the Quincy Yacht club float Monday night the White Wings carried full sail, but it is probable that owing to the high wind sail was shortened before the start for home was made.

MOONLIGHT SAIL.

Wollaston Yacht Club Makes a Visit to the Quincy Yacht Club.

Seven yachts of the Wollaston Yacht Club, took about seventy members and guests of the club for a moonlight sail and a call on the Quincy Yacht Club on Monday evening. At the Quincy Yacht Club's house they were graciously received and tendered the courtesies of the place by Secretary Whiting and Mr. Charles F. Colby. The squadron consisted of the steam yacht Winona, Captain Gardner with Vice Commodore Barstow on board; the Magnolia, Rear Commodore Hardy; the Premier, Captain Hayden; the White Wings, Captain S. B. Wiley, Jr.; the Thelma, Captain Merrill; and the Clara Lou, Captain Coombs. The White Wings was the first yacht of the squadron to arrive at the club float.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick H. Lycett was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Lyons was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Michael Fitzgerald for assault on his wife at Weymouth was called, and he was fined $10.

The continued case of William Conner of Weymouth, for drunkenness, was called and he was defaulted.

Mary P. Gaynor of Randolph came into court and paid a fine of $50 for keeping a liquor nuisance.

Heavy Gale.

The yachts in the bay off Houghs Neck are having a hard time of it and some are adrift. The big sloop Edith owned by L. A. & F. W. Randell, of Boston; the Brynhilde, owned by O. M. Higgins, of Hyde Park and A. J. Cavanagh's half rater are among those who have parted their moorings, also a sloop which was moored off Raccoon island.

—Rev. Alan Hudson of Brockton, formerly of North Weymouth, is with the Christian Endeavorers in California.

The Powers' Note.

Constantinople, July 13.—The following is the text of the collective note of the powers to Turkey: "The great powers have adopted the project of strategical rectification as it has been worked out by the military attaches and submitted to the sublime porte. In consequence they have agreed to assure the Ottoman government that they have arrived at a firm determination to put an end to the obstruction, the only effect of which is the prevention of the conclusion of a peace, eminently in the interest of Europe."

Mrs. Bradbury Dismissed.

San Francisco, July 13.—When the case against Mrs. John Bradbury of Los Angeles, charged with adultery, was called yesterday afternoon the fair defendant did not appear in person. Her counsel explained that she was still too ill to attend. Secretary Kane on behalf of the Society for the Prevention of Vice requested that the case be dismissed as to Mrs. Bradbury, which was done.

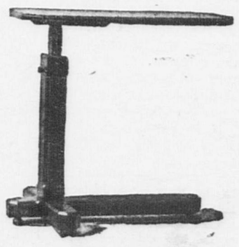

You sometimes hear men telling with foolish conceit of how hard they overwork and that they neglect their health in the pursuit of money. There are thousands of men who admit these things with a sort of pride, and slap themselves on the chest and laugh at the idea they will some-day regret their recklessness and neglect. They laugh at Death, but in a short while, a very short while, the laugh is on the other side. Death waits while they laugh. He who laughs last, laughs best, and in due time Death dances on the prostrate body of the laugher. There are many funny things in this world but death is not one of them. Neither is ill-health for it is one of Death's weapons and the most effective.

When a hard-working man feels out of sorts, and has a poor appetite, and doesn't sleep well, and goes to work in the morning tired-out and heavy headed, he should take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best health-bringer and health-keeper known. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, restores the appetite and keeps it hearty and keen. It drives impurities from the blood and disease-germs from the body. It builds healthy flesh, firm muscles, steady nerves and active brain cells. It brings restful sleep and restores ambition. It cures nervous irritation, nervous exhaustion and nervous prostration. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It is the discovery of an eminent and skillful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, now and for thirty years past, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS. Good temper is largely a matter of good health, and good health is largely a matter of healthy activity of the bowels. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are safe, sure and speedy, and once taken do not have to be taken always. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Druggists sell them.

FOOD FOR INFANTS

is carefully weighed, measured and generally scrutinized by fond mothers, and rightly, too.

But the need for taoughtful inspection of what we eat and drink is not peculiar to babyhood, but remains with us through life.

Some day—when we get time—we're going to write a book with a title somewhat after this fashion: "The Tremendous Influence for Evil Upon the Human Race Which Has Been Exerted by Men and Women Whose Stomachs Were Sadly Out of Order as a Result of Eating the Wrong Sort of Groceries."

You may laugh, just for a minute, but there's a mighty serious side to the proposition, and the moral of it all is:

Look after YOUR stomach by eating BOSTON BRANCH groceries.

Whatever is newest and latest in table supplies can be found on our counters.

First and foremost is BREAD, "the staff of life." In hot weather physicians all agree a meat diet is heating and should be avoided, and what fills the place like good, wholesome bread? For twenty years we have made a specialty of supplying our trade with the best flour that money can buy, and our sales, reaching into the thousands of barre's yearly, show that the public of Quincy and vicinity appreciate our effort in that direction. Buying flour from our establishment, you are assured of paying but one profit between the mill and the consumer. Our stock and assortment of cereals is large and always fresh. We are pleased to quote prices on our goods at all times.

The steamer City of Boston, which is being wrecked at Nut island, will be burned about the first of August.

High course tides this week. The tide on Monday night came over the causeway on Sea street, near the Willows.

A stiff sou'west wind blew all day Monday. The "Emerson Shoe" yacht was capsized off Raccoon island. The three occupants were rescued little the worse for a ducking. Capt. C. E. White's tender broke adrift from the Quincy Yacht club's float early in the evening.

Mr. J. W. Simond and family from Hoboken, N. J., will spend a few weeks at the Sunny Side cottage on Centre road, and will return home after visiting friends at Nantasket.

Very few boats ventured out today on account of the wind.

The yacht Surprise, Capt. George Newcomb of the Quincy Yacht club, lost her tender on Sunday. It broke adrift and was "pickep up" by a Boston boat.

The yacht Moondyne, Capt. A. J. Shaw of the Quincy Yacht club, arrived at her moorings early on Monday evening from a trip to Provincetown. She rounded Wood End at 12 o'clock noon, and at 6 o'clock was passing Boston Light. She logged on an average seven and a half knots an honr.

Mrs. A. W. Vinal will probably spend the month of August with her daughters at the Demorest cottage.

The hurdy gurdy party was a brilliant affair and grand success. About 200 present, music by hurdy gurdy assisted by Miss Marie Grosse, tambourinist.

Mrs. H. Brown and family from Dorchester are spending the summer months at the Trask cottage.

A boat overturned out in the bay Monday afternoon containing four young men from Brockton they having a very narrow escape from drowning.

A moonlight excursion will leave here tonight in a barge bound for Highland Lake grove.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Dr. Willard and Wife of Quincy Mansion School Receive.

Dr. and Mrs. Horace Mann Willard observed their twenty-fifth marriage anniversary Monday by an informal reception to their friends at the Quincy mansion.

The house was profusely decorated in honor of the occasion and the spacious grounds never looked more beautiful than on this occasion, the recent rain having brightened up the lawns.

The reception was from 2 to 10 o'clock and during those hours there were between 200 and 300 callers, the guests coming from Montreal, New York, Providence, Boston, Cambridge, Brookline, Bellows Falls, Vt., and many other places.

Although the invitations issued for the reception stated "no presents," the callers disregarded this clause and the presents were numerous as well as handsome, and consisted of silver, books, paintings, and china.

Dr. and Mrs. Willard were assisted in the entertainment of their guests by Miss Hadley of Lynn, Mrs. Guild of Bellows Falls, Vt., and Miss Huntington of New York.

Many letters and telegrams of congratulation and regret at inability to be present were also received.

A dainty lunch was served in the spacious dining room during the reception.

AN OLD FRIEND.

He was an old friend from the west. He stood beside my desk
And pushed his fingers through his hair in manner picturesque.
In early dawn of morning time it was that he appeared,
And I donated cash to mow his three weeks' growth of beard.

He was an old friend from the west, at least he said he was,
I didn't recollect him, but he spoke of Harry Dawes,
And told about the Nellie M., a mine I used to own,
And how Judge Bassett had skipped out to distant parts unknown.

He was an old friend from the west. At nine o'clock once more
He came and spoke reflectively of the days of eighty-four.
I didn't know him, but he left with fifty cents of mine
Because he knew Ed Ivins, Bloor and likewise
Selby Cline.

He was an old friend from the west. He sat down to relate
The strange things that had come to pass since
Utah was a state.
This was his third call. He came in at half past three p. m.
His trunks were held, and he would like enough to pay for them.

He was an old friend from the west. He came again at five
And said he'd need a place to sleep till money could arrive.
And then he told that Arthur Brown was senator no more,
And Edward, having shot himself, had sought
the other shore.

He was an old friend from the west. Next morning when I came
To work I found upon my desk a note that bore his name.
'Twas not about hotel or check or baggage, draft or trunk—
It read: "Please come and bail me out.
They've got me in as drunk."

He was an old friend from the west. Out where the bridewell is Today there shines a countenance which, sad to say, is his.
The fine was fifty dollars, and each day he writes to me
To pay the same for old friends' sake and thereby set him free.

He was an old friend from the west. He knew the Nellie M.,
And Powers, Jackson, Selby Cline and all the rest of them.
And, oh, how lucky, to my mind, those other ones appear
Who are so comfortably there while I am sadly here.

He Wanted a Wheel.

"Well, my son," said the editor to his son, who wanted a wheel, "you'll find one in the front end of that wheelbarrow, and there is a big pile of coal ashes back of the house that will have to be moved. The handle bars are of white ash and are adjustable, so you can get any style of hump on that suits your fancy. It is regulated largely by the load you put on. The bigger the load, the more you have to hump yourself. Be careful and don't mar the enamel on the frame and keep the ball bearings well oiled, so they won't cut into the cones. The tire is absolutely punctureless, so you won't have to take a pump and repair kit with you. By the time you have removed that pile of ashes I think you will have made a century run; also the perspiration. You'd better come in to dinner now."—Danville Breeze.

I have had kidney trouble for years, and for three years past I found it growing on me rapidly. I had taken different medicines for it, but never got any relief, so gave up taking anything for it, as I had no faith in anything to help me. Last August my son's wife persuaded me against my will, to try your Sparagus Kidney Pills, now I would not be without them for one day. When I commenced taking those pills I was in bad shape. I was obliged to get up nights eight or more times every night, sometimes my urine was very scant and with blood, at other times right the opposite. I was so nervous I could not hear a door shut or even be spoken to without crying; my feet and ankles at times would be swollen so I could not button my boots and many other bad feelings. I am more than pleased today, to say I am feeling better than I have for several years and have gained in flesh seven pounds since taking your Sparagus Kidney Pills. I have the utmost confidence in your Kidney Pills. Let me thank you thousands of times for your great discovery, Sparagus Kidney Pills, and what they have done for me, and hope others that are troubled the same way, will take the pills with persistency as I have done.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

The strike in Murchie's lumber mill at Calais, Me., is ended, the men resuming work at the old scale of wages.

The Marthas Vineyard Summer Institute commenced its annual session yesterday at Edgartown, Mass., with a large attendance.

W. Watt Smith, aged 60, of Boston, an advertising solicitor, was found dead in bed at St. Catherine, Ont. Death was caused by apoplexy.

Jack Burke of Texas and Stanton Abbott of England have been matched to meet in a 20-round bout at New Orleans on or about Aug. 10.

The London sporting papers express disapproval of the atempts of E. H. Tenyck, the American oarsman, who is entered for the diamond skulls at the Henley regatta, to keep his trials dark.

Maurice Daly led at the close of the first night's playing with Hugo Kerkau of Germany, in the six night's billiard tournament at New York. Daly had 300 points at the close of 24 innings, with an average of 12-24, and Kerkau had 268, with an average of 11 4-24.

A shipment of 13 head of buffalo, 20 black tail deer and 20 antelope passed through Albany late last night. They are from Moosehead ranch, in Jackson Hole country, Wyoming, owend by A. B. Adams, and are en route to the stock farm of ex-Secretary William C. Whitney at Lexondale, Mass. Mr. Whitney now has the largest number of buffalo owned in the East.

Bail Fixed at $101,308.

New York, July 13.—Dr. Charles A. Tinker was arrested yesterday and gave bail in the sum of $101,308, the bond being furnished by the City Trust and Safe Deposit company of Philadelphia. The doctor was arrested on a judgment obtained against him for $50,655 by Frederick C. Colwell, a broker, for alienating the affections of Mrs. Colwell. More than a year ago Colwell obtained a divorce, which was set aside on appeal. Colwell then sued Tinker for $50,000 for alienating the affections of Mrs. Colwell, and a jury gave a verdict for the full amount with costs.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Conference Between United States Bimetallic Commission and British Financiers.

London, July 13.—An important conference was held at the foreign office yesterday between Senator Walcott, former Vice President Stevenson and General Paine, the members of the United States bimetallic commission, and Ambassador Hay, and Lord Salisbury, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, Arthur Balfour, first lord of the treasury, and Lord George Hamilton, secretary of state for India.

The conference, which lasted an hour, was preliminary to the carrying on of further negotiations on the subject of international bimetallism. The Americans did most of the talking.

Lord Salisbury inquired what were the powers of the American commissioners, and was informed that they stand authorized to make arrangements for holding an international conference or to negotiate a treaty of international bimetallism, which they might submit to their government for ratification.

It was stated also that France was ready to co-operate with the United States, Great Britain and Germany in reaching an agreement for international bimetallism.

The British representatives present made no statement indicating their intentions in the matter.

Consultations of high British officials will be held before another meeting with the American commission and in the meantime the latter will privately discuss the question with Baron De Rothschild and other financiers, and endeavor to secure their support.

Lord Salisbury accompanied Messrs. Walcott, Stevenson and Paine to luncheon at Windsor on Saturday when they were received by the queen, and presented to her majesty their commissions as special envoys. The reception was entirely formal.

At Cleveland—

Sockalexis miserable work in right field was responsible for 6 of the Boston's 8 runs yesterday, including Collins' four-bagger, while a close decision by Sheridan took two runs from the Clevelands. Young weakened after the visitors had taken the lead and was replaced, after one man was out in the fifth, by Henry Clark, the University of Chicago pitcher, who allowed the Bostons but one hit during the remainder of the game. The game was hard fought, all the Clevelands, except the Indian, playing brilliantly, though unable to find Nichols delivery.

Weather at Boston.

Boston, July 13.—Three prostrations from the heat occurred yesterday, none fatal. The highest temperature of the day was between 2 and 4 p. m., when the mercury reached 86. Last night the weather was sultry and with light rains.

Bandero's Death Confirmed.

Havana, July 13.—Reports from Sancti Spiritus confirm the rumor that General Quintin Bandero, who commanded the insurgents in the engagement on July 5 at Pahaya Heights, was killed during the fight.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT

High Temperature and Sunshine Have Produced Rapid Growth.

Rainfall Was Small and More Is Now Needed.

Vegetables and Fruits Are Doing Finely and Haying Is On.

Boston, July 13.—The high temperature and bright sunshine have made the week the best growing period of the season and produced a rapid and healthy growth of every crop. The intense heat continued almost unabated through the week. Violent local storms occurred in western and northern New England on the 6th and 7th, badly washing roads, etc., but so far as reported no extensive damage was caused to crops. In Connecticut, Rhode Island and eastern Massachusetts the rainfall was small, and more is needed.

Maine.

With the fine growing weather of the past week all crops have improved to a marked extent, although still backward for the season of the year. Haying has begun on early fields, and will begin in earnest this week. The crop will be good generally; best on uplands. Potatoes are looking much better in northern and eastern counties. Corn has been benefited, but is small: oats growing nicely.

New Hampshire.

All crops have felt the influence of the hot weather and improved rapidly, especially corn and potatoes. The hay crop is in general well secured so far without injury. Early sown oats are heading. Barley gaining fast. The strawberry season was short and small yield. A partial crop of apples is indicated; probably a full crop of pears. Large yield of currants and other small berries, also tomatoes. Potato and pumpkin bugs are working havoc in some localities.

Vermont.

A week notable for remarkable growth of corn and in fact all vegetation is the substance of reports. Grass has nearly doubled in the last two weeks; haying is progressing rapidly, but in the extreme north it is said the crop is thinner than was expected. Corn planted the last of June is six to eight inches high. Grass and grains on thin lands are dying somewhat.

Massachusetts.

Haying is dragging its slow length along; meadows have not yet been cut. The crop is in general fine. The present weather is just right for corn, but it is still about two weeks late. Crops are beginning to need rain on uplands. Apples are dropping, prospects of only a fair crop; peaches promise better; grapes have not set abundantly; blueberries, currants, etc., are abundant, and blackberries have set very full. Early potatoes are about ready for market. Oats can be cut soon.

Rhode Island.

Haying nearly done; heavy crop. On the coast the first part of the week was poor for this crop, as sea fog came in each night and the air was damp during the day. Grass has started well on early mowed lands. Rye ready to cut; early potatoes marketed; corn looks much better and is now about up to the average.

Connecticut.

A fine week for haying, the yield exceeding expectations. Corn nearly all hoed for the last time; growing well. Potatoes looking well, although the buds are troublesome; early potatoes being marketed. Winter grain is ripening, nearly ready for cutting; oats are fully headed, medium growth of straw. Tobacco prospects are of the best. Plenty of all kinds of berries.

A DESPERATE MAN.

Thief Escapes From Custody and Declares He Will Not Be Taken Alive.

Hanover, N. H., July 13.—A man calling himself Charles Baker, who has been employed by James Brigham delivering ice since April 17, left Saturday night without notice. Mr. Brigham missed some money and went to Joseph Merrill's in Norwich, Vt., Sunday morning, where he found Baker, and charged him with taking money, whereupon Baker drew a revolver and fired at Brigham, the ball grazing his face and passing through the right ear, inflicting a flesh wound. Baker then made his escape. He was traced to East Thetford, thence to Sharon, Vt., where he took a Vermont Central train with a ticket for Boston.

Word was telephoned to White River Junction to arrest Baker on the arrival of the train. Sheriff Hoffman arrested him on the train and delivered him, handcuffed, to Policeman John Hutchison, who has charge of the lobby. When Hutchison unlocked the cell, Baker knocked him senseless with the handcuffs, and placing him in the cell took his revolver and what money he had about him, locked him in and relieving himself of his handcuffs made his escape. He was seen afterwards in Norwich by two men, who tried to stop him, but he told them he would never be taken alive and they better not interfere with him. There is great excitement in Norwich and Hanover, and officers are on his track with the chances of his speedy capture.

BELIEVES GIRL IS HIDDEN.

Chief of Brookline Police Has Theory Regarding Grace Stevenson.

Boston, July 13.—Grace Stevenson hasn't been found yet.

Clews are being followed in every direction, and detectives are visiting numerous institutions, not only in Boston and vicinity, but throughout Massachusetts and the rest of New England as well. Yet nothing is learned to reward their efforts.

The mystery regarding the girl's disappearance is as dense as though she had been swallowed up in an earthquake.

The interesting developments of yesterday included the statement of Chief Bowman of the Brookline police force, that he must give up the search for the young woman because of the evident unwillingness of the parents of the girl to supply information he desired regarding the habits and movements of Grace.

Chief Bowman believes the girl is alive, and there is a certain party in this city who can immediately inform them as to her whereabouts if he so desires. He feels that she is hidden away for a purpose, and future developments may furnish the motive. Whether or not Chief Bowman's theory is correct so far as the motive goes is unknown, but it is certain that all have the idea that one man might profit by the girl being kept out of sight, and that he is now holding her in duress at some secluded place.

Maine School Apportionment.

Augusta, Me., July 13.—The apportionment of the school fund and mill tax to the several cities, towns and plantations in Maine has just been completed by State Treasurer F. M. Simpson. The total amount apportioned is $509,589.10, which is divided pro rata among 210,264 scholars, giving to each $2.423568. These figures show very little change from 1896 when the sum of $509,933.05 was apportioned among 209,491 scholars, giving $2.43415 to each. The amount distributed this year is divided among the several counties as follows:

County.	Scholars.	Amount.
Androscoggin	17,155	41,576.31
Aroostook	22,532	54,607.84
Cumberland	28,337	68,676.64
Franklin	5,147	12,474.19
Hancock	11,856	28,733.82

Wool Pouring In.

Boston, July 13.—Never in the history of the Boston custom house has the importation of raw wool been so great as during the last few months. Wool enough to supply all demands of trade for years ahead is being imported and stored away in anticipation of the operation of the new tariff bill. The government is losing millions of dollars of revenue and the wool speculators are accumulating such vast quantities that the more conservative of them are beginning to lose heart and fear that in the eagerness to make a big "strike" when the price of wool jumps, the market is being overstocked so heavily that the upward tendency in prices will be partially checked, and much of the wool on hand became a dead load. The movement has also extended to hides, but it has not been so marked as in wool, for the simple reason that it is impossible to obtain any great number of hides over the normal output.

Housekeeper Has Possession.

Providence, July 13.—There was a little excitement in the village of Westcott Sunday morning over the death of John T. Pike and the report that he had met with foul play. Pike, who had been separated from his wife for some time, had installed as his housekeeper Mrs. Hattie Macomber of this city, and when Mrs. Pike was informed of her husband's death and appeared to take charge of the remains she was refused admittance to his house. She sought legal advice and the assistance of officers, who were also refused entrance. At last accounts Mrs. Macomber still held possession. It is said that Pike was worth $10,000, and that a fight may be precipitated over his estate. He died from natural causes.

Heroism Recognized.

Gloucester, Mass., July 13.—Captain Zacharie Surette of the Gloucester schooner George S. Boutwell has received a magnificent pair of binocular glasses in an elegant rosewood case from the British government "in acknowledgement of his humanity and kindness to the shipwrecked crew of the British steamship Warwick of Glasgow, which was abandoned off the coast of New Brunswick, Dec. 31, 1896." The Boutwell, which was on a trip to Newfoundland for herring, discovered the wreck and at great peril saved the crew of 52 men in the face of a heavy northeaster, landing them at Grand Manan.

New Bedford's Semi-Centennial.

New Bedford, Mass., July 13.—At the meeting of the committee of arrangements for semi-centennial celebration of Oct. 10-14 last evening, a letter was read from John D. Long, secretary of the navy, stating that if possible the navy department will order one or more of the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron to be at New Bedford on the days of the celebration. Governor Wolcott has been invited to be present on one of the semi-centennial days.

Temperance Meetings Closed.

Old Orchard, Me., July 13.—The final session in the series of temperance mass meetings was held at the camp grounds last night. Rev. D. T. Call of Biddeford spoke an hour on general issues, and incidentally arraigned the judiciary and executive officers for the lack of enforcement of the prohibitory law. He declared that the hard times were due not to political causes, but to the tremendous expenditures for liquor.

Plant Wrecked by Bursting Flywheel.

Tocoma, July 13.—By reason of the breaking of the connecting rod attached to the governor, the 40-ton flywheel of a pair of Corliss compound engines of the Tacoma railway went to pieces, completely wrecking the plant and building and causing damage to the extent of $20,000. The wreck means the discontinuance of all Tacoma's street car traffic, except on the Park and Edison lines, for several days, perhaps weeks.

Scheme Abandoned.

Boston, July 13.—As has been intimated several times of late, the Press Cycling club will not send a racing team to the international championships at Glasgow. The formal announcement of the scheme was made at a meeting of the club last night. Chairman Demond of the club's racing board announced that the body could not make satisfactory arrangements with the riders and that the plan had been abandoned.

Work to Begin Soon.

Farmington, Me., July 13.—Hon. L. Atwood of Philadelphia, president of the Franklin, Somerset and Kennebec Railroad company, has opened an office in Bates college block, and active preparations will be made for the early construction of the road to New Sharon.

COTTOLENE

The danger to digestion and health that menaces those who eat lard-shortened or lard-fried food is happily not found in Cottolene. Made of the best beef suet and the highest grade cotton-seed oil, Cottolene is a pure, clean and healthful vegetable food product, containing neither the greasiness or odor of lard nor its indigestible qualities, and is strongly endorsed by cooking experts and physicians.

The genuine is sold everywhere in one to ten pound tins, with our trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin. Not guaranteed if sold in any other way. Made only by REPUBLICAN LEAGUE.

Good Attendance at Opening Session of Annual Convention.

Pingree Attacks Trusts In His Address.

Eminent Leaders of Grand Old Party Conspicuously Absent.

Detroit, July 14.—The anual convention of the League of Republican clubs met here yesterday. Nearly every state in the Union is represented, but the delegation are not as large as in "political years."

The delegates were welcomed by Governor Pingree, who took occasion to advise his listeners that trusts are the besetting evil of our country and should be rigidly legislated against.

President Woodmasee of the league delivered his annual address, which was heartily received.

One feature of the convention, if it may be called a feature, is the absence of nearly all the well-known leaders of the Republican party.

Last night's mass meeting in the convention hall was entertained for the most part by extemporaneous speeches, Senators Hanna and Thurston and some of the others scheduled to appear not being present.

The contest for the league presidency which will be settled by today's election, goes merrily on. Crawford of Kentucky and Fleitz of Pennsylvania each professes confidence in his election, while Pollasky of Chicago asserts that he is still in the race notwithstanding the Illinois delegation is not giving him united support.

Today will be held the convention of the Republican College league. The attendance promises to be light, and the sentiment of the college men is that their gathering should hereafter be held in April, during the school year, when their members can better be assembled.

The radical partisanship of the league men was illustrated in the fact that Mayor Maybury, a Democrat, was not invited to offer a welcome to the delegates, Colonel H. M. Duffield having been selected instead by the local committee.

Bashi Bazouks and British Fight.

London, July 14.—The Times Athens correspondent says official dispatches have been received announcing that a serious conflict has taken place at Candia between a force of British troops and a party of Bashi-Bazouks, arising from the British interference in a skirmish between the Bashi-Bazouks and Christians. Sixteen of the British force and a number of the Bashi-Bazouks were killed. The admirals of the foreign fleets have sent five warships to Candia to suppress any further Mohammedan movements. No further details of the conflict have been received, but passengers who have just arrived from Candia state that on account of excesses by Bashi-Bazouks, 300 British marines have been landed at Candia to replace the Italian garrison stationed there. The Bashi-Bazouks have been summoned by proclamation to surrender their arms within four days. They have held a meeting and addressed a note to the sultan.

New England Lutherans Meet.

Meriden, Conn., July 14.—The semi-annual pastoral conference of the German Lutheran churches of New York and the New England states began at St. John's church, this city, yesterday. Rev. S. F. Stutz of Albany was chosen secretary. No other officers are to be elected. There are 45 ministers present. Two papers were read yesterday, one upon the subject, "Proof that Scripture Teaches a Hell, in the Sense of Eternal Damnation," by Rev. F. Verwieber of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. The second paper was on "Scriptural Evidence that the Latest Researches in the Line of Science have not Overthrown any Articles of Faith; on the Contrary the Latter Have Been Verified by the Former," and was read by Rev. William Moenkemoeller of Springfield, Mass. Discussions followed all day.

Wife Murderer Hanged.

Hartford, July 14.—Thomas F. Kippie, the New Haven wife murderer, was hanged at the state prison at 12:36 o'clock this morning. Within eight minutes from the time the drop was sprung his heart had ceased beating, and in 19 minutes he was cut down. The condemned man, when asked if he had anything to say before sentence was executed, replied: "Do a good job and don't make any foolish mistakes." These were his last words, with the exception of when the rope was being adjusted about his neck, he said: "Your getting it pretty tight, ain't you?" The execution was successfully carried out without any unusual incident. His neck was broken.

WIND AND RAIN.

Coast From New York to Cape Cod Visited by a Severe Storm.

Boston, July 14.—A southerly storm of unusual severity for this season of the year swept over New England yesterday, accompanied in many localities by a heavy rain, and throughout the entire section by high winds which wrought considerable destruction to trees and growing crops. The heaviest rainfall was at New Haven, where not only was the local precipitation record beaten, with over six inches in 24 hours, but it is probable that this record will stand for the whole country. As usual in southerly storms, the rain came in heavy showers, with the wind blowing in high gusts, in fact the storm in New England seemed like a succession of cloud bursts. At Concord, N. H., many cellars were flooded, and the roads all over the city were badly washed.

The whole coast from New York to Cape Cod roared with a heavy surf, which proved quite destructive to the frail summer crafts moored in the numerous harbors. The fleet of yachts that are moored off South Boston had a hard time all day long, and not a few parted their hawsers, and, after crashing into other boats, brought up high and dry on the beach.

At Woods Holl the gale was from the southwest, and raged with unabated fury all day, the wind attaining a velocity of 40 miles an hour, rendering navigation on the sound extremely hazardous. On the Nantucket shoals the sea was a seething mass of foam, and not a vessel dared to cross this dangerous locality. Telegraph and telephone wires along the cape suffered severely.

The storm furnished a grand spectacle for the thousands of summer visitors, and the tremendous combers as they came rolling in thundered on the white beaches, or dashing high above the rocks, proved one of the greatest attractions of the season.

Grace Steveuson Still Missing.

Boston, July 14.—James Stevenson, father of the missing Grace Stevenson, when seen by a reporter last evening, denied all knowledge of his daughter's whereabouts, and said that the idea that she went to Ireland to his brother's with his knowledge and consent was a lie, pure and simple. The Brookline police had discovered nothing relative to the missing girl up to a late hour last night and neither had Mrs. Stevenson, who has returned from a wild goose chase up in New Hampshire, wither she was led by some enthusiastic clue hunters. The police are strongly of the belief that Grace Stevenson, if she is alive, is somewhere in or near Boston. There is nothing tangible to base this supposition on, however, only perhaps the vague belief that some member of the family is cognizant of her whereabouts. It might be well to state again that she is about 5 feet 6 inches in hight, has dark brown hair, blue eyes, rather heavy eyebrows, petite figure and four false upper front teeth. Her face is clear and inclined to be oval, with lips rather full. On close examination a slight scar can be seen under one of the cheek bones—it is very slight, however.

O'Neil's Trial Begins Monday.

Greenfield, Mass., July 14.—The trial of John O'Neil for the murder of Mrs. Hattie McCloud of Shelburne Falls will commence Monday, and as the day approaches O'Neil grows more confident that he will be acquitted. Chief Justice Mason will preside, and with him will be Judges Sheldon and Fessenden. Attorney General Knowlton will conduct the prosecution and will be assisted by District Attorney Hammond and Attorney Frederick L. Greene. The prisoner will be represented by Beer & Dowling and Charles J. Parkhurst of North Adams. It is expected that the government will present a strong case, stronger than the people suppose, and even now four state detectives are searching for evidence. The state will call between 80 and 90 witnesses, and it is expected that the trial will not last less than a week, while some expect it to continue for at least 11 days. Four stenographers will take down the evidence in shifts of five minutes each, and they will have four expert typewriters to whom to dictate their notes, so that all the evidence will be in typewritten form at the adjournment of each session.

Arrested for Forgery.

Boston, July 14.—John H. Laskey, ex-police lieutenant of Boston, is locked up in station 2, Cambridge, to answer to a charge of forgery brought by the city of Cambridge. The specific charge against Laskey is forgery of certain names which appeared on a bond given by him to the city when Laskey, in 1894, took the contract for building the engine house now occupied by company 7, at the corner of Deacon street and Massachusetts avenue, Cambridgeport.

PHILANTHROPIST'S WILL.

Miss Belinda Rarea'l Left Half a Million to Public Charities.

Boston, July 14.—Nearly $400,000 is soon to be distributed among various institutions, most of them in or near Boston, by the trustees of a fund set aside by Miss Belinda Lull Randall of Roxbury about five years ago. Miss Randall died on the 14th of last March. Since then the trustees have been carefully considering the best way in which to dispose of the princely sum entrusted to them, and have practically arrived at a decision. They were left entirely free to use their own discretion in the matter.

It is believed that the following sums will be given: Foxcroft club of Cambridge, $70,000; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $50,000; Children's Aid society, $50,000; Radcliffe college, $20,000; Cambridge Prospect union, $20,000; Hampton (Va.) Normal institute, $25.-000; Tuskegee (Ala.) institute, $20,000; Calhoun (Ga.) university, $10,000; reserved for a trades school, $95,000.

Miss Randall lived at 27 Moreland street, Roxbury. Being possessed of great wealth, and wishing to devote a portion of it to philanthropic and educational work in 1892, she executed a deed of trust of several hundred thousand dollars to be used for such purpose. Besides two executors there were seven trustees, with Professor Francis G. Peabody of Harvard as chairman.

Miss Randall, who lived to an advanced age, had no relatives nearer than cousins and cousins' children, but her fortune was so large that, in addition to the public bequests named above, she divided a very large sum among these relatives.

Attack on Lee.

Havana, July 14.—The Avisador Commercial, a political and commercial daily, in a leading editorial article, makes a bitter attack upon United States Consul General Lee on account of his report to the government at Washington on the Ruiz case. The paper says in part: Crediting Consul General Lee with some good judgment, we can have only compassion for him, believing him to be ashamed of his report. The text of the report has been published in Havana, and the Spanish residents show their chivalry by not even displaying their scorn for one who has included so many falsehoods in his report. Can there be a more ridiculous stand than that taken by General Lee? His tale of horrors, based upon a prisoner being alone in his cell, wifeless and childless, has gone to the wall. The Spaniards of Havana have read it with indignation or hilarity, and have shown General Lee that certain of the monstrous acts related are only capable of execution by those who conceive them. Probably General Lee has conceived them because he has witnessed them in his country and among his people, where the lynching of prisoners is esteemed by the authorities as legal. The Spanish people are too noble, generous and chivalrous to descend so low.

Three-Hundred-Mile Bike Race.

Fall River, Mass., July 14.—John H. Witts of the Crescent Bicycle club and Alfred Paquin of the Indian Bicycle club started last night on their 300-mile road race, which will necessitate their riding to and from Boston three times, with a short run to Dighton and return, in order to make up the distance. The men started in a pouring rain, and despite the conditions a large crowd saw them off. Scattered along the road between here and Boston are 25 members of the two clubs to which the men belong, who will supply fresh mounts to their fellow clubmen in case of accidents.

Wool Market Stronger.

Boston, July 14.—The wool market this week has shown more strength than for some time. Dealers are asking higher prices for all kinds of raw material and, in most cases, are securing an advance of from ½ to 1 cent per pound more than last week, although this price is on a basis lower than it would cost to replace the wools. The sales of territory wools has been large, fine medium and medium bringing 14 to 16½ cents. Fleece wools are held firm with light offerings and small demand. The sales of Australian wool continue good, with prices same as last week.

Attempted to Jump From Tower.

Paris, July 14.—Richard Cartwright of Philadelphia attempted to commit suicide yesterday by jumping from the second story of the Eiffel tower. He was prevented from carrying out his intention by the tower officials, who seized him as he was climbing over the handrail surrounding the tower.

Telephone Franchise Refused.

Concord, N. H., July 14.—The mayor and board of aldermen have refused to grant the petition of the Concord Telephone company, a branch of the People's Telephone company of Laconia, permission to establish an exchange in this city in opposition to the New England company.

No Separate Silver Ticket In Ohio.

Washington, July 14.—Chairman Towne of the Silver Republican organization has sent a telegram to the chairman of the committee in Ohio advising against putting a separate state ticket in the field. In an interview he states that no ticket will be placed in the field, and that the Silver Republicans of Ohio will support the party declaring for silver.

Fruit Growers Organizing.

Augusta, Me., July 14.—Initial steps were taken last evening at a meeting of a number of fruit growers at the office of Secretary McKeen of the board of agriculture at the state house, for an organization of Maine's producers, to be on a line with the American Fruit Growers' union.

Cuban Leader Killed.

Havana, July 14.—Official advices from Pinar Del Rio announce that the insurgent leader Pancho River has been killed, and that Pavlo Oliva, another leader, has surrendered to the authorities, with 16 of his followers.

IS APPRECIATED.

Y. M. C. A. Directors Loth to Part with Secretary Colton.

After the quarterly meeting of the Association last evening, a very pleasant, though informal good-bye reception was given to Secretary Colton. The following letter was read to which Mr. Colton feeling responded:

QUINCY, Mass., July 13, 1897.

DEAR MR. COLTON:

It is with the sincere regret that we are forced to realize that the pleasant ties by which we have been united for the last five years are to bind us together no longer. We do wish that we could keep you with us, not only for our own good and the good of the Y. M. C. A., but for the good of our city as well, for, though you may not acknowledge it, we know that your strong and helpful influence has by no means been confined within Association walls.

You found us a new and small association scarcely known to our own town while you leave us an association with a well defined policy and doing a large, practical, Christian work, an association which is respected by the whole city and which is looked to among other associations throughout the country as a leader in educational work. But though we are most widely known for our educational work, you have never lost sight of the physical and spiritual side. To these, you have given the same intelligent, effective, conscientious service. It is indeed a noble work to take a boy aimlessly wandering along and little by little growing to be of less value to himself and his fellows and change him into a man with a determined purpose to make some use of his life, it is a work requiring skill and Christian patience, a work for which more than one Quincy boy owes you deepest gratitude.

We do not quite see how we can get along without you, but you tell us to keep up our courage and we will try to do so. You will always have our gratitude and friendship, and we earnestly trust that in leaving us you may step into another association home which will be worthy of you and in which you may gain further success.

Fraternally yours,

In behalf of the Directors,
AMOS D. ALBEE, President,
DELCEVARE KING, Vice Pres.,
ERNEST D. GOURD, Rec. Sec'y.

Morrell Impeachment Case.

Again County Commissioner Melville P. Morrell is in trouble. He has failed to report at the State House how much he expended in the famous Norfolk county impeachment case. Under the law, it is customary to make a report to the attorney-general of all those whose returns are defective in any way; of those who failed to make a return in time, and all who fail to make any return.

Still Holds the Cup.

Bay View lodge, L. O. L., has not yet lost the tug-of-war trophy, as the contest is yet unfinished. At the picnic Monday Cameron lodge won one pull by 26 inches, and Bay View lodge won another by 14 inches. The lateness of the hour did not allow for the final pull as the teams desired to return to Boston by the 6 15 train.

—Statistics show that 141 persons were lynched in this country during the past year. Of these 131 occurred in the southern states. The list includes 86 negroes and 57 whites. There have been 47 lynchings thus far in 1897. In 1895 up to Nov. 18 there were 160 lynchings and 113 legal executions.

—A Watertown, N. Y., girl has refused an offer of marriage on the ground that her father is not able to support any larger family. Now let some one come along, says the Beverly Citizen, and tell us girls have no consideration.

—The next National Christian Endeavor convention will be at Nashville, Tenn.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Such a blow in July is unprecedented.

Larabee, the druggist, has a new sign.

A extra nice cow is advertised for sale.

Mr. Thomas Edwards is home on his vacation.

Considerable fall fruit has blown off in the gale.

It is something new to have a September gale in July.

A large tree on the estate of Dr. William Everett was blown down.

Standing oats and grass for sale. See notice in another column.

Miss Helen A. Ireland of Kittrey, Me., is the guest of Miss Lena Berry.

Joseph Frost, clerk of E. H. Doble & Co. has gone to Maine for a three weeks' vacation trip.

Joseph Roberts of North Adams is the guest of his brother, Arthur C. Adams of West Quincy.

Miss Susie Bayard of Maine, formerly of West Quincy, is visiting friends in that section of the city.

The blowing of the fire alarm whistle Tuesday night was due to trouble on the line caused by high winds.

Mr. William Thorne of Douglas street awoke this morning to find a large skunk in a trap he set for him last night.

Charles McGilvary, clerk at Murphy's drug store, is having his vacation, his place being filled by Frank Lynch.

Mrs. J. E. White of Foster street, and Miss Amelia Bumpus of the Library, have gone on a two weeks' trip to Maine.

New steps from Squantum street to the railroad near the bridge make a convenient approach to the Norfolk Downs depot.

The gale will be spent before Saturday and the Quincy Yacht club is satisfied it will have fine weather as usual for it's cruise.

Silas Hicks of Willard street has purchased the Stephen Maloney estate on Robertson street and will occupy it with his family.

The high wind has split the large elm tree in front of the French estate on Chestnut street and it is in danger of falling into the street. Iron bands have been placed on it.

A telephone wire was blown down on Chestnut street Tuesday afternoon and lay in a dangerous position until removed by John T. Larkin.

W. A. Richards of the Hancock House has a pocket book for which he would like to find an owner. The contents of the pocket book are eleven cents.

In case of Douglass & McLeod, insolvent debtors of Quincy, a dividend of ten per cent, amounting to $1099.68 has been ordered to be paid to the workmen.

Warrants have been issued against unlicensed dogs and placed in the hands of officers, as will be seen by advertisement today. A prompt payment may save costs.

Considerable traffic was delayed last night about 8.30 by one of the large electric cars jumping the track near the Catholic church, Atlantic. It stood right across the street.

The Epworth League convention will open in Toronto, Canada, tomorrow. Mrs. Burr and Miss Burr of Atlantic are among the delegates who left today in Rev. F. B. Graves' party.

The large platform in front of the stores of W. H. Rideout & Co. and Miss Wrisley on Washington street has been replaced with a very much smaller one, and the change is marked.

Mr. George H. Wilson desires the LEDGER to state that he has made no estimate of the loss by fire on the building owned by his brother and himself. He thinks it will be larger than many suppose.

Some who started on the Wollaston Yacht club moonlight sail Monday night felt a bit "queer" it is said because of the frollicking waves, and put back. The men say they were not "scat," but they seemed to feel happier in the club house.

Lucky the Unitarian ministers are a substantial body of men or there would be danger of their blowing off the Isles of Shoals during the gales this week. Rather a stormy week for the meetings of the Unitarian Summer Meeting association.

Mr. W. R. Lofgren, Mr. John Hollander, Miss Betty Nelson and Master Carl Carlson, left Tuesday night for New York and will sail today on the Str. St. Louis for a visit to Sweden. Mr. Lofgren has left his business in good hands and it will continue as usual.

Mrs. Prince is prepared to furnish daily at the Candy Kitchen, near Kincaide's, home-made pies, cakes, etc. Fresh rolls every afternoon; baked beans, etc, every Sunday morning. She would invite the special attention of the DAILY LEDGER readers to her nice, fresh-baked pastry.

At the lawn party of the Bethany Ladies' Circle from 4 to 10 this afternoon and evening, at the residence of Mrs. George Macfarlane on Merry Mount road, there will be a sale of fancy articles, home-made candy, ice cream, cake, etc. Boats will be to let for rides upon Butler's pond and an entertainment is promised. The admission is ten cents. A good time is assured if pleasant weather prevails.

STORY OF SHIPWRECK.

Messrs. Wiley and Murray Rescued on Hangman's— A Dog Saved Them.

Mr. Stephen B. Wiley, Jr., and Mr. George H. Murray of the yacht White Wings, who were supposed to have been lost were discovered on Hangman's Island on Tuesday and were brought home on the tug Fanny in the evening. They owed their rescue to a yellow dog.

The LEDGER has briefly alluded to their visit to the Quincy Yacht club on Monday evening and their leaving for home at 10 o'clock that evening, and their non-appearance thereafter.

The story in brief is as follows: At exactly 10 o'clock the White Wings, jib and mainsail rigged, put out from the Quincy Yacht club's wharf for Wollaston under a two-reefed mainsail, with a heavy southwest gale pushing her rapidly towards her destination. Capt. Wiley an old and experienced Cape Cod skipper, was at the helm, and Mr. Murray run the sheet. The west gut was passed in safety, under the lee of Great Hill and Nut island.

All went well in the run across Quincy bay until they were about midway between Rufe's Hummock and Hangman's island when a flaw of wind struck the sail and careened the boat. The skipper cast off the main sheet and threw the helm hard down, but unfortunately the jib sheet had been made fast and could not be cast off. The boat refused to mind her helm. In a twinkling she was on her beam and her mast and sail lay in the water. Capt. Wiley and Mr. Murray scrambled over on her side.

At this time the wind had increased to a hurricane. The spray and water were driven into the yachtsmen's faces as they hung there, hour after hour, awaiting for help to arrive.

The accident occurred at about half past ten o'clock. It seemed to the men as if hope was about gone, when early in the morning, some time near two o'clock, Capt. Wiley, who had been calling in a stentorian voice, aroused a little yellow dog on Hangman's island. This dog was a good watch dog. He had a powerful bark and for a few minutes made the air around Hangman's resound with his yelping.

His master, the fisherman who leases and lives on the island, was aroused, and appearing at the door of his cabin, heard the cry of "Help! help!" come across the water with a muffled sound. He dressed and went to the edge of the island, and located the direction from whence it came.

It was then but a few minutes' work for him to get his dory launched and start to the rescue.

The moon now and then shown through a rift in the clouds, giving him a chance to locate the shipwrecked men, who were then drifting towards Quarantine rocks. He soon had them aboard of his dory and, after dropping the White Wings' anchor so that she would not drift out to sea, landed them on his island, gave them dry clothing, hot coffee, and otherwise cared for them.

At daylight Mr. Wiley and the fisherman, leaving Mr. Murray on the island, started for the White Wings, with the intention of towing her to Hangman's and righting her. They reached the at about six o'clock in the morning. The gale continued to blow with unabated fury. Instead of towing the yacht to Hangman's as they contemplated, they found that the wind and head seas were so heavy that they could not even row back to the island themselves. All day long they hung to the wreck, having made their dory fast to her. Mr. Murray kept his lonely vigil on the island with the yellow dog, anxiously watching the storm tossed mariners and also for help.

At about noon the tug Leader passed up the bay with a tow. Signals were made and she bore down to the dory. Capt. Wiley requested that he be reported "All well," and that the skipper telephone home to his people, which he did.

In the meantime the Wiley and Murray families and the Quincy and Wollaston Yacht clubs had not been idle. The bay had been scoured from one end to the other for traces of the missing men. The Premier crew of the Wollaston Yacht club picked up the White Wings' gig on Long island.

Mr. Benjamin Wiley, brother of Capt. Wiley, chartered the tug Fanny and started down the bay. It was not long before the dory with the two men aboard was sighted and a rescue effected and Mr. Murray was taken off Hangman's. The Fanny made fast to the yacht and after righting her towed her with the rescue party up to Lelois' yard.

Mr. E. A. Hayden deserves great credit for his galliant attempt to find Mr. Wiley and Mr. Murray. Mr. Hayden with six others cruised the bay for seven hours in the gale Tuesday in the vain hope of finding them.

An Amusing Story.

Today's Post calls Murray and Wiley policemen, and says the White Wings was a chartered boat and is otherwise amusing, so it is reproduced in full:

"Two Wollaston policemen named Murray and Wiley were enjoying a sail around the harbor Monday night in an eighteen-foot catboat, when the boat was capsized by a sudden squall from the southwest, the forerunner of the gale, a short distance from Hangman's Island, in the lower harbor.

The anchor caught in the bottom, and the two nervy policemen managed to scramble upon the bottom of the boat, where they were compelled to straddle the upturned craft for four hours, before assistance reached them from the island, where a lobster man heard their cries and rowed to their rescue. He took them to his home where they still remain, in the hopes of heaving up her anchor and getting the craft ashore, as she was a chartered boat.

"The Lewis towboat Leader, Captain W. S. Doane, went down to the assistance of the craft at noon yesterday, in the hope of getting her anchor from the bottom, but on account of the gale she was forced to give up the task. The two stranded policemen asked Captain Doane to communicate with their folks, so as to allay any fear about their whereabouts."

The Postmastership.

Those who have read the letter of Congressman Barrows relative to the Quincy postmastership, as published in full in the LEDGER, see no alternative for Mr. Barrows, but to endorse Mr. Hammond at the proper time. They will evidently put more stock in it than in the unreliable dispatch which appeared in a Boston paper today which reads:

"The statement that Congressman Barrows has offered the postmastership here to C. L. Hammond is not true. His friends say that he has not done so, and does not intend to endorse Mr. Hammond.

"The letter which he has written in regard to the matter is said to be a pleasant one, recognizing the size of Hammond's following, but, according to Mr. Barrow's friends, it in no way commits him to the Hammond candidacy.

"He has gone to Europe now to some sort of a prison convention, and the postmastership will not be settled until next February. Hammond's friends, however say they regard the letter as a distinct promise, and propose to act on that theory."

—P. H. Jackson of Brockton has been awarded the contract for the new High school building at Weymouth. His bid was $35,636, and there were 26 proposals.

How Uncle Sam Feeds his Ships.

Our favorite war ship Massachusets has again arrived in the lower harbor. Few people stop to think how such a large amount of food is furnished. On Tuesday a large load of goods left Boston for the ship and on account of the weather had to put back and wait until the next day. With a heavy sea running it is almost impossible to get goods over the side. On the Massachusetts, they use 450 pounds of fresh meat a day. At about 4 30 in the morning the big heavy market teams of T. D. Baker & Co., go thundering down Atlantic avenue with the big bay horses straining every nerve to get it down to the landing at 5.30, when the market boat comes ashore from the ship for the day's supplies. The boats consist of a steam launch and two large whale boats in tow.

It takes 450 pounds of fish to fry for breakfast. Such a limited space is offered on ship board for frying, that they give the gun deck, fish one day and the berth deck the following.

They commence to fry at 3 A. M. It takes 1200 eggs for breakfast, or thirty bushels of spinach for a side order with pork.

The government as an experiment, has tried a new way to feed its ships; and commenced on the Texas and Massachusetts. They only draw half rations and the other half in cash; this enables them to have more fresh provisions and not use so much paymaster goods. Government food consists mostly of salt meats and canned goods.

The paymaster is the commissary and feeds them as he pleases. Mr. Thompson, on the Massachusetts, feeds better than most commissaries. That is, he gives them more variety. They have frankforts, pork, sausages, beef, roast pork, corned shoulder, etc. Sunday night to give the cooks rest they have bologna, crackers and cheese.

They also run a canteen. The canteen furnishes beer, cigars, tobacco, paper, ink, etc, and the profits go to the commissary and enables the men to live better. Every man is allowed one bottle of beer at noon providing he has the money to pay for it.

No small firm could commissary to the floating cities on account of the vast amount of goods required. Don't fail to see our navy as soon as the opportunity offers itself. H. CURTIS, JR.

The Cadet Camp.

The wind and rain made Tuesday at the camp of the Cadets at Hingham very disagreeable. The inspection by Gov Wolcott was delayed by the shower about four P. M. but took place later. The Governor viewed the four companies as they stood facing the parade ground, and then as they marched by. An inspection and muster and evening parade followed. But few spectators were present.

HOUGHS NECK.

High tide today.

Tomorrow there will be a noon tide on a full moon.

The weather all day Tuesday and today has been very windy and threatening. The water is rough.

The yachts have had a hard time in the gales of yesterday and today, but most of them have substantial mooring and rode out the storm in safety.

The sloop Sparrow owned by J. Moebs drifted to Peddocks island, and the "Emerson Shoe" was adrift. The Bomb owned by Eugene Ackerman got as far as Pemberton where she fouled a buoy.

Paul Carpenter, Fletcher Carpenter, Michael Murry, Edward Hobbs, Fred Richards, Arthur McIntyre, graduates of Milton High school, will spend two weeks at the Cape cottage on Sea street.

Mr. Joseph Woods of Houghs Neck, employed by Mr. F. Bleiler fell off a tip cart and was slightly injured about the hips and was carried to his home on Heath avenue.

Lawrence W. Rooney from New York city is a guest of Mrs. John Dolan at the Bijou.

Mr. J. N. Kelley of Dorchester will spend Sunday at the Bo Peep cottage.

Mr. Costello informs the LEDGER that there will be dancing at the Casino every evening, with hurdy gurdy accompaniment. The Casino will also be let for private parties.

Lloyd Hoey is the Houghs Neck correspondent of the LEDGER, and all favors extended to him will be appreciated by the publishers. Wanted, a news item from every cottage every day.

Among the Yachts.

At City Point, Tuesday, the sloops Thalia and Hyperion went adrift. Two women were rescued with difficulty from the latter, and at last reports the boat was in a dangerous position. The cutter Hera also went adrift and dashed into the pier, and was hauled up on the sand. The Maggie parted her cable but was beached without damage. Others to go adrift were the Mamie, May R, Neptune, Elith A. and Gwendoline.

At Dorchester the Tacoma slipped her moorings and the Clytie dragged her anchor. The latter was towed to Central wharf, Boston.

At the quarterly meeting of the Association, Tuesday evening, the amendment to the constitution, which increased the first year's fee one dollar, was adopted. The amendment goes into effect Oct. 1, so that those who join before that time will be admitted at the old rate. This change does not effect present members of the Association who continue. Failure to pay the annual fee simply will count as a lapse and the extra entrance fee will be required.

—It is a fact known of long observation that the small valves of certain kind of steam drips, cut with great rapidity if allowed a very small rise or opening That steam cuts, and cuts like an knife, especially when the pressure is high and the outlet small, is a fact tolerably well established and known to most old engineers.—Philadelphia Record.

—The razing of the old Boston & Maine Station in Haymaaket Square marks the passing of another of the well-known landmarks of that portion of the city. Everything makes way says the Boston Courier, for the rapid transit that the citizens have been so many years demanding, and the march of progress respects nothing that stands in its way, however thickly old memories may cluster about it.

—An exchange plaintively remarks that the Massachusetts woman who has given $10,000 for the relief of impecunious cats ought to have considered that there are impecunious children knocking around that require all the time, money and attention it is possible to give them.

The strength which comes to us from eating nourishing food is better than stimulation, because it is new strength.

The health which belongs to a strong body, well nourished by proper food (properly digested), is the only health that is lasting.

The difference between Shaker Digestive Cordial and other medicines is simply that it helps nature to make strength. It does not profess to cure sickness, except as that sickness is a result of weakness caused by food not properly digested.

Shaker Digestive Cordial will relieve the pangs of indigestion, and make thin, sick, weak people as well as if their stomachs had never been out of order.

It is a gentle aid to the digestion of nature's strength-maker, food.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

ON AN ACTRESS.

Aye, she played rarely, though it had been played
A hundred times, and some of more renown
Have played it worse, but she bewitched the town.
Dowered with ethereal loveliness, she swayed
All hearts to love, while music lent soft aid.
She moved, she spoke, and, when she would, drew down
Laughter unquenchable, the player's crown,
Symbol that all her frolic rule obeyed.
Aye, she played rarely, but myself, who knew
What grief had gripped her in its chill embrace,
Could hear dumb weeping in her words, and through
Her every pose the anguished soul could trace
And pierce the frippery of art unto
The pallor shining in her perfect face.

THE NAZIM'S JEM.

I had been ill with fever. They tell me that it was a severe illness and that the outcome was for many days in doubt. Twice, they said, my feet pressed on the verge of the dark valley, and twice was I drawn back. I know little of this personally. For two weeks or more I was either delirious or unconscious. Then, one bright May morning, I came back from the land of shadows.

It seemed to me, as I lay there, that my mind was unnaturally acute. I fancied that my enfeebled physical condition accentuated the action of my brain. It seemed as if the rest I had given it—the rest, at least, from lucid action—had reinvigorated it. I remember that I threw a great deal of thought into the construction of the first connected sentence I addressed to my man. This is what I said:

"Any letters, George?"

He started up hastily.

"Letters, sir? Yes, sir, letters and a telegram."

"Read the telegram," I said, after another spell of thought.

He tore open the yellow envelope.

"Just heard of your illness. Start for home today. Mary."

Mary is my promised wife. I recalled that she was at Colorado Springs with her invalid mother when I fell ill. I looked at George. He must have read my question. He seemed to make a momentary calculation.

"If all goes well, sir, she should be here today."

Mary was coming. The thought acted on me like a tonic. I wanted to throw aside the blankets and leap to the floor. Gods! And I couldn't even raise my arm.

"Get flowers, George," I murmured. "Let in the sunlight. Hide these bottles."

He smiled and smoothed the blankets above me.

"Everything shall be as presentable as possible, sir," he said.

As presentable as possible? That note of exception must mean me. Never mind, Mary was coming, Mary loved me too well to take offense at my changed appearance.

"George," I said, "the world is still outside there, I suppose. Read the newspaper."

He read to me for half an hour or more, read the news just as it came to hand—telegraph, local, political. For a time his voice has simply a lulling effect. Then I began to take notice of the substance of what he read. When I had heard all I wanted, I bade him stop and let the substance of his reading filter through my brain. As I strove to recall it all there was an item that seemed to hold my fancy in a peculiar way. It was a telegram which told that a nizam of far Hindustan had been robbed of an almost priceless diamond which it was understood he meant to present to Queen Victoria at the time of the coming jubilee. This story, I say, seemed to fascinate me—the diamond of the nizam, filched from its oriental owner, gleaming mayhap from the dusky corner of some squalid hut when it should be eclipsing the jewels of a queen. And Mary was coming. What a gift for Mary that diamond would be—Mary, my queen! There was a strange humming in my head, but out of it all came one clear thought—I would get that diamond and give it to Mary. When I had determined on this, I seemed to grow cool and calculating. I realized how helpless I was physically, but my will power, thank God, was still left me. I would concentrate my mind on the thief. I would will him to come to me.

I had read somewhere that the soul in a body purified by the fire of disease rises above the restrictions of common clay. Was not my soul so purified? I fixed my thought upon the nizam's diamond.

Red clouds rolling rapidly; out of them a touch of blue sky, a whirl of yellow dust, a sun that beat down fiercely from midheaven; the walls of a city, a city with queer minarets and towers, and strange palaces; a city with a huge gateway through which passed in and out a motley array of strange garbed people; bullocks and carts, and then a lumbering elephant, and red coated soldiers, and white turbaned men with brown faces. And the air was hot and dry, and a strange odor came to my nostrils.

Then in a corner by the huge portals I noted a crouching figure—a turbaned native with strange rings in his ears and an eye that gleamed with a startling whiteness. And on him my thought centered. Then he arose from his bent position and slunk forth. As he passed amid the snarling dogs that fought and yelped beyond the city walls I noticed that in the folds of his garments he held a long, keen knife. Ever and anon he looked over his shoulder as he slouched along. And the sun glared, and the desert spread before him, and the dust arose in yellow puffs.

Then came two native soldiers riding on weary horses, and they cried out at sight of the footman. And when they dismounted to seize him the knife flashed, and one soldier lay silent at his feet, and the other fled across the gleaming desert, and the knife was red.

There were clouds and confused scenes, and out from them all the man with the red knife pressed on, in his eyes a strange light, a gleam, half terror, half desperation, the look of a haunted man, whose fate impels him forward. Then another city, a city of whitewashed walls and many huts and few palaces and stretches of the sea and the masts of ships.

The swish of waves, and the roaring of the wind, and the rattle of cordage, and in the midst of the ship the brown faced man calmly indifferent to the tempest.

More clouds and long blanks of chaotic nothingness. My eyes find themselves gazing at the wall of my room, and presently it opens and through it steps the man who crouched by the city gates. Step by step he comes to my bedside, and his eye glistens and his knife is red, and my eye never leaves his.

Then he pauses and bends low with his arms outstretched.

"Sahib," he murmurs, and his voice is singularly low and gentle, "I am here."

"The diamond!" I hoarsely murmur.

He removes his turban and slowly unwinds its many folds. As he does so the room seems filled with the rustle of garments, and a strange, sweet perfume comes to me. There are whispers, too, and a sound like a stifled sob.

Slowly the stranger unfolds his turban, and suddenly out of it leaps a great white pebble. He lifts it before me betwixt his lean brown thumb and forefinger, and I know that in his other hand he holds the red knife.

"The diamond of the nizam, sahib," he murmurs.

As he speaks a sudden ray of sunlight falls upon the white pebble and a mighty glory seems to fill the room.

My eyelids drop before that glare. I see the brown face of the Indian bend lower. I see his fingers clutching at his knife. The room grows dark and yet darker. I seem to be slipping away, slipping away.

"John!"

Is that my name? Is somebody calling me? What is this that holds my hand and draws me back? No, no; let me go.

"John!"

Surely somebody is calling me.

I open my eyes slowly, so slowly. Across the level of my bed I see the face of George leaning forward, his features in the shadow, his eyes gleaming with frightened anxiety, in his hand a tiny medicine glass that catches a dazzling ray of sunlight. Somebody else is there, somebody who holds my hand tightly, somebody who calls again:

"John, dear!"

I raise my eyes a little higher. Another face is bending over me, a white, tear stained face.

"John!"

It is Mary.

And so I came back.—W. R. Rose in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Kaiser's Story.

The emperor's "lieblingsblume" has become the national flower of Germany and the symbol of patriotism, but it will never be forgotten why he loved it, and the beautiful and touching story possesses ever new interest when told in his own words. Finding how many incorrect versions were spread about to account for his fondness for the simple field flower, the aged kaiser related the following pathetic incident:

"As my mother fled with myself and my deceased brother from Memel to Konigsberg during the troublous times at the beginning of our century, the misfortune happened to us that one of the wheels of our coach broke in the midst of the plain. No village was within reach, and we seated ourselves on the edge of the ditch while the damage was being repaired as well as circumstances would permit. My brother and I were rendered both tired and hungry by this delay, and particularly I, being a weak and delicate little fellow, gave my dear mother much trouble with my complaints. In order to distract our thoughts, my mother stood up, pointed out the many beautiful blue flowers in the fields and requested us to gather them and bring them to her. Then she made wreaths of them, and with joy we watched her skillful hands. Thereby the sad state of the country, her own trials and the anxiety concerning her sons' future may well have once more pressed heavily on my mother's heart, for slowly tear after tear welled from her beautiful eyes and fell on the wreath of cornflowers. This emotion of my devoted mother went deeply to my heart, and, forgetting my own childish sorrow, I attempted to console her with caresses, during which she placed the blue wreath, glittering with tears, on my head. I was then 10 years old, but this touching scene has never faded from my memory, and if now, in my old age, I behold the sweet blue flower, I imagine I see the tears of the most devoted of mothers shining upon it and therefore love it above all others."

Jena's Celebration.

The University of Jena this year celebrates its three hundred and fiftieth anniversary. It was founded in 1547 by Prince Johann Friedrich, who, having lost his own University of Wittenberg, together with his personal liberty, at the battle of Muhlberg, took the first steps toward the foundation of Jena. Its first professor was Melanchthon, Luther's friend, but he resigned the same year in consequence of religious dissensions. The first score of students came from Wittenberg, and their numbers grew so fast that their manifestations of joy when, a few years afterward, their prince was liberated were enough to precipitate a first class town and gown riot. As a consequence the townsfolk refused to harbor the students any longer, and it took the intercession of the prince to appease them.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

J. H. Rieger, a prominent business man of Brooklyn, died yesterday at his summer home in Lewiston, Me.

The Maine railroad commissioners have approved the articles of association of the Saco river railroad, which is to extend from Saco to Bonney Eagle, passing through the village of Buxton, a distance of about 20 miles.

About 75 Knights of Pythias of Maplewood, Mass., arrived in St. John, N. B., last night. They were met by a detachment of the St. John Knights and escorted to their hotels. The Boston visitors were heartily cheered along the line of route to the hotels.

The list of entries for the opening race meet at the Old Orchard (Me.) kite track is complete. Owing to the failure of several classes to fill, the program has been shortened to three days. It will begin next Tuesday. There are large fields entered in seven classes.

Ten horses belonging to the late Barney Barnato, the South African mining king, was sold yesterday at New Market, Eng., for good prices. The highest figures were reached by the stallion Worcester, which was bought by Lord Marcus Beresford for 2500 guineas.

The Providence News and the Pawtucket Post have been purchased, and will hereafter be conducted by R. W. Bryant, until recently business manager of the Boston Post; Charles W. Bacon, formerly of the New York World and Boston Herald, and Stephen A. Hopkins, the present business manager of the Pawtucket Post.

One Charge Sustained.

Boston, July 14.—Special Treasury Agent Converse J. Smith, who recently investigated charges of drunkenness against Colonel A. A. Rivers, deputy surveyor of the port, has reported to Washington that the charges were not sustained. An additional charge to the effect that Colonel Rivers had been guilty of favoritism in the assignment of the men of his force to duty was substantiated.

No Fishway at Rangeley.

Phillips, Me., July 14.—The fish and game commisioners gave a hearing at Rangeley yesterday on the plan to build a fishway in the dam between Rangeley lakes and Haley pond. The commissioners decided not to favor the fishway. This has been one of the principal topics of discussion this season.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

CALM BEFORE STORM.

Coal Operators Planning a Coup Which May Bring Trouble.

Mines to Be Equipped With Labor Saving Machines.

Diggers Will Resort to Every Means to Frustrate the Proposed Scheme

Pittsburg, July 14.—The proverbial calm before the storm is likely to be exemplified in the miners' strike situation. Throughout yesterday everything in the district had a peaceful look. All the mines, but two or three, were closed down, and both operators and miners appeared to be resting on their oars, as it were.

It has developed that a number of the operators have been quietly planning a coup which is expected to bring dismay to the miners. It is the intention to at once equip the mines with machines, and do away with a great many of the diggers. When the mines are ready to start, miners will be imported and put to work under heavy guard, and the premises barricaded.

With the co-operation of the other operators, J. A. Beadler of the Webster Gas Coal company, located on the Monongahela river, will take the initiative. The operators claim this plan becomes necessary because the West Virginia people are gobbling all of their contracts. It goes without saying that the diggers will resort to every possible means to prevent the carrying out of the proposed scheme.

It was reported at the miners' headquarters here that 2000 miners were getting ready to march on the Stickles Hollow mine, and bring out the 400 men working there. The attempt is to be made on Friday or Saturday. This mine is shipping daily 100 cars and is a menace to the success of the strike. A movement is also on foot among the strikers along the Pan Handle to march to the Ben and Allison mines and compel the miners to quit work. If these threats are carried out there will be a repetition of the bloody scenes that characterized the closing days of the strike of 1894.

It is probable that Eugene V. Debs will spend a few days in this district. The local officers are making an effort to have him address several meetings here before he goes to West Virginia.

It has not taken the members of the arbitration committee long to arrive at the conclusion that their task is neither a pleasant or an easy one. They find that while a majority of the Pittsburg operators and miners say they favor arbitration, they are inclined to resent outside interference, and believe in fighting it out to a finish themselves.

W. P. DeArmitt, president of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, consented to appear before the board and explain his position. While Mr. DeArmitt has said that he has nothing to arbitrate, the fact that he is willing to meet with the commissioners itself shows that there is hope that some kind of a settlement may be reached soon.

Strike Reaches West Virginia.

Cleveland, July 14.—J. J. Phillips has received a telegram from Flemington, W. Va., as follows: "Miners all out on a strike here."

Flemington is an important point in the West Virginia coal fields, and local operators believe that the strike will now spread into West Virginia.

J. J. Phillips said: "The people do not realize how serious this strike is. There is not enough coal on hand to supply the market more than a week or 10 days longer. The miners have accomplished more than they expected to, and more than we ever thought they would accomplish. They are in a position to dictate. If this strike is settled it will be when the operators go to the mine workers. The latter do not have to go to the operators. I think the railroads will soon refuse to haul West Virginia coal if the trainmen do not refuse to handle it."

Supposed to Be Grace Stevenson.

Cincinnati, July 14.—The Commercial Tribune's Lexington (Ky.) special says: A woman supposed to be Miss Grace Stevenson of Boston came here Sunday night, accompanied by a man. They left for Cincinnati at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They stopped here at a private boarding house. The young lady had a brilliant complexion and dark brown hair, inclining to red. She had fine hands. The Boston photograph of her resembles her about the mouth, but her cheeks are now fuller than when the photograph was taken.

Killed on the Stage.

Atlanta, July 14.—In a play presented by colored amateurs in Pittsburg, a suburb of this city, John Singleton acted a part in which he was supposed to be shot dead by his rival, impersonated by Gary Brown. The scene was carried out faithfully and aroused loud applause, which was turned into lamentation when it was discovered that Singleton was really dead. The pistol Brown used, which was supposed to be loaded with blank cartridges, carried a real bullet instead.

Bill For Postal Savings Banks.

Washington, July 14.—Senator Butler has introduced a bill providing for the establishment of a system of postal savings banks under the supervision of the postmaster general and the secretary of the treasury. It creates every post-office a savings bank, permitting the opening of accounts of not less than 50 cents and permitting no deposits of less than 10 cents.

Bigamist Arrested.

Holyoke, Mass., July 14.—David Carron was arrested here yesterday, charged with bigamy. The complaint was lodged by Mrs. Calanie Carron of Woonsocket, R. I., whom he married and deserted in 1891. He came here directly after, and in 1892 married a Holyoke girl, by whom he has had one child.

Sale of Ohio Valley Railroad.

Henderson, Ky., July 14.—Alex P. Humphrey of Louisville and Adrian H. Jeline of New York yesterday bought the Ohio Valley railroad. Upset price $1,050,000.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Cleveland—

Lewis was a trifle wild, while Cuppy, after the first inning, pitched a fine game. Errors by the Bostons at critical moments helped to swell the score of the Indians. A fine one-handed catch by Collins and the all around good work of Childs and Wallace were the features.

Town's Centennial.

Orleans, Mass., July 14.—This quaint and quiet Cape Cod town is celebrating its centennial anniversary today. Houses are decked with bunting. The program began on the arrival of the 10:30 train from Boston, bearing Governor Wolcott and a number of invited guests. A committee of townsmen welcomed him, and a band headed the procession to the large tent, where the exercises are being held. A banquet will follow. The governor, Attorney General Knowlton, Hon. John L. Bates, speaker of the house; John G. Brooks of Harvard college, S. S. Higgins of Somerville, Judge H. P. Harriman of Wellfleet and Senator W. A. Morse of Tisbury are among the prominent guests.

Women Became Hysterical.

Providence, July 14. — The small steamer Pioneer, with about two dozen passengers, bound for the state camp at Quonset Point, had an exciting experience in the rough water of the lower bay yesterday morning. She was unable to make a landing at the Point and anchored in the lee of Conanicut, but dragged nearly a mile. Several women passengers were so badly frightened that they were hysterical for several hours, being attended by a surgeon of the hospital corps. The steamer finally made Newport and the passengers were returned to this city by the Mount Hope.

Deluge at Concord.

Concord, N. H., July 14.—The continued rains in this vicinity have done much damage to highways, sewers and private property. Penacook lake, the source of the city's water supply, is again dangerously high, and 25 men were at work last night to prevent the dam breaking and flooding the village of West Concord, as was threatened a few weeks ago. There is a rise of four inches in the Merrimack river at Sewall's Falls.

Mrs. Hay Had Narrow Escape.

London, July 14.—Mrs. Hay, wife of the United States ambassador, had a narrow escape from serious accident yesterday. While driving with Colonel Hay, the pole of an omnibus penetrated the panel of the carriage at a point where Mrs. Hay's head had rested only a moment before. Had she not shifted her position when she did a fatal injury would have been almost unavoidable. The driver of the omnibus has been arrested.

Bridge Controversy Ended.

Augusta, Me., July 14.—The state railroad commissioners have rendered a decision in the long contested matter of the Washington street bridge at Portland, in which so many interests are involved. By the decision a bridge is to be borne, as follows: The city of Portland one-half and the Portland electric railroad and Portland and Rochester railroad one-quarter each.

Settled For Fifty Cents.

Athol, Mass., July 14.—The creditors of Edward Ellis & Son, sash and blind manufacturers, met here yesterday afternoon to consider an offer of 50 cents on $1, payable in 60 days, and they voted to accept it. The failure of the firm occurred several weeks ago. The liabilities are $48,000.

STILL NO AGREEMENT.

Tariff Conferees Devote a Whole Day to Wool and Sugar Schedules.

Basis of Compromise Is Now Under Consideration.

Placing of Jute Bagging and Cotton on Free List Cause of Much Trouble.

Washington, July 14.—The tariff conferees devoted all day yesterday to the consideration of the wool and sugar schedules, but no agreement was reached.

At one time during the afternoon the senate and house conferees separated, the house men repairing to the ways and means committee room. It was generally believed that this action on the part of the house men was for the purpose of deciding upon a line of policy on sugar, but they declined to give out any information.

Contrary to published reports it is positively asserted that the sugar schedule has not been agreed upon, and in fact that all the big questions before the conference which have seemingly been settled are only tentatively agreed to, one side or the other insisting that they shall be held open. Nothing will be finally closed so far as the matters of importance are concerned until all have been decided upon, and the conferees are ready to come to a complete agreement.

It is believed that the wool schedule, which has occupied the attention of the conference more or less for two days, can now be settled whenever other matters have reached a stage for final adjustment. The senate conferees are ready to compromise the differences on first and second-class wools by making them both dutiable at 11 cents, and a compromise on third-class wools has been signed by house members of the conference, concerning which they express the hope that it will be satisfactory to both the wool growers and the carpet manufacturers, but this is not assured. This compromise proposition looks to fixing a rate of 3 cents a pound on all wool of a value less than 10 cents a pound; of 5 cents on wool valued at more than 10 cents and less than 13 cents a pound, and of 8 cents on that above 13 cents a pound in value.

The propositoin was submitted to the representatives in the senate of both the wool growers and carpet manufacturers, and both sides took the matter under advisement. Senator Penrose, representing the carpet men, telegraphed for some of them to come to Washington for conference. The attempt of some of the house conferees to secure an increased rate on skirted wools has failed. The question of jute, jute bagging, burlaps, cotton bagging and cotton ties which the senate placed on the free list is causing much trouble. The house conferees insist that these items shall go back on the dutiable list, and the senate conferees plead that if they are put back delay must be the result in the senate.

AT $300 A TON.

Senate Fixes Price of Armor Plate---Last Appropriation Bill Finally Passed.

Washington, July 14.—The price to be paid for armor plate for the three new battleships now in course of construction was the theme of extended and at times lively debate in the senate yesterday.

Late in the day an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill was agreed to, restricting the price of armor plate to $300 per ton, or $125 less than the amendment reported by the committee and recommended by the navy department as the minimum rate acceptable to the armor contractors. Another amendment inserted in the bill directs the secretary of the navy to investigate as to the establishment of a government armor factory and to report to the next session of congress.

During the debate Mr. Hale urged that the failure to equip the battleships with armor would humiliate the United States in the eyes of the world, and would lessen our naval power at a time of possible foreign complications. After inserting the armor amendments the deficiency appropriation bill, the last of the great supply measures, was passed.

Bennington Going to Honolulu.

Washington, July 14.—The Bennington, now on the California coast, is being fitted out to take the place of the old cruiser Marion at Honolulu. The Marion was ordered home some time ago, but an accident to her machinery delayed her for several months, and the order has now been repeated. Though there has been talk of sending the battleship Oregon to Honolulu to re-enforce the Philadelphia, it is said at the navy department that no such orders have been issued, and it is more probable that she will be kept in the neighborhood of San Francisco in perfect condition and ready for sea orders at short notice. Admiral Beardslee will soon be relieved at Honolulu by Admiral Miller, if the latter does not ask to be relieved of his orders in view of his domestic affliction. It is said Admiral Beardslee has not been sent any orders recently. When he went out to Honolulu some months ago he was charged to maintain the status quo, having in mind the fact that the president intended at his convenience to submit an annexation treaty to the senate. That was before there was any idea that Japan would lodge a protest against the treaty.

Torpede Boat Criticised.

Washington, July 14.—Rarely in the history of the navy department has a boat been offered for acceptance received such severe criticism from the inspection board as the little torpedo boat Foote, built by the Columbian Iron Works, has received in a report just made public. The boat is found to be structurally sound, however, and the interior well arranged, and, in fact, in all respects in compliance with the contract. Apparently the navy department has assumed the same view of the matter as the minority of the board, for the Foote has been provisionally accepted.

THE STORM'S DAMAGE.

New England Crops Suffer Greatly From Wind and Rain.

Losses Will Aggregate Thousands of Dollars.

Railroad Traffic Interfered With by Washouts and Landslides.

Boston, July 15.—Vast damage has resulted from the wind and rain storms of this week in New England. Growing crops of all kinds have been injured to the extent of thousands of dollars. The storm was general and the damage was equally distributed over the district from New York to Maine.

The storm seems to have been the culmination of the extended spell of hot weather, although in but few localities was there any electrical manifestations.

From reports received from all over New England it seems that the storm was most severe along the valley of the Connecticut river, and that the storm center moved slowly up the river from New Haven to the Canadian line, being central over Quebec late last night. While to the south and east of the storm center the southerly and southeasterly winds reached the velocity of a gale.

The remarkable feature of the storm was the tremendous downpour of rain. Such torrents of water that have fallen at New Haven, Hartford, Springfield and throughout Vermont and New Hampshire have not been experienced for many years. In many instances the rainfall exceeded the average precipitations for a quarter of a year.

Rivers, which had almost subsided into brooks by the usual summer dryness, suddenly overflowed their banks, spreading out over the lowlands into vast seas and sweeping off thousands upon thousands of tons of hay already for the barns. Small brooks swelled into mighty streams that carried away bridges and small structures along their banks.

Fruit trees were also greatly damaged, being weighted down not only with the growing crop, but with the heavy moisture, and the wind in many cases broke off great quantities of green boughs.

Along the main lines of railroad traffic was delayed almost as much as by a heavy winter's snow by reason of numerous washouts and landslides.

The mosquito fleet, which at this time of the year fill every little inlet along the coast, from New York to Eastport, have suffered greatly through tugging and straining at their cables, and not a few of the boats went crashing into others as they were driven upon the beach. Half a dozen of the larger craft were broken up on the rocks. Only the hardiest of the coasting steamers ventured out, and those coming into port from the eastward reported a tempestuous time.

In fact, nearly every service was more or less crippled, telegraph, telephone, railroad and steamboat lines, by this summer shower, which developed into a storm equalling a West Indian hurricane. And it will be many days before New England will have recovered from the effects of the blow.

The heavy storm prevailed with almost uniform severity throughout Connecticut. In New Haven during 30 hours rain fell to the extent of 7.51 inches. In Hartford, at Trinity college, a rainfall of 9.14 inches was recorded. At Derby over 9 inches fell. Crops in various sections are badly damaged and in some instances ruined. The highways are dangerously washed, and all rivers are greatly swollen. Factories in various portions of the state have been compelled to shut down. Railroads have experienced considerable difficulty. The most serious railroad washout occurred at Brooksvale, on the Northampton division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. The tracks were undermined in sections over a stretch of a mile, and traffic was crippled for 12 hours.

THREE BOYS DROWNED.

With Two Companions They Were Swept Over Falls Near Manchester.

Manchester, N. H., July 15.—Five young men made a foolhardy attempt to cross the Piscataqua river in a rickety scow less than 25 feet above the falls at Baldwin's bobbin shop yesterday, and as a result three were drowned. The boys, whose ages varied from 17 to 22 years, started out with no oars, but pieces of boards for paddles. The river is extremely high. The swift current carried the boat towards the dam with alarming rapidity. The young men all jumped as the scow hung for a minute on the flashboards and landed on the rocks below the falls.

Frank Simard, 17 years old, was swept beneath the dam by the undercurrent and was drowned. Joseph Lavoc, 20 years old, and Thomas Terrien, 20 years old, also went down to a watery grave. William Lavoc and George Terrien were swept ashore and escaped.

THE STOLEN BUDDHA.

Clarence B. Crane, Newspaper Man, Found Guilty of Stealing Foulke's Image.

Wareham, Mass., July 15.—The sensational "stolen image" case finally reached the district court yesterday, and as an outcome Clarence B. Crane, a newspaper man, who has figured so prominently in the affair at Onset Bay camp ground, was found guilty on the charge of stealing the image of Buddha from the cottage of Mr. Foulke, and was fined $50. He appealed, and was bound over to the higher court, furnishing $300 bonds.

The trial of the case was a review on the witness stand of the sensational chase after the fleeing horseback rider to Marion, through Wareham, by the complainant, Mr. Foulke, and Selectman Samuel N. Crocker.

Mr. Foulke testified that he saw Crane leave his cottage by the dining room window on the night of June 30, and that he had a bundle about the size of the image. Later he found the image had gone.

Crane testified that he was at Captain Robinson's cottage at the hour named, and put on several witnesses to prove an alibi, the testimony of whom was finally sifted to that of Mrs. Robinson, who said that Crane was at her house and in bed at the time, and that he could not have gone out again without disturbing her, as she is a light sleeper. Lawyer Nathan Washburn, for the government, scored Mrs. Robinson severely in his argument, likening Crane to Cadeaux, in the opera of Ermine, who found it so easy to prove an alibi. Crane denied absolutely the testimony of Harry Daniels, who stated that Crane interviewed him on the street the day before the idol was stolen and questioned him closely concerning the location of the idol in the cottage, its size and weight. The denial of the interview was unexpected.

Dr. E. W. Egan gave testimony to the effect that Crane was under his care on the Sunday following from the effect of taking an unknown drug.

Of Interest to Polo Players.

Boston, July 15.—The National Roller Polo association held its annual meeting at the Falmouth House last evening, President Murnane in the chair, J. C. Morse officiating as secretary. There were present T. B. Cotter, representing Fall River; A. G. Doe, New Bedford; W. J. Murray, Providence; J. J. Carroll, Salem, and J. W. Meiklejohn, Pawtucket. The championship was awarded to the New Bedford club. On motion of Mr. Doe a ballot was cast for T. H. Murnane as president and J. C. Morse as secretary of the association for the ensuing year. It was voted to begin the season on Saturday, Nov. 6, and the season will probably end March 1. The constitution was amended to read that in case of a tie at the end of the season one game be played by the clubs having the same percentage, said game to be played in a neutral rink.

Naval Brigade at Practice.

Boston, July 15.—Although nothing could be done in the fierce gale of yesterday forenoon, the wind moderated in the afternoon so that the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Eighth divisions of the naval brigade were taken to the Massachusetts and exercised at the great guns, the powder division being given an opportunity to acquaint itself with the magazines. The Fall River men of company F, under Lieutenant Edgar, went over to Lovell's and occupied the tents left standing, repitching the encampment. Lieutenant Sweet got his torpedo division off upon the Ericsson and gained some valuable time at drill. Two or three of the launches that were in use by the brigade were wrecked by the severe wind. They were old affairs and not valuable, but their loss may hamper the brigade somewhat in its work.

Red Men Choose Officers.

Boston July 15.—The great chiefs of the Improved Order of Red Men of Massachusetts met here yesterday and counted the ballots for great chief. The result of the election was as follows: Great sachem, Charles A. Weaver of Quinsigamond tribe, Worcester; great prophet, Alfred E. Steele, Northampton; great junior sagamore, William A. Jordan, Wollaston; great chief of records, J. Peter Gardner, Tapleyville; great keeper of wampum, Fred Dobie, Charlestown; representatives to the great council of the United States, Charles J. Iles, Westfield; Joel G. Tyler, Leominster; Benjamin S. Courtes, Lynn; Daniel S. Chase, Haverhill.

Distressing Accident.

West Enosburgh, Vt., July 15.—A double drowning accident under particularly distressing circumstances occurred here yesterday afternoon, a sad incident of the sudden rise of the river. John Dow and his family live on the river bank, and the water during the night came up so quickly that it flooded the lower story of the house. There was no way for the family to leave the house, and attempts by the neighbors to reach them were unsuccessful. Finally Frank Scott of Bakersfield made a raft, and with Frank Hayes, aged 15, pushed out into the current. The raft was too frail to stand the strain, it parted and both were drowned.

Plumber's Fatal Fall.

Boston, July 15.—James F. Doherty, 26, of 47 Hanover street, a plumber, fell five stories while working at the corner of West Newton street and Huntington avenue yesterday afternoon and received injuries that will probably result fatally.

ARBITRATION MAY TRIUMPH.

Good Prospects of an Early Settlement of the Miners' Strike.

Pittsburg, July 15.—The prospect for a settlement of the miners' strike is brighter than at any time since the struggle began, and both sides are almost ready to count on a resumption of work in the near future.

The cheering announcement is made that W. P. De Armitt, president of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, whose 1200 men have been constantly at work, and without whose assistance the success of the movement would have been jeopardized, has agreed to join with the other operators in a plan for the settlement of the strike on a true uniformity basis. This result has been brought about through the efforts of the members of the joint arbitration commission, who have been working assiduously to this end since meeting President De Armitt Tuesday. The commission called upon Mr. De Armitt yesterday and submitted their plan, to which he agreed. Then the commission met the miners' officials and the proposition also received their approval.

Under the terms of the agreement Mr. De Armitt consents to sign a contract which will bring about a condition of true uniformity in the Pittsburg district according to the plan formulated, but which failed 18 months ago. The contract provides that there shall be no company stores, honest weight, fair screens and the removal of other evils long complained of by the miners. He will sign such a contract provided 95 per cent of the operators in the Pittsburg district become parties to it. In agreeing to the terms, the miners' officials promised to use their influence to obtain the signatures of the operators to the contract, and they begun this morning on this work. They stipulated, however, that the proposed contract should have no immediate effect in calling off the present general suspension.

General Little of the Ohio board of arbitration said last night that if the plan is carried out it will not only affect Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, but will be a barrier against recurring troubles in the Pittsburg district.

The miners' officials admitted that even though they had won the present strike without arbitration, the victory would have been only temporary, as the absence of a contract such as had been agreed upon would have left the door open for new grievances that were bound to mainfest themselves under the present mining laws, and the new ones awaiting the signature of the governor.

The prospect of a settlement of the mining troubles was received last night with a sense of great relief on all sides, and the result of the efforts of the joint commission to secure the names of the necessary 95 per cent of the operators to the agreement will be awaited with general interest. The miners' officials claim that the Canonsburg mines in the Pan Handle district, which have been in operation since the strike began, shut down yesterday because of the men joining the ranks of the strikers. This makes the suspension in the Pan Handle district absolute.

Coal sold yesterday at $1.50 per ton for mixed and $1.30 for the run of mine. No disturbances of any kind occurred during the day, and quiet reigns in all parts of the district.

AGAINST SILVER.

Convention of the National Democrats of Kentucky Meets at Louisville.

Louisville, July 15.—The state convention of the national Democrats of Kentucky was called to order here yesterday by Hon. A. J. Carroll of Louisville.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Carroll said that the money issue was forced upon and accepted by those who were from conscience and principle unalterably opposed to the "free silver delusion." He charged the Frankfort convention, at which Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn was so great a factor, with having run up "the piratical flag," and followed this with the assertion, "We will continue the fight with all the vigor of our minds and hearts until the last vestige of heresy is eradicated." Mr. Carroll then called upon James C. Sims of Bowling Green to act as temporary chairman.

Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle and Henry Watterson made speeches against silver, and arraigned the present administration for not fulfilling its pledge to firmly establish the finances of the country on a gold basis.

Severe Fighting In Brazil.

London, July 15.—The Time's correspondent in Rio Janerio says that an official telegram dated July 9 states that the bombardment of the forces of Conselheiro at Canudos is proceeding and that fighting is going on daily. The fanatics have great stores of ammunition, and make frequent attacks upon the government troops from ambush in great numbers. At times they hold the road from Canudos to Monto Santo. The government forces have lost 700 men killed or wounded, including 20 officers, among whom are Colonels Thomson, Flores and Sucupira. Forty-nine of the enemy have been killed or wounded.

Russo-Chinese Alliance.

London, July 15.—Special dispatches from Shang Hai say it is reported there that before taking his departure Prince shmkyOtocu- oenedfto——and4tha tatt Ouchtomsky, chief of the Russian special mission to the Chinese emperor, discussed with the emperor's advisors, the question of a Russo-Chinese alliance. It is said that Li Hung Chang approves the idea of such an alliance.

No Danger of Coal Famine.

Cleveland, July 15.—Big consignments of West Virginia coal were received in Cleveland yesterday. One thousand car loads came over the Baltimore and Ohio, 200 over the Cleveland, Canton and Southern, and quite a number over the Cleveland, Loraine and Wheeling. There is no longer fears of a famine, and in every respect the situation is more hopeful.

Funeral of Miss Brown.

Many friends gathered Wednesday afternoon to pay their respect and homage to the sterling character of Miss Lucy Brown, who passed away on Sunday. The flowers sent by kind friends were profuse and beautiful. Rev. E. W. Preble conducted the service, assisted by Rev. M. H. Turk. Mr. H. F. Nye sang several of Miss Brown's favorite hymns.

Miss Brown was not only a graduate of the High school but of the Bridgewater Normal school four year course. She had a fondness for children and a natural faculty for handling them and for this reason chose to enter the primary department of the Washington school where she remained until her sickness something over a year ago. Miss Brown will be greatly missed by her parents but is a loss to the community in which she lived and to the public schools of Quincy.

Jaw Broken.

Patrick Ford, employed at the Granite Railway quarry, had a narrow escape from a serious accident on Tuesday. He was at work at a steam drill when the wind blew the boom of a derrick around, the block of the tackle striking him a severe blow. The force of the blow broke his jaw and knocked him with the steam drill over the embankment of a forty foot hole. In falling Ford put out his hand and was fortunate enough after dropping some ten feet to grasp a steam pipe where he hung some few minutes before he was rescued. He was removed to his home and medical aid summoned. Besides a broken jaw his face and side were bruised.

Quincy, Massachusetts.

The New England Tourist for June devoted many pages to Quincy, Massachusetts. Its attractions as a place of residence or summer resort were well told in an interesting readable sketch, which was illustrated by views and notable buildings, including the Thomas Crane Public Library, Woodward Institute, First church, birthplaces of the Presidents, the Adams mansion, Quincy homestead, Peter Butler house, Street Railway building, Durgin & Merrill block and others.

THE GALE IN QUINCY.

Attained a Velocity of Fifty Miles an Hour at One Time.

The gale which terminated on Wednesday afternoon was the worst summer storm, so far as the velocity of the wind goes and its general destructiveness, that we have had for years.

In Quincy at 9.30 Wednesday morning the wind attained a maximum velocity of 50 miles an hour. At the Blue Hill Observatory the highest velocity attained was at the rate of 92 miles an hour. This gust lasted but a few moments.

Large trees were destroyed. On the place owned by Mr. John H. Roberts at Wollaston a huge elm tree was split open. Newport avenue, Wollaston, near the freight depot, was blocked by a large branch of a maple tree which broke off and fell across the street.

At the Mount Wollaston cemetery several trees were broken short off.

In other parts of the city the destructiveness of the storm was felt, especially among the fruit trees and crops.

But little damage was done to the yachting in the bay as the wind was off shore. The tender to the yacht Vexer broke away from the Quincy Yacht club's float on Monday night and drifted out the East gut. It was picked up by John Eagan of the Engineer Corps of Fort Warren, and will be returned to the owner today.

On Wednesday the jib of the yacht Vexer, which is moored off the Quincy Yacht club house, became unfurled. A crew of five men from the club hauled out the Mass. Humane Society's life boat, and, launching her under the lee of the club house, rowed out to the yacht and secured the jib.

The drop on Stanley Mears' wharf, was blown away. It was secured and beached under the lee of Great Hill by a crew from the club.

The yacht Beatrice, Capt. A. J. Cavanagh of the Quincy Yacht club, about which fears were felt for her safety rode out the gale safely in Portsmouth harbor.

Historic Houses and Spots.

The study of local history is the best introduction to the study of more general history. To know that one is standing on the very ground of the homes of the "fathers" is in itself an inspiration to the study of their lives. The great soul of Longfellow was stirred to its depths by the thought that he was climbing daily the same stairs "once echoing to the majestic tread of Washington" and living in the same rooms that he lived in.

In Historic Houses and Spots by J. W. Freese, Principal of the Washington School, Cambridge, the author aims to interest young people in the ancient homes of Cambridge and other historic towns and cities near-by by giving definite locations for and also brief accounts of the most famous old houses.

Besides being a boon to the young student and valuable as a supplementary reading book in the schools, the many excellent engravings contained in the book—some fifty in number—should make a place for it in the home, and the definite location of houses and places should make it extremely useful as a guide book. Ginn & Company, Publishers.

The Cadets.

Wednesday was another poor day at the camp of the Cadets at Hingham, the storm and wind postponing the programme of the day. Today it is proposed to have skirmishing, route marching, advance guard and point in an enemy's country, and attack upon simulated line of battle. The Cadets will don their brown canvas suits for the occasion. Surgeon General Blood will make his official visit and Maj Richardson, Surgeon of the Corps, will devote himself especially to him. It is the intention to shoot off the company competitions today if practicable. The corps leave for home on Saturday after lunch.

THE UMPIRE'S SCORN.

He Knew His Man and Was Not at All Alarmed.

Melancholy had been doing her best to mark the umpire for her own, but up to the eighth inning she had not been able to leave a dint. He was one of the few whom nature seems to have especially fitted for the responsibilities thrust upon them in this life. Quick of speech, haughty and overbearing, and wholly indifferent to the rights of others, he delivered his decisions in a way which almost invariably commanded respect, even though it failed to carry conviction. But the penalty which he paid for success in his career was a heavy one. His disposition was irretrievably ruined. He had become habitually sarcastic. The player upon whom three strikes had just been called was speaking up with all the enthusiasm of a man who realizes that this is a free country and that the voice of the people as it ascends from the bleaching boards is on his side.

"T'ree strikes nottin!" was the loud, laconic comment which caused the umpire to look upon him with a majestic glare and exclaim:

"Whut's dat?"

"I said t'ree strikes nottin, an dat's whut."

The altercation proceeded until, in a paroxysm of indignation, the player lifted his bat as a weapon.

"Look out!" shouted one of the players. "He's goin to hit ye."

But the umpire never flinched.

"Don't ye have no fears," he said as he stood in statuesque defiance. "After whut he's been doin at the bat I don't feel that I'm runnin no risks whatever. He may strike at me, but there ain't any mortal chance of his touchin anything."—Washington Star.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Clear sky today.

Nowland-Gannett church wedding this evening.

Dog days begin a week from Sunday, says the almanac.

Mrs. John W. Hall is confined to her home with rheumatism.

Miss Mary R. Sullivan is the new clerk in the Atlantic post office.

Mr. Frazier Blauvet of Gay street is visiting relatives in Yarmouth.

Willie G. Chase of Cape Cod is the new baggage master at the Atlantic depot.

Miss Annie V. Lingley of Wollaston will receive pupils in drawing and painting.

The house lots of W. P. Pinel at Quincy Point will be sold on very favorable terms on Saturday.

Rev. J. W. Eckman of Quincy was secretary of the Swedish Lutheran conference at Waltham this week.

Work laying the sewer pipe on Hancock street from Elm avenue to Beach street will be completed this week.

On Saturday the Cambridge Reds will be here to play the T. R. & S. Co. nine at the Park. Game called at 3 P. M.

Ex-Commodore and Mrs. C. F. Pettengill and Capt. and Mrs. George W. Jones are taking an outing today at Ponkapoag.

Charles H. Johnson has been elected financier, pro tem, of Merry Mount lodge, A. O. U. W., for the balance of the year.

The high wind at Quincy Point left many evidences of its power, several large limbs being torn from trees and tossed about as small twigs.

Burton Halbert is travelling with the Gorman Amusement Company, which is giving vaudeville shows in the New England circuit.

The warm weather today has started people out again and the riding on the street cars is heavy, particularly so on the Nantasket line.

Miss Nellie C. Martin of Portland, Maine, and Miss Edna Hayden of Campello, are guests of Mr. Edward H. Martin of Coddington street.

The Universalist society is favored today with fine weather for its outing at Salem Willows. The trip from Boston was made by electric cars.

Tomorrow morning at ten o'clock Rev. E. C. Butler of First church addresses the meeting of Unitarians at the Isles of Shoals and Rev. D. M. Wilson speaks in the evening.

Mr. J. W. Bills and family of Everett, formerly of Quincy leave Friday for Pennsylvania where Mr. Bills is to take charge of a large tannery in the interest of a well known Boston concern.

That J. P. O'Brien, whose cigar and tobacco and periodical store is located opposite Hancock hall, has come to stay, is evinced by the handsome new sign which he has recently placed over the entrance to his store.

Walter H. Riply, the new noble grand of Mount Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows, was one of the charter member at the organizaiton in 1884, and the first permanent secretary, filling the office many years.

Vacation season in the Police department will commence Saturday, the first two men to take the ten days' vacation being Officer Barry and Nicol. During their absence Officer Bradley will be transferred to the centre and his beat will be covered by Officer Dawson, while Officer Morissey will cover Officer Nicol's beat.

Two gold medals and other prizes are offered in the five mile bicycle race at the Granite Cutters' picnic on Saturday. The other sports include running races, jumping, hammer throwing, putting shot, a greased pig, etc, for which prizes are offered. The order of dances includes 25 numbers.

The promptness with which the order of Foresters pay their death benefits is shown in the case of Mr. Falvey, a member of St. Francis court at West Quincy, who died last week. The claim was forwarded to headquarters on Wednesday noon and on Saturday morning a check for the amount was received in payment of the claim.

William A. Jordan of Wollaston, a member of Hodenosaunee tribe and a prominent Massachusetts Red Man, was on Wednesday elected great junior sagamore of the great chiefs of the state. The election of great junior sagamore and representatives were the contests of the day, and Bro. Jordan had 397 votes to 308 for Richard A. Sutton.

The weather yesterday afternoon and evening was not regarded suitable for the lawn party at the residence of Mrs. George Macfarlane and it was postponed until today from 4 to 10 P. M. Their estate on Merry Mount road is very attractive for such a gathering and with the entertainment to be provided it will doubtless be a happy occasion. Admission 10 cents.

One of the most popular bicycle men on the street is "Dory" Walter, who holds out down on Columbus avenue in one of the stores near the bridge. Dory is an enthusiastic yachtsman as well as wheelman, and for years has owned the staunch yacht Alice, enrolled as one of the Quincy Yacht Club boats. He is very much a favorite in Hyde Park, where he lives, and takes great interest in all out-door sports.—Boston Post.

ASSAULT AT BRAINTREE.

Girls Huckleberrying Surprised by a Tramp Yesterday.

A tramp made an assault upon Caroline A. Foster at South Braintree, near the Randolph line, Wednesday afternoon.

The girl with her two younger sisters had been huckleberrying and about 5 30 were on their way home when the fellow came up behind and threw the oldest to the ground and attempted to assault her. She struggled ta escape and cried out for help, although the fellow choked her almost into insensibility.

Her two sisters turned upon hearing the cries and seeing their sister struggling with a man ran for help. Upon this the fellow ran off in great haste.

The girl's clothing was torn and her face bruised while her throat showed marks of the fellows hand.

The fellow is described as being about 35 years of age, with long unkept brown hair, dark complextion, and resembles an Italian. He wore a dark soft hat and dark clothes and weighed about 140 pounds.

The police of surrounding towns were notified, although it was late in the evening before a description was received by the Quincy Police.

FOOD FOR INFANTS

is carefully weighed, measured and generally scrutinized by fond mothers, and rightly, too.

But the need for taoughtful inspection of what we eat and drink is not peculiar to babyhood, but remains with us through life.

Some day—when we get time—we're going to write a book with a title somewhat after this fashion: "The Tremendous Influence for Evil Upon the Human Race Which Has Been Exerted by Men and Women Whose Stomachs Were Sadly Out of Order as a Result of Eating the Wrong Sort of Groceries."

You may laugh, just for a minute, but there's a mighty serious side to the proposition, and the moral of it all is:

Look after YOUR stomach by eating BOSTON BRANCH groceries.

Whatever is newest and latest in table supplies can be found on our counters.

First and foremost is BREAD, "the staff of life." In hot weather physicians all agree a meat diet is heating and should be avoided, and what fills the place like good, wholesome bread? For twenty years we have made a specialty of supplying our trade with the best flour that money can buy, and our sales, reaching into the thousands of barre's yearly, show that the public of Quincy and vicinity appreciate our effort in that direction. Buying flour from our establishment, you are assured of paying but one profit between the mill and the consumer. Our stock and assortment of cereals is large and always fresh. We are pleased to quote prices on our goods at all times.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), don't get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

SKETCHES BY M. QUAD

A Case of Bluff.

The last three miles of the road leading up to the Alhambra mine ran through Dead Man's gap, which was a narrow valley in the mountains and at least once every winter there was sure to be a snowslide which buried the trail from 10 to 20 feet deep. We were going up from Franklin city with the pack mules one day in January, when a chinook wind was melting the snow, and in the narrow part of the valley we came across two men who had camped down within ten rods of each other. They were typical men of the border—prospectors, miners and hangers on, but meeting them where we did was such a surprise that the colonel halted to say:

"You men must be more than fools to camp down here. If there's a snowslide, you'll be buried 20 feet deep at the first rush."

"Stranger," replied one of the men as he ran his eye up the mountain side, "I've bin expectin a snowslide every minit since noon yisterday, but it's not fur me to make the fust move. It's a game of bluff betwixt me and that galoot over thar, and I won't give in to him."

"Stranger," said the other man as he advanced a pace or two, "I was comin down this pass yisterday, when I met that ole critter goin up. I was in a hurry to git along and so was he, but as we met he sorter grinned at me and kinder flung out that I was afeared. I kinder flung back that no mortal varmint on the face of this airth could bluff me, and he got off his hoss and camped down."

"And you followed suit?" queried the colonel.

"I had to or chaw my words. He's an ole bluffer, but he can't skeer me off."

"As to bluffin," said the other, "Bill Wharton, which is me, has never bin outbluffed by anything on two legs or four, and it's too late to begin to crawfish now. If that old galoot kin stand a snowslide he'll find me right alongside of him to the bitter end."

"You both realize the danger, do you?" asked the colonel.

"We do," they replied in chorus.

"There's tens of thousands of tons of snow up there ready to fall and bury this pass."

"Jest so," replied No. 1, "but I kin sot yere as long as he kin."

"And I'll see it out if it takes all winter," added the other.

The colonel argued and appealed, but neither would be the first to give way. They had gone in for a game of bluff, and their pride was at stake. When it was seen that talking would do no good, we rode on and left them, and, looking back at the next turn of the trail, we saw them seated in their blankets facing each other and waiting for a sign of weakness. A mile higher up the pack saddle of one of the mules turned, and the animal floundered about and went off the path and down the slope. A great mass of snow went with him, and in a minute a slide was started. Away it went, booming, spreading out and gathering force every second, and while we stood looking on there was a rumbling as of thunder, a crash that could be heard for miles, and Dead Man's pass was filled from end to end with snow and rocks and splintered trees.

"Bluffin is all right when you are bluffin ag'in a man," said the colonel as we rode on, "but when it comes to bluffin a snowslide jest count me out and call me a crawfish."

"HE'S AN OLD BLUFFER, BUT HE CAN'T SKEER ME OFF."

Had Reason to Doubt.

I sat smoking with the old mountaineer and hunter a few rods from his cabin and was hoping to get him started on some of his adventures, but he seemed preoccupied over something and was silent for a long time. After awhile, however, he crossed and recrossed his legs several times and began:

"Stranger, a feller that kin stand right up to a big b'ar and kill him in a fa'r fout has got a leetle courage in his make up, I take it."

"Yes, he surely has," I replied, realizing that he was about to lead off.

"Yo'd reckon, wouldn't yo'," he continued, "that a man who wasn't a bit afeared to waltz up'n jump on a rattlesnake and kill it was a nervy man?"

"I most certainly should."

"And a critter who didn't crawfish nor turn pale when he looked into a six shooter and knowed it was goin off in about a second ought to have jest a leetle credit, as I figure it."

"He must, and no mistake."

"Jest so, stranger—jest so," he said as he slowly nodded his head several times and looked off up the mountain with a sad expression in his eyes. "I was tryin to figger a spell ago jest how many b'ars and rattlesnakes and wildcats I had killed and count the number of human critters I had run out o' this county, but thar hev been so many of them that I've lost the tally. I've allus bin called the best man around these parts, but lately I'm kinder doubtin it—kinder thinkin it's all a mistake, stranger."

I had heard of his courage up in the village and was told that he had killed more wild animals than any other man in the state, but before I could praise him about it he leaned forward and slowly continued:

"Yo've seen my ole woman, hain't yo'?"

"Yes, I was talking to her before you came up."

"She's my third, stranger, and we've only bin hitched a month. Waal, as I was sayin, I allus reckoned I had a powerful lot o' courage, but I've lately diskivered it was all a mistake."

"But what can have happened to make you think so?"

For answer he pointed toward the cabin, where we could see his wife standing in the door, and I was about to say something when she lifted up her voice and shouted:

"Yo' thar, Hank?"

"Y-yes, Nancy," he answered as he stood up.

"Waal, now, yo' jest hump yo'rself out to the woodpile and split 'bout a cord o' wood or I'll tarn in and throw yo' clean through the side of this ole mountain."

And when the old hunter, who had killed scores of bears and rattlesnakes and wildcats and looked upon pistols and knives without losing his nerve, slunk off for the woodpile without so much as a backward glance I knew why he doubted his courage. He had found his boss at last. M. QUAD.

Out of Arcady.

Many a night, beneath her window, I twanged
my light guitar,
And implored my love to fly away with me
To an ivy covered cottage, where the sweet wild flowers are,
Or a quiet little home beside the sea.

Fly away, my darling,
Fly away with me;
We'll leave the world behind us,
And live in R-K-D.

One mild and moonlit midnight, as I twanged
my tuneful lyre,
Chanted words of burning love and wild romance,
I got beneath the window of her stern, bald-
headed sire!
I chant no more at midnight—that maiden's lost her chants.

I fly away, my darling,
Fly away from you;
I leave your dad behind me,
And leave him P-D-Q.

DAM WAS UNSOUND.

Water Company Held Responsible For Dutchess Junction Horror.

Five Bodies Have Been Recovered From Wreckage.

The Torrent Divided and Swept Everything In Its Path Before It.

Newburg, N. Y., July 15.—Structurally weak and filled to overflowing by the recent rains, the twin Meizingha dams, which supplied Fishkill Landing and Matteawan with water, broke yesterday morning about 2:30 o'clock, carrying death to at least five persons, and possibly half a score, tying up a branch of the New York Central and destroying brickyards.

It was Johnstown over again on a small scale.

Thus far five bodies have been taken out. They are those of:

Mrs. John Conroy, aged 36, wife of the engineer in Timony's brickyard. Her body was badly bruised by contact with trees and wreckage, and was covered with mud.

Mrs. Mary Ferry, aged 38, a widow. Her body was taken in the worst condition of all the victims, being covered with mud and bruises.

William Ferry, aged 9, son of Mrs. Ferry. The body was in good condition, except for bruises about the head.

John Sruka, aged 28, a Hungarian.

Phileumada Deluka, aged 6, an Italian girl.

The missing are:

John Conroy, aged 2, son of Engineer Conroy.

Julia Conroy, aged 6, daughter of Engineer Conroy.

An unknown Hungarian, whose brother declares that he was drowned.

Coroner Bevier made the folowing statement:

"When I reached the scene of th accident, I found that the brickyard laborers, Irish, Italian and Hungarian, although terrified by the disaster, had started a search for the bodies, and had already recovered the remains of the Italian girl, Deluka, and Willie Ferry. I at once set about 40 men at work overhauling the ruins for the others.

"Our investigation showed that immediately after the torrent of water had swept away the three dwellings in which the victims and survivors lived, it had encountered a slight elevation of ground, which caused the freshet to fork and continue in two streams to the railroad bank, where it backed up until it overflowed the railroad tracks. The little girl was washed down by the southern fork, which was the one that did the greatest damage to Timony's brickyard, and it was on this branch that the little girl was found. All of the other bodies were discovered within 50 feet of each other, covered with wreckage, in a basin which was formed by the northern fork of the flood. There I expect to find the other three bodies."

As soon as the first excitement, attendant upon the awful catastrophe, had subsided, the thoughts and conversation of the hundreds of people who had gathered at the scene, and of the residents of the twin villages of Fishkill Landing and Mattewan, turned to the question of responsibility for the disaster.

Sndignation Against Owners of Dam.

Coronor Brevier refused to express an opinion, beyond this statement:

"There is great indignation expressed against the owners and builders of those reservoirs, but I cannot foretell the outcome. I have subpoenaed a jury, and it is for them to fix the responsibility."

M. H. Hoyt, a member of the jury, said:

"I believe that the Fishkill and Mattewan Water company will be held for negligence. One of the dams, at least, has been notoriously unsound ever since it was built, that was 10 years ago, but it has been leaking all the time. The dam was 1 1-2 feet above the water and 3 1-2 feet below, and built of cobblestones. People have been predicting its collapse ever since I have lived here."

John Robertson, a civil and mechanical engineer, who has lived in the locality for 18 years, made an important statement. He lives near the gully through which the torrent swept before it reached the brickyard, and his house came near being carried away by the flood.

Robertson made an examination of the two bursted dams, after which he said:

"The accident was caused by the water not being able to find enough outlet.

"The water overflowed the centre of the embankmnt, th consequence being the utter destruction of the body of the dam. I have been afraid of the reservoir for years, and have been publicly condemning it for some time. The outlet was four times too small. The watershed is about 13,000 acres, the overflow should have been in excess of the pressure upon it, which was about 145 pounds to the square inch."

A visit to the reservoir shows that the overflow began about 75 feet from the gateway and washed out the south side of the bank for a distance of 75 feet. That weakened the walls so that it started toward the north end of the gatehouse overflow, and gradually it weakened the bank and retaining wall. A lot of immense boulders were carried down by the stream for half a mile, through the gap in the lower reservoir. The wave was about 15 feet high, as shown by traces along its passage. When it reached a point about 700 feet above the buildings it had spread out until it was about 200 feet wide and 10 feet deep, moving with resistless force. It tore out by the roots trees that were from one to two feet in diameter. A curiosity of the flood is seen in the multitude of little fish left in the sinkholes along the course taken by the water.

Engineer John Conroy, who lost his wife and two children, says that they were not in the building when the flood came. They were on a knoll on the edge of the flood. He told his wife to stay there with the children until he went back to the building, but she attempted to find a place of greater apparent safety, and in crossing to another house the flood swept her and the children to their death.

S LTAN'S IRADE.

Ministers Commanded to Concirde Peace Negotiations as Soon as Possible.

Constantinople, July 15.—Important ministerial councils were held on Sunday and Monday, at which an indemnity of £6,000,000 was agreed upon as the extreme limit of Turkey's concession. This agreement was sanctioned by an imperial irade. The councils further prepared a report stigmatizing the concert of Europe as "a league of Cross against Crescent." The sultan, after considering the report, answered by the following irade:

"I am convinced that the effort and energy of the powers are directed entirely towards the maintenance of pace and the prevention of fresh complications. In these circumstances, it is the plain duty of Turkey, whose sentiments are likewise pacific, to put an end to the present abnormal situation.

"Consequently I command the ministers, if possible, to find the necessary means for concluding the negotiations, and to sign the preliminaries for peace by Thursday."

The foregoing is authentic, but it is regarded as a ruse intended to delay a decision, although in some quarters it has led to the belief that today's council will decide to meet Europe's views on the frontier question.

The grand vizier had a long and stormy interview on Monday with Count Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador to Turkey, who insisted upon the evacuation of Thessaly and, according to rumor, threatened that Russia would retaliate in Asia Minor if Turkey remained obstinate. To this the grand vizier replied that Turkey was ready to comply with this demand when Russia should have evacuated Kars and Batoum.

It is stated that the ambassadors at their conferences have arranged a plan of coercion, by which Russia will blockade the Bosphorus and England the Dardanelles, while Austria will seize the railway to Salonika. It is rumored that while the czar's reply to the sultan's telegram was peremptory, Emperor William promised to consider, but later the German ambassador strongly advised the porte to agree with Europe's demands.

Confirmation has been received of the report that the Turks are constructing a military road in one of the passes of Mount Othrys and are preparing to resume hostilities.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Cleveland—

Klobedanz began the game by giving three bases on balls, without a strike, and the Indians batted him out of the box in the fourth inning, scoring nine runs after two men were out. Wallace's home run to deep centre, which came with the bases full and brought in the last four runs in this inning, was the feature of the game. Powell took it easy after the fourth and let the Bostons hit it, and there was some great slugging, but the lead was too big. Stivetts replaced Klobedanz after the fourth, and did much better, and Bob Allen of Detroit took Long's place at short.

CAN'T GET TOGETHER.

Senate and House Tariff Conferees Are Widely Separated.

Wool, Sugar and Hides Subjects of Dispute.

Senators Object to Speaker Reed's Interference With Conference.

Washington, July 15.—The conferees on the tariff bill are still very wide apart. They were in session nearly all day, but no conclusion was reached, and there were no signs of the lines breaking. The belief is entertained that both sides will have to make concessions as the only way out of the difficulty, as the temper of the house is such that it would not tolerate an abject surrender to the senate, while the senate, or rather the members who are manipulating things, are in no mood to give up everything the house demands.

At the senate end of the capitol yesterday it was said with a good deal of emphasis that no matter how much talk the house made it would have to take its medicine, and it might as well make up its mind to swallow the dose and make as few faces as possible about it.

Over on the house side, however, a different story is told. Members of the house say that the backs of the conferees have been stiffened, and they dare not, for their own sake, sign a report which is an abject surrender to the senate. The house, they say, would not tolerate it for one moment, and the report would be sent back to the conference and the conferees instructed to hold out to the last.

These men say it will be easier to reach an agreemnt now than it will be later, because if the conferees submit a report which is rejected by the house they will be given such ironclad instructions that compromise would then be out of the question and one side or the other would have to make a complete surrender or else the bill will fail.

From all that can be learned, however, there has been a general recession from the partial agreements. In the more important articles, until sugar, wool, hides, etc., can be definitely fixed. Sugar is still the principal contention. The best reports represents the house conferees, with Speaker Reed behind them, holding out for the house sugar schedule, without change whatever, and the senators as quite determined not to yield to this extent. The house conferees insist that this schedule must be definitely fixed before other questions shall be taken up.

One of the other questions of secondary importance upon which sharp differences have arisen is the senate amendment for a stamp tax on stocks and bonds. The house opposes the amendment, but the senators while not wedded to it insist upon it as necessary for revenue. The house is also resisting strenuously the 20 per cent duty placed upon hides, and is at the same time persistently holding out for a restoration of gunny bags, cotton ties, etc., to the dutiable list.

A senator who talked with one of the conferees said: "They are in a temporary deadlock and are tied up all along the line. It looks as if the situation might remain unchanged for a week."

While this appears to be a correct outline of the situation, the prevailing impression is that a settlement of one or two important schedules would be immediately followed by a complete adjustment of all of the differences.

The senate conferees are disposed to resent the efforts of Speaker Reed to influence the action of the conferees. The senators are inclined to construe the speaker's participation in the proceedings as unwarranted, and are apparantly more determined, than before his attitude was made known, to hold out for the senate figures.

The contending forces on the wool schedule, the carpet manufacturers and the wool growers, outside the conference, have practically reached an agreement which it is presumed will be ratified by the conference. This agreement provides for the restoration of the house rate, of 11 and 12 cents respectively on first and second class wools, and on the third class article the wool men agree to the proposition of the carpet makers to extend the dividend line from 10 to 12 cents, making the rate on wool of this class worth less than 12 cents dutiable at 4 cents a pound, and those worth more than 12 cents dutiable at 8 cents. This increases the rate on all the higher grade wools, which is agreeable to the wool men and holds the carpet wool down to a figure acceptable to the manufacturers.

The conferees remained in session until after 6 o'clock and then adjourned, omitting the usual evening session. They had not reached a point where they could call in the Democratic conferees, but all said progress had been made. It was impossible to say whether the senate or house had the advantage of the day's work, as both sides looked weary and troubled. The outlook for a final agreement was said to be at a great distance.

Filibustering In the Senate.

Washington, July 15.—The senate was in a deadlock for several hours yesterday, with business at a standstill, while calls on the senate, roll-calls and other parliamentary expedients was resorted to. It was due to the effort to secure action on the resolution of Mr. Harris of Kansas, designed to prevent the disposal of the government lien on the Union Pacific railroad under the terms of an alleged agreement. There were many roll-calls on the motion of Mr. Harris to consider the resolution, quorums appearing and disappearing, and from 12 to 5 o'clock no final vote on the motion was secured. After 3 o'clock a parliamentary device opened the subject to debate, which continued throughout the day. Messrs. Morgan and Harris speaking for and Thurston and Gear against the resolution. It finally went over.

Locomotive Engineers' Convention.

Windsor, Ont., July 15.—The annual meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of North America opened here yesterday for a two days' session. Three hundred delegates are present.

A healthy woman will always find Love. Health and Beauty are twins that do not have to seek far or long to find Cupid. It is the woman who suffers from ill-health as a result of weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism, who leads a loveless and childless life. It is in every woman's power to be healthy and consequently attractive. The main-spring of woman's nature is in her distinctly womanly-self. When she suffers in that part of her organism, she suffers in every nerve and fiber of her body, and her suffering is pictured in her face, and reflected in her disposition and temper.

It is easy for a woman to be well and strong in a womanly way. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly upon the important and delicate organs that constitute womanhood. It makes them strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and gives the tortured nerves rest and tone. It prepares for wifehood and motherhood. Taken during the expectant period it banishes the usual discomforts, makes the coming of baby easy and painless, and insures the health of the newcomer. Thousands of women have said so. All good druggists sell it.

"Please accept my thanks," writes Mrs. Maud Pearce, of Stoutsville, Fairfield Co., Ohio, "for the good your medicines have done me. I truly believe that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription saved my life. It is a sure and certain cure for 'female troubles.' I am having perfect health. Nothing did me any good until I heard of you. My good health pleases me and pleases my husband. Every invalid lady should take Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

One line in a good, practical, home medical book will sometimes save a life. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Attviser is the best book of that description published. Over a million women own copies and thousands of them have written testifying to its great value. A new edition is ready and will be given away FREE. If you want a paper-covered copy, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of mailing only, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y. For cloth binding, 31 stamps.

TRAMPLED TO DEATH.

Terrible Fate of a Negro at Hands of a Tennessee Mob.

Body Riddled With Bullets and Cremated.

Five Hundred Armed Men Hunted Him for Two Days.

Florence, Ala., July 16.—The negro, Anthony Williams, who outraged and murdered Miss Rene Williams, the 18-year-old white girl, at West Point, Tenn., Tuesday, was captured near Pruitton, this county, and last night expiated his crime in the streets of West Point, in the presence of 500 people. Williams was riddled with bullets and burned. Before a shot was fired the negro was knocked down and stamped to death. The crowd fell back, and those who had pistols fired volley after volley at him. The crowd then built a fire over him, and watched until the murderer was in ashes.

For two days and nights 500 men, armed and determined, have scoured the country for miles. Several times posses were within shooting distance of him, but he escaped. Williams was captured within 16 miles of the scene of his crime. A man, to whom he applied for tobacco, held him for the crowd.

Williams was first traced to Iron City where he traded the young lady's belt to a negro woman for a night's lodging. He was later seen at Pruitton, and several shots were fired at him. All trace of him was lost until yesterday afternoon when searchers came upon him three miles south of Pruitton. He had been in the woods without food for over two days, and running most of the time so that he was exhausted. The mob was composed of substantial men.

William's victim was shortly to have been married to a young man in Nashville. Her intended husband came down from Nashville, and was at West Point to meet the crowd of avengers and to assist them. The young lady left her home Tuesday morning to pick berries. When she did not return for her dinner her friends went in search of her. She was found dead and tied down to a sapling, with a leather string around her neck. One of her eyes had been gouged out and in her tightly cluched hands were leaves and grass. All around the ground showed that a terrible struggle had taken place. When the negro was captured his face and arms were terribly scratched and torn.

Wedded In Death Chamber.

Norwich, Conn., July 16.—The marriage of Sarah Griswold Fitch, youngest daughter of the late William Fitch, to Francis Hillhouse of New York, was announced to take place on Oct. 12 next, the 40th anniversary of the marriage of Miss Fitch's mother, and a brilliant event was expected. Mrs. Fitch died on Monday evening, however. The three other daughters, Mrs. Elihu Loomis of Boston, Mrs. William Jewett of Grand Rapids and Mrs. William N. Wilbur of Philadelphia, were present at the time, and, in view of the fact that Miss Fitch would be left alone in the house when they returned to their homes, it was decided to have the marriage take place at once. The ceremony took place Wednesday evening, the bride holding the hand of her dead mother, and none but the members of the family being present. The bride becomes heir to a large fortune by the death of her mother.

Believe In Tuberculin.

Augusta, Me., July 16.—The Maine Veterinary Medical association met in Waterville Wednesday evening as the guests of Dr. A. Joly. Dr. F. W. Huntington of Farmington presided at the meeting, and Dr. W. L. West of Ellsworth was secretary. Touching upon the matter of tuberculosis, the veterinans adopted the following: "Resolved, That we believe in the efficiency of the tuberculin test as the sure method of diagnosing tuberculosis. Resolved, That the physical examination as a means of diagnosing tuberculosis is false and misleading and entirely unreliable, and is not conceded by medical scientises. Resolved, That we absolutely refuse to make any physical examinations as a means of diagnosing tuberculosis, and believe it to be a means of spreading the disease by giving the public a source of security which does not exist.

Heavy Sugar Importations.

Boston, July 16.—Statistics furnished by the Boston custom house with regard to the importation of sugar at this port show that, if the same rate of increase for the first six months of this year over last year should be maintained until the close of the 12th month, the amount of sugar imported would be half as much again as it was in 1896. Last year 403,014,827 pounds of sugar were imported, while for the first six months of this year 328,465,814 pounds were imported. Undoubtedly some part of this heavy importation has been due to the prospect of an advance in the tariff rates. But it is claimed that the importation of sugar is generally heavier up to this time of the year owing to the fact that the consumption of sugar is larger in summer, as so much is used on fruit and in cooling drinks, and fruit preserves, etc.

MAN AND BOY INJURED.

Hot Fire at Hyde Park Which Caused Loss of About $20,000.

Hyde Park, Mass., July 16.—The hottest fire seen in this town for 10 years occurred last evening, causing a loss of from $18,000 to $20,000. The fire started in the livery stable of J. C. Chaddock on Nott street in some hay on the main floor, and as the fire department was answering a still alarm at the opposite end of the town at the time, the flames made good headway before the firemen got to work upon them. Three alarms were sounded, and assistance was asked from Milton, which sent a steamer, hose and truck, and from Boston, which sent two steamers and a combination wagon from the Dorchester station.

In the Chaddock stable there were some 65 horses and 100 carriages, sleighs, etc., all the horses being saved, together with most of the vehicles. The building, which was owned by William B. Ryan of Boston, was totally burned. The fire spread to Isaac L. Ryans stable adjoining, and a building occupied by Walter G. Lugton as a blacksmith shop and by Noyes & Elliot, carpenters, and soon they were both burned to the ground. Then the flames leaped across the street and seized upon the house of J. W. Hudson, occupied up stairs by Mr. Hudson as a dwelling and on the lower floor by a blacksmith shop.

The roof of this building was burned off and the wind sent a shower of sparks down upon the row of about a dozen houses along Pierce street, several of which were on fire at one time. The losses to these houses, however, are very slight. Bucket brigades were improvised and stationed upon the roofs of nearly all the buildings endangered, and the men thus employed did most effective work in saving property. Eight men were engaged with buckets on the roof of Mahoney's express building, adjoining the Lugton building, when one of them fell to the ground, breaking his wrist and sustaining other slight injuries. In his fall he dropped his bucket on the head of a boy named William Gunn, causing a bad wound. The boy's injuries are not fatal.

WITHOUT PRECEDENT.

Writ of Habeas Corpus Obtained For Thorn, the Alleged New York Murderer.

New York, July 16.—The district attorney's office was yesterday served with a writ of habeas corpus requiring the production of Martin Thorn in the supreme court today. The writ was obtained by Howe & Hummel, Thorn's lawyers, and is for the purpose of deciding whether Thorn shall be released on bail.

Deputy Assistant District Attorney Rosalsky says that the writ is without precedent. He has been unable to find a case similar to this, where the question of admitting a person charged with murder in the first degree, was argued before some other legal proceedings, such as a trial, and a disagreement of the jury had been had.

Thorn's petition asking for the writ sets forth that he was arrested on a charge of having killed Guldensuppe in Queens county, and that Mrs. Nack is jointly charged with him in the commission of the murder. That they were partially examined before City Magistrate Flammer, and while his examination was still pending the district attorney of New York presented the case to the grand jury of this county, who presented an indictment against them for the murder.

Mr. Howe, Thorn's lawyer, the petition avers, protested against the hardship of this proceeding on the ground that, although indicted for murder, Thorn is in utter ignorance of the testimony given against him before the grand jury and cannot prepare his defense unless he is apprised of the nature of the testimony there presented.

Placard on Parochial School.

Bangor, Me., July 16.—Yesterday another placard, signed Knights of Death, was found upon the door of St. Mary's parochial school in this city. The article was exactly like the others in style, and was composed as follows: "Roman Catholics tremble, for the Knights of Death are about to act. This is the third placard, and the last. We have given you fair warning, and now look out. We, the Knights of Death, are strong in numbers, fearless and determined. Roman Catholics, we fear you not, but you know that you fear us. We have sworn to stand together and strike blow after blow against you. Vicar General O'Brien, fire will soon rid the city of this accused school. The destruction of this school will be our first step. Ho, for the firebrand." The placard was given to the police, who are at work. There is no clue to the perpetrators. Curiously enough, the placards have been posted at intervals of exastly five days, July 4, July 9 and July 14.

TORONTO TAKEN.

Delegates to Annual Meeting of Epworth League Royally Welcomed.

Toronto, July 16.—The opening meetings of the Epworth league were held yesterday afternoon in the pavilion and Metropolitan church.

In the pavilion, Hon. A. S. Hardy, premier of Ontario, warmly welcomed the visitors, as did Rev. A. Carmen of Toronto.

Replies were made for the Methodist Episcopal church by Bishop W. X. Ninde, and for the Methodist Episcopal church, South, by Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald of Nashville.

In the Metropolitan church Mayor Fleming did the welcoming for the city and Rev. William Briggs, D. D., on behalf of the Methodists of Toronto.

In response Bishop C. C. McCabe, for the Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. James Thomas of Little Rock for the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and Rev. H. A. Crane, D. D., of Bombay, India, for India, spoke.

Last evening four monster meetings were held. In Massey Music hall 5000 people gathered. Rev. W. F. McMurray of Richmond, Mo., was chairman, and addresses were delivered by Rev. W. J. Haven, Brookline, Mass., and Rev. W. D. Bradfield, Galveston.

At the pavilion more than 3000 assembled, with Rev. L. H. Murlin of Baldwin, Kan., as chairman. The speakers were Hon. C. E. Piper of Chicago and Rev. J. W. Hill of Gainesville, Tex.

At Cooke's church a congregation of 1800 people listened to Bishop Charles H. Fowler's address on "Great Deeds of Great Men."

At the Metropolitan church 3500 people were present. Bishop John P. Newman delivered a lecture on the advance of Christianity, in the course of which he made a vicious attack on the press, stating that instead of doing good they served up for us at breakfast a hash of crime, murder and scandal.

Seattle was represented by a very strong delegation, which is making a strong fight for the next convention.

"CAMP POWER."

Maine Militia Encampment Begins the Second Week In August.

Augusta, Me., July 16.—The orders for the annual encampment of the National Guard of Maine have been made up by Adjutant General Richards. As usual, it will be held the second week in August.

The men will assemble at the grounds in this city, "Camp Powers," Saturday, Aug. 7. Colonel Lucius H. Kendall, the commanding officer of the First regiment, will be in immediate command of the camp. He will provide, in the order for a review by the governor and commander-in-chief, Thursday, Aug. 10. Enlistments will cease Aug. 1, and will not be resumed until after the encampment. First Lieutenant C. G. Morton, Sixth United States infantry, on duty with the National Guard, will be present as inspector and instructor. Second Lieutenant H. N. Royden, Twenty-third United States infantry, will be instructor in guard duty.

The regimental team will consist of seven men and two substitutes. The ranges will be 200, 500 and 600 yards. The position will be standing, off-hand, at 200 yards, prone at 500 and any at 600 yards.

The contests will include company team matches, inspectors, commissioned officers and revolver matches. The signal corps may compete in company team matches. Five prizes will be given to winning teams in each regiment in the company matches and suitable prizes to all winners.

League Clubs Must Pay Assessment.

Detroit, July 16.—The new executive committee of the National Republican league held its annual meeting yesterday. The Auditorium hotel, Chicago, was continued as headquarters of the league. It was decided to levy an assessment on each state of $2 per head, according to the representation of the respective state leagues in the national conventions. The assessments are to be paid not later than Nov. 1. Secretary Dowling said that the committee could assess till doomsday, but it would never be paid. No New England states excepting Rhode Island had ever paid assessments. Few Southern or Western states had paid. Most of those present, however, assumed responsibility for payment of their state assessments. The secretary's salary was raised to $3600. It was voted that no state which failed to pay its assessment would be entitled to representation in the next convention.

Increase In Postal Receipts.

Washington, July 16.—The comparative figures of postal receipts at the 30 largest postoffices in the country show a net increase of $17,346 for the three months ending June 30 last, over the corresponding quarter of last year. The gross proceeds for this year's quarter amount to $8,194,968. Ten offices, however, show decreases aggregating $98,094. The largest decrease, 9 per cent, was at Toledo, and the largest increase, 8 7-10ths per cent, at Washington. The New York postoffice increased its receipts by $26,027; San Francisco, $5788, and Boston, $16,078, while Chicago decreased $22,762; Philadelphia, $30,800, and St. Louis, $27,527.

New Revenue Cutter a Success.

Boston, July 16.—Under the most favorable weather conditions yesterday the new revenue cutter Daniel Manning proved herself to be a valuable addition to the revenue marine by making an average of nearly 17 knots an hour in a four-hour speed test in Massachusetts bay.

Constitution Going Into Drydock.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 16.—Arrangements have been made to dock the old historic ship Constitution at the navy yard on Saturday. It will be the first time the old ship has been docked for 15 years. Orders have been received to have her ready to be towed to Boston by Sept. 1.

A DISPATCH on the first page today reports a $20,000 fire at Hyde Park to have taken place yesterday afternoon. Reading of large fires in neighboring towns reminds us again that Quincy has a very efficient fire department or else the city is very, very fortunate. It is some years since Quincy has had to ask outside aid, and we have had no large fires. Yet Hyde Park with a steamer from Milton and two from Dorchester lost $20,000 in the day time. Quincy may not be as fortunate when the circumstances are the same here as they were in Hyde Park, for the department there was at a fire in another part of the town. With the apparatus of the Quincy station at Houghs Neck or Squantum, or even in Atlantic, Wollaston or West Quincy, a fire in City Square might result in a conflagation. The new station at Norfolk Downs should be located so as to give Quincy Centre additional protection.

SEWER WORK.

Work Begun on Copeland Street—Next Week at Squantum.

At a meeting of the Sewer Commissioners held Thursday evening the contract for building the Copeland street section of the sewer was signed by T. H. & G. M. Bryne of Hyde Park, whose bid was $5,432.

Messrs. Bryne will commence operations at once and in fact are at work today getting some of their material upon the ground.

Next Monday work will be commenced laying the force main from the Squantum end and will work toward the end of the main now laid to Norfolk Downs. This is done so as to get the mains laid before the street railway tracks are put in.

Water for Germantown.

The water department is laying about 7000 feet of 8 and 10 inch pipe from the junction of Palmer and Sea streets to Germantown. There is some talk of extending the pipes across the river to Quincy Point and connect with the main at that point. As it is now, if any accident should happen to the Quincy Point main it would cause serious trouble as the Quincy & Boston power station uses a large amount of water but with a pipe laid across the river from Germantown the Point district would have two means of supply.

Wollaston Race Tomorrow.

The second club race of the Wollaston yacht club will be sailed Saturday. At 2.30 the preparatory gun will be fired from the judge's yacht. Five minutes later starting gun for 2d class will be fired. This will also be preparatory gun for 3d class. Five minutes later starting gun for 3d class. This will also be preparatory gun for 4th class. Five minutes later starting gun for 4th class. Either course No. 1 or 2 will be sailed, and repeat, the distance being seven miles.

With the Cadets.

The practice march and skirmish drill contemplated at the camp of the Cadets on Thursday was postponed until today that the team shoots might take place. Co. D scored 378, Co. B. and Co. A 365 each and Co C but 313. In the afternoon there was a battalion drill and at 6 o'clock the usual dress parade. It was a delightful day and there was a large attendance of ladies. A sham fight outside the grounds will be one of the events today.

It is well for tourists to understand the danger of prolonged exposure to the sun in very hot weather. NOWLAND--GANNETT.

Brilliant Church Wedding at Wollaston Last Evening.

Daisies From Maine Used Largely in Decorations.

The Bridal Chorus Sung by Eighteen Young Lady Friends.

One of the prettiest weddings ever solemnized at Wollaston was that of Miss Caroline Belle Gannett, daughter of Deacon and Mrs. Howard Gannett, and Mr. James Martin Nowland, master of the Adams School, Quincy. The ceremony took place at the First Baptist church on Thursday evening at eight o'clock.

The floral decoration of the church were strikingly beautiful, daisies being the prevailing flower, they having been brought from Mr. Nowland's home in Maine. The monogram composed of the letters G and N., which was on the wall at the rear of the pulpit added greatly to the effect.

Before the bridal procession entered the church eighteen young ladies, friends of the bride, who were to sing the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, entered the auditorium by the chapel door, and, as the organist, Mr. Charles A. Pinkham played, slowly marched down the left, and up the right aisle to their places in the choir seats.

The bridal procession then entered, the choir singing the "Bridal Chorus" with organ accompaniment, the ushers,—Mr. E. Frank Southworth, Mr. Walter E. Burke, Mr. Howard Gannett, Jr., and Mr. Edwin Lovett Gannett, leading. They were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Leila Helen Sprague of Cambridge, who wore a yellow figured organdie made over white, with a low square neck, trimmed with a fluffy ruche of white mouseline de soie with daisies trailed through it, carrying a bunch of daisies in her hand. Following the maid of honor came the little flower girl Marjorie Seeley Gould, who is but four years old, and then the bride. She was gowned in a beautiful white brocaded silk cut en-traine, trimmed with lace and over all a tulle veil, carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was leaning upon the arm of her father.

The bridal procession was met at the altar by the bridegroom, his best man, Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting of Quincy, and the Rev. Preston Gurney, the pastor of the society.

After the Divine blessing had been invoked there was a response sung by the choir.

Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played as the wedding party left the church, the chorus also marching out.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Warren avenue. The bridal party was assisted in receiving by Deacon and Mrs. Howard Gannett, and Dr. George D. Nowland and Miss Mary Nowland, brother and sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Nowland will enjoy a wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec, thence passing the rest of the season in Maine.

Liable for Military Duty.

It may be interesting to know, in case Japan should decide to go to war with Uncle Sam, how many there are in Quincy of military age, viz.: between 18 and 45 years, liable to be drafted. These facts have to be ascertained and returned by the assessors every year. This year the returns of the assessors show the number to be 4,511. By wards the number is as follows:

Ward One,	740
Ward Two,	552
Ward Three, precinct one,	474

The Naval Brigade.

Today's programme of the naval brigade on the Massachusetts, in the harbor, includes target practice out to sea, followed by the sham attack on Lovell's island in the afternoon. If time allows the men will be drilled in the boats. On account of the rough weather the men have not had as much as they should in this kind of work. Gov. Wolcott is expected on the Minnesota about 2 P. M. He is expected to present the punch bowl to the Massachusetts on behalf of the Massachusetts naval brigade. In case he does not do it, the duty will fall on Capt. J. W. Weeks of the Minnesota.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Another fine day.

This is the warmest day of the week.

L. M. Pratt & Co. advertise a reduction in flour.

The Lyons Granite Co. is adding another turning lathe.

Miss Annie Ago of Atlantic has gone to Winthrop on a short visit.

Julius Johnston has sold a house on Cranch street to Victor Johnson.

Miss Maud Rice of Prospect street has gone to Provincetown on her vacation.

Warmer weather is predicted with 90 degree temperature on Saturday and Sunday.

It is expected that about a dozen yachts will participate in the cruise of of the Quincy club Saturday.

Brown's Brigade band will give another of its popular open-air concerts in City Square Saturday evening.

A. Hollis White of Braintree will be one of the party of Lieut. Peary, soon to start on another Arctic exploration.

Mrs. John Fitzpatrick of South Weymouth is the guest of Mr. Stephen Edwards of Walnut street, Atlantic.

The gale robbed Mr. Larkin of Atlantic of a large peach tree well loaded with fruit, and Mr. Horton of Appleton street also lost a fine tree.

The condition of John P. Lovell, who is ill at Cottage City, is critical, and there are grave doubts as to his recovery. His right side is paralyzed. He remains partially conscious, but is very weak.

Mrs. Dennis T. Ford had the misfortune Thursday morning to lose a pocket-book containing some $20 in money. Mrs. Ford has been in ill health for some time, and the loss at this time is particularly hard.

Do not start on your vacation without calling at the LEDGER office and ordering the paper sent you while away. It will be more interesting to you than when at home, and keep you posted in home happenings.

Rev. E. C. Butler of the First church will preach on Boston Common Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. These popular open air services are held under the auspices of the Benevolent Fraternity of Churches, on the Charles street mall, ninth tree north of the tile walk. The Rev. Benjamin R. Bulkley of Chicago, Ill., will also speak; singing, led by cornet and chorus.

Hodenosaunee tribe of Red Men of Wollaston adopted three palefaces Thursday evening. Visitors were present from South Braintree and Boston. Friday Nahanton tribe of South Braintree and Hodenosaunee tribe go to Middleboro to attend the raising up of chiefs. Leaving Wollaston at 6.15 and connect at South Braintree with 6.15 train from Boston. Return by barge to Brockton with Pequot and Massapoag tribe.

About 200 attended a delightful lawn party at the pretty residence of Mr. George Macfarlane on Merry Mount road Thursday evening, and the grounds looked unusually attractive with numerous Chinese lanterns. It was under the auspices of the Ladies' circle of Bethany Congregational church. There was music by a hurdy gurdy, boating on the pond, dancing in the barn, and a sale of fancy goods, ice cream, lemonade, candy, etc.

—You never know how important a thumb is until you lose it. A turner lost his thumb in a planing-mill, and soon afterward discovered that he could not work with any skill. Instead of sitting down in despair or hunting up another occupation, this man set about repairing the defect in a practical way. He rigged onto his hand a leather thumb stuffed with cotton and hardened at the end. The experiment proved a big success, and the leather thumb, while not entirely replacing the original, is so thoroughly under his control that he is working as well as ever on the lathe.

—An Alabama paper says that an enterprising Yankee book agent is making a barrel of money in Alabama. He came from Connecticut, and has been selling books chiefly to negroes. He soon came to appreciate the enthusiasm of the negro in matters of religion. He found that in all the illustrated Bibles the pictures of the angels were in white, and he conceived the idea of having a Bible made for the colored race, filled to overflowing with pictures of negro angels. The books cost him about $1.10, but he placed the first large shipment at $8 each, payable $2.50 cash, the balance in monthly payments. He is selling the Bibles as fast as he can get them delivered.

NEW Y. M. C. A. ROOMS.

Association Contemplates Lease of Old Court Room.

Will Occupy All of the Second and Third Floors.

The Location More Central and More Roomy.

The Quincy Young Men's Christian Association which has occupied rooms in the Street Railway building on Washington street for several years, is considering the advisability of moving to new quarters in the old Court Room building on Hancock street, owned by Henry H. Faxon.

The matter was discussed at the meeting of the directors held Tuesday evening, and it will probably be definitely settled this week.

The rooms in the Court Room building which the association will occupy, if it is decided to move, will be seven in number, and will include the court room, the two rooms in the rear formerly used as the judge's and clerk's room; the two front rooms, one of which is now occupied as a barber shop, and the room recently occupied by Herbert M. Federhen, Jr.; and the two front rooms on the upper floor.

While the rooms in the Court rooms may not be quite as pleasant as those now occupied by the association they will be very convenient and the floor space if anything will exceed that of the present rooms.

The Association has been tenants of the Street Railway building ever since it was built, it being planned for its convenience. But the association has no hall for entertainments and is often crowded on special occasions.

The new location is regarded as more central and may be the site some day of a grand new Y. M. C. A. building, such as the Quincy Association needs.

Salem Willows.

Some of the members of the Universalist society and friends had on Thursday a very enjoyable time at Salem Willows. It was a most delightful day, and the party one of the jolliest. They left Quincy at 8 10 and took a special street car direct for the Willows at Scollay Square, Boston, a few minutes past nine. There were about fifty ladies and gentlemen; mostly ladies, but just enough gentlemen to keep the fair sex on their good behavior.

The car was just full; all finding a comfortable seat, and away they went. Passing through Charlestown, Chelsea, Revere, Lynn, Peabody and Salem, the party arrived at the beautiful pleasure resort about half past eleven.

Soon after reaching the Willows it was announced that dinner, which had been previously engaged, was ready at Chase's pavilion; and a most excellent one it proved to be. No doubt the appetites had been somewhat sharpened by the exhiliating air and the long ride, some eighteen miles from Boston; but one thing is sure they did good justice to the dinner, and can compliment Mr. Chase and his obliging waiters for its excellent service.

After dinner the party were allowed to go in swimming or wander about the attractive grounds as their inclination directed.

The usual summer attractions are found at this seaside resort, and the few hours the party had to stop were most pleasantly spent. At four o'clock they left for Quincy, where they arrived at quarter past seven, delighted with the day's outing. The following are the names of many who went. A few, we think, are accidently skipped, as the number does not bold out:

Mrs. Ira Litchfield, Mrs. Joseph W. Lombard, Mrs. Allen, Rev. and Mrs. E W. Preble, Mrs. C. A. Winslow, Mrs. Mark Hanson, Misses Hanson, Mrs. Joseph T. French, Mrs. Marshall P. Nye, Mrs. Frederick Hardwick, Mrs. Price Hardwick, Miss Eliza Crane, Mrs. Emily Blake, Miss Blake, Mrs. George Floyd, Mrs. Daniel B. Hayden, Miss Delory, Mrs. Curtis.

Plymouth's Festival.

"Old Plymouth Days" will picture at the pageant which will be seen in the historic town on July 28 31 and Aug. 2 and 3. Among the pictures will be "The Pilgrims in Captivity in Boston, England," "The Embarkation," "English Holiday Festivities," "The Mayflower at Anchor," "Landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock," "Treaty with the Indians," "A Tea Party of 1760," "The Flag." The beautiful old Winslow house will be open to the public, and the Crow house will also be on exhibition.

—The Gold Democracy has decided to make State nominations this fall. The convention will be held in September.

Birds Protected.

It is now against the law to use birds' bodies or feathers in millinery, and Massachusetts milliners and dealers in birds will receive at once from the office of Chief Wade of the state police a circular containing a copy of the act passed by the last state legislature.

Chief Wade says that the law is a good one, and will undoubtedly have a good effect. He will prosecute its enforcement with his usual good judgment, and, besides the circulars which have been sent out as above stated, the members of the state police in all sections of Massachusettf have also had the text of the law called to their attention.

The new law is chapter 524, acts of 1897, and reads as follows: "Whoever has in his possession the body or feathers of any bird whose taking or killing is prohibited by section 4 of chapter 276 of the acts of the year 1896, or wears such feathers for the purpose of dress or ornament, shall be punished as provided in said section; provided that this act shall not be construed to prohibit persons having the certificate provided for in said section, from taking or killing such birds; and provided further, that this act shall not apply to natural history associations or to the proprietors of museums, or other collections for scientific purposes."

The penality provided under the law of 1896 is a fine of $10.

Senator Roe of Worcester is the father of this new law and Senator Hoar is said to have written the petition under which the original bill was drawn.

The petition which was addressed to the great and general court of Massachusetts was unique and read as follows:

"We, the song-birds of Massachusetts and their playfellows," reads the document, "make this, our humble petition. We know more about you than you think we do. We know how good you are. We have hopped on your roofs and looked in at the windows of the houses you have built for poor and sick and hungry people, and little lame and deaf and blind children. Every year we fly a great way over the country, keeping all the time where the sun is bright and warm. And we know that whenever you do anything the other people all over this great land between the seas and the great lakes find it out, and pretty soon will try to do the same. We know. We know."

—The axle on a motor car of the Nantasket Beach railroad broke last night about 6 o'clock near the Pemberton. It was on the train which connected with the 5.20 train from Boston. The car jumped the track and the passengers were shaken up, but no one was injured.

—Joseph Levins of Boston was struck by an electric car at Nantasket Thursday and died at the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston.

—Rev. Watson Ward was installed Thursday as pastor of the First Unitarian church at Duxbury. The sermon was by Rev. L. W. Sprague of Boston.

CURED

I was a sufferer from an attack of complicated kidney disease in its most severe form, that I was forced to give up my situation, and was unable to perform work of any kind for a period of six months. I was advised to use Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills, and after taking three boxes I was completely cured of one of the most intense and painful troubles a person was ever afflicted with. I am now a well man with never a slightest indication of its reappearance. I cheerfully advise all sufferers to use Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills, knowing that the result will always prove my experience, a permanent and speedy cure. HOUGHS NECK.

Boat Capsized and a Narrow Escape —Newsy Personals.

Last evening a yacht containing two men capsized near the foot of Bird street. The men are said to have had a narrow escape from drowning, but their names and particulars could not be obtained.

Very fine days lately and city visitors very plentiful. A great many wheelmen taking advantage of hot weather. More arrivals.

The Eventide house on Sea street has a great many new arrivals: Mr. and Mrs. Charles of Sharon; Mr. Simmons and family of Waltham; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jollinson of Boston; Mr. W. A. Dunham and family of Quincy, and Mrs. A. J. Caldwell of Everett.

Mr. R. M. Brown and family of Quincy have leased the Mayfourth for remainder of the summer.

Mr. Oscar Phelan from Dorchester is a guest of Mr. Henry French at the Saints' Rest on Winthrop street.

Miss Mabel Leavitt of Dorchester, is a guest of Mr. L. F. Hoey at the Bo-Peep, for a few days.

The moonlight party which was to leave last night for Highland Lake, Brockton, was postponed until next Tuesday night.

Mr. George Cary, one of the clerks at the Brockton National bank, sailed from Scituate to Houghs Neck, Wednesday, during the gale, in his 21-foot boat. When within three miles of his summer home a dense fog came up and he was obliged to remain at anchor until it lifted at night. It was a thrilling experience.—Brockton Enterprise.

Mr. Arthur Gardner of Brockton was a guest of Mrs. Emery at the Loretto Thursday.

A game of ball was played by two picked nines of young men from the Neck on Thursday in Littlefield's field.

Here is a hint for the young sun-burnt people at the Neck: water as hot as can be borne will take the sting from sun-burn; then cold cream will heal it.

Mr. William Moebs of Roxbury was a guest at the Delmonte cottage.

Mr. Mears' float was left in a very poor condition after the storm the other day.

The next thing on the programme is Illumination day.

Mr. George E. Gillepsie of Boston will soon arrive at his cottage on Manet Beach.

Mrs. Willard and daughter Ida have returned to Centreville after a week's stay.

Campello people have heard of the great success of Elmer D. Gilbert at cod fishing at Houghs Neck, and the fish will soon have to take it.

Brown's Brigade band will give a concert at Houghs Neck tonight.

The hurdy gurdy dancing parties at Costello's Casino, Houghs Neck, are all the rage and another large party from Quincy, Weymouth, and Braintree was present Thursday night. Prof. Antonio who presides at the hurdy gurdy is certainly an artist in his line.

Civil Trial List.

The following cases are marked for trial at the civil session of the District court next Tuesday:

123—Thorpe vs. Morgan.
142—Crane, et al vs. Kennian and tr.
122—Bennett vs. Harriman.

TODAY'S COURT.

Cornelius Harding was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

William Jacobs was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

Darius W. Gilbert, who was arraigned Thursday for cruelty to a horse at Cohasset, was discharged.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

MILTON.

No clew has as yet been obtained of the parties who entered the residence of John Graham and stole $80 in money.

John P. S. Churchill, clerk of the district court at Quincy, is at his Milton residence for the summer.

Although the matter of a street railway from East Milton to Mattapan has been allowed to quiet down for the present, it has not been abandoned and will soon be revived.

William Ordwey Partridge, the well known sculptor, has several figures under way.

Maguire & O'Heron, the East Milton granite manufacturers, report that business seems to be looking up a little.

John Graham desires to handle Uncle Sam's mail matter at East Milton and hopes to receive the appointment.

Vacations among the permament men of the fire and police departments have commenced.

Work on the Memorial volume to be presented to Mr. Hiram W. Tuell by his graduates of the Milton High school is fast nearing completion.

If there is any one time of the year when things are quiet at Milton it is during the summer month when many of its residents are away for the hot season.

Selectmen J. Walter Bradlee is at his cottage at Rock Island for the summer.

Gordon's Rest.

The King's Daughters of Massachusetts assumed charge of "Gordon's Rest" at Hanson on Thursday. It is a vacation home for working women with board at $3 per week. It was formerly dedicated to their service "In His Name. The affair was a sort of all-day picnic and outing as well, and large parties were present from Plymouth, Quincy, Hingham, the Weymouths, Hyde Park and Boston. During the morning they enjoyed boat rides on the lake, from which they gathered the fragrant pond lilies; rambles in the woods, or remained on the lawn, where were several tents in which refreshments and fancy articles were sold.

The Eatons.

The Eaton family association held its first meeting Thursday in Tremont Temple. There was an attendance of about forty members of the family, comprising descendants of John Eaton of Haverhill, who landed in this country in 1640; Francis Eaton, who came over in the Mayflower; Jonas Eaton of Reading (1640); John Eaton of Dedham (1640), and Theo. Eaton, the first governor of Connecticut. The object of the resumption of the reunions is to continue the genealogical work which has been already done in the interests of the Eaton Family association.

Thrilling News.

It is difficult at this day to realize what the excitement must have been, both in the world at large and among the medical profession, on the discovery of ether. The late Sir Benjamin Richardson, in his "Vita Medica," gives an account of the commotion which prevailed in the medical college at Glasgow when the news reached the physicians of the city.

According to custom, a large class was seated in the college theater, waiting for the midday lecture. The professor, Dr. Moses Buchanan, was always scrupulously punctual, but minute after minute went by and he did not appear. Finally he came, but only to say, to the students' great surprise, that there would be no lecture that day. He had, he announced, a wonderful piece of news to tell—the fact that a method had been discovered through which surgical operations could be performed without pain.

"I am," said he, "on my way to the Royal infirmary to take part there in the trial of the new system, and by and by we shall all meet to learn if the news which has reached us is really true. If it be, this day is a red letter day in all our lives."

The announcement created the greatest excitement, and all the students trooped off at once to the Royal infirmary. There Professor Andrew Buchanan, who was to perform the operation, stepped forward and repeated the news which had come from the Massachusetts hospital and described the process so far as he knew it. The patient was then sent for, and he came in quite smilingly, rather proud of being the first man in Scotland to enjoy the honor and good fortune of being cut without pain.

The usual programme followed. He laughed, wept and went through the gamut of emotions produced by ether, but he finally sank to sleep, and the operation was brilliantly performed.

A Beautiful Thought.

Michael Minot, a French preacher, who died in Paris in 1518, was noted for his eccentricities in the pulpit and the rapidity with which he changed from humor to pathos, from the commonplace to the beautiful. "There were once pillories for swearers," he said on a certain occasion, "but if the law were enforced now two-thirds of the empire would be in the stocks and there would be the child of 5 years and the dotard of 80, who has only two teeth remaining to fling out an oath." Changing suddenly to denounce those who neglected the aged parents who had cherished them in prosperity, he said: "See the trees flourish and recover their leaves! It is their root that has produced all, but when the branches are loaded with flowers and fruits they yield nothing to the root. This is an image of those children who prefer their own amusement and to game away their own fortunes to giving their old parents the care which they want."—New York Ledger.

—Brockton anticipates a tax rate of $21 this year.

STORY OF A TRAMP.

Gave a Watch For a Ride and a Diamond For a Chew.

An Erie railway detective gave information to the Cleveland police the other night of a remarkable character who is evidently beating his way toward that city. A conductor of a freight train told this detective that his train was standing on a side track 40 miles from Cleveland when the head brakeman, who was walking upon the roof of a car, discovered a man on the bumpers. He was fairly well dressed and carried a satchel.

"Where are you going?" was the question.

"Cleveland," replied the stranger.

"Not on this train," retorted the brakeman. "'Rattlers' don't carry passengers."

Then the stranger, seeing that he was about to be "ditched," as the language of the hobo expresses it, opened the satchel while the brakeman gazed in silent astonishment. According to the latter, there were watches, diamonds and jewelry of the richest type lying in the half filled valise.

"Rattlers don't carry passengers, don't they?" remarked the tramp, at the same time handing the brakeman a beautiful timepiece.

"Just punch my ticket, will you?" requested the man with the satchel, "and if you happen to have a chew of tobacco about your clothes hand it down and accept my compliments."

Then the stranger passed up a brilliant diamond stud in return for the tobacco, which the brakeman mutely "handed down." Going to his conductor, the brakeman told the story, and the two trainmen arrived at the conclusion that a jewelry store had been robbed somewhere along the line. Meantime the train pulled out, but slowed down at Mantua station, where the man who could afford to exchange a diamond stud for a chew of tobacco jumped from the bumpers and disappeared into an adjacent wood.—Exchange.

OUTRAGE ON A HERMIT.

Men Attempt to Rob the Lightkeeper on Brown's Island.

Meager details of a fiendish outrage and robbery on Samuel Burnell, the hermit, and for years the government lightkeeper at Brown's island, have been received. Burnell lives alone in a cabin on the West Virginia shore opposite the foot of the island, and it has been reported for years that he had a large amount of money secreted there.

The other morning at daylight, after Burnell had returned from tending his lamps, he found his cabin in possession of three men who had ransacked everything and found nothing, and in their rage they pounced on the venerable lightkeeper and beat him almost unconscious. They tied Burnell to a tree and threatened to burn him if he did not disclose where his money was. Burnell offered them 85 cents, which he said was all he had, and showed them where his bankbook was, in evidence that his money was not secreted there. The men tied a sheet over his head and body and after pouring oil on the sheet threatened to set fire to it, but for some reason they did not carry out their purpose, leaving with a threat that they would be back in an hour. Burnell managed to work loose and get to a farmhouse some distance away in an exhausted condition.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sacrificed Herself to Love.

Hortense Monteverde will be tried for perjury in Brooklyn, and in this lies a romantic story. She came from the Pyrenees ten years ago and became a newsgirl, selling papers at the Broadway ferries in Brooklyn, where three years ago she met William J. Vance, 84 years old.

Vance was married, but he and Hortense, it is declared, were married on Nov. 7, 1895, at the rectory of St. Barnabas' church, in Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. Cartwright performing the ceremony before witnesses. They lived together for a time, and a child was born to Hortense. Vance then deserted her, and, she alleges, was cruel to her. She complained several times in court. Mrs. Vance, however, has now had him arrested for bigamy, and Hortense has declared to the grand jury he is not her husband, and on this lies the charge of perjury.

Getting Rid of Mormons.

A band of Mormon elders has been in Taylor county, Fla., for over six months working quietly in remote sections. A party of 18 men, well armed, recently visited their camp, and, after stripping the preachers, gave them a dose of "birch bark" and one of them a partial coat of tar and feathers. They then escorted them to the limits of the county and assured them that if they were heard from again lead would be given them instead of this milder punishment. The elders re-established their camp across the county lines, and eight women left their homes and went with them, all intending to move to Utah soon.

A Most Serious Enterprise.

New York city now contains 360 square miles. It is twice as large as the District of Columbia and about one fourth of the area of the state of Rhode Island. The city, it will be perceived, is porportionately as big in territory as in population. The management of this great municipality is the most serious undertaking which has yet been ventured upon by the people of this continent.—Philadelphia Record.

A Rich Farmer as Consul.

Church Howe of Nebraska, who has been nominated by President McKinley for consul general at Apia, Samoa, was a member of the famous Sixth Massachusetts regiment, which was mobbed at Baltimore on its way to the front. He is a wealthy farmer and has been prominent in Nebraska affairs for 25 years.

New Eldorado.

San Francisco, July 16.—H. A. Stanley, president of the Binghamton (N. Y.) Evening Herald company, writes from St. Michael's island that the richest gold strike the world has ever known was made in the Klondyke region last August and September, but the news did not get even to Circle City until Dec. 15, when there was a great stampede over the 300 miles intervening between there and the newer fields. Those who made the 300 miles first struck it richest. Of all the 200 claims staked out on the Bonanza and Eldorado creeks not one has proven a blank. Equally rich finds were made on Dominion Creek. Not less than 300 claims have been staked out on Indian Creek, and the surface indications are that these are as rich as any of the others. In all 75 lucky miners have reached St. Michaels. Their piles range from $5000 to $175,000.

A Remarkable Petition.

Washington, July 16.—General George A. Forsythe, U. S. A., retired, is the author of a remarkable petition, which was presented to the house of representatives by Mr. Belknap of Illinois. The petition prays the house to strike the sugar schedule from the tariff bill. The most scathing arraignment of the sugar trust thus far made before congress is conveyed in the statements set forth by General Forsythe.

Site Selected For Hooker Statue.

Boston, July 16.—At a meeting of the executive council, held yesterday, an order was adopted that the equestrian statue of General Joseph Hooker be placed in the circle at the northeast corner of the state house grounds, and that the state house construction commissioners be requested to prepare a suitable foundation for it.

Manslaughter Verdict Set Aside.

Montpelier, Vt., July 16.—The verdict of the lower court by which Martin and Sarah Nokes were convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of the illegitimate child of Emma Jones in the town of Worcester a year ago last June, tried at the fall term of the Washington county court, was set aside by the supreme court sitting here yesterday and the case sent back for retrial. This action is taken on the exceptions made to the charge of Judge Ross to the jury.

Bryan's Latest Epigram.

Salt Lake City, July 16.—The trans-Mississippi congress met here yesterday with a large attendance. Hon. William J. Bryan, president of the congress, was in the chair. As he entered the hall he was enthusiastically cheered. Mr. Bryan made a speech, in the course of which he said: "We will rear a people in the great West that will stand for American liberty and American progress."

OFFENSIVE ALLIANCE.

Report That Japan and Spain Have Combined Against America.

Annexation of Cuba or Hawaii to Be Prevented.

Declaration of War Will Follow Attempt---Discredited at Washington.

London, July 16.—A dispatch from Paris to a news agency here says that investigation at the American embassy there has elicited a confirmation of the rumor that the governments of Spain and Japan have arranged an offensive alliance against the United States.

The terms of the understanding, which is for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii, provide that in the event of an actively aggressive movement on the part of the United States tending toward interference in Cuban affairs or persistence in the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, both Spain and Japan shall declare war simultaneously against the United States, and shall make hostile demonstrations along both the Atlantic and Pacific coast lines of that country.

Improbable, Says Day.

Washington, July 16.—Little credence is placed in official circles here in the statement that the Spanish and Japanese governments have entered into an offensive alliance against the United States for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii. Secretary Sherman was indisposed when a reporter called at his house last night, but Mr. Day, the first assistant secretary, discredited the report, and regarded it as too improbable to discuss. "The state department has no information concerning the reported alliance," he said, "and I don't believe there is any foundation for the statement that one has been entered into."

Both the Spanish and the Japanese ministers are away from the city.

Premier to Consult Queen Regent.

Madrid, July 16.—Senor Canovas Del Castillo, the premier, will go to San Sebastian today to confer with the queen regent on the relations between Spain and the United States and other questions. It is understood that an interesting and delicate correspondence has lately passed between the Spanish and American governments regarding Cuba.

Goelet Is Indignant.

New York, July 16.—A copyright special to The World from London says: "I would rather see my daughter in her grave than contract such a marriage," said Mr. Ogden Goelet to a close friend, referring to the report that Miss Goelet was engaged, or about to be betrothed, to the young Duke of Manchester. His vexation is not hard to understand. The duke has been very wild, and has given great trouble to his family and to the estate trustees. The other night he dined with Mrs. Langtry and a very gay party at the Savoy. His financial affairs are in such disorder that only a few weeks ago he remarked to some one that he would have to marry an Astor or a Vanderbilt or throw up the sponge. On one point every one is agreed; that is, that Miss Goelet will do exactly as she likes in the matter. At the same time, it is difficult to imagine any young, bright girl falling in love with this young duke. He is below the medium in stature, his white face is covered with pimples, he has not even the knack of being well dressed, and is familiarly known in society as "Kimon." Because of his exalted rank he goes to most of the aristocratic houses, but he is not popular with the ladies.

Beresford to the Colonies.

London, July 16.—Lord Charles Beresford has written a letter in reference to the offer of the Cape Colony to present a first-class battleship to Great Britain, in which he deprecates the fact that the colonies are hurrying to imitate the Cape, because, as he says, in the event of war strategic reasons might require the removal of the fleet from colonial waters, leaving the colonies open to hostile attacks, and this might cause soreness and misunderstanding on the part of the officials of the colonies which had contributed to the purpose of the ironclads. It would be much better, says Lord Beresford, for the colonies to provide well fortified and equipped naval bases where a fleet could be repaired and refitted in the shortest possible time. The increasing of such bases would do more to strengthen the empire than the enlargement of the fleet, and Lord Beresford thinks it would have been wiser to spend £1,000,000 in making the Cape more efficient as a naval base.

To Furnish Light For Portland.

Portland, Me., July 16.—It is given out that a company has been organized to furnish electric light and power for this city and for the erection of a big paper mill on the Presumptscot river at Gorham. The principals in the deal are F. J. Collier, the well-known paper manufacturer of Hudson, N. Y.; Charles B. Brown of the Indurated Fibre company of Boston and George W. Brown, manager of the Belknap Motor company of this city. These gentlemen have secured an option on the Great Falls and Rockameecook powers on the Presumptscot river, which have a capacity of 5000 horse power. They also claim to have secured an old franchise charter, which gives them the right to furnish light and power to patrons in this city. Mr. Collier will remove his paper mill from Hudson to Gorham, which will be able to produce from 10 to 15 tons daily of paper.

Cadets Enjoying Good Weather.

Hingham, Mass., July 16.—After two days of inclement weather the cadets appreciated the bright sun yesterday and made the most of it, showing the best work of the week. Colonel Edmands had intended putting the corps through a practice march and skirmish drill, but it was postponed, owing to the fact that the company match had not been shot. The company team shoot took place and was won by D company by a score of 378. A company and B company were tied for second place with 365, and C company was forth with 313. A large number of ladies visited the camp and witnessed the battalion drill and the dress parade at sunset.

ARBITRATORS HOPEFUL.

Two Leading Coal Operators Head List of Signers to Uniform Agreement.

Pittsburg, July 16.—Yesterday was devoted to hard work on the part of the joint arbitration commission in their efforts to secure true uniformity in this district as suggested by W. P. De Armitt, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the progress made. Two of the largest operators in the district, W. P. De Armitt and Francis L. Robbins, have consented to head the list, and the commissioners feel satisfied that the other operators will soon fall in line.

It is claimed by the miners' officials, however, that the understanding was that the agreement meant 95 per cent of the output of the district, whereas it is now said to mean 95 per cent of the operators. They say it will be absolutely impossible to get 95 per cent of the operators, as there are a great many operators mining on a small scale. President Dolan said that while he would do all in his power to assist the commissioners in securing the signatures of the operators to the agreement, he thought the proposition was a scheme of President De Armit's to keep his men at work and prolong the strike.

General Little of the Ohio arbitration board said that every obstacle had been removed in the way of a settlement along the lines proposed, and that he had not heard of any operators who would not sign.

Commissioner Edward Ridgely and Horace Calef of Illinois have gone to Chicago to see Colonel W. P. Rend and J. W. Ellsworth, and if possible induce Colonel Rend to return to Pittsburg and use his influence among the operators to have the agreement signed.

L. P. McCormack of Indiana, another of the commissioners, left for Terre Haute this morning to see J. Smith Talley to secure his co-operation. Mr. Talley is a heavy purchaser of Pittsburg coal.

Last evening the commission sent a telegram to Senator Mark Hanna asking him to lend his assistance in having the agreement adopted.

Heading Off Organizers.

Cincinnati, July 16.—An important counter movement against the organizers of the United Mine Workers, now in West Virginia, was begun here yesterday by a conference of five operators in that state. They determined to give their miners an advance of 14 cents a ton above the present rates, and to make a corresponding increase in the price of coal at the mines. They have determined to ask all other operators in the state to do the same. It is the opinion of coal men here that their action will be approved by the other operators in the state. The price of coal at the mines is raised to $1.25 per ton.

DEADLOCK UNBROKEN.

Tariff Conference Still at Loggerheads on Wool and Sugar Schedules.

Dingley and Aldrich Confident of Final Agreement.

Democrats Embarrassed by Death of Senator Harris of Tennessee.

Washington, July 16.—The Republican conferees are still in deadlock over the tariff bill, because they have not got to the point of compromising the sugar schedule and agreeing on other important senate amendments in contest between the two houses which would promptly follow, for sugar is the key to the deadlock.

One of the house conferees said yesterday that they might never agree, or that if they agreed, their report might be rejected by either the senate or the house, and so there would be no tariff bill enacted at this session, and all the efforts of the administration and the labors of the senators and representatives would go for nothing.

The whole power of the administration has been exerted to pass a new tariff law at his session, which was called expressly for that purpose, and it is preposterous to suppose that the administration would let the bill fail at the end.

President McKinley expects an agreement on the conference report, and that at a comparatively early day, although he has about concluded that the bill will not reach him much before Aug. 1, and that he may not be able to go to Chicago next week to the unveiling of the General Logan monument, lest he should be needed here in connection with the tariff bill. President McKinley has given the conferees no specific advice about the schedules, but he has lost no opportunity to urge them to hurry up their work, so as to get through as soon as possible.

Senator Aldrich and Governor Dingley both agree that the conferees will be able to reach an agreement, and that there is no prospect that the tariff bill will fail. Although both have been standing out for their contentions on sugar and the other important contested matters, both realize that compromises will be necessary, and will be made, and that thus an agreement will be consummated which will stand the test of an actual vote in the two houses.

Yesterday was spent in considering minor details of the bill which have been passed over with an occasional reference to the differences on the sugar schedule, which is still the stumbling block. There was some discussion of a compromise on this schedule and the general impression about the senate was that the changed aspect in the committee was due to the fact that there was a more yielding disposition on the part of the representatives of both houses. Senators, not in the conference, but in close touch with the members of it, express the opinion that the contending factions are very near an adjustmnet which will compromise the differences on the sugar schedule.

On the house side, on the other hand, among those in close touch with the conferees it is asserted with the most positiveness that the house conferees have no intention of yielding anything to the senate on the sugar schedue, and the opinion is freely expressed that the deadlock will continue indefinitely until the senate yields. The house conferees they say know that they have practically the unanimous support of the house Republicans back of them in their contention for the house schedule, and, moreover, they claim that many of the senate Republicans agree with them on this point.

The tariff conference committee has made the discovery that there will be still further difficulty in arranging the wool schedule on account of the objections of the carpet manufacturers. It appears that while the makers of the more expensive grades of carpet gave their assent to the compromise of 4 and 8 cents, the makers of the cheaper carpets are not pleased, and ask that the rate on the lower grades of wool be reduced to 3 cents. The wool men are not willing to concede this demand. The worsted manufacturers are also making trouble over the senate amendment putting a double duty on wool of the second class, which may have been washed. Heretofore there has been no additional duty on the washed article, and it is claimed that the change will work a material hardship.

The Democratic side of the chamber is somewhat disturbed over the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Harris. "I fear," said Senator Jones of Arkansas, in discussing the question, "that the vacancy may, if not filled before the time, occasion no little embarrassment when we reach the vote on the conference report. It will be remembered," he continued, "that some of the articles on which we succeeded in reducing the rate of duty, as on white pine lumber, and on some which we succeeded in putting on the free list, we have had a majority of only one vote. Some of the other articles, as burlaps, cotton ties, paris green, etc., are of immense importance to the farmers, and it would be regrettable indeed from our standpoint, if the absence of a senator from Tennessee should cause us to lose any of them by giving the deciding vote to the vice president.

The senator said in reply to a question that he had heard nothing indicative of the intentions of the governor of Tennessee in the matter of the appointment

In the Senate.

Washington, July 16.—Pacific railway affairs occupied the attention of the senate throughout yesterday, and the Harris resolution relating to the pending judicial proceedings against the Union Pacific road finally went over until today. Early in the day Senators Stewart and White indulged in sharp personalities in connection with the contest over the San Pedro, Cal., deep water harbor. The joint resolution was passed accepting the invitation of France to participate in the Paris exposition of 1900.

A Large Attendance Today at the New Downer Landing.

A Long List of Sports the Attraction of the Day.

The tenth annual picnic and reunion of the Granite cutters and tool sharpeners of Quincy is being held at New Downer Landing today and is also being largely attended. Up to 10 o'clock nearly 1,000 had passed through the gates.

The picnic is being held in the private grove and the track affords an excellent place.

The sports began about eleven o'clock but the judges refuse to give out the result until the finish.

There are 21 events on the programme of games including a five-mile bicycle race for stone workers, an egg in ladle race, half mile race, girls' race, ladies' race, one mile open race, greased pig, one mile race, sports to conclude with a five mile bicycle race open to the world, for which two gold medals are offered as prizes.

Dancing is one of the chief attractions.

A Trolley Party.

Arrangements are about completed for a grand trolley party, in which the public are to be invited to participate. As now arranged cars of the Quincy & Boston street railway will leave Neponset bridge at 9 A. M. for a trip through Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Avon, Brockton and Taunton to New Bedford where the boat will be taken for Cottage City.

It is expected that the trip by trolley cars from Neponset bridge to New Bedford, which will be without change of cars, will consume about five hours, and the party will arrive at Cottage City about 3 o'clock.

The return from Cottage City will be made by boat to New Bedford thence by cars of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railraad to Quincy. The tickets for the round trip will probably be $1 50.

CHAPTER I.

Secrets of which naturalists have not dreamed lurk in the great dark swamps of the south. Mystery is always fascinating and never more so than when it is hedged with physical barriers. De Soto and Ponce de Leon were not the first men to feel the strange influence of those gloomy, vine tangled and moss matted forests whose trees stand ankle deep in stagnant water and whose very sounds are like audible expressions of silence. The red men had their legends, from the remotest sources, connecting the swamps with the most picturesque creations of their fancy and imagination. In fact, it is doubtful if any person who has spent much time in the low country of the south has quite escaped a very definite impression of the weird influence exerted by the gloom, the solemnity, the silence and the tangled intricacy of those plashy and dismal jungles of live oak, magnolia, cypress, cane and Spanish moss. The effect on the imagination is not elevating, nor is it, exactly speaking, depressing. At first one is repelled by the flat, heavy monotony; then follows a recognition of the awful sketch of mystery outlined in the shadows, the bewildering tangles and the funereal depths of those moss hung aisles, and finally one's imagination begins to find the stuff of which strange dreams are made, materials as insubstantial and airy as the blue film on the mountain, but as gloomy and dismal as the swamps themselves.

I have found it very interesting to study with minute care the effect this swamp influence has had upon persons who have been born and reared within the shadows of those jungles. There is a marked difference between the Cracker of the pine woods and the man of the swamps. The latter shows in his hollow cheeks, in his sallow, withered skin and in his pathetically melancholy eyes the strain of a lifelong fear, the worry of a gloomy anticipation. I am quite sure, however, that the swamp denizen is but obscurely conscious, if conscious at all, in most cases, of this torture of a constantly impending dread, and yet even the children, playing in cotton slipped freedom on the "knees" of the cypress trees, carry unmistakable traces of the hereditary swamp gloom in their bloodless faces.

But it was upon the negro slave under the old regime that those scowling and maleficent swamp jungles wrought their most peculiar effects, and the so called creole negroes were the especial victims of a superstition which, like some subtle malaria, crept by night out of those damp and almost impenetrable meshes of trees, vines, moss, water weeds and suffocating canebrakes to hover about the plantation cabins. It is true enough to say that those negroes were sunny natured and merry hearted, but it is quite as true to record the prevailing and persistent duskiness and desolateness, so to speak, of their superstition. Their songs were light, their laughter as gay as it was unrestrained, but song and laughter died on the edge of the swamp. The quill blower, that Pan of the African race, was upon every low country plantation, and his "quills," as the cane joints were called, came from the brakes along the sluggish swamp rivers. But the crude syrinx was never able to quite whistle away the fear of the jungle by night, notwithstanding the mad love of music, of even that simple sort, burning in the half savage breasts of the slaves. This Pan pipe of the plantation gave a peculiar semiclassical touch to negro life. It was, too, a singularly constant element where every other quantity was variable. The same melody sketches were fluted from Bayou Teche to the "bottoms" of the Savannah. But each plantation had its separate and sacred swamp superstition, if within the great swamp belt of the coast, and especially had each creole plantation its legend (in patois musical and picturesque) of some local preternatural phenomenon connected with the darkest tangles of the nearest swamp, and, to my mind at least, this patois, along with the touch of French realism it always bears, suggests a charming departure from the broader and coarser negro nature. Still, on the other hand, it is true that the creole low country negro is in many ways the inferior of the up country one. He is less civilized, more savage in his appetites, possessed of coarser passions, more easily influenced by external things. Perhaps it was the influence of the swamps that wrought this difference between the up country negro and his cousin of the low country. This must have been the case, for all the slaves sent into the far south at last came to the same level, either in themselves or in their offspring. The shadows of the swamps got into their imaginations.

The masters, especially those of Provencal origin, were touched with the same taint of superstition. Indeed the slaves may have caught it from their owners, in a certain degree, or the reverse may have been the case, for even the speech of the negro had begun to perceptibly affect the purity of that of his master before the advent of freedom. I mention Provencal planters because there were a few of them all around the gulf coast, and especially was their number noticeable in the southeastern angle of the Mississippi in the palmiest days of slavery, or about the time when the feud between the Coupcourts and the De Blieus, two old and mighty families, was at its highest pitch of bitterness and deadliness. Since the close of the war many of the old plantations in that great swamp region have been wholly deserted and nothing remains to tell where they once were save a young growth of close set trees and the scattered ruins of mansions and negro quarters. The De Blieu and Coupcourt feud ended in the year 1865, just as the great storm of war had at last ceased in the up country. It ended very strangely and, as befitted the predicament, with a singularly dramatic coup de main in the very heart of the swamp known as the Terre aux Loups-garous.

CHAPTER II.

It does not matter, so far as this story goes, when or why or how the Coupcourt-De Blieu feud began. Suffice it to say that during the decade immediately preceding the one crisis that I am about to describe no year passed without one or more fatal meetings between members of the warring families. At last the only male representatives left above earth to settle the feud were two young men, Toulme de Blieu and Jacques Coupcourt, both of whom were in France at school when their respective fathers, already grown old, met, fought and killed each other with due dignity and nerve.

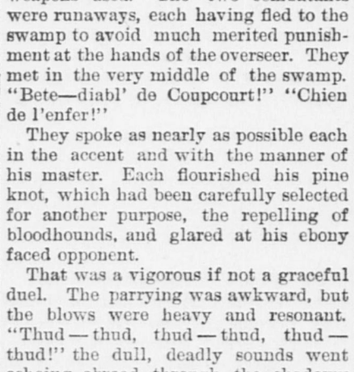

Of course Toulme and Jacques, upon receipt of a detailed account of this parental conflict and its tragic ending, hastened back to Mississippi with hearts burning for revenge. Toulme would kill Jacques, and Jacques would kill Toulme, which would end the feud. I say that both hastened back, but in fact Jacques failed to reach his destination, was shipwrecked and carried to western South America, had a long illness and many other hindrances, so that it was the old time year and a day before he appeared, weary and travel worn, but still full of fight, at his dear old plantation home and began to look about for Toulme de Blieu. Of course Toulme was not hard to find, for no sooner was it said that Jacques Coupcourt had returned than the last of the male De Blieus was in an ecstasy, a very rapture, of murderous emotion. Pistols were examined and knives put in good slashing and stabbing order.

This feud between the De Blieu and the Coupcourt families had, as a matter of course, extended to their slaves, but in the latter case the fights had usually been very noisy, but quite bloodless. One instance, however, had varied the monotony. Far back, in 1837 perhaps, a De Blieu negro of the name of Toussant had killed a Coupcourt negro of the name of Loup-garou. The fight had taken place in the swamp under peculiar circumstances, and pine knots were the weapons used. The two combatants were runaways, each having fled to the swamp to avoid much merited punishment at the hands of the overseer. They met in the very middle of the swamp. "Bete—diabl' de Coupcourt!" "Chien de l'enfer!"

They spoke as nearly as possible each in the accent and with the manner of his master. Each flourished his pine knot, which had been carefully selected for another purpose, the repelling of bloodhounds, and glared at his ebony faced opponent.

That was a vigorous if not a graceful duel. The parrying was awkward, but the blows were heavy and resonant. "Thud — thud, thud — thud, thud — thud!" the dull, deadly sounds went echoing abroad through the shadowy silence of the swamp. The owls awoke and hooted, the big woodpeckers quit their drumming to listen to that heavier pounding.

The two black men uttered few exclamations. In terrible earnest, but with a strange show of perfunctoriness, they steadily wielded their pine knots. There was little danger of any interference; they had the entire jungle as a fighting ground and the rest of their lives to fight it out in, and so they went on. "Thud—thud, thud—thud, thud—thud!" mauling each other with rhythmical regularity of strokes and with singularly faultless alternative of giving and receiving. When Toussant's broad back resounded under Loup-garou's pine knot, the very next moment the shoulder of Loup-garou gave forth the echo of the noise. The combatants leaped nimbly about at first, but soon they began to fail. Toussant forced Loup-garou back and finally hit him on the head just as he got tangled between the prongs of a many forked little tree.

Fought and killed each other.

Poor Loup-garou! That was the last of him. Toussant deliberately pounded him to death there and then. But Toussant had not escaped unhurt. He must have suffered a lesion of the spinal cord, or it may have been but the reflex action of his terrible deed upon his already superstition tainted imagination. At all events, when he saw that Loup-garou was dead he stood as if rooted to the spot, glaring horribly. How still the swamp was, how lonely, how gloomy and strange!

Some days later Toussant came rushing out of the swamp into the negro quarters, all haggard and wild eyed, flourishing the pine knot and crying, "Loup-garou, Loup-garou!" and he fell down and died in awful agony.

That cry, "Loup-garou, Loup-garou!" took firm hold on the hearts of the plantation negroes. Quickly enough a dark superstition formed itself, and the story of Loup-garou, the fiend of the swamp, began to be told. Out of one fiend grew many, and so the swamp got the name of Terre aux Loups-garous. No negro would enter that haunted region if he could help it, especially a De Blieu negro, for fear of meeting the terrible being that had cruelly beaten and mangled poor Toussant. It might have been very different if Toussant had been able to explain, but he was crazed beyond any power of connected speech. He could do no more than glare with his wild, bloodshot eyes and cry aloud, "Loupgarou, Loup-garou!" Such a death as he died could not fail to leave a deep impression in the minds of Toussant's companions. Ever afterward it was mentioned with bated breath and with awe inspired gestures.

He stood as if rooted to the spot.

The Terre aux Loups-garous became, in the imagination of the negroes, a demon land in which had congregated all the goblins and devils of earth and of the nether regions.

So things were when Toulme de Blieu, a mere youth of 20, returned from France to the old De Blieu place.

CHAPTER III.

The Coupcourt mansion stood upon an airy bluff overlooking a wide marsh meadow and a blue space of the gulf of Mexico. It was a large, roughly built wooden house, surrounded by a broad veranda and cut into four equal parts by two wide halls crossing each other at right angles. Immense live oaks and magnolias shaded it; subtropical flowering plants and vines grew around and over it; it had its scuppernong vineyard, its orange grove, its pecan trees, its peach orchard and its tropical vegetable garden. Across the marsh meadow from the house to the gulf ran a natural canal, as deep and straight as if cut by man, beside which stood an old boat shed. A little sloop lay moored hard by.

The De Blieu mansion was the counterpart of its neighbor. Between them lay the great black swamp, the Terre aux Loups-garous. From one place to the other, although the distance was several miles, the shrill quill music of rival negro pipers could be heard when the weather was very favorable. So the songs of the cane cutters would meet on the half way ground and struggle and die in the swamp.

Toulme de Blieu found a great change in things at the De Blieu place when he returned. He had been away seven years, the war had intervened, and now freedom was proclaimed to the slaves upon the closing echoes of the war. His father and all his brothers were dead. Sisters he had not, and his mother was growing very feeble for one of her age. He looked over the plantation and found it badly run to weeds and neglect, while many of the negroes had gone away to enjoy wide liberty under the new regime.

Toulme was a youth of fine presence, of good impulse and faultless manners, but he felt that his first duty was to kill a Coupcourt. Great was his chagrin, therefore, when upon inquiry he found that there was no male Coupcourt at hand. Reluctantly enough he put away his pistols and knives and began to try to console himself with fishing and sailing. To tell the whole truth, he soon ceased to think about the feud and gave himself up to his sloop, his fishing tackle, his gun and his dogs with genuinely boyish enthusiasm.

Old Tete-chauve, the chief, so to speak, of the De Blieu negroes, had remained true to his former owners and had hailed the return of Toulme with such demonstrations of delight as no one but an aged and loving negro can make. He now followed the young master of De Blieu place about as if he could never tire of serving him. He was a garrulous old fellow, given to stories of the marvelous and the uncanny.

Toulme listened to Tete-chauve with an idle interest. It revived his boyhood's memories and called up again the hunting legend of the Loup-garou. No matter how light hearted the young man was, he felt in no indefinite way the great change in his old home and its surroundings, and day by day a melancholy as tenuous as it was obscure grew in his breast. It was hard to realize that the grandeur had departed from his family name and that he, the last of the De Blieus, was left without a future, and yet he did, in a way, understand that this was so.

Most of the time, however, he was gay enough. He was a daring and expert sailor, and from morning until night he would sport with the wind and waves, coasting about, now in the bights and coves and now under the white sand bluffs or anon under the gloomy shadow of the Terre aux Loups-garous, as free and careless as the white caps and the breeze.

One day he saw another sloop, almost exactly like his own, running close to the wind not far ahead of him. He bore down upon it for a race, thinking it a fisherman, but as he ran alongside near enough to have tossed an orange into it he saw a beautiful young girl at the helm. For a space the two little sloops sped side by side, their sails slanting in parallel lines, the white wisps of foam shining above their dipping gunwales, while just ahead of their bows wing and wing flew a pair of snowy sea birds. Yonder on one hand was the dreary old swamp; on the other lay the beautiful bosom of the gulf, rising and falling like that of a sleeper.

Toulme de Blieu felt a great exhilaration thrill through his heart. Those large, soft eyes warmed his blood like wine and those half parted lips seemed to send their pure sweetness into the most sacred nooks of his consciousness.

So side by side sped the boats and wing by wing led on the snowy birds. Of course this could not last. The beautiful girl adroitly put her boat about and started on the other tack. Toulme could not honorably follow, so he kept on, but he watched the little sail as a child watches a star until it passed behind the headland beyond Terre aux Loups-garous. Then he sighed and smiled as one who feels a rare new joy tingling through every nerve.

CHAPTER IV.

What a picture a young man's heart can make of two boats and two birds, with himself in one boat and a maiden sweet and beautiful in the other! The whole of all lovely and fascinating romance is crowded into the sketch. Ah, youth and love, a sea breeze, a blue sky, a cool, foam touched reach of salt water, an exchange of eye beams—and then follows a world of bliss crowded into a dream!

After that day Toulme cruised for that lovely prize, and, shy as the maiden was, somehow her stanch little craft fell often in his way.

All love stories are alike, and they are all delicious. Hearts are blown together by all sorts of winds, but the contact is ecstatic in every instance. The older grows the story, the deeper becomes its passionate hold upon the great heart of the world.

Toulme and Anais became lovers before they knew that it was a renewal of the Shakespearean story—before she dreamed that he was Romeo or he suspected that she was Juliet—yet so it was, the children of the rival households had exchanged hearts.

Old Tete-chauve shook his big bald head and looked gloomy when by chance he discovered how matters stood. He felt at once how terrible might be the end, and, although his kind heart warmed toward the sweet young girl, he could not help wishing that his master had never seen her.

When at length Toulme found out who his sweetheart was, it was too late for him to turn about. She held him fast in her lovely net, lost beyond hope of escape. As for Anais Coupcourt, she scarcely was startled by the discovery that she loved Toulme de Blieu. It was enough for her happiness that she loved him and that he loved her. There was no room for any other passion, sentiment or experience; her heart was full.

Day after day they met out on the water and, lashing their little sloops together, drifted side by side, rocking on the gentle waves and conversing in the low, soft tones of love. Always somewhere between them and the horizon fluttered the white wings of the two birds. It was a good omen, they argued, this apparition of a pair of birds, pure white and inseparable as the hearts of true lovers, always flitting around or before them. Thus the time went by sweetly enough for these furtively happy lovers until at last they were betrothed.

Then Jacques Coupcourt came home when least expected, and indeed when least needed. He had had a hard time of it after his shipwreck, and he was but the mere shadow of himself, scarcely recognizable by his mother and wholly a stranger to Anais, when he stood upon the threshold of the old house by the blue gulf sea. But Jacques Coupcourt had lost none of the spirit of his fathers. He rubbed up the rusty old pistols and put the Coupcourt knives in shining order. The feud must go on to the end.

CHAPTER V.

Tete-chauve, when he found that his young master was brooding the thought of renewing the feud, grew melancholy and silent. He had no more stories to tell, no more songs to sing. True, he did not abandon his "quills," but the notes he piped from that rude syrinx were as doleful as the tremulous voice of the swamp screech owl. His whole soul had become absorbed in his young master, and the thought of any harm befalling him was the most distressing that could come to Tete-chauve.

Toulme de Blieu was woefully tormented by the predicament in which he now found himself. He very much desired, in pursuance of the family habit, to kill this last remaining male Coupcourt, but he well knew that to do it was to lose Anais forever. He found that his mother was very anxious that he should abandon the feud and abandon Anais as well. In his distress he went to old Tete-chauve for advice.

Poor old negro! He did not know what to say. For once in his life he was without an expedient in the face of an exigency. He stood with his head—that smooth old head with its halo of white wool—bowed in perplexity and silence. Toulme turned away.

That very day Jacques Coupcourt held a long, bitter conference with his sister Anais. She pleaded with him eloquently, tenderly, earnestly, for some promise of safety for her lover, but in vain. Jacques was inexorable. He denounced her as a traitor to her family, a disgrace to the Coupcourt name, and left her in bitter despair.

About this time great excitement arose among the negroes on both estates on account of certain sights and sounds in the swamp attributed to a revival of activities by the spirit of the original Loup-garou. Indeed the ghost of the slave murdered so long ago was seen, pine knot in hand, and strange cries had been heard.

Tete-chauve was exceedingly disturbed and begged Toulme to cease going into the swamp to hunt deer and turkey, but of course the young man gave no heed to the negro's fears.

Possibly Tete-chauve, knowing that Jacques Coupcourt was also shooting in the swamp, had more dread of the huntsmen meeting than of any danger to his young master from Loup-garou. Still superstition was ingrained so deep in his nature that nothing short of serving Toulme could have induced him to cross the limit of Terre aux Loups-garous, and he was doubly alive to the great risk his master was taking. The many tragedies in which the De Blieus and the Coupcourts had been chief actors were not so far in the past that Tete-chauve's memory was not full of them.

CHAPTER VI.

One day Jacques was wandering in the swamp, with a gun on his shoulder, darkly busying himself with those thoughts of vengeance which lately had occupied the whole of his mind. Suddenly, in some obscure way, he became aware that he was being followed stealthily by some light footed, wary being. He turned about, but saw no one. Again and again this happened.

Jacques was a man of strong nerves, and, although he could not help thinking of the legend of Loup-garou, he felt quite sure that no spirit, but a being of flesh and blood, was dogging his footsteps. He tried many shrewd turns to outwit and discover his pursuer, all to no avail.

It was in the midst of this curious experience that the eyes of Jacques Coupcourt fell upon Toulme de Blieu a little way off in the swamp. Instantly the devil of murder took full possession of Jacques' heart and he forgot everything in the desire to slay his enemy. He deliberately raised his gun, but before he could fire Toulme had disappeared. Keen as a hound, Jacques glided forward in noiseless, eager pursuit. Again and again he caught a glimpse of his enemy through chance rifts in the dense foliage. But even during this exciting hunt he was all the time conscious of footsteps behind him. Perhaps this sense of being pursued by an invisible person urged him on more rapidly and fiercely. Be this as it may, he sprang along through the swamp with burning eyes and fiercely hissing breath.

At last the opportunity came and his gun was leveled. Toulme was all unconscious of his danger, standing with his back to the assassin and but a rod or two distant.

Then came a great hoarse cry that went bellowing through the swamp, accompanied by the sound of a crushing blow.

Toulme turned just in time to see Jacques Coupcourt fall headlong, while a dark, skulking figure glided away into the densest cover of a brake. The sight was so unexpected and so strange that some time passed before Toulme could collect himself and hasten to the stricken man who lay limp and still upon the ground. He stood and gazed into the face of his enemy. It was white and calm. Something in those finely cut features reminded him of Anais and there came a rush of emotion.

It was a rather big load, but Toulme de Blieu lifted the heavy form of Jacques and, bearing it out of the swamp, laid it in the Coupcourt mansion. Then, overcome by the exertion, he reeled and fell to the floor, insensible.

Of course no one in the house knew the details of what had happened in the swamp, but it was thought that there had been added another link to the dark chain of the family feud.

It would have been a curious and interesting study for some realist to have watched the slowly developed outcome of this strange drama. There for weeks and months the two young men lay in the same room, painfully and by infinitesimal degrees convalescing. Toulme suffered from a nervous fever brought on by excitement and exhaustion, while Jacques had concussion of the brain from a heavy blow on the back of the head.

Anais was the nurse to both, and it is not for this story to detail how she artfully and sweetly worked a reconciliation between them. It was love's golden opportunity, and love was equal to the occasion. Toulme's mother was sent for at the beginning, and it did not take long for the women to become friends. This was half the battle; tact did the rest.

Loup-garou, that monster of the swamp, came in for a full share of thus happily closing the great feud. But Toulme in the deepest recesses of his heart kept the secret of his better knowledge, for he knew that the hand of old Tete-chauve and not that of Loup-garou had wielded that pine knot on that ever memorable day.

THE END.

Proper Weight of Children.

The average child in its fourth year should be 3 feet high and weigh more than 28 pounds; in the sixth year, 3½ feet high and weigh 42; in the eighth year, 4 feet in height and 56 pounds in weight; at 12 years, 5 feet in height and 70 pounds in weight is a fair average. Growth is very irregular in children and young people generally. Perhaps two inches may be gained in two months, and for the next ten months not under an inch, even up to the age of 10 or 12 years. While growth is thus rapid fatigue is readily produced. During the pause weight is gained, and work can go on again.—New York Ledger.

EXAMINING ACCOUNTS.

Intimation of a Conspiracy to Rob the Fitchburg Railroad.

Directors Have Put Experts on the Books.

A Suspicion That Several Prominent Officials Were In Collusion.

Boston, July 17.—The Herald this morning says:

The sudden and somewhat singular death of Clarence S. Anthony, auditor of the Fitchburg railroad since 1886, at his home in Waltham, on Thursday morning, has resulted in what may seem to be a premature publicity to a series of facts and inferences in relation to the administration of some of the departments of the Fitchburg road, the knowledge of which has thus far been carefully kept within a very limited circle.

One group in that circle is reticent because the facts and inferences referred to reflect upon their personal and official integrity, while others, not thus involved, are so associated with those implicated that discretion and official courtesy prompt them to be very chary of imparting information, or even of confirming reports which have been secured from other sources, but of which they have full knowledge.

Following Mr. Anthony's death it became known in every department of the corporation that the directors have for some months been engaged in a special investigation into the management of the freight department of the road, which is in charge of A. S. Crane, general freight agent, and that for a week past a corps of expert railroad accountants have been at work upon the accounts.

It is probably true that the main line of inquiry is in regard to the matter of rebates upon through freights, although there are intimations of inquiry along other lines, which threaten to involve half a dozen, more or less, of the officials of the road.

The investigation has but just begun, but its magnitude may be inferred from the fact that it will cover the entire freight accounts of the road since the advent of President Marcy, which was about 1889, and several weeks of work will be expended before the conclusion can be rached.

When it is known that such an investigation, by experts of the ability and reputation of those engaged in this work, will cost, perhaps, $100,000, it can be inferred that the directors of the road had strong grounds for suspicion of very grave and extended wrong-doing, before they set in motion such expensive machinery.

While details are yet wanting, it is apparent that the suspicions of the directors tend toward a conspiracy or collusion between several officials to secure from the treasury of the road large sums of money, ostensibly as rebates paid to large freight patrons of the road, but the larger portion of which sums are suspected to have been divided among the conspirators.

The Dupont's Hard Luck.

Bristol, R. I., July 17.—The new torpedo boat Dupont, built by the Hereshoffs, started out on her official speed trial yesterday, but through an accident the trial was called off. The boat, however, on a six-mile run, developed the remarkable estimated speed figure of 31.7 knots, the fastest speed made by any craft in American waters. Shortly after starting the piston on the forward engine, which propelled the starboard screw, showed a decided tendency to heat. The engineer in charge began to throttle down, but before the engine lost its momentum the piston of the after low pressure valve struck and the valve was shattered. The extent of the damage to the machinery is unknown, as some of the cylinders may have been cut. It is probable that it will take several days to put the boat into condition for trial. The official trial of the Dupont was rushed along to an extent that has been questioned. A little over two weeks ago steam was first turned on in the engines of the new boat, and within 10 days of that time the trial would have been held, except for the delay caused by the weather. This haste is believed to be unprecedented in the building of high speed craft.

Hudson Strike Situation.

Hudson, Mass., July 17.—On Tuesday last Hon. L. D. Apsley of the Apsley Rubber company applied to the selectmen for protection to his mill and boarding house property from the strikers, and as the result four or five policemen were detailed for duty in that vicinity, and have since remained there. Yesterday the selectmen, by a vote of 2 to 1, decided that it was unnecessary to maintain this police patrol, inasmuch as the strikers were quiet and orderly. President Pierce of the Federation of Labor claims that the police have exceeded their authority in keeping people away from the factory. He says the strike is in the hands of the Federation of Labor, which has succeeded in getting the products of the Apsley factory out of the Western markets, and he feels confident that the strikers will win. On the other hand, Mr. Apsley feels sure that they will not.

Lockout and Boycott Ended.

Chicopee Falls, Mass., July 17.—The differences existing between the Overman Wheel company and the Polishers, Buffers, Platers and Brass Workers' union of North America were settled yesterday afternoon at a conference between the company's representatives and E. J. Lynch of New York, president of the International union, and John O'Brien of Springfield, a member of the general executive board. The boycott on the product of the Overman company was removed by the union, and the company ends the lockout against union men, and will not discriminate against them. The settlement was satisfactory to both parties. The trouble between the Overman company and the union extends over a period of about 18 months.

Many Booms Swept Away.

Waterville, Me., July 17.—The Kennebec Log Driving company is looking about to see what can be done to remedy the damage done by the freshet of this week. Every boom from Madison to this city, including shear booms, have been swept away. The various jams along the river, excepting those of Hollingsworth & Whitney at Fairfield bridge, are now lying in such a way that the slightest rise of water will take them out, causing great damage the entire length of the river. F. E. Boston, Ira H. Randall and F. T. Bradstreet, representing the Kennebec company, after inspection, have decided to set the entire force of corporation drivers at work until all booms could be replaced, thereby enabling various firms to sort their logs.

Loading the Hope.

Boston, Mass., July 17.—All yesterday afternoon and last evening the work of loading the Hope, Peary's vessel, was pushed with vigor. Large drays with all kinds of supplies backed up to the side of the vessel at Long wharf, and the supplies were quickly transferred to the hold of the vessel. This work of provisioning the vessel is continuing today, and the very moment the last package is aboard the gang plank will be hauled in, and the Hope will leave Boston for northern waters. She will probably sail this afternoon. Crowds of visitors surround the vessel all the time, and they swarm all over the vessel asking all sorts of questions and curiously peeking into every nook and corner.

The Iowa Is All Right.

Newport, R. I., July 17.—The sea-going battleship Iowa droppedanchor in the harbor last night. The Iowa left League island navy yard on July 13. During the trip the vessel's 12-inch guns, turrets, engines and electrical steering gear were thoroughly tested, and in every instance gave entire satisfaction. The crew was constantly drilled at fire and general quarters, collision drill and night attacks, and for a new crew the results were gratifying. The Iowa met a heavy squall and a nasty sea. This was followed by the gale that swept the Atlantic coast, and the storm thoroughly tested the seaworthiness of the vessel. Captain Sampson stated that the Iowa stood the ordeal valiantly.

The Naval Brigade.

Boston, July 17.—Yesterday was a big day with the naval brigade down the bay, and in their target practice with the guns of the U. S. S. Massachusetts they made an enviable record. In all 122 shots were fired, of which 109 were from the six pounders of the secondary battery, four were six-inch shells from the eight-inch barbette turret batteries and two from the 13-inch guns. Governor Wolcott was aboard the Massachusetts and witnessed the drill, and presented, on behalf of the officers and men of the naval brigade, a magnificant solid silver punch bowl, which Captain Rodgers accepted in an appropriate speech.

Packing Company's Creditors.

Boston, July 17.—A meeting of the creditors of the Public Market and Packing company was held yesterday afternoon at the American House. George W. Fifield, president of the Appleton National bank of Lowell, presided. It was announced that the liabilities of the firm were $115,000, and the total amount of assets was stated as $80,000. B. B. Hart of the Public Market and Packing company made a verbal statement. He stated a doubt as to the corporation resuming business existed.

Missionary Association Receipts.

Boston, July 17.—The New England secretary of the American Missionary association, Rev. George H. Gutterson, announces that the receipts for this district during the nine months of the present fiscal year amount to $97,158, an increase over the corresponding months of last year of $7024. The lowest point reached during the period of financial depression was in 1894-5, when the total was $75,865. Since then they have increased more than $21,000.

To Search For Miss Stevenson.

Boston, July 17.—Sunday morning searching parties will commence to scour the woods in Brighton, Newton and Brookline, especially in the vicinity of the Chestnut Hill reservoir, for the body of Miss Grace Stevenson, from whom no word has been received and about whom no definite information has been learned since she left home April 26, to be absent for a short time. The belief is gaining ground that Grace has met her death in some way.

Mrs. May Charged With Fraud.

Boston, July 17.—Mrs. Abbey A May, 47 years of age, of West Wilton, N. H., was arrested here yesterday on a warrant charging her with the obtaining of money on false pretenses from Benjamin D. Washburn, a real estate dealer. Mrs. May is said to have obtained $4000 by mortgaging her farm, represented to be worth $9000, when is was assessed for $2300.

That Paris Bogey.

London, July 17.—The Daily Chronicle says it believes that the rumor of the formation of an alliance between the governments of Spain and Japan against the United States is a bogey intended to frighten America into annexing Hawaii before congress adjourns, because it is believed that if the islands are annexed then Japan will not move in the matter, but, if action is delayed, Japan will perhaps take action. The Daily Mail's correspondent says: United States Ambassador Porter assures me that the rumor that he said an alliance existed between Spain and Japan is quite unfounded. Inquiry at the foreign office at Madrid develops the fact that nothing is known regarding the reported alliance between Spain and Japan.

Under a Mile a Minute.

Rochester, July 17.—The Empire State express on the New York Central broke the railroad record of the world yesterday afternoon when it made the distance between Syracuse and Buffalo, 448.8 miles, in 137 minutes. The time, as announced, was 143 minutes, but allowing for two minutes' stop at Rochester and two slowdowns near Syracuse and at Newark, aggregating four minutes, the actual time was 137 minutes. The fastest time was made from the top of the hill west of Batavia to East Buffalo, 32 miles, in 26 minutes.

Seven Bodies Recovered.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 17.—While Engineer Conroy of Timoney's brickyard was at Verplanck's Point yesterday, laying at rest his wife, who was drowned in the flod at Dutchess Junction, on Wednesday, the bodies of his two children were found floating in the river, opposite Dutchess Junction. The bodies were taken in charge by Croner Bevier, and they will be buried beside their mother. This makes seven bodies that have been recovered.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 18. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Belief in Christ—what it is, what it does.—John iv, 46-53; Acts xvi, 25-34.

Belief in the Lord Jesus Christ has a twofold character, belief and trust, and brings also two kinds of blessings, temporal and spiritual. Both phases of belief and both blessings of belief are illustrated in our topical references.

I. What is belief in Christ? 1. It is the intellectual belief that Christ is what He claimed to be and can do what He claims to do. This phase of faith is illustrated in the first topical reference. A nobleman at Capernaum has a child nigh unto death. When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he sought him and asked him to heal his child. He believed that Jesus had the power to heal. When Christ told him to go his way, that the child was healed, he believed it. He went home expecting to find the child healed, and he did. That was simple intellectual belief in Christ's power to heal. It is the first step to saving faith in Christ. No one can have saving faith and trust in Christ without first believing intellectually in the historic Christ. 2. Belief in Christ is a heart trust in the person of Christ for salvation. This is the second element in faith. It is saving faith. With the intellect we believe in the historic Christ, we believe in the creeds and confessions of Christianity, but with the heart we trust in the person Jesus Christ as a personal and individual Saviour. This element of belief in Christ is illustrated in the second topical reference, which is the story of the conversion of the Philippian jailer. By the providences of God, and perhaps by the instructions of Paul, this man is brought to a point where he has some belief in Christianity. The events in connection with Paul's imprisonment bring this general belief to a climax, and he cries out, "What must I do to be saved?" Paul answered, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Believe not in miracles, not in creeds and confession, but on the person Jesus Christ with the trust of the heart. He did it and was saved.

II. What does belief in Christ do? 1. It brings temporal blessings. The Capernaum nobleman believed in Christ. That belief saved the life of his child, the greatest of temporal blessings. Christ blesses his believers temporarily. He favors them in time. Christians have better health, more contentments, greater peace of conscience and many other things that bring blessing which the world does not have. 2. Belief in Christ brings spiritual blessings, chiefest of which is the eternal salvation of the soul. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." "Thou shalt be saved," no doubt or uncertainty about it—shalt be, not may be; positive, absolute certainty. Thus belief in Christ brings to the believer the chiefest of all human aspirations—salvation.

Bible Readings.—Math. xvii, 14-20; xxi, 21; Mark v, 25-36; ix, 23; xi, 22-24; John iii, 14-18; Acts viii, 26-40; xiii, 38, 39; xxvi, 18; Rom. i, 16; v, 1-5; Heb. x, 38, 39; xi, 1-6, 32-40; Jas. ii, 14-26; I John, v, 4, 5.

Not as a Matter of Course.

Goodness doesn't come as a matter of course with good surroundings, and badness doesn't go as a matter of course with the same surroundings. Adam didn't do as well in Eden as Daniel did in Babylon, and when you and I hear it said that good and bad are a simple matter of environment we know better, whether the man who says so does or not. A man is liable to give himself up to sinful thoughts and to plan evildoing as he sits at the communion table or in the prayer meeting, and a missionary doesn't always go wrong when he has only heathen or cannibals around him. More depends on what is within a man than what is round about him, for his welldoing or his illdoing.—American Friend.

Message of Christ.

When man received the message of Christ, he heard a voice telling him to go forward and accomplish his spiritual conquest. He received an impulse which cannot be lost. It seems to me that the early teachers were ever trying to tell us of something which they could not comprehend, nor can we. But as we look back over the advances made in the march of life it does not appear difficult to believe that this higher life which entered the world in Christ will persevere until all kingdoms are His and all things are subdued to His peaceful and holy reign.—Universalist.

The Hope of Heaven.

We must not be so full of the hope of heaven that we cannot do our work on earth. We must not be so lost in the work of earth that we shall not be inspired by the hope of heaven.—Phillips Brooks.

Believing Poverty.

Not until you make men self reliant, intelligent and fond of struggle—fonder of struggle than of help—not till then have you relieved poverty.—Phillips Brooks.

Endeavor Notes.

India has seen many a stirring campaign, but none so glorious as that recently completed by Dr. Clark and his Christian Endeavor allies, and none so rich in promise for the future of that great empire.

The Tenth legion is growing rapidly. Ought you not to become a legionary?

Scotland, when last heard from, reported 413 Christian Endeavor societies.

Do you enjoy your society? If not, it is probably because you do not put energy into it. Energy and enjoy—there is something more than coincidence in the similarity of those words.

Ruts ruin. The spirit has diversities of workings. A hint, prayer meeting committees.

Any one wearing a Christian Endeavor badge can enter a Kentucky prison and be sure of every courtesy from even the most hardened criminal.

The measurements of death are a few inches of trivial disorders, multiplied by many feet of neglect. If a man or woman will take care of the little trivial disorders, there is no need to fear the big maladies, and long-life and happiness will be the reward. The little disorders that cause the majority of big sicknesses, are the trivial derangements of the digestion that most people pay no heed to. Good digestion feeds and builds up a man; bad digestion starves him in every tissue, muscle, nerve-fiber, and brain-cell.

Bad digestion leads to consumption, blood and skin diseases, and nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver and prevents and cures consumption, blood and skin diseases, and nervous troubles. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. Druggists sell it and have nothing else "just as good."

"I have lately given Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a trial," writes Miss C. M. Malette, of Houston, Harris Co., Texas, "and it has completely cured me of very serious and obstinate disorders in which the heart's action was impaired. I took it for two weeks. I began to experience less discomfort from my illness, after about the fourth dose, and in four or five days still less, and several days after I was surprised to find that I was actually better. Two weeks having passed every symptom had disappeared."

The man or woman who neglects constipation is storing up in the system a store of disorders that will culminate in some serious and possibly fatal malady. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a safe, sure, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Druggists sell them.

Boston Land Values.

The amount of land occupied by the new union station in Boston will be 1,077,191 square feet and it is assessed this year at $4 75 per foot, making the valuation of land $5,116,667; nearly as much as the buildings and land before the changes, when the assessment was $5,835,300.

Some comparisons of valuations in the vicinity have been made by the Herald which will be of interest.

Directly opposite the new terminal, at Nos. 207 to 223 Federal street, is the large wool warehouse known as the Hecht building, and covering over 23,000 square feet of land. This is now assessed for $18 a foot; a year ago it was $10. The adjoining parcel, the southwesterly corner of Federal and Summer streets, 3,237 feet, is rated at $35 instead of $25 as a year ago.

Going up Summer street on the left hand, or southerly side, the next piece, No. 183, is $25, an advance of $9 a foot; from there to the corner of South street, the averages were $15 a foot last year, and are $22 this.

Both corners of Summer and South streets are rated at $33; a year ago it was $28. The southeasterly corner of Lincoln and Summer streets stands at $35, an increase of $5, and the opposite one at $30, an advance of $3. The Church Green building, between Summer and Bedford streets, has been increased $2 to $42.

Starting at the foot of Summer street again, on the north side, one finds heavy additions to the land values. The corner has been, on paper, cut off, leaving Arioch Wentworth's parcel of 3099 feet on the corner. This has been raised from $14 to $30; his adjoining piece of 6241 feet has been increased from $9 to $20 a foot.

Lying between Summer, High and Federal streets there is a triangular plot of land divided into several lots, and this, too, has been advanced, the corner of Summer and High streets from $28 to $35; Nos. 15 and 17 High street, from $20 to $25; the Ware parcel on the corner of Federal and High and running through to Summer, from $22 to $28; the small piece on the corner of Summer and Federal, from $25 to $40; a tiny piece of 132 feet next to it, from $30 to $40, and the other small parcel, No. 148 Summer street, from $ 2 to $30.

The block bounded by Atlantic avenue, Federal, Purchase and Congress streets has seen big changes.

On Atlantic avenue, between Congress and Pearl streets, on the west side, the average raise has been from $6 50 to $9, and the influence of the station has extended to about Oliver street.

Changes on High and Purchase streets were smaller.

Some of the largest advances are found on Federal street opposite the station and on Cove street. The Proctor building site, a large lot with much back land, is now rated at $18, just double what it was a year ago; two or three small pieces near it now stand at $22 to $25 instead of $10 to $13, and the northerly corner of Federal and Essex at $30, having been doubled.

The influence of the station is felt around on Essex street likewise, Nos. 204 to 210 going up from $9 to $15, and the easterly corner of that street and South street from $19 to $25. Along South street from Essex to Summer from $2 to $4 has been tacked on to the valuations. On the corner of Essex and Lincoln an advance of $3 has been made to $22.

One of the most interesting parcels in the whole lot is that occupied by Bradford, Thomas & Co. on the corner Essex and Cove streets. Cove street was a narrow back alley of little account; Cove street is to be a great street 100 feet in width. Hence the doubling of the valuation on the 14,430 square feet and the rating it now at $15. This parcel of land, for which John C. Haynes paid about $86,000 four or five years ago, is now assessed at $216,500.

You may hunt the world over and you will not find another medicine equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

WAR ON OTIS HILL.

The Cadet Storm and Capture it —5000 Visitors.

Yesterday was the great day at the camp of Cadets at Hingham, fully 5000 visitors being present. Much interest was taken in the skirmish exercises on Otis hill in the rear of the camp grounds.

The object in view was to occupy the hill, and to accomplish this the four companies, dressed in their campaign uniforms of brown duck, equipped with canteens, haversacks and tin coffee pots, with a camp axe for each squad, marched along the road to the base of the hill.

Col. Edmands then sent the four companies forward to take their positions in order to surround the hill. The command took the position of a battalion in advance, and moved forward with skirmishers in front, firing at the imaginary enemy at the crest of the hill.

According to the plan of Col. Edmands, the right flank acted as a pivot after the battalion had progressed a short distance up the hill, and the left was then used to sweep the top of the elevation. The reserves were brought forward, and the enemy was driven down the other side of the hill, until the battalion held the further slope.

The hill having been captured and the supposed enemy put to rout, the battalion marched to the foot of the hill and cooked coffee over small fires built by the men, and then returned to camp, hungry but full of fight.

The afternoon drills were conducted before the usual large crowd, and the battalion showed a marked improvement.

The corps gave one of the finest exhibitions of the manual ever seen on the field, and the passage in review has never been equalled. It aroused the enthusiasm of the spectators who loudly applauded the excellent work of the boys.

The corps broke camp at noon today, taking the boat for Boston, and marching from the wharf to the armory.

Today Breaks Record.

This is the hottest day of the year, the noon temperature being 95 degrees, against 94 July 5, and 93 July 9. It is the eighth day this year the mercury has been at 90 or higher.

There has been quite a drop in the mercury since 12 M. however. At 1 P. M. it it was below 90 and at 2 o'clock stood at 86, and was still falling, and a thunder shower is probable.

Ninety-six was the highest reached last year as the following summary of hot days shows:

Sharks at Wollaston Beach.

Mr. Frank Staples killed a 4 foot, 6 inch shark on the beach near the Wollaston Yacht club one day this week, and Thursday night Mr. George H. Gavin killed another of equal length near the same spot. The sharks killed are what is known as the "Dusky Shark," (carcharhinus obscurus) and are not considered dangerous, though their presence along the beach have caused the frequent bathers in that locality to step into the water rather gingerly and hug the shore closely. There has been during the past week large schools of menhaden playing about the waters adjacent to the Wollaston shore, which no doubt, gives a reason for the presence of the sharks.

Horseback Rider Hurt.

While riding a horse at Dedham last evening, Paul R. Briggs of that town, aged 24 years, a graduate of the Boston University law school this year, was the victim of a bad accident. He was on Eastern avenue, in front of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad station, when the animal became unmanageable, reared up and fell over backward, crushing Briggs under him. Unless some internal injury develops, he has a fair chance to recover.

Strike at Mason.

The stonecutters at Dolan's quarry at Mason, N. H., went on a strike yesterday. A new schedule of wages went into effect, whereby the cutters were to receive 25 cents per foot instead of 31 cents per foot, as heretofore. The workmen claim that the new schedule practically means a cut down of from $3 50 to 2.50 per day. If the trouble be settled the strikers will insist on receiving their pay semi-monthly instead of monthly.

☞ The Wabash Railroad continues to cater to the travelling public in the most up-to-date way with through sleeping cars from Boston to Chicago and St. Louis, vestibuled trains, parlor and dinging cars, and rates as low as any for such service. Its freight service shows the same desire to serve the public. Daily merchandise cars are run from Boston to St. Louis and to Kansas City and Denver, making on the the Wabash rails an average running time, including stops, of 21 miles per hour. Shippers, to obtain this service, should see that their shipping receipts are marked "via Wabash Railroad." 22-tf

Children and Matches.

The alarm from Box 171 at the corner of Union and Main streets shortly after two o'clock this afternoon was for a slight blaze in the house of John Harkins on Main street. It was set by children who were playing with matches. Damage slight.

BRAINTREE.

The Braintree Band plays at Nantasket tomorrow.

The new post office at South Braintree will be ready for occupancy next Monday morning.

There will be a ball game on the Common at 3.30 today between the Braintree boys and the Bridgewater's.

The members and children of the South church enjoyed a picnic at Roberts grove, Randolph, Thursday.

Harlow Waite caught a great game for the Randolphs Saturday. His batting was also a feature; he getting 5 with a total of 11 hits.

The twenty-first annual festival of the Sullivan Musical Association will take place in Newport, N. H., August 16 to 20. A number of Braintree people expect to be present.

Mrs. Jones, wife of Dr. Jones of Hollis avenue, is very sick and all hope of recovery has been abandoned. She lies in an unconscious state and the end is looked for at any time.

Frank Kebbie while holding a horse for Mr. Webber in South Braintree square at noon, yesterday, cut his thumb slightly and fell in a dead faint, remaining unconscious for about five minutes.

The Union church committee at East Braintree is unanimous in its choice of a location for the new church, to take the place of the one recently burned. The lot is on Commercial street nearly opposite Shaw street.

The camp of the Boys' Brigade on the shores of Great Pond has been much visited this week, and the boys are reported as enjoying playing soldiers very much. It is surprising to learn how carefully every detail of camp life had been planned for and how satisfactorily this novel idea has been carried out.

The uncertain weather of Wednesday caused the South church picnic to be postponed until Thursday. A large number attended and enjoyed an unusually pleasant day. It was more like the old-fashioned picnics of the good old times, and sociability and good fellowship prevailed to an extent impossible among the smothering crowds at Nantasket beach.

Mr. A. H. White of Hollis avenue is going to Greenland with Lieutenant Peary. The vessel is now in Boston and will start immediately. Mr. White expects to enjoy the trip very much. Mr. Robert Perry, formerly a resident of Elm street, will also be one of the party. They expect to be gone about four months.

The Universalists of Quincy and Braintree were obliged, on account of the weather, to postpone their picnic from Wednesday till Friday, when a goodly number assembled at Mayflower park, where the day was devoted to a round of enjoyment. Games and athletic sports were indulged in and there was no lack of good things to eat.

Charles River Park.

Wednesday evening, July 21, there will be a novel cycle race meet on Charles River Park, Boston. The leading feature will be the inter-city race, Boston vs. Philadelphia. It will be the first cycle race of this character ever held in America, and, considering that the five best men of Boston will race against the five speediest riders of Philadelphia, a fast race may justly be expected.

It will be similar to the pursuit races which have been held on the Charles River Park, in that the teams will start on opposite sides of the track. The race will have a ten-mile limit, but should one team or member of a team pass the leader of the competing team within that distance the contest will be decided. Should the entire distance be ridden without one team passing the other the team making the fastest time will be declared the winners. Music and fireworks.

☞ Children's Carts, Velocipedes and Rocking Horses in large variety.. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Consolidated and Enlarged.

The two dailies of Waltham have consolidated and appeared yesterday as the Daily Free Press-Tribune. Bro. Starbuck is editor and R. B. Somers the business manager. The paper is enlarged and improved with promise of a more successful future. There is hardly room in a city of the size of Waltham for two dailies, and the consolidation will doubtless give the "Watch City" a better paper, which the business men will appreciate as an advertising medium.

—The armatures used on the Nantasket beach railroad have been found too small, as they easily burn out. Only three motors were in service one day this week and locomotives were used.

HE WAS A STREET ARAB.

Strange Career of the New Governor of Alaska.

John Green Brady of Indiana, recently appointed governor of Alaska, has had an interesting and romantic career. To the best of his knowledge he is a native of New York city. He never knew his parents nor the name they gave him, if any. He grew up a veritable street arab in the utmost poverty. In 1860 he was sent to Indiana with a carload of waifs as miserable as himself.

The car reached Tipton, a county seat 30 miles north of Indianapolis, and a number of the youngsters were committed to the care of residents. Judge John Green, a prominent citizen of the place, called for the "ugliest, raggedest and most friendless" in the lot. Jack, as he was afterward known, was promptly presented, and at first the judge, appalled at so much misery in bulk, was inclined to go back on his demand, but finally took the lad home to Mrs. Green. She was out of patience with her husband for his action, but the absolute destitution of the boy appealed to her, and she got down to the real boy by a process of thorough cleaning. After the examination she thought she might learn to like him, and Jack's new life began.

He appreciated his home and the kindness of his benefactors, and diligently applied himself to study, proving himself capable and efficient. A course at the public school was followed by a year at Waveland academy, a well known preparatory institution, and that by four years at Harvard. He had determined to be a preacher, and after he had been graduated at Cambridge he was sent by Judge Green to England to pursue his theological studies. Returning to Tipton in 1876, the next year he went to Alaska as a missionary under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, and he has since remained there. His interest in the field was not confined to his missionary labors, and in 1881 he visited the United States, displaying specimens of its gold and silver ores and telling marvelous stories of its natural resources. As a result of his talks there was a large increase of the population of the territory, capitalists and prospectors being attracted by his enthusiastic descriptions. Mr. Brady contributed largely to the reports of the census of 1890 respecting Alaska, and in the Harrison administration served as commissioner of the territory. —New York Sun.

Crabs Cause Interstate Trouble.

The soft crab causes a good deal of trouble at this time of the year between the states of Maryland and Virginia. One of its peculiar tricks is to leave its favorite lair at Crisfield in Maryland and wander off into the neighboring state, the crabbers, of course, following. It is then that Virginia gets out her guns and begins to burn powder. Recent dispatches report heavy firing, and it is all probably on account of the migratory crab.

Governor O'Ferrall of Virginia is no less an admirer and champion of the crab than he is of Grover Cleveland, and he is said to have declared recently that he will protect the crab which seeks the shelter of the Old Dominion at all hazards, even if he has to depopulate Crisfield in order to do it. Thus the soft crab may be said to become a hard case. The Baltimore American questions whether this would be fair. "We allow the Virginians," says the champion of the Maryland crabbers, "to come up here and make all the money and hold offices and lord it over us in general, and the Virginia authorities might at least permit us to have a few soft shell crabs in return. We are beginning to think that Virginia is getting selfish over the shellfish."—New York Tribune.

Vessels Built Here In a Year.

During the fiscal year ended on June 30 there were built in the United States and officially numbered 729 vessels of 177,643 gross tons, compared with 709 vessels of 203,977 tons in the previous year. The decrease is almost wholly in wooden tonnage, which for 1897 amounts to 64,940 tons, compared with 94,715 tons for 1896. Of the total construction, 347 vessels of 113,065 tons were steam vessels, compared with 322 of 134,947 tons for the previous year. Steel steamers built on the great lakes numbered 15, of 55,866 tons, compared with 24, of 56,020 tons, in the previous year.

A Popular Titled Mayor.

The Duke of Norfolk is likely to be mayor of Sheffield for the third time. "His grace," says a Sheffield paper, "likes the work, and the people like him. He is one of the best men of business Sheffield has ever had as mayor. The complete absence of 'side,' the natural and unaffected manner and the enthusiasm which are characteristic of his grace have made him a very great favorite with all classes and will teach some of our well to do citizens a valuable lesson in good manners."—New York Sun.

Gin and the Missionary.

The latest figures for gin and rum importations into barbarian Africa would lead one to think that the church was not teaching total abstinence to the natives. In Gambia 22,368 gallons were received in a year; in Sierra Leone, 242,686; in the Gold Coast, 1,302,899; in Lagos, 1,863,631, and in the Niger Coast protectorate, 2,609,158. The countries that supply the stuff are, of course, the same countries that send the missionaires—Great Britain, the United States, Germany, France and Holland.

The Saddest Thought.

When commencement day is over
And his new diploma signed,
Then the senior thinks with sadness
Of the things he's left behind.

Yet not this or any sorrow
Half so much weighs down his mind
As the thought forever with him
Of the bills he's left behind.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

is carefully weighed, measured and generally scrutinized by fond mothers, and rightly, too.

But the need for taoughtful inspection of what we eat and drink is not peculiar to babyhood, but remains with us through life.

Some day—when we get time—we're going to write a book with a title somewhat after this fashion: "The Tremendous Influence for Evil Upon the Human Race Which Has Been Exerted by Men and Women Whose Stomachs Were Sadly Out of Order as a Result of Eating the Wrong Sort of Groceries."

You may laugh, just for a minute, but there's a mighty serious side to the proposition, and the moral of it all is

Look after YOUR stomach by eating BOSTON BRANCH groceries.

Whatever is newest and latest in table supplies can be found on our counters.

First and foremost is BREAD, "the staff of life." In hot weather physicians all agree a meat diet is heating and should be avoided, and what fills the place like good, wholesome bread? For twenty years we have made a specialty of supplying our trade with the best flour that money can buy, and our sales, reaching into the thousands of barrels yearly, show that the public of Quincy and vicinity appreciate our effort in that direction. Buying flour from our establishment, you are assured of paying but one profit between the mill and the consumer. Our stock and assortment of cereals is large and always fresh. We are pleased to quote prices on our goods at all times.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), done get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

Burglars at Braintree.

Wednesday night some one entered the house occupied by Mr. C. A. Perry on Middle street, familiarly known as the "Cat house," and last night, about 10 30, as Officer Galvin was going his rounds he saw a man crouching near a window of the same house. As soon as the burglar saw that he was discovered he ran, closely followed by Officer Galvin's dog. In the chase the officer tripped over a wire chicken fence, but he fired his revolver over the head of the thief. This frightened the dog and the villian made his escape in the darkness.

An investigation revealed an open window and a large chisel, but apparently nothing had been taken from the house.

The family is away on a vacation, and it is thought that the second break was made by the man who entered the house Wednesday night, and may have been frightened away.

Beware of Mercury for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

WON BY AN AMERICAN

Young Ten Eyck Will Bring Diamond Sculls From Henley.

Worcester Boy's Victory Displeases Englismen.

This Is Only the Second Time the Trophy Has Left England.

Henley-on-Thames, July 17.—Edward Hanlon Ten Eyck, the Worcester (Mass.) boy sculler, yesterday won the diamond sculls, defeating Blackstaffe, the conqueror of Dr. McDowell, easily.

He is the first American to capture the trophy.

While Ten Eyck's victory was a great one, he having rowed a most remarkable race, it was received very coldly, not a cheer greeting him as he finished. It was an unpopular victory .

Ten Eyck not only beat the best Englishman, who earlier in the day had defeated the next best American, but he did it without exertion, breaking the record at the same time.

He finished fresh and awaited his opponent on the float. When Blackstaffe, tired and exhausted, landed, Ten Eyck offered his hand, and they shook heartily. Then a slight ripple of applause came from the assembled thousands.

At the presentation of the prizes, Colonel Frank Willan, in presenting the diamond sculls and silver goblets to Ten Eyck, said:

EDWARD H. TEN EYCK.

"This, the most important prize of the Henley regatta, is now carried out of the country for the second time, it having once gone to Holland. I am sorry it has been won away from us, but we must put up with it and try to get it back."

Colnel Willan's remarks were greeted with loud applause. Ten Eyck was heartily greeted on all sides, the little knot of Americans disputing with the English ladies and gentlemen for a chance to shake his hand.

The older Ten Eyck said, after the race:

"We have been well treated by everybody with whom we have come into official contact. As for the Yankee tricks, of which we have been accused, I know of none, nor have I ever said a word to my boy to prompt him to do anything tricky. Naturally I am pleased that he has proved himself so fine an oarsman."

Edward Hanlon Ten Eyck is unquestionably the fastest sculler of his age America ever produced, and has won the admiration of all by his modesty and speed. He won his first junior race at the N. E. A. R. A. regatta on the Charles river, July 4, 1895, and the following year rowed in a winner of the national intermediate championship at Saratoga. His time was faster than the senior race, which led to his being matched to row Champion Whitehead the following October. He won the senior championship of New England on Labor day, 1896, and defeated Champion Whitehead at Lake Quinsigamond in a match race on Oct. 1. Ten Eyck is still a scholboy, being but 18 years old, but he has a remarkable development, and is one of the smothest scullers that ever sat in a boat. He is capable of rowing 1 1-2 miles straightaway inside of record time, and can do the distance with a turn in 9m. 30s. He was born at Peekskill-on-the-Hudson, where his grandfather runs a small ferry line across the river, and where his father, the noted professional learned the use of the sculls. He stands 5 ft. 8 1-2 in., and weighs about 162 pounds when trained. He was coached and trained for this regatta by his father.

Very few people have a conception of what the diamond sculls are.

The diamond sculls is a perpetual prize. It consists of two crossed sculls, about 18 inches long. The sculls are made of heavy solid gold, and at the point of intersection a large solitaire diamond is attached. The value of the prize is about $10,000. The whole prize is encased in a heavy frame, upon which are attached many plates bearing the names of the winners of the great sculling race. The honor of having his name inscribed upon the plate is not the only recompense a winner of the race gets, as he receives a valuable silver cup, which is his perpetual prize.

Rejoicing at Worcester,

Worcester, Mass., July 17.—The news of the victory of young Ten Eyck at Nenley was received in this city with great satisfaction. The members of the Wachusetts Boat club, who sent him to England, were especially jubilant. They engaged a section of Battery B and had a national salute of 21 guns fired last evening.

Great Bicycle Race Decided On.

Boston, Mass., July 17. — Manager Ducker of the Charles River park yesterday decided to arrange for what will undoubtedly be the greatest match race ever held in the world. The plan is to run a great paced race on the park Sept. 18, which will be a national circuit date. The match will be open to the world and the purse will be $5000, divided $3000 for the first, $1500 for the second and $500 for the third. The distance will be from 20 to 35 miles, and the third prize will not be awarded unless the man crossing the tape in third position makes 20 miles or over in the hour.

DULLEST MONTH.

Volume of July Business Not Up to the Average, According to Bradstreet's.

New York, July 17.—Bradstreet's says: The dullest month in the industrial year is duller than usual, notwithstanding improvement among potters and others. This is due to a reaction in iron and steel, prices of which are back to lowest points on record, a dragging demand for boots and shoes, and a threatened famine of bituminous coal.

There are more coal miners out than at this time last week, and notwithstanding assertions that arbitration will end the strike in the near future, some of the larger operators in the Pittsburg district declare there is nothing to arbitrate.

Manufacturers of cotton goods and their agents report trade slow, owing to higher cost cotton and low prices for goods. This has shut down a number of cotton mills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. A fairly steady business is reported by eastern manufacturers of shoes, but this trade at Philadelphia is dull, merchants hesitating to place orders. Western wholesale dealers in clothing report distribution unsatisfactory. Western bar iron mills are already shut down, and if the coal strike lasts another week thousands of factory wheels will stop turning. This checks the stronger and more confident feeling in industrial circles which was so pronounced a fortnight ago.

The heavy loss of sheep in Australia, due to drought, and speculation in wool here on tariff prospects have made wool prices higher, with large sales, about 8,000,000 pounds at Boston alone, compared with 700,000 pounds in the like week last year. In addition to the advance for wool and bituminous coal, prices are higher for hides and leather on good demand, and for wheat on the continued statistical strength of that cereal, short crop prospects abroad, a large average export movement, and in the face of the generally improving domestic crop outlook.

The world's available supply of wheat is probably the smallest at a like period in many years. Europe is expected to have to import 100,000,000 bushels more wheat than last year, and neither India, Australia nor Argentine is expected to be able to supply its usual share. The American wheat farmer and speculator are taking an unusual interest in the situation at this time. The general tendency of the price movement this week is to reverse the growing strength of quotations in the preceding fortnight.

There are 247 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 213 last week, 255 in the week a year ago, 214 in the week two years ago, 212 in the corresponding period in 1894, and as contrasted with 517 in the second week of July, 1893.

National League.

At Pittsburg—

Pittsburg won a good handicap game by quick playing and by hitting Lewis hard in the fourth inning. Five of Boston's hits were made in the first three innings, after which they could do nothing with Killeen. Collins let in the winning run by a fumble of a slow hit by Donoyan, Lyons scoring.

Confessed to Four Murders.

London, July 17.—A dispatch from Sydney, N. S. W., says that Frank Butler, the Australian bush murderer, was executed for the murder of Captain Lee Waller Thursday. He confessed to having committed four murders.

THAT SUGAR SCHEDULE

No Indication of a Break In the Tariff Conference Deadlock.

Republicans Hesitate In Making Partial Report.

This May Be Done, However, and Instructions Asked of Both Houses.

Washhington, July 17.—The deadlock over the sugar and other disputed matters still continues, and the absence of any apparent immediate prospect of a compromise started the report that the conferees would "agree to disagree," to call the Democratic conferees today to make a report to both houses on that line, and to ask for further instructions.

There were rumors during the day that the senate conferees were about to surrender on sugar, but they proved to be utterly without foundation. Believing that if the senate itself were permitted to vote on the question it would recede from its rates on sugar, there was also talk during the day of forcing an expression on the subject from the senate in some way for its effect on the conferees, but this, also on investigation, proved to be little more than idle gossip. So far as can be ascertained the senate conferees are as determined as those of the house not to surrender.

There is little doubt, however, that they would accept a compromise if the other side would agree to it. The difficulty is that the house conferees refuse to entertain any proposition for compromise.

Thus far their ultimatum has been "The house schedule or nothing." While the sugar schedule blocks the way to an agreement, the conferees have not been idle. Much progress has been made with the minor features of the bill, and tentative agreements have been reached in many of the important paragraphs. An influential member of the house, who is kept well advised of the situation, said that if the sugar schedule were out of the way a complete agreement could be reached in four hours. If the present situation continues until Tuesday or Wednesday next the current opinion among the members of the house is that a disagreement will be reported for the purpose of giving each house an opportunity to instruct its conferees on the main obstacle to an agreement.

Senate Proceedings.

Washington, July 17.—The open session of the senate was brief and uneventful yesterday. The Harris resolution relating to the Union Pacific railroad was further discussed.

The senate spent more than four hours in executive session in an effort to confirm the nomination of M. H. McCord, to be governor of Arizona, and adjourned after 6 o'clock without having succeeded in that purpose. The failure was due, however, only to the absence of a quorum. A vote was secured, showing 26 votes for and 11 against confirmation —8 less than a quorum.

House Proceedings.

Washington, July 17.—The house yesterday agreed to the partial conference report on the general deficiency appropriation bill, and then concurred in the senate amendments, fixing the limit of cost of armor plate for the three battleships, now building, at $300 per ton. This was the main item in dispute between the two houses.

A strong effort was made to induce the house to a substitute proposition, fixing the limit at $400, as recommended by the secretary of the navy, but after a three-hours debate the house by a vote of 14 to 45 concurred in the senate amendment.

Messrs. Stone (Rep. Pa.), Dalzell (Rep. Pa.) and Boutelle (Rep. Me.) supported the $400 proposition, which was opposed by Messrs. King (Dem. Utah), Underwood (Dem. Ala.), Barlow (Pop. Colo), Simpson (Pop. Kan.), Gains (Dem. Tenn.), Wheeler (Dem. Ala.), Sayers (Dem. Tex.) and Cannon (Rep. Ills.).

Alliance Denied.

Washhington, July 17.—At the Japanese legation here no credence is givn to the report cabled from Lndon that the Spanish and Japanese governments have entered into an alliance aginst the United States. It is pointed out that the Spanish newspapers are nearly as bitter in their denunciation of Japanese, whom they charge with giving material aid to the Phillipine island insurgents, as they are against this goverment for permitting arms and men to be sent to Cuba.

It was stated in the most positive terms that there was no truth in the rumor, and it was explained that the presentation of the chrysanthemum decoration to King Alfonzo had no significance whatsoever so far as the United States is concerned, and does not imply any change in the relations between Japan and Spain.

The state department has no information whatsoever of any alliance between Spain and Japan.

Foster Confident of Success.

Washington, July 17.—Ex-Secretary Foster is believed to be meeting with a large measure of success in his efforts to secure from the British government additional measures of protection for the seals in Bering sea. While he has not yet reported that the British have formally consented to participate in a conference with this object in view, unofficial advices indicate that this is about to be accomplished.

Orleans Prince Challenged.

Rome, July 17.—When the Italian officers who were recently released from captivity in Abyssina reached here and heard of the statements made by Prince Henry of Orleans, in which the Italian army was charged with cowardice, they drew lots to decide which of them should meet the prince on the field of honor. The lot fell to Lieutenant Pani, who at once sent a challenge to Prince Henry.

Swedish Aeronaut Leaves Tromsoe For the Arctic In His Balloon.

Tromsoe, Island of Tromsoe, Finmark, Norway, July 17.—The steamer Svensksund which has arrived here from Spitzbergen reports that Herr Andree, the aeronaut, ascended in his balloon on Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The ascent was made under favorable circumstances, the wind was good and all were well.

As the wind conditions were more favorable on Sunday morning than they had previously been, the order was given that the start should be made as quickly as possible. The preparations occupied 3 1-2 hours. The balloon, which was christened the Eagle, made a successful ascent amid the shouts and cheers or the crowd which had gathered to witness the departure. Despite the lightness of the wind, the balloon rose rapidly until an altitude of about 600 feet had been attained, when it was forced down nearly to the surface of the sea. After a few sandbags had been thrown out, however, it again ascended. The weather was clear and the Eagle was visible for an hour, traveling in a north north-westerly direction. When last seen it was moving at the rate of 22 miles an hour.

The Aftonbladet has received the following telegram from Herr Andree via Tromsoe, written just before the balloon was cut loose:

In accordance with our decision, already announced, we made today, at 10:35 in the morning, preparations to start, and now, at 2:30 in the afternoon, we are ready to ascend. We shall probably be carried in a north northwesterly direction. I hope gradually to get into regions with more favorable wind conditions than exist here.

In the name of all my colleagues I send our warmest greeting to our country and friends. Andree.

PEACE PREVAILS.

Miners Strike Situation Unchanged---Men Are Encouraged by Outlook.

Pittsburg, July 17.—Dullness at the miners headquarters and in all the mines in the Pittsburg district, and unusual activity in the coal market, characterized the features of the strike yesterday. For a strike so general it causes little excitement. Peace seems to prevail everywhere, but how long this state of affairs will continue cannot even be guessed. The miners are apparently willing to be idle, and as yet no suffering has been reported at district headquarters.

The miners' officers were very much elated over news from West Virginia. Several telegrams from organizers in that section of an encouraging nature were received.

"There is nothing startling to report from any of the districts," said Patrick Dolan. "The men, with the exception of a very few, are out, and we are satisfied with the situation."

It was learned last night that the program of the miners' officials is to bring out all the men possible in the West Virginia field and bring all the organizers to Pittsburg. It is expected that the terms will be made here, as the district is looked upon as the most interesting point after West Virginia has been disposed of. The miners' hopes are high, and they are confident that there will be a good story to tell from West Virginia Monday morning.

The lukewarmness of National President Ratchford, and the belittling attitude of District President Dolan, has put somewhat of a damper on the true uniformity plan, but President Dolan says notwithstanding his private opinion concerning Mr. De Armit, he has been doing and will continue to do everything in his power to further the consumation of the scheme.

Japan's Protest Ignored.

New York, July 17.—A special from Washington to The Herald says:

The administration has practically determined to ignor the latest protest submitted by Japan in opposition to the annexation of Hawaii by the United States. It is understood that the state department has decided to make no reply to this communication, beyond a simple acknowledgment of its receipt.

It is admitted by state department officials that the protest is very stiff in its character. Japanese and Hawaiian matters were considered during the cabinet meeting yesterday, but there was no discussion of the report of an alliance between Japan and Spain.

The battleship Oregon, now on her way to San Francisco, will remain at that port for several weeks, and then go to Honolulu. Minister Buck is at Tokio, and has been advised by the state department of the signing of the annexation treaty. It is understood thhat he has been made aware of the suggestion of arbitration submitted to Japan by the Hawaiian authorities, and it is expected he will exercise the friendly offices of this goverment to secure the acceptance of the offer.

Sultan Again Acquiescent.

Constantinople, July 17.—Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, informed the ambassadors yesterday that the sultan had agreed in the principle of the demands of the powers and was prepared to accept their views on the peace conditions. It remains to be seen at today's conference between Tewfik Pasha and the ambassadors what the acceptnce amounts to. As the grand vizier is known to oppose the acceptance of the terms of the powers, and has not yet resigned, it is believed that a further hitch will be discovered, although it is reported that the sultan's sudden decision is due to the receipt of another peremptory telegram from the czar.

France's Complaint.

Paris, July 17.—Figaro publishes a proclamation alleged to have been issued by the chiefs of the Tanalas tribe of Madagascar inciting their followers to massacre all the Europeans in the island with the exception of the English, who, according to the proclamation, must be regarded as "Allies of the Malagasies." Commenting upon the activity of English intrigues in the island, Figaro adds: Wherever the natives revolt against us we find them in alliance with the British.

Spalding Again Acquitted.

Chicago, July 17.—For the second time within two months a jury in the criminal court yesterday afternoon found Charles W. Spalding, ex-treasurer of the University of Illinois, not guilty of embezzling the endowment bonds of that institution. The instructions given the jury by the court were that unless they were sure that Spalding intended to embezzle they must acquit.

THE TRIAL OF COUNT

HOW MAY ALDEN SAVED THE DOG'S LIFE—BY G. T. FERRIS.

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

The shimmer of the sun through the willows on the mirrorlike pool and the white cups of the water lilies made a charming picture one summer afternoon. So May Alden thought as she looked longingly at the great flowers lying so lightly on the shining water. Should she wait for Tom, who would soon join her, or try her own luck in the punt fastened to the tree hard by? She had been forbidden by her father to venture in the cranky little boat alone, but it was such a temptation to pluck the beautiful flowers all by herself. 'Twas but a few feet from the bank that she would need to go, and surely there would be no great danger. The debate in her mind, as happens so often in the case of those older than May, ended in yielding to her own desire. She loosed the boat from its chain and pushed out among the lily pads, where, below the snowy, fragrant chalices, lay ambushed a little tangled forest of stems and tendrils, fingers of doom that clutched whatever came to them with unyielding grip. The eager girl gathered her spoil by handfuls, till she overreached herself in trying to seize an unusually large lily. Down she plunged among the great green leaves and that thicket of vegetable death. There were a splash and a gurggling shriek, choked by the closing water, and then all was as still and beautiful in that bed of lilies as if no human life lay strangling underneath the sweet smelling cups.

But the cry was not unheard, and by a deliverer strong for succor. May's Newfoundland dog, Count, barking and panting, leaped down the steep hill and into the water, for his instinct seemed to reason out the whole thing with sure insight. His powerful paws fought a way through the close tangle of stalks, and the girl's body, released from its fetters, rose to the surface, whence she was swiftly carried to the bank. The howls of the noble fellow as he lay alongside May and licked her face and hands alarmed Mr. Alden, whose house was not 20 rods away. The half distracted father luckily knew just what to do in such cases, and the life which hung by a spider's thread for half an hour, at last flushed back into the waxen face and lackluster eyes.

Count was an animal of great size and beauty, and though an estray was plainly of the finest breed. He had come to the Alden household—consisting of the father and two children, Tom and May, aged 15 and 10 respectively—early in the summer, shortly after Mr. Alden had moved up to his country house at Arlingford from the city. The youngsters at once clamored for the adoption of the canine tramp. So after vain effort had been made to find the true owner Count was given a home. One may fancy how Mr. Alden blessed the day which brought the tired and hungry creature to his doorstep whining for food when the dog repaid him so richly by saving the life of May.

It was not long after this touching incident when the true drama of our narrative occurred. Count had been almost smothered to death with daily caresses and narrowly escaped fatal colic from the countless dainties urged on his slobbering attention. One morning Tom dashed in great agitation across the lawn to where his father lounged under a branching maple. Count trotted at his heels, the big red tongue of him lolling out of the mouth, for dog and boy had evidently had a sharp race.

"Oh, papa," cried the breathless lad, "could you ever think what that mean old villain, Farmer Barker, says? Count and I met him and his hired man about a mile up the road. I do believe he would have shot our Count if I hadn't been there, for he had his gun with him. He declares he has lost a lot of sheep from the pasture on the hill and that Count killed them. He swore a string of oaths a yard long that he would have justice and that you should pay the damages, and first of all be said he would have Count killed. As if Count weren't worth 1,000 of his wretched sheep!"

Count stretched himself with a complacent wag of his tail in cordial assent to this high opinion of his value.

"The farmer is naturally angry at the loss of his sheep," said Mr. Alden, "but I think he is wrong in accusing Count. We shall have to prove an alibi."

"What's that," asked Tom.

"A famous English lawyer once defined an alibi as "a lie by" which many a rogue escaped the rope. It's a law word for the defense of an accused person who shows he was not present when the crime was done. Count is gorged with too many dainties by you and your sister to roam the fields sheep killing. But here comes the farmer, and his wrath seems still redhot."

Silas Barker was a type of the meanest mold of Yankee, a character rich in breeding the best and worst. He was a man of ample acres, and all his life he had pinched and screwed to heap up wealth which was of little use to himself or others. His avarice made him a laughing stock even in a community where the barren soil which often goes with beautiful mountain scenery enforced the country folk to extreme thrift. His quarrelsome temper was a public nuisance, for he was constantly engaged in petty suits at law with those whom he could not browbeat. His person fitted his nature—a gaunt figure, a weather beaten, snarling face, small gray eyes set close together under shaggy brows and a mouth which was a mere slit gashed across the lean jaws.

"I'LL HEV THE LAW ON YE, SQUIRE ALDEN."

"I am sorry to hear of your loss," said Mr. Alden pleasantly to the old man, who slammed the earth violently with the butt of his gun, "and that you suspect this dog of mine. It's easy to be mistaken in such matters, and Count isn't the kind of dog to amuse himself in that way. That's the trick of mongrels, not of thoroughbreds."

"I don't keer whether he's mongrel or got a pedigree long ez the laws uv Moses. 'Twas that murderin beast uv yourn that did the work, or I'm doggoned."

"You may be if you wish," laughed Mr. Alden, "but I don't propose that Count shall be 'doggoned' without the best proof."

"I tell ye, I'll hev the law on ye, Squire Alden," growled Barker, still more infuriated by this joking manner, "and ye'll find it no laughin matter. Me and Pete measured the tracks where the dawg jumped into the road, and they led right down here for mor'n ten rod. I drawed 'em, too, on this here bit uv paper."

"Come here, Count," said Mr. Alden to the dog, who, though kindly in the main, as became his breed, had been smelling at the farmer's calves with shining teeth. "Give me your paw, sir." The dog's great web foot, while it did not fit the outline accurately, still might have made the mark if he had been running in the dust at top speed. Mr. Barker hailed this as triumphant proof and departed breathing fire and fury.

The law relating to sheep killing gave the farmer a choice of redress. He might refer the issue to the selectmen, who could decide on the evidence of a dog's guilt, order his execution and pay the actual value of the sheep to their owner, or the complainant might bring suit and demand a jury to pronounce the fate of the four footed defendant and assess the damages to be paid. Mr. Barker's love of money smelled in the latter chance a road to a fat verdict, and so the trial came on at the town hall in due form before Squire Vail, the justice. Count, with lionlike head and mane, crouched at the feet of May Alden, was a listless spectator of the play of life and death acted there on his account, concerned only in snapping at the inquisitive flies, winged emblems of the village idlers who thronged the courtroom. Mr. Biggin, a newly fledged country lawyer, with a tongue well oiled by the thought of the unaccustomed $5 bill that warmed his pocket, was the prosecutor.

"May it p-lease yer honor and gentlemen of the jury," began Biggin with a solemn twang, "this here case, while in name it's only about a dawg and sheep, spreads its deep and wide branchin roots into a matter of pur-rinci-ple. It's the right of the owner of flocks and herds, the tiller of the sile, the most important oc-cy-pa-she-on on God's green footstool from Abraham's time down, to pur-ro-tect himself against the bloated man of wealth, the owner of stocks and bonds, the idle aristocrat, who eats and dur-rinks and smokes the best, while his neighbors sweat in the fields and live on pork and cabbage. It's not enough in this case that Dives should f-lant his gold, his bank notes, his fine York clothes and fool-e-ry, his thousan dollar hosses and all his su-per-flu-ous g-litter under the noses of the toilin poor. But, gentlemen of the jury, this aristocrat fosters a car-niverous blood spiller, a beast of prey to whet his gory fangs on the innocent sheep. I need not tell this highly intelligent jury that the sheep is a creatur for which our great and be-u-ful and glor'yus state is famous, wherever the star spangled banner waves it's gor ge-ous folds, a stand-by of our agri-cul-too-ral and pas-to-ral wealth. That it is a creatur noted in history since the 'airliest times, a creatur embalmed, as it were, in the holiest reck-y-leck-shuns of the Bible, a creatur which purvides the warmest clothin for our backs, the hull-som-est victuals for our stummicks. Yes, gentlemen of the jury," shouted the limber jawed orator in tones of thunder, "this here suit is a case of the pur-res-er-vashon of this sacred an be-u-ti-ful and useful animal, the mainstay of the poor as against the life of a worthless and destroyin dawg, the pampered pet of the rich."

When his eloquent opening had been brought to an end, Mr. Biggin put his witnesses on the stand. He proved that the sheep were missing with the exception of two carcasses, which had been evidently mangled by a dog's teeth. He proved the tracks leading from the pasture into and down the road toward Mr. Alden's house, and that a big black dog had been seen in the road on the morning of the farmer's discovery of the loss of the sheep. The constable then in very gingerly fashion proceeded to fit the paws of Count to the drawing made by the farmer. The dog growled despite his master's soothing at this liberty, but the measure scarcely impressed the jurymen.

Mr. Alden had studied law in youth and was his own advocate. As witness he testified that he had heard Count's bark in his yard at 2 o'clock of the night of the sheep killing and proved by the coachman that the dog was at the stables three hours later with no signs of any bloody night rambling. He called attention to the fact that the Newfoundland was so coddled at home that there was no reason for him to go hunting for mutton on the hoof, and that the other side had entirely failed to show any reasonable identity. His few plain words went straight to the mark.

Lawyer Biggin, in his final summing up, warmed to lofty flights. He hammered the table and sawed the air as he tried to show that the evidence pointed unmistakably to Count.

"And naow, gentlemen of the jury," he said in closing his plea, "I appeal to you as homebred citizens of our beloved state of Vairmount against the pretenshuns of strangers from York state. They may harry the sheep in our fields with their bloodthirsty dawgs, but let it not be said that they can pull the wool over our eyes. Remember the airly days of Vairmount, my fellow citizens—I mean gentlemen of the jury—when your gallant and patriotic sires fought for their rights, sturdy and invincible as their own be-au-tiful hills. Remember haow at that time the heroic Green mountain boys druv back the unpur-rincipled specylators and thieves from York state and warmed their impident hides with 'twigs of the wilderness.'

"To what good, may I ask, tew, did our forefathers whip the Britishers at Ticonderogy and Bennington, and why do we cherish the gloryus names of Ethan Allen and Stark ef this effete generation cowers and crawls before the bulldozin alien? This is what it means, gentlemen of the jury, unless you take the hydry by the throat naow and strangle him by nippin the foul ulcer in its airly blossom. Can you wonder then that I ask from you a swingin verdict of $500 and the quick execushin of that beast of prey there? This verdict will be, as it were, a flamin beacin light shinin from the highest summit of the magnificent mountains araound us, raisin their green crests to the sky. This verdict will rebuke the purse proud stranger and prove that Vairmount is now and ever will be the land of the free and the home of the brave, adymant against all but the eternal pur-rinciples of jus-tice." With much mopping of the brow the orator sat down.

"OH, MR. JUDGE AND KIND GENTLEMEN!"

May Alden, for the whole family was there, heard this tirade with feverish terror. Every big word of the lawyer's empty thunder seemed a bullet whizzing straight at the life of Count. She saw her four footed favorite writhing before her in the agonies of death. She could not understand that her father's brief, sensible talk outweighed a cartload of such fustian as she had just heard. Wild with fear that killed her girlish timidity, she sprang from her seat. Her fair hair was tumbled about her face, her eyes and cheeks were wet with tears, her voice was choked with its own eagerness and she began to speak before her father guessed her purpose, or could interpose:

"Oh, Mr. Judge and kind gentlemen, that bad, cruel man wants to get my dear, dear Count killed"—here the dog, hearing his name, raised his lordly length and poked his nose into May's hand—"and has told such wicked stories about him. Count never goes away from home 'cept with Tom and me, and he wouldn't kill a poor sheep anyway, for he won't even bite another dog 'cept he is a big one, his own size, and if he did kill a sheep, is a sheep's life worth a little girl's life? I s'pose some of you have got little girls too. My brave Count saved my life for papa and Tom, for I ain't got no mamma. I got caught under the lily pads and Count swam in and pulled me out when I was almost dead. Would a dog that saves little girl's lives kill sheep? P'rhaps he might save some of your little girls some time, and then you, too, would think him the bravest and bestest dog that ever lived. Oh, kind gentlemen, don't say that Count must die, and I will bless you and pray for you every night and morning as long as I live."

This artless eloquence, which May panted out betwixt sobs, with shining, wet eyes and outstretched hands, made the rugged faces of his honor and the jurymen twitch in a curious way. There were many hems and haws as the judge briefly turned the case over to the jurymen, and the foreman, after a whisper or two, arose.

"Our verdict is," said he, "that that there dawg never killed them there sheep. We kinder suspicioned it afore, but for the last minit and a half we hev been gawl darned, dead sure. We therefore acquit the accused."

So ended Count's trial for life, and as the court broke up one of the jurymen nudged the disconcerted Biggin with this advice:

"Waal, young man, you'd oughter go to school afore you try another case to that little Alden girl, for she kin beat you all holler and back ag'in when it comes to talkin to a jury."

"Clear the Way!"

Men of thought, be up and stirring
Night and day!
Sow the seed, withdraw the curtain,
Clear the way!
Men of action, aid and cheer them
As ye may.
There's a fount about to stream,
There's a light about to beam,
There's a warmth about to glow,
There's a flower about to blow,
There's a midnight blackness changing
Into gray.
Men of thought and men of action,
Clear the way!

Once the welcome light has broken
Who shall say
What the unimagined glories
Of the day,
What the evil that shall perish
In its ray?
Aid the dawning, tongue and pen;
Aid it, hopes of honest men;
Aid it, paper; aid it, type—
Aid it, for the hour is ripe,
And our earnest must not slacken
Into play.
Men of thought and men of action,
Clear the way!

Lo, a cloud's about to vanish
From the day
And a brazen wrong to crumble
Into clay!
Lo, the right's about to conquer!
Clear the way!
With the Right shall many more
Enter, smiling, at the door.
With the giant Wrong shall fall
Many others, great and small,
That for ages long have held us
For their prey.
Men of thought and men of action,
Clear the way!

GOSSIP FOR WHEELMEN

Unique Devices That Appeal to Comfort and Vanity.

CYCLISTS FIGHT A FATAL DUEL.

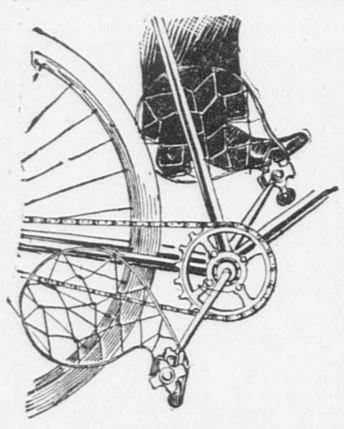

Lawsuits In the New Field of Litigation. How Champions Are Made—Growth of the Bicycle Industry—New Use For Cyclometers.

Even the proud American eagle must serve as a bicycle device. A mercenary inventor proposes to fasten the noble bird behind the saddle on women's wheels as a combination brake and mud guard. The wings stretch out on each side and protect the skirts from mud or entanglement in the spokes of the wheel. They are fastened to the body of the bird with a coiled spring hinge which allows of their folding when not needed. The legs and feet of the bird are utilized for a combination brake as well as a stand for the wheel when resting. The legs make it possible for the rider to sit on the wheel when desirable instead of dismounting and standing beside the wheel.

Men who find it undesirable to wear knickerbockers about their business and who object to the use of the clamps in vogue will be interested in a new guard which is applied to the pedals and which will protect garments from the wear and tear by the chain and sprocket wheel. The new guard looks like a magnified egg-beater, and is built on the same plan and of the same material. It also resembles gauzy wings of gigantic size when the wheel is not in use, but is so hidden by the foot and trousers of the wearer when on the wheel as not to be noticeable.

A French court recently rendered an interesting decision in a case brought by the owner of a bicycle against the proprietor of a cafe from which the rider's wheel was stolen while he was in the place. The judge decided for the defendant on the ground that, although the plaintiff had notified a waiter that he had deposited his bicycle in the vestibule, whence it was stolen, he had not formally consigned it to his care. Moreover, although many visitors of the cafe were in the habit of leaving their bicycles in the vestibule aforementioned, the plaintiff must have been aware that it was open to the street, and consequently an unsafe repository for the bicycle, and finally the sole duty of the master of such an establishment is to furnish food and drink, and he therefore assumed no responsibility as to the safekeeping of his customers' property unless it was directly committed to his care.

The first duel on wheels occurred not long since in Spain between Messrs. Moreno and Perez, who both were members of the Granada Cycling club, and it ended fatally for the latter. Accompanied by their seconds, they wheeled out some distance on the road to Malaga to a secluded spot. There, posted 700 feet apart, at a sign they wheeled toward each other, each directing his machine with his left hand and brandishing in his right that terrible knife of Spain, the navaja. At the first clash

NEW TROUSERS GUARD.

Perez pierced the left arm of Moreno, but at the third encounter Moreno thrust his knife into the breast of Perez, who in a few minutes died from internal hemorrhage.

A novel use was made of a bicycle by the manager of a small electric line in a western town. Being anxious to ascertain the length of a particular stretch of road without going to the expense of having it surveyed, he had a bicycle equipped with a cyclometer ridden over the route, and found the distance within the required limits of exactness.

A champion is not made in a day, nor is he made in a week, and more often years are consumed in the making. These years are years of hard, earnest, painstaking work, such as most men would not care to undertake. The racing man, as the average goes, is a lazy creature, who does not care to undertake the task of training for top notch honors. Carelessness in training costs many a man the top. Careless work in his preparation for the season fails to bring out the natural speed that is within him, and the trainers do not comprehend his strongest points and do not aid to develop him as would they did he but show the bent early in the season.

A few years ago the United States was importing bicycle tubing. In 1895 $225,000 worth was brought in from Great Britain every three months. But now we are not only making enough to supply the domestic demand, but exporting considerable quantities. The exports would be larger if the home demand were not so great, but we are actually exporting in competition with England and Germany. The growth of the bicycle industry is shown by the fact that while in 1890 the number of bicycle factories in the United States was only about 17, it is now upward of 700, with an output of 1,300,000 wheels every year, of which some 25 to 30 per cent are exported.

A suit of interest to wheelmen was held in the city court of Baltimore. It was an action against the city and suburban street railway company for $5,000 damages for personal injuries received by Michael J. Reed while riding a bicycle. Mr. Reed alleges that he was proceeding at a reasonable rate of speed along the street when a car approached him from behind and ran him down without warning. He was thrown from his wheel, which was shattered, and he received severe injuries. It has been held by a New York court that a railway company is liable for damages where a wheelman is run down from behind.

In spite of agitation for self driven vehicles, it is admitted in the English papers that the number of motor cycles in actual use in the kingdom may be counted on the fingers of one's hand.

MRS. J. H. RYLEY.

A Once Well Known Actress Who Is Now a Famous Writer of Plays.

As Madeleine Lucette the woman who is now Mrs. J. H. Ryley was for many years known as one of the best ingenues and soubrettes on the American stage, although she was born in England. Her real triumphs as an actress for some reason were delayed until she came to this country, where success was won almost immediately. After she had married J. H. Ryley, the operatic comedian, she did comparatively little acting, and after a few years of rest she suddenly blossomed out as a playwright. It is a striking tribute to her ability that, although she has since that time written a good many pieces of different sorts, she has yet to have the first failure recorded against her.

When Ryley was at the Gayety theater in London, his attention was attracted to a sprightly girl of about 16 who was in the chorus. Some time later, when "Pinafore" was brought to this country, Ryley and the young singer of the chorus, who was Madeleine Lucette, came over too. Miss Lucette was given a part and made a decided hit. After that she was seldom unemployed when she cared to work and was a member of the Duff company for some time. When "The Lady or the Tiger" was produced at Wallack's theater in New York, the part of Irene was assigned to her by that astute manager, Colonel McCaull, and the next morning the papers teemed with praise of the vivacity and general cleverness of the pretty little English girl. Miss Lucette was thenceforward one of the most pronounced comic opera favorites in this country, and her rise to greater things was then begun. She became weary of the exactions of stage life, took up dramatic authorship and now is generally considered the brightest woman playwright in the world. She does not run to heavy, sentimental plays either, as most of her output has been in the way of farcical or light comedy productions.

"Christopher, Jr.," which was played by John Drew, is the play which confirmed Mrs. Ryley's claim to distinction as a writer, and "The Mysterious Mr. Bugle" only served to emphasize it. She is in great demand now and is at work on pieces for several of the prominent actors both in this country and England, where her work has really met with even higher appreciation than here. It is said that this plucky little woman's royalties next season will be enormous, and she will certainly be entitled to them, for she has never been a believer in the theory that one need only wait for success if he have ability. She has always been what is known as a hustler, and whatever success she may have achieved is largely due to this striking characteristic of her nature. She is at present in England, whither she went to consult with managers with whom she is under contract to furnish plays for next season.

How Murray Got to New York.

J. K. Murray, the operatic comedian, tells a good story about an experience he once had in a small town in New York. He was completely broke, with no engagement in sight and wondering how he should get to the metropolis. It was late in the fall. He knew he had missed the best engagements in his line for the season and would have to lay over in New York probably until New Year's before getting anything that would keep him busy till spring. While musing how to hold somebody up for a railroad ticket and bewailing his ill luck at intervals he jotted down a satirical little verse.

The station agent of the little town was also the village poet. The little country papers had printed some of his poetical effusions, but he had never been able to make an impression on the formidable sheets of New York city, though he had tried often. Murray, who knew him and his ambition, showed him this poem. The station agent said that in exchange for it he would give the singer free passage to New York. The singer jumped at the opportunity and relinquished all claims to the child of his muse. A month later he saw it in a New York paper in cold type. It appeared over the station agent's name, but Murray was as good as his word and said nothing about it.

He learned afterward that upon the station agent's success with a New York paper depended his marriage to the village belle, whose praises he had sung in rhyme in the home journal.

Bobby Gaylor's Only Stage Fright.

Bobby Gaylor has had numerous exciting as well as laughable experiences during the many years he has put in on the vaudeville stage.

"There is only one time that I can call to mind when I was really frightened while doing a turn on the stage," said Bobby a few days ago.

"I was traveling with a specialty company and doing a little sketch in which I required the services of a super to help me out for a few minutes. We were doing a mock heroic fencing act. I hit his foil too hard, and it broke in two. One-half of it flew out into the wings. One of the soubrettes was watching my turn. The point of the broken part struck her in the forehead, and I saw the blood spurt out. She swooned, and I, forgetting everything, rushed off the stage to pick her up.

"We brought her to with cold water and sent for a physician. When the latter arrived, he found that the girl was not so badly hurt, after all, having received little more than a flesh wound. He told me that had the foil struck her a quarter of an inch farther to the right I would have been the unintentional slayer of a human being. I tell you I was frightened, and you might guess that I didn't finish my act that night. After that I cut out the fencing part."

Tennis Championship.

Miss Juliette Atkinson is once more lawn tennis champion of America, having won back from Miss Bessie Moore, her conqueror of last year, the laurels she held in 1895.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Cusack Had Subscription Money, but the Editor Couldn't See Him.

"Hi, thar!" shouted old man Cusack, a prominent citizen of Oklahoma, after vainly trying to open the door leading into the office of the Hawville Weekly Clarion. "Anybody in?"

"Who is out there?" was the counter question, in the voice of the able editor.

"Me—Cusack. What's the matter yere, anyhow? Why in tunket have you got the door fastened in broad daylight?"

"Oh, is that you, Cusack? Do you want anything in particular? If it isn't a case of life and death, please come back about day after tomorrow."

"Aw, it hain't nuthin more important than a desire to pay my subscription," replied the visitor, "an I reckon I can wait if you say so. But what in thunder is goin on anyhow?"

"We'd be glad to accept the money now. Our rule has always been never to put off till tomorrow what we could do today. But, under the circumstances, we guess we will have to deny ourself," said the scribe's voice regretfully. "You see, in the last issue of the paper, which appeared day before yesterday, we bestowed a scathing and deserved obituary on that pestiferous cuss, Copperhead Bill. We knew that the reform committee had him treed in a cabin up near the headwaters of Bitter creek and were led to believe by what we considered reliable information that e'er the paper was dry from the press the committee would have succeeded in smoking him out and setting him to dangling at the end of a rope. Accordingly we felt warranted in cutting loose on him with our unbiased opinion.

"It seems, however, that both the committee and ourself were too confident, for about an hour ago we received word from Copperhead Bill himself stating that he had in some manner to us unknown become aware of the prominence we had given him. He declared that he did not appreciate the motive and treatment of his own obituary and added that he had thus far successfully stood off the committee and that if nothing prevented he expected soon to have them all slain or on the run, after which he should make it his first duty to come down here and hang our quivering hide on the fence as a laughing stock for all passersby.

"Forewarned is forearmed, you know, and we have the windows all boarded over, the press moved up against the door, seven assorted shotguns and revolvers at hand and are prepared to duplicate the historic act of the first grenadier of France. So if you can conveniently hold that subscription money for us till day after tomorrow, Cusack, the favor will be greatly appreciated, we assure you."—Tom P. Morgan in New York Sunday World.

What the Wise Bachelor Says.

A woman is a thing of beauty and a toy forever.

Women are a good deal like cats. Most every one thinks she can sing.

Hogs aren't so bad as some women in street cars. When you offer them something, they will at least grunt.

A man's compliment is valuable in proportion to how young he is and a woman's in proportion to how old she is.

A woman's idea of wifely care is to wait till her husband is sound asleep and then wake him up to ask him if he is asleep yet.—New York Press.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

The drummer who sees his trade in the northern neck of Virginia by going down the Potomac on a steamboat and doing the rest of it via a buckboard was talking the other night on the steamer bound for the field of his labors.

"Four weeks ago," he said, "on one of those warm days I was driving in toward Kinsdale, and when about three miles from town I ran upon a combination which was as surprising as it was unaccountable. About 50 yards ahead of me I saw a tramp sitting in the shade on the bank of a brook that babbled softly through a fence and slipped quietly across the road. He was gazing at something as if spellbound, which, upon coming nearer, I saw was his traveling companion washing his dirty face in the stream and spluttering like a porpoise. It was evident the spluttering had awakened the tramp on the bank, and the sight that met his gaze had fascinated him as a basilisk might charm. The road was so sandy that I was within speaking and hearing distance of them and they had not heard me.

"'Hully chee, Muggins,' ejaculated the one on the bank when he had recovered sufficiently from his astonishment to speak, 'but what on de eart' er youse doin dere?'

"'It's like dis,' spluttered the other as he rose, dripping like Venus from the sea and blew the water out of his mouth, 'I hears somebody a-sayin in de noospapers dat dere wasn't nuttin worse'n work, an I'm jis' seein if it's de trut'.'"—Washington Star.

Keith's Theatre.

That the public fully appreciate the rare treat provided by Mr. Keith in securing the services of a large section of the famous Symphony Orchestra to give daily concerts in connection with his admirable vaudeville entertainment, is abundantly proven by the large attendance at the "model playhouse" afternoon and evening throughout the heated term. Director Zach has selected a charming programme for the Symphony players for the week of July 19, and Mr. Thomas E. Clifford, the noted baritone singer will be the soloist, singing "The Holy City." The vaudeville is an ideal summer one. The leaders are Williams and Walker, two genuine colored men, comedians, singers and dancers. They have been the fad in New York for a year past, and were at Keith's for a week April last. Their act concludes with a cakewalk, in which half a dozen colored couples participate and a mammoth cake is given as a prize. James Kelly and his three rosebuds will participate in a humorous comedy sketch; and there will be the usual number of other high class features. In the Biograph a splendid list of interesting views will be exhibited.

Castle Square Theatre.

The twelfth of the summer seasons productions at the Castle Square under the direction of Mr. Tony Cummings, will be given the coming week and will consist of Mr. Frank Harvey's play in five acts, "Woman Against Woman" which has been made familiar to Boston audiences by former productions here. The story told by the play is of fascinating interest, dealing principally with the married life of John Tressider and the complications arising from the jealous revenge of Rachael Westwood. The action is full of incidents calculated to maintain effectiveness of all the scenes and a dozen or more characters are introduced in the development of the plot. The cast is as follows: John Tressidor, a workman, J. H. Gilmour; Phil Tressider, his father, Horace Lewis; Sir Henry Chesterton, Miriam's husband, William Humphrey; Gilbert Craven, a man about town, Lindsay Morison; Doctor Grayson, Ned H. Fowler; Peter Crank, a blind fiddler, Howard Hall; Belton, Sir Henry's valet, George B. Bates; Dave Jackson, a villager, Ezra Austin; Bessie Barton, Lillian Lawrence; Rachel Westwood, a bad 'un, Loraine Dreux; Miriam, Bessie's sister, Grace Atwell; Deborah Barton, mother of Miriam and Bessie, Agnes Findlay; Mary Pedley, Mary Sanders.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

—Among the curious uses to which iron has been placed is that of visiting cards. Many great iron manufacturers have had the metal rolled in sheets so thin that it has been successfully employed for this social use. It is interesting to know that the cards of Count Renard are 1-1000th part of an inch thick, those of Baron Krupp 1-820th part of an inch and Count Harrach's 1-640th part of an inch.

MAD RUSH FOR GOLD.

Thousands Going From the Pacific Coast to Alaskan El Dorado.

Wonderful Strikes Made In Klondyke District.

Immense Fortunes Have Been Washed Out In a Few Months.

San Francisco, July 19.—The civilized world has its attention turned toward the North. There are two attractions. One is Andree and his balloon, the other is Yukon gold.

The entire Pacific coast has gone gold mad about the Klondyke. The Alaska Commercial company's steamers will not be able to carry 1-10th of the hordes now preparing to start for the frozen gold fields.

It is estimated that 5000 people will start from San Francisco toward Alaska before August. From the ports of Puget sound as many more will embark.

Tacoma reports that men of wealth in that city are forming syndicates with the understanding that the men who do the work are to receive half of the gold they secure. These syndicates are made up of from 10 to 20 men and each one signs a contract to receive his share of the proceeds. Each party will scatter on reaching the placers, and it is estimated that at least two out of each party of 10 will strike it rich and bring the average of all up to not less than $10,000.

Mrs. E. A. Gage, wife of the son of Secretary of the Treasury Lyman Gage, came down on the Portland. She went north on it, and was at St. Michaels. She said in an interview:

"The country is enormously rich. The present gold diggings are only a very small part of it, and there is little doubt that there are millions only waiting for the miners to come and dig out. The men from the Klondyke are not the men to exaggerate, for I have talked with people whom I know to be truthful."

It is declared that there is no danger of food giving out, all reports to the contrary are not honest.

A letter received from Jackson City under date of June 18 contains many interesting facts. The writer, Arthur Perry, a well-known citizen of Seattle, says:

"The first discovery of gold on the Klondyke was in the middle of August, 1896, by George H. Cormack, on a creek emptying into the Klondyke on the south, called by the Indians Bonanza. He found $1.60 to the pan on a high rim, and after making the find known as 'Forty miles' went back with two Indians and took out $1400 in three weeks, with three sluice boxes. The creek was soon staked from one end to the other, and all the small gulches were also staked and recorded. About Sept. 10 a man by the name of Whipple prospected a creek emptying into the Bonanza and named it Whipple creek. He shortly afterwards sold out and the miners renamed it El Dorado.

"Jimmy McLain took out $11,000 during the winter. Clarence Berry and his partner, Anton Stander, panned out about the same in the same manner. Mrs. Berry used to go down to the dumps every day to get dirt and carry it to the shanty and pan it herself. She has over $6000 taken out in that manner.

"Mr. Tippen, from Seattle, has a rich claim, and his wife has a sack of nuggets worth $6000 that she has picked up on the dumps. When the dumps were washed in the spring the dirt paid better than was expected. Four boys on a "Lay" in El Dorado took out $49,000 in four months. Frank Phiscater, who owned the Grand, had some men hired and cleaned up $94,000 for the winter. Mr. Lippin, so I am told, has cleared up $54,000. Louis Rhodes, No. 25 Bonanza, has cleaned up $40,000. Clarence Berry and Anton Stander cleaned up $130,000 last winter. This is probably the richest place ever known in the world. They took it out so fast and so much of it that they did not have time to weigh it with gold scales. They took steel-yards, and all the syrup cans were filled."

New Sunday Law Ignored.

New Haven, July 19.—The new Sunday closing law, passed by the last general assembly, and which, if enforced, would close up every store of every kind in the state, and even stop the sale of Sunday newspapers, was not generally observed throughout the state yesterday. Reports from different parts of the state show that in most places business went on as usual. At New London, however, with the exception of the drug stores, Sunday business of every kind was suspended, and at Willimantic all places of business, aside from drug stores, after 1 o'clock. The newsstands were closed all day, and not a Sunday paper could be obtained. The law was not enforced in any other part of the state, those closing doing so of their own accord. It is generally believed that there will be no prosecutions until complaints are made.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

ENGLAND MUST LEAD.

Perry Belmont Talks of Prospects of International Bimetallism.

New York, July 19.—Perry Belmont, who returned from Europe on Saturday, in a carefully prepared interview, which he gives out for publication, has this to say on the money question:

"In regard to the present attitude of Europe towards international bimetallism, there are advocates of it in France, England and Germany as there were a year ago, but the advocacy has not increased in volume or intensity. Neither France nor Germany will unite with us in placing gold and silver on a parity, unless England leads the way. The continued increase in gold production, the surplus last year and this year of British income over expenditure, the continued supremacy of England in commerce and of London as an international money market have the effect of the persuading parliament that the present coinage, currency and financial system is good, even though there is distress in India. Reduction of taxation with an enlargement of its basis there may be, if peace continues, but probably not a modification of coinage or currency laws so long as existing British industrial prosperity endures.

"The McKinley administration is actively endeavoring, as the Republican platform of 1896 requires, to promote the free coinage of silver by international agreement. Its ambassadors and special commissioners are working in concert, under the law enacted by the last congress which Cleveland approved. The question of the ratio to be adopted is kept in abeyance. There is every prospect of an international conference to be held within a short time, and probably to assemble in Paris.

"European bimetallists believe that if, in the failure of international bimetallism, we shall open our mints to silver on the ratio of 16, and subsequently Europe opens hers on the ratio of 15½, then all our gold will leave us as it did after 1834 and only token silver coins would remain."

CREATED IMMORTAL POEM.

Death of Lady Who Suggested "The Last Rose of Summer" to Moore.

New York, July 19.—Mrs. Amelia Kohler died yesterday at Mount Vernon. Had it not been for Mrs. Kohler Tom Moore might never have written the line, "'Tis the Last Rose of Summer."

The poem was of her suggestion, and the first line was from her lips. She was early in the century a close friend of Moore's sister, who kept a private school in London. While walking in the garden of the school with the poet one day, Mrs. Kohler, so the story runs, plucked a rose, remarking: "'Tis the last rose of summer, why not write about it, Mr. Moore?"

The incident suggested the thought that was afterwards so beautifully woven into verse, and the poem was dedicated by the poet "To Amelia," which is Mrs. Kohler's first name.

Mrs. Kohler's life was interesting in more ways than this, however. She was 92 when she died, and for 20 years had lived with her daughter, Mrs. F. N. Saunders, who lives with her husband in Mount Vernon. Her maiden name was Amelia Offergeld, and her father was an officer under General Blucher. The family home was in Aix La Chappelle. Mrs. Kohler frequently spoke of having seen Napoleon in her girlhood.

He Knows Japan.

Colorado Springs, July 19.—H. P. Lillibridge, who was consul general from Hawaii to Japan during the reign of King Kalakaua, has written a letter to Senator Hanna, in which he says: "Please say to both McKinley and Sherman that I know whereof I speak when I tell you the designs of Japan on Hawaii are exactly as intimated in the editorials of the Japan Herald, notwithstanding all the denials Hoshi Toru can make. Ever since Japan captured the Lu Klu islands in 1875 the bee of conquest has been buzzing in her headgear. Her more recent success in Korea and China and her acquisition of Formosa, as well as the submissive, undignified, weak vis-a-vis which our government of political job lots presents to them and to Spain, furnish all the incentive and encouragement necessary to justify Japan's idea that Hawaii will be an easier conquest than any that have gone before, if she moves quickly."

Heard From In Alaska.

Portland, Ore., July 19.—Russell Montgomery, a United States naval cadet, who disappeared from Annapolis over a year ago, has been heard from in Alaska. He writes to his father, J. S. Montgomery, a well known capitalist of this city that he has a claim in the Klondyke district and is now working it successfully. Young Montgomery failed in his examinations at Annapolis, which fact so humiliated him that he departed from Annapolis without leaving any word behind him, although his father has used every effort to find his son, nothing has been heard of him until the letter from Alaska was received.

TROUBLE IS EXPECTED

Striking Coal Miners Feel Pangs of Hunger and Are Restive.

March Today on Mines Where Diggers Are Working.

Operators Are Now Calling For Deputies to Protect Their Men.

Pittsburg, July 19.—Late events in the Pittsburg coal mining district indicate that there is trouble ahead. The strike has been on for two weeks, with no cause for alarm from any quarter, but the pangs of hunger and mutterings of discontent have taken tangible form, and before noon 1000 miners will have marched on Cannonsburg, the objective point being the Boone and Allison mines.

A few days ago the operators of these mines made a requisition on the sheriff of Washington county for additional deputies. It is supposed that there are at least 30 deputies at each mine, well armed for any friction that may take place. Yesterday the miners of the Miller's and Tom's run district held mass meetings. The gatherings were attended by men, women and children. The women did not lag in the interest taken. Many of them openly branded their husbands as cowards. They argued that they might as well fight as starve. The men said the victory could be won providing every coal miner employed in the sections where the lake trade is supplied would join the general movement of idleness.

Plans for bringing out the miners at work in the Boone and Allison mines were discussed. Special committees were sent from one meeting to another. It was decided to march on to Cannonsburg mines last night. The procession was made up of three divisions from the different sections. They will be mobilized at Bridgeville and take up the tramp of 12 miles across the country.

Whether the miners went armed is not yet known, but they expected to be at the mines when the offending diggers were ready to go to work and to use every influence possible to keep them from going into the mines. Some of the most conservative of the leaders claim that there will be no bloodshed. They say that when the colliers see such a big demonstration in favor of what they term a peaceful battle for bread, they cannot enter the mines and retain their manhood.

Every effort was made to keep the movement a secret for fear the force of deputies at the mines would be further increased. Just what the result will be is difficult at this hour to tell. The men are known to be in a condition of semi-insanity on the strike question. They have been goaded on by suffering wives, daughters and sweethearts, and it appers as if it is the beginning of the end of the strike.

The negotiations to influence the coal operators of this district to sign a uniform agreement is still going on. Secretary G. Frank Schmid said that the prospects were brighter than they have been since negotiations began. He said that within the next few days powerful and potent influence would be brought to bear on the operators, and with the strike in the present condition the indications were for a successful consumation of the agreement. As an evidence that the operators are not counting on arbitration, it was announced by a prominent operator that if the strike in West Virginia does not prove successful, the Pittsburg operators will make an effort early next week to start their mines at the 69-cent rate, the rate now asked by the strikers. They will claim that as they are willing to pay the price asked the law must protect them in the operation of their mines.

Killed by Jumping From Train.

Haverhill, Mass., July 19.—Charles H. Chase, aged 27, of Boston, jumped from a train at East Kingston yesterday and was killed instantly, his head being terribly crushed. Chase for some time past has been the proprietor of the cigar stand in the "Old Elm" restaurant on Tremont street, Boston, opposite the Common. Young Chase was a nephew of Charles E. Sleeper, manager of Hotel Plaza, Columbus avenue. Mr. Chase was on his way home to remain over Sunday.

Poker Players Arrested.

Lewiston, Me., July 19.—Captain Scannell of the Lewiston police force and State Detective Fred L. Odlin raided two places on Main street in this city late Saturday night, and in the two places caught 22 men playing poker. The names of the men were taken and they were ordered to report at the municipal court this morning. The officers refused to divulge the names of the men, but it is rumored that a number of quite prominent citizens are among them.

Edward Charles Baring Dead.

London, July 19.—Edward Charles Baring, first baron Revelstoke, is dead. He was born in 1828 and was created a baron in 1885. He was formally director of the bank of England, and was the senior partner of the firm of Baring Bros., financiers.

Senator Gorman Has Recovered.

Laurel, Md., July 19.—Senator Gorman is entirely recovered from his recent indisposition and will resume his senatorial duties today.

Conductor Injured.

J. A. Stetson Pierce, a conductor on the Quincy & Boston street railway, met with quite an accident Saturday evening. He was taking fares on the car that left Quincy Point for City Square about 8 o'clock. The car was crowded with people returning from the picnic at the grove and many were riding on the running board. When near the corner of Washington and Pond street Mr. Pierce attempted to pass from one seat to another and in order to do so he had to reach around several men who were standing on the running board. In doing so his hand slipped and he fell into the street striking on the back of his head. The car was stopped and he was taken aboard unconscious and carried into the street railway office and Dr. Gordon summoned, after which he was taken to his home. He was severely bruised and shaken up, but it is thought he is not seriously injured.

Water on Brackett Street.

The water department is engaged today in repairing a leak on Brackett street, which started Sunday forenoon. The pipe through this street was laid many years ago by the gas company, and being small and of poor quality, soon gave away under the pressure, so that the water department has been called upon to expend more in repairs on this short pipe than would suffice for the laying of new pipe along the whole street. A petition was presented to the Commissioners two years ago, signed by every householder on the street, praying that the service be extended through the whole street, but the department while attentive to the wants of newer portions of the city, ignored the reasonable prayer of the Brackett street people.

Davidson—Geddes.

The marriage of Mr. Joseph R. Davidson and Miss Edith L. Geddes took place on Wednesday afternoon, July 14, Rev. W. H. Rogers acting as the officiating clergyman at his own home on Adams street. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Davidson took the train at Milton for a brief vacation among New Hampshire hills. Their many friends in East Milton will be glad to know that in the near future they expect to become citizens of this pleasant suburb, as Mr. Davidson has made arrangements to build a house very soon on a lot which he has purchased on Edge Hill road.

At His Front Door.

About 7 o'clock Saturday evening, one of Winslow's two-horse express teams, heavily loaded with barrels and cases of beer, was passing down Washington street, and when near the residence of Henry H. Faxon one of the rear wheels was smashed. Quite a crowd soon collected, but whether or not Henry succeeded in securing a case for Sunday is not known.

Copeland Street Sewer.

Work on the Copeland street sewer was commenced in earnest this morning. Two openings have been made, one at the junction of Copeland and Granite street and the other half way between that point and the junction of Copeland and Crescent street and both are working toward the West Quincy depot.

A FLEET OF TWELVE

With Over Fifty Aboard Sailing Along the North Shore.

On Annual Cruise of the Quincy Yacht Club.

The Yachts and Their Passengers—The Run to Marblehead.

The Quincy Yacht Club's second annual cruise was started auspiciously on Saturday afternoon. Just before starting time a slight tempest came up and made things interesting for the boys. The Dorothy, with Capt. Frank F. Crane at the helm came bowling down the river before the squall and dropped anchor off the yacht club float. The Mudjekeewis, Vice-Commodore Davis, followed close behind, and made for the club float.

Commodore Sanborn had the large schooner yacht Bonita of Marblehead as his flag-ship.

After the squall had passed over, the squadron got under way, the Mudjekeewis and Dorothy leading the way and getting the first guns. They were closely followed by the Gismonda, Capt. Charles F. Colby; the Vexer, Capt. William H. Shaw; the Stella Manning, Capt. E. B. Glover, the Thisbe, Capt Herbert W. Robbins, and the Moondyne, Capt. Arthur J. Shaw.

Before the squadron got a third of the way to Winthrop the air petered out, leaving the boats to work down there in what come near being a calm.

Fleet Captain Saville very ably assisted Commodore Sanborn in his duties.

The squadron arrived at Winthrop at a little after six o'clock. Commodore Leighton of the Winthrop Yacht club immediately came along side of the flag ship and tendered the courtesies of the club house and floats to the visiting yachtsmen.

As this was the day of the Winthrop Yacht club's grand open regatta the evening was a particularly brilliant culmination to the day's programme, there being a hop at the club house, illumination and open house by a number of the Winthrop fleet.

Commodore Sanborn, Secretary Whiting, Dr. Hunting, Mr. E. W. Newcomb, Mr. Fred B. Rice, Mr. George W. Jones and Mr. Gordon M. Keating of the flag ship were guests of the club in the evening as well as many other members of the Quincy Yacht club.

On Sunday morning the fleet got under way for Marblehead. The twelve boats of the squadron, made a beautiful picture as they stood off down the bay on the port tack.

On board of the Bonita was Commodore Sanborn, Fleet Captain Saville, Secretary Whiting, Ex-Commodore Pettengill, Dr. N. S. Hunting, Mr. Edward W. Newcomb, Mr. George W. Jones, Mr. Fred. B. Rice, Mr. Horace F. Spear, Mr. Arthur T. Reed, Mr. Gordon M. Keating, Mr. Frank Dunbar.

Mudjekeewis,—Vice Commodore Edwin E. Davis, Mr. L. M. Abbott, Dr. F. S. Davis, Mr. E. L. Crane, Mr. Charles F. Crane and Mr. Frank M. Tallman.

Dorothy,—Capt. Frank F. Crane, Capt. E. H. Doane, Mr. John McKnight and Mr. J. W. Nightingale.

Gismonda,—Capt. Charles F. Colby and Mr. Fred. E. Jones.

Stella Manning,—Capt. E. B. Glover, Mr. G. W. Glover, Mr. B. J. Basch and Mr. George Rosnoski.

Omeme,—Capt. H. W. Barker, Mr. Arthur B. Holden, Mr. F. Chipman, Mr. A. A. Hodgman and Mr. C. H. Davis.

Moondyne,—Capt. A. J. Shaw, Mr. Elmer Brazer and Mr. H. C. Stevens.

Helen,—Capt. Robert Sawtelle and Mr. Miller.

Privateer,—Capt. A. E. Schaaf, Mr. C. E. Backus, Jr., and party.

Thisbet—Capt. and Mrs. Herbert W. Robbins.

Vexer,—Capt. William H. Shaw, Prince H. Tirrell, Jr., Ferdon Shaw and Josephus Shaw.

Cleopatra,—Capt. Henry Faxon, Mr. Robert E. Porter and Mr. Morrison.

On the run down to Marblehead as the flag ship was crossing Fawn bar a large cat, which was on the port tack attempted to cross the Bonita's bow. The Bonita being on the starboard tack and consequently having the right of way, Capt. Trefry, her sailing master, kept her on her course and impaled the cat's mainsail on her bow-sprit. It was but the work of a few minutes, however, to clear the cat. The run to Marblehead was otherwise uneventful.

When the squadron left Winthrop the wind was strong from the east. This necessitated a beat down the coast to Marblehead. Before Half-way Rock was reached the wind began to fag. By 6.30 the air had died out. Several of the squadron were caught in this calm so that their time does not appear in this result, which is the elapsed time.

QUINCY MAN ROBBED.

At the Nantasket R. R. Station Yesterday Afternoon.

One of our citizens had his pocket book taken from his pant's pocket yesterday afternoon, while waiting to purchase a ticket to East Weymouth. The affair would not have been made public, probably, but he afterwards learned that it was a common occurrence, and he wishes to warn our citizens who visit the noted summer resorts to be on their guard.

The facts are these: About six o'clock the unfortunate gentlemen went to the station to purchase a ticket to East Weymouth. On arriving there, a large number were standing around the depot waiting for a train, and many were in the passageway which is long and narrow, leading to the ticket office. As it was about time for a train he did not pay any particular attention to the crowd, but went for a ticket. As the crowd moved very slow it was some minutes before he was able to get to the window. On purchasing his ticket, with some change he had in his vest pocket, he moved back and discovered at once before leaving the station, that his wallet was gone. It contained a few dollars in bills, some checks, and other papers of value.

Instead of leaving on the train he waited until after the crowd was gone, and then told the ticket seller and asked him if there was any officer there whom he could notify. The agent told him it would be of little use, as it was a common occurrence, sometime as many as twenty a day were stolen. If the agent's statement is true, although it seems hardly probably, the railroad company should post notices warning their patrons to beware of pick pockets, and also have detectives there to protect the people, and arrest the rascals.

The unfortunate man noticed in front of him a person who seemed to be in no hurry to move along; and when he got up to the window the man did not purchase any ticket, or even ask for any, or show any signs that he wanted a ticket. Probably he was in league with one or two other pals who did the work.

FENCE AT WOLLASTON.

Railroad Patrons Must Now Cross the Beale Street Bridge.

The result of the recent visit of the Railroad Commissioners to Wollaston is far from pleasing to the people of Wollaston, for the railroad has acted promptly, and in place of a pretty view, the business houses on Newport avenue, now see staring them in the face, a six-foot board fence.

The fence, which extends from Beale street bridge to near Brook street, is built along the edge of the sidewalk at the west side of the tracks, making it impossible for people from the Newport avenue side to reach the trains except by climbing, or going around the northerly end of the fence, or passing over Beale street bridge. It will be sport for a while watching people sprinting for the trains.

That the people in general are indignant is expressing it mildly, and they are provoked with those who wanted protection.

The storekeepers on Newport avenue are damaged as much as railroad patrons are inconvenienced, but they seem to think that they will have to accept it and try to look pleasant, for they think that things have gone so far now that it would do no good to kick. The only relief they can get is to have Brook street extended under the tracks, and this will again be brought to the notice of the City Council at an early date.

When the Commissioners visited Wollaston they did not favor the building of a fence between the two tracks, and the railroad objected to the building of a subway under the tracks. As it was protection the people wanted, the railroad evidently think the course adopted the only way to give it.

Quincy Milliners Warned.

An officer of the State police has been among the milliners of the city today notifying them of the law relative to birds and feathers. He said it was against the law now to have them on sale as well as to sell them. One of the milliners who has a stock of these goods probably worth over $100 is said to have treated the officer very coolly. All birds and feathers seem to come under the ban of the law, and will have to be sacrificed or sold out of the State.

Castle Italiano.

Mr. Faxon's Italian tenants are evidently fond of beer, as two loads were delivered at the "Castle" the past week. The cases are not marked as required by the new law relative to the transportation of liquor, but delivered in bulk to the keeper, who in turn doles it out to his charges. The beer worked unfavorably Saturday evening and Sunday morning and residents in that quarter of the city were treated to medley of Italian songs interspersed with aggravating yells.

TODAY'S COURT.

Lawrence Lewis was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The case of Jane M. McLaughlin for drunkenness was placed on file.

The case of David A. Shannon for drunkenness at Milton was again continued for four weeks.

PRIZE WINNERS.

At the Sports at the Stone-Cutters' Picnic.

Large Attendance, Good Order and an Enjoyable Time.

Prizes for Dancers Won by James Rose and Ben Casner.

The tenth annual picnic and reunion of the granite cutters and tool sharpeners on Saturday was a complete success. The attendance was large, and perfect order being maintained, everything was very enjoyable. The officers of the affair which included Alex. Mundie chairman, John Johnston treasurer, and F. P. Foley secretary, did all in their power for the comfort and pleasure of those present and the result was most gratifying.

For the sport lovers a long list of sports was provided which were under the direction of the following committee: William Marshall chairman, James Copland, ringmaster, John S. Odom referee of bicycle races, William Lamb starter for bicycle races.

Summer Furniture

It's an acknowledged fact that half the people of this world don't know how to live comfortably.

The furniture man is always contriving something new to add to comfort and lessen cost. It's far better to discard upholstered furniture these hot days and add a few pieces of new Summer Furniture. It's inexpensive, cool and refreshing, to say nothing of being easy to care for and wonderfully comfortable.

Our Summer Furniture is worthy your inspection. Divans, Rockers and Easy Chairs in grass cloth; Mammouth Rockers and Comfort Chairs in reeds and splints, finished in moss-green and natural; Piazza Rockers and Chairs, Lawn Settees and Hammocks.

Enjoy a comfortable life while you live. Misfortunes may come later, and a life of regrets is the most miserable of all lives to live.

BLANKED FOR FIVE INNINGS.

But the T. R. & S. Boys Braced up and Won Handily.

The Cambridge Reds were taken into camp by the T. R & S. Co. team at Merry Mount park Saturday afternoon. For a while it looked as if the home team's record of straight victories would be broken, but in the sixth some good batting tied the score, and costly errors on the part of the visitors, helped out by opportune stick work, brought in 6 runs in the eighth. The features of the game were the battery work of Murphy and Stronach and the fine fielding of the T. R. & S. infield. Rache put up a fine game for the visitors.

This is one of a series of original and copyrighted stories which will soon be published in this paper.

HOUGHS NECK.

An Association for Improvement of Great Hill.

Cottagers to Make Subscriptions for the Band Concerts.

Schools of Mackerel Reported—Personals of Interest.

The residents of the north side of Great Hill held a meeting last Friday evening and organized the Quincy Great Hill Improvement Association. The officers elected were: President, Herbert M. Gragg; secretary and treasurer, Arthur L. Reed. The development and improvement of Great hill are the purposes of the association. Great hill will soon vie with the hill at Hull. Association work can accomplish much with little cost to the individual.

The band concerts and the hurdy gurdy parties have put considerable life into Houghs Neck, and few summer resorts are so well favored every day. Nantasket has band concerts on Sundays but Houghs Neck has them every afternoon and evening except Saturday night. They bring the cottagers out and together and the news is spreading to Quincy and suburbs so that more people visit the beach.

Mrs. Hallowell and daughter Gladys from Roxbury, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Gardner, and Mrs. Smith from Boston, Mr. M. Lloyd of Boston are guests at the Loretto.

One of the advantages of Houghs Neck to the cyclers, is they can have the free use of a bicycle pump and their wheels checked free.

Mr. Henry Hoey of the Boston Herald, spent Sunday with his folks at the Bo-Peep.

Mr. M. P. Pierson and family of Dorchester have leased the Pierce cottage for the summer.

The blackberry season has opened. Several pickers are out already.

Mr. Patrick Kelliher was in the party of three who came within an inch of drowning Thursday night.

It is said that Houghs Neck has the name of having the best built houses of any resort adjoining Boston.

It is hoped soon that the Manet Land Associates will repair the tide box on Winthrop street near the flats.

Master Moses Hoey while bathing cut his foot very severely the other day.

Mr. J. P. Jennings and family from Sharon have leased a cottage on Manet avenue and will spend the summer months there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Packard, Master Maurice Packard, Mr. and Mrs. William Flemming of the Outlook cottage spent Saturday at Nantasket.

Mrs. J. A. McIlvene was a guest at the Outlook cottage last week.

The runs to Winthrop and Marblehead by the fleet of the Quincy Yacht club is reported at length in another column with the names of yachts and crews.

Master William Fitts and Fred Hoey, young fishermen of the Neck, made quite a haul Saturday; they caught three dozen tom-cod.

Mackerel are commencing to be very thick; a large school was seen off Nut Island last week.

The collectors for the band concerts will soon go among the cottagers, and it is expected they will give freely.

The Winthrop Race.

The wind was light and fluky for the open race at Winthrop on Saturday and only 14 yachts finished. The Emma C and Harbinger took the prizes in the first with Little Peter third. The order in the second class was Muriel, Nettie and Whisper. The Gosling withdrew in the knockabouts giving the Fly a walkover. The Wrinkle and Cleopatra had it close in the third class, the former taking first prize by 23 seconds, and Alison finishing third; the Arab, Omeme and others in this class withdrew. Only 25 seconds separated the Vitesse, Alpine and Fantasy on actual time, and their corrected time was in the order given; the Hector was fourth while the Sphinx and others withdrew. The Fly, Vitesse, Alpine and Fantasy were protested.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Margaret Gerry is visiting in Brockton.

Driver Faircloth of the Hook & Ladder truck is taking his vacation.

Miss Anna Goodridge has gone to North Scituate beach for a brief outing.

A communication relative to bathing at Wollaston beach will appear in tomorrow's issue.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. King have returned from a two weeks' vacation at Stockton Springs, Me.

Miss Faircloth of Mount Morris, New York, is visiting Miss Elizabeth Sullivan of Quincy avenue.

The road scraper has made an improvement on Canal street today, cleaning out the gutters in approved style.

The riding on the street railway Sunday was unusually heavy and is said to have exceeded any day in its history.

Henry H. Faxon is building a brick sidewalk on the southerly side of Saville street, between Hancock street and the depot.

When was Quincy avenue changed to Water street? A Water street sign has been in front of the electric light station for some weeks.

Mrs. P. P. Kittredge and grand daughter, Miss Ethel Kittredge, are registered at Gillis hotel, Bradford, N. H., for the month of July.

It is reported that Mr. Michael Minahan of Bates avenue, caught the largest rat in Quincy on Friday morning. The body was about ten inches long.

Mr. G. Arthur Gray, Botolph street, entertained last Saturday several friends from Boston and Malden; a dip in the briny deep being included.

Mr. Lester W. Huntley and Master Raymond Huntley of Brockton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Page of Beach street, Wollaston park.

Mr. John Federhen, 3d, left, with his son, John 4th, today for Raymond, N. H. His son will remain and return with his mother. Mr. Federhen returns Wednesday.

Annual picnic of Washington Street Congregational church Sunday school next Thursday, July 22, at Highland Park, Avon. Special car leaves the church at 8 30 sharp.

The concert and dance in aid of the Sacred Heart Sunday school will be held at Music hall. It will consist of a play entitled the Wrecker's Daughter" with an afterpiece entitled "Girl Wanted." Dancing will follow.

The band concert in City Square Saturday night was enjoyed by a very large crowd; in fact the largest yet. The evening was pleasant which brought out many, while others who came from the picnic at Lovells grove remained to listen to the concert, which was an excellent one.

Among those from Quincy at the Isles of Shoals last week were Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Hall, Mr. Arthur W. Hall and Miss May Merrill. Saturday three more from this city went to this resort, Mrs. Charles F. Pierce, Mrs. Charles Follett and Miss Newcomb of Adams street.

The run of the Triangle Wheelmen next Wednesday evening will be to visit the Rockland cycle club. Arrangements have been made for a reception by the Rockland wheelmen, and as the Quincy boys have always been well entertained by them, there will probably, a large number go. Start will be at 7 o'clock.

Two valuable 2-year old fillies, one black and the other a roan, owned by John R. Graham were missing Sunday. The colts were out at pasture on Sumner street and they disappeared sometime between Saturday night and Sunday morning, but whether they strayed away or were taken by some unknown parties is not known. The missing colts turned up all right today. It seems that James McIntyre found them in his garden Sunday morning and locked them up for safe keeping in his stable.

—"So strong is the influence wielded by conscience, and so frequently does it cause the wrong-doer to atone for his sin, that for the past 85 years the Conscience Fund has been officially recognized as one of the regular sources of revenue for the United States Government," writes Clifford Howard in the June Ladies' Home Journal. "During this time the consciences of the American people have added to Uncle Sam's resources at the rate of about 300 dollars a month, or a total sum up to the present year of something over $300,000—the amounts of the individual contributions varying from a few cents to several thousand dollars.

NEW IDEAS IN DRESS.

Partial Revival of the Polonaise—Sleeves and Accessories.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—Some call them tunics and some call them "polynaises," and the English girls call them "tops," so that it is difficult to know just what to call them, but they are really overdresses, bearing some resemblance to the tunic and also to the polonaise of old. They are cut wide in the back and still wider in front and finished at the neck and shoulders like a dress, but at the waist line they are belted in sometimes with a leather or kid belt and at the others with one of stiffened velvet ribbon. The garment reaches in one line broken only by the belt from neck to foot, and it is open on the sides. One was made of barred silk grenadine over silk in light gray. The bars were green and lilac. Down the front there was a ruffle of silk mull to match the underskirt, and the same sort of ruffle extended around the bottom and up the sides of the garment. A milliner's fold of silk was set just above the ruffle. There was a collar formed of the grenadine, bordered with a wide silk mull plaiting and three very narrow ones above. The whole costume was considered a very stylish one. It is well that it is stylish, for it certainly is not beautiful. I should not have gone to such pains to describe it were it not that we are to have more than one of such garments this fall. Some of them will be shorter in front and as long in the back. Some will be draped.

From a private letter from Paris I am informed that many nimble fingers are now busy embroidering black velvet polonaises with black silk in heavy designs, picked out with fine cut jet beads and edged with beaded fringe. Heavy ribbed silk is also seen in the hands of the workers for other of these garments. Cashmere double and alys cloth and bengaline are also among the stuffs employed to make these tunics, or polonaises, as one prefers to call them, I should add. In the fine goods the garments are fitted with center and side seams, likewise darts, and no belts will be worn. In short, they will resemble very closely the old time polonaise.

The new sleeves are very tight, loose, short or long, snug at the wrists or flaring, just as it pleases the wearer to have them. A very pretty sleeve for thin stuff has the bottom cut flaring, and is trimmed with inch wide insertion in three rows down the center, where the whole is finished with a lace frill. At the top there is one cap made of the goods plaited bias, and over that a fall of lierre lace just as wide as the cap.

Today I came across something unusually pretty. It is intended to be worn with plain gowns, and is suitable for ladies of almost all ages. This was a "pair of bretelles" in pale blue silk muslin, black velvet ribbon and ribbon tabs of moire of the same pale blue to hang in the back. The silk mull front parts were arranged so as to fall a little below the belt in front in apron fashion. The belt is of the moire ribbon and is closely draped to the back, where there are one knot and two upward loops, each bordered with the three rows of black velvet ribbon and a gathered ruffle of the mull. Where the bretelles are gathered at the shoulder they are held under bows of the moire. This is very dressy and much prettier than one might think from the description, in which I forgot to mention that the ruffle extends all around the outer edges.

There is a new lace wrought of thick braid and lace stitch. The braid forms the designs, and the lace stitch holds them together, and the result is fine and rich. Figaros, etons and funny little empire jackets are made of it, and it makes a rich addition to a simple dress.

Among things of minor note one may say that white cuffs are rarely seen now on shirt waists. The wrists are most often finished with a bias plaiting of the waist material. Veils are of crepe lisse and silk tissue, generally white or pearl with a couple of silk stripes along the edge. A few still affect the green, red, blue or brilliant purple net veils to match colors in the hat, but in almost every case these are frightfully unbecoming. There are some very fancy oxford ties with arabesque patterns of kid or leather stitched on a foundation of suede or prunella. There are also new russet shoes where the toes are of brown patent leather and the rest of suede in rather light shade. OLIVE HARPER.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Preparing to Move Grain.

Kansas City, July 19.—Long trains of empty freight cars have rolled out of Kansas City for two weeks and dropped off in twos, threes, fives on side tracks along the lines of railways in Missouri, Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma. These empty cars, of which there are thousands, will be filled with new '97 wheat inside of four or five weeks. A tremendous grain rush is expected, and the best of management by railroad officials will be needed to prevent a huge grain blockade or a grain car famine. Conservative estimates of crop statisticans place the yield of wheat for this year in Kansas alone at 60,000,000 bushels.

Death of General Velasquez.

New York, July 19.—A dispatch to The Herald from Valparaiso, Chili, says: General Jose Velasquez, the most brilliant officer in the old Chilian army, and one who did distinguished service throughout the Pacific war, died in this city Saturday of lung disease. General Velasquez had served his country in the army for more than 40 years. During the last few years of his life he was subject to great persecution by his enemies in power, owing to his allegiance to Balmaceda. Finally, in 1895, he was forced to retire. Since that time he had lived quietly at Valparaiso.

Girl Waylaid and Beaten.

Andover, Mass., July 19.—Henrietta Davis, 16 years old, a domestic in the family of Stephen Abbott, was waylaid by a stranger while on her way home from Sunday school yesterday. The girl was walking down the turnpike when a man approached and asked her to go berrying. She refused and attempted to run away, but the man threw a coat over her head, choking and beating her into insensibility. The girl was found later, the man evidently being frightened away. A body of citizens are in pursuit of the girl's assailant.

Off For Greenland.

Boston, July 19.—The work of loading the balance of the Hope's cargo was continued yesterday, and Lieutenant Peary will sail today as early as the job is completed and the tide will allow. All the party are now on board and are eager to be off on their long journey. The ship was open to visitors all yesterday and hundreds swarmed over her sides and about the decks. In the evening and far into the night they stood in groups on the wharf and looked at the boat and made comments.

Reed's Name Applauded In Church.

Old Orchard, Me., July 19.—In his sermon at the Christian Workers' convention at the camp ground yesterday, Rev. Dr. L. B. Bates of Boston incidentally referred to the congressional contest over the sugar schedule, and complimented Speaker Reed on his opposition to the Sugar trust. At the mention of Reed's name the audience burst into applause.

A Revengeful Mute.

Chelsea, Mass., July 19.—A deaf mute named Charles R. Farenholt was arrested yesterday charged with setting fire to a stable on Maverick street an hour before. The police say he has confessed. Revenge for having been discharged by his brothers, who occupied the building, is said to have been his motive.

Close of Epworth League Convention.

Toronto, July 19.—Five monster farewell rallies last night closed the greatest convention the Epworth league has ever held. All five meetings were marked by great outbursts of religious fervor.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

LAST WEEK OF TARIFF

The Dingley-Allison Bill Is Now on Its Final Passage.

Leaders Worked Yesterday on Conference Report.

Democrats In the House Are Not Expected to Cause Any Delay.

Washington, July 19.—The conference report on the tariff bill will be laid before the Democratic members of the conference committee today if the government printers are able to complete it. The details of every item of difference have been agreed upon between the two houses, so far as th Republicans are concerned, and half a dozen experts were at work all yesterday in the room of the senate committee on appropriations. Senator Allison, Senator Burrows, Governor Dingley, Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Payne of New York looked in during the day to see how the work was progressing and to settle puzzling questions in the preparation of the bill. The work was being so energetically pushed that the clerks of the two committees on appropriations of the two houses were called in to give their assistance, because of their familiarity with conference reports.

The bill cannot be taken up in the senate until it has been disposed of in the lower branch, so that the managers will be fortunate if they secure a final vote in both houses before the close of this week.

Final adjournment of congress is not likely to come until early in the following week, even if there is no disposition to debate the bill at great length in the senate.

All along the Republican leaders have been disposed to allow but one day for debate in the house, and while they still believe one day would be sufficient, after discussing the question, they decided to disarm the points the minority would be sure to make and the general criticism that the report was to be dragooned through the house, and give two full days for debate. The report must, of course, be acted upon by the house before it is considered in the senate. The committee on rules will prepare a rule which will bring a vote on the report before adjournment on Tuesday. The rule will be presented and adopted as soon as the conferees make their report, probably this afternoon. The debate will immediately follow.

The South Carolina dispensary bill will be used to consume time until the report is brought in. It is not believed that a single Republican vote in the house will be recorded against the report.

The program in the senate is much more indefinite on account of the wide latitude allowed for debate, and the absence of any parliamentary method of bringing the report to a vote. The Democratic senators, it is safe to presume from their talk, intend to assail the compromise on sugar to which the conferees agreed, and to make a pretty stiff fight against the restoration to the dutiable list of cotton bagging, cotton ties, burlaps, etc., which they succeeded with the aid of the Populists and one or two Republicans in placing on the free l . They will make strong opposition to the restoration of white pine to the house rate of $2 per thousand. Some of the Democratic senators discussed the possibility of defeating the report in the senate on the presumption that they might be able to secure as many votes against the report as they did to place those articles on the free list. But no one imagines seriously that the report is in any danger in the senate when it comes to a final vote. And, moreover, the most prominent of the Democratic senators freely express the opinion that the fight in the senate, though it may be spirited, will be brief. They believe a vote will be reached within three days in the senate.

The parliamentary procedure on conference reports may have an important bearing on the course of this debate in the senate. A question has arisen as to the parliamentary practice. It is the established procedure to consider conference reports as an entirety, so that no vote can be taken on a separate feature of the report. This report must be accepted or rejected as a whole. This practice becomes important in view of the desire among those opposing the bill to secure a separate vote on sugar, lumber, cotton, ties, cotton bagging and other items which have aroused exceptional interest.

Two Western Men Die at Poland.

South Poland, Me., July 19.—Hon. H. F. Barnard, a prominent lawyer and judge of San Antonio, Tex., died at the Poland Springs House Friday night of abscess of the lung. He had arrived a few days previously and was taken sick at Boston, where he remained a week. The remains were forwarded to St. Louis for interment. C. B. Jones of Sheboygan, Wis., who arrived at the Poland Springs House Wednesday in a dangerous state, died Friday. He was a prominent lumberman.

Tewfik Pasha's Scheme Rejected.

Constantinople, July 19.—At Saturday's sitting of the peace conference Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish minister of foreign affairs, arrived late. He submitted to the conference a new frontier scheme, which was unacceptable to the powers, and the ambassadors thereupon informed Tewfik that the conference would adjourn until he brought a written acceptance by his government of the frontier line traced by the military attaches.

Brothers' Fatal Quarrel.

New York, July 19.—James Flynn, 25 years old, of Brooklyn, and his brother William, 23 years old, of New York, quarrelled at the former's residence yesterday, and during the altercation William drew a knife and stabbed James twice in the abdomen. William was arrested.

Woman Killed by Thunderbolt.

Erie, Pa., July 19.—Mrs. Horace Noble, a prominent lady of this city, was instantly killed at Gills Park, near here, yesterday, by a flash of lightning. She was sitting in the parlor with some companions when the house was struck. None of the others were hurt.

TRADE WITH HAWAII.

Department of Agriculture Issues a Statistical Circular of Interest at This Time.

Washington, July 19.—Hawaiian commerce during the last 10 years is the subject of a circular just issued by the department of agriculture. The paper was prepared by F. H. Hitchcock, chief of the division of foreign markets, under the direction of Secretary Wilson. The facts set forth bear directly upon the current discussion of the annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States and are as follows:

"The comparison of statistics shows that the United States controls 90 per cent of the entire trade of the islands. The total value of exports and imports of Hawaii for 1896 was $21,578,882, of which about two-thirds, $15,515,230 was the value of goods exported. The average of exports of the 10 years, 1887-1896, was $11,052,141, and of imports, $5,422,459, leaving an average balance of $5,628,681 in favor of exports.

On this traffic 91.2 per cent was with the United States during the first five years of the decade, and in the second five years this lead of this country over other countries was increased to 91.92 per cent. Another impression of the situation may be gained from the statement that our trade with the island in 1896, according to Hawaiian statistics, reached $20,924,396, the largest amount ever recorded, while the highest figures previously were for 1890, when a total of $14,332,631.80 was reported.

The United States, however, does not yet hold so high a position in furnishing goods for Hawaii as in taking the products of the islands. If the average of exports for the 10 years, nearly $11,000,000 a year, the United States has bought practically all. Only ½ of 1 per cent has been sold to other countries. Of the goods purchased by Hawaii on the other hand, the United States furnished only about three-fourths.

However, it is chiefly in our sales to the islands that the trade is growing. The annual average of these sales for the five years, 1887-1891, was $4,376,312, but for 1891-96, $4,496,275, while the exports to Hawaii for last year amounted to $5,464,205, nearly $1,000,000 more than for any previous year.

The goods coming from Hawaii to the United States are mainly agricultural products, while the shipments in the other directions, except breadstuffs, are chiefly manufactured. Our imports of sugar make the largest item in the trade, while our imports of rice come next. Next in order are our exports of breadstuffs, cotton goods, fertilizers, machinery, lumber, tobacco, wire and chemicals. It is noticeable that shipments of American live stock, meats, apples and corn amount to very little.

Prior to 1876, when the first reciprocity treaty was made between the United States and Hawaii, their total commerce averaged only $1,950,496. Since that date a comparatively steady growth has brought the total to more than five times that amount. Figures are furnished for the first 10 months of the fiscal year 1897, as compared with the same period in 1896. They show large increases in the important items of trade. The other countries whose trade with Hawaii appears to be growing are China and Japan, taken together, and Canada.

Thought to Have Been Suicide.

Gloucester, Mass., July 19.—The dead body of C. C. Farrington of Cambridge was found yesterday on Avenue beach, Annisquam. Mr. Farrington was a highly respected and well-known citizen of Cambridge, and retired from business about a year ago on account of poor health, and has made his home with his father-in-law, J. H. Hall. It is believed to have been a case of suicide. Mr. Farrington was about 45 years of age, and leaves a widow.

Spain Sympathizes With England.

Madrid, July 19.—The press of this city expresses sympathy with England over the Sherman incident, and criticises the conduct of the American government as likely to lead sooner or later to energetic action on the part of the powers to check the aggressive tendencies of America's new foreign policy.

SOLBERG APPOINTED.

Well Known Boston Literateur Will Be Register of Copyrights.

Washington, July 19.—Thorvald Solberg of Boston has been appointed register of copyrights. Librarian John Russell Young notified him of his selection on Saturday, and yesterday Mr. Solberg wired his acceptance and stated that he would take charge of the department tomorrow morning. There was a large number of applicants for the position, which, next to that of the chief assistant librarian, is the most important place of the staff of the new library.

Mr. Solberg is a native American citizen. He was born in Wisconsin in 1852. For 13 years he was employed in the congressional library, and eight years since was picked out by the Boston Book company as the best man in the country to take charge of one of its most important departments. Letters and telegrams were sent by the Authors' Copyright league, the Century company, Harper Bros., D. Appleton & Co., and other leading publishing houses strongly urging Mr. Solberg's appointment.

Escaped From Asylum.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 19.—Howell C. Rees, president of the Phoenix Gas company of Mattewan, who was taken into custody in the Manhattan hotel in New York and committed to Dr. Ferguson's private sanitarium for the insane at Central Valley, Orange county, escaped from that institution Saturday night. His attorney, James G. Meyer of Mattewan, had secured from the supreme court Justice Barnard in this city a writ of habeas corpus, returnable on Tuesday, and at the very time that Rees was making his escape his lawyer was at the sanitarium serving the writ on the superintendent and trying to see his client. Rees made his escape from the institution early Saturday evening. He said after he had been committed to the sanitarium that his clothing was taken away from him so that he could not escape. He managed to get a suit from a wardrobe and to secret it in a closet, where there was an open window. Wrapped in a sheet he entered this closet and slipped into the clothes. Then he escaped through the window and made for the woods. He tells a thrilling story of being pursued by keepers and dogs, whom he eluded by crossing and recrossing a stream several times. He walked all night and finally reached Mattewan shortly after daybreak, going to the home of his lawyer, to whom he told his story. Mr. Meyer came to Poughkeepsie at once with Rees and sought out Judge Barnard at the latter's home. The facts were laid before the judge, who wrote a letter to Superintendent Pilgrim of the Hudson river state hospital for the insane, asking him to permit Rees to remain there until the hearing on Tuesday. The unfortunate man accompanied his lawyer to the institution willingly. He claims that he is not insane, and that his incarceration is due to the differences with his father over business matters.

Tramp Thrown From Car.

Philadelphia, July 19.—Daniel Carron, a tramp, was thrown from a freight car on the Pennsylvania railroad near Overbrook, on the outskirts of this city yesterday during a fight, and was killed. His assailant was Richard Wilson who says he lives in New York, and through stress of circumstances has been forced to steal a ride to some other city in the hopes of gaining work at his trade. He fell in with Carron and some others. They were riding in the same car when they began quarrelling, with the above result. Wilson was arrested. His condition does not indicate that he is a tramp. He says he is a peperhanger by trade. He wore good clothes, had a change of linen, new russet shoes and had several dollars in his pockets. Carron and his companions had picked a quarrel with him, and he was forced to defend himself by striking Carron.

District Thirty, K. of L. Convention.

Marlboro, Mass., July 19.—The quarterly convention of the district assembly, No. 30, Knights of Labor was held here yesterday. The secretary-treasurer reported that during the past year five new local assemblies had been authorized, and the membership had been increased 30 per cent. The district assembly has never been so strong financially as at present. John Hurley of Charlestown was elected chief marshal of the Knights of Labor division in the Labor day parade in Boston. P. J. Byrne of Marlboro was elected a delegate to the general assembly at Louisville, with John Lowney of Charlestown as alternate.

Woodford Dined by De Lome.

Washington, July 19.—Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister, and Senora de Lome, entertained at dinner last night Hon. Stewart L. Woodford, the newly appointed minister to Spain, and Mrs. and Miss Woodford. The guests invited to meet them were: Assistant Secretaries Day and Adee of the state department; the Portuguese Minister and Viscountess Thryso, Senor Rengifo, the Colombian charge d'affaires, and Mrs. Rengifo; Dr. Merou, the Argentine minister; Miss Drain, Senor Soler, first secretary; Senor Galarza, third secretary, and Senor Almeido, attachee, respectively, of the Spanish legation.

Ellen Peck Again Wanted.

New York, July 19.—After eluding the notice of the metropolitan police for more than six years, Ellen Peck, greatest of confidence women, now nearly 70 years of age, is wanted again. Her victims this time are several residents of Brooklyn, whom she is charged with swindling out of sums aggregating $15,000. More specifically she is wanted for defrauding the late Dr. Christopher Lott of 124 Reid avenue of $10,000, an amount which represented nearly all his savings, and the loss of which is believed by his friends to have contributed largely to his death, which occurred on May 10.

No Clue to Grace Stevenson.

Brookline, Mass., July 19.—If the body of Grace Stevenson lies in the Brookline woods, yesterday's searching party, made up of seven members of the police department, a physician and a party of newspaper men, after a five-hours tramp failed to reveal the slightest trace of the missing girl. The wood and marshes around Chestnut hill reservoir and bordering on the Charles river and the Newtons were patrolled, about 20 miles being traveersed by the searchers. Nothing was discovered which could be connected in the slightest way with the missing girl.

HOUSE BREAKS TARIFF RECORD.

The Conference Report Was Adopted Shortly After Midnight.

Dingley Opened and Payne Closed the Debate.

THE OPPOSITION LED BY BAILEY.

Bill Is Now In the Senate—Conference Changes Are Not Extensive or Radical—Hide, Wool and Lumber Schedules Slightly Modified.

Washington, July 20.—The house broke all tariff records yesterday, or rather this morning when the conference report on the pending bill was adopted by a vote of 185 to 118, after only 12 hours of debate.

It will be reported to the senate today and passed, Senator Aldrich says, before the end of the week.

Senator Jones of Arkansas gave out yesterday that the opposition in the senate would insist on ample discussion, and he was trying to form a combination of Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans which would recommit the bill to the conference committee with instructions to restore cotton ties, bagging, etcetc., to the free list, and reduce the duty on white pine.

But enough Populists and Silver Republicans, to say nothing of McEnery of Louisiana, refused to join with him to make the Republican leaders confident that his attempt will fail, and that the conference report will be adopted.

The Republicans' determined action in confining the consideration of the conference report in the house to one day, following upon the quick action of the conference committee in adopting the report at its first formal meeting yesterday morning, increased the demand for prompt disposition of the bill in the senate, besides saving time, so that its passage, and even the adjournment of congress this week, may be expected.

In all 10 Democratic and one Populist speeches were made, Messrs. Wheeler of Alabama, Swanson of Virginia, Ball of Texts, Lanham of Texas, Kelly of North Dakota, Fleming of Georgia, Handy of Delaware, McDowell of Ohio, Berry of Kentucky, Bailey of Texas, and McMillin of Tennessee, being the speakers.

The sugar schedule was the main point of assault, but the most interesting feature of the debate occurred when Mr. Bailey and Mr. McMillin, the two rival Democratic leaders, crossed swords on the question of orthodoxy of the free raw material doctrine, the former opposing and the latter championing it.

Every Republican Voted Aye.

Every Republican in the house who was present voted for the report. The Democrats, with five exceptions, voted against the report. The exceptions were Slayden of Texas, Broussard of Louisiana, Meyer of Louisiana, Davey of Louisiana, Kleberg of Texas.

The Populists and silverites did not vote solidly. Mr. Shafroth of Colorado and Newlands of Nevada, silverites, abstained from voting. Mr. Hartman, silverite, of Montana, did not vote. The Populists who voted against the report were as follows:

Baker Barlow, Botkin, Fowler, Jett, Lewis, Marshall, Martin, Peters, Simpson, Strowd and Vincent. Four did not vote—Howard, Kelly, Stark and Southerland. The other Populists were absent.

An analysis of the vote shows that 180 Republicans and 5 Democrats voted for the report and 106 Democrats and 12 Populists against it.

The bill was put through the conference yesterday after two hours' discussion before the full conference committee—Democrats and Republicans—held in the senate finance committee room. At the outset the Democratic conferees asked until this morning to go over the report, saying this course was preferable to going over it with the Republicans. To test this question Mr. Vest (Dem., Mis.) moved an adjournment, which was defeated by a strict party vote.

The Democratic conferees then offered amendments to the report, but were met with the statement that it would merely consume time to urge amendments, as they would be rejected.

Representative Wheeler (Dem., Ala.) offered amendments placing cotton bagging and cotton ties on the free list; also a substitute proposition for rebates on these articles.

These and other amendments were withdrawn, however, as there was no prospect of favorable action on them. Shortly before noon Mr. Dingley moved that the report be submitted to the two houses. This prevailed by a party vote and the meeting adjourned. There was little clash during the discussion, and the Democratic members of the conference contented themselves with a protest against the report and the manner of agreeing to it.

Statement by Republicans.

The Republican conferees have made public a statement concerning the conference report, in which it reviewed the changes made.

Of sugar the statement says: The house differential between raw and refined sugars and the general features of the house schedules are preserved, and the senate amendments increasing the differential to one-fifth and providing for a reduction of 1-10th of the duty on raw sugars not above 87 degrees, which would have given a duty of 1.39 on 88 degrees sugar and only 1.26 on 87 degrees sugar, are not adopted. In deference to the wishes of those interested in beet sugar production, that the senate rate of 1.95 on refined sugar might be retained as an increased encouragement to this industry, the duty on raw sugars is increased 7½ hundredths, so as to make the increase on them the same as the increase on refined sugar and thus leave the differential between raw sugar and refined the same as in the house bill. And to meet the objection which has been urged that the house rates on low grade raw sugar show a higher ad valorem than those on the higher grades, the duty on 75-degree sugar is reduced 5 hundredths of 1 cent, and then the duty per degree increased regularly from 3 hundredths (as proposed in the house bill) to 3½ hundredths in order to raise the duty on raw sugars the same as on refined. as on refined.

By this arrangement the duty on raw sugars of 100 degrees purity is raised from 1.75 (as proposed originally by the house) to 1.82½, and the duty on refined sugar is raised from 1.87½ (as proposed originally by the house) to 1.95, thus giving the same differential of 12½ hundredths between raw and refined sugar at this point, as was originally given by the house.

As this arrangement will increase the revenue over $2,000,000, and at the same time give additional encouragement to the production of sugar in this country, it is thought to be a desirable consummation.

The act is made operative immediately upon its passage.

The provision allowing cattle, horses, sheep or other domestic animals straying or driven across the boundary line of another country for pasturage purposes to be brought back free of duty is modified so as to continue this privilege for the specified time of six months.

The paragraph relating to the free introduction of books, libraries and reasonable furniture of persons from foreign countries was simplified and altered so as to provide that where they were not introduced for sale they were to be allowed free entrance, where they had not been so used for less than one year.

The conference restored raw cotton to the free list.

The cotton schedule as a whole remains substantially the same as in the bill as it passed the house. The changes are mainly in the high grades of cotton underwear, with some modifications of hosiery.

The paragraph in regard to the free admission of fresh fish caught by American fishermen was amended so as to include salmon on the free list, which were especially excepted by the senate bill, and as agreed upon reads as follows: "Fish, fresh, frozen or packed in ice, caught in the Great Lakes or other fresh waters by citizens of the United States."

Wool Schedule.

The conference restored the house rates on first and second-class wool.

On wools of the third class and on camel's hair of the third class, valued at 12 cents or less per pound, the duty is 4 cents per pound.

On wools of the third class and on camel's hair of the third class, valued at over 12 cents per pound, the duty is 7 cents per pound.

The conference accepted the senate rate and language on wrapper and filler tobacco, except that the rate on wrapper tobacco was made $1.85 per pound instead of $1.75. The house rate on imported cigars, cigarets, etc., to $4.50 per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem, was restored. The senate made the rate $4 per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem. There were no other changes in the schedule on imported tobacco.

The following was substituted for the paragraph on hewn timber:

"Timber hewn, sided or squared (not less than eight inches square), and round timber used for spars or in building wharves, 1 cent per cubic foot."

The paragraph relating to sawed boards and planks was amended by striking out words "white pine" at $1 per 1000 feet, and by restoring the house rate on all the other items of the schedule, making the rates 50 cents per 1000 feet for each side planed or finished, $1 for tongued and grooved, and $1.50 if planed on two sides and tongues and grooved.

A compromise between the house and senate rates on cattle is agreed to. In general the duties proposed on agricultural products are the same as those in the act of 1890.

Cotton ties, which were placed on the free list by the senate, are restored to the dutiable list at a reduced duty of 5-10ths of 1 cent.

Coal is reduced to 67 cents per ton, and coal slack or culm to 15 cents per ton, as proposed by senate amendment 674.

Hide Duty Reduced.

A duty of 15 per cent is placed on hides of cattle which were placed on the free list by the house. The senate amendment proposed a duty of 20 per cent, but this was reduced to 15 per cent. A provision is added for a full drawback of the duty paid on hides subsequently exported as leather.

Paintings and statuary for private use are made dutiable, as provided by the house, but at 20 per cent.

The house and senate reciprocity plans are united and adopted with modifications. In the senate plan any commercial treaty must be approved by congress before it goes into effect, and in the house plan chicle silk, laces, sugar, mineral waters and hides have been stricken out and tonka and vanilla beans added.

The senate provision imposing an equivalent countervailing duty on imports from foreign countries which have been paid an export duty is adopted.

The free list as it passed the house is in the main adopted, except that bolting cloths and several kinds of essential oils have been added. The house provision applying a remedy to the wholesale goods in this country free of duty, by Americans visiting Europe, is substantially adopted.

The internal revenue tax amendment relating to cigars and cigarets, made by the senate, was changed to read as follows:

On cigars of all descriptions weighing more than three pounds per 1000, $3 per 1000; on cigars made of tobacco, or any substitute, weighing not more than three pounds per 1000, $1 per 1000; on cigarets weighing not more than three pounds per 1000, $1 per 1000.

The senate amendment providing for a tax on stocks and bonds was stricken out.

Lady Sykes In Court.

London, July 20.—Lady Jessica Sykes was summoned at the Marlborough police court yesterday by Herbert Sanguinetti, for obtaining by false pretences, with intent to defraud, checks of the value of £5300, and also converting to her own use 200 shares of stock. After formal arraignment the hearing was adjourned.

Mrs. Stevenson Goes to New York.

Boston, July 20.—Unable to find any trace of her now long lost daughter, Grace, and learning of a few clues in New York, Mrs. Stevenson, the mother of the girl, left for that city late yesterday afternoon. She will visit the Bellevue hospital and see two patients there who are said to resemble Miss Stevenson.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

A lovely shower this afternoon.

Ladies' day of the Hull Yacht club tomorrow.

Charles Chamberlin, a former resident is in town today.

The same noon temperature today a July 20 last year.

Mr. F. H. Crane and wife are at the White Mountains.

Miss C. Bessie Carter is at Curtisville for a three weeks' sojourn.

Miss Florence Dawkins of Cambridge is visiting friends in this city.

Frank Lynch of West Quincy has gone to Cottage City for a month.

Miss Mary Dolan of New York is the guest of friends at West Quincy.

Benjamin Johnson and family were at the White Mountains last week.

Miss Minnie Jameson was at the Profile House, White Mountains, last week.

Mrs. F. J. Perry and the Misses Maud and Annie Perry, of Wollaston, are spending a few weeks at East Pepperell, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Ladd have returned from their wedding trip and have taken up their residence at 15 Cross street.

Messrs. E. H. Doble & Co. are equipping their store with the oil pipe system for lighting in place of incandescent electric lights.

R. G. Patterson won the handicap golf match of the Wollaston club on Saturday, with a net score of 86. E. H. Brock had the best gross score.

Mrs. George A. Wardwell of Taylor street, Wollaston, leaves today for Livermore Falls, Maine, where she will spend a few weeks visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. Frank Southworth who was graduated from Harvard last June, has gone to Syracuse, N. Y., in the employ of Ginn & Co., school-book publishers. He is to make Syracuse his home.

Frank Scott, a young man of 21 years, of Dorchester is reported missing. On the day of his departure there was $1,000 due him on a mortgage on property in Quincy, and he is thought to have collected it.

Mrs. Millan of Arlington gives her closing circle for the summer on Wednesday at 2 P. M. at the rooms at Faxon hall. Mrs. M. A. Bonney will be at the house of Mr. Henry Chubbuck on Thursday afternoon.

The birthday party of Joseph Hogan of Cottage street on Monday from 4 to 7 was a very enjoyable occasion for his little friends. There were games and refreshments. Master Joseph received several gifts.

Co. C 4th Heavy Artillery, Capt. James H. Wade, will hold its annual reunion at the Ocean View house, Nantasket, on Wednesday. The Quincy members of the company are Ira Litchfield and Elwood Litchfield.

Where are all the men who want work? The contractor for the Copeland street section of the sewer is complaining that he can not get men enough. He has but a small gang at present. There is plenty of work for all who desire it.

The many admirers of ex-Commodore Shaw's famous yacht Mab built by Herreshoff, will be pleased to learn that she is again in commission and that she will take a party of Quincy friends of the Commodore to the ladies' day festivities of the Hull Yacht club.

The steamer Victor got stuck in the mud off the wharf at Quincy Point Monday night and the three hundred passengers bound for Boston had to be taken to Quincy on the electrics where some took the train and others continued on to Boston in the electrics.

One of the severest penalties to which criminals in Holland were in ancient times condemned was to be deprived of the use of salt.

Y. M. C. A. TO MOVE.

The Old Court Room Will be Remodelled.

Quincy & Boston Railway Will Then Occupy All Its Building.

And Will Maintain a Gymnasium and Bath for Employes.

The LEDGER stated last Friday that the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association would probably change its rooms from the Street Railway building to the old court room building on Hancock street. It has now been practically settled and the lease, which dates from August 1, has been drawn up and is ready for the signatures.

Before the Association occupies its new rooms a number of alterations are necessary and have been commenced, although the plans are not far enough advanced to allow a description.

The bath room however will be located in the judges' room and as there is considerable plumbing to do, this is where the work has been commenced.

One of the chief reasons for the changing of rooms is that the street railway company desire the use of the entire building for its own business, as they have long felt the need of more room.

The executive offices of the company will be located in the rooms now used by Association as parlor, reading and assembly room.

It is understood that the company will keep the gymnasium and bath rooms intact for the use of their employes, and that they will purchase of the Association all of the apparatus now in use in these rooms.

The Q. & B. has always taken an interest in the welfare of its men, and in providing gymnasium and bath room for their use cannot fail to win approbation.

Co. K in Camp.

Co. K of Braintree went into camp with the 5th regiment, which is a part of the second brigade, at South Framingham Monday. The 5th appears for the first time in the brown canvas working togs, introduced last year by the artillery. Even Colonel Bancroft was attired in them within ten minutes after his arrival. The details from the different commands had performed their work in a most satisfactory manner; the parade ground was as smooth as a velvet carpet, while the spaces in front of each company's headquarters looked as green and beautiful as the best-kept lawns. The camp has been pitched on the same lines as in previous years. The Fifth Infantry has the right, the Ninth comes next, and the Eighth next, Battery A, and the First Cavalry occupy the extreme left.

Brigadier General B. F. Peach, Jr., has been at headquarters since Saturday evening, and most of his staff reported yesterday. Pleasant weather is all that is desired to make this year's muster a notable one in the history of the Second Brigade.

The following will be the routine duty each day for the brigade:

Hours of service and calls are established as follows: First call, 5.30 A. M.; reveille, 5.45; sick call, 6.15; breakfast, 6.45; drill, 5th and 8th infantry, signal and ambulance corps, 7.45; adjutant's call, 8; inspection of quarters, 8.45; drill, boots and saddles, 9th infantry, battery A, 1st cavalry, 9.15; adjutant's call, 9.30; orderly hour, 12 M; dinner, 12.30 P. M.

Guard mounting, boot and saddles, 1.15; adjutant's call, 1.30; drill, 5th and 8th infantry, ambulance corps, 2; adjutant's call, 2.15; drill, boots and saddles, 9th infantry, battery A, 1st cavalry, signal corps, 3.15; adjutant's call, 3.30; first call, 5.15; adjutant's call, regimental parade, 5th and 8th infantry, 5.30; first call, boots and saddles, 5.45; adjutant's call, regimental parade, 9th infantry, 1st cavalry, 6.

Inspection and muster will take place as follows: Ambulance corps, 5.20 P. M; 9th infantry, 1st cavalry, signal corps, 5.30; battery A, 6; 5th and 8th infantry, 6; supper, 6.40; retreat, 7.15; first call, 10.15 tattoo, 10.30; taps, 11.

The Manchester Race.

Quincy is represented at the Manchester races this week by some of her crack yachts. The race of Monday was for the Crowhurst cup and was open to all boats of less than 24 feet length water line, sailing in one class. There were about 25 entries. For awhile a fog bank cut variety, so that the marks were discovered with difficulty.

The yachts to finish with owners and corrected time, follows:

PASSED AT FIFTY.

House Agreed to the Senate Increase in Granite Duty.

Hon. John Shaw received this noon a dispatch from the Ways and Means Committee of the National House, stating that the tariff bill as passed by the House concurred with the Senate in the increase of the granite duty, making it fifty per cent. on finished granite.

The tariff bill will probably become a law this week. The highest duty ever placed on granite was 40 per cent. under the McKinley act, but it was reduced by the Democrats to 30 per cent. As the duty is nearly doubled it should remove much of the foreign competition in granites.

NAKED MEN.

Should They Monopolize Beach and Drive Away Women Bathers?

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

The residents at the foot of Beach street, Wollason Park, are justly indignant at the loose manner in which some of the male bathers, who come to that place to bathe, disport themselves.

One instance Sunday was noticeable when a well-known machinist of Wollaston drove to the beach and began to change his clothing in his carriage in the public street within forty feet of a residence. When his attention was called to this act, as not being a proper thing to do, he used language that was never taught in Sabbath School.

This was his second offence this year and it is hoped that he will not repeat the performance.

The writer has heard several complaints about men being seen in an almost complete state of nudity, where people are constantly passing when the tide serves right for bathing.

It is not an uncommon sight to see from 50 to 75 men, women and children enjoying the refreshing influence of a sea bath on hot days between the Wollaston Yacht clubhouse and West Elm avenue, and it seems shameful that the improper conduct of a few thoughtless people should deprive the many of this blessed privilege of bathing. If the offenders do not change their clothing in the proper place, and dress in a manner that will be above criticism, our wives and daughters will feel obliged to remain away from the beach.

INDIGNANT.

Wollaston, July 18, 1897.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael J. Cronin and John Hallisey were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

The liquors seized from William S. Clark at Braintree were forfeited.

Charles Conners was fined $5 for assault on William P. Kelley at Braintree.

Frank Smith was arraigned for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell at Randolph. Case continued until next Wednesday.

The continued case of Ellen White of Quincy for drunkenness was further continued for two weeks.

Coal Barge Damaged.

While being towed to Sheppard's wharf, East Braintree, Sunday, barge Braddock, from South Amboy with a cargo of coal, took bottom and strained so badly that she sprang aleak and made water rapidly.

The tug Wm. Sprague, with wrecking lighter Cedar and a steam pump, went to the stranded barge and after lightering considerable of her cargo, and placing the steam pump on board, the Braddock was hauled off and is now unloading at the wharf. The damage to the barge is said to be serious.

Bathers Must Hire Room.

Upon the completion of the bath houses at the Revere Beach reservation, no one will be allowed to bathe unless he hires a room. It has been decided to charge 25 cents for room, bathing suit and towel. If one furnishes his own suit the charge will be 15 cents for room and towel. The charge for children's trunks and room will be 10 cents. Bicycles will be checked for 5 cents.

One Drowned.

A party of seven in a row boat were capsized off Point Allerton on Sunday. They had become becalmed while sailing and took to rowing, but in attempting to change places all were upset, and Miss Lilly Hillgrove of East Newton street, drowned. She was an employe of Jordon, Marsh & Co., on the silverware counter. The body was not recovered.

Czar Keeps Promise to Czarina.

London, July 20.—The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says that while celebrating the Christmas eve in the German manner, the czarina was asked by her husband to express a wish. She whispered "Please permit a little more religious toleration." The czar answered "That will come by and by." The czar has not forgotten his promise, as it has been reported, but has issued a ukase cancelling that of his father, Alexander III, which ordered that every non-orthodox person in Russia who married an orthodox person should sign a document declaring that he would baptize and educate his children in the orthodox faith. The ukase of Emperor Nicholas permits children of mixed marriages to be educated in the religion of their parents sons in that of their fathers and daughters in that of their mothers.

Trial Transferred.

New York, July 20.—Mrs. Augusta Nack and Martin Thorn, the alleged slayers of William Guldensuppe, will not be tried in New York county. They will be tried in Queens county, where it is alleged Guldensuppe was murdered. District Attorney Olcott of this county and District Attorney Youngs of Queens county have agreed that in order to escape any miscarriage of justice the trial of Mrs. Nack and Thorn will be held in Queens county. This agreement was arrived at after a conference between thetwo officials. According to the terms of the agreement Mrs. Nack and Thorn will be detained in the Tombs until the grand jury of Queens county files an indictment against the two.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

"Prudent Buyers Trade Here."

The Mammoth Store,

Selling the right kind of goods, at prices fair to pay, is turning the tide of trade our way. "If you buy it at Kincaide's, it's sure to be good," is what the people say. A typical metropolitan store right in your midst.

The croakers said it wouldn't pay but this store differs from other stores, it was a born leader at the start. No guess work here, honest made goods at prices guaranteed as low, and invariably a trifle lower for worthy goods, than at any other store in existence.

No matter what you need for your home, you're sure to find something here that's just to your notion.

Remember

Our Vegetables are always fresh and nice. Because we sell such a large amount we are obliged to buy every day, and consequently we do not have it around long enough to get poor. We have today, Peas, Butter Beans, Cranberry Beans, Beets, Cucumbers, Lettuce, New Cabbages, New Turnips, Tomatoes, and there are other kinds here.

We can say the same for our line of Groceries—a large stock, always fresh, and our prices are right.

Flour at reduced price.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

The New Woman

is spoken about a good deal in these days, but we fancy there is nothing very terrible about her.

We are of the opinion that it will be found, as time goes on, that she is anything but masculine, and that her essential womanliness is of the same noble sort which has blessed the world for generations—with perhaps the addition of just enough of the flavor of progress and up-to-dateness (so to speak) to give her an added charm.

The very newness of the new woman will make her more keenly alive than ever to all improvements in housekeeping details.

She will consider a grocery store such as ours, for example, a distinct tribute to her clearer vision and more correct taste, and will appreciate the fact, we trust, that there is an agreeable flavor of the "new man" about even the familiar groceryman.

We always welcome intelligent criticism of our store, goods and prices. We do not claim to be perfect, and when we have literally thousands of different goods to buy, it would not be wonderful if once in a while an error is made. Of CRACKERS and FANCY CAKES alone we have over FIFTY VARIETIES, from the plain common to the fancy delicate cakes. We receive these goods fresh from the bakery nearly every day, and they are always fresh.

THE BIRD LAW.

Quincy Milliners with Stock on Hand Don't Like It.

The millinery people in Quincy do not take kindly to the new bird and feather law for it does not give them time to dispose of what stock they have on hand. They are liable to be taken into court at any time for having birds and feathers in their possession.

After a while they think that the law will become a farce for several reasons. In the first place, the law is only for Massachusetts, and ladies of other states can wear birds, feathers, etc., outside of Massachusetts. Should a lady from New York with bird trimmings on her headgear visit this state she immediately places herself liable to arrest.

Aside from this there are many manufactured feathers and wings and many can not tell the real from the artificial article; certainly not without a close inspection, and it will be somewhat embarassing to a lady to be held up on the street by some man and asked to submit her hat for inspection.

However, the local millinery establishments are disposed to live up to the law, and as birds and feathers are prohibited some other ornament will probably be brought forward to replace them, which if more expensive may get back on the men.

Smaller Tax Rate.

Newburyport, a city since 1851, with a population of 14,552 in 1895, has a valuation this year of $9,660,074. or $93,466 less than last year. The real estate figures show a gain, but this is offset by the loss in resident bank shares and personal property. The figures for the year are as follows: Personal property $2,103,700, real estate $7,176,200, resident bank shares $389,174, total $9,660,074. The number of polls assessed is 3867. The tax rate this year is $15 40, or $1.10 less than last year, a reduction made possible by smaller appropriations by the city council.

Brackett Street Frightened.

Shortly before noon today word was received at the Police station that a crazy man was frightening people on Brackett street. Officer Ferguson went down and brought the man to the station. He gave his name as Thomas Fell and as Timothy A. Feeley. He was recognized as a crazy man who was arrested in Quincy nearly a year ago and later released by the court. As he is harmless he was released and permitted to go on his way.

AN OLD TIME CANDY PULL.

When the wintry stars are winkin,
Winkin at the brink o' night,
An the pale cold moon is sinkin,
Sinkin slowly out o' sight,
Then a-blinkin through my glasses,
My heart gets swellin full,
An I mind the lads an lasses
At an old time candy pull.

Thar was Mandy Jones, the parson's gal—
Lan sakes, how my heart jumps!—
An Tommy Brown, as stout a pal
As ever took life's thumps,
An Betsy Smith an Jimmony Hill,
An Sara an Mary Dowd,
Whose daddy owned the ole gristmill,
An lots more of the crowd!

I mind we met at ole Dowd's place—
His kitchen was the best—
An the music o' the ole mill race
Kept time to quip an jest.
Then when the 'lasses was b'iled down,
I tell you it was fun
To pull it to a golden brown
Till it was proper done!

Then how we danced the 'Giny reel,
Chock full o' snap an spunk—
All hands around now—toe an heel!
Each lassie with a hunk
O' yellow 'lasses candy
Betwixt her laughin lips—
Eh? Bedtime! Dear me, Mandy!
Don't it beat all how time slips?

MIDSUMMER ICE CROP.

Artificial Ice Machines Supplant Jack Frost's Work.

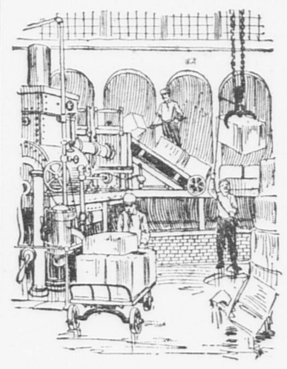

CHEAPER THAN NATURAL PRODUCT

By a New Process One Hundred Tons Can Be Turned Out In Fifteen Minutes at a Cost of Not More Than Fifty Cents a Ton. How It Is Done.

Jack Frost is to be driven out of the icemaking business. He cannot compete with the machines which make artificial ice. Nature may still defy man to make an egg, but human inventive genius has excelled her in other lines of industry. Icemaking is one of these.

The manufacture of ice is not strictly a novelty. It was begun as long as 30 years ago, and within the last 15 years it has been somewhat extensively employed. Yet it has only just now arrived at that stage where the artificial methods can be employed more economically than the natural.

It has been found that natural ice cannot be harvested and stored in large quantities for less than $1.50 a ton, and that under favorable conditions. By a newly perfected process which will soon be tested on a large scale it is expected that artificial ice can be made in any quantity at a cost of not more than 50 cents a ton, or just one third of the cost where nature is allowed to do the work herself in her own way.

Perhaps if Jack Frost had been a little less irregular in his habits in years past we would have gone on allowing him to monopolize the business. But he has acquired a reputation for being a most erratic workman. One winter he freezes up enough ice to supply the next summer's demand two or three times over, and the next he seems to forget that we will be wanting ice cream, cold drinks and cool refrigerators, fritters away his time in getting up short lived cold snaps which accomplish nothing and leaves us early in the spring with empty icehouses.

Now, we as a nation cannot put up with such unbusinesslike methods. Consequently we have gone to work and made ice on our own hook. So successful have we been that in a few years more we can snap our fingers at Jack Frost, careless as to whether he chooses to work or play. He can shut up shop altogether, if he wants to, for we can harvest our ice in midsummer as well as in midwinter.

The earliest of successful artificial icemakers was a Frenchman named Carre, who in 1857 brought out a fairly workable machine which was operated on what is known as the absorption principle. It is practically the same principle, elaborated and perfected, which is in use today. Experiments, it is true, had been made at a much earlier date, both by Americans and foreigners, but Carre was the first one to use ammonia gas and build a practicable machine.

Icemaking as it has been generally carried on for the past few years is not a very intricate process and can readily be understood by any one familiar with the first rudiments of natural philosophy. The value of ammonia lies in its well known property of absorbing heat when it passes from a liquid to a gaseous state. You know the cooling sensation produced when you allow ammonia to evaporate in the palm of your hand. Well, that is the principle which makes the manufacture of artificial ice possible. If you should fill a bottle with water and pour ammonia over it, the water would freeze and the bottle would burst.

In the commercial process the ammonia is not applied directly to the water which is to be frozen. Instead of bottles square cans just the size of the blocks required are used. These cans are set in shallow vats of brine or salt water. Running all through these brine vats are coil on coil of iron pipes. Through these pipes liquid ammonia is run. This evaporates quickly, and in doing so absorbs heat from the brine, reducing it to a temperature below the freezing point. Surrounded by this cold brine, the water in the cans cannot help freezing, and in time turns into solid chunks of ice.

Although this process is entirely practical and is used every day in most of our big cities to turn out tons and tons of ice it is by no means perfect. In the first place, it is a somewhat tedious process. It starts off with a rush. The first two or three inches of water next to the exposed sides of the can freeze very quickly, but the rest of the contents solidify with exasperating slowness. From 50 to 60 hours are required before the can contains a solid block.

Another system which is also used requires even longer. In this the water to be frozen is not put into small cans, but in one big one. As long as 12 days are necessary to produce one of these mammoth blocks of ice, and then it has to be cut by means of hot air into smaller blocks which can be handled.

By the new process which I have before mentioned a cake of ice can be turned out in 15 minutes. In this the brine vats are eliminated and the ammonia acts directly on the water to be frozen. The device which makes this possible consists of a big hollow drum, which revolves in a tank of distilled water.

In the interior of the drum the evaporating agent, ammonia, or whatever may be employed, is introduced through a small orifice under pressure. The result is that it expands rapidly, covering the entire interior of the drum and making a large freezing surface. On the exterior of the drum the ice forms very rapidly, the freezing going on at the rate of a quarter of an inch a minute. But it is not allowed to collect, for almost as soon as it forms it is scraped off by a set of knives which work back and forth.

As the ice scapings rise to the top of the vat they are scooped up, forced out through a conveyer and in the twinkling of an eye are being subjected to hydraulic pressure in a square mold. In this mold a remarkable occurrence takes place. The moment the pressure is removed the ice particles fly together and form a perfectly congealed mass, much denser than natural ice, since it contains no air bubbles and no half frozen snow. You have probably done the same thing yourself when a boy. Don't you remember what a solid ball of ice you could make by pressing slush together in the form of a snowball? If you have ever been hit with one of these missiles, you surely recollect.

This is the process which is going to cut down the cost of making artificial ice far below that of the natural product. Not only is the time of production reduced from hours to minutes, but the cost and size of the plant will also be lessened.

And we are not only promised cheap ice, but pure ice as well. This latter quality the natural product does not always possess. A large part of New York city's supply, for instance, is cut from the Hudson in the neighborhood of Poughkeepsie. You couldn't induce a New Yorker to drink river water, but he cheerfully uses river ice all summer long, even though it is a well known fact that freezing does not purify water. The scientists agree that bacteria will survive the hardest kind of a freeze. A few germs are killed, but the most harmful of them are not disturbed.

In making artificial ice the water is always boiled and distilled, and most concerns take many other precautions besides. In a Chicago ice plant, for example, the water is first converted into steam. This steam passes through a steam purifier, which allows all the noxious gases arising from impurities in the water to escape. Then it goes into an atmospheric condenser, where it is changed back into water. From the condenser the water passes to a hot filter filled with sterilized crushed quartz. Thence it passes to the reboiler, where it is brought to a temperature of 213 degrees F. Here all the remaining traces of gas are eliminated, but before it reaches the storage tanks it passes through two or more filters. When it is ready for use, it is as clear and transparent as crystal, and the blocks which are turned out are like huge gems of first water.

Artificial ice is apt to be much more solid and a great deal clearer than natural ice. You have probably seen blocks of the former in which fruits, fish, lobsters, etc., have been frozen. This is accomplished simply by suspending the articles in the cans, pouring in the water around them and allowing them to freeze in that position.

Not only are large quantities of artificial ice now being used to supply the retail trade, but most large breweries, abattoirs and cold storage warehouses are supplied with their own ice plants. Hotels, a few private residences, steamships and some private yachts are also similarly equipped. In some cases no ice is actually made, but the expanding ammonia is used to reduce the temperature of the air to the required point. Some of the metropolitan theaters supply cool breezes to their audiences in the same manner.

In fact, we are putting this simple, natural phenomena to so many varied uses that in time we may not only be able to do without Jack Frost altogether, but actually bid defiance to the torrid rays of Old Sol and counteract the effects of his baneful companion, General Humidity. CYRUS SYLVESTER.

WE WOULDN'T DO A THING.

The London Post Tells How Great Britain Would Lick Us.

London, July 20.—The Morning Post in its issue today again discusses the relations existing between the United States and Great Britain, and the possibility of war being forced upon the latter. The paper says that the idea of damaging America by bombardment of an open coast town is nonsense. Great Britain will not make war upon helpless non-combatants. A war with the United States would first be a contest of navies, and an effort on the part of British cruisers to protect British sea-born trade. Its second phase would be a blockade of the ports of the United States—not an easy matter—and a land defence of Canada. These two operations would have to continue until the people of the United States asked themselves the question "What is the war about?.

Eventually they would discover that there was no real cause and peace would be made, which would leave the two countries exactly where they are, but both impoverished needlessly and embittered against one another.

This picture may seem one sided to Americans who recall the splendid exertions of the United States in the late Civil War, but the victories of Grant, Sherman and Thomas were won in the great cause of the union and emancipation.

"Such victories," The Post declares, "do not come to those who cause is unintelligible and who have no better motive for provoking war than the inexplicable passion and hatred."

Suspended For Lack of Coal.

St. Louis, July 20.—Acting on the advice of coal companies which distribute the product of the mines in the Illinois district tributary to St. Louis, nearly all the brickmaking companies in St. Louis and vicinity have practically suspended operations on account of the lack of fuel. Kilns now burning will be finished, and with one or two exceptions none of the local companies will fire new kilns until the strike is over. The prospect of a possible coal famine in St. Louis is alarming operators in other lines of business.

Bear and Lion Don't Agree.

London, July 20.—The Daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent says he learns from a trustworthy source that the British government has demanded the immediate coercion of Turkey. Russia, on the other hand, has declared that the moment for coercion has not arrived, and that the situation must not be complicated. Germany, the correspondent states, has concurred in this view. The correspondent also says it is reported that Djevad Pasha has been appointed grand vizier.

Poisoned by Shellfish.

Paris, July 20.—Sir Edmund Monson, the British ambassador; Lady Monson and their whole household were seriously poisoned Sunday by a dish of shell fish served for dinner. At one time it was feared that death would ensue in the case of several, but they have been saved by prompt medical attention and drastic remedies, though some members of the family are still very sick.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

Laurier's Savoir Faire.

Paris, July 20.—At a banquet given by the British chamber of commerce in Paris last night, Sir. Wilfred Laurier, the Canadian premier, made an address, speaking in French, which language he said he had learned at his mother's knee. In closing he said: "We are faithful to the nation that gave us birth, but we will remain faithful to the nation that gave us liberty."

The Raleigh's Movements.

London, July 20.—A dispatch from Tangier says that the United States warship Raleigh has gone to make a demonstration at the principal ports along the coast of Morocco. She has on board as the American representative Vice Consul Carleton, with Dragoman Abrines.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT

Damage by Recent Rainstorm Was at First Overestimated.

Precipitation Greater Than Ever Before Known.

Hay Was Most Seriously Damaged---Everything Now Favorable.

Boston, July 20.—New England was visited on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 13th and 14th, by a rain and wind storm of an exceptionally violent character, resulting in more or less destruction to the newly grown crops, fruits, etc., not to mention the damage in other directions.

The loss in those sections which bore the brunt of the storm will amount to a large sum, although it is found that first estimates were overdrawn. Reports indicate that the storm was most severe along the valley of the Connecticut river in southern New England, but its force was also very great throughout the northern states of the district. Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while escaping the heavy precipitation, sustained a furious gale. The remarkable feature of the storm was the tremendous downpour of rain. Such torrents of water that fell over most of New England have seldom, if ever, been experienced over so large a portion of this territory.

A few of the largest amounts, officially measured, are appended: Hartford and Windsor, Conn., 9.17 inches; Farmington, Conn., 8.21; Greenfield Hill, Conn., 8.04; West Hartford, Conn., 7.61; West Simsbury, Conn., 7.89; New Salem, Mass., 8.01; Leeds, Mass., 6.39; Winchendon, Mass., 6.00; Burlington, Vt., 6.01; Middlebury, Vt., over 5 inches; Intervale, N. H., 5.89. Some localities received much smaller falls, Hartland and Northfield, Vt., a trifle less than 2.5 and 2.5 inches, respectively, and in Rhode Island and the coast sections of Massachusetts the total falls for the week were generally less than one inch.

Special reports rendered to this office by correspondents show that crops on highlands suffered less than those on lowlands, and that the largest part of the direct money loss will be charged to highways, bridges, etc., rather than to crops.

Hay was the most seriously damaged of all crops, especially on meadows and intervales, where the rising streams carried off quantities that was being cured, while that uncut is so filled with dirt and lodged that it is almost worthless.

Nearly all growing crops will right themselves. This is particularly true of corn and potatoes, which have probably sustained little permanent injury and have made a very good showing since the rain. Oats were badly beaten down and will not right up well, so that in many cases they will be cut for fodder. Considerable tobacco was damaged in Connecticut and in western Massachusetts, but a comparatively small acreage is a total loss. The high winds wrought havoc to fruit and shade trees; apples, both late and early, were blown off, also peaches and pears.

Since the middle of last week the weather has been very favorable and everything has pushed forward rapidly. In Maine a wonderful increase is noted in the growth of grass, corn and potatoes. Haying is, in general, under way, with an average to a heavy yield reported, according to location. Lowlands are too wet in New Hampshire for hoeing. Having is nearly completed in Rhode Island and southeastern Massachusetts, but in Connecticut it will be much delayed on lowlands. There are very decided symptoms of potato rot in portions of the last named state.

COLONEL MATTHEWS ELECTED

To Succeed Brigadier General Bridges of the First Brigade.

Boston, July 20.—Colonel Thomas R. Mathews of the First regiment, M. V. M., has been elected brigadier general, to succeed General Bridges of the First brigade. The election was unanimous.

Brigadier General Thomas R. Mathews is one of the best known military men in the state. He is at present colonel, commanding the First regiment heavy artillery, M. V. M., the only heavy artillery regiment in the service of any state.

He was born in England, but at a very early age came to Boston with his parents, and has been a resident ever since. When the War of the Rebellion broke out, although but a lad, he entered the service as a private in company K, First regiment, Massachusetts volunteers. He continued with the regiment on active service on the peninsular, where he received a wound which disabled him from further duty, and he was discharged Feb. 24, 1863.

In 1878 he entered the militia, being chosen first lieutenant of company D, First infantry (Roxbury City Guards). In 1880 he was promoted to captaincy, and the following year was elected major. He served in this position until 1885, when he was again advanced to the lieutenant colonelcy, serving under the late Austin C. Wellington. Upon the death of Colonel Wellington he was chosen to the vacancy from which position he now advances another grade to the command of the First brigade, with which he has for so many years been identified.

MAINE'S ASSESSED VALUATION.

State Board's Returns Show an Increase of About $1,500,000.

Augusta, Me., July 20.—From returns thus far made by local assessors to the board of state assessors it appears that the increase of the valuation of property in the state will probably be in the vicinity of $1,500,000. Real estate is holding up well, and if any shrinkage there be it is on the line of personal property. The returns are as yet incomplete, and of such as have been made no collection of matter has been attempted with a view of determining any increase or falling off in special lines. But it can be assumed from general conditions reported that the increase in valuation will be the same as for 1896.

The taxing of bicycles is one that since a year ago has become far more general. It is a considerable sum that is derived from this source, and it is the prevailing opinion that its effect on road improvement is very marked.

One feature of this is the removing loose stones from the roads which previous to the general use of the bicycle were often disagreeable and a nuisance in every particular, but becoming almost prohibitive to bicycling, the pressure toward improvement has been so general that communities have found it advantageous in many ways and not so very expensive either to keep the roads "picked up," leaving a better impression upon the residents and tourists. Of a valuation taken from 14 towns in Kennebec county there are 215 wheels assessed in them valued at $6335, making an average assessed value of $30 apiece. The board of state assessors will hold meetings this week with local boards as follows: Belfast, Rockland, Wiscasset, Boothbay and Bath.

Bangor Citizens Get Gold Fever.

Bangor, Me., July 20.—A party of a dozen or 15 men will leave this city on Tuesday of next week for the gold fields of Alaska. The party is being arranged by Stephen Crane, an old miner who spent many years of his life in the mines in California and the Black hills. It will be made up of men from Bangor and surrounding towns, and from Houlton, Calais and other places in eastern Maine. There is great interest here in the trip, and the party may be materially increased before next week. As a general thing, the men who are going are men of limited means, some of them having enough money only to reach Alaska, and their idea of how to gain the gold region after that is vague indeed.

Attempted Holdup.

Boston, July 20.—Philip Assner, a cigar dealer, living at the South End, was held up last night by two men near the Forest Hills station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Assner was driving home when the men attacked him and tried to drag him from his seat. For a minute or so there was a fierce fight, during which Assner received severe wounds in the arms and wrist. He succeeded, however, in starting his horses and escaped without the loss of any valuables. Assner reported the facts to the police, and an hour later two men were arrested, but both were released, as Assner could not identify them.

Law School For Bangor.

Bangor, Me., July 20.—At a meeting of the University of Maine trustees last evening Reginald Goodale, a graduate of Johns Hopkins university, was elected instructor in modern languages, and Ralph K. Jones of Boston, librarian, in place of Miss Fernald, resigned. The resignation of Professor Colby, who goes to Wesleyan, was accepted. It was voted to establish a law school in Bangor, to open in 1898. It was also voted to make an appropriation to build a cinder track on the thletic field.

Veteran of Two Wars Drowned.

Milford, N. H., July 20.—James Scott, 54 years old, a resident of Nashua was drowned in the Souhegan river yesterday afternoon. Scott was in bathing and got beyond his depth, and only being able to swim a few strokes he soon became exhausted and sank. He was a veteran of the Civil War, serving on the original Monitor and later under Farragut. He also served on a British transport during the Crimean War.

Another Fatal Wheel Collision.

Holyoke, Mass., July 20.—E. P. Ford, a prominent business man of this city, died at his home at 2 o'clock this morning, the result of a bicycle accident. He collided with another rider Sunday evening near his home on Fairfield avenue and fractured his skull.

Tennessee's New Senator.

Johnson City, Tenn., July 20.—Governor Taylor last evening made the official announcement that he had appointed Hon. Thomas B. Turley of Memphis United States senator to succeed the late Isham G. Harris. The governor wired his choice to Mr. Turley and received a telegram of acceptance. Thomas B. Turley was born in Memphis, April, 1845. Mr. Turley attended the various schools of Memphis up to the breaking out of the Civil War. He served in the Confederate army. When questioned as to his position on the tariff bill before congress, Senator-elect Turley last night at Memphis said that he had not studied the bill technically, but that upon the question of tariff he is as near a free-trader as it is possible to be, and is in favor of tariff for revenue only. On the financial question Mr. Turley is strictly in line with the Chicago platform. The new senator will probably leave for Washington tonight.

Commercial Congress Closed.

Philadelphia, July 20.—The commercial congress of Latin-American representatives closed yesterday with an exhaustive discussion by the delegates of the industrial condition of this country as observed by them during their 40-days' tour, which ended Saturday. Resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted thanking the Philadelphia Museum, the various chambers of commerce, clubs, institutions and citizens throughout the country for the hospitality accorded the delegates en tour. Some of the delegates take exceptions to the impressions conveyed by certain members of the party that all are free traders. As a matter of fact several of the foreigners are ardent protectionists and warm adherents of the present tariff policy of the United States, coming from countries where such a policy is in vogue.

Suit Over Richardson Millions.

New York, July 20.—George Richardson, the son of the late Millionaire Richardson of Harlem, this city, has filed in the surrogate's office a petition for the probate of his father's first will, which was executed Oct. 29, 1894, and which divided the estate valued at "$5,000,000 or thereabouts" between the petitioner and his sister, Della Grace Richardson. Citations are to be answered by Aug. 6 next. Under Richardson's second will, dated April 24, 1897, Mrs. Richardson is made an equal beneficiary with the son and daughter of the testator, who were his children by his first wife.

Woodford's Adieu to President.

Washington, July 20.—United States Minister Woodford called at the White House yesterday to say farewell to the president before departing for Madrid. He will spend a few days in New York in arranging his private affairs and will sail on the 28th inst.

MORE MINERS GO OUT.

Five Thousand Diggers In Illinois Lay Down Picks and Shovels.

Railroad Men Hold a Secret Meeting at Pittsburg.

Possibility That They Will Refuse to Handle West Virginia Coal.

Pittsburg, July 20.—Reports from all sections indicate that the strike among coal miners is spreading. Nearly 5000 diggers in Illinois have quit work, and now every attention is being devoted to the men at work in West Virginia. Debs, Sovereign and other labor leaders are doing missionary work in the West Virginia fields.

It is reported here that the strikers intend to ask the railway men to assist them by refusing to handle the product of the West Virginia mines. Should the request be complied with an entirely new aspect would be placed on the strike.

Secretary Warner gave out the information yesterday that a meeting of railway employes was held here, and the situation of the miners' strike thoroughly discussed. Resolutions were adopted pledging support to the strikers, and each member was assessed $2 for the strike fund. Mr. Warner refused to divulge the name of the railroad employing the men, stating that it might lead to an investigation and the discharge of the men.

From another source it was reported to be a meeting of the conductors and brakemen of the roads centering in Pittsburg. It was claimed that the action taken was at the suggestion of the national officials of the Railway Trainmens' union.

Active work has been commenced in the coke region and efforts will be made to bring out all the men at the mines where the product is being shipped to Pittsburg. Ex-Vice President Cameron Miller of the United Mine Workers has eft for the coke region. A mass meeting is scheduled to be held at Uniontown today, which will be addressed by Messrs. Miller and Warner. Cameron Miller and Secretary Warner visited Turtle Creek to have a talk with the miners employed by the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. They were served with an injunction restraining them from interfering with the miners.

The mines at Leechburg, on the West Pennsylvania railroad, have been closed. The diggers had not been asked to join in the movement, but Cameron Miller communicated with them and they consented to lay down their tools.

General John Little of the Ohio state board of arbitration and W. P. DeArmitt of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company are still in the East endeavoring to secure the signatures of the Eastern operators to the uniformity agreement. They are expected to return today. It is announced that a meeting of the arbitration commission will be hed here tomorrow.

Miners' Threat.

Canonsburg, Pa., July 20.—The 500 striking miners from Bridgeville, who visited the Allison, Boone and Enterprise mines yesterday for the purpose of inducing the men at work to come out, dispersed yesterday afternoon, having attained their object without trouble. Immediately upon receipt of the news of the proposed raid the mine owners at these pits ordered a suspension until the excitement should die out. Yesterday afternoon the strikers held a meeting, at which speeches were made to the effect that if the men did not remain out the strikers would return 1000 strong, and instead of bringing musical instruments they would bring guns. A committee was appointed to guard the mines and report in case the men returned to work. The miners will probably resume work today.

"O woman! lovely woman! nature made thee to temper man; we had been brutes without you." Woman more than merits all the good things that have been said of her by the wits and poets of all times. When man lauds woman and her charms and virtues, he has in his mind's eye an ideal. That ideal is always a healthy woman. No man makes pretty speeches and witty toasts about woman, with the picture in his mind of a weak, sickly, nervous woman, tortured by pain, and suffering from depression and despondency. It is in the power of every woman to be some man's ideal if she will but build up and guard her womanly health.

The best of known remedies for all forms of disease peculiar to women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It works directly on but one set of organs in a woman's body. It allays and eradicates pain. It soothes inflammation. It invigorates and purifies. It restores complete health to the organs distinctly feminine and banishes weakness, depression and despondency. It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. If you wish to know more about it write to him.

"This is to tell you," writes Sister Eliza L. de Falcon, of Corpus Christi, Nueces Co., Texas, "that I had been ill for twenty-one years and was finally cured by your medicines, the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.'"

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines.

☞ No overheated cooks in the homes where the Blue Flame Oil Stoves are used or that's little perhaps, but they cost almost nothing to run, and are quick as a wink, that's something perhaps. A complete line. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

MAY CLOSE KLONDYKE

Report That Canada Contemplates Excluding American Miners.

Dominion's Right to Do It Is Admitted.

Dr. Dall Tells of Methods of Getting Gold From Frozen Gravel.

Washington, July 21.—Another knotty diplomatic question may arise from the great gold discoveries in the Klondyke district, which is in British territory. There is a lurking possibility that the Canadiaan government will attempt to exclude American miners from the region. Information has reached Washington to the effect that the Canadian authorities have under consideration the taking of steps to prohibit any but British subjects from working in the Eldorado of North America.

As the Klondyke mines are without doubt in Canadian territory, it is said at the state department that he Dominion authorities have the right to prohibit the entrance of foreigners if they should consider it desirable. The department officials believe, however, that the Canadians will refrain from taking a step of this character, as British subjects have been allowed to mine the Alaskan territory, and besides great difficulty would be experienced in distinguishing between Canadians and Americans.

But American miners have no intention of being excluded if they can help it. The state department has received a number of communications from citizens of this government who have established claims in both British and American territory. There is, of course, no way at present by which the men holding these claims can locate them with reference to the boundary line, and, to prevent the Canadian government from dispossessing them they have written to the state department requesting that the secretary adopt measures looking to their protection.

The department has informed American miners that a treaty is now pending between the United States and Great Britain for the determination of the Alaskan boundary, and that when it is confirmed by the senate the surveying parties of the United States and Great Britain, acting jointly, will erect monuments a short distance apart which will define the true boundary line.

Mining In the Snow.

Dr. William H. Dall, one of the curators of the National museum, is familiar with the region of the country in which the Klondyke gold fields are located, through having been on several geological expeditions to the region in Alaska adjoining the gold district, and says that in his opinion the reports from there probably are not exaggerated. He said:

"When I was there I did not find gold, but knew of it being taken out in profitable quantities for 15 years or more. It was first discovered there in 1866. In 1880, when I was up in that country, my last trip having been made two years ago, the first party of prospectors, who made the mining a profit, started out. The gold is found on the various tributaries of the Yukon, and I have been within a comparatively short distance of the Klondyke fields. I made one trip to Circle City, just over the boundary of Canada. The gold bearing belt of northwestern America contains all the gold fields extending into British Columbia, what is known as the northwestern territory and Alaska. The Yukon really runs along in that belt for 500 or 600 miles. The bed of the main river is in the lowland of the valley.

"The yellow metal is not found in paying quantity in the main river, but in the small streams which cut through the mountains on either side. These practically wash out the gold. The mud and mineral matter is carried into the main river, while the gold is left on the rough bottoms of these side streams. In most cases the gold lies at the bottom of thick gravel deposits. The gold is covered by frozen gravel in the winter. During the summer until the snow is all melted the surface is covered by muddy torrents. When the snow is all melted and the springs begin to freeze the streams dry up. At the approach of winter, in order to get at the gold, the miners find it necessary to dig into the gravel formation.

"Formerly they stripped the gravel off until they came to the gold. Now they sink a shaft to the bottom of the gravel and tunnel along underneath in the gold bearing layer. The way in which this is done is interesting, as it has to be carried on in cold weather, when everything is frozen. The miners build fires over the area of where they wish to work and keep these lighted over that territory for the space of 24 hours. Then at the expiration of this period the gravel will be melted and softened to a depth of perhaps six inches. This is taken off and other fires built until the gold bearing layer is reached. When the shaft is down that far fires are built at the bottom, against the sides of the layer and tunnels made in this manner. Blasting would do no good, on account of the hard nature of the material, and would blow out just as out of a gun. The matter taken out containing the gold is piled up until spring, when the torrents come down, and is panned and cradled by these. It is certainly very hard labor.

"I see many reasons why the gold fields should be particularly rich. The streams which cut through the mountains have probably done for centuries wearing them down several hundred feet and washing out the gold into the beds and gravel.

"It is a country in which it is very hard to find food, as there is practically no game. Before the whites went into the region there were not more than 300 natives. They have hard work to support themselves on account of the scarcity of game."

DUNGEON AT BOWDOIN.

Workmen Find a Subterranean Chamber Filled With Skeletons and Coffins.

Boston, July 21.—A special to The Journal from Brunswick, Me., says:

A mysterious dungeon has just been unearthed on the Bowdoin college grounds. The authorities recently decided to remodel Appleton hall, one of the dormitories on the college grounds.

When the work was begun the workmen were surprised to find beneath the building a subterranean basement, which, if its existence was ever known, had been forgotten and left undisturbed for many years. In this basement was found a dungeon cell, or cave, fitted up in a most terrifying manner. Its walls were lined with black, no light could penetrate it, and in this vault was a grotesque array of skulls and skeletons, and strangest of all several coffins.

The only visible entrance to this place was an air shaft, which found vent in the roof of the building, and which was secretly connected with closets in the rooms of various students of the building.

Opinion is greatly divided as to the purpose of this gloomy cell. Some think that it was a chamber of horrors used by the famous Phi Chi Hazing society of long ago. Others attribute it to the D. K. E.'s, whose mystic rites of initiation thrilled so many timid boys in years past.

The Wool Market.

Boston, July 21.—Most of the wool dealers report a fair business doing just now. Buyers are encouraged by the strong outside conditions, which indicate that many are willing to take chances of being able to make a turn at an advance later. This keeps an active market without materially reducing the stocks on hand, although manufacturers are occasionally coming in and picking up some supplies. The general business of the week shows the largest trading in Australian wools, and the scoured price has worked up several cents higher. For the best wools the range of sales is at 50 and 55 cents, with the range down as to quality. The business doing is largely in good sized blocks, there being but little call for consumption, except in cross breds. Manufacturers are bidding on these grades, as the available supply is light. In domestic wools some lines of territories are being picked up, but the prices bid, compared with the cost to replace them, show too wide a difference to make cash transactions popular.

Alleged Fraudulent Use of Mails.

Boston, July 21.—The case against E. H. Rollins, a well-known Boston merchant, which was dismissed in the state court last winter for lack of jurisdiction, came up before United States Commissioner Fiske yesterday, on complaint of the Waterbury Buckle company of Waterbury, Conn., who allege that Rollins owes them about $11,000. The specific complaint in the case, however, was framed under United States revised statutes 5480, it being charged that Rollins had used the United States mails in a scheme to defraud by giving a false statement of his business standing for the purpose of obtaining credit. Mr. Rollins admitted that he sent such a statement, and Commissioner Fiske held him for the United States district court, September term, and after an urgent plea on the part of his counsel reduced the bail from $1000 to $500, which Rollins expects to be able to furnish.

Brockton's Social Sensation.

Brockton, Mass., July 21.—Social circles in this city have been treated to a sensation by the announcement that Mrs. H. M. Kingman has attached her husband's property in the sum of $100,000 and brought action for divorce. The suit is brought on statutory grounds, a New York woman being named as co-respondent. Mr. Kingman posted his wife about two months ago, and a few weeks since left for San Francisco, it being understood that he did not intend to return to this city. He was for years a prominent shoe manufacturer in this city, and his wealth is variously estimated at from $300,000 to $500,000. It is said that before going he made arrangements whereby his wife was to receive a specified sum each month.

WILL SOON BE PASSED.

Allison Assures President In Regard to Tariff Conference Report.

Democrats Give Up Attempting Recommittal.

Good Progress Is Being Made, but Vote Is Soon Expected.

Washington, July 21.—President McKinley was delighted to hear from Senator Allison yesterday evening that he would have an opportunity to sign the new tariff bill by Saturday. Senator Allison told him that he expected to see the senate adopt the conference report tomorrow, while other senators who called on the president thought it might be Friday before the report was adopted. They were all sure the vote would be taken this week, and that the report would be adopted.

Senator Jones of Arkansas had failed, they said, in the attempt he made to get up a coalition of the Democrats, Populists and silver Republicans to send the report back to conference because of the increased duty on white pine and the restoration of cotton bagging and cotton ties to the dutiable list.

The majority of the senators want the bill disposed of, so they can get away, and Senator Jones met discouragement in his efforts to form the combination necessary to accomplish his purpose. It would have been easy for him to do so if it had not been for a ruling made by the late Senator Harris of Tennessee as president pro tem of the senate on the report submitted by the conference committee on the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill in 1894, to the effect that the senate must adopt or reject the conference report as a whole, and that no motion to divide it or amend it could be entertained.

During the day Mr. Tillman (Dem., S. C.) openly threatened a filibuster until next December if cotton bagging and cotton ties were not restored to the free list, but the threat was regarded as somewhat factitious. The sugar amendments occasioned a long debate, during which Mr. Allison stated that the conference rates were lower than those of the senate and largely a concession to the house. Senators Vest, Jones, Berry and White questioned this statement, urging that the Sugar trust secured larger benefits from the conference schedule than from any previously offered. The lumber amendment also brought out animated criticism from Senators Teller and Pettigrew.

The opposition to the bill realize that there is no possibility of preventing the adoption of the report, and their present purpose is only to secure what advantage they can by exhibiting what they claim are the inconsistencies of the measure. It is true that at one time they had some hope of being able to secure the recommittal of the bill, but a thorough canvass reveals no foundation for this hope. It develops that fact that the Republicans will vote solidly for the report, and that they will be supported by Messrs. Jones of Nevada, silver Republican, and McEnery of Louisiana, Democrat, and also probably Messrs. Mantle and Stewart, silver Republicans. They have also discovered that Senator Kyle, Populist, who is absent, has left strict instructions that he should not be paired.

With the adoption of the report thus assured the Democrats probably will not attempt to prolong the debate beyond the arrival of Mr. Turley, the new senator from Tennessee. They will continue to ask for an explanation of changes made by the conference, but these will not occupy a great deal of time.

The general opinion is that the quorum of the senate will disappear very soon after the disposal of the tariff bill, but the determination of the supporters of the Harris Pacific railroad resolution to secure a vote upon it before final adjournment may delay that consummation for some days.

President Will Send Financial Message.

Washington, July 21.—President McKinley said yesterday that he proposed to send in his currency commission message as soon as the tariff bill passed the senate. He expects to see the house pass a currency commission bill in accord with the recommendations of his message, but he realizes that the silver senate will take no action on it. He has withheld his message at the request of the Republican leaders in congress, who feared that it might delay the tariff bill. He will send it in to redeem his promises and but his administration on record. It may be that the message will go in too late for any action by the house, which will, of course, make no difference, except in the record of the Republican majority in the house.

Gage Instructs Collectors.

Washington, July 21.—The treasury department has notified collectors of customs to make final liquidation of all entries made since the passage of the tariff bill by the house. The bill as it passed the house, it will be remembered, contained a retroactive clause, and under this clause Secretary Gage ordered only tentative liquidations. As this retroactive feature was discarded by the conferees, the secretary ordered final liquidations.

Suspended For Lack of Coal.

St. Louis, July 20.—Acting on the advice of coal companies which distribute the product of the mines in the Illinois district tributary to St. Louis, nearly all the brickmaking companies in St. Louis and vicinity have practically suspended operations on account of the lack of fuel. Kilns now burning will be finished, and with one or two exceptions none of the local companies will fire new kilns until the strike is over. The prospect of a possible coal famine in St. Louis is alarming operators in other lines of business.

Bear and Lion Don't Agree.

London, July 20.—The Daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent says he learns from a trustworthy source that the British government has demanded the immediate coercion of Turkey. Russia, on the other hand, has declared that the moment for coercion has not arrived, and that the situation must not be complicated. Germany, the correspondent states, has concurred in this view. The correspondent also says it is reported that Djevad Pasha has been appointed grand vizier.

Poisoned by Shellfish.

Paris, July 20.—Sir Edmund Monson, the British ambassador; Lady Monson and their whole household were seriously poisoned Sunday by a dish of shell fish served for dinner. At one time it was feared that death would ensue in the case of several, but they have been saved by prompt medical attention and drastic remedies, though some members of the family are still very sick.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT

Damage by Recent Rainstorm Was at First Overestimated.

Precipitation Greater Than Ever Before Known.

Hay Was Most Seriously Damaged---Everything Now Favorable.

Boston, July 20.—New England was visited on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 13th and 14th, by a rain and wind storm of an exceptionally violent character, resulting in more or less destruction to the newly grown crops, fruits, etc., not to mention the damage in other directions.

The loss in those sections which bore the brunt of the storm will amount to a large sum, although it is found that first estimates were overdrawn. Reports indicate that the storm was most severe along the valley of the Connecticut river in southern New England, but its force was also very great throughout the northern states of the district. Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while escaping the heavy precipitation, sustained a furious gale. The remarkable feature of the storm was the tremendous downpour of rain. Such torrents of water that fell over most of New England have seldom, if ever, been experienced over so large a portion of this territory.

A few of the largest amounts, officially measured, are appended: Hartford and Windsor, Conn., 9.17 inches; Farmington, Conn., 8.21; Greenfield Hill, Conn., 8.04; West Hartford, Conn., 7.61; West Simsbury, Conn., 7.89; New Salem, Mass., 8.01; Leeds, Mass., 6.39; Winchendon, Mass., 6.00; Burlington, Vt., 6.01; Middlebury, Vt., over 5 inches; Intervale, N. H., 5.89. Some localities received much smaller falls, Hartland and Northfield, Vt., a trifle less than 2.5 and 2.5 inches, respectively, and in Rhode Island and the coast sections of Massachusetts the total falls for the week were generally less than one inch.

Special reports rendered to this office by correspondents show that crops on highlands suffered less than those on lowlands, and that the largest part of the direct money loss will be charged to highways, bridges, etc., rather than to crops.

Hay was the most seriously damaged of all crops, especially on meadows and intervales, where the rising streams carled off quantities that was being cured, while that uncut is so filled with dirt and lodged that it is almost worthless.

Nearly all growing crops will right themselves. This is particularly true of corn and potatoes, which have probably sustained little permanent injury and have made a very good showing since the rain. Oats were badly beaten down and will not right up well, so that in many cases they will be cut for fodder. Considerable tobacco was damaged in Connecticut and in western Massachusetts, but a comparatively small acreage is a total loss. The high winds wrought havoc to fruit and shade trees; apples, both late and early, were blown off, also peaches and pears.

Since the middle of last week the weather has been very favorable and everything has pushed forward rapidly. In Maine a wonderful increase is noted in the growth of grass, corn and potatoes. Haying is, in general, under way, with an average to a heavy yield reported, according to location. Lowlands are too wet in New Hampshire for hoeing. Haying is nearly completed in Rhode Island and southeastern Massachusetts, but in Connecticut it will be much delayed on lowlands. There are very decided symptoms of potato rot in portions of the last named state.

Section Director.

COLONEL MATTHEWS ELECTED

To Succeed Brigadier General Bridges of the First Brigade.

Boston, July 20.—Colonel Thomas R. Mathews of the First regiment, M. V.-M., has been elected brigadier general, to succeed General Bridges of the First brigade. The election was unanimous.

Brigadier General Thomas R. Mathews is one of the best known military men in the state. He is at present colonel, commanding the First regiment heavy artillery, M. V. M., the only heavy artillery regiment in the service of any state.

He was born in England, but at a very early age came to Boston with his parents, and has been a resident ever since. When the War of the Rebellion broke out, although but a lad, he entered the service as a private in company K, First regiment, Massachusetts volunteers. He continued with the regiment on active service on the peninsular, where he received a wound which disabled him from further duty, and he was discharged Feb. 24, 1863.

In 1878 he entered the militia, being chosen first lieutenant of company D, First infantry (Roxbury City Guards). In 1880 he was promoted to captaincy, and the following year was elected major. He served in this position until 1885, when he was again advanced to the lieutenant colonelcy, serving under the late Austin C. Wellington. Upon the death of Colonel Wellington he was chosen to the vacancy from which position he now advances another grade to the command of the First brigade, with which he has for so many years been identified.

MAINE'S ASSESSED VALUATION.

State Board's Returns Show an Increase of About $1,500,000.

Augusta, Me., July 20.—From returns thus far made by local assessors to the board of state assessors it appears that the increase of the valuation of property in the state will probably be in the vicinity of $1,500,000. Real estate is holding up well, and if any shrinkage there be it is on the line of personal property. The returns are as yet incomplete, and of such as have been made no collection of matter has been attempted with a view of determining any increase or falling off in special lines. But it can be assumed from general conditions reported that the increase in valuation will be the same as for 1896.

The taxing of bicycles is one that since a year ago has become far more general. It is a considerable sum that is derived from this source, and it is the prevailing opinion that its effect on road improvement is very marked.

One feature of this is the removing loose stones from the roads which previous to the general use of the bicycle were often disagreeable and a nuisance in every particular, but becoming almost prohibitive to bicycling, the pressure toward improvement has been so general that communities have found it advantageous in many ways and not so very expensive either to keep the roads "picked up," leaving a better impression upon the residents and tourists. Of a valuation taken from 14 towns in Kennebec county there are 215 wheels assessed in them valued at $6335, making an average assessed value of $30 apiece. The board of state assessors will hold meetings this week with local boards as follows: Belfast, Rockland, Wiscasset, Boothbay and Bath.

Bangor Citizens Get Gold Fever.

Bangor, Me., July 20.—A party of a dozen or 15 men will leave this city on Tuesday of next week for the gold fields of Alaska. The party is being arranged by Stephen Crane, an old miner who spent many years of his life in the mines in California and the Black hills. It will be made up of men from Bangor and surrounding towns, and from Houlton, Calais and other places in eastern Maine. There is great interest here in the trip, and the party may be materially increased before next week. As a general thing, the men who are going are men of limited means, some of them having enough money only to reach Alaska, and their idea of how to gain the gold region after that is vague indeed.

Attempted Holdup.

Boston, July 20.—Philip Assner, a cigar dealer, living at the South End, was held up last night by two men near the Forest Hills station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Assner was driving home when the men attacked him and tried to drag him from his seat. For a minute or so there was a fierce fight, during which Assner received severe wounds in the arms and wrist. He succeeded, however, in starting his horses and escaped without the loss of any valuables. Assner reported the facts to the police, and an hour later two men were arrested, but both were released, as Assner could not identify them.

Law School For Bangor.

Bangor, Me., July 20.—At a meeting of the University of Maine trustees last evening Reginald Goodale, a graduate of Johns Hopkins university, was elected instructor in modern languages, and Ralph K. Jones of Boston, librarian, in place of Miss Fernald, resigned. The resignation of Professor Colby, who goes to Wesleyan, was accepted. It was voted to establish a law school in Bangor, to open in 1898. It was also voted to make an appropriation to build a cinder track on the thletic field.

Veteran of Two Wars Drowned.

Milford, N. H., July 20.—James Scott, 54 years old, a resident of Nashua was drowned in the Souhegan river yesterday afternoon. Scott was in bathing and got beyond his depth, and only being able to swim a few strokes he soon became exhausted and sank. He was a veteran of the Civil War, serving on the original Monitor and later under Farragut. He also served on a British transport during the Crimean War.

Another Fatal Wheel Collision.

Holyoke, Mass., July 20.—E. P. Ford, a prominent business man of this city, died at his home at 2 o'clock this morning, the result of a bicycle accident. He collided with another rider Sunday evening near his home on Fairfield avenue and fractured his skull.

Tennessee's New Senator.

Johnson City, Tenn., July 20.—Governor Taylor last evening made the official announcement that he had appointed Hon. Thomas B. Turley of Memphis United States senator to succeed the late Isham G. Harris. The governor wired his choice to Mr. Turley and received a telegram of acceptance. Thomas B. Turley was born in Memphis, April, 1845. Mr. Turley attended the various schools of Memphis up to the breaking out of the Civil War. He served in the Confederate army. When questioned as to his position on the tariff bill before congress, Senator-elect Turley last night at Memphis said that he had not studied the bill technically, but that upon the question of tariff he is as near a free-trader as it is possible to be, and is in favor of tariff for revenue only. On the financial question Mr. Turley is strictly in line with the Chicago platform. The new senator will probably leave for Washington tonight.

Commercial Congress Closed.

Philadelphia, July 20.—The commercial congress of Latin-American representatives closed yesterday with an exhaustive discussion by the delegates of the industrial condition of this country as observed by them during their 40-days' tour, which ended Saturday. Resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted thanking the Philadelphia Museum, the various chambers of commerce, clubs, institutions and citizens throughout the country for the hospitality accorded the delegates en tour. Some of the delegates take exceptions to the impressions conveyed by certain members of the party that all are free traders. As a matter of fact several of the foreigners are ardent protectionists and warm adherents of the present tariff policy of the United States, coming from countries where such a policy is in vogue.

Suit Over Richardson Millions.

New York, July 20.—George Richardson, the son of the late Millionaire Richardson of Harlem, this city, has filed in the surrogate's office a petition for the probate of his father's first will, which was executed Oct. 29, 1894, and which divided the estate valued at "$5,000,000 or thereabouts" between the petitioner and his sister, Della Grace Richardson. Citations are to be answered by Aug. 6 next. Under Richardson's second will, dated April 24, 1897, Mrs. Richardson is made an equal beneficiary with the son and daughter of the testator, who were his children by his first wife.

Woodford's Adieu to President.

Washington, July 20.—United States Minister Woodford called at the White House yesterday to say farewell to the president before departing for Madrid. He will spend a few days in New York in arranging his private affairs and will sail on the 28th inst.

MORE MINERS GO OUT.

Five Thousand Diggers In Illinois Lay Down Picks and Shovels.

Railroad Men Hold a Secret Meeting at Pittsburg.

Possibility That They Will Refuse to Handle West Virginia Coal.

Pittsburg, July 20.—Reports from all sections indicate that the strike among coal miners is spreading. Nearly 5000 diggers in Illinois have quit work, and now every attention is being devoted to the men at work in West Virginia. Debs, Sovereign and other labor leaders are doing missionary work in the West Virginia fields.

It is reported here that the strikers intend to ask the railway men to assist them by refusing to handle the product of the West Virginia mines. Should the request be complied with an entirely new aspect would be placed on the strike.

Secretary Warner gave out the information yesterday that a meeting of railway employes was held here, and the situation of the miners' strike thoroughly discussed. Resolutions were adopted pledging support to the strikers, and each member was assessed $2 for the strike fund. Mr. Warner refused to divulge the name of the railroad employing the men, stating that it might lead to an investigation and the discharge of the men.

From another source it was reported to be a meeting of the conductors and brakemen of the roads centering in Pittsburg. It was claimed that the action taken was at the suggestion of the national officials of the Railway Trainmens' union.

Active work has been commenced in the coke region and efforts will be made to bring out all the men at the mines where the product is being shipped to Pittsburg. Ex-Vice President Cameron Miller of the United Mine Workers has left for the coke region. A mass meeting is scheduled to be held at Uniontown today, which will be addressed by Messrs. Miller and Warner. Cameron Miller and Secretary Warner visited Turtle Creek to have a talk with the miners employed by the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. They were served with an injunction restraining them from interfering with the miners.

The mines at Leechburg, on the West Fennsylvania railroad, have been closed. The diggers had not been asked to join in the movement, but Cameron Miller communicated with them and they consented to lay down their tools.

General John Little of the Ohio state board of arbitration and W. P. DeArmitt of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company are still in the East endeavoring to secure the signatures of the Eastern operators to the uniformity agreement. They are expected to return today. It is announced that a meeting of the arbitration commission will be hed here tomorrow.

Miners' Threat.

Canonsburg, Pa., July 20.—The 500 striking miners from Bridgeville, who visited the Allison, Boone and Enterprise mines yesterday for the purpose of inducing the men at work to come out, dispersed yesterday afternoon, having attained their object without trouble. Immediately upon receipt of the news of the proposed raid the mine owners at these pits ordered a suspension until the excitement should die out. Yesterday afternoon the strikers held a meeting, at which speeches were made to the effect that if the men did not remain out the strikers would return 1000 strong, and instead of bringing musical instruments they would bring guns. A committee was appointed to guard the mines and report in case the men returned to work. The miners will probably resume work today.

"O woman! lovely woman! nature made thee to temper man; we had been brutes without you." Woman more than merits all the good things that have been said of her by the wits and poets of all times. When man lauds woman and her charms and virtues, he has in his mind's eye an ideal. That ideal is always a healthy woman. No man makes pretty speeches and witty toasts about woman, with the picture in his mind of a weak, sickly, nervous woman, tortured by pain, and suffering from depression and despondency. It is in the power of every woman to be some man's ideal if she will but build up and guard her womanly health.

The best of known remedies for all forms of disease peculiar to women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It works directly on but one set of organs in a woman's body. It allays and eradicates pain. It soothes inflammation. It invigorates and purifies. It restores complete health to the organs distinctly feminine and banishes weakness, depression and despondency. It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. If you wish to know more about it write to him.

"This is to tell you," writes Sister Eliza L. de Falcon, of Corpus Christi, Nueces Co., Texas, "that I had been ill for twenty-one years and was finally cured by your medicines, the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.'"

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines.

MAY CLOSE KLONDYKE

Report That Canada Contemplates Excluding American Miners.

Dominion's Right to Do It Is Admitted.

Dr. Dall Tells of Methods of Getting Gold From Frozen Gravel.

Washington, July 21.—Another knotty diplomatic question may arise from the great gold discoveries in the Klondyke district, which is in British territory. There is a lurking possibility that the Canadiaan government will attempt to exclude American miners from the region. Information has reached Washington to the effect that the Canadian authorities have under consideration the taking of steps to prohibit any but British subjects from working in the Eldorado of North America.

As the Klondyke mines are without doubt in Canadian territory, it is said at the state department that he Dominion auhorities have the right to prohibit the entrance of foreigners if they should consider it desirable. The department officials believe, however, that the Canadians will refrain from taking a step of this character, as British subjects have been allowed to mine the Alaskan territory, and besides great difficulty would be experienced in distinguishing between Canadians and Americans.

But American miners have no intention of being excluded if they can help it. The state department has received a number of communications from citizens of this government who have established claims in both British and American territory. There is, of course, no way at present by which the men holding these claims can locate them with reference to the boundary line, and, to prevent the Canadian government from dispossessing them they have written to the state department requesting that the secretary adopt measures looking to their protection.

The department has informed American miners that a treaty is now pending between the United States and Great Britain for the determination of the Alaskan boundary, and that when it is confirmed by the senate the surveying parties of the United States and Great Britain, acting jointly, will erect monuments a short distance apart which will define the true boundary line.

Mining In the Snow.

Dr. William H. Dall, one of the curators of the National museum, is familiar with the region of the country in which the Klondyke gold fields are located, through having been on several geological expeditions to the region in Alaska adjoining the gold district, and says that in his opinion the reports from there probably are not exaggerated. He said:

"When I was there I did not find gold, but knew of it being taken out in profitable quantities for 15 years or more. It was first discovered there in 1866. In 1880, when I was up in that country, my last trip having been made two years ago, the first party of prospectors, who made the mining a profit, started out. The gold is found on the various tributaries of the Yukon, and I have been within a comparatively short distance of the Klondyke fields. I made one trip to Circle City, just over the boundary of Canada. The gold bearing belt of northwestern America contains all the gold fields extending into British Columbia, what is known as the northwestern territory and Alaska. The Yukon really runs along in that belt for 500 or 600 miles. The bed of the main river is in the lowland of the valley.

"The yellow metal is not found in paying quantity in the main river, but in the small streams which cut through the mountains on either side. These practically wash out the gold. The mud and mineral matter is carried into the main river, while the gold is left on the rough bottoms of these side streams. In most cases the gold lies at the bottom of thick gravel deposits. The gold is covered by frozen gravel in the winter. During the summer until the snow is all melted the surface is covered by muddy torrents. When the snow is all melted and the springs begin to freeze the streams dry up. At the approach of winter, in order to get at the gold, the miners find it necessary to dig into the gravel formation.

"Formerly they stripped the gravel off until they came to the gold. Now they sink a shaft to the bottom of the gravel and tunnel along underneath in the gold bearing layer. The way in which this is done is interesting, as it has to be carried on in cold weather, when everything is frozen. The miners build fires over the area of where they wish to work and keep these lighted over that territory for the space of 24 hours. Then at the expiration of this period the gravel will be melted and softened to a depth of perhaps six inches. This is taken off and other fires built until the gold bearing layer is reached. When the shaft is down that far fires are built at the bottom, against the sides of the layer and tunnels made in this manner. Blasting would do no good, on account of the hard nature of the material, and would blow out just as out of a gun. The matter taken out containing the gold is piled up until spring, when the torrents come down, and is panned and cradled by these. It is certainly very hard labor.

"I see many reasons why the gold fields should be particularly rich. The streams which cut through the mountains have probably done for centuries wearing them down several hundred feet and washing out the gold into the beds and gravel.

"It is a country in which it is very hard to find food, as there is practically no game. Before the whites went into the region there were not more than 300 natives. They have hard work to support themselves on account of the scarcity of game."

DUNGEON AT BOWDOIN.

Workmen Find a Subterranean Chamber Filled With Skeletons and Coffins.

Boston, July 21.—A special to The Journal from Brunswick, Me., says:

A mysterious dungeon has just been unearthed on the Bowdoin college grounds. The authorities recently decided to remodel Appleton hall, one of the dormitories on the college grounds.

When the work was begun the workmen were surprised to find beneath the building a subterranean basement, which, if its existence was ever known, had been forgotten and left undisturbed for many years. In this basement was found a dungeon cell, or cave, fitted up in a most terrifying manner. Its walls were lined with black, no light could penetrate it, and in this vault was a grotesque array of skulls and skeletons, and strangest of all several coffins.

The only visible entrance to this place was an air shaft, which found vent in the roof of the building, and which was secretly connected with closets in the rooms of various students of the building.

Opinion is greatly divided as to the purpose of this gloomy cell. Some think that it was a chamber of horrors used by the famous Phi Chi Hazing society of long ago. Others attribute it to the D. K. E.'s, whose mystic rites of initiation thrilled so many timid boys in years past.

The Wool Market.

Boston, July 21.—Most of the wool dealers report a fair business doing just now. Buyers are encouraged by the strong outside conditions, which indicate that many are willing to take chances of being able to make a turn at an advance later. This keeps an active market without materially reducing the stocks on hand, although manufacturers are occasionally coming in and picking up some supplies. The general business of the week shows the largest trading in Australian wools, and the scoured price has worked up several cents higher. For the best wools the range of sales is at 50 and 55 cents, with the range down as to quality. The business doing is largely in good sized blocks, there being but little call for consumption, except in cross breds. Manufacturers are bidding on these grades, as the available supply is light. In domestic wools some lines of territories are being picked up, but the prices bid, compared with the cost to replace them, show too wide a difference to make cash transactions popular.

Alleged Fraudulent Use of Mails.

Boston, July 21.—The case against E. H. Rollins, a well-known Boston merchant, which was dismissed in the state court last winter for lack of jurisdiction, came up before United States Commissioner Fiske yesterday, on complaint of the Waterbury Buckle company of Waterbury, Conn., who allege that Rollins owes them about $11,000. The specific complaint in the case, however, was framed under United States revised statutes 5480, it being charged that Rollins had used the United States mails in a scheme to defraud by giving a false statement of his business standing for the purpose of obtaining credit. Mr. Rollins admitted that he sent such a statement, and Commissioner Fiske held him for the United States district court, September term, and after an urgent plea on the part of his counsel reduced the bail from $1000 to $500, which Rollins expects to be able to furnish.

Brockton's Social Sensation.

Brockton, Mass., July 21.—Social circles in this city have been treated to a sensation by the announcement that Mrs. H. M. Kingman has attached her husband's property in the sum of $100,000 and brought action for divorce. The suit is brought on statutory grounds, a New York woman being named as corespondent. Mr. Kingman posted his wife about two months ago, and a few weeks since left for San Francisco, it being understood that he did not intend to return to this city. He was for years a prominent shoe manufacturer in this city, and his wealth is variously estimated at from $300,000 to $500,000. It is said that before going he made arrangements whereby his wife was to receive a specified sum each month.

President Will Send Financial Message.

Washington, July 21.—President McKinley said yesterday that he proposed to send in his currency commission message as soon as the tariff bill passed the senate. He expects to see the house pass a currency commission bill in accord with the recommendations of his message, but he realizes that the silver senate will take no action on it. He has withheld his message at the request of the Republican leaders in congress, who feared that it might delay the tariff bill. He will send it in to redeem his promises and but his administration on record. It may be that the message will go in too late for any action by the house, which will, of course, make no difference, except in the record of the Republican majority in the house.

Gage Instructs Collectors.

Washington, July 21.—The treasury department has notified collectors of customs to make final liquidation of all entries made since the passage of the tariff bill by the house. The bill as it passed the house, it will be remembered, contained a retroactive clause, and under this clause Secretary Gage ordered only tentative liquidations. As this retroactive feature was discarded by the conferees, the secretary ordered final liquidations.

WILL SOON BE PASSED.

Allison Assures President In Regard to Tariff Conference Report.

Democrats Give Up Attempting Recommittal.

Slow Progress Is Being Made, but Vote Is Soon Expected.

Washington, July 21.—President McKinley was delighted to hear from Senator Allison yesterday evening that he would have an opportunity to sign the new tariff bill by Saturday. Senator Allison told him that he expected to see the senate adopt the conference report tomorrow, while other senators who called on the president thought it might be Friday before the report was adopted. They were all sure the vote would be taken this week, and that the report would be adopted.

Senator Jones of Arkansas had failed, they said, in the attempt he made to get up a coalition of the Democrats, Populists and silver Republicans to send the report back to conference because of the increased duty on white pine and the restoration of cotton bagging and cotton ties to the dutiable list.

The majority of the senators want the bill disposed of, so they can get away, and Senator Jones met discouragement in his efforts to form the combination necessary to accomplish his purpose. It would have been easy for him to do so if it had not been for a ruling made by the late Senator Harris of Tennessee as president pro tem of the senate on the report submitted by the conference committee on the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill in 1894, to the effect that the senate must adopt or reject the conference report as a whole, and that no motion to divide it or amend it could be entertained.

During the day Mr. Tillman (Dem., S. C.) openly threatened a filibuster until next December if cotton bagging and cotton ties were not restored to the free list, but the threat was regarded as somewhat factitious. The sugar amendments occasioned a long debate, during which Mr. Allison stated that the conference rates were lower than those of the senate and largely a concession to the house. Senators Vest, Jones, Berry and White questioned this statement, urging that the Sugar trust secured larger benefits from the conference schedule than from any previously offered. The lumber amendment also brought out animated criticism from Senators Teller and Pettigrew.

The opposition to the bill realize that there is no possibility of preventing the adoption of the report, and their present purpose is only to secure what advantage they can by exhibiting what they claim are the inconsistencies of the measure. It is true that at one time they had some hope of being able to secure the recommittal of the bill, but a thorough canvass reveals no foundation for this hope. It develops that fact that the Republicans will vote solidly for the report, and that they will be supported by Messrs. Jones of Nevada, silver Republican, and McEnery of Louisiana, Democrat, and also probably Messrs. Mantle and Stewart, silver Republicans. They have also discovered that Senator Kyle, Populist, who is absent, has left strict instructions that he should not be paired.

With the adoption of the report thus assured the Democrats probably will not attempt to prolong the debate beyond the arrival of Mr. Turley, the new senator from Tennessee. They will continue to ask for an explanation of changes made by the conference, but these will not occupy a great deal of time.

The general opinion is that the quorum of the senate will disappear very soon after the disposal of the tariff bill, but the determination of the supporters of the Harris Pacific railroad resolution to secure a vote upon it before final adjournment may delay that consummation for some days.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

The Wollaston Fence.

Wollaston passengers from Boston are not allowed now to alight from the cars of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. on the west side of the track, but upon the inward track on the depot side. There is a great deal of feeling on the subject of the fence and new regulations at Wollaston.

Sewer Work.

Work has been commenced at the gate house at Squantum laying the force main of the Quincy sewer, which is being laid at the rate of nearly 300 feet a day.

At West Quincy the contractors are finding considerable rock on Copeland street, but are making good progress. The depth at which the pipe is being laid here varies from six to nine feet.

Lynn's Tax Rate.

The shoe city of Lynn with a population rising 60,000 reports a valuation of 50,850,653 for 1897; real estate, $41,153,446; personal estate, $9,697,207. The valuation total last year was $50,741,745, a gain this year of $108,907. There was this year a loss on personal estate of $591,393, but this was overcome by a gain on real estate valuation of $700,305. The number of polls is 18,903, against 19,642 last year. The tax rate is $17.40 the same as last year.

Is It Garbled?

Over the front door of the President Adams house on Franklin street in charge of the Quincy Historical Society is the legend:

"Adams and Jefferson are no more, their bodies are buried in peace but their names liveth (sic) forevermore.—Daniel Webster.

Is Webster or the sign writer responsible for the grammatical inaccurracy? If the quotation does Webster an injustice, ought not it to be corrected?

The Granite Business.

Now for a boom in the granite industry. The fact is the business has begun to pick up a little. Apparently there is not much business in Quincy and this is for the reason that there are so many firms among whom the work is divided. While no one firm has a very large amount of work in the aggregate there is considerable doing. Up to the present time most of the work has been medium size but within two weeks several large jobs have been secured by local dealers and the new work that is being figured upon is above the average size.

A Benefit (?)

Two bogus nuns have been raising money for their own use at the expense of Rev. A. F. Roche of Hingham; but they have come to grief, having been arrested at Crow Point, Hingham, Tuesday afternoon.

Last week a woman entered a printing office in Boston and ordered 500 tickets which read a grand benefit picnic to Fr. Roche of Hingham, price $1. They were to call for them on a certain day but failing to do so the printer sent the tickets to Fr. Roche, who was thus made aware that he was being used to perpetrate a fraud.

The police were notified to be on the lookout for the bogus ticket sellers and Tuesday they were arrested. It is said that they are the same women who worked a similar game at Harrison Square.

It is not known how many tickets were disposed of, although it is supposed that quite a number have been sold.

—It will be dangerous in future for ladies of Massachusetts to wear the plumage of insect-killing birds on their millinery. Governor Wolcott has signed the bill putting the bird-killer and the bird-wing wearer on the same basis and making them amendable to the same penalty. A similar law should be passed in every state.

QUINCY CLUB CRUISE.

The Yachts at Gloucester Last Night —Fogs Encountered.

A special to the DAILY LEDGER today says that the Quincy Yacht club squadron left Marblehead on Monday forenoon for Manchester and the races. The Vexer remained behind to have repairs made on her gaff, the gooseneck of which was accidentally broken at Winthrop.

The wind was from the east with a thick fog working in from the outside. It was a dead beat down the coast. Manchester was made early in the day.

The point of interest was the Manchester Yacht club's open race for all classes for the Crowhurst cup. Before the race was finished the fog had shut in so thick that it was impossible to run to Gloucester in the afternoon as was at first intended.

The afternoon was pleasantly passed by members of the squadron viewing Manchester, Pride's Crossing, the Essex County Club, Senator McMillian's, T. Dennie Boardman's and Agnes Booth Schoeffel's estates. Some of the members took carriages and others bicycles.

Tuesday morning the fog was thick enough to shovel. At eleven o'clock the squadron got under way for Gloucester. The fog was thick all of the way down. The Gismonda and Mudjekeewis were the only two yachts of the squadron which accompanied the flagship, the rest remaining at Manchester. The Dorothy went down the day before and returned the following morning.

The yachts which participated in the cruise of the Quincy yacht club will reach Hull today in time to participate in the carnival and will reach the club house at Houghs Neck tonight. Dr. Hunting who has been on the flagship of the fleet returned home Tuesday night having left the fleet at Marblehead last night. He reports that they have had light head winds all of the time and have had a grand good time.

Rooster a Winner.

The Tuesday race of the Manchester club in which some of the Quincy boats participated was unsatisfactory from the fact that it was sailed in a fog, and some yachts were unable to find the marks. This was the case with the Privateer in the second cabin boats, where the Muriel defeated the Delphine. In the second open class the order was Hoodlum, Snipe and Tacoma. The Rooster owned by the Adams Bros. won easily in the third class, followed by H. M. Faxon's Cleopatra, the Wrinkle and the Avoset. The order in the fourth class was Vitesse, Fantasy, Circe and Alpine. The Mongoose led the knockabouts, with the Cock Robin, Gosling, Sally III, Fly and Hazard way behind. Today's weather does not promise to be any improvement.

With the Soldier Boys.

The members of Co. K did not find it all play at camp at Framingham on Tuesday, for the 5th regiment was occupied the entire forenoon in drilling, and in the afternoon came the battalion drill.

The officers of the day for the regiment were: officer of the day, Capt. H. A. Clark, Co. I; commander of the guard, Lieut. C. W. Facey, Co. B; brigade guard, Lieut. H. L. Kincaide, Co. K; range officer, Lieut. R. B. Edes, I. R. P.

At the regimental headquarters in the evening Col. Bancroft tendered a complimentary banquet to Brig. Gen. B. F. Peach.

In almost every respect says the Post, it is an ideal camp, such as soothes and inspires the commanding officers. One of the troubles of past years has been loss of valuable time. The brigade has such a brief space to stay here that even minutes cannot be spared, yet circumstances frequently enforce the loss of days. It cannot be said of this encampment that active service did not begin before it was required by law, for every command in the brigade has been following routine since Tuesday morning.

The enlisted men appear to be in excellent condition and fully prepared for the heavy labor to follow limbering up. The only regiment which does not show result in proportion to the activity of its officers is the Eighth. There is no single command in which such desperate efforts are being expended to shape up the rank and file, but the other regiments, working less ostentatiously and more modestly, do better work.

Co. K had 61 men in camp Tuesday and was the largest company in the 5th regiment.

—South Framingham Tribune says statistics do not bear out the assertion that machinery is detrimental to labor. In no industry, perhaps, has machinery been so largely introduced as in the making of shoes. Yet, according to the figures of the census, 885,000 people were employed in this industry in New England in 1890, against 313,000 in 1860, while the average wages per capita have risen from $246 to $409.

—The armies awheel are now out in full force in all the cities and at all the resorts. We meet them along the highways and the byways, and what would ten years since have seemed a most curious sight, now invokes only the most ordinary interest as procession after procession of bicycle riders follows the road to new discoveries and to new fields of enjoyment and recreation. The wheel is king today, wherever one goes.—Boston Courier.

—Revere selectmen have granted a street railway location on condition that the company pay $600 annually for street watering.

—The Brockton, Bridgewater and Taunton street railway company has received authority to increase its stock.

At 7 30 the steam and sailing yachts will be illuminated in the bay. The several residences on the hill will be gaily decorated for the occasion also. Dancing will be enjoyed at the club house after supper.

—Officer Clarence A. Ford of Hanson is still missing, and foul play is feared.

A Protest.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

May I take a little space to call your attention to the monstrosity in the shape of a board fence which is now being erected opposite the Wollaston station? The erection of this fence will certainly be productive of the greatest public inconvenience and will be in fact, a great annoyance to the people of Wollaston. It will also be of marked detriment to the business interests of that part of the town.

Some vigorous protest on the part of Wollaston's citizens should be made against this most unwelcome and undesired innovation. A good many people will walk down the tracks of the railroad rather than be bothered by being obliged to climb up the hill and go over the bridge. Hence the contemplated fence is directly against the interest of the public safety, and on that ground alone it should be condemned. To the foregoing should be added the consideration that such a fence, being an ugly architectural deformity, will certainly be most obstructive to the growth of that section of our city.

A hearing before the Railroad Commissioners should be requested, and an emphatic protest made by the leading and representative citizens of Wollaston.

Will not the powerful influence of the LEDGER be exerted in its favor?

WOLLASTON.

—Dr. James F. Babcock, the chemist who has been an expert witness in several Quincy liquor cases, died Tuesday in Dorchester.

In Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and America, the five great continents, Shaker medicines are being used by suffering humanity for the cure of sickness and disease.

Never was there such a universal demand, never such wonderful results.

Shaker Digestive Cordial, a cure for indigestion, is prepared from herbs and roots and is a natural remedy, which cures by aiding nature and not by fighting her.

Shaker Digestive Cordial makes those fat, who have become thin by not digesting their food.

It restores the spirits and the appetite of those who are dejected and fagged out from the wearing effects of indigestion.

It relieves the syptoms of dyspepsia and, after using for a reasonable time, finally cures the complaint.

Summer Furniture

It's an acknowledged fact that half the people of this world don't know how to live comfortably.

The furniture man is always contriving something new to add to comfort and lessen cost. It's far better to discard upholstered furniture these hot days and add a few pieces of new Summer Furniture. It's inexpensive, cool and refreshing, to say nothing of being easy to care for and wonderfully comfortable.

Our Summer Furniture is worthy your inspection. Divans, Rockers and Easy Chairs in grass cloth; Mammouth Rockers and Comfort Chairs in reeds and splints, finished in moss-green and natural; Piazza Rockers and Chairs, Lawn Settees and Hammocks.

Enjoy a comfortable life while you live. Misfortunes may come later, and a life of regrets is the most miserable of all lives to live.

The Magazines.

So successful has been the series of plans of moderate-cost houses in the Ladies' Home Journal, that the magazine has now employed its own architect, who, in the July number, begins a series of the Ladies' Home Journal's Model Houses of Moderate Cost. Thoroughly practical and reliable in every respect, this new series promises to do more to stimulate the building of small homes than any series of articles ever maintained by a magazine.

The complete novel in the August issue of Lippincott's is "Two Daughters of One Race," by Edgar Fawcett. It is a domestic tale of love and blindness, with a simple hero, and two heroines whose characters are in marked contrast. Its well-known author has done no better work. "Private Barney Hogan," by Lieut. Charles Dudley Rhodes and "Two Settlers" by Frances M. Butler, are brief and pointed army stories, the latter relating a pathetic incident of the civil war.

The August number of the Dilineator is called the midsummer number, and its exposition of hot-weather modes and fabrics is made graphic by full-page color plates and intertextual illustrations, supplemented by a special article on mourning attire. The number is notable for its fiction, Frances Lynde's "Diana of the Ephesians," a dainty love story with a setting among the mountains of northern Alabama, being complemented by the fascinating narration of an encounter with a Paris necromancer, which forms the second of Martin Orde's serial accounts of Clive Rayner's adventures. Mrs. A. S. Potter writing of the social life of St. Louis shows the continued potency of the Creole influence in that interesting semi-southern metropolis.

An abundance of jokes, pictures, sketches and verses, with short stories by Eugene Shade Bisbee, Richard Duffy, Ralph Graham Taber and Wilfred Galt, make the July number of The Yellow Kid (Howard Ainslee & Co., New York), interesting. Some attention is given portraits of stage favorites and the faces of Lulu Tabor, Louise Allen, Willie Collier, Margaret Gordon and Nita Allen smile from the pages. There is a good five cents' worth of entertainment for hot weather in the Yellow Kid.

HOUGHS NECK.

Rain yesterday, clearing up about 5 P. M. to give the residents of the Neck an opportunity to hear the band concert.

Master Walter Talbot, while swinging on a tree at Mears' hotel, Tuesday, fell five feet and landed on his shoulder fracturing his shoulder severely. He was brought to his home by his young playmates and aid was quickly summoned.

The barge party which left last night was a grand success, among the guests were Miss Eva Fitts, Mr. Frank Bleidler, Miss Lillian Brown, Mr. Fred Maynard, Mr. James Conry, Mr. Walter Bradley, Miss Margaret Burns, Mr. Lloyd F. Hoey, they left the Neck at 6.50 and arrived at Highland Park at 9 10. The young people are expecting to have a hay rigging party the last of the month.

The Houghs Neck Jr.'s would like a game with some team averaging 12 years or younger. Address L. F. H., Box 16, Houghs Neck.

Miss Grace Means is a guest at the Delmonte.

Miss E. BeeBe and Miss Gertrude Tileston of Hyde Park are the guests of Mrs. L. Bates at the Murray Cottage for a few days.

Miss Rosalie Bayley of Monatiquot avenue, Braintree, is visiting at the beach.

The De Koven quartette of Holbrook were entertained by Roy B. Thayer on Sunday.

Residents and others are requested to contribute toward the band concerts that are given every afternoon and evening. Papers for contributions can be found at Costello's, Harvey's, Vinton's and at the post office.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Odin Folsom for assault on Manuel Jacobson at Quincy was called. The alleged assault took place on June 11. That day Folsom drove the Boston team of L. M. Pratt & Co.

Jacobson testified that he met Folsom in Boston, who asked him to ride out, which offer he accepted. He had a bottle of brandy and a bottle of whiskey with him and on the way out they stopped at South Boston, and Fields Corner and had drinks; they also drank some of the brandy. When Quincy square was reached, Jacobson testified he left the team and followed on foot to Pratt & Co. store. Here he asked Folsom for his brandy, upon which Folsom said he left it down town. Folsom then hit Jacobson on the jaw, the force of the blow knocking him down, and in falling his leg was broken.

Folsom testified that Jacobson asked him, at the corner of Kneeland and South streets, for a ride to Quincy. On the way out we had one glass of beer at Field's corner. When we got to Quincy, Jacobson was drowsy and he got off. He kept drinking all the way out and I had given part of it away by his permission. The quart bottle was nearly finished when we reached Butler road and I threw the bottle over the fence. While unloading at Pratt's store, Jacobson came up and wanted his whiskey and bothered us. Jacobson then struck me in the stomach, and I struck him once and he fell. They picked him up and carried him into the store.

The court found Folsom guilty and imposed a fine of $30.

Michael Sheridan was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Weymouth. Case continued two months.

The Siberian Tchuktchis.

The Siberian Tchuktchis are totally different in appearance, language and customs from the Alaskan Eskimo. They are fairly well disposed as a rule, excepting during their drunken orgies, which take place on an average once a week. It is not safe on these occasions to venture abroad, for rifles are discharged indiscriminately in all directions and occasionally into the huts. The strangest custom of this strange tribe is what is called the kamitok, of putting to death (with their free consent) of the aged and useless members of the community by strangulation with a walrus thong. A kamitok is never practiced on women. The shamans, or medicine men, are practically kings in the place, and woe to the luckless Tchuktchi who incurs their displeasure. —London Graphic.

A PECULIAR TRAIN.

A TRAVELING MAN'S EXPERIENCE IN A COUNTRY HOUSE.

The Spook Special That Makes an Annual Trip on an Abandoned Track—A Brave Engineer Who Saved a Trainload of Excursionists.

"Speaking of things," remarked a Philadelphia drummer, "I had a strange thing happen to me about a month ago in Georgia. It didn't exactly happen to me either, but it was in my hearing. I had attempted to drive across country to catch a train at a station which I could not have reached otherwise except by a long and tiresome detour over a miserable piece of road—and when a railroad in Georgia is bad it is bad with any sort of an adjective for emphasis you choose. It was 12 miles and through a mountain gap, and as it was nearly dark when I started I wound up by getting lost and going the Lord knows where till I struck a very fair two story house that looked as if it might have been a summer hotel once upon a time.

"I asked the man who responded to my call how far it was to the railroad, and he told me ten miles, and I had better 'light' and stay all night. I 'lighted,' and after a bite of cold bread and meat and a drink of 'moonshine' I went to bed, tired enough to have slept on a picket fence. It was then 11 o'clock, and about two hours later I was awakened from my slumbers by hearing a train whistle apparently a mile or less away and then rumble along, coming nearer and nearer and nearer until suddenly it stopped, and I heard no more. I was too sleepy to give it much thought, and, rolling over, I went to sleep again wondering why my host had told me it was ten miles to the railroad, unless it was to deceive me out of the price of a night's lodging.

"In the morning at breakfast I mentioned the fact to him, and he laughed in an uneasy kind of way and assured me that it was ten miles to the railroad, and I would think it was three times that far after I had driven over it. The noise I had heard, he said, was probably the wind blowing down the chimney and banging around the house, which was old and open in many places. I hadn't any more to say and went on my way to the railroad, reaching there in three hours and noticing all the way that an old roadbed with the ties and rails still on it in places lay near the wagon road all the way to the station.

"At the station, while waiting for my train, I got to talking with the station agent, who was a bright, sharp chap, and incidentally I asked him about that railroad train. He looked at me quick as a wink and asked me the particulars, which I told him.

"'It's a han't,' he said. 'Last night was the night it always comes. When the road was first built here, there was a branch that ran back up in that country to a place about two or three miles beyond that house to a kind of a summer resort up there—mineral springs and a waterfall. Excursions for a day used to go up there from towns down the road from here and up the other way. Ten years ago tonight an excursion was coming back from there, and just about the neighborhood of that house the engineer saw an obstruction on the track that was going to throw the whole shebang over the bank, and, whistling down brakes and cutting his engine loose, he went straight for it and knocked it off the track. Of course he and his engine went with it, and neither of them was ever any more use after that racket, but the train was saved, and that was enough for a man to die for, because there were 200 women and children in the excursion.

"'It was shown that some of the people in the neighborhood had attempted to wreck the train, and it spoiled the excursion business. There was coal on the branch that kept the last nine or ten miles of it in operation for a few years longer, but there never was another passenger train to go over the place where the engineer was killed—that is to say, never another train that anybody ever saw, but there has been one go over the spot, or, rather, go to it and stop one night in every year for the past ten years. I have heard it, and so have the men in that house and you, but no more that I know of because his nearest neighbor is three miles away, and nobody ever gets in that neighborhood to stay all night. I suppose I would not have been there if he had not asked me as a friend to come up on one of the anniversary nights and hear it, so he could talk to me about it and advise with me whether to move away or stick it out. I advised him to stay and had very nearly forgotten all about it, for really the subject hasn't come to my notice in four or five years, and you can wager money I never went back there to listen to it any more. I'll be blamed if I couldn't see that engineer and his engine whirling to destruction the night I staid there because I knew what to expect and sat up to wait for it with every nerve at its highest tension. Darn queer kind of a ghost, isn't it?'

"I told him I thought it was," concluded the drummer, "and when I suggested to him that I might perhaps tell the story to some one else and it might get into the newspapers he laughed and said that was just the same as keeping it a dead secret, for nobody in that neighborhood took a newspaper or could read one if he did."—Washington Star.

Built Up Wood.

There has come into use a method of "building up" boards by gluing or cementing together thin slabs of wood of different kinds, so placed that the grain of the various pieces is crossed. It is claimed that not only extra strength is thus obtained, but also extra flexibility and durability. Doors made of the prepared wood are said to be stronger than much thicker doors made of ordinary wood, and they do not warp. Packing boxes and trunks are also made of this material.

THE LISTENER.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst has been elected a trustee of Amherst college.

When Senator Mills of Texas was a boy, he used to make cigars for sale. His father grew the tobacco in Virginia.

Joseph Benson Foraker of Ohio is the only member of the United States senate who was graduated from Cornell university.

Senator Pettigrew, who recently lost his voice temporarily while addressing the senate, will take a long rest. He will visit Japan.

Congressman Updegraff of Iowa is known at home as "Toadstool Tom" because of his exhaustive knowledge of mushrooms.

Congressman Joseph W. Bailey of Texas has been called "Young" Mr. Bailey for three sessions of congress. At 33 years old he is the acknowledged leader of the Democrats in the house.

Rev. Ralph Illingsworth, a Bellefonte (Pa.) Methodist minister and a graduate of Dickinson college, has quit the pulpit for the bar, having been admitted to practice in the Center county courts.

Dr. James Lycurgus Ord, who was the man to read the Declaration of Independence in California in 1848, is still hale and hearty and read that instrument in Pacific Grove, Cal., last month.

A correspondent says: "Two years ago, when I saw him last, there was no gathering of Americans in Paris in which Theodore Tilton was not a conspicuous, honored, perfectly fascinating spirit. He is neither feeble nor bent."

Secretary Sherman recently began talking of some important questions with a man whom he thought to be Senator Hanna when he learned to his dismay that he was addressing another person who bears a remarkable resemblance to the senator.

Dumont Clarke, president of the American Exchange bank of New York, has received as a present a silver model of the Bank of England, complete in every feature and correct in proportions, a perfect facsimile in miniature of the famous building.

The Rev. Edward Everett Hale, in a recent address on Boston Common, spoke of his trip half way across the continent and said, "I traveled by day in order to see the country, and after seeing all the beauty you can't persuade me that the God who made this beautiful world doesn't like it."

Victorien Sardou, the great French dramatist, was intended to be a physician, but he was so poor that he had to give Greek and Latin lessons at 20 cents apiece. He was also a bookseller's hack and made translations. It is stated that he was once paid less than $6.50 for a translation which took him three weeks to do.

James Lane of Chicago, who celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary last March, is one of the enthusiastic bicycle riders on the North Side. He asserts he is the oldest wheelman in the world, and every pleasant afternoon, says a correspondent, he can be seen "scorching along the North Side boulevards.

THRONE LIGHTS.

Queen Marie Henriette of Belgium is 61 years of age and a woman of rare intelligence and sympathy. She is apparently haughty and cold, but in reality has a warm heart.

Siam's monarch examined carefully a marble tablet with a Siamese inscription which the Vatican museum authorities had prepared in his honor, and, thanking them for their polite intention, corrected the spelling and syntax of the inscription.

Kaiser Wilhelm has a fad. When he is in the hunting field, he is followed by a telephone carriage, by the use of which he can communicate with other points in the chase, learning from the foresters and gamekeepers the position of the deer and other game.

One day, shortly before Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, one of her royal daughters remarked anxiously, "Mamma, it will tire you to bow for all those hours on jubilee day!" "I have bowed to my people for 60 years," was the reply, "and I shall not let that tire me on jubilee day."

The Duchess of Cumberland, Princess Thyra of Denmark, sister of the Princess of Wales and of the dowager czarina, has again broken down and been taken to a private asylum near Vienna. The cause is anxiety on account of the long illness of her son, who was recently subjected to another surgical operation to prevent the decay of the bones of his leg.

WALES AND HIS HAT.

That new hat with which the Prince of Wales has set a London fashion looks like the headpiece that used to be worn by poor "Old Hoss" Hoey, who has just passed away.—Boston Globe.

The Prince of Wales shows a sickening disregard of the hatters by "starting a new hat" in midsummer when the summer stock is on the shelves and the factories are turning out fall and winter styles.—New York Times.

And so the queen will permit the Prince of Wales to do the social functions of royalty after this, but the crown will continue to be worn by her majesty, leaving the prince to revel in his fuzzy, bell crowned plug hat.—Boston Herald.

The Prince of Wales has adopted a new style of headgear, very warm, very large and very uncomfortable, but the Anglomaniacs have made themselves uncomfortable before now for the sake of imitating their royal idol. They would wear an inverted coffeepot if he set the fashion.—Chicago Chronicle.

TIRE PUNCTURES.

It is the hard road the bicyclist loves to travel because it is easier.—Salt Lake Herald.

It might be said, however, that the bicycle leg which is worrying wheelwomen usually belongs to the man who had to buy the wheels for the family.—Detroit Tribune.

The time has come when a patient and long suffering community will not endure the perilous nuisance of a heedless youth humped upon a bicycle rushing through the streets in disregard of human life.—Rochester Herald.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

It takes an American to comprehend the intimate connection between patriotism and the postoffices.—Omaha Bee.

Legislation is a public matter, and efforts to influence it are only legitimate when they are public.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The senators having expressed their virtuous opinion of the ex-senators who lobby, it would be interesting to know what the ex-senators think of the senators who log roll.—Philadelphia Record.

Temperance Delegates Return.

Boston, July 21.—Three of the delegates who have just returned from the session of the International Supreme Lodge of Good Templars in Zurich, Switzerland, William O. Wylie, Walter L Hathaway and Rev. James Yeames were given a reception in Faneuil hall last night. Addresses were made by Joseph A. Fancy, grand chief templar of Massachusetts; Hon. William M. Olin, secretary of state; Mrs. Nixon, past worthy grand patriarch of the Sons of Temperance, and the three delegates.

Constables Fight.

Providence, July 21.—Constable Alfred A. Johnson of Warwick is lying at the point of death as the result of a fight with Constable Ballou of the same town. Bad blood has existed between the two families for some time. Sunday morning the men became engaged in a quarrel. Ballou and his son attacked Johnson and the latter was so beaten about the head that he is not expected to live.

Gage Coming to Boston.

Boston, July 21.—Secretary of the Treasury Gage has accepted the invitation of some 70 of the most prominent business men of Boston to attend a dinner given in his honor next Tuesday evening.

Mystery at Lewiston.

Lewiston, July 21.—Thomas Ranks of Lewiston, lately of Webster, left h breakfast table Sunday morning, and, going across the road, sat on a stone wall. His wife heard a pistol shot a moment after, and that is all that is known of the whereabouts of the said man. What became of him, who fired the shot, where his body is, or who saw him get off the wall, is a mystery. Halt of the town of Webster is out searching for him, and his family in Lewiston and the surrounding towns are in a state of excitement over the affair.

Where Sweet Concord Reigns.

The Weirs, N. H., July 21.—The first concert of the New Hampshire music teachers' festival, now in session here, was held in Music hall yesterday afternoon, the entire program being under the auspices of the musical talent of the state. All the artists were well received. The chorus is the largest of any that has ever attended a previous meeting. Governor George A. Ramsdell and Adjutant General A. D. Ayling of his staff have accepted invitations and will be present Friday afternoon and evening.

You may hunt the world over and you will not find another medicine equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

Concord, N. H., July 21.—At the meeting of the governor and council in this city yesterday the following appointments were made: Dr. G. P. Conn, Concord, Professor Robert Fletcher, Hanover, members of the state board of health; Edward H. Currier, Manchester, member of the state board of pharmacy; John G. Tallan of Pembroke, member of the state board of agriculture; Harry McHenry, Lebanon, auditor of state printers' accounts.

Powderly's Confirmation Opposed.

Washington, July 21.—The senate committee on immigration attempted to secure a meeting westerday to consider the nomination of T. V. Powderly, to be commissioner of immigration, but it failed to obtain a quorum. The meeting developed the fact that confirmation will be opposed by some senators on the ground that Powderly's appointment is distasteful to the labor element.

TO MAKE MEN QUIT.

Two Thousand Strikers Marching on Cannonsburg District.

Crisis In Situation Is Rapidly Approaching.

Men Feel the Pangs of Want and Are Becoming Desperate.

Pittsburg, July 21.—Today may see some exciting incidents in the great struggle of the miners against their employers. In all former strikes there have been riots and bloodshed, and it is remarkable that no disturbances have so far occurred in this one. The attention of the miners of the Pittsburg district is now rivited on the Allison, Boone and Enterprise mines, near Cannonsburg. The Boone and Allison mines, which were closed by the owners to prevent trouble between their men and the marching strikers, resumed yesterday with nearly a full force. No attempt was made to start up at the Enterprise mine. The strikers fear that if these mines continue in operation it will induce the Enterprise men to go back to work. The program of the strikers is to make another march on the Allison mine. The leaders say that more than 2000 diggers would be massed in the Pan Handle district and another march made on the mines.

Last night the miners of the Pan Handle district were gathering above Bridgeville and it will not be surprising if 1000 miners are found on the Washington pike. The men in the Miller's and Tom's run districts are all idle and have plenty of time to make another march. They were supplying themselves with several day's rations, and if the proposed march is made they will stay about the offending mines for several days.

Up to a late hour last night no word relating to a march had been received at the district headquarters. If the march is made the time will be kept a secret.

Just at this stage of the strike sensational developments are expected. The men are beginning to feel the pangs of want, and are in a condition bordering on desperation.

It is learned that organizers have been secretly at work among the miners of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company for several days. One of them was served with an injunction to remain off the company's property and leave the men alone. He said that he had been at work among the men at Plum creek, and expressed great hopes of being able to have them join the general suspension. As near as can be learned a concerted effort will be made in the near future to bring out the men at Turtle creek, Sandy creek and Plum creek.

Just what proceedure will be resorted to has not yet been decided on. The officials feel that in order to make the strike a success in this district these miners must be brought out. They admit they have a difficult job on their hands, as DeArmitt's men seem determined to remain at work. The mines are running to their fullest capacity and are supplying a large quantity of coal to the trade.

The coal market was quiet yesterday. Much coal was offered at $1.25 a ton. Slack took a big jump and sold for 85 cents a ton. Before the strike it was sold at 40 cents a ton. There are hundreds of tons of slack coal at the mines in the Pittsburg district, but the miners' officials will not permit any of it to be loaded. A number of strikers interfered with the men who were loading from barges into cars, coal that had been purchased by W. H. Summonds, a dealer from C. Jutte & Co. The men were compelled to quit work. Miners' Secretary Warner disapproved of the action, and issued an order to the strikers to molest no men who were handling coal that was mined before the strike was inaugurated.

Organizers Green and Wallace notify headquarters that they were compelled to leave Pocahontas, Va., at the point of six-shooters. They did not offer resistance. They, however, remained in the neighborhood with the intention of doing missionary work among the miners. One thousand workers in the Simons mine have gone out.

The mayor refused to allow Grand Master Workman Soverign to speak at Pocahontas. W. J. Freidman, an agitator, was seriously injured by being struck by a stone, and four other agitators were forced to flee.

Cameron Miller returned from Uniontown last night and said that instead of holding the meeting he expected at Fairchance, he spent the day in consultation with the labor leaders at Uniontown. As a result of this conference it is announced that a mass meeting of the miners in the coke regions will be held at Scottdale on the 28th, to consider the grievances peculiar to their own district, which include the loading of "hump-back" wagons, company stores, etc. Mr. Miller says that it needs but a spark to inflame the miners in the coke region and secure their co-operation in the great strike.

Reports come from Bridgeveille that the strikers are massing at that point with the intention of making a raid on the mines at Cannonsburg, where the men have returned to work.. As the weather and roads are more propitious, it is expected that double the number of men who made the march Monday night will be in line. Provisions for several days are being prepared, and it is expected that a determined siege will be the result.

President Receives Strike Petition.

Washington, July 21.—The president has received the resolution adopted by the Pittsburg council asking him to use his good offices in the settlement of the coal strike, but has not yet sent a reply. He has also received many communications and suggestions on the subject, but it is improbable that he will take any action in the matter in the absence of some definite plan for the settlement of the strike. The cabinet yesterday discussed this matter informally. The only absentees from the cabinet meeting were Secretary Sherman, who is not yet well enough to go out, and Secretary Alger, who is in the West.

MRS. MAY ON TRIAL.

East Wilton Woman Is Charged With Obtaining Money by Fraud.

Boston, July 21.—In the municipal court yesterday Abbie A. May of East Wilton, N. H., was placed on trial on the charge of obtaining about $2300 upon false pretences from the wardens of Christ Episcopal church of Cambridge. R. D. Washburn of Cambridge, a real estate dealer, was the principal party in the prosecution. According to his story, Mrs. May came to him in May and borrowed $4000 upon her "old colonial house and 100-acre lot in East Wilton," upon the representation that it was worth $9000. The attorney for Mrs. May tried to get in the fact that Washburn received $80 commission from Mrs. May for negotiating the mortgage.

It was shown that the property had been insured for $4000, but witness said there was a hitch, and the insurance could not be consummated. It was because of the hitch in the insurance that the investigation as to the value of the mortgaged property was commenced.

Dr. Franklin N. Perry of Wilton, N. H., testified that he held a previous mortgage on the property, which was paid off by money received from the mortgage taken by the church. He estimated the value of the property at $1800. The house was not a large colonial mansion. The case will be concluded today.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Cincinnati—

The Reds and Bostons played two games yesterday afternoon, and broke even. Lewis pitched fine ball for the visitors in the first game, while Dwyer was hit rather hard. In the second game Klobedanz was sent to th slab for th visitors, and Billy Rhines for the Reds. Klobedanz was touched up for 19 hits in the six innings he played, while the visitors only made two off Rhines delivery. Umpire Hurst called the game after the sixth inning on account of darkness. Attendance, 10,200.

Salvation Army Anniversary.

London, July 21.—The Salvation Army celebrated its 32nd anniversary at the Crystal palace yesterday. An enormous gathering is assembled, with delegates from all parts of the world. General Booth read a telegram he had received from the queen conveying her majesty's congratulations and good wishes and acknowledging the far-reaching work of the army. Her majesty expressed the hope that the divine blessing would accompany the army's efforts.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Reports Sent to War Department on the Work Done In New England.

Washington, July 21.—The annual report of Major R. L. Hoxie to the war department gives the details of work accomplished on rivers and harbors in Maine and New Hampshire during the last fiscal year. The channel of the Lubec (Maine) river was widened about 170 feet at the entrance and 100 feet at the turn above Cranberry point, at a cost of $16,982. The breakwater from Mount Desert to Porcupine island, Bar Harbor, Me., was extended 61 feet by the deposit of stone.

Belfast harbor was improved by the removal of 50,506 yards of material from the south side of the channel, completing the project.

The project for the improvement of Camden harbor, Me., was completed by the removal of 61,999 yards of material from the middle ground.

At Rockland harbor the work consisted in extending the breakwater. The available balance is $167,119.

The work of excavating at Lovejoy narrows, Kennebec river, Me., was concluded in November last. There is an available balance of $52,046.

Nothing in the way of improvement was done at Portland harbor, Me., during the year. The operations at Bellamy river, N. H., consisted in completing the dredging of the channel and turning basin, 58,810 yards of material being removed.

At Cocheco river, N. H., the channel through the upper narrows was dredged and a small shoal at Dover removed.

The anchorage at Little Harbor, N. H. was widened and dredged.

Connecticut Rivers and Harbors.

Washington, July 21.—Major S. S. Leach, in charge of river and harbor improvements in Connecticut, has submitted his annual report to the war department. The jetties at the mouth of the Connecticut river below Hartford, the report says, have not been completed, and the detoriation by settlement of wave attack has injured them. The channel is in a satisfactory condition as a result of the annual dredging. The available balance for continuing the improvements is $10,921. The project for a 16-foot channel at New Haven harbor lacks only the widening of the Fort Hale cut from 100 to 400 feet to complete it. The bed of the harbor generally appears to be of an exceedingly stable character. The commerce of the port of New Haven in 1896 was 3,250,000 tons, and so far as tonnage is an index of commercial importance, the report says, New Haven deserves to rank with Charlestown.

Alaska Land Districts Recommended.

Washington, July 21.—Commissioner Hermann of the general land office will recommend the establishment of two land districts in western Alaska, the two offices to be placed on the Yukon river or its tributaries, in anticipation of a great number of contentions over mineral land locations in various sections where the gold discoveries have been made. He says as that region is practically without law, especially as to the settlement of contests, the local land offices will be of infinite value to the land interests, and indirectly to the preservation of law and order. The offices, it is probable, will be located at Circle City and Dawson City. The general land office is in hourly expectation of petitions and requests for some such action.

Carlists Active Again.

London, July 21.—A special dispatch from Madrid, referring to the revival of Carlism, says: Large quantities of supplies are stored on the French border and large consignments of arms have been ordered in Germany and in Belgium. While nobody thinks that the Carlists will openly rebel in the present circumstances, if popular discontent over the mismanagement of Cuba and the subserviency of the government to the United States spreads and develops riots, as it is quite likely to do, when Don Carlos may try his luck again.

Church Struck by Lightning.

Newport, Vt., July 21.—A severe thunder storm passed over this city yesterday and considerable damage was inflicted by the lightning. The steeple of the Baptist church was struck and demolished, and the splintered boards were blown through the windows of the adjoining houses. The wires in the office of the central telephone station were burned out and several persons were prostrated.

Death of Shirley.

London, July 21.—Sir John Skelton, the author known by the nom de plume of "Shirley," is dead.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIMES.

Bennie Page Matthews, aged 8, son of James P. Matthews of Providence, was drowned at Ware, Mass., He was swimming and became exhausted.

As a result of a wound received from a blank cartridge, July 5, Charles Halstrom, aged 14, died yesterday at Providence.

Dispatches from Talbotton, Ga., confirm the report of the lynching of there of Dr. W. L. Ryder, who murdered Miss Sallie Emma Owen a year ago.

Twenty-two seamen of the lost British ship Kinkora, who spent nearly two months on the barren island of Clipperton, in the South sea, arrived at San Francisco yesterday morning on the warship Comus.

Lightning struck the barn of Frank Prescott at Oakland, N. H., and killed two horses. The electric fluid also traversed the house, and Mr. Prescott's parents, Mr and Mrs. Samuel Prescott, were injured. Mrs. Prescott was rendered unconscious.

Israel Rosenthal, aged 15, was instantly killed and Isaac Shutzman, aged 14, was fatally injured while walking on the Boston and Maine railroad tracks at Lowell, Mass. They stepped from one track to the other, directly in front of an express train.

The fishing schooner Elmer E. Randall of Beverly, Mass., was sunk yesterday, six miles east of Boston light, by a collision with the schooner Henry Sutton of New Haven. The collision was due to a dense fog. All the Randall's crew were saved.

Fred B. Robb of the Robb Engineering company was drowned at Amherst, N. S., while out bathing with the boys of the Y. M. C. A. camp. All the boys were small and cannot explain how the drowning occurred in only three feet of water, but it is presumed that Robb was overcome by the heat. Deceased was 38 years of age, and leaves a widow and three children.

Summer Furniture

It's an acknowledged fact that half the people of this world don't know how to live comfortably.

The furniture man is always contriving something new to add to comfort and lessen cost. It's far better to discard upholstered furniture these hot days and add a few pieces of new Summer Furniture. It's inexpensive, cool and refreshing, to say nothing of being easy to care for and wonderfully comfortable.

Our Summer Furniture is worthy your inspection. Divans, Rockers and Easy Chairs in grass cloth; Mammouth Rockers and Comfort Chairs in reeds and splints, finished in moss-green and natural; Piazza Rockers and Chairs, Lawn Settees and Hammocks.

Enjoy a comfortable life while you live. Misfortunes may come later, and a life of regrets is the most miserable of all lives to live.

SEVEN WERE KILLED.

Terrible Explosion In Loading Room of Winchester Armory.

Four Women and Two Men Died Instantly.

Bodies Shockingly Mutilated--Cause of Explosion Not Known.

New Haven, July 22.—At 9:30 o'clock yesterday a most appalling accident occurred in the shell-loading department of the Winchester Repeating Firearms company's shops, as a result of which six persons met instant death, another victim died soon afterward in the hospital, and a score of others were more or less seriously injured.

Following is the list of dead:

Julus Borman, single, 17, powder boy.

Josephine Brennan, orphan, 18, machine operator.

Mrs. Nellie Baumeister, married, 16, parents reside in Brooklyn, machine operator.

Ida Brown, married, parents reside in Detroit, machine operator.

Theresa Connelley, single, 16, machine operator.

Walter Hill, single, 18, powder boy.

Edward Bardoff, machine operator.

The explosion occurred in that department which is known as the loading room. Employed in this room were 150 hands, about 100 of whom were girls and women. Nearly all of the female hands are employed on what are known as the loading machines. These machines are so constructed as to require three operators. The receptacle holding the powder has a capacity of one pound of the explosive, and, as fast as the powder is exhausted a powder boy replenishes the supply.

When the explosion occurred, the full complement of hands was at work in the room. Of a sudden and without warning a deafening explosion took place.

In an instant the air was filled with shrieks and agonizing cries. Forty feet of the side of the building was blown out and hurled in pieces many feet. The air was filled with flying debris and fragments of human bodies were scattered in a sickening manner. Every employe in the mammoth plant as well as residents in that secetion were only too familiar with this sort of thing and operations were instantly suspended. Enormous crowds flocked to the scene.

The police finally were compelled to adopt most stringent methods to hold in control the great crowd. As soon as the turmoil was quieted to a degree, a systematic investigation was begun. Not until then was the extent of the fearful tragedy apparent. The immediate scene of the explosion presented a sickening sight. Machinery, wood, bricks and other debris was everywhere, and in the midst of it all were found pieces, large and small, recognizable and otherwise, of quivering human flesh. It was a sight which caused the strongest man to falter and draw back.

As rapidly as possible the injured were cared for. In two instances the suffering of the wounded was frightful. One of the victims who had not been killed was partially disembowelled. As rapidly as a victim was seen to be alive, the mutilated being was tenderly cared for, made as comfortable as possible, and dispatched with all posible speed to his home, if he could give his address, or was recognized by friends, and to the hospital or elsewhere if not. With the work of caring for the injured procedeed with, so far as opprtunity allowed, the effort to ascertan the extent of the fatalities was inaugurated.

The officials of the company expended every effort to assist in the work of relief. They caused to be rounded up so far as was possible those of their employes who were in the immediate vicinity of the explosion. Those who had lost friends could not be controlled, but at noon it believed that all of the dead had been found.

The excitement refused to subside. The fellow workmen and work women of the victims were quivering with excitement. Some of them were burned by the blinding flash, some were stunned by flying wreckage and all were frightfully wrought up. Perhaps the saddest scene was enacted when John Baumeister learned that his wife was among the dead. He lived in Hamden, and had been but recently married. At the time of the explosion he was at work but a few feet distant from his wife.

DR. MALCOLM DYING.

Aged Physician Taken From His House on a Hot Day by a Deputy Sheriff.

Waterville, Me., July 22.—Dr. David Malcolm's condition is very serious, the doctors giving up his case. Dr. Malcolm was brought to Waterville Wednesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Charles Jones of China. The doctor was wanted as a witness, and though 78 years old was brought a distance of 19 miles in the heat of the day. Reaching Waterville he was found to be very sick, and doctors were called, who pronounced his condition in part due to a dose of morphine, from which he would recover. It is now stated he will succumb. His relatives were notified and are here. In an interview his grand-daughter stated: "We shall proceed against Deputy Sheriff Charles Jones, who knew better than to have taken a man of grandfather's age and condition out into the heat of Wednesday. One sheriff came for him before Jones, and seeing he was sick did not insist upon his going.

"When Jones came for grandfather he was told he could not go, or at least before seeing a physician, but no attention was paid to this.

"I understand when they had gone some miles from the house grandfather got from the carriage and secured a drink, at which time he took a dose of morphine to ease his sufferings."

Values Shrunk, Debt Increased.

Concord, N. H., July 22.—Hon. Joseph B. Walker and William J. Ahern of this city, appointed auditors of Merrimack county under the law of the last legislature, made public last night their first report to the supreme court. This document is interesting, because of the investigation of accounts of the board of commissioners who resigned a few months ago. The auditors find a shrinkage in the value of property of the county and an increase in the debt.

Important Business Deal.

Portland, Me., July 22.—A business deal of great importance to Lewiston, Auburn, Bath and Turner people, as well as to those who live at different points along the route of what is soon to be the electric line from Bath to Lewiston and Turner's, was made here yesterday. The stock of the Lewiston and Auburn Electric Railroad company will be transferred to a syndicate. The bonds were mostly held by the First National bank of Portland and by the Pope estate. The new line will be built from Bath to Lewiston and the Lewiston and Auburn line will be a part of the system. It is expected that the line will then be extended to Turner. Important water powers will be opened up, and it is thought that some large factories will be started in the near future.

Mrs. May's Case.

Boston, July 22.—The case against Mrs. Abbie A. May of West Wilton, N. H., who is charged with obtaining $2,300 from R. D. Washburn of Cambridge, warden of the Grace Episcopal church, was resumed yesterday. C. A. Learened for Mr. Washburn gave details of his connection with the transaction in corroboration of the testimony of his employer. Samuel Anderson, a New Hampshire builder, for the defence, told of a visit to May View farm, and gave estimates of the value of the place far in excess of the mortgage placed upon it He said the improvements made upon it cost about $3,500. He, however, did not know much about the orchards or farm.

Dilatory Water Consumers.

Kingston, Mass., July 22.—Considerable excitement was caused here yesterday by the action of the water board in giving orders to its superintendents to shut off the water supply of certain takers who owe their water rates from January to July of the present year. The board justifies its course by saying that water takers had become so dilatory that it was forced to take drastic measures There are some citizens who doubt whether the water board can legally compel the payment of water rates in advance. There are upwards of 275 water takers in town, and a large portion will, it is said, be affected by the order of the board.

Vacant Houses Robbed.

Boston, July 22.—During the past week at least four Back Bay residences have been entered by burglars and property valued at several hundred dollars stolen. Most of the dwellings were unoccupied, their owners being away for the summer. The burglars evidently made themselves at home and left evidence that they had planned to make another visit to carry off their plunder. Entrance to some of the houses was evidently made through the skylights. The houses are on the bank of the Charles river, and the police think that they were approached from the rear in boats, the latter being used in removing such of the goods as were carried away.

Hit by Stray Bullet.

Salem, Mass., July 22.—While Mrs Morgan, wife of Letter Carrier William H. Morgan, in company with her husband and a party of friends, was picking berries in a pasture in Wenham yesterday afternoon, she was shot in the head by a rifle ball, which entered back of her ear and passed out without penetrating the skull. No one could ascertain where the shot came from, and the shooting is believed to have been due to someone's carelessness. Mrs. Morgan was taken to the Salem hospital where the wound was dressed, and her condition is not considered serious.

Voyage a Continual Drift.

Bucksport, Me., July22.—The Italian bark Salvatore, Captain Fariello, was docked at Nicholson's warehouse yesterday to discharge her cargo of salt. after 118 days from Augusta, Sicily. Nearly two months overdue, she was given up for lost by the agents who were about to file insurance claims. Her log and charts, tell a strange tale of the sea The vessel had less than six days of good sailing breeze on the voyage, which was one continual drift in a succession of calms from Sicily to the Maine coast

NEARING FINAL VOTE.

Tacitly Understood That Senate Will Pass Tariff Bill Tomorrow.

Democrats Will Mot Attempt Further Delay.

If Tariff Is Disposed of Adjournment Sine Die Will Be Had Saturday.

Washington, July 22.—Friday is the day on which the tariff bill will pass the senate, according to the expectations and understanding of senators on both sides of the chamber at the time of adjournment last evening. The senate had then practically examined all the items in the conference report upon which the Democratic senators insisted, and it could have taken a final vote upon the adoption of the conference report last evening, but for the speechmaking members of the opposition who wanted to occupy a day or two in manufacturing campaign material and bringing out the iniquities of the conference agreement.

All hopes of defeating the conference report and sending it back to the conference has disappeared from the minds of the opposition, and as there is no object to be gained by filibustering, and almost all the senators are eager to get away, the leaders of the two sides have practically come to an agreement that a vote shall be taken on the conference report by Friday evening, when the report will, of course, be adopted, and the bill, which is already enrolled on parchment in anticipation of favorable action by the senate, will be taken Saturday morning to the White House and signed by the president.

Both Senators Jones and White, who have been leading the opposition to the bill on behalf of the Democrats, expressed the opinion that the vote would not be postponed beyond this time. Senator Allison also stated that while he still considered a vote possible today he felt very confident that it would not be postponed beyond tomorrow. In the event of a vote on the tariff tomorrow final adjournment is generally predicted for Saturday.

The nomination of B. H. Warner of Maryland to be consul at Leipsic, which has been opposed by Senator Wellington, was confirmed by the senate in executive session. Senator Gallinger of the committee on commerce, who has had the nomination in charge, stated that Senator Wellington did not expect to return during the session, and that there would be no further opposition. The nomination was confirmed without further remarks.

Talked About Hawaii.

Washington, July 22.—The senate committee on foreign relations yesterday discussed briefly the bill introduced by Senator Morgan for the annexation of Hawaii, but decided to postpone further consideration of it while the annexation treaty is still pending. The bill is only intended to be acted upon in its present shape in case of the failure of the treaty to secure ratification by the senate. The committee expect to ask the senate to take up the treaty immediately upon assembling next December, and desire to have the bill in shape for prompt consideration in case its consideration should be rendered necessary by the ill-success of the treaty. The committee also decided to investigate the status of the Clayton-Butler treaty, and appointed a sub-committee, consisting of Senators Morgan, Lodge and Cullom, for this purpose.

Sherman a Very Sick Man.

Washington, July 22.—Secretary Sherman, it is admitted by his friends, is "a very sick man," although they say they do not know just what is the matter. He has been in bed all this week, and has been apparently suffering from a derangement of the digestive functions and a painful stiffness in his limbs. His friends say he will have to go away for a change of air as soon as he can travel, and that he may not be able to resume his duties at the state department for some time. This has revived the report that his retirement from the state department may take place at an early day. Judge Day, assistant secretary of state, is worn out with his exacting labors and seeks two months' rest at Canton, although he proposes to have the state department correspondence sent to him there.

Treasury Seeking an Architect.

Washington, July 22.—The United States civil service commission announces a competitive examination to fill the vacancy in the position of supervising architect of the treasury. The salary of this position, which is one of the most important and responsible under the government, is $4500 per annum, and it is hoped that architects of high attainments and reputation may be induced by these considerations to enter the competition. It is the desire of the department to secure a practical architect of high administrative ability to direct and supervise the work of the office force as well as the contract work done on public buildings.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

See advertisement of J. F. Sheppard & Son today.

Miss Margaret Gerry has returned from her vacation.

New 1896 bicycles are now selling from $25 to $35 each.

Sarah E. Brown has been granted a widow's pension.

Edward Langley left on Tuesday evening for a trip to South Virginia.

A fifty pound snapping turtle was captured off Robertson street Wednesday.

Miss Lizzie Mc Auliff, bookkeeper for J. F. Sheppard & Son, is enjoying a brief vacation.

The dog officers have put on their war paint and are after unlicensed dogs and their owners.

Mr. J. Wiley Edmunds and family are moving today from Butler road to Newton, their former home.

Miss Marie and Master Charles Pretat of Ashmont are visiting Mrs. C. A. Dorman, of Appleton street.

Mrs. Emma Marnock left this morning for a few days visit at Hanover, making the trip on her bicycle.

Several picnic parties passed through Quincy this morning on the electrics, one during the heavy shower.

Rev. F. A. Frigulietti left this morning for New York, from which port he will sail on Saturday for Europe.

The new lodge room hall near the new block on Hancock street will be opened for public inspection Friday evening.

Franklin Jacobs and suite of this city installed the officers of Mayflower lodge at Plymouth on Tuesday evening.

Quite a delegation of Quincy veterans will attend the National G. A. R. encampment at Buffalo, the latter part of the month.

If the Quincy & Boston base ball nine continues to improve they may in time become one of the clubs in the National league.

The insolvency cases of George Crane and Douglas & McLeod were continued Wednesday until Sept. 1, and that of the Quincy Cycle Co. until Sept. 15.

Senator Flint has announced that he is a candidate for reelection next fall from this district, Representative Newcomb also desires to go to the Legislature for another year.

All of the offices of the executive department at City Hall are being newly painted and renovated, which probably means that City Hall will not be remodelled this year.

The executive committee of the City Hospital festival have practically decided not to hold an out door festival this year but to open the new public hall and hold the festival there.

Mr. C. J. MacDonald of Wollaston Park has returned from Duxbury where he has been to attend the funeral of his grandfather, Mr. Charles Chandler. The old gentleman was 85 years old and a prominent citizen of that place.

The second club race scheduled in the events of the Wollaston Yacht club for 1897 which was to have been sailed July 17, was on account of no wind on that date, postponed to Saturday July 24. Starting gun will be given at 5 P. M.

Word has been received that the steamship St. Louis, which sailed from New York, July 14, arrived at Southampton Wednesday at 3 40 P. M. Among the passengers were the following from Quincy: Robert Lofgren, Miss Alberta Nelson, Carl O. Carlme and John Holander.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brooks have returned from Unadilla, N. Y., the former home of Mr. Brooks. He found the place, which, when he left there was almost a wilderness, transformed into a modern city. They were very pleasantly entertained at Hotel Bishop, by the proprietor, Charles Bishop and family.

HULL'S GALA DAY.

Races and Aquatic Sports—Illumination and Fireworks.

It was indeed a gala day for the Hull Yacht club and its many guests yesterday, and attractive scenes were presented. From the spacious piazzas there was the bay dotted with hundreds of boats; launches, yachts and row boats, many of them decorated for the occasion, and filled with fair passengers. From the boats and the floats a gay scene was presented at the clubhouse, all the piazzas being crowded with friends.

The Quincy Yacht club squadron was there, having made the run from Gloucester that day, homeward bound on its annual cruise. Also ex-Commodore Shaw and party on the Mab, F. B. Rice and party in the Kayoshk and other yacht parties.

A swimming match opened the sports and the silver cup was won by C. E. Lauriet, Jr.

The blind dory race had four contestants and was one of the most interesting events. It was won by J. J. Souther.

The gig race for crews was won by the F. C. Welch crew, little Eddie Welch steering, beating the King Philip crew. The canoe race for a silver cup was won in dashing style by Lord and Smith against Lauriet and Hallet. The horse race also proved to be a popular event, for it was rowed over by request. The "horses" were oil barrels, with a neck and head representing a horse, the whole finished off with a broom on the stern for a tail. The scheme was to paddle from the float to another and back. The efforts of the boys to keep their seats and not come a cropper were very amusing. Edward Peters won the first race, beating W. Cushman, Steve Galvin and Gus Galvin. The second race was won by Steve Galvin, who proved to be a skilful rider.

The canoe exhibition by Messss. Lauriet and Hallet was a revelation to the uninitiated for they did all sorts of clever things in the ticklish craft. The duck and drake race was won by the duck J. J. Souther.

The water base ball was, perhaps, the best thing of the afternoon. The game is played by two sides of seven men each, floats being provided for the three basemen, pitcher and two fielders, the batter standing on the spring board on the float and the catcher on the float. The Hull Yacht club beat their rivals, the Hull Athletic club, five runs to one.

The life saving crew shot a line from the embankment near the club house over a two-masted schooner, which happened to be at anchor about 200 yards off shore, then the cable was hauled aboard and the breeches buoy was sent across for a man in the rigging. He was "saved" amid the plaudits of the multitude.

In the evening Hull hill was all ablaze with lights, the club house and cottages being brilliantly lighted with electricity and lanterns, and in the bay the boats were prettily illuminated. Rockets and other fireworks added to the scene.

On the hurricane piazza of the club house the Germania band gave a grand concert, and in the hall there was dancing until the last boat left for Boston.

Probate Court.

The will of John Dewick of Canton was the only one allowed at the Probate Court in Dedham on Wednesday, but several administrations were granted, viz: on estates of Ruthy Holbrook of Braintree, Margaret Hurley of Randolph, Annie Ingraham of Millis, Sarah Preston of Hyde Park, Thomas McNiff of Avon, Mary Spring of Wellesley, Thomas Thorpe of Needham, Nora Burns of Dedham, Josephine Becker of Dedham, E. D. Rockwood of Franklin, W. F. Hurley of Stoughton, Octavia Winter of Brookline, James Babcock of Hyde Park, Sena Cook of Medway, H. W. Allen of Hyde Park, Annie Perley of Brookline, Edmund Davis of Hyde Park, N. A. Cook, C. H. Drake of Stoughton.

Several accounts were allowed, guardians appointed and sales of real estate authorized but mostly in western Norfolk.

Quincy Man for Toastmaster.

H. W. Lull, the superintendent of schools of this city will be toastmaster at the centennial celebration of Montgomery Lodge of Masons at Milford on Sept. 16. Mr. Lull is a past master of the lodge and a past deputy of the district, and a model toastmaster. While it has a present membership of 275, Montgomery lodge has in the past given liberally of its membership to form Charles River lodge of West Medway, Mt. Hollis lodge of Holliston, John Warren lodge of Hopkinton and Excelsior lodge of Franklin, all of which are proudly numbered as offspring, and all of which have today finely appointed meeting places and flourishing societies.

Wednesday at Manchester.

Again on Saturday the Rooster won in her class in the second of the Manchester races, although only 23 seconds separated the Wrinkle, Rooster and Cleopatra on actual time. The Wrinkle dropped to second place on time allowance with Cleopatra third, Vamoose fourth, and the Omeme last.

The Little Peter owned by H. Moebs of the Quincy club won from the Elfreda and Asahi in the first class. The order in the second open class was Hoodlum, Snipe II, Romance, Satanic and Clara, and in the cabin class, Muriel, Privateer, Nettie and Clara.

The knockabouts were closely bunched, the order being Gosling, Jacobin, Hazard, Fly, Sally III and Mongoose.

In the fourth class the Fantasy led the Vitesse, Glide and Circe.

BLOCK SIGNALS.

Street Railway Adopts Plan to Prevent Meeting between Turnouts.

The street railway is equipping its Quincy Point line with the block signal system, the use of which will prevent cars moving in opposite directions from meeting between turnouts. It not unfrequently happens that a car leaving City Square for the Point will get as far as the Universalist church only to meet a car coming the other way, and the result is that one of the cars must go back to the turnout, much to the inconvenience of the passengers. With the block system it is impossible.

The system is very simple in operation. At the junction of Washington and Temple streets there is an iron signal box, similar boxes are also placed at every turnout. In this box is an incandescent lamp which is supplied with electricity direct from the trolley wire.

When a car leaving City Square approaches this box, if no light appears, the conductor knows that he has a clear track to the next turnout, but if the box should show a red light then he knows that an inward car has left the turnout and he must wait until the car passes him. When the signal shows the conductor that he has a clear track to the next turnout he throws a switch which sets the signal at the nearest turnout which holds any car coming in the opposite direction until he has reached the turnout. After the signal has once been set to show the track in use it will show danger as long as the car is using it, only being released by the conductor when he reaches the end of that section.

This system of signals has been in operation on the Hingham street railway for several weeks and is said to be working perfectly.

K. & L. of H. Installation.

The following officers of Maple lodge, No. 313, Knights and Ladies of Honor were installed Wednesday evening at Plumer's hall, by Miss Carrie Ingraham and suite of Unity Lodge of Boston:

P. P., —Hiram W. Campbell.
P.,—Wm. W. Penniman.
V. P.,—Lizzie A. Monk.
Chaplain,—Cora A. Curtis.
Secretary,—Angie D. Loud.
Financial Secretary,—Francis P. Loud.
Treasurer,—Harriet W. Tirrell.
Guide,—Blanche Lillicrap.
Guardian,—Charles Crane.
Sentinel,—Cora M. Dyer.
Pianist,—Effie L. Rhines.

After the installation ceremony a general good time and collation were enjoyed by all present to the number of seventy-five.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of James F. Gaynor of Randolph for keeping a common nuisance was called and the case placed on file.

William H. Mace was arraigned for assault on Francis E. Monroe at Weymouth. The court dismissed the complaint. Monroe was in court Wednesday upon complaint of Mace for disturbing the peace and as soon as he learned that there was a warrant against him he visited Judge Cook at South Weymouth and swore out a warrant against Mace for assault. In dismissing the complaint, this morning, against Mace without a hearing the court said he did not want court matters transacted in that manner. If Monroe had any complaint to make in a case of this kind, where he had been the defendant, the court was the proper place to make it, and not to a justice who knew nothing of the circumstances.

COUNTY SQUIBS.

—County Treasurer Smith of Dedham attended the annual meeting of county treasurers at Worcester on Wednesday. After the business meeting and a dinner at the Bay State House, there was a trolley ride to the lake and a sail.

—The Hingham street railway has commenced to run through half hour cars from Shaw's corner, East Weymouth, to Nantasket.

—The house-to house collection of mail and sale of stamps is being tried in Brookline. Approved boxes with keys are necessary.

—The shoe business of Weymouth is improving.

—Water pipe is being laid on Warren avenue at Randolph.

—Weymouth men are to be employed in building the new Weymouth High school.

—The Methodist church of West Medway celebrated its 40th anniversary on Sunday.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

BACK FROM CRUISE.

Squadron Made Run from Gloucester Yesterday—Fish Dinner at Hull.

The Quincy Yacht club's second annual cruise came to a successful termination off the club house at eight o'clock last evening.

Gloucester was left at 5 30 o'clock on Wednesday morning, Hull being the objective point, where the Hull Yacht club was to have its annual gala day. The run from Gloucester to Hull was a delightful one. The Gismonda and Mudjekeewis accompanying the flag ship Bonita from Gloucester, the rest of the squadron proceeding from Marblehead at their leisure. When off Boston Light the boats were struck by a squall and shortened sail for a few minutes.

Upon the arrival of the squadron at Hull, anchors were dropped and the yachtsmen proceeded to the Hull Yacht club house where the sports were witnessed.

At the conclusion of the sports a fish dinner was served on board of the flagship. Among those who were seated around the table in the Bonita's cabin were: Commodore Sanborn, Vice Commodore Davis, Secretary Whiting, Fleet Captain Saville, Ex-Commodore Pettengill, Gordon M. Keating, Prince Tirrell, Dr. F. S. Davis, Charles F. Colby, J. Warren Nightingale, Dr. Frederick E. Jones, John D. McKnight, Frank F. Crane, George W. Jones, F. F. Prescott, Master Carl F. Prescott, Arthur T. Reed, William H. Shaw, Master Don and Joe Shaw, Edwin W. Newcomb and Mr. J. Frank Dunbar.

After the dinner the squadron run across the bay to the club anchorage and was disbanded. This ended an exceedingly successful cruise, much of which success was due to Capt. Ed. Newcomb's genial humor and sparkling wit.

New Hen Doctor.

Mr. R. L. Hastings of Wollaston performed an operation on one of his hens recently which was new to the hen as well as to that gentleman. It seems that the hen was ailing for some time which finally attracted the attention of Mr. Hastings and upon examination it was found that her crop was far above the normal size.

Mr. Hastings carefully opened her crop and found therein a ball of grass over an inch in diameter mostly in a natural green state with about four feet of common grocers' twine carefully wound about the grass. He removed the ball and cleansed the crop with water, then carefully sewed up the crop and the opening in the outer skin, and put her back with the other hens. For several days she has been as lively as any of her sisters, and bids fair to be as profitable in the future as any hen in the coop; in fact she appears from her actions to really believe she is the "only hen in the coop." It is not supposed that she belonged to any particular ball nine and had caught the ball thinking it was a "fly," or was making an old fashion ball like those the boys used to make in the country. Neither did Mr. Hastings say that she swallowed the ball of grass whole.

Mr. Hastings is an expert at dissecting watches, but he says he never before attempted to do any repair work on the intricate working parts of a hen.

Nuns Plead Guilty.

Kate Buckley of Roxbury and Mary Hines of Woburn, the two nuns charged with defrauding the people of Hingham by selling tickets to an alleged benefit for Rev. A. F. Roche, plead guilty at the Abington court on Wednesday and the case was continued to Friday.

Judge Kelly was about to place the case on file, as it was stated that Fr. Roche had no desire to have the defendants dealt with severely; but Fr. Fitzpatrick of St. Gregory's parish at Dorchester put in appearance at this time and recognized the young women as old offenders at Dorchester and Waltham. The girls maintained at first that he was mistaken in identity, but finally admitted the truth and begged for leniency. They also admitted that they had given false names, and that their correct names were Nancy Nalen and Mary Nalen, and that they were cousins. The former stated that she had parents residing in Derby, Vt. In default of bail they were committed.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

A. G. DURGIN, DRUGGIST.

Out of Sugar?

That's inconvenient, of course, but there's a suggestion in it for us to give.

Which is—DON'T BUY IN TOO SMALL QUANTITIES.

There are all sorts of advantages in purchasing groceries in substantial amounts.

In the first place, if you do "get caught," it will be far less often than if you bought from day to day; and then again, there's the reminder which you get when you see the bottom of the barrel—which is ALWAYS before you see the bottom of the bucket.

All this applies to other things besides sugar, of course; but don't understand us to object, from OUR standpoint, to small orders or small quantities.

We'll deliver you a quarter of a pound of butter, if you say so; but it's not to YOUR interest to buy that way, if you can avoid it.

To customers wishing to buy goods in large lots for cash, we will make special prices, as a great saving is effected by one delivery to one place at a time. On Sugar, Tea, Molasses, Soap, etc., in unbroken packages, we guarantee to meet any price to be had in New York or Boston for same quality of goods. Come in and get our prices on goods in quantities.

TEN INNINGS.

Q. & B. Maintains Championship by Another Grand Victory.

The Q. & B. base ball club covered itself with glory Wednesday afternoon at Merry Mount park, before a fair sized audience in a closely fought game of ten innings with Div. 3 of the West End street railway. The Q. & B. boys were unable to hit McCue of the visiting team at first but soon solved his curves, and he was batted hard.

The Q. & B.'s can honorably claim the championship as they have yet to meet their first defeat this season, and they have a challenge out to play any street railway base ball club in the state.

The features of the game were the batting of H. Faircloth and Duffy, the double plays by Dunn, J. Faircloth and H. Faircloth. J. Duffy pitched in fine form and the visiting team could do nothing with his curves. Hayes played behind the bat in fine form and the work of Murphy at third was wonderful.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

Winthrop Channing Hammond, a native of Concord, N. H., died recently at Singapore.

T. W. Kimball, aged 39, a member of the Waterville (Me.) school board, died yesterday.

Emperor William has invited the sultan to send Turkish officers to witness the German military maneuvers.

J. B. Stark of Sherry's pavilion, Narragansett Pier and J. W. Genester of Brooklyn swam 10 miles, from Narragansett Pier to Newport, yesterday, the result being a dead heat.

The Eleventh Massachusetts Veteran association met at Nahant yesterday fro its annual reunion. Officers elected: President, Daniel H. Harmond, Lowell; vice president, Frank W. Thompson, Boston; secretary and treasurer, Charles R. Mansfield, Lynn.

Mrs. Frances Samuelson of Breckenbrough Hall, Yorkshire, died at the home of her father-in-law, the Right Hon. Sir Bernhardt Samuelson, Bart., Princess Gate, London, from injuries received while her hair was being dressed with a petroleum hair wash, which ignited.

A terrible hailstorm has devastated the country north of the lake of Zurich, Switzerland. Crops and fruit trees have been destroyed, buildings damaged and telegraph wires torn down. The damage is widespread, and general consternation prevails in the district affected.

Arrangements have been completed by the officials of the Maine State Firemen's association with the railroads whereby all persons coming to Portland to attend the annual convention next month will receive half rates, and in addition all hand tubs and hose reels will be transported free of cost.

In view of the possibility of President McKinley's coming to Maine this summer to visit Rangeley lake, as has been reported, Adjutant General Richards will extend to him an invitation to attend the encampment of the national guard of Maine, which will be held at the camp in this city, commencing Aug. 7.

The feature of yesterday meeting of the Wesleyan conference, now in session at Leeds, Eng., was an eloquent speech by Rev. W. H. Milburn, chaplain of the United States senate. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Milburn said that Methodism was one of the mighty forces binding England and the United States together.

Great Game Saturday.

The game at the New Downer Landing on Saturday afternoon between the T. R. & S. Co. and the East Weymouth nines, will undoubtedly be a hot one; for with $100 in sight, and an unbroken record of twelve straight victories for the T. R. & S., and the fact that Sam Curran, the crack pitcher of the Tufts College nine will be in the points for East Weymouth, the above prediction is mild.

HOUGHS NECK.

Master Harry Bates, Miss Kitty Beebe, Miss Gertrude Tileston and Mrs. Damon and daughter Florence are the guests of Mrs. F. H. Bates at the Murray cottage for a few days.

The Houghs Necks have a game arranged with the Quincy Juniors for next Monday.

The young men of the beach are planing a moonlight "dip" party. That is if they have the moon and the tide. It's too bad the Houghs Neck Cinematograph is out of order.

White duck trousers seem to be prevalent the last few evenings at Harvey's hops.

A number of "sea-dogs" (?) are aspiring to the title of "Commodore of the Swan Boats." Some won't be in the race if they don't give their "white ducks" a wash. Soap must have gone up.

Mr. George A. Niles of the New York Central railroad is a guest of Mrs. Conston at the Windy View cottage for a few days.

A big time here tonight: a poverty party run by the young women of the Neck will be held at the dance hall, assisted by Mr. Harry Davee, pianist.

Master Harry Moriarty swam the length of the Bay Side beach Wednesday.

At Camp.

Wednesday was cool at camp and the second brigade had another busy day. The 5th regiment was out for drill at 7.45 A. M. and 2 P. M., and did good work.

The Journal says, "Lieut. Sprague, of Quincy and the Signal Corps are working faithfully under fortuitous circumstances. They are obliged to furnish their own Graham-Meyer torches at an expense of $50 each, for the State does not provide them. Field glasses also are bought by the corps, but it did some excellent distance signaling with Mt. Tom and Normal Hill, on which the new standpipe is located."

Today the 5th regiment will shoot for prizes, and the scores of Co. K men will be watched. The 8th will have athletic sports.

Many who have sought admission to the grounds have been disappointed as it is the intention to confine visitors to Friday.

On Saturday the 5th regiment will break camp at 9 A. M., and will parade in Boston about 11 o'clock. The route of march in the city will be: South street to Summer, to High, to Federal, to Milk, to Broad, to State, to Washington, to School, to Beacon. The regiment will march up Beacon street as far as the State House, where it will be dismissed.

—The body of Miss Hillgrove, drowned off Boston light Sunday, has not yet been found.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), done get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

CITY OF QUINCY.

NOTICE

To Owners or Keepers of Dogs.

OWNERS or keepers of Dogs are hereby notified that I have this day issued warrants to Charles N. Hunt, George A. McKay and John A. O'Brien to kill or cause to be killed, all dogs not properly licensed and collared, according to law, and to prosecute all owners or keepers of unlicensed dogs.

CHARLES F. ADAMS, 2nd, Mayor of Quincy.

Quincy, July 14, 1897. 18t

THE TATTLER.

Mrs. Daisy Pearce of South Omaha has invented a device by which a sunshade may be attached to the hande bar of a bicycle.

Mrs. Harriette Gross Cozzino of New York has secured a patent for a theater hat rest. It is known as "the happy thought."

Mrs. N. M. A. La Gross of Bucksport, Me., has the honor of being the first woman who enlisted as a private soldier. She served all through the civil war.

Mrs. Sara A. Wilson of Lincoln, Neb., is the regularly nominated candidate of the Liberty, or Prohibition, party of that state for associate justice of the supreme court.

A daughter of Austin Dobson, Miss Mary Dobson, is one of the principal workers in the University Settlement For Women in Bombay, which labors chiefly among the Parsees.

Hon. Mary Harriet Geraldine Drummond, the only daughter of Viscount Forth and granddaughter of the Earl of Perth, is running a small ice cream establishment in Brooklyn.

Miss Helen Gould has six bicycles at her country place at Irvington-on-the-Hudson for her own use and that of her friends. Miss Gould rides in a short skirt, a waist of the same material and an alpine hat. She never mounts her wheel on Sunday.

Mme. Diaz, the wife of the Mexican president, is a woman of progressive ideas. She has founded a home where girls can always find employment, a nursery where workingwomen's children are cared for and a Magdalene home for repentant sinners.

Miss Lole Fuller was presented with a superb Chinese costume by Li Hung Chang, the distinguished embassador of China, whom she met in San Francisco. It appears that the Celestial was very much taken with "La Loie's" sprightly dancing.

Helen Kellar, the remarkable deaf, dumb and blind girl who recently took examinations for Radcliffe college, read the questions in French by feeling the movements of the examiner's lips, but in the German examinations letters were formed on her hand by the sign language.

There is still living in quiet retirement in a pretty villa in one of the outlying quarters of Aberdeen a daughter of James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd. The lady, now well over threescore years, has no clear recollection of her gifted father, for she was only an infant of 4 years or so when "the Shepherd" died in 1835.

The new Duchess of Marlborough has a great fondness for pets. At Blenheim she has set up a menagerie containing two ostriches, several eagles and vultures and an ibis, but the strangest of the young bride's pets is a garter snake which she purchased on the banks of the Nile while on her honeymoon. It is so tame that when she approaches it crawls toward her.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Pekins are the best breed of ducks to raise without water.

When the hens have the scours, feed chalk in the soft feed.

Always feed chickens before giving them water in the morning.

When the hens are confined, they should have plenty of cool, clear water.

Ducks can live in water all day, but must have dry quarters at night.

Damaged grain or soft feed is always dangerous. It is apt to induce disease.

Dig up a part of the poultry yard and give the fowls an opportunity to exercise.

Removing to warm, dry quarters will fight the biggest half of any disease in poultry.

By having low roosts the fowls will be more comfortable and mumble foot may be avoided.

Eggs should be cleansed as soon as gathered, if soiled, especially those you intend to store away.

Burn up the old nest material and replace it with new as soon as a hen comes off with her brood.

Hens that are overfed are not healthy and will not lay regularly. Good thrift will give the best results.

Boiling the milk given to the hens will increase its value and lessen the risk of its producing disease.—Exchange.

The Pennsylvania prohibitionists are running Dr. Swallow for governor. They have no hope of electing him, but simply desire to emphasize the fact that there is nothing in a name.—New York Journal.

JEWELRY JOTTINGS.

Old style jewelry is in request, brooches and rings in old fashioned settings being in special request.

On full dress occasions pearl necklaces, with diamond pendants, are in general fashion. Many jeweled collars are also worn.

The marked improvement in gold filled watch cases has resulted in a demand greater than ever before for this line of goods.

The variety in watches is quite bewildering. Some are absolutely incrusted with diamonds and other gems and are pendent from jeweled bows and brooches of exquisite design.

Genuine tortoise shell goods, always staple, include this season, in addition to the usual articles, such objects as bracelets, brooches, buckles, napkin rings, charms, fancy trays, etc.—Jewelers' Circular.

Suspended by Presiding Elder.

Holyoke, Mass., July 22.—Rev. Isaac S. Yerkes, pastor of the Methodist church at South Hadley Falls, has been suspended by Presiding Elder Knowles after an interview with the pastor concerning charges of misconduct brought against the pastor. The charges are of a nature unbecoming to a minister of the gospel, and consists of writing letters to the young members of the parish, inviting them to go to ride in the electric cars, offering them presents, etc.

Great Hammer Throwing.

San Francisco, July 22.—Tom Carroll, the local athlete, broke several hammer-throwing records yesterday in an exhibition at Central park. Starting with the eight-pound hammer, he threw it from a nine-foot circle, with one hand, 241 feet 10 1-4 inches. He then threw a 16-pound hammer from a seven-foot circle, 159 feet 3 1-2 inches. His next effort was with the 21-pound hammer, from a seven-foot circle, from which he threw it 112 feet 1 1-2 inches; from a nine-foot circle he created a record of 121 feet 10 inches.

A Fakir Arrested.

Rockland, Me., July 22.—A patent medicine vendor, giving his name as Thomas Warrenc of Philadelphia, was tried here yesterday on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses at Tenant's Harbor. The man disposed of some salve and then returned the money paid. He then sold medicine and had many buyers, who thought from his talk that he was to return the money in this instance also, but they calculated wrongly. Warren was bound over.

Gave $30,000 to Harvard.

Cambridge, Mass., July 22.—The will of Alexander Wheelock Thayer of South Natick, who died July 15, last, in Trieste, Austria, was filed yesterday afternoon in the Middlesex probate court. In addition to a number of private bequests, the will contains a beuest of $30,000 to Harvard university as an endowment fund to assist worthy and needy young men at Harvard.

Accused of Beating a Horse to Death.

Augusta, Me., July 22.—Benjamin Emerson of Rome was yesterday tried on complaint of J. F. Bean of this city, an agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, on a charge of beating a horse to death with a chain on the night of July 9. The hearing was held before Judge A. G. Andrews, who gave no verdict, as the case will be further investigated.

Residence and Stable Burned.

Portland, Me., July 22.—The fine residence and stable at South Windham, belonging to Joseph L. Robinson of the Robinson Woolen mills, were burned to the ground yesterday afternoon. Most of the furniture was saved. Loss, $10,000; insured. Cause of fire unknown. It started in the stable.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

☞ Nothing nicer than home made ice cream. The children can make it with one of our freezers. Prices from $1.59 up. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

Investigating Keene Wreck.

Boston, July 22.—A special to The Globe from Bellows Fall, Vt., says that the Fitchburg railroad officials are investigating the wreck at Keene, N. H., last Saturday, under the belief that a bolt placed on the outer rail of the curve sent the engine off the track. The bolt is believed to have been placed there by some boys who walked up the track past the sectionmen who were working just below that point. It is claimed that the railroad people have positive information as to the guilty parties, and that arrests are to follow.

MUCH TROUBLE AHEAD

Cannonsburg Miners Want to Go to Work but Dare Not.

Strikers Will March on Allison Mines Today.

Sheriff Clark Has Three Hundred Deputies Sworn In and Armed.

Pittsburg, July 22.—Trouble, and much of it, seems to be in store at the Allison mine, three miles of Canonsburg. The men want to go to work, but are afraid. They fear another invasion of the strikers, and do not want to be targets for a mob that is liable at any moment to lose control of itself.

Last night everything was quiet about the mines, and the citizens of Canonsburg were awaiting the arrival of the invaders. It was the intention of the strikers to begin their march to Canonsburg last night, but a telegram from Bridgeville announced that owing to the heavy rain in the evening it was decided to postpone the tramp until today.

The men are fully determined to carry out their threat of making the march. They expect to start with 600 men and be re-enforced with about the same number from Bridgeville and Tom's Run. The men will start with several days' rations, and expect to be in shape to watch the offending mines for several days.

Yesterday morning a number of men going to the Allison mine were stopped by the committee of strikers. Many of them did not go to work. J. H. V. Cook said that the names of the strikers would be procured, and they would all be arrested for intimidating his employes.

Sheriff Vernor Clark of Washington county is fully prepared for any army of marching strikers that may invade his domain. It is not generally known that he has nearly 300 deputies sworn in, who are available at any time. From the most reliable information it was learned that they are all ready with the requisite number of firearms and are prepared to do business.

The sheriff is on the ground in person, and if there is a false movement made on the part of any of the strikers drastic measures will be resorted to.

At the Boone mine a game of peek-a-boo is in progress. The men want to work as long as there are no strikers in sight. Manager Hitchman of the mine said that he would not make an attempt to operate the plant as long as there was any indication of trouble. He said he was prepared for any emergency, and intimated that the trouble would blow over in a few days.

At a committee meeting at the miners' headquarters in this city yesterday afternoon the question was discussed how it would be possible to march a body of men to stop the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company from working. Every phase of the subject was discussed, but no plan could be hit upon. It was the general opinion that the mines of this company are impregnable to attack, because of their geographical position.

The expected meeting of the board of arbitration did not take place last night, the Western members not reaching the city. As soon as they arrive arrangements will be made for a general meeting of operators.

The situation among the strikers in this district is practically unchanged. The suspension is complete, with the exception of De Armitt's mines, and though considerable destitution and suffering is reported among the strikers and their families, the determination to fight it out is apparently as strong as on the first day of the strike.

Train Seized by Miners.

Peoria, Ills., July 22.—Fifty striking miners at Farmington seized a Burlington freight train yesterday, demanding that it carry them to Dunfermline, where they intended to call out the 250 miners at work, their wages having been increased 3 per cent. They refused to pay or get off and held the train four hours, when the conductor cut off the engine and ran to Canton, returning with the sheriff and the state's attorney. They argued with the men, and the latter finally abandoned the train after holding it five hours. The Peoria county miners threaten to march across country to Dunfermline today to force the men out. The managers of the mines there say the men want to keep at work and are preparing for trouble.

Women In the Ranks.

Fairmount, W. Va., July 22.—The Aurora and O'Donnell miners have organized a union with 80 members. The women of Monongah presented the strikers a flag, which was carried on the march to Hutchison. Over 400 miners, with their wives and children, were in the ranks. At Pritchard 20 men joined the strikers.

In West Virginia.

Columbus, O., July 22.—President Ratchford has received a telegram from Organizers Dilcher and Weber at Montgomery, W. Va., stating that the miners at 15 mines in that district, at a mass meeting, had decided to join the strikers, and would quit work at once.

Locomotive Firemen and the Strike.

Cincinnati, July 22.—The attendance at the reunion of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen is small, owing to the strike of the coal miners. At the executive session it was decided to raise funds for the striking miners, but to take no sympathetic action and to remain neutral as an organization. All the excursions from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee to the reunion have been abandoned on account of the coal strike. The 523 subordinate lodges report money in their treasuries, but relief for the miners will be secured by voluntary contributions and not from appropriations of funds on hand.

Ex-United States Senator Sick.

Racine, Wis., July 22.—News was received here yesterday that ex-United States Senator James R. Doolittle, who has been in the East for some time, is lying very sick at Providence and is hardly expected to recover. He is nearly 83 years old.

TO SEEK GOLD.

Steamer Load of Prospectors Leaves Seattle Today For Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., July 22.—Today at noon the steamship Portland of the N. A. T. and T. company leaves Seattle for St. Michaels with her passenger accommodations taxed to the limit and with a full cargo of provisions. On the Portland will be the second party of fortune hunters to leave for the Klondyke since the news of the big finds was brought in by the Portland last Sunday.

On board will be S. P. Weston of The Post Intelligencer, who will take with him a dozen carrier pigeons to send news from the Klondyke to The Post Intelligencer. At St. Michaels the Portland's passengers and freight will be transferred to river steamers for the 2500-mile trip to Dawson City.

Next Friday the Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer Queen will leave Seattle for Juneau and Dyea. She will have a full list of people, who will go into the Klondyke overland. On Sunday the Mexico will sail from the same point, where accommodations are engaged. Today the steamer Islander goes from Victoria to Dyea and Skagaway bay, and the company's representative here say she will have all she can carry. A deal has about been closed for the purchase of the steamers Eliza Anderson and W. J. Merwin, sound boats, which will be put on the route.

A special meeting of the city council was held yesterday to take action concerning the necessity of raising the pay of policemen. So many officers have resigned to go north that the department is badly crippled.

A Horse's Remarkable Performance.

London, July 22.—Mr. Dobell's 5-year-old bay gelding Dolabra, by Emperor out of Dolinka, formerly the property of P. Lorillard, achieved a remarkable performance at the Liverpool meeting yesterday, having tied with Maid of Valetta for first place in the race for the Windermere all-aged plate of 125 sovereigns, and winning the Seaforth welter handicap of 125 sovereigns, all within 1½ hours.

Constable Johnson Dead.

Providence, July 22.—Charles Ballou, the Warwick constable, charged with injuring Alfred A. Johnson, another constable of the town, so badly in a fight on Sunday that he died yesterday, gave himself up at East Greenwich last night, and was held in $5000 bonds on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Security was furnished.

HARNESS BROKE.

Barge Loaded With People Became Unmanageable---All More or Less Injured.

Provincetown, Mass., July 22.—A barge with a large load of people became unmanageable yesterday afternoon through the breaking of the horses' harness, and rushing down the Carver street hill, which is the steepest in town, crashed into a store at the foot, precipitating all the occupants to the ground, with the result that all were more or less injured. The barge was owned by James Campbell and driven by his son, Philip, and many of those in the vehicle were visitors in town. The barge was completely demolished, while all the panes of glass in the store were broken.

James H. Dillaway of the Quincy market, Boston, received severe bruises, while his wife had a long cut over the right eye, necessitating nine stitches. Both, however, were able to leave for South Orleans by train.

Mrs. Charles B. Smith of this town had her collar bone broken, and her daughter received several cuts on the arm.

L. F. Stone of Wellfleet had his arm sprained and back injured.

Mrs. L. F. Stone of 40 Quincy street, Somerville, was picked up unconscious and while no wounds were visible she did not regain her senses for some hours. She was conveyed to the residence of R. J. Welsh, and last night was unable to walk.

Driver Campbell was badly shaken up and in attempting to walk home fainted three times. No blame is attached to Driver Campbell, as he did his utmost to check the barge after th harness had broken.

Lynched Without Delay.

New Iberia, La., July 22.—At Baldwin, in St. Mary's parish, yesterday, a negro, Jack Davis, alias Buddy Jack, was hung by the citizens of the town for criminally assaulting Widow Marcol, who had been, during the early hours of the morning, at the house of Dr. Pecot, living near Scranton. The fiend waylaid the lady. Her screams aroused Micah Heck, who chased the negro to the store of Beeders & Delhay, where, upon being recognized, he was seized, rushed to the bayou bank, at the edge of the town, and with no ceremony hung. He implicated another negro, Willis Jewell, who, after being severely whipped, was ordered to leave town. All excitement is allayed and no further trouble is anticipated.

Boston Asks For Reduced Fares.

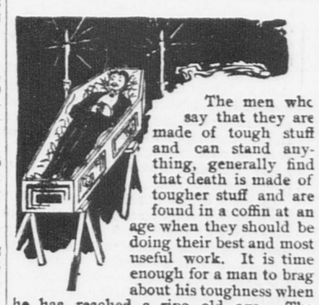

Boston, July 22.—A large gathering of business men in this city yesterday had for its object the advancement of a proposition that the railroads centering in Boston assist in the commercial prosperity and advancement of the city by reducing the present rates of fare, so as to conduce in the enlargement of trade in general. The railroads were represented as were all the large mercantile concerns. After numerous speeches it was decided to refer further consideration of the purposes of the meeting to the associated board of trade, the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' association of Boston.

News From Andree Expected.

New York, July 22.—A dispatch to The World from London says: There seems to be reason to believe that news will be received from Andree and his Polar balloon within a day or two. J. Scott Keltie, the secretary of the Royal Geographical society says: "The balloon ought to make 480 miles a day, and unless Andree stops he ought to be heard of within 24 hours. News of success or failure may be made known first by carrier pigeons, but the Royal Geographical society will hear immediately by telegraph, if Andree lands where it is possible to use a wire."

Japan Wishes to Avoid War.

London, July 22.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail says: The Japanese minister here denies that the relations between the United states and Japan are strained, and says: "We wish especially to avoid war with the United States. If we had wanted war we would have resisted Russia when she interfered after our war with China, but we decided it was best to strengthen our army and navy and develop our resources."

The men who say that they are made of tough stuff and can stand anything, generally find that death is made of tougher stuff and are found in a coffin at an age when they should be doing their best and most useful work. It is time enough for a man to brag about his toughness when he has reached a ripe old age. The men who live long lives are the ones who take care of their health in youth and maturity. They realize the truth of the old saying that "a stitch in time saves nine." The ones who don't do this die off of nervous prostration, heart failure, and consumption.

The best of all health-restorers and health preservers is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It wards off nervous troubles and wasting diseases. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver and restores the appetite. It fills the arteries with the pure, rich, red blood of health. It tears down, and carries off old, inert and half-dead tissues and replaces them by new. It builds firm, healthy flesh. It makes the muscles strong and elastic and steadies and tones the nerves. It cures debility and weakness of every description. It is the product of the life-time experience and study of an eminent and skillful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Thousands of men and women have testified to its virtues. Druggists sell it.

There is nothing in the world "just as good," although avaricious druggists will sometimes say so for the sake of the greater profit to be made upon the inferior article.

BURGLARS' BULLETS.

Aged Man and His Sister Are Shot by Masked Thieves,

House is Then Ransacked and $200 Taken.

Marcus G. Nichols Murdered In Cold Blood at Trumbull, Conn.

Trumbull, Conn., July 23.—Early yesterday morning Marcus G. Nichols, an aged and wealthy farmer of this town, was brutally murdered by two masked burglars, in his home, and his sister Mary, who lived with him, was seriously and perhaps fatally shot.

The murderers and thieves ransacked the house, and secured about $200, and then made their escape.

The scene of the double crime is in Daniel's Farm, a section of Trumbull on the Monroe turnpike.

Nichols was 64 years old, and his maiden sister, Mary, is 55. They lived in a lonely house, although the old man had always been supposed to be wealthy, and was reputed to have concealed about the premisis considerable money, beside stocks and bonds. He was thought to be worth $100,000.

The old man had always borne the reputation of being wealthy, and was reputed to have concealed about the premises considerable money, beside stocks and bonds. He was thought to have been worth $100,000.

The brother and sister slept in rooms on the second floor of their house. Their nearest neighbor live 500 feet distant. At about 1 o'clock Mr. Nichols was awakened by a suspicious noise. Miss Nichols was also startled, and the two arose, and lighting lamps proceeded to the lower floor and waited.

Suddenly the side door was burst open and two masked men entered the room. As soon as they discovered the presence of Mr. Nichols and his sister they whipped out revolvers, and one of the men fired at Nichols, the other at his sister. The aged man fell forward with a bullet in his breast, just over the heart. His sister sank to the floor with a ball in her side. One of the burglars stepped forward, according to Miss Nichols, who had not lost consciousness, and lifting the unconscious body of her brother to a chair, placed in his mouth some liquor, in which he placed some sort of a powder. A few seconds later the old man slipped off the chair, fell on his knees, dropped forward and died.

The burglars then removed Miss Nichols to the kitchen and began to search the house. Miss Nichols, left alone, debated a sto the best plan of action. Wounded though she was she decided to undertake to reach the neighbors and had started for the door, when one of the men heard her. He summoned his companion, and covering the woman with their revolvers the spokesman announced their intention of killing her if she attempted to leave the house. They also demanded that she disclose the whereabouts of her money and that of her brother. She told them of the hiding place of her funds, and also disclosed the spot where some of her brother's money would be found. The burglars continued the search and succeeded in finding about $200 in cash. They left strewn all over the house certificates of stock, bonds and other papers valued at about $75,000.

Some time after they left Miss Nichols gave the alarm. Dr. Hill of Trumbull was summoned, and he found the woman to be seriously wounded. The injury, however, will not necessarily prove fatal. There is absolutely no clue to the burglars, further than an inadequate description such as Miss Nichols can furnish. The methods of the men recall the Nichols burglary in the town of Nichols some weeks ago.

O'NEILL'S ALLEGED ADMISSION.

A Jail Companion Says Accused Told Him How Mrs. McCloud Was Killed.

Greenfield, Mass., July 23.—A sensation occurred yesterday afternoon in the trial of "Yankee" O'Neill, accused of the murder of Mrs. Hattie McCloud of Shelburne. David Davis, who is now a prisoner at the Concord reformatory, was put on the stand and gave testimony, who was entirely unknown to either the prosecution or the defense.

Davis testified that he was an inmate at the Franklin county jail on Feb. 22, O'Neill being confined there at that time. That day being a holiday the prisoners were given special privileges, and all enjoyed themselves in one of the workrooms of the jail, telling stories, playing games, etc. O'Neill and Davis talked together, the latter reminding O'Neill that his father once lived with the O'Neill family. This made the two somewhat confidential, and Davis said to O'Neill:

"I'm sorry for you. Why did you get into this trouble?"

Then O'Neill told him what happened that night. O'Neill said he went home drunk, got his supper, then went out again and had more drinks. He met William O'Connell (the circus attache who has been held as a witness ever since the murder) and went and had another drink. Then O'Neill broke off in his story and said:

"They can't convict me of this crime anyway, for I'm not guilty of murder. O'Connell did the shooting and I kept away. I'm in it for $10. I'm willing to serve 10 years for it, but I suppose they will give me 25 years or more."

Walter Curtis of Deerfield, who was a prisoner in the Franklin county jail at the same time, and who was said by Davis to have overheard O'Neill's story, was the next witness, and admitted that he had himself told a story like that given by Davis, but that it was not true. All he heard O'Neill say was that "They cannot convict me. I am not guilty of murder."

Maine Insurance Licenses.

Augusta, Me., July 23.—The Guarantors Liability and Indemnity company of Philadelphia has been prohibited from doing business in this state for the present, as it has made no application for a renewal for a license, which expired June 30, 1897. The insurance commissioner of Maine, Hon. S. W. Carr, has declined to renew the licenses of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association and the Mercantile Mutual Accident association, both of Boston, also of the Odd Fellows' Accident company of Boston, the Fraternal Accident association of Westfield and the Red Men's Fraternal Accident association of Westfield, the three latter on the ground that they are fraternal organizations, and as they are not transacting business in compliance with the law of 1897, regulating the business of fraternal orders, these companies have been ordered to discontinue business in the state, and the insurance commissioner has declined to renew the licenses of their agents.

Bay State Beneficiary.

Augusta, Me., July 23.—At a conference held in Boston Wednesday of the insurance commissioners of several departments of Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island and Missouri after the recent examination of the Bay State Beneficiary association of Westfield, Mass., the assets and liabilities of the company were reported as follows: Total assets, $172,-452.69; liabilities, $386,127.50. The public is awaiting with a great deal of anxiety to see what action the commissioners will take in regard to the company. The matter is of great interest to people in this state. There were 1321 policy holders in he company in Maine, Dec. 31, 1896, with insurance amounting to $2,-806,000. The company collected in Maine in 1896, $67,976.91. The company at the present time is not authorized to do business in Maine, not having applied for a renewal of its license, which expired June 30.

Hayes Trust Valid.

Boston, July 23.—In the Suffolk supreme court yesterday, Judge Morton dismissed the bill in equity brought by Augustus P. Loring, executor of the will of Francis B. Hayes of Lexington vs. William A. Hayes et al., trustees of trusts created by Francis B. Hayes in his life time. This means that the trustees shall administer upon the trust property, not the executor of his will. They shall distribute it among those whom he designated in his will, in exercising his power of appointment, which he reserved in the trust deed. The principal legatee and devisee is the Massachusetts Horticultural society. The total amount of the trust property is $655,000, of which $385,000 is in real estate. It will take about $240,000 to pay the legacies and substantially the whole of the balance will go to the Horticultural society.

Letter Box Swindle.

Concord, N. H., July 23.—The local postoffice officials yesterday offset a clever plan for selling letter boxes to householders under misrepresentation. Circulars were distriubted about the city advertising letter boxes for private residences, and so worded as to give the impression that the United States postoffice department recommended their use. Postmaster Moore queried Washington as to the matter and received the following reply: "Circular misquotes regulations. Extract from postmaster general's order refers to combination collection and delivery box system, which has not yet been extended to Concord. Boxes refered to in the circular are not approved by the department."

Ex-Governor Connor's Mother Dead.

Waterville, Me., Juy 23.—Mary Bryant Connor, aged 87, died at her home in Fairfield yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Connor was the mother of Ex-Governor Selden Connor, United States pension agent at Augusta. In 1834 she married William Connor, a wealthy and prominent lumber man, of Maine. To them were born six children, all now living. They are Mrs. William Brooks of Haverhill, Mass.; Selden Connor, Virgil R. Connor and Misses Linda, Lizzie and Lucia Connor of Fairfield. Mrs. Connor had been ill for some months, though the end was unexpected.

Turks Evacuating Thessaly.

Athens, July 23.—The Turkish military authorities have ordered the surrender of the Volo-Larissa railway to the Greek railwayo fficials within eight days. It is stated that the evacuation of Thessaly has been already commenced. Edhem Pasha, commander-in-chief of the Turkish troops in Thessaly, is expected to arrive in Volo shortly to superintend the evacuation.

ARKELL'S BIG CLAIM.

New Yorker Asserts Ownership to Nearly All the Klondyke.

Based on Right of Alleged Original Discovery.

More Millions in Gold Dust Coming to San Francisco--Miners Leave Seattle.

New York, July 23.—The Press this morning says:

If the day dreams of W. J. Arkell are realized he will be as rich as Barney Barnato, providing he can convince the governments of the United States and Great Britain that he is the rightful owner of some 4500 miles of the Klondyke gold fields of Alaska.

So deeply is he impressed with the belief that he has more than an ordinary claim that he is organizing an expedition, which will start for Alaska in a month. Bartlett Arkell will head it, and he will have with him Harry P. Clark of Pittsburg, his brother-in-law, and a party of newspaper men.

Arkell's claim to the gold field is based on information received from two men, E. E. Wells of Cincinnati and A. B. Schanz of Indiana mineral springs of Indiana. Wells and Schanz were two of an expedition which visited the Klondyke gold fields with E. J. Glave, the explorer, in 1890 and 1891.

The expedition was organized by Mr. Arkell and cost $18,000. Glave has since died, but Wells and Schanz are alive and have asked Mr. Arkell if he is going to protect his claims. If he does not they expect to go to Alaska themselves to look after their interests. The party explored the Yukon river from its source to its mouth. Gold, according to Mr. Arkell, was found in large quantities, and 4500 miles of claims were staked out for the party. Arkell's share was one-third, one-third for Glave, Wells, Schanz, P. B. Pierce and John Dalton of the expedition, and one-third for 30 Chilkat natives.

Maps of the land have been made by members of the expedition, and according to Mr. Arkell the government is now using the maps. All the original copies and pictures of the claims are in the possession of Arkell, after whom a lake has been named near the head of the Yukon. At present Arkell cannot tell whether or not claims were filed for the land staked off at the mining claim office in Sitka.

"I base my claim on the fact that I am practically the discoverer of the land," said Mr. Arkell.

"It was my money which defrayed the expense of the expedition, and under the law I understand that the discoverer has more rights than in the case of squatters. It is my intention to push this matter, and if I am successful I will divide with the heirs of the Glave estate. The last thing Glave said to me before going to Africa, where he contracted a fever and died, was that if he returned to this country he would go to Alaska and pass the remainder of his life there, as it was the richest country in mineral deposits on the globe."

A government claim usually is 150 feet by 1500 feet, or altogether 225,000 square feet. According to Mr. Arkell's mathematics he and the members of his expedition are the possessors of 558,000 claims. Usually the government insists that to obtain patent to the claim the claimant must spend $100 a year on each claim in order to hold it, or $500 in five years to obtain ownership. Mr. Arkell's 558,000 claims would mean an annual expenditure of $55,800,000 a year to hold them, or $279,400,000 in five years to obtain the patent.

Steamer Portland Leaves for Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., July 23.—Two thousand men, fully provisioned for Alaskan winters and bent on seeking a fortune in the golden placers of the Klondyke, will be scattered along the routes between this city and Dawson City in the next 10 days.

Many will be fully outfitted for the trip across the mountain pass by way of Dyea, while others will take easier routes up the Yukon river to Dawson City. The rush to Klondyke's rich placer fields was formally begun with the sailing of the steamer Portland, ladened to the guards with men and supplies.

One thousand men, women and children crowded Schwabacher's dock yesterday afternoon to witness the sailing of the Portland. It was a sight exceeding even the scenes in California during the gold excitement of '49.

More Millions Coming.

San Francisco, July 23.—When the steamer Excelsior returns from her next trip to St. Michael, which will be about Sept. 5, the present Klondyke excitement will be cast into the shade. From a private letter which was received here by the last steamer from trustworthy sources, it is known that the Excelsior will bring down on her next trip between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 in gold dust, which will represent the clean up of all the miners remaining on the Yukon, who send their money by express.

A story told by the returned miners from the Yukon is that discoveries quite as startling as those which are now electrifying the world may shortly be looked for in the territory which belongs beyond question to the United States.

THE Y. M. C. A. MOVE.

An Athletic Field Secured by the Change.

Gymnasium With More Floor Space and Open Every Night.

A Roof Garden Will Also be One of the Adjuncts.

If any of the members of the Young Men's Christian Association who have taken pride in its progress felt that a backward step was about to be taken when they read that the association had leased the old court building, they will do well to reserve their decision until the new quarters are completed, when they will learn that the management, while regretting that the pleasant quarters on Washington street had to be abandoned, has taken a step which, in reality, marks a forward move, which enables them to increase the privileges of membership, and gives them advantages which comparatively few Associations can give.

The more central location was not the only thing the committee had in mind when it found that the present rooms must be vacated. Many people are not aware that back of the court building and adjoining the old burying ground is a large lot belonging to Mr. John W. Nash. The Association has leased this land for five years, thereby enabling it to carry on outdoor gymnastics and athletics several months of the year. It will also afford a central, shady and retired place for the open air religious meetings during the summer months.

The flat roof in the rear of the old court room will be covered over and furnished with settees, making a pleasant roof garden overlooking the athletic grounds. This will be connected with the grounds by a stairway, so that members can pass directly from their exercise to the bath and dressing room.

This acquisition will be welcomed by many of the athletically inclined young men of the city and will furnish a private ball ground for the junior members. The two rooms in the rear of the old court room will be utilized for bathing and dressing apartments.

The gymnasium will have more floor space and is a better shape than the old one, but will not be high enough for much over head apparatus. The fact that the gymnasium can be used every evening without interfering with the class rooms will be a very welcome change, for during the past three years in the old quarters members have only been allowed to use the "gym" two or three evenings each week, on account of the educational classes in the room below.

It is proposed to take the room formerly used by Mr. Federhen for a reading room. The central location of the rooms will no doubt cause this department to be used more by the public than in former years. The room used at the present for a barber shop will be converted into a parlor. Between the two will be a small office for the secretary, who will be able to see all who come into the rooms. The two large rooms on the upper floor will be joined by double doors and utilized during the day for the junior department, and in the evening for the educational department. The walls and ceilings of the principal rooms will be tastefully papered and painted.

Other improvements will no doubt be made next season, which for financial reasons cannot be made this year.

The fact that the Association will make a saving of nearly three hundred dollars per year in rent is of itself a matter of congratulation.

The Association is obliged to vacate the second floor of the street railroad building Aug. 1, but will continue to use the gymnasium and bath until Fall, by courtesy of the street railway company, who have purchased a part of the bathing and gymnasium apparatus for the use of its employes.

A fine building or rooms do not assure a successful Association, but the work accomplished by the members is the correct criterion. The Quincy Association has demonstrated that it is something more than a social rendezvous for young men, by its practical educational and physical work, and there can be no doubt but that if it continues along these lines in the future as it has in the past public spirited citizens will do what those of other cities have done, namely, see to it that the Association has a home of its own suitable for an all round work.

Gabriel A. Pelos, the successor of C. C. Mueller, will remove on Sept. 1 his barber shop to the rooms now occupied by George Ames the plumber, in the same building. The new quarters will be fitted up in first class manner; a new floor will be laid, new plate glass windows put in, and all the woodwork painted white. He will also have city water and new furniture, and has ordered a new eight foot sign which will inform the public that it is the "Y. M. C. A. hair dressing parlor." Mr. Pelos has given evidence that he intends to conduct a first class barber shop, neat, clean and attractive, having fixed up his present quarters with good taste. By the leasing of the building to the Y. M. C. A. he is compelled to make a change, but it may be for the better.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

KLONDYKE GOLD.

A Quincy Boy Writes of the Marvelous Finds

The following letter clipping may be of interest to some Quincy friends of Capt. J. F. Higgins, he being a Quincy born boy.

San Diego, Cal., July 19,—An interesting letter telling of the recent trip of the steamer Excelsior to Alaska has been written by Capt. J. F. Higgins of the steamer to a friend in this city. He says:

"The word Klondyke means deer river, and is called Reindeer river on the charts. It empties into the Yukon 50 miles above the big river. The geographical position of the junction is 76 degrees 10 minutes north latitude, 138 degrees 50 minutes west longitude. Bonanza creek dumps into the Klondyke about two miles above the Yukon. Eldorado is a tributary of the Bonanza. There are numerous other creeks and tributaries, the main river being 300 miles long. The gold so far has been taken from Bonanza and Eldorado, both well named, for the richness of the placers is truly marvelous. Eldorado, 30 miles long, is staked the whole length, and as far as worked has paid.

"One of our passengers who is taking $1,000,000 with him has worked 100 feet of his ground and refused $200,000 for the remainder, and confidently expects to clean up $400,000 and more. He has in a bottle $212 from one pan of dirt. His pay dirt, while being washed, averaged $250 an hour to each man shoveling in. Two others of our miners who worked their own claims cleaned up $6,000 from the day's washing."

Harvard Examinations.

The returns from Cambridge in regard to the Adams Academy boys who took the Harvard examination this year show an unbroken series of successes. The five candidates who were presented for final examination were all admitted. They are L. W. Hall, F. L. Hewitt, W. H. McGrath, W. McKenzie and J. W. Sweeney. Two of these were admitted with honors; one in work representing seven hours, the other in a subject representing two hours. Although Hewitt passed the Harvard examinations with credit, he enters the Boston University Law School. Four candidates were presented for the preliminary examinations and all passed more than the required number of hours. The candidates were F. R. Boyd, L. W. Lyons, G. M. Sheahan and M. A. Turner. This extremely creditable showing of the academy boys ought to stimulate the faith of the citizens in the school and its methods.

Saturday Night Concert.

Another of those enjoyable out-door concerts by Brown's Brigade band will be given in City Square Saturday evening. Vocal selections by J. C. Schultz will hereafter be one of the features at all the concerts by this band. The programme:

Wicked Work.

MR. EDITOR:—May I call the attention of our road commissioner through your columns to the manner in which our sidewalks and banks are being cut up by the contractors who are putting in the electric road? Sagamore street running from Gurney's store to the depot is a wicked sight, and our citizens are very indignant. The grass banks have been ruined and even the sidewalks are being cut up. Billings street on each side has these grass banks, that are a pride to the property holders and an ornament to the street. Are these also to be ruined in order to may way for this road that is so little needed in Atlantic? We hope attention will be given this before it is too late. A PROPERTY HOLDER.

Quincy Boats Lead.

The Rooster made it three straight in the Manchester yacht races on Thursday, showing her heels over the whole course to the Wrinkle, Yahoo, Cleopatra and Yankee Maid who finished in the order given. The Little Peter of the Quincy club won again in the first class, defeating the Elfreda on time allowance. Another Quincy boat the Privateer came to the front in the second class cabin boats, with Muriel second and Nettie third. The order in the second open class was Hoodlum, Snipe II and Romance; in the knockabout class, Fly, Mongoose and Hazard; in fourth class, Vitesse, Circe and Fantasy. The series ends today.

S. of V. Field Day.

S. of V. camps of southeastern Massachusetts are arranging for their annual fall field day. At a meeting on Wednesday evening in Brockton these camps were represented by Francis L. Souther Camp 27 of Quincy, Camp 11 of Whitman, Camp 13 of Stoughton, Camp 17 of Brockton, Camp 36 of East Weymouth, Camp 50 of Rockland, Camp 67 of Abington, Camp 117 of North Eastern and Camp 118 of Eastondale. Past Captain Porter of Whitman, president of the association presided.

AN INJUNCTION.

Attempt to Stop Track Laying to Squantum.

Claim That it Will be Nuisance on Narrow Streets.

A Master Appointed and Evidence Being Taken.

A matter of interest to Atlantic residents came up Wednesday before Judge Dunbar of the Supreme Court in equity sessions in the shape of a petition of Ella V. Carver and Harry W. Read for an injunction to restrain the Quincy & Boston street railway from laying its tracks on Billings and Squantum streets, Atlantic.

When the matter of the granting of the location was before the City Council it was opposed by Mr. Read and others although the most of the talking was done by Mr. Read. There was, however, a lengthy petition remonstrating against the granting of the location.

The matter was before the City Council for some time and the order was finally passed gave a location in the centre of Billing street from Newbury avenue to Squantum street and on the side of Squantum street.

Some few days ago the railway commenced to lay its tracks and this morning the rails were laid to within a few feet of Billings street on Newbury avenue, and Billings street has been ploughed up for some distance.

The petitioners for the injunction, claim that the order granting the location was not defined enough and therefore not legal, inasmuch as the order says that the tracks shall be on the side of the street, but does not state which side or any distances. It also claims that Squantum street is so narrow that the tracks would be dangerous to public travel and was therefore a public nuisance. Further it was claimed in the petition that it was to further a land scheme.

W. B. Orcutt, Esq., and S. C. Gilman, Esq., appeared for the petitioners, and W. G. A. Pattee, Esq., for the railroad.

The court appointed William Schofield as master to take the testimony in the case and report forthwith.

Mr. Schofield immediately commenced his hearing. Two witnesses were examined Thursday, City Clerk Keith and Herbert T. Whitman.

City Clerk Keith testified to the passing of the order by the City Council and its acceptance by the Street Railway Company and produced the order and plans, while Mr. Whitman testified to the location.

The hearing was then adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock and the testimony will be completed so as to be submitted to the court next week. Meanwhile the work laying the track goes merrily on.

In relation to the order granting this location, which the petitioners claim as not legal, as it did not state which side of Squantum street it should be located or distances. The reading of that clause of the order will be of interest. It is as follows:

That the Quincy & Boston Street Railway company be granted a location for a single track beginning at the end of its present location on Sagamore street, (formerly Atlantic avenue,) opposite the Atlantic station of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad; thence over and along the centre of Sagamore street to Newbury avenue, thence over and along the centre of Newbury avenue to Billing street, thence over and along the center of Billings street to Squantum street, thence over and along the side of Squantum street to the end of the same near the residence of Pauline Burkhardt, together with all curves, switches, crossings and turnouts as appear on plan filed with the petition on said location.

TODAY'S COURT.

The case of Edwin N. Davis of Braintree for neglecting to send his minor child to school was called and placed on file.

Michael McNally was arraigned for assault of Anna J. Robinson at Quincy. The alleged assault took place at the Spencer boarding house at Norfolk Downs on May 16. According to the plaintiff, on the morning of the assault she stood in the hall and was accused by another woman with quarreling with the boarders. This the witness denied, upon which McNally knocked her down. Witness had been sick some time, and after being knocked down she was confined to her bed for two weeks.

The defence claimed he did not assault the Robinson woman but that the women were squabbling in the hall and that he entered between the women to separate them and in doing so she tripped and fell. McNally was fined $10. Appealed.

Wet at Camp.

It rained all day at the South Framingham camp on Thursday. The 5th regiment had an hour's drill in the manual in the drill shed. Lieut. Whitney of Co. K was one of the officers of the guard.

Today is Governor's day and the big day of the week, visitors being welcome. Governor Wolcott arrived about 11 A. M., and received the usual salute.

"Prudent Buyers Trade Here."

The Mammoth Store,

Selling the right kind of goods, at prices fair to pay, is turning the tide of trade our way. "If you buy it at Kincaide's, it's sure to be good," is what the people say. A typical metropolitan store right in your midst.

The croakers said it wouldn't pay but this store differs from other stores, it was a born leader at the start. No guess work here, honest made goods at prices guaranteed as low, and invariably a trifle lower for worthy goods, than at any other store in existence.

No matter what you need for your home, you're sure to find something here that's just to your notion.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

My Sunday At Home

By RUDYARD KIPLING

This is one of a series of original and copyrighted stories which will soon be published in this paper.

You know Kipling.

You know his reputation.

You know what kind of stories he writes.

What more need be said?

High class original fiction is expensive. But we regard it none too good for our readers.

WANT DEPOT BACK.

Wollaston People Don't Want That Fence Where It Is.

Compelling Travellers to Alight on Track a Greater Danger.

Removal of Depot to East Side a Grevious Error.

The long talked of fence at the Wollaston station has been completed. It is an eye sore to the citizens of Wollaston and a monument to a few officious residents.

There was no general call from the public for this fence. When the official announcement was made through these columns that a fence was to be erected upon the west side of the tracks it created a wave of indignation.

Some few years ago a distinguished citizen of Wollaston while crossing the tracks one evening, stepped in front of a train and was killed. The railroad officials through some deduction of their own, reasoned that for the convenience and safety of the public the station which for years had been located on the west side of the tracks should be moved over to the easterly side.

The station as it was then located was a convenience to the public and with the exception of this one fatility not a very dangerous place. People could buy their tickets for Boston without crossing the tracks and what little traffic went south was not inconvenienced by having the station on the westerly side. Five-sixths of Wollaston village, it should be borne in mind, is located west of the tracks, therefore nearly all of the inward traffic was done on that side without crossing over.

But the railroad officials were not content with this state of affair. They erroneously conceived that in shifting the station it would be a benefit to the public. The road never perpetrated a graver error than this. From the day the station was moved to the easterly side down to the present time it has been a veritable death trap. It cannot be gainsaid that there have been more narrow escapes from accidents for the short time the station has been in its present location than during all of it twenty years on the other side.

The road, in order to "remedy" this state of affairs has had constructed a high board fence virtually shutting Wollaston off from that most essential thing which a transportation company is bound to give its patrons,—convenient access to and egress from its cars.

Not only that but it compels all outward bound passengers to alight from the cars on the inward tracks. What scheme could be devised that could be more dangerous than that? To be sure every engineer has printed orders requiring him to hold up his train while another is discharging passengers at a station. But engineers, as we know from the recent narrow escape at the Quincy station, are not infallible.

During a dense fog or a thick snow storm such as we often times have a train might come thundering along and wipe out a score of people before the engine driver realized where he was. Surely it would be impossible to devise a more deadly trap than this. The road literally compels the people to walk into it.

It would seem that the station should be moved back to its original location and the fence removed. If it is necessary to have a fence then place it on the easterly side of the track where the population is far the lightest and not on the side where five-sixths of the population resides, and where the post office and the business section is also located.

HOUGHS NECK.

The sloop Beatrice returned on Thursday at 5 o'clock from a ten days' cruise to Eastport, Maine.

The yacht Gnome owned by Harold Faxon was upset yesterday by an unknown sloop. The bow sprit at the sloop caught in the anchor rope of the Gnome completely upsetting her.

Water sport here would not be a bad idea for Illumination day.

The poverty party held Thursday evening at Harvey's hall was a grand success. It was poverty too! The grand march was led by Mr. John Sullivan and Mrs. Conners at 8.30. There were a great many ridiculous rigs. Among the participants were: Messrs. Alvin Taylor, Dolar Martell, G. Ackerman, B. Griffin, F. Blieller, F. Maynard, G. Now, C. Vindervaite, C. F. Cook, W. Garbarino, C. Macomber, H. Vinton, F. Newell, W. Boucher, R. Rielly, G. Sanford, W. Braley; Miss Eva Fitts, Miss Effy Cook, Miss Winnie Garbarino, Miss Margaret Burns, Miss May Harvey, Miss Alice Shougrow, Miss Ida Willard, Miss Lizzie O'Toole, Miss Lillian Brown; Mrs. G. J. Fitts, Mrs. G. F. Collier, Mrs. J. W. Maynard, Mrs. C. F. Cook. The music was by Mr. Harry Davee, and Mr. Arthur Gardner.

Tomorrow's LEDGER will have the programme for the Sunday band concert.

HORSE TIPS.

La Honda is very fast and very cranky.

Red Wilkes now has six new performers.

Hulda, 2:08½, has been bred to Cupid, 2:18.

Benton M, 2:10, is reported broken down.

Joe Young, sire of the dam of Joe Patchen, is dead.

Jerome Eddy gets a new performer in the mare Lucetty, 2:29¼.

Cordelia, by Ashland Wilkes, recently took a time record of 2:23.

A sister to Gazette, 2:09¼, is now in Trainer Ben Walker's stable.

Robbie P, 2:10¾, by Charles Caffrey, has shown a mile in 2:13 at Vienna.

Milton S bids fair to become a free for all pacer. His this year's record is 2:08¼.

Rex Americus, 2:11¼, was tried and found wanting, and Geers has bundled him home.

Old Hal Pointer is hard at work on eastern half mile tracks. He is still an attraction.

Nathan Strauss is driving Cobwebs, 2:12, on the roads at his summer residence in the Berkshire hills.

Elloree and Derby Princess stepped to the quarter in 31¼ and the half in 1:03¾ at Columbus recently.

The pacer Peter Cooper, 2:14¼, by Walkill Chief, Jr., was destroyed by fire in Philadelphia last month.

The chestnut stallion McBride, 2:14¾, by Rumor, has been purchased by Mr. Henry Schmulbach of Wheeling.

Twenty-five thousand dollars is the estimated amount that went through the pool box the opening day at Anaconda.

Pilot Boy, 2:10¼, has done well in his work this spring and summer and is booked for a record well below 2:10.

Dyspepsia Pills and Spare Rib are the delectable names borne by two pacing mares now racing in New York state.

Robert J and John R. Gentry will appear at the Louisville October meeting and each will go against his present record.

Cleslintay, by Nutwood, out of a mare by Stamboul, trotted a full mile over Fleetwood track, New York, in 2:22½ recently.

Medonias, by Pilot Medium, owned by Cornelius Burke, Cadillac, died recently at Traverse City, Mich., where he was making the season.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

In a very ancient Greek story the goddess Erato is represented with a psaltery.

The mountain Indians of Mexico have different kinds of rattles, the body bearing a grotesque resemblance to the human form.

The Koreans have a clarinet caled nallari. It is made of wood, with mouthpiece and base of brass. Its length is 15 inches, and it is capable of a considerable variety of tones.

The natives of the east coast of Africa have a species of cymbal exactly resembling in shape the dumbbells used by athletes. They are played in pairs, one in each hand, and violently smitten together.

The Chinese tambourine is called chislan. The drum is made of snakeskin, and care is usually taken to select the skin of a serpent which has variegated colors, in order that there may be some style about the instrument.

The king is the favorite musical instrument in Chinese temples. In its most perfect form it consists of a number of large flat stones of different shapes and tones. The sound is that of a chime of bells and is singularly clear and musical.

The Chinese have a singular instrument called cheng, or mouth organ. It is a circular bundle of small reeds of different lengths, pierced with finger holes at proper distances and communicating with a common air chamber beneath. The notes are produced by stopping the holes with the fingers.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

PEN AND BRUSH.

Thomas Hardy has dropped sex problems and returned to the methods of his earlier stories.

Andrew Lang's translation of Pope Leo's poem on frugality is said to be his revenge on his holiness for putting one of his books on the index expurgatorius.

Amelie Rives (Princess Troubetskoy) has entirely recovered from her attack of nervous prostration and is hard at work on a new novel at her home, Castle Hill, Va.

General Lew Wallace says that after a diligent search for a short name for the hero of his noted book, he came across the name "Hur" in the book of Genesis, and, by adding "Ben," which means "the son of," he obtained a name both short and odd.

The Munich portrait painter Franz von Lenbach has finished a portrait of the distinguished historian of Rome Theodore Mommsen. The picture is now on exhibition in the international exposition in Munich. Near it is shown another new work of Lenbach's, a portrait of Bismarck in the cuirassier uniform that was finished this year.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

A bat can absorb and digest in one night three times the weight of its own body.

Several species of moths never eat after attaining a perfect state. They have no mouths and live but a few hours.

The scorpion is the most quarrelsome creature in the world. Two placed in the same box will always sting each other to death.

Cut off a wasp's head and put it on the point of a needle in front of sugar and water. You will find that it will begin greedily eating it, quite unconscious of the fact that the food is dropping out of its gullet as soon as swallowed.

Birds differ very much in the heights to which they commonly ascend. The condor, the largest of all vultures and of all flying birds, has been observed soaring over 29,000 feet, or about five miles and a half, above the level of the sea.

WAR TRAPPINGS.

About 1½ per cent of the British soldiers are unable to read or write.

Earl Dundonald has invented a new gun carriage for maxim guns which can be used on the roughest ground.

Lee-Metford rifle barrels are good enough for 5,000 or 6,000 rounds, which makes the life of the rifle, with average use, about 20 years.

The English war office authorities are a good deal troubled over the results of using cordite for artillery. At recent practice at Okehampton out of 18 guns of the horse artillery using cordite in place of ordinary powder 7 guns became useless after firing only two rounds each.

A REMORSEFUL PARENT.

He Wanted a Name Changed and Wanted It Badly.

A man who was bald with the exception of a small red fringe which reached around the back of his head from ear to ear was waiting for the lawyer when the latter came into his office.

"I want to consult you on a rather unusual case," he said after greetings had been exchanged. "What I came to find out is this, can a person's name be changed?"

"Certainly. All he has to do is to show some good and sufficient reason for adopting another name, and it can be very easily arranged."

"I know that. But can it be done without the knowledge or consent of the party most interested?"

"Why, of course not."

"I was afraid you would say that. But maybe when you hear all the circumstances"—

"But there are no circumstances which will permit you to change a man's name without his knowledge. There are lots of mean things you can do behind a friend's back, but I'm glad to say this is not one of them."

"But this person isn't a man."

"The same thing applies to a woman."

"But it's not a woman either. It's my 10-months-old baby. The trouble is that we're having too much education in our neighborhood. I honestly believe that what I am trying to do is for the baby's own good. My wife and I were anxious to give him a name that would have a substantial sound and at the same time be associated with classical tradition. So we hit upon 'Cicero.'"

"That's a very good name."

"Your remark shows how easy it is to be deceived. We liked it first rate until our eldest girl got into the high school. One day she came home and informed us that we were mispronouncing the baby's name. 'It isn't Sissero,' she tells us. 'It's Kickero.'

"That's the pronunciation usually taught now."

"So I learned upon inquiry. And if you'll take the case I am willing to go to any expense to change his name to Thomas or John or Jeremiah or most anything that won't sound as if we had taken an Indian papoose to raise."—Washington Star.

Her Composition on Temperance.

A little schoolgirl in the rural districts was assigned a composition on "Temperance," and the following is the result:

"Temperance is more better than whisky. Whisky is 10 cents a drink, and lots of it. My pa drinks whisky. He has been full 113 times this year. One night he came home late and my ma went out and cut some hickories and walloped him good. Then she ducked his head in a tub of soapsuds and locked him up in the barn. And the next morning my pa said he reckon he'd swear off."—Atlanta Constitution.

Sour.

"Did you say," shouted the cannibal king, summoning his head chef, "that the captive was a sweet girl graduate?"

"She so said, sire."

"Well," observed the dusky potentate wrathfully, "I wish you'd test things for yourself before you work them off on me! Sweet? Well, I guess nit!"

With a wry face he rang for the powdered sugar.—New York Press.

Practical (?) Charity.

Charitable Old Lady (to little beggar girl)—There's some bread for you. It's a day or two old, but you can tell your mother to take three or four fresh eggs, a quart of milk, a cup of sugar, some good butter and half a grated nutmeg, and she can make a very excellent pudding of it.—Tid-Bits.

Sunstruck.

"Why, Jimmie, what was that yelling I heard from your back yard this morning?"

"It was a sunstruck case, ma'am."

"A sunstruck case?"

"Yes, ma'am. I'm the son."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Made No Difference.

"Is that your wife on a bicycle?"

"It is."

"I thought you said that you would never permit her to ride one."

"I don't permit it, but what difference do you suppose that makes to her?"—Chicago Post.

Undoubtedly the Cause.

Guyer—The Bible doesn't mention anything about Ishmael's learning to play the slide trombone.

Dewtell—Did he ever?

Guyer—Well, it says that every man's hand was against him.—New York Journal.

The New Saleslady.

De Bangs—I bought a shirt at this store. Can I change it at this counter?

Saleslady (somewhat embarrassed)—Well, er, don't you—you think you had better go where you can have more privacy?—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Beyond Its Scope.

She—Now that you have insured your life in my favor you must ask papa's consent to our marriage.

He—B-b-but it isn't an accident policy!—New York Journal.

—The Randolph Veteran Firemen's Association will attend the muster at Crescent Park, R. I., Aug. 12.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

Petition Regarding Old Iron Ides.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 23.—All the various petitions which have been so widely signed in this city and York county, Me., in relation to the retention of the frigate Constitution at the Portsmouth navy yard, have been collected in one large roll and forwarded to Speaker Reed. A copy of these petitions has also been sent to each member of the Maine and New Hampshire delegations in congress, and urges each member to do all in his power to have the Constitution rebuilt here. The petitions contained several thousand signatures.

Millowners' Losses.

Waterville, Me., July 23.—The jam of logs at Fairfield bridge was well opened up yesterday, a rough estimate of loss to lumbering firms was made by a prominent millowner last night, who places the figure at $40,000, divided between Lawrence & Newhall, Shawmut; Edward Ware, Waterville; Somerset Fibre company, Fairfield; Kennebec Log Driving company, N. Tolman & Son, and L. Weston, Skowhegan. Two thousand dollars will replace the booms. Some 5,000,000 feet of logs have gone down the river, upn which a 50 per cent loss will result.

Timber Land Sold.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., July 23.—The Northern Lumber company of this town has sold to W. R. Danforth and C. O. Stevens of Stratford, N. H., 11,000 acres of timber land, including 26 houses and the lumber mills in Granby and East Haven. The price paid was said to be $70,000.

Backbone of Strike Broken.

Charleston, W. Va., July 23.—The backbone of the strike appears to be broken in the Kanawha valley. The demand for a general strike among the soft coal diggers and the agreement reached to that end by the representatives in the meeting at Montgomery, turns out to be practically a failure. The men at only three mines obeyed the call to strike, and they are now talking of returning to work. The organizers from Ohio have abandoned the Kanawha coal field and have gone to the New river, where they will make an effort to get the men out. The sentiment against the strike among the miners is now stronger than at any time for a week.

Haverhill Has Klondyke Complaint.

Haverhill, Mass., July 23.—Five Haverhill men have signed an agreement to go to Alaska if five more can be secured. The party will go under the direction of Arthur Seymour, son of Professor Seymour. The party will be known as the Haverhill Mining company. The men who are to go are Mr. Seymour, George Ashworth, C. Haven Coffin, A. C. Ford and Frank H. Ducey.

Bay State Gold Democrats.

Boston, July23.—The gold Democrats have decided to hold a regular caucus state convention this fall, and there will be a meeting of the state committee Aug. 28 for the purpose of fixing the date thereof. Caucuses are to be held in every town and city for the purpose of selecting delegates to this convention, and the Young Men's Democratic club is working in harmony with the Gold Democratic organization.

DR. ANDREWS RESIGNS

President of Brown University Will Not Be Silenced.

He Refuses to Surrender Liberty of Speech.

The Professor's Free Silver Utteranees Were Objectionable.

Providence, July 23.—The expected has happened in the matter of President E. Benjamin Andrews of Brown university, who, as a result of the annual meeting of the corporation last month, was attacked for his free silver and free trade utterances.

Dr. Andrews resignation together with the letter written him by the executive and advisory committee are here given:

To Rev. E. Benjamin Andrews, D. D., President Brown University:

In compliance with your request, the undersigned, members of a committee appointed at the last meeting of the corporation of Brown university, make the following statement:

The committee was appointed under the following resolution, to wit:

Resolved, That a committee consisting of the chancellor, Judge Durfee and Judge Wayland be appointed to confer with the president in regard to the interests of the university.

The resolution was passed after remarks from several members of the corporation, showing more specifically the reason for it. The makers of these remarks expressed the highest appreciation of the services rendered by the president in increasing and diversifying the educational facilities and efficiency of the university and its multiplying the number of the students resorting to it, and, at the same time, professed for him personally the warmest admiration and regard. They signified a wish for a change in only one particular, having reference to his views upon a question which constituted leading issue in the recent presidential election, and which is still predominant in national politics, namely, that of the free coinage of silver as legal tender at a ratio of 16 ounces of silver to one of gold.

They considered that the views of the president, as made public by him from time to time, favored a resumption of such coinage, and expressed the belief that these views were so contrary to the views generally held by the friends of the university that the university had already lost gifts and legacies which otherwise would have come or have been assured to it, and that without change it would in the future fail to receive the pecuniary support which is requisite to enable it to prosecute with success the grand work on which it has entered. The change hoped for by them, they proceed to explain, is not a renunciation of these views, as honestly entertained by him, but a forbearance out of regard for the interests of the university, to promulgate them, especially when to promulgate them will appeal most strongly to the passions and prejudices of the public.

The subscribers understand that it was in pursuance of this hope that the resolution appointing them a committee to confer with the president was passed, and passed, too, it may be added, without a single dissenting voice or vote.

Reply of Professor Andrews.

To the Advisory and Executive Committee of the Corporation of Brown University:

Gentlemen—Believing that, however much I might desire to do so, I should find myself unable to meet the wishes of the corporation as explained by the special committee officially appointed to confer with me on the interests of the university, without surrendering that reasonable liberty of utterance which my predecessors, my faculty colleagues and myself have hitherto enjoyed, and in the absence of which the most ample endowment for an educational institution would have but little worth, I respectfully resign the presidency of the university, and also my professorship therein, to take effect not later than the first day of the approaching September. I regret the brevity of the intervening time, but am acting at the earliest possible moment, after securing an interview with the committee.

Thanking you, gentlemen, and all the other members of the corporation for the good will toward me personally, which has been expressed in so many ways, and cherishing the best wishes for the prosperity of the university,

I am, yours with sincere esteem,
E. Benjamin Andrews.

Providence, July 17, 1897.

The controversy which led up to the resignation was precipitated by Congressman Walker of Massachusetts at the last meeting of the Brown corporation. The congressman at that time deplored the action by President Andrews in promulgating his views on the silver question. Mr. Walker's stand was approved by all the members of the corporation, and a committee was appointed to confer with Dr. Andrews and endeavor to induce him to refrain from pursuing the policy he had adopted in relation to financial teachings. The correspondence printed above, together with the president's resignation, was the result.

The announcement is not at all surprising, as it was generally believed that Dr. Andrews would not remain at the university.

The following communication was sent to President Andrews yesterday:

Providence, July 21.

To Rev. E. Benjamin Andrews, D. D., President of Brown University:

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the advisory and executive committee of the corporation of Brown university, held yesterday, the following action was taken:

"Voted: That the secretary be instructed to inform President Andrews that this communication of the 17th inst. has been received by this committee with the most profound regret, and that it will be transmitted to the corporaion at its annual meeting Sept. 1, 1897."

Very truly yours,
J. C. B. Woods,
Secretary.

Left All to Children.

San Francisco, July 23.—The will of the late Colonel Charles F. Crocker was opened today. All of the estate, valued at from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000, is bequeathed to his three children absolutely. Mrs. Adeline M. Easton, the grandmother of the children, is named as guardian of their persons and estates. No bequests are made to public, charitable or educational institutions. The executors are H. P. Scott and Charles E. Green. The will is dated Sept. 24, 1894.

THE COAL STRIKE.

Pittsburg Region In Fever of Excitement and Trouble Expected.

Pittsburg, July 23.—Excitement was at fever heat in local miners' circles yesterday. The operators were apparently preparing for any demonstration, and before nightfall they were convinced that miners from the Finleyville district marched on the Bunela mines and succeeded in bringing out the men at work. Sheriff Lowery of this county has a force of deputies ready for duty at a moment's notice, and trouble is looked for at any time. The deputies are in readiness to go to the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. A march on the Turtle creek, Plum creek and Sandy creek mines is expected at any time. It was learned from reliable authority that such a march was in contemplation, but would not take place until the latter part of the week.

At Cannonsburg it was reported that 1000 men would march to the Cook mines and stay there until the men came out. Sheriff Clark of Washington county was on hand with a large number of deputies, and trouble was expected if the strikers attempted to force the men to quit work.

The miners' leaders continue at work in an effort to persuade the miners in the Connellsville coke region to stop work, but dispatches from Uniontown and Dunbar indicate that they are meeting with poor success. A Uniontown dispatch says the leaders are very much disheartened, and admit privately that they have failed to create any strike sympathy.

The arbitrators are at work among the Pittsburg operators and they are trying every means to bring about a meeting of the operators. So far they have been unsuccessful in arranging for a meeting, but it is hoped to accomplish this shortly. Mayor Ford said that he had not consented to a meeting and would not do so, althought it had been suggested to him that such a proceeding would be the best thing to do under the circumstances.

Wheeling dispatch says that the miners at the Boggs mines refused to come out when requested by a committee of strikers to do so, and arrangements are being made for a demonstration of strikers today. While it is declared to be a peaceful demonstration, another refusal to come out may precipitate trouble.

Cloudburst In Ohio.

Youngstown, O., July 23.—At 7 o'clock last night a cloudburst struck this town, flooding the entire valley and causing great damage to property, both in the city and along the railway lines. Many people are supposed to be drowned. The entire country east and west for 20 miles was flooded and the damage will be enormous, the railways being the heaviest loosers. Many residences here were flooded and the occupants were taken away by the police and fire departments. The Mahoning valley electric lines were flooded out and all the bridges washed away.

Lynched on General Principles.

Madisonville, Ky., July 23.—The body of Ephraim Brinkley, who lives several miles from this city, was found dangling from a limb near his home this morning. He had been lynched during the early morning by a mob of about 40 citizens, who determined to put an end to his existance on general principles. Several weeks ago Thomas Croullias, a well known citizen of the neighborhood, was assassinated. Brinkley was suspected on account of his evil reputation, but no evidence could be found to connect him with the crime.

VOTE ON THE TARIFF.

Senator Allison Gives Notice That One Will Be Forced.

Washington, July 23.—Shortly before the senate adjourned yesterday, Senator Allison, in charge of the tariff bill, made a strong effort to have a time fixed for the final vote on the tariff conference report. Failing in this Mr. Allison gave notice that the session today would be protracted with a view of securing a vote. It was the first definite movement made thus far toward bringing the debate to a close.

Mr. Allison's first proposition was for a vote at 5 o'clock today, but this was objected to by Mr. Pettus (Ala.). Then he proposed a vote some time before adjournment today, which was objected to by Mr. Morgan. The suggestion of tomorrow at 11 o'clock met with like objection from Mr. Morgan.

The Alabama senator explained his last objection by stating that he thought all debate on the report would be exhausted today, so that it was needless to make an agreement in advance. Finding that there was no disposition to reach an agreement, Mr. Allison finally gave notice that hereafter, while the report was pending, the senate would not adjourn at 45 o'clock, without a yea and nay vote.

The debate on the report yesterday was participated in by Senators Chilton, Texas; Jones, Arkansas, and Pettigrew, South Dakota, in opposition, while Mr. Aldrich took frequent occasions to defend the report against the criticism of these senators.

VACATION PLANS.

President Going to Lake Champlain and Sherman to Long Island.

Washington, July 23.—President McKinley will leave Washington next Wednesday for his summer vacation on Lake Champlain, provided congress adjourns in time to permit it. He will proceed directly to Plattsburgh, on the west side of the lake, not stopping at any intermediate point, if it is possible to avoid so doing. It is the intention of the president to have all offical announcements of executive action taken while he is on his vacation made through the regular machinery at Washington, his purpose being to secure relief from the cares of business as far as possible.

Secretary Sherman has arranged to leave Washington for Amagansett, on Long island, today. His daughter, Mrs. McCallum, is summering at that place, and the secretary expects the change in climate will assist him in recovering his health.

Second Assistant Secretary A. A. Adee will act as secretary of state in the absence of Secretary Sherman and Assistant Secretary Day.

To Connect Chicago With Ocean.

Washington, July 23.—It is expected that before the adjournment of the present session of congress the president will send into the senate the nominations of the three commissioners provided for by the last congress to prosecute the injuiry as to the feasibility of constructing a deep waterway between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean, by which it will be possible for ocean going crafts to reach Chicago and other lake ports. While the final selection of the members of this important body (for upon its report may depend the expenditure of $200,000,000) has not yet been made, it is understood that the personel will probably be made up of Civil Engineer Cooley of Chicago, a member of the original deep water commission, and at present attached to the Chicago drainage canal project; Civil Engineer Wisener of Detroit, who engineered the Brazos river, Texas, improvements, and Major Raymond of the United States Engineer corps, now in charge of river and harbor work along the New Jersey coast.

Admiral Miller Going to Hawaii.

Washington, July 23.—Admiral Joseph N. Miller, who represented the United States navy as the special embassy from this country to London on the occasion of the queen's jubilee, called at the navy department yesterday and made formal report of his arrival and the discharge of the functions devolved upon him. He sat for a time as a member of the board to examine Commodore Norton for promotion to the grade of admiral and then spent half an hour in conference with Secretary Long, presumably in reference to his duties in Hawaii. He expects to sail according to his original plan on Aug. 5 from San Francisco one one of the regular merchant steamers. This conclusion disposes of the story that the battleship Oregon is to convey the admiral to Honolulu. This vessel will be kept in readiness for immediate service at San Francisco, however, as was evidenced by the fact that the navy department has ordered to be supplied at once with as much as her bunkers will hold of the very best grade of coal.

Trolley Patents Annulled.

New York, July 23.—In the circuit court of appeals for this circuit a decision was handed down yesterday in the case of Thomson-Houston Electrical company vs. Hoosick Railway company. In this decision, which was written by Judge Wallace, all of the judges concurring, the court held that the Van Depeele trolley patent is invalid by reason of the same invention having been described and disclosed in an earlier patent to Van Depeele. The decision therefore invalidates the patent because it was claimed to cover broadly the idea of the undercurrent trolley on an overhead wire. The court's finding affects all the trolley railways of the country, as the patent may be now used by any one without paying royalty.

Not From Andree.

Stockholm, July 23.—The Aftenblat, which has close relations with Herr Andree, says that Andree could not have dispatched the pigeons recently caught in the neighborhood of Soevde, in Rifylke, and near Tromsoe island, because it was arranged that his pigeons should be marked with the words, "Andree expedition, A. D. 1897."

Peary Leaves Sydney.

Halifax, July 23.—Peary's steamer Hope arrived at Sydney yesterday. She resumed her voyage today.

Summer Furniture

It's an acknowledged fact that half the people of this world don't know how to live comfortably.

The furniture man is always contriving something new to add to comfort and lessen cost. It's far better to discard upholstered furniture these hot days and add a few pieces of new Summer Furniture. It's inexpensive, cool and refreshing, to say nothing of being easy to care for and wonderfully comfortable.

Our Summer Furniture is worthy your inspection. Divans, Rockers and Easy Chairs in grass cloth; Mammouth Rockers and Comfort Chairs in reeds and splints, finished in moss-green and natural; Piazza Rockers and Chairs, Lawn Settees and Hammocks.

Enjoy a comfortable life while you live. Misfortunes may come later, and a life of regrets is the most miserable of all lives to live.

The Social Realm.

Have we not all, amid life's petty strife,
Some pure ideal of a noblier life,
That once seemed possible ?
We lost it in the daily jar and fret,
And now live idle in a vain regret.
But still our place is kept, and it will wait,
Ready for us to fill it, soon or late.
No star is ever lost we once have seen;
We always may be what we might have been.

The Fence Outrage!

MR. EDITOR:—I was told today that many of the good people of Wollaston think I was instrumental, with others, in bringing the above nuisance upon us. With your permission I will briefly state my connection with the affair.

About a month ago one of our best known citizens said to me. "The Railroad Commissioners are coming here on the 9.30 morning train from Boston July 2; will you be here and see them ?"

I think he said he had written to them and they had notified him of their intended visit. I knew nothing or the matter, but supposed that very many if not all of the citizens of Wollaston had been invited, as I was, to be at the station at that time.

On the morning in question I went to Boston quite early and returned to Wollaston on said 9.30 train. The Commissioners, Gen. Supt. Allen, Supt. French, President Clark's assistant, Mr. Ingersol and perhaps some other officials were there. To my great surprise, however, there were but very few Wollaston people. Councilman Nickerson, Mr. Sherman, Mr. Brasee and a few others were there, also Commissioner Knowlton.

As I had taken no part whatever in arranging this meeting, I considered myself simply a spectator, but when asked my opinion regarding any precautions necessary to prevent accidents at the station I said: "Open the gates on the west side of the cars on the inward bound trains, so that passengers can get aboard without being compelled to cross the tracks to the east side and obey the law by keeping other trains back while one is at the station, and there will be no trouble."

The idea of building some sort of a fence was spoken of and I then said, "If you must have a fence, put it between the tracks, and then build a suitable and convenient subway at the station, under the tracks, so that people can pass from one side to the other without being forced to go over the Beale street bridge."

I feel quite sure that either of my propositions would be accepted by more than three-quarters of the people of Wollaston. And I believe by united action, we can convince the officials of the Railroad that it will be for their interest to treat us fairly and liberally.

I am sorry that any one could believe me guilty of advocating what I have justly denounced as a gross outrage.

Respectfully,
GEO. F. PINKHAM.

Wollaston, July 23, 1897.

Had to Do Something.

WOLLASTON, July 23, 1897.

MR. EDITOR:—There has been a good deal said pro and con in regard to the fence erected by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. at Wollaston, I agree with much that has been said. I do not like the fence etc., still it appears to me that the railroad was obliged to do something. The railroad commissioners were asked to come to Wollaston and view the situation. They came, also the railroad people, and they found an exceedingly dangerous condition, no less than five baby carriages were trundled across while they stood there. Boys on bicycles crossed and rode down the platforms. While the fence is a great inconvenience to me personally, I take exceptions to part of the statments made, viz., "It is said that it is so inconvenient to those who reside on the west side, or south of Beale street that they are unable to go to the postoffice, stores, etc.

No mention is made of the people who live north of Beale street some 1000 or 1500, who are compelled to walk a long way. It seems to me that if our eminent citizens who represent this ward in the City Council would display the same amount of vigor in the Council to have Brooks street extended under the track (or at least a passage-way), that they do when trying to get elected to the Council, our troubles would be mitigated. There are a great many thousands of dollars paid in taxes by the people living north of Beale street to whom the extension of Brooks street would be a blessing.

A $300.00 TAXPAYER.

THE CITIZENS of Quincy join with their neighbors in Weymouth in wishing for the speedy recovery of Mr. John P. Lovell who is still very ill at Martha's Vineyard. The Herald of that place dated, July 17, says:

Col. Ben. S. Lovell, with his daughters, Mrs. Henry A. Richards and Miss Helen I. Lovell, Mr. Thomas P. Lovell, Mr. George A. Lovell and Henry L. Lovell were summoned here by the severe illness of Mr. John P. Lovell. They were delayed by the storm at Woods Hole, but managed to secure a steamer to bring them to the island through the courtsey of Agent E. T. Pierce. While Mr. Lovell is still in a serious condition from his paralysis, there is great hope of his pulling through. Dr. Frazier, his family physician, consulted with Drs. Meara and Walker, and they report such favorable symptons that Col. Lovell will return to Boston today. The affection of the children for their father is strongly manifest, and the Colonel is intensely grateful for any act of kindness to his father. Appreciating Dr. Meara's constant attention, he sent him a Lovell wheel which took the doctor by surprise; and he can scarcely speak of his father and the people's kindness without tears of gratitude.

The tail of the great comet of 1843 was 200,000,000 miles long.

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN.

Two soldiers lay on the battlefield
At night when the sun went down.
One held a lock of thin gray hair,
And one held a lock of brown.

One thought of his sweetheart back at home,
Happy and young and gay,
And one of his mother left alone,
Feeble and old and gray.

Each in the thought that a woman cared
Murmured a prayer to God!
Lifting his gaze to the blue above,
There on the battle sod.

Each in the joy of a woman's love
Smiled through the pain of death,
Murmured the sound of a woman's name,
Though with his parting breath.

Pale grew the dying lips of each.
Then, as the sun went down,
One kissed a lock of thin gray hair,
And one kissed a lock of brown.

—Town Talk.

THE DEMAINE DYE.

"Tell," the girl pleaded coaxingly, with her soft cheek against his.

"Ask me anything but that and I will grant it," answered her lover. "That is a matter which concerns my honor, and so not even for you can I"—

"Oh," she interrupted pettishly. "I am sick of hearing that cant about your honor. You only promised your father, and I am sure if he had known me he would have told me, but you—you are as hard as adamant. You can't care for me properly, or you would do what I ask you—the very first thing I have ever asked you," she ended pettishly.

Alan Demaine smiled at the pretty exhibition of childish wrath. Then he said gravely, yet firmly:

"It is no use, Elsie. You are causing both yourself and me needless pain by constantly teasing me on this matter. Once and for all I cannot tell you, so now let us talk of something pleasant. What is the last new gown like?" he ended, smiling lovingly down at her.

The girl looked at him, a curious glance, half menace, half malice, then, veiling her eyes, drooping before his ardent glance, she allowed herself to be coaxed, flattered and petted into a seemingly forgetful mood.

"I wonder why the little witch is so eager to know the secret—a trade secret too?" thought Demaine to himself that night as he smoked a quiet cigar. "A childish whim, I suppose, or woman's curiosity."

And, so thinking, he dismissed the subject from his mind.

But he would not have dismissed it quite so easily if he could have looked into a distant chamber in another part of the house and seen a little fury excitedly pacing the floor and murmuring to herself:

"I will get to know it yet, whether by fair means or foul it matters little, but I will get it, and then"—

"I must be off to the works at once," Alan said next morning to his mother and sisters. "Tell Elsie, when she comes down, that I am awfully sorry not to be able to take her for a drive, as we arranged yesterday, but something unexpected has turned up, and I am compelled to attend to it. No eye like the master's—eh, mother?" he finished laughingly.

Mrs. Demaine looked fondly at her son.

"You are just like your father," she said proudly. "It was aye duty before pleasure with him, but I'll tell the lassie, Alan, and maybe you'll be home by dinner time."

"I can't say, mother," he answered cheerily; "only wait for me."

And then they heard the hall door close and knew he was off. The day wore away. Elsie declined Enid Demaine's offer to drive her in place of Alan and went off for a long walk by herself. Enid and Cicely looked curiously after her as she walked down the drive, and then Cicely said half dreamily:

"I do think there is something odd about Elsie. I wish Alan had not fallen in love with her. Do you know," lowering her voice to an awestricken whisper, "I'm afraid she is not trustworthy."

When Alan came home that evening, he seemed in uproariously good spirits. He laughed and chatted and joked and teased until his mother declared that he was "fey." After dinner he invited Elsie out on to the terrace, to "see the moonlight," he declared mendaciously.

Very fair and sweet the girl looked in her pretty white gown of some shimmering material, and so her lover evidently thought, for he suddenly caught her to his breast and rained passionate kisses on her brow and lips. Then, just as suddenly, he thrust her from him and stood facing her in the moonlight. The girl was half frightened at his manner.

"What is the matter, Alan?" she asked timidly.

"Nothing, my pet," he replied in his old manner; "only you looked so bewitching I think I lost my senses."

"I think you did," she retorted coquettishly. "Alan," she continued earnestly, "do you really and truly love me?"

He looked at her curiously, then, recollecting himself, replied:

"What a foolish question to ask! How many hundreds of times have I told you the old, old story?"

"But," she persisted, raising her face to his, "I never, never can believe it until you tell me that secret."

His face darkened at her words.

"Did I not tell you last night that your persistency was worse than useless?" he retorted, looking coldly down at her.

"Well, then," she answered passionately, "until you do tell me I will never marry you—never!"

There was a long silence between them. Finally the man broke it.

"Do you mean what you say?" he asked in a low, tense voice.

"Certainly," she responded in a hard, determined tone. Then, changing her manner to one of winning sweetness: "But I know you will tell me. You could never, never be so cruel as to refuse."

He turned away and began pacing the lawn in an undecided, wavering fashion, quite unlike his usual firm step. The girl followed him and laid one hand on his arm.

"Tell me," she whispered beseechingly. Then she raised herself on tiptoe and kissed him.

"I cannot resist," he murmured, then stooped suddenly and whispered something into her ear.

"Is that all?" she asked, in evident surprise. He nodded.

The next afternoon Elsie refused all offers of companionship and went off for a solitary stroll. As she approached a little wooded copse about half a mile from the house a young man sauntered slowly toward her.

"Well, what success this time?" he demanded, without troubling to make any preliminary greeting.

"Wait a minute, Hugh," the girl answered. "I am quite breathless with hurrying. That tiresome Enid wanted to come with me. And I wasn't at all sure of Alan not coming too."

The man stood for a minute or two in silence, then glanced at his companion impatiently.

"I have got it," she answered quietly, returning his glance.

His whole face changed and glowed with triumph.

"You little darling, you clever little darling," he exclaimed, and then took her in his arms and kissed her passionately. She lay quite passive in his embrace, her dark eyes gleaming with tenderest love.

"Now we can marry," he whispered. "But you have not told me yet, Elsie. Are you sure you have got the exact details?"

"It is all written here, word for word, as Alan repeated it to me," she replied.

He read the paper greedily which she handed to him, then placed it in his pocketbook and drew a deep breath of relief.

"So that is all the secret of Demaine's wonderful purple dye," he said. "Well, I rather think now that the monopoly is destroyed. Won't the old fashioned firm be astonished when they find themselves undersold in the market by a dye exactly like their own." And he laughed a cruel laugh of triumph. "I always hated Demaine," he continued, "always. This will be splendid revenge, besides making all our fortunes. But come, Elsie," he added, "it is time we were moving. I'll see you to the park gates, and then I must get back to town."

A month passed away, and Elsie was still visiting the Demaines, still outwardly engaged to Alan, of whom nevertheless she saw very little.

"Hugh," Elsie said to her lover one evening, "don't you think"— and then she stopped in confusion.

"Think what?" said Hugh idly, without looking at her.

"That it is not very nice or pleasant for me to be staying in Alan's home, when I have—betrayed him?" she ended bravely.

"I don't see what else you can do," retorted Hugh lazily, "unless you go back to your aunt's."

The girl crimsoned to her brow.

"Couldn't we be married now?" she whispered in shamed tones.

He looked at her sharply, then replied: "Look here, Elsie, it is best to be straightforward, so we may as well end this farce at once. I am engaged to my cousin Marian, and we are to be married next month."

There was a long silence. Up in the bright blue heavens a bird was caroling merrily, and in a strange, mechanical manner Elsie counted five daisies which were in a cluster at her feet. Then she spoke:

"So you just used me as a tool, Hugh?"

"Yes," he acquiesced shamefacedly.

She laughed—a strange, hard laugh.

"It does not hurt very much after all—not very much," she repeated piteously, and then without another word turned and left him.

When Alan Demaine reached home that night, his mother and sisters met him with the news that Elsie had been suddenly summoned to meet her aunt. "Though when she got the letter I'm sure I don't know," added Enid suspiciously. Her brother made no reply, but went straight to his own room, and there, on the toilet table, lay a tear stained note.

"I have been a wicked, deceitful girl," the letter ran, "and now the greatest punishment I have to bear is the knowledge that I have brought ruin upon you." Then followed an explanation concerning her curiosity about the dye, and the note ended with a plea for forgiveness.

In reply Alan wrote as follows: "My forgiveness you have fully and freely, and I sincerely wish you every happiness in the future. You must not distress yourself about 'ruining me,' as the 'secret' (?) which I told you concerning the purple dye is no secret at all, but a very ordinary chemical preparation well known in the trade. Forgive me for deceiving you. I overheard your conversation with the scamp who used you as his tool, and I could not resist my little piece of revenge. The Demaine dye is a secret still, so you may cease fretting about that. My mother, who knows nothing, sends you her love. In a day or two I shall simply tell her that the engagement is dissolved."

Three months after the dispatch of this letter Alan's manager ceased from troubling, for the new firm failed irretrievably.

"Hang it all!" said Hugh to his confidential assistant. "We have got the correct ingredients, man. It must be in the mixing that we fail."

And when his speech found its way to Alan's ears he simply laughed. "It was Delilah who failed," he said to himself, "not the mixing." And then, with a new, glad hope springing in his heart, he joined his sisters and his sisters' friend Monica in the drawing room.—London Sun.

JOKE IN SQUASH GROVE.

They Sang and Then Took the Goods "as Advertised."

The home of the practical joke is the country town, where any addition to the common fund of conversational material is as welcome as a rain after a dry spell. Squash Grove's general store laid in a supply of straw hats. An attractive "line" of them was placed in the window, and the better to catch the bucolic eye they were adorned with a large sign:

THESE HATS GOING FOR A SONG.

Lon Jones, arch wag of Squash Grove, happened to pass that way shortly afterward. He saw the sign and his pace quickened.

Five minutes later he returned with half a dozen followers. Without an explanatory word they rushed up in front of the desk where the proprietor was musing over his accounts. Without waiting for greetings they began, allegro and fortissimo, that venerable relic of the primitive vaudeville stage:

He never came back,
He never came back,
His dear form they saw nevermore,
But how happy they'll be
When his dear form they see,
When they meet on that beautiful shore.

No dialogue followed the completion of the chorus. The marauders rushed to the window, seized a hat apiece and rushed into the street.

The cause of the atrocity was removed from the window at once, but when Squash Grove ceases to talk about that simple joke the present generation will have passed away from the earth.—Chicago Times-Herald.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 25. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—False worship and true.—Math. vi, 1-15.

The words of the topical reference are taken from Christ's sermon on the mount—his inaugural address to his apostles. He spoke the words to warn against the abuse or the false use of worship, having in mind particularly the evil so prevalent and conspicuous in that very land and day of the formalism and hypocrisy of the Pharisees, especially in their praying and almsgiving.

Worship is a natural instinct of human nature. It is a part of human nature. The soul of man always has gone and always will go out in adoration and in praise to some one or to some thing. Men may deny the existence of God, they may curse the churches, they may ridicule the idea of a life beyond the grave, but they can never destroy the instinct of religious worship, because it is a part of man himself. Since we must and will worship, it is evidently important that our worship possess the true characteristics of worship; that it be an uplifting of the soul to God in such a way that it will be well pleasing in God's sight and beneficial to our own spiritual well being.

There is great danger in worship. Worship must be expressed necessarily in forms, and the danger is that it may degenerate into formalism pure and simple. Most false worshipers did not intend, in the start at least, to be hypocritical in their worship. Gradually their worship declined into mere formalism and then was still further degraded into hypocrisy. Even the Pharisees, the type of formalists and hypocrites, may not have intended at the outset to become false worshipers of God. But by the constant use of forms and ceremonies their worship became a mere matter of forms. The same danger lies before all who worship God regularly and statedly, and instead of censuring the Pharisees it would be well for us to be constantly on our guard against pharisaism.

The character of worship depends upon the motive and purpose back of it, the feeling of the inward man toward God. It does not depend upon the time it lasts or the form in which it is expressed. The Pharisees were punctual in worship, they were lengthy in worship, and yet these things did not make their worship acceptable. The purpose and motive back of it were at fault. It was for selfish purposes that they prayed publicly and gave of their wealth to religious objects. It is folly to worship God with the lips when the heart is far from Him. God sees the inmost recesses of the soul. We cannot deceive Him, and it is useless to try to do so. Nor can we often deceive men. We may think we are doing so, but usually we are the ones deceived. Let us cultivate a spirit of true worship. Let us learn to worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness, in sincerity and in truth.

Bible Readings.—Joshua xxiv, 14; Ps xxiv, 1-10; xxix, 1, 2; xcv, 1-11; xcix, 1-5; Isa. vi, 1-4; xxix, 13, 14; Math. iv, 8-10; xv, 7-9; Rom. i, 20-25; Col. ii, 18-23; Rev. iv, 8-11; v, 11-14; ix, 20, 21.

The Remedy For the Evil.

If decreased church attendance is as alarming a factor in our country as alleged, the remedy for the evil is in the hands of the pulpit and the pew, or of those whom the Lord holds responsible for filling His house. Neighbors and friends must be urged to hear the gospel. Kindly interest must be shown in the high and low, in the rich and poor, and a cordial welcome extended to such as may occasionally attend the services. Pastor and people must alike make their influence tell. It is not enough for the one to be in the pulpit to proclaim the gospel or for the other to sit in the pew and hear it, but one and all must live it and make it known by the wayside and in all relations.—Presbyterian.

The Same Christ.

By His miracles, as by His words, Christ proclaimed Himself the divine and only begotten Son of God. In these days of subtle assaults upon the divinity of our Lord, the oncoming host of young Christians need to bury deep in their hearts the intelligent conviction that the Christ of the miracles was none other than the very Christ of God.—William T. Ellis.

Its Progress Upward.

Not every soul can extend in influence right and left, but every soul can extend its progress upward. "It's a small piece of ground," said a householder of his building lot, "but I own all the way up."—Sunday School Times.

Pruning.

True pruning is not mutilating. It is repressing the lower nature to promote our growth in holiness, in Godlikeness, in bearing fruit unto eternal life.—Interior.

Endeavor Briefs.

The Endeavorers of Ireland are developing much enthusiasm over the plan of sending out Irish Endeavorers as missionaries to central China.

A missionary in Turkey, in a Christian Endeavor letter, mentions as a coincidence that she has a daughter born in 1881 whose initials are C. E. And she is a good Endeavorer too.

The Christian Endeavor societies in Mexico are destined to solve largely the difficult question of native self supporting churches.

Christian Endeavor enthusiasm is the same the world over.

Every Endeavorer of the world should take the advice of the editor of Scottish Endeavour, who urges the reading of the model constitution at least once a year.

Christian Endeavor is steadily growing in Wales, and every week sees the organization of one or more new societies.

Summer Furniture

It's an acknowledged fact that half the people of this world don't know how to live comfortably.

The furniture man is always contriving something new to add to comfort and lessen cost. It's far better to discard upholstered furniture these hot days and add a few pieces of new Summer Furniture. It's inexpensive, cool and refreshing, to say nothing of being easy to care for and wonderfully comfortable.

Our Summer Furniture is worthy your inspection. Divans, Rockers and Easy Chairs in grass cloth; Mammouth Rockers and Comfort Chairs in reeds and splints, finished in moss-green and natural; Piazza Rockers and Chairs, Lawn Settees and Hammocks.

Enjoy a comfortable life while you live. Misfortunes may come later, and a life of regrets is the most miserable of all lives to live.

NAPHTHA EXPLOSION.

Four Seamen Killed and Three Fatally Injured at Bridgeport.

Were Employed on Steamer Nutmeg State.

Man Lighted His Pipe In Forecastle Where Vapor Was Used For Cleaning.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 24.—Four men were killed, three fatally injured and several seriously hurt by an explosion on the steamer Nutmeg State last evening. The steamer belongs to the Bridgeport Steamship company's line, and was at her dock at the foot of South street. The damage to the vessel will not exceed $1000.

Immediately following the explosion an alarm of fire was rung in, but the fire was slight and the firemen devoted themselves to assisting the injured. The men killed and injured were all employes on the boat. Following are the names of the dead and wounded:

Patrick Moran, head shattered, killed instantly.

Jerry Conners, leg torn off, internal injuries; died while being taken to the hospital.

Jerry O'Connell, both legs shattered, internal injuries; died at the hospital.

The injured:

Michael Reardon, aged 27, burned about the face and neck, internal injuries; not expected to live.

Patrick Glennon, aged 23, deckhand, thought to be fatally burned.

Michael Maguire, aged 26, probably fatally burned about the face and chest.

Edward Lynch, burned about the face and head.

John Hartwell, seriously burned on the chest, arms and limbs.

John Connolly, burned about the face and chest.

The men were all connected with the boat.

The explosion was probably caused by the igniting of naphtha vapor. When the boat returned from her trip to New York, Burton M. Reed of this city, according to custom, went aboard to clean up the forecastle and sprinkle the beds and mattressses with naphtha vapor, and then left.

The stevedores were eating supper on the "supper" deck, just over the hold, when the explosion occurred, and the men were thrown in all directions against the woodwork. Two of the men were thrown overboard and were rescued uninjured, while none of the others escaped unharmed. The deck under the supper table was blown open at least 10 feet wide, while both sides of the boat, forward of the gangway, were torn into splinters and thrown in all directions. A huge mass of fragments was scattered all over the lower deck and as far back as the engine room all the carpenter work was wrecked.

The officias are reticent as to the direct cause of the explosion. It was first alleged that lightning struck the boat, but it was later ascertained that a deckhand went into the hold to light his pipe, and it is believed that the lighted match in the closed forecastle caused the naptha vapor to explode.

GOING TO KLONDYKE.

Seymour Expedition of Haverhill Made Up. Many Applications to Join.

Haverhill, Mass., July 24.—The Seymour expedition from this city for the Alaskan mining region promises to be a success. It was the original intention to form a party of 10, but 12 applications have been made from parties in this city and over 100 from persons out of town who wish to join. A meeting of the local men was held last evening, and it was decided to start next week. Each of the 10 furnishes $1000, and the profits from their operations will be shared equally The party will go direct to Seattle, then by water to Circle City, then overland to the mining regions.

In addition to the 10 who formed the original company a party of 20 or more will be organized to travel with them, but the latter will work on their individual responsibility after reaching the mining regions. Among those who have applied to join the latter party are the following:

George H. Wesson, 48 Hawthorne street, Chelsea; E. B. Woodbury, 24 Front street, Worcester; J. E. Blair, 4 Westminster street, Providence; C. M. McGrath, 13 North Market street, Boston; C. H. Morley, 555 Tremont street, Boston; C. P. Johnson, National Bank of the Commonwealth, Boston; J. A. Roche, 403 Chamber of Commerce, Boston; J. J. Boucher, New England railroad, Melrose, Conn.; P. J. Welsh, Charlton City; Thomas W. Wordley, 63 Otis street, Boston; J. W. West, with C. H. Robinson & Co., Boston, who will be one of the original 10; Luther B. Fairbrother, 55 Ludlan street, Lowell; George Wetherbee, 53 Dwight street, Boston; Henry B. Wells, 53 Congress street, Boston; William Laughlin, Hotel Westmoreland, Fitchburg; George A. Allen, 316 Lincoln avenue, Cliftondale; Nelson Parker, 1 Beacon street, Boston; J. M. Miller, 796 Tremont street, Boston; Dr. Harry B. Buxton, 123 North Main street, Concord, N. H.; Frank Edminster, 291 Broadway, Everett; T. P. Carr, 290 Cambridge street, Boston; E. H. Maguire, 220 Devonshire street, Boston; James D. King, Newburyport. Scores of other letters have been received, and one telegram from a man in San Francisco, who desires to join the party in Seattle.

ON CHARGE OF ARSON.

Portland Police Arrest Proprietor of Recently Organized Fire Patrol.

Portland, Me., July 24.—The police officials seem to be of the opinion that they have succeeded in fixing the responsibility for one or more of the many incendiary fires which have been set in Portland during the past several months. Late yesterday afternoon Wilber M. Waite was placed under arrest and is now in custody. The officers are very close mouthed about the matter and will give no information, and the only thing known is that the allegation against the prisoner is arson.

Waite came to Portland from Lynn, Mass., some months ago and established a private fire patrol service. He could not make the enterprise pay and finally abandoned it. It has been reported for some time that Waite has been under suspicion in connection with the incendiary fires, and since his arrest it is said that detectives have been shadowing him for some time. Little is known here of the prisoner's record previous to his coming to Portland.

Marshal Sylvester said Waite had been arrested for alleged arson. The marshal said he preferred not to say anything further at present, but all the facts would soon be made public.

Governor Reviewed Troops.

Framingham, Mass., July 24.—The ceremonies at the state camp yesterday were witnessed by fully 15,000 people, the largest crowd that has visited the camp in recent years. The brigade which mustered abuot 2600 men, made a fine appearance as they passed before the governor in review to the quick music of the regimental bands. The Ninth regiment made an especially fine showing. After the review every moment of the afternoon was taken advantage of by some one of the organizations. The Fifth and Eighth regiments put in an hour's hard work at skirmish drill. The Fifth used the Gatling guns. The First battalion of cavalry was out for drill, while Battery A showed the visitors how powder was burned. The regimental dress parades followed, and the Emergency corps gave an interesting exhibition of caring for the sick and wounded, of which Governor Wolcott was an interested spectator. The band of Battery A gave a concert complimentary to the governor and guests, during the afternoon at brigade headquarters. Several military officers from other organizations in the state, also from New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut were present. Camp was broken today.

Lightning's Strange Antics.

Manchester, N. H., July 24.—One of the strangest freaks which lightning ever played in this vicinity occurred yesterday afternoon, when Adolph Becker's house on Warner street was struck and badly wrecked. The bolt struck the chimney and then apparently split up into several parts, each taking a different course. The shingles were torn from the roof and the rafters were split as though with an ax. The sitting room of the upper tenement, occupied by Dennis Gingras, was badly wrecked, and Mrs. Gingras, who was sitting in a chair with a baby in her lap, was thrown heavily to the floor. Both woman and child were slightly cut by flying particles of plaster from the ceiling. The worst damage was done in the lower tenement, where doors were lifted from their hinges, windows were broken, one being torn out, sash and all, and sheathing was torn off. Two beds were totally wrecked. A baby was sleeping in a crib close to one of the shattered doors. No one was injured, and the building was not set afire, although the house was badly damaged and looks as though a small cyclone had played throughout the rooms.

The O'Neil Trial.

Greenfield, Mass., July 24. — John O'Neil, charged with the murder of Hattie McCloud, finds his most dangerous foes among his former prison "pals." One of them, named Davis, testified that while in Greenfield jail last February O'Neil made a confession to him of complicity in the murder, but charging that the principal in the affair was one O'Connell. Yesterday another convict coming direct from Charlestown prison gave similar testimony. His name is Richard Schenck, and his words caused almost as great sensation as those of Davis did. He was not cross-examined. O'Neil showed no surprise or excitement, but the impression which the appearance o. the man made in the courtroom was unmistakable.

Moose Killed Out of Season.

Kineo, Me., July 24.—Game Warden Pollard, with Guide Clarence Marris, went to Cauconagonoc lake, where a party of 14 students and three teachers are in camp. On Wednesday, near the head of the lake, a bear was found feeding on the carcass of a cow moose. The head and feet had been cut off and the carcass sunk in the lake, but it afterwards rose and came ashore. According to a report brought in from the woods members of the camping party are said to have known about the killing, and as a result Game Warden Nichols put them under arrest and will bring them to town today or Monday. The penalty of killing a cow moose out of season is four months' imprisonment.

Wier. Festival Ended.

The Weirs, N. H., July 24.—The eighth annual musical festival of the New Hampshire Music Teachers' association has ended, the closing day being one of the best ever known in this state. Some of the best talent in New England participated in programs which were arranged by a master hand. The festival was the most successful of any yet held, and the attendance was way beyond expectation. The association elected officers as follows: President, Charles S. Whitehouse, Rochester; secretary, Burton T. Scales, Dover; assistant secretary, Miss Anna L. Melendy, Nashua; treasurer, F. E. Whitney, Rochester.

Andrews May Not Go.

Providence, July 24.—Last night there was a rumor in the air that after all Professor Andrews may not leave Brown university. It is rumored that a compromise is possible, and liable to come at an early date. One of the members of the corporation says that it was not intended that the correspondence which had passed between Dr. Andrews and the corporation should be made public, the inference being that it was supposed to be held subject to still further consideration.

New Bedford Clothiers Assign.

New Bedford, Mass., July 24.—Ashley & Peirce, leading clothiers of this city, have made an assignment. No statement of assets or liabilities given. The senior partner of the firm is Charles S. Ashley, mayor, who is now confined to his home suffering from the injury to his head sustained by falling from his bicycle on July 6. Mayor Ashley's physicians have advised that he be taken to the country, which will probably be done.

Proposed Tax Unwarranted.

Waterville, Me., July 24.—In an exhaustive report Attorney General W. T. Haines answers the governor and council upon the question "Whether the federal government has the right to call on the Maine state liquor commissioner to pay a tax?" He states therein that the state liquor agent is a state official, executing the policy power of the state, and that there is no warrant in the constitution for the proposed tax.

THE LAPP'S SNOWSHOES.

He Can Easily Travel Ten Miles an Hour on Them.

For many months in the year in the north of Scandinavia the snow lies deep and frozen over the surface of the earth. Ordinary walking is not possible, as with every step the weight of the body would cause one to sink deep down into the treacherous snow, and the fatigue would not only be terrible, but the risk to life would be enormous. Therefore the young Lapp has to learn as soon as possible the art of walking on snowshoes, a much more difficult matter than you may be inclined to suppose.

The Lapp snowshoes are made of fir wood, pointed and slightly upturned at either end. They are a third of an inch thick in the center, which is the thickest part, 4 or 5 inches wide and vary in length from 7 to 14 feet. In the center is a loop through which the foot is passed, and the wearer is furnished with two wooden staves with iron spikes at the ends, which he holds, one in each hand, and by which he can help to push himself forward. The feet have to be slightly raised one after the other, and the motion is gliding and swift, a Laplander easily traveling from 10 to 15 miles an hour when the snow is crisp and in good condition.

The greatest difficulty is found in ascending and descending steep hills. The ascent is made in zigzag and is very hard work to those who are not used to it. In the descent the feet have to be kept quite still and close together and the body bent well forward, while the traveler guides his course with a long staff, which he sticks into the snow now on one side and now on the other. The speed is very great, and no one could thus come down a mountain side who had not been in the habit of wearing snowshoes from his childhood upward. Any one who has not been used to do so has to ride on a staff, leaning heavily upon it, so as to decrease the speed, and keeping the feet quite close together. Even this is not at all easy, and the traveler may suddenly lose his balance, fall headlong into the deep snow, and rise to see his snowshoes far below him at the bottom of the mountain side.

The Lapps, however, have great skill in the use of snowshoes, and it is surprising to see how much at home even young children are upon them, leaping and guiding themselves among the great bowlder stones on the hillsides and lake shores.

Before putting on snowshoes the feet are wrapped round with a thick layer of "shoe grass," an herb which has the rare quality of preserving heat. The reindeer boot is put on the top of this, and, slipping his foot into the band of his snowshoe, the Lapp is then ready for his journey or hunting expedition, as the case may be, for so rapidly can he move on these shoes that he can pursue and capture on them the wolf, the glutton or any other beast of prey which may threaten his herds. His short, vigorous frame is well fitted for all such exercises, and there is not a freer, happier creature in the world than the Lapp, speeding along through the clear frosty air of his northern land upon his swift, trusty snowshoes.

Shipbuilding as a Trade.

As contracts are made at the present day the shipbuilder is bound to turn out a ship complete in every detail—in fact, a ship generally goes straight out of the builder's hands on its first voyage. This involves an enormous and varied amount of detail work. First there is the designing, which involves the nicest knowledge of mathematics. Then the steel parts of the ship are built. Many shipbuilding firms even manufacture their own steel, and the cutting and bending and riveting of the vast iron plates require a very accurate knowledge of the higher developments of the blacksmith's art. Then follows the launching, a task in itself requiring the utmost precision. The ship then passes to the engineers and the boilermakers. In each case the knowledge of this part of shipbuilding is a trade in itself. The vessel now passes into the hands of the joiners and carpenters, and ship's joinery is far cleverer and more skillful than anything required on shore. At last, after a final cleaning and painting, the vessel is ready to put to sea. These are some of the more obvious of the trades with which a competent shipbuilder must be familiar. Incidentally he must have a great knowledge of finance, for it is no easy task to regulate the pecuniary affairs of a large shipyard, with 2,000 or 3,000 workmen and a wages bill of about $1,000,000 a year. His dealings with foreign nations render it advisable to have some knowledge of the mercantile law of nearly all lands, and the wide range of his purchases involves an acquaintance with the prices and markets of every trade.

What the Clock Says.

"Tick," the clock says, "tick, tick, tick!
What you have to do, do quick.
Time is gliding fast away.
Let us act and act today.

"When your mother speaks, obey.
Do not loiter, do not stay.
Wait not for another tick—
What you have to do, do quick."

THE BLOODHOUND.

A Gentle, Faithful Animal and a Fine Watchdog.

Probably no species of the dog family is so little understood as the bloodhound. While many traits are held by dogs in common, the bloodhound alone can perform the duties of a detective police by his scent. It is doubtless true that the finest specimens of this remarkable dog are to be found in England, as they are thought to excel all others in swiftness, spirit and endurance. A well formed bloodhound is usually about two feet high, with regular limbs, round feet of a moderate size, a wide breast, deep chest, a broad back and bushy tail. The head is rather small than otherwise, and the proper color a reddish tan.

In the old wars between England and Scotland—the days of Wallace and of Bruce—these dogs were much used.

It is said that Bruce was repeatedly tracked by bloodhounds, and only escaped on one occasion by wading the distance of a bow shot down a brook, thus breaking the scent.

A sure way to stop a dog was to spill blood on his track. Wallace, with 16 followers, was once hotly pursued by the English with bloodhounds. One of his men refusing to go farther, Wallace in anger struck off his head. The dogs came up and stopped where the bleeding body had fallen, and Wallace thus escaped capture.

The scent of these animals is very keen. As a recorded instance it is stated that their unerring instinct was once tested by allowing a man an hour's start, when, after a chase of 1½ hours, the hound ran up to a tree where the man was, 15 miles distant from the place of starting.

The Cuban bloodhound is very ferocious, and it is this breed that the southern planter probably used in pursuing his slaves. We are told that in the year 1795, when an insurrection was fiercely raging in Jamaica, 100 of these dogs were sent from Havana to quell it, and so terrific was their action at the sound of a gun that the maroons, or fugitive slaves, against whom they were to act, capitulated at once.

While we shudder at these stories let us not forget that the natural disposition of these dogs is very gentle; that they are faithful and attached to their masters, making excellent watchdogs and never showing the ferocity of their nature unless irritated. To man, then, we must attribute all the sorrows which these dogs have occasioned and learn that the brute is only a brute when his lowest passions are brought out and exercised.

A Good Pocket Piece.

Among the passengers drowned from the Henry Clay, which was burned on the Hudson a number of years ago, was the Hon. Stephen Allen, who had been mayor of New York. In his pocketbook was found the following printed slip, so worn as to show that its owner frequently read it:

"Keep good company or none. Never be idle. If your hands can't be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always tell the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person, look him in the face. Good company and conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speak evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to get rich if you would prosper. Small and steady gains give competency with a tranquil mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young, to spend when you are old. Read over the above maxims at least once a week."

A Brave Girl.

A young English lady, Miss Grace Vernon Bussell, only 16 years old, showed remarkable courage and presence of mind.

Hearing of a boat being capsized, Miss Bussell rode on horseback down a steep cliff at full speed to the scene of the disaster. She rode her horse into the sea and succeeded in reaching the boat, accompanied by her servant, and, with as many women and children clinging to her and her horse as possible, she made for the shore and placed them in safety. The Royal Humane society rewarded the brave girl a silver medallion and a bronze medallion to her servant, who saved a man.

Forgiveness.

When a poor little deaf and dumb boy was asked the meaning of "forgiveness," he paused a moment, then taking his pen he wrote, "It is the odor which the trampled flower gives out to bless the foot that crushed it."

Trolley Patent Off.

A New York dispatch of yesterday says, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday gave a decision which makes it possible for any trolley company to run cars without paying $100 royalty to the General Electric Company for the use of the $7.50 apparatus which extends from the top of the car to the overhead wire. The decision is considered by electrical concerns as most important, as it declares as invalid the last of the valuable patents which the big electric trust controls. The decision was written by Judge Wallace, all of the judges concurring. He holds that the Van Depoele trolley patent is invalid by reason of the same invention having been described and disclosed in an earlier patent to Van Depoele.

No trolley company heretofore could use the iron arm, with its copper wheel at the top, its set of springs at the bottom and the connecting wires, without using the General Electric Company's goods or paying the royalty of $100. As a large company may have many cars, this became a very considerable item of expense.

Squantum Extension.

At the hearing Friday afternoon in Lawyer Schofield's office on the petition for an injunction there were present: President Graham and Treasurer Smith of the street railway, Herbert T. Whitman, Everett Pope, Mr. and Mrs. N. V. Titus, B. F. Thomas and chairman Nickerson of the Committee on Streets of the City Council.

It was nearly 3 o'clock before the hearing was called owing to the non arrival of Counsel Orcutt. Just as the hearing was about to commence the counsel for the respondent objected to the presence of newspaper reporters. Mr. Orcutt had no objection, but as one of the counsel objected Mr. Schofield requested that no report be made of the proceedings.

Lost Her Hat.

A young girl with a child in her arms jumped from a car into the gutter at Quincy Point Friday night and dropped the baby and came near falling onto it. When the car which was an inward one crossed the bridge the girls hat blew off and she began to cry. The car had not gone far before she signaled it to stop, and as soon as it did so she jumped off on the left side into the gutter and walked back for her hat. This gave rise to a rumor that there was an accident, but passengers on the car say that it had stopped when the girl jumped.

Letter Box Frauds.

The clever plan which was tried in Quincy of selling letter boxes to householders under misrepresentation, has reached Concord, N. H., where it has also been exposed. First Assistant Postmaster General Heath telegraphed to Postmaster Moore of Concord: "Circular misquotes regulations. Extract from postmaster-general's order refers to combination collection and delivery box system, which has not yet been extended to Concord. Boxes referred to in the circular are not approved by the department."

Quincy Granite.

The granite corporation which was talked so strongly in the Board of Trade last winter has not been allowed to die out, but is only waiting until the tariff question is settled. The matter is of too much importance to rush through in a hurry and it will probably be late in the fall before much is done toward the forming of the corporation.

Smaller Postal Cards.

The specifications for the new postal card contract calls for two smaller sizes: one small enough to go inside of the ordinary envelopes, and one mainly for use of librarians who supply other libraries with data, which can be used as a card index.

THE BUILDING FUND.

A Pleasing Entertainment at Wollaston—Flag Drill a Feature.

The entertainment at Odd Fellows' hall, Wollaston, Thursday evening under the auspices of the Ladies Social Circle, in aid of the Wollaston M. E. church building fund, was a success both financially and socially.

The attendance was large considering the bad weather. The programme included selections by Robinson's orchestra, reading by Mrs. W. H. White, vocal duet by Mr. C. W. Page and his daughter, Julie M. Page; flag drill by twenty-four young misses, Miss Addie M. Briggs, drill master; and tableaux by the children. All numbers were encored.

Much credit is due Mrs. Carrie Colgan, Mrs. M. H. White and Miss Briggs for the first drilling of the children and success of the whole entertainment.

Ice cream and cake were served, the tables being under the charge of Mrs. W. C. Saunders, president of the L. S. C., aided by Mrs. and Miss Burrell, Mrs. and Miss J. M. Ransom, Mrs. A. A. Hirtle, Mrs. R. F. Ross, Mrs. R. B. Smith, Miss Jennie Kay, Miss Bertha Baker, Miss Tena Baker, Mr. W. J. Thompson, Mr. W. R. Campbell.

The following named little misses, took part in the flag drill, Miss Briggs making a stately Goddess of Liberty: Misses Mildred Colgan, Bulah Miller, Florence Waite, May Belle Crook, Edithe Tripp, Jessie Rey, Bertha Badger, Grace Mehaffey, Ethel Jordan, Fannie Keith, Eva Sheldon, Carrie Hewitson, Maud Charlton, Inez Titus, Mabel Loughead, Mabel Hastings, Alice Kenyon, Christina Fowler, Ida Brown, Laura Smith, Margret Havlin, Frances Sanders, Winnifred Backus, Lois Wetherall.

NOT WEBSTERIAN.

Who Will Show Adams House Quotation in a Book.

The LEDGER objects to the legend over the door of the Historical Society's cottage on two grounds:

First,—It is not grammatical.

Second,—It is not Websterian.

Why the phrase, "their names liveth," is not grammatically correct, any school boy ought to be able to tell.

In good faith the LEDGER believes that Webster never wrote the complete sentence which purports to be a quotation. To establish the fact that he did write it (if this is possible) we offer a prize of three months' subscription to the DAILY LEDGER to the first school boy or girl who shall refer to the quotation in volume and page of any known edition of Webster's works. Hunt up the quotation:

"Adams and Jefferson are no more, their bodies are buried in peace but their names liveth forevermore."—Daniel Webster.

Last of Manchester Races.

The Little Peter lost the Friday race at Manchester by nine seconds to the Elfreda, and the Asahi was over three minutes behind. Snipe II won in the second open class with Romance second, the Hoodlum being disabled. In the second cabin class the order was Muriel, Privateer, Nettie and Clara, and the five knockabouts were closely bunched in this order: Sally III, Gosling, Cock Robin, Jacobin and Fly. The Rooster broke down in the third class and the order was: Vamoose, Wrinkle and Arab.

The Vitesse led the Fantasy, Alpine and Circe in the fourth class. The judges after the race decided the protests of the Mongoose against the Gosling in Wednesday's race against the Mongoose, and dismissed the protest of the Fantasy against Circe.

A match of the best two out of three races has been arranged between Hoodlum and Cock Robin, under jib and mainsail rig, to take place over the Corinthian course before Labor day.

Yachting Fixtures.

Today the Wollaston Yacht club and Squantum club have races. The Beverly club will have open sweepstake races off Monument beach, the Burgess club a ladies race off Marblehead, and the Winthrop club an evening race. Sunday the Winthrop club will cruise to Nahant.

Red Men at Braintree.

Nahanton tribe of South Braintree entertained the other tribes in this district last evening. Six tribes were represented and a most pleasant evening was spent in various Red Man diversions. The Chiefs-elect were raised up by Wm. A. Jordon, D. G. S., assisted by J. F. Gardner of Campello, as D. G. P., I. F. Berrill of Milford, D. G. S. S., W. B. Stetson of Middleboro, D. G. J. S., and J. P. Hicks of Brockton, G. M.

After the ceremony, corn and venison served and long talks were made for the good of the order, by the Great Chief and visitors. All tribes in the district are reported as in a flourishing condition.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Hilda Clarke, it is understood, will resume the prima donna roles with the Bostonians.

Frank Daniels will be seen next season in a new comic opera, "The Idol's Eye," by Harry B. Smith and Victor Herbert.

Robert Mantell will present at Philadelphia Sept. 6 for the first time "A Royal Warrant," an original romantic play by W. A. Tremayne.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson's repertory for next season will include "Rip Van Winkle," "Cricket on the Hearth" and "Lend Me Five Shillings."

Fred Hallen is to have his own vaudeville company next season. Lew Dockstader, Josephine Sabel and Mollie Fuller are among his star names.

Lotta Crabtree is visiting Nellie McHenry at her home at the Highlands of Navesink. Miss McHenry will revive next season one of Lotta's successes.

Palmer Cox will appear next season as a monologuist with "The Brownies," incidentally making charcoal drawings of the quaint little people of his imagination.

Mrs. George Knight will resume the stage and begin her season in November in a new comedy which is being written for her by George Hoey and Will Block.

Julia Arthur will present next season Robert Buchanan's "A Nine Days' Queen," in addition to Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's "A Lady of Quality."

Princess Maud of Wales, whom we now know as Princess Charles of Denmark, has just written a comedietta which has been accepted by Sir Henry Irving for the Lyceum.

In 141 years, from 1751 to 1890, there were 753 theaters burned down, killing no less than 7,000 people. In the list of these fires London is first, with 87; Paris next, with 34; New York third, with 30.

Somehow in this weather the search for the north pole doesn't seem so ridiculous.—New York Press.

A Connecticut couple are going to the arctic regions on their honeymoon. Here's hoping they'll have an ice time.—Philadelphia North American.

"I can tell you something that will curdle your blood in your veins and freeze your very marrow." "Good! Let's have it quick!"—Chicago Record.

How pleasant it is to sit in the shade of a spreading tree just outside the hayfield and watch the perspiring farmers spreading hay.—Somerville Journal.

If the season for the fellow who rocks in a joke has begun, what makes the case more serious is there always being others in the same boat.—Philadelphia Times.

Abdul Hamid makes a sorry looking Ajax, but we suppose he has his own reasons for defying the lightning of the powers.—Philadelphia North American.

It may be said in commendation of the various schemes to reach the north pole that the literature about them conveys a soothing reminder that it is cold weather somewhere.—Washington Star.

Never drink when you are heated; never drink when you are exercising; never drink when you are thinking; never drink when you are thirsty—where's the office boy with that ice water?—Brooklyn Eagle.

They say that a hot wave insures a number of suicides, but the chances are that a man who kills himself on that account will later make up his mind that he was "not so warm," after all.—Richmond Times.

SOME ANSWERS.

The principal of one of our largest public schools sends us a few of the answers written during the late test examination:

Fourth Year Grade.—A person who has no brain hasn't anything, and a person who has a brain has everything.

Third Year Grade.—Question. Which is the most important animal food for children? First Answer. The most important animal food for children is pig. Second Answer. The most important animal food for children is cows.

Question. What is breathing? Answer. Breathing is air and makes you storm.

Question. Name some of the things which should be more frequently eaten. Answer. Watermelon, pigs' feet, cow, dear, May apples, harmony, nuts.

Question. What is blood? Answer. Blood is the substance which we eat, and it runs all about.

Question. Which is the most important of our senses? First Answer. The most important of our senses is eyesight, because our minds are our noses and mouths. Second Answer. Talking is the most important of our senses.

An eighth year grade pupil closed an enumeration of products with "lumber and other small vegetables."—New Orleans Times-Democart.

TOWN TOPICS.

A Pittsburg man says that for three months he got no regular sleep. He ought to move to Philadelphia. — Doylestown Republican.

Since New York officially pulled itself together Chicago has advanced no pretensions of rivalry, and her conceit, striking in, may be the cause of the epidemic of suicide with which she is just now afflicted.—New York Tribune.

A Chicago man is under arrest charged with having stolen a two story house and moved it a mile. In his hurry he must have forgotten to take up the planks as he went along, and thus left a clew for the police.—Cleveland Leader.

It pays to be clean. Since the New Yorkers have begun to sweep their streets and supervise the sanitary condition of some of the fouler quarters of the city they have effected a saving of 10,000 lives per year and pulled down their annual death rate from 26.95 to 19.63 per 1,000.—Philadelphia Record.

BUSINESS PRINTING.

All printed matter is advertising matter.

If good stationery will assist in making bad business good, why should it not all the more make a good business better?

It is true that the swindler engraves his stationery and gives the nicest care to the outward appearance of his business. What if he does?

The billhead, the letter head, the business card and the envelope are articles of advertising, and yet must not be reckoned as advertising mediums.

Commercial stationery may be likened to commercial clothing, and as men are judged by the clothes they wear, so may the house be judged by the stationery it uses.—Hardware.

Barber Shop to Move.

Gabriel A. Pelos, the successor of C. C. Mueller, will remove on Sept. 1 his barber shop to the rooms now occupied by George Ames the plumber, in the same building. The new quarters will be fitted up in first class manner; a new floor will be laid, new plate glass windows put in, and all the woodwork painted white. He will also have city water and new furniture, and has ordered a new eight foot sign. Mr. Pelos has given evidence that he intends to conduct a first class barber shop, neat, clean and attractive, having fixed up his present quarters with good taste. By the leasing of the building to the Y. M. C. A. he is compelled to make a change, but it may be for the better.

It was the intention to call the shop the Y. M. C. A. hair dressing parlor, but the association objects.

—A masonry bridge with spans of 40, 70 and 40 feet will be built across lake Quinsigamond at Worcester. The sum of $62,500 was appropriated, but a plan calls for a $120,000 structure.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

of reaching us—send your maid, or your child, or your neighbor's child, or come yourself.

It's all the same to us.

You're sure, in any case, that your order will be treated with courteous promptness, and that the price on each article will be "right."

Nevertheless, we suggest that you have one of our wagons call regularly—taking your orders and later delivering the goods.

However, we don't want you to absent yourself altogether—come in often enough to catch the inspiration of a well-kept grocery store. But let our wagons do most of the work—that's what they're for.

Every article in our stock is marked when put on sale, so no one buys less than another, except of course in large quantities, when a discount is made.

Our system of delivery is perfect, covering all parts of Quincy, and orders received by mail or otherwise will be promptly delivered. To those who do not find it convenient to come to our store and who do not care to have wagon call, we will supply addressed postal cards to send orders on.

We would solicit special trial order of our TEAS, COFFEE and FLOUR, as we know we can please you if you will give us a chance to try.

The Local Paper a Nuisance.

A town officer not far distant made the remark a few days ago that the local papers were the "biggest nuisance in the community."

Now why does he make such a statement? Is it because the local paper works for everything that indicates progress? Is it because the local paper attempts to stop the illegal sale of liquor? Is it because it tries to bring criminals to justice?

Is it because it works for good schools, good roads, and good citizenship? Is it because the paper does a part of the work that the town officials are expected to do? Or is it because it dares to point out where the official fails in his duty.

KITES UP A MILE.

Sport on Blue Hill Which the Boys Would Enjoy.

There would have been more Quincy people make the pilgrimage to Blue hill and the reservation yesterday had they known that another attempt would be made to break the record in kite flying. The Boston Advertiser describes the trial graphically.

At 10.30 A. M leaders of the long line, two kites of the Hargraves model—improved by Clayton—known to be good flyers, were bent on, each of the leaders being six feet in height and with a surface exposed to the wind of about twenty square feet.

Each kite was supplied with a leading string, and at the junction of these was suspended the meteorological instrument, a new one purchased of Richard Freres of Paris, who are now making light instruments for this especial work.

Below the instrument, at a suitable distance to take up the slack of the line, was attached a keeled kite, and then down the line a number of other kites, some of them one pattern and some of the other.

An hour after the raising of the first kite, and when there were five kites in the air, the angle of the leader, as measured with the theodolite, indicated a mile of vertical height above the country.

At this time it seemed probable that the previous record was about to be raised, for the angle that the kites made with the horizon was a good one. But later in the day the power of the upper currents seemed to fail, and, although more wire was paid out, the kites did not gain much in height. At 2 P. M. there was about 6,000 meters of wire in the air, the height of the kites being reckoned at about 7,500 feet, a mile and two fifths.

At this time there were six kites in line and the pull of the group was altogether not far from 100 lbs. Although the highest flight of kites exceeds this one by a fraction of a mile, still the present one has been successful in all of its details and is certain to yield valuable additional knowledge of the conditions of the atmosphere a mile above the level of the country.

This kiteflying has been a part of the duties of the assistants at the observatory, whenever the weather conditions have allowed it, for about three years; ever since Mr. Eddy first came here to try the effect of the altitude and isolation of the hill on his kites.

So devoted and intelligent have been the observers, Clayton and Ferguson, that no small part of the advance in the forms of kites and methods of flying has been due to them; while to Mr. Rotch, who has freely permitted the investigation along these new lines to proceed, science is greatly indebted.

The kite-flying of the present year can be carried on under more favorable conditions than heretofore, for an engine has been provided which will save to the men the most laborious parts of the work. The new engine pulls in the kites at the rate of a mile or a mile and a half an hour.

The annual taxes of the world aggregate the enormous sum of $5,437,500,000.

BACKACHE

makes the young feel old, and the old feel that life is not worth the living. It's a danger signal of Kidney Disease—the unerring evidence of weak, inactive and sore Kidneys. Any person cured of Kidney weakness will tell you that when the back ceased to ache, all troubles ended. Neither liniments, nor plasters, nor electricity can cure it. The seat of the trouble is not in the skin, flesh or muscles. It's in the Kidneys.

MAINE MAN LYNCHED.

John Sargent, Formerly of Machias, Said to Have Met Violent Death.

He Was Robert Ray Hamilton's Companion.

Vague Report That Wyomine Mob Avenged Cruelty to Mrs. Sargent.

Machias, Me., July 24.—A report just received here from Wyoming states that John D. Sargent of this place has been lynched by a mob in the region of Jackson's Hole. The news has created a profound sensation here, where Sargent was born and has resided until within a few years. His father is Henry Sargent of this place, a prominent citizen and proprietor of the Machias iron foundry. Leander H. Crane, one of the leading merchants of this town, is the father-in-law of the man who is said to have come to his death in this untoward fashion.

Attendant circumstances make the case one of more than local interest. John Sargent's name was prominently before the public at the time of the sensational disappearance of Robert Ray Hamilton, the well known New Yorker, a few years ago. Sargent was Hamilton's friend and intimate companion on the Wyoming ranch near which the Hamilton tragedy occurred. At the time there was an allegation that Sargent was in a position to know more about the case than he had seen fit to make pubic, and there has been a mystery in the relations of the two men that has never been satisfactorily cleared up.

Since Hamilton's death Sargent has lived on the ranch, except for occasional visits to the East. His wife, who was Miss Addie Crane of Machias, has resided there with him. Sargent, who is related to the Hemmingway family of Boston, has received generous remittances from the East, both from his people and from his wife's relatives.

But from time to time there have come reports that the young wife was not receiving all the care and attention that were due her.

It appears that two soldiers who were passing the Sargent ranch noticed some suspicious circumstances, and made inquiries of one of the five Sargent children. From what they learned they decided that interference was demanded, and they reported their case on their arrival at Jachson's Hole. Several settlers there, accompanied by two ladies, made the trip to the ranch and investigated.

As a result of what they found they removed Mrs. Sargent and the children, although the husband protested. The wife was very sick, and apparently suffering from lack of suitable care and proper medical attention. She was conveyed to Jackson's Hole on a sledge, and, though everything possible was done for her, she died and was interred at Jackson's Hole.

The reports that came from parties that corresponded with the Machias relatives stated that the settlers were incensed at Sargent, and had made threats of personal violence. It was also reported on the authority of the nurse and the physician who attended Mrs. Sargent that she had made a statement to be used after her death, in which she made some important declarations regarding the Hamilton case.

A few weeks ago, shortly after the death of his wife, John Sargent came East to Portland, and his father went on from Machias and met him there. After a conference the son went back to Wyoming. He told his father that he had been misrepresented in the earlier reports. His relatives, however, frankly declare that they are unable to credit all his disclaimers.

Poor Cuba!

London, July 24.—The correspondent of The Daily Chronicle in Sagua la Grande, province of Santa Clara, Cuba, writes to his paper a terrible account of the position of affairs in the island. Both the government troops and the insurgents, he says, are suffering horribly from famine and the ravages of smallpox and yellow fever, while butcheries of prisoners, after inquisitorial tortures are of daily occurrence if the victims be suspected of withholding information. Captain General Weyler, the correspondent says, has shown neither mercy nor quarter and has turned the campaign in Cuba into a near approach to that of the Duke of Alva in Holland in the Sixteenth century.

Bicycle Races at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 24.—The electric light bicycle meet at the Driving park last night was successful, as an attendance of 1200 attested. The feature was the five-mile pursuit race between H. E. Caldwell of Manchester, champion of the state, and Tom Barnabee of Revere, Mass., which was run in 12:39, Caldwell winning by 2 seconds. E. A. McDuffee gave a fine exhibition of speed n the one mile professional riding against a stiff breeze.

Fight a Draw.

San Francisco, July 24.—George Dixon of Boston and Dal Hawkins of the Pacific slope, met last night in a 20-round go for the championship of the world at the Mechanics' pavilion, and the contest was declared a draw after one of the fastest and hardest fights ever seen on this side of the Rockies. Both men were in perfect condition, and though Hawkins weighed three pounds more than the little colored wonder, the latter was able to hold his own.

Rush For Beer Stamps.

St. Louis, July 24.—The rush of St. Louis brewers to buy beer stamps before the new tariff bill goes into effect has exhausted the supply and the authorities have ordered an additional $600,000 worth from Washington. A similar amount was on hand when the run began early in the week. Of this amount $161,000 worth was taken by one firm of brewers, who have applied for more.

Senator Clark Ill.

Washington, July 24.—Senator Clark of Wyoming was taken suddenly sick at the Capitol yesterday with a severe attack of stomach trouble. He fainted, but was soon revived, and was taken home.

CONFIDENCE CONTINUES.

Belief In Revival of Fall Trade Appears to Be Well Founded.

New York, July 24.—Bradstreet's says: The widespread confidence that there will be a marked revival in general trade in the fall continues to grow, and with it material evidence that it is well founded.

Chicago jobbers in clothing, dry goods and shoes, and manufacturers, there and elsewhere, of pianos, organs, wagons and farm implements, report that the fall business has begun, which is much earlier than usual. The distribution of general merchandise from St. Louis is a little less active, although trade there is favorable. Like reports are received from Pittsburg, notwithstanding dullness in iron and steel; Savannah, in spite of this being the busy season on plantations, Omaha, Milwaukee, Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul, where merchants are feeling the influence of a prospectively large crop of wheat, and from Galveston and other points in Texas on the favorable crop outlook, and confidence in an increased movement of merchandise next fall. Demand for supplies for shipment to the Klondyke gold region has made July the busiest instead of the dullest month in the commercial year at Seattle, and has had an influence on sales of staples at Tacoma, Portland and San Francisco.

Bank clearings throughout the United States continue to indicate a comparatively large volume of transactions, the total amounting to $1,098,000,000 this week, 6.4 per cent more than last week and 10 per cent more than in the third week of July, 1896.

Unfavorable features include the continuance of the strike of bituminous coal miners in the Western and Southern states, which now begins to threaten the continued activity of industries dependent upon that variety of fuel, the practical stagnation of the Bessemer pig iron and steel billet markets, with prices as low as ever known, the shutting down of New England cotton mill machinery to reduce the output and get rid of stocks on hand and the unsatisfactory condition of the woolen goods market, owing to the relatively low prices of products compared with quotations for raw material.

There are 220 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, as compared with 247 last week, 280 in the week a year ago, 239 in the week two years ago, 237 three years ago and 489 in the corresponding period in 1893.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week amount to 1,978,828 bushels, an increase of about 456,000 bushels, compared with last week, for which shipments from the ports of New York and Baltimore are largely responsible. Exports of Indian corn amount to 2,298,379 bushels this week, contrasted with 2,723,000 bushels last week.

The Colonels by a mighty effort succeeded in defeating the Bostons yesterday in one of the most interesting games seen here this season. Many brilliant plays were made by both teams, the most prominent being Clarke's throw from the left field fence to the home plate, retiring Duffy, and the fielding of Clingman and Stafford.

Kington Accepts Library Gift.

Kingston, N. H., July 24.—At a town meeting last night the citizens voted to accept the $10,000 library, the gift of J. Howard Nichols of Boston. A site has been selected, which has a frontage of 115 feet on the principal thoroughfare of the town. The building will be built at once, and of either stone or brick. The trustees of Sanborn seminary have also voted to remove their library to the new building.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Senators Will Vote on the Tariff Bill at 3 O'Clock Today.

Morgan Surprised Colleagues by Making Motion.

Teller Attacks the Bill and Refers to the Brown University Affair.

Washington, July 24.—By tonight the new tariff bill will have become a law.

A few minutes after 6 o'clock last evening the senate, by unanimous consent agreed that the final vote on the bill should be taken at 3 o'clock this afternoon. That is the happy solution of what at one time yesterday looked like a genuine old-fashioned filibuster and an indefinite postponement of the vote.

The proposition for the final vote came most unexpectedly from Democratic sources, the senior senator from Alabama, Mr. Morgan, presenting it. It was greeted with shouts of "good, good," from senators on the Republican side, who for the first time saw the path clear for the final enactment of the tariff bill.

Mr. Morgan's proposition was coupled with one that the senate meet at 10 a. m today in order that speeches may be heard before the vote is taken. This was accepted as a whole, and the agreement was formally announced. Mr. Morgan expressed profound reluctance in submitting the proposition, but said he recognized the right of the majority to register their will.

Senator Teller of Colorado delivered a lengthy and carefully prepared speech against the tariff bill as a whole.

The senator said he had not found a man in the senate who was satisfied with the pending bill, except, perhaps, the Republican members of the committee, and certainly was the limit of those who approved the measure. It was a caucus bill, the caucus ruling never before and in only one instance being overruled. The bill was, he asserted, full of absurdities and inequalities, if not of crime. It was vicious, unfair, extravagant and unsatisfactory bill. And yet, if a measure had been brought before the senate in proper form, a just bill and not one for trusts and syndicates, there were enough votes in the senate to pass it, even if every Democratic vote was recorded against it.

Mr. Teller spoke sarcastically of the reports that the president would recommend the creation of a currency commission. The senator, in indignant tones, said he resented the suggestion that the president would say to congress: "Authorize me to pick out a commission of 10 men to tell you what to do on the financial question." The American people were not yet ready to turn over the great monetary question to a commission or to the Indianapolis convention. He believed the people themselves would settle that question and settle it rightly in 1900.

Mr. Teller next referred to the enforced resignation of President Andrews because of his advocacy of the free coinage of silver, which he denounced as one of the most shameful acts of abasement the world had ever seen.

"Thank God," said he in impassioned tones, "that President Andrews was big enough to require to be stifled."

The trustees of that university declared that President Andrews was not in accord with the views of the great patrons of that institution. This demonstrated, said Mr. Teller, the methods which those millionaires who had grown rich by robbery and jobbery, pursued. Their influence compelled the trustees of a great educational institution to force from the head of the institution an eminent educator because his continuance might alienate some of the patrons of the college.

He characterized it as one of the most infamous chapters in 100 years of our history, not because a famous educator had been turned out, but because it showed the trend of public opinion in the direction of destroying that freedom of thought upon which our government was founded. In conclusion, Mr. Teller announced that he had no desire to return to the folds of the Republican party. The galleries broke into loud applause as the Colorado senator took his seat.

Senators White (Cal.), Pettus (Ala.) and Mantle (Mont.) also spoke against the bill.

Mr. Allen (Neb.) reviewed what he called the remarkable things of this remarkable extra session. He referred to the inaction of the house of representatives, its meetings only twic a week, due, he declared, to the course of the speaker of the house in managing affairs as "suckers" were strung on a string.

Speaker Reed was on the floor when Mr. Allen began and for a time listened apparently without more than passing interest. Mr. Allen spoke of the large campaign funds raised last fall and the influence it had in corrupting the vote of Ohio, Illinois and other states.

Mr. Foraker interrupted Mr. Allen to assert that the election in Ohio was an honest one, and that the Nebraska senator was slandering his (Allen's) native state. A sharp dialogue between the Ohio and Nebraska senators followed, during which some pointed remarks were made.

Adjournment Tonight.

Washington, July 24.—Congress probably will adjourn its extra session tonight. This opinion is held by most congressmen, and unless an unexpected obstacle presents itself the opinion will be verified. It is intended that the house shall first adopt the final adjournment resolution, and though some objection may arise in the senate to its immediate consideration this is not expected to be prolonged. Speaker Reed will announce his committees today.

Germany Also Wants Hawaii.

London, July 24.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail says that Germany protested to the United States against the annexation of Hawaii by the latter country. Germany, the correspondent says, desires a triple control of the islands by America, Great Britain and herself. Chagrined at the result of her protest, Germany sounded Japan, but the latter declined to be a party to any concerted action, believing the United States would respect the rights of Japanese emigrants in Hawaii.

QUIET AT MINES.

Striking Coal Diggers Show No Disposition to Riot---Arbitration Progressing.

Pittsburg, July 24.—The situation in this district has not materially changed. The efforts of the arbitration commissioners have been so far successful that a call for a meeting of operators on Tuesday next has been issued. It is signed by W. P. De Armitt for the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, J. B. Zerbe for the Ohio and Pennsylvania company, E. Young for M. A. Hanna & Co., George W. Schlendeberg for the E. L. Robbins company, and other leading operators of the district. These names to the notice of a meeting are sufficient guarantee of the success of the gathering in point of attendance.

The Cannonsburg region has produced no sensational features. The striking miners are still encamped near the Allison and Boone mines to pursuade workers from going to work, but as the hearing in the injunction case was postponed until Monday there is little danger of any conflict at present, because the mine owners have announced that their mines would remain closed down until after the hearing.

As far as the injunction is concerned the strikers claim that it will have no effect, as it restrains them from what they have no intention of doing. They say that they will molest no one: that they are content to wage a battle of peace and order, and that as they have public sentiment on their side they are bound to win. Should the injunction be made perpetual the operators, it is surmised, will make an attempt to resume work. If they do there will be trouble as long as there are any strikers in the vicinity of the mine.

There are vague rumors of a march on the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. There is no doubt among those that are in a position to know that such a move is contemplated, but just at what time is kept a profound secret. While all of this is going on the Turtle Creek, Sandy Creek and Plum Creek mines are working steadily and without interference. The employes claim that they will pay no attention to the strikers and want to be left alone. On the other hand, the miners' officials claim that their organizers, who have been at work in secret, have laid the foundation for a general laying down of tools when the proper time arrives. Much depends on the situation in West Virginia. If that section comes out the New York and Cleveland mines will be the pivotal point.

STEAMER WRECKED.

Report That One Hundred and Twenty Persons Were Drowned.

London, July 24.—A dispatch from Singapore says that the steamer Srihongann, bound from Singapore for Malacca, with 190 passenger, was wrecked in a squall off Malacca on June 19. One hundred and twenty persons, including the captain of the steamer, were drowned. The remainder of the ship's company were rescued by a passing steamer.

Severe Storm at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 24.—One of the most disastrous wind, rain and hail storms which has visited this section of the country in a long time swept over Philadelphia and contiguous territory late yesterday afternoon. The storm entered the city from the west and took a northeasterly course, the greater part of the damage being done in West Philadelphia. Houses were unroofed, trees uprooted and cellars flooded. In the outlying districts growing crops were damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars. Corn was cut into ribbons, while tomato and cabbage plants were almost totally ruined by the hail. Two houses of William Whitely at Sixty-first and Hamilton streets were unroofed, as were also the West Philadelphia Mannerchor hall and half a dozen other dwellings. An entire row of three-story buildings in course of erection at Fifty-second and Vine streets was almost totany demolished. At Bryn Mawr the hail stones were almost as large as hen eggs, and the wind blew a gale, uprooting dozens of trees.

Pneumatic Mail Tubes.

Washington, July 24.—The contract between the postoffice department and the Boston Pneumatic Transit company for pneumatic tube mail service between the general postoffice in Boston and the Northern Union railway station has been finally executed. W. E. L. Dillaway is president of the company, which is located at 40 State street, and the contract is to run from Oct. 1 of this year and June 30, 1901. Letter and other mail matter, as far as practicable, is to be carried in pneumatic tubes, which have a diameter of 8 3-16 inches inside measurements, the large mail matter is to be carried in regulation mail wagons on a satisfactory schedule. In the event of temporary interruption of the tube service all mail is to be meanwhile carried in the wagons.

Anticipating Demand For Bills.

Washington, July 24.—Assistant Secretary Vanderlip authorized the director of the bureau of engraving and printing to print and deliver to the office of the secretary United States notes, treasury notes and silver certificates to the amount of $104,000,000. A large proportion of these notes will be in small denominations, ones, twos, fives and tens, and the supply is expected to be sufficient for the needs of the treasury for a period of about three months, meeting the usual large demand for small bills required in the movement of crops. The department anticipates, in view of the abundant crops and the foreign demand, an unusually large and early call for small bills.

Dyea Made a Sub-Port of Entry.

Washington, July 24.—In view of the present rush of travel to the Klondyke gold fields Secretary Gage has established a sub-port of entry at Dyea, Alaska. The action was taken as the result of an application to the treasury department by Canada for permission for Canadian vessels to enter at Dyea and land passengers and baggage there. Dyea is about 50 miles north of Juneau, and it was desired to save passengers the annoyance of disembarking at Juneau and awaiting another steamer for Dyea, the head of navigation on this route to the Yukon frontier.

Midsummer Night.

When I was a lad, with a tangle of curls,
All yellow and silky, that hung to my knee,
My nurse, in the twilight, once told me a tale
Of the beautiful spirits of fountain and tree—
How the dryads, with garlands of oak in their locks,
And the naiads, with spangles of water bedight,
Came forth from the river and woodland to dance
In the dew and the darkness of midsummer night.

I am taller and wiser, my ringlets are shorn,
And gone are the golden illusions of youth,
But last night I remembered my favorite tale
In the garden below and believed it a truth,
For, lo, from the edge of the fountain arose
A nymph in a mantle of emerald and white,
But nearer 'twas only a lily that raised
Its cup to the stars of the midsummer night!

Then I saw in the shade of the mulberry tree
A fairy in crimson a-tilt on a bough,
But found it a rose, for the nymphs and the fays
Are roses and lilies and violets now,
And once in a year they put off the disguise
Of petal and leaf by the silvery light
Of the mystical moon till the glory of dawn
Has ended the revels of midsummer night.
—Minna Irving.

The Noble Nature.

It is not growing like a tree,
In bulk, doth make man better be,
Or standing long an oak, three hundred year,
To fall a log at last, dry, bald and sear.
A lily of a day
Is fairer far in May,
Although it fall and die that night.
It was the plant and flower of light.
In small proportions we just beauties see,
And in short measures life may perfect be.
—Ben Jonson.

Telling Stories.

My little one climbs on my knee to say
In the coaxingest, cunningest kind of a way
"P'ease tell me a 'tory, dest one!" And this
He says with a hug and a long, long kiss
That he gives as the story teller's fee.
So what can I do but grant his plea?

Shall I tell the story of Little Boy Blue?
"No, no, dear mamma, dest somefin new!"
This bars the way, then, for Little Bopeep,
And the boy in the haystack fast asleep,
The pigs that went to the market too.
What kind of a story shall I tell you?

"Oh, somefin pitty." And I begin
With a kiss for the dimpled cheek and chin,
And what I tell him I scarcely know,
Since the thread of my story tangles so
That I "lose the run of it" half way through.
But that doesn't matter. It's "somefin new."

The story ends. There's a pause, and then,
"P'ease, mamma," pleadingly, "tell it adain!"
And I tell it over, and when it's done
There's a quick demand for another one,
And the queerest stories that I invent
Are those with which he is best content.

All at once the lids of my little one's eyes
Waver and droop, and in vain he tries
To lift them and keep them from closing quite.
A moment more, and they shut the light
Away from the eyes that with dreams are deep,
And my lover of stories is fast asleep.

BASEBALL IS FICKLE.

Caylor's Midseason Gossip on Championship Chances.

BALTIMORE WEAK IN PITCHING.

New York and Boston Maintain Public Interest—Failure of the Double Umpire System—Batsmen Seem to Be Mastering Left Handed Pitchers.

Oh, the fascinating uncertainty of the national game! One never quite gets done telling of some remarkable instance of it till another still more remarkable bobs up. That which set all the baseball world agog as an after Fourth of July sensation was the sudden and wholly unexpected stopping of Boston's triumphant pennant march by Uncle Anson's erratic Colts. Up to this time the Chicagos had done nothing to attract attention except by losing games on an equality with the tail enders in the race. But when the supposedly invincible Bostons go to the city by the big lake to open their western engagements the news comes after the first game that the Colts won it out in the tenth inning, it being a pitchers' battle between

FRANK B. KILLEN.

Griffith and Nicols. "Ah, well, if Anson only had a couple more Griffiths!" sighed the other aspirants for championship honors. They forgot that the Bostons had but one Nicols. Then came news of Uncle Anson's second triumph and the baseball world marveled. Two victories out of three from the leader by a team which fell down before the weakest of its opponents! But the climax of astonishment was reached when news of the third victory was flashed over the wires.

It will be a long time perhaps before this instance of uncertainty shall be matched. The sequel to it, however, added to the proof that "form" in baseball, or what is called "the dope" at the race tracks, is very vagarish. Following the Bostons came the Brooklyns to Chicago. They had just been beaten twice by the St. Louis tailenders. Yet they go in against the three times victors over the leaders and beat them easily, even with the mighty Griffith pitching. This is a pretty good specimen of baseball uncertainty, which induced bookmakers and poolsellers to drop the sport from their speculative list. So long as the gamblers could "fix" the games they had a chance to win, but when crooked playing passed away so did pool selling on that sport.

With the championship season half over one pretty safe deduction may be made of the finish. Five of the clubs can almost surely be assigned to the first five places, though, of course, not individually, and these five clubs alone have a look in on the pennant. They are the Bostons, New Yorks, Baltimores, Cincinnatis and Clevelands. None of the other seven, even with all the uncertainties of the game, has seemingly a 1 out of 100 chance to get higher than sixth. And Anson is likely to get into that second class favored niche.

On midsummer performances the Bostons and New Yorks are generally picked as one, two, and the most probable contestants for the Temple Cup at the end of the season. Hanlon still insists that his champions will win out, but his confidence, bluff or whatever it may be, is not shared by one player out of every 20 in the league. If the Baltimores had pitchers who could face a crisis whenever one arose in their games, Hanlon's faith might find justification, but that is just where the apparently insurmountable weakness of the Baltimore team lies.

The Clevelands will be a dangerous factor if their pitchers ever settle down to effective work, but their two former standbys, Young and Cuppy, have so far been of little use, and Tebeau has had to look for help from new stars of the slab, and new pitchers are always unreliable.

Public opinion upon clubs' chances is usually shown by the attendance at games when the rival candidates are on the road. Rooters will always give the preference of their presence at games in which a club takes part which they consider has the best chance to win. So, on the western trip this sentiment was distinctly bestowed upon the Boston and New York clubs, plainly indicating that public opinion in the west has picked these two teams in the order named to finish one, two, if the two places fall to the eastern section.

Mr. Young, president of the League, announces that six umpires will do all the League work until the season closes. It means that the double umpire system has been tried and found to be unsatisfactory. A significant fact is now on record that the umpires who are surest of a continuation of their jobs and those who have lasted the longest are those who have not been home umpires, and therefore have been most violently abused by spectators and local press. Of such are Hurst, Lynch, Emslie and O'Day. They realize that unless they are overtly unfair they cannot get the good opinion of local crowds in most cities. Rather than sacrifice their sense of right, they have stood abuse from the stands until, like a Damascus blade, they have been tempered and made fit for their business.

Two or three of the very smallest of the minor leagues put up their shutters and went out of business after the Fourth of July harvest. This is always the result of the custom of organizing temporary leagues among towns and cities which have not the population to support even cheap teams, but the recognized minor leagues are all doing well, and there will probably be no serious interruption to the regular season's programme among them.

Are batsmen mastering the secret powers of left handed pitchers? It seems to be so. Killen, called "the king," who stopped everything which faced him early in the season, was unmercifully pounded in July. Nops, Tannehill, Friend, Hill, Damann, Payne and Klobedanz are also more uncertain agents in a game than formerly. Breitenstein and Seymour appear to be the only two who have stood the test, and they are not yet beyond the sure line.

The recent hot spell which prostrated the middle west revived a strange but undisputed fact in regard to sunstroke. During that time over 300 players were daily out upon the hot diamond and field of baseball parks under violent exertion for from two and a half to three hours daily during the maximum heat of the day. And yet only two of them all submitted to the power of the deadly heat, and they both soon recovered. At the same time men have succumbed to the killing conditions while sitting in the stands watching those athletes defy the sun and wondering why half of them did not drop dead. There is no distinct case on record of a ball player dying from sunstroke. The death of one man is sometimes attributed to that cause, but though he was overcome by heat, his death did not occur till 30 days afterward, and his friends knew it was more the effect of drink than heat.

The recent death of Clarence (Kid) Baldwin in an insane asylum at Cincinnati is another terrible example of the dangers which beset ball players who drink. In 1885-6 and 1887 Baldwin was one of the most promising young catchers in the country, and had he taken proper care of himself he should have been a star of the first magnitude today, but success turned his head. He began to drink. With drink came other dissipation and a defiance of discipline until, in spite of his abilities, he found himself relegated to lower ranks. Then he drank the harder, and the rest of the descent into Avernus was rapid. There came a time when no club would employ him. For awhile he lived on the charity of old comrades, but that means soon wore out. The next step was that of a tramp. Then his eyes failed and he was sent to a hospital. Finally the brain gave way, and as a crazy pauper in a public insane asylum his life went out just when it should have been at the flood tide of success.

Yet, with this and other examples before them as warnings, dozens more in the profession will tread the same downward, deadly path. If players would only compare the professional careers of Anson and Baldwin, it is hard to understand how any of them could choose the latter as a guide.

O. P. CAYLOR.

WALKING ON WATER.

Down the Ohio River From Pittsburg to Cincinnati.

Robert Cook of Boston proposes to walk on the Ohio river from Pittsburg to Cincinnati, a distance of some 400 miles, in 14 days.

To accomplish this feat Cook will wear water shoes of his own invention, with which he claims he can walk with as much ease and comfort on water as anybody can on an asphalt pavement. The shoes are a trifle over 4 feet long, 6 inches wide and 6 inches deep. The place for the foot is in the center, and the shoe is strapped to it. The shoe is perfectly airtight. It is covered with white cedar wood, the bottom being of white hickory, which gives strength to the shoe. It looks like a small sized canoe. A set of fins on either side of the bottom of the shoes operates in a peculiar way, securing a resistance to the water and preventing him from slipping backward or losing his balance. Cook is positive he can accomplish the feat, which will take place in September, and has started training. This will not be his first stroll on water. He says he has thoroughly tested his invention, having walked 100 miles on Lake Ontario in 65 hours this spring. He also claims to have walked down the Hudson river from Albany to New York.

COOK WALKING ON WATER.

TEN EYCK'S CAREER.

Something About the Yankee Youth Who Won the Diamond Sculls.

Edward H. Ten Eyck, the first American to win the Diamond sculls at Henley-on-Thames, was born in Peekskill, N. Y., on Aug. 7, 1879, so that he has yet to celebrate his eighteenth birthday. His performance is not considered so wonderful by his intimate friends, for he comes from a family of crack oarsmen, his father and his grandfather before him being renowned for their work in the sport.

Young Ten Eyck made his first race in August of 1895, when he and his clubmates had a private trial with the oars to see which was the best fitted to represent the Wachusett Boat club at the New England regatta of that year. He won the trial race and took off the honors at the regatta with ease. At Saratoga last year the boy was entered for the intermediate singles at the national regatta. He won this event, besides establishing a new record for the mile and a half, intermediate class, making the distance in 9 minutes and 59 seconds.

Ten Eyck entered the senior scull race on the Charles river of the New England Amateur Rowing association on last Labor day, in the hope of meeting Maguire and Whitehead, both crack amateurs. Neither of them would go against him, but later Whitehead accepted his challenge and was beaten by Ten Eyck in October last, on Lake Quinsigamond, in 9 minutes 58 2-5 seconds. In this race Ten Eyck won the title of champion of America, and the Wachusett Boat club sent him to Henley to win the Diamond sculls.

When the boy champion left Worcester with his father for the English shores, he received a public ovation.

Boxers Who Make Money.

There are a great many boxers at present in New York who do not mind seeing the athletic clubs closed during the summer months, for they have made enough money to last them until this fall, when the boxing game will flourish the same as it did recently. The boxers who have the money are Spike Sullivan, Dave Sullivan, Casper Leon, Tommy White, "Kid" McPartland, George Dixon, Tommy West, Sammy Kelly, "Kid" McCoy, Jack Downey, Peter Maher, Tom Sharkey, Solly Smith, "Kid" Lavigne and many others.

THE LOVABLE BULLDOG

Some of the Characteristics of a Much Maligned Brute.

THREE FAMOUS IMPORTATIONS.

Lord Yarmouth and Two Gems of the Beaver Brook Kennels—Good Points of the Species as Exemplified by the Great Trio.

The bulldog is little understood in America. His looks belie him. Most people believe him to be among the most ferocious of brutes, but the fact is that he is exceptionally kind and lovable. As a watchdog he is of little value because he makes friends of strangers too readily. No dog is more delicate, the majority of bull puppies dying at an early age. In England, where the breed is centuries old, the stock is better and stronger. Bulldogs are far more numerous there, and they more nearly aproach the ideal standard of their species. All of the finest dogs here have been imported from England, though now, through the efforts of the Bulldog Club of America, the improvement of the type of the American bred dog is being striven for earnestly. The officers of the club are: President, John H. Matthews, New York; vice president, H. D. Kendall, Lowell, Mass.; secretary, E. A. Woodward, Chicago; treasurer, E. K. Austin, New York. These, with Renshaw Mason-

BEAVER BROOK PHENOMENON.

Jones of Newport, William Mariner of Milwaukee and Frank F. Dole of New Haven, form the executive committee.

Beaver Brook Phenomenon is a late importation from England by Tyler Morse of Asylum Station, Mass., who owns the famous Beaver Brook kennels. This dog has been very successful as a prize winner in England and much is expected of him here. Two other bulldogs of note are Lord Yarmouth and Beaver Brook Sultan, the latter a companion of Phenomenon at Mr. Morse's kennels. Beaver Brook Sultan was imported from England last year and was born in 1890. He has won first prizes at many shows in various American cities, including the First Challenge at the New York show this year. He was beaten there by Lord Yarmouth as the best bulldog in the show, under the judging of John H. Matthews, but the next month at St. Louis, under James Mortimer's judging, Sultan beat Lord Yarmouth as the best bulldog in the show. Sultan is white, with a large brindle patch over his right eye. He is broad and low in stature and has a massive skull, with short muzzle and the typical rose ears. His shoulders are deep, his back short and roached and his legs well proportioned. He is wonderfully active for a dog of his years. When in condition, he weighs about 52 pounds.

Lord Yarmouth, who is owned by Bulkeley Wells of the Beaumaris kennels, Manchester, Mass., was born in England in November, 1889, and was imported to this country last January. Since his arrival he has won many prizes, the most important of which were the first prize in both the novice and open classes at the New York show; a special prize with Beaumaris Jenny for the best pair and the Grand Challenge trophy for the best bulldog in the show. Before his importation he had a long list of English victories to his credit. Lord Yarmouth has immense bone, a short, well roached back, splendid shoulders and correctly proportioned legs and loins. His skull is of extraordinary length from ear to eye. His jaws are square, and the wrinkle is profuse.

A NEW SPRINTER.

The University of Wisconsin Is Preparing a Champion.

America has produced many notable sprinters who have authenticated records of ten seconds or better for 100 yard runs. Among others may be mentioned Sherrill, Jewett, Cary, Schifferstein, Ramsdell,

J. H. MAYBURY.

Westing, Lee, Crum and Wefers. Now comes the University of Wisconsin, acting as sponser for Maybury, who recently ran the "hundred" in 9 4-5 seconds and the furlong in 21 2-5 seconds, the latter on a curved track. He has not yet attained his greatest speed and will probably make his mark in the national championships.

Racing at Buffalo.

W. P. Taylor, the lessee of the Fort Erie track, will arrange a meeting this year, and a still bigger one next year, where he intends to give a purse of $25,000, which will be the largest ever given and under conditions extremely favorable to owners. Such a man as Mr. Taylor assuming so important a role will give a fresh impetus to the trotter, not only in the state of New York, but in the whole country. A purse of $25,000 will engage the earnest attention of the best men and the best horses.

Love is the natural heritage of many an attractive young woman, now doomed to loveless spinsterhood by ill-health. No woman should enter upon the duties of wifehood who is not fitted by good health for that position and for the responsibilities of motherhood. If a woman suffers from weakness and disease of the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible, she should remedy these conditions before assuming the responsibilities of a wife. Otherwise, she stands little chance of proving a happy and capable wife, and motherhood will always menace her with the terrors of death.

A sure and quick cure for all weakness and disease that unfits a woman for matrimony and maternity is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on the organs involved. It makes them strong and healthy. It cures all weakness and disease. It prepares for wifehood and motherhood. Taken during the expectant period it makes baby's coming easy and comparatively painless. It insures the health of the child. Thousands of women have testified to its merits. Druggists sell it.

"I have found great relief since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. Henry Barlow, of Lonsdale, Providence Co., R. I. "I was all broken down from nervous prostration. Since taking your medicine I have had more relief than from all the doctors' medicines—which cost me more than I could afford."

It is hard work to work when poisoned from neglected constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

—For the ensuing two years Colorado will be distinguished as the only State in the Union where the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, Washington's Birthday and Memorial Day are not legal holidays. The discovery has just been made that an act of the late Legislature in regard to the negotiable instruments repealed the statute establishing the above named holidays. The only legal holidays left in Colorado are Arbor Day, Labor Day, and the Saturday half-holiday.

☞ Isaac Newton was once examining a new and very fine globe, when a gentleman came into his study who did not believe in God, and declared that the world we live in came by chance. He was much pleased with the handsome globe, and asked: "Who made it?" "Nobody," answered Sir Isaac; "it just happened here." The gentleman looked up in amazement at the answer, but he soon understood what it meant. Who can say that this beautiful and wonderful world came by chance, when he knows that there is not a house, or ship, or picture, or any thing in it but has had a maker?

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

HOKE OF SANDY BEND

THE FAMOUS JUDGE UNTANGLES A LEGAL MATRIMONIAL SNARL.

A Husband Who Fails to Shoot and Three Other Men Who Are Howling For Justice—The Judge Sizes Up the Situation and Performs a Ceremony.

When the court at Sandy Bend had been opened in due and legal form, Judge Hoke assumed what he considered a proper judicial dignity and said:

"This ar' a case as we hev never had afore us before, but we think we kin straighten out the kinks and do jestice to all. Three days ago that redheaded critter over thar who calls hisself Tom Jones come humpin down the trail from Big Find to ax if thar was any law in this kentry and to holler fur jestice. He had a wife up thar at Big Find. He went home one evenin to find that she had skipped out with another man. The name of that man was Abe Skinner, and that's him over thar with the broken nose.

"What ginerally happens out yere in this land of gold and heathen and hard times when our wife runs away? If we ain't mighty glad of it, which we mostly be, we git on to her tracks and foller 'em till we overtake her. If she's alone, we take her by the ear and lead her back. If she's with the critter, we pop him over. Thar ain't no law in the case, but the custom is purty well known. The man who steals another man's wife expects to be popped by the injoored husband, and he likewise expects to pop that same injoored husband if he gits the chance.

"Tom Jones didn't pursoo. Thar was the broad trail before him, and he had guns and knives and a hoss, but he hadn't the sand. He jest comes a humpin down yere to holler fur the law and shriek fur jestice, and to git all men, includin this court, down on him fur his doggoneness. His wife, who ar' that female over thar, with a mouth as big as a bar'l, had gone off with Abe Skinner, as aforesaid, and had headed fur this very camp. As they flies from Big Find they meets up with Jim Hope, who's the cuss over thar with the game leg and one eye gone. Jim he stops 'em and sez:

"'Abe Skinner, what yo' got there?'

"'A female.'

"'Who is she?'

"'Tom Jones' wife.'

"'And what yo' a-doin with her?'

"'A-runnin away to Sandy Bend.'

"'Then you needn't go no furder. I've bin wantin a wife fur the last six months, and I reckon I'll take her off your hands.'

"Waal," continued his honor, "Jim Hope he had his gun plump on Abe Skinner and his finger on the trigger, and Abe had to give in. This yere court can't l'arn that the woman objected to the change. On the contrary, thar is evidence that she didn't keer a continental, as Jim Hope is a better lookin critter than Abe Skinner. The couple heads this way by the trail, while Abe Skinner takes a short cut and arrives fustly and comes to me to yell fur jestice. Thar's two fellers a-yellin fur jestice, and a third one with the woman. The woman gits yere in doo time, along with Jim Hope, and over by the creek they meets Joe Scott, who stops to say:

"'Jim Hope, I was jest goin out to hunt fur one.'

"'What ye mean to do?'

"'I want a female woman fur a wife, and you git down and skip.'

"Thar was a gun on Jim, and he had to give the woman up. This court can't l'arn that she shed a tear or did any kickin, but Jim he comes whoopin down to me and wants law and jestice and all that. That makes three of 'em a-wantin, and so I tells the constable to arrest Joe and the woman. Yere's four men and one woman, and the law 'pears to be purty badly tangled up. Fustly, Tom Jones, is this woman your wife?"

"Sartin she is," answered Tom.

"Hev yo' got dockments to prove it?"

"No, but I married her in the Injun Territory a y'ar ago."

"Waal, this yere court has nuthin to do with the Injun Territory, and that marriage won't stand yere onless the woman wants it to. Mrs. Jones, as I will call ye, what made ye run away from Tom?"

"Got tired of him," replied the woman.

"Do ye prefer Jim Hope or Joe Scott?"

"I ain't pertickler."

"That makes the case easier. Hank Williams, stand up!"

Hank stood up and proved to be a middle aged man of decent appearance.

"Hank, d'ye want a wife?" asked the court.

"I dew," was the reply.

"Then I'll marry ye to this woman. Both of ye stand up yere."

"But I say I married her!" persisted Tom Jones.

"I know ye say so, but the Injun Territory don't go yere. What we is arter is jestice fur all hands. The woman didn't like ye and skipped. Ye didn't go arter her and pop over Abe Skinner, and so ye've lost her. I fine ye $10 fur disturbin the court. Jim Hope, ye took the woman from Abe Skinner by force of arms and then lost her to Joe Scott. Ye want jestice, and I'll fine ye $20. Joe Scott, ye leveled a gun on Jim Hope and made him gin up the woman, and the constable had to arrest ye. I guess a fine of $15 will hit you."

"I'm ag'in it!" shouted the three men in chorus.

"That makes no difference," answered his honor. "The fines stand, and ye'll hev to pay. Hank Williams, will ye take this deluded woman to be yer lawful wife?"

"You bet!"

"And will you cherish and defend her and keep all other critters off?"

"I will."

"Mrs. Jones, ye hear what the critter sez. Ye may be married, and ye may not, but this court ain't a-goin to run any chances of any fucher rows and killin's. Will ye take Hank fur better or wuss?"

"Reckon so."

"And will ye do yer best?"

"Yes."

"Then jine hands. I pronounce ye man and wife, and durn my hide, which ar' the hide of this court, I'll turn out and help hunt down any human critter as tries to come between you and Hank. I now consider that jestice has bin done to all hands and all around, and it only remains fur the happy bridegroom to head the purceshun to my saloon and treat all hands over the happy event, and thar won't be no ill feelin's and nuthin to find fault with."

M. QUAD.

"THEN JINE HANDS."

Awkward Young Dramatist (to manager)—Might I ask how my three act drama is coming on, sir? Has it been accepted?

And on the bank of purling stream he'll sit from morn till night,
And, barring the mosquitoes, he will never get a bite.
Then sadly he'll reel in his line, with words we'll not repeat,
And homeward o'er the road will reel on quite unsteady feet.
Of fish he caught and didn't catch he'll blow for many a day

A man will mount his bicycle and leave the town behind
And pedal through the suburbs with the swiftness of the wind,
But at the first roadhouse he'll stop and tackle foaming beer
And questionable lunch until the evening shades appear,
Then rub some dust on hands and face and on his cycle, too,
And into town he'll sail as swift as eagle ever flew
And talk about the century or more he made that day
And seem to think it not a sin to

THE PINK OF FASHION.

This summer one can have gowns of sheer materials made up as ornate or as simple as one desires and still be wholly la mode.

Gainsborough hats and Marie Antoinette fichus or Louis Quinze sashes are worn with many of the beautiful gauzy dress toilets of the season at various fashionable resorts.

New designs in rich silks, woven both in this country and abroad, show marvelous effects of shading flowers and foliage on opal tinted and similar beautiful backgrounds.

Black point d'esprit silk net is in great use both for making wholly new toilets and waists and for freshing gowns and bodices of black satin, moire, taffeta, india silk and grenadine.

At a recent evening church wedding the bride wore a gown of mousseline de soie, made a la Marie Antoinette over white satin, her bridal veil caught up with a diamond star at one side and sprays of orange blossoms and white rosebuds at the other.

Leagues of lace of every beautiful pattern and texture are used on summer gowns, wraps and millinery, and among some very elegant dresses of this description lately worn was a very notable one of black chantilly, made up over pale golden green satin.

Midsummer millinery has lost much of its bold and erratic appearance, and some of the latest French models are made of white neapolitan or chip, with delicate garnitures of white lilac, or white violets, maidenhair fern fronds in shaded velvet, long, slender white wings and loops of mousseline de soie.—New York Post.

Castle Square Theatre.

The play selected as the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week, is Edwin Milton Royle's comedy drama "Friends," which had a most successful production here three years ago when its author appeared as a member of the company giving the performance. The story of the play shows the possibilities of real friendship, the principal characters being two young men of New York City who, in seeking their own fortunes, have some amusing and very trying experiences. The action is in the present day and the scenes alternate between the upper and lower sections of the metropolis; the heroine being a member of the Metropolitan Opera House Company. The cast is announced as follows: Marguerite Otto, of the Metropolitan Opera House, Lillian Lawrence; Hans Otto, her father, William Humphrey; Harold Hunting, Director of the Opera House, Howard Hall; John Paden, Sr., a business man, Horace Lewis; John Paden, Jr., a modern poet, J. H. Gilmour; Adrain Karje, a pianist, Charles Mackay; Henry, Ned H. Fowler; Jenny Merryweather, Mary Sanders; Miss Wolff, Rose Morison; Miss Martman, Loraine Dreux. Following "Friends" on August 2d, a production of "Jim the Penman" is announced.

Keith's Theatre.

The delightful "Miniature pop concerts" that are given at Keith's afternoon and evening during the summer months by the artists of the celebrated Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Max Zach, are the most pleasing feature of the ideal entertainment furnished at Boston's famous continuous performance playhouse. The change of programme weekly and the selection of nothing but the best of high class popular music meets with general approval from Mr Keith's patrons. The Biograph will have new pictures, among them "Nancy Sykes," showing the famous death scence; "A Surprise Party," depicting the misfortunes that befell a too inquisitive young man, and "Foiled Again," in which a burglar finds only a scuttle of coal in the safe. All of these subjects are funny and the more popular of those already exhibited will be retained.

Glucose Factory Burned.

Peoria, Ills., July 24.—The main building of the Peoria Grape Sugar company was completely destroyed by fire last evening. The loss is $500,000, the total insurance carried being $460,000, of which nearly $300,000 was on the burned building and contents.

SHE KILLED HERSELF.

Boston Police Say Alice Barrett Was Not Struck by Lightning.

Building Struck at Instant Shot Was Fired.

Unfortunate Girl Had Lost All Her Savings Through a Friend.

Boston, July 26.—Lightning did not kill Miss Alice M. Barrett at 40 Kilby street, Saturday, but lightning and a pistol appear to have played an active part in a most singular coincidence.

Miss Barrett was shot, presumably by herself, the trigger of the weapon being probably pulled simultaneously with the appalling crash of thunder that followed the lightning which kindled flame in the air shaft of the building.

The lightning struck at 3. Three minutes later an alarm was sounded, and very quick to respond was a piece of apparatus connected with the protective department. Discerning a little smoke issuing from the window of the room occupied by Miss Barrett, who was employed as a stenographer and typewriter by Codman & Codman, real estate brokers, efforts were directed toward that part of the building.

District Chief Hussey was the first to reach the door of this room. It was locked. A few blows of an ax burst the fastenings, and three firemen rushed in to find Miss Barrett lying on the floor in front of the safe, the door of which was open.

There was a ledger on the floor, which led to the supposition that she was engaged in locking up the books when halted by death. The inference of course was that the young woman had been shocked to death, but had the revolver and letter found on the floor near the body been turned over to the police a melancholy blunder would have been averted.

It is stated that Miss Barrett had accumulated quite a sum of money, some $800 or $1000, which she had lent to an acquaintance, who had lost it in speculation. Miss Barrett worried over her loss, and it so preyed upon her mind that she could stand it no longer and determined to end her life. There is not a breath against the girl's character or reputation, and she was very highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Ordinarily Miss Barrett finished her work at 1 o'clock Saturdays, but she had some extra bookkeeping to do and staid later, locking herself into the office. She was the only person left in the building, the janitor being engaged at the time in his regular work in an adjoining building, which is connected by a bridge. He it was who first saw the fire and sent in the alarm.

Miss Barrett was 23 years old, and lived with her mother and two brothers at 249 School street, Waltham. She graduated from the high school class of 1892. After graduation she learned stenography and typewriting, and had been engaged in such work in Waltham and Boston. She was a member of the Unitarian church, and greatly interested in charitable work.

Medical Examiner Steadman has certified that Miss Barrett committed suicide, but there are other theories as to her death, which throw mystery on the case. The autopsy showed that the bullet passed through the heart and lodged in the muscles on the right side of the spinal column. The revolver, a new five-chambered one, was evidently fired left handed. Just inside the door was a box of cartridges, from which five had been taken to fill the weapon.

Beside the body was a note addressed to Mrs. Barrett, the writing on which has been identified as that of Miss Barrett's by her brother and uncle. This note said that $800 had been drawn from the bank and had been lost. The borrower, she said, was out of the United States and was known only to herself. On the back of the note was the request that the note be legally rewritten and placed in her personal effects.

The girl's mother and brother decline to give the name of the borrower, if they know it, which they probably do, and both maintain that the girl was murdered. Her bank book shows $1000 deposited in April, 1895, and $800 withdrawn in April, 1897, and the balance, with accrued interest, makes a deposit to her credit of $206.42. Many theories are suggested as to how Miss Barrett was killed, but the medical examiner will not change his opinion without evidence to the contrary.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS.

Head of Maine Department Asks For Reports on Permanent School Funds.

Augusta, Me., July 26.—State Superintendent of Schools Stetson has prepared a circular to be sent school superintendents and municipal officers in Maine, calling their attention to the importance of scrupulously guarding the "permanent school funds" of their towns, and the necessity of devoting them to the purposes for which they were granted.

The reservation of 1000 acres of land in every township, commonly known as school lands, comes from an old regulation of Massachusetts, adopted while Maine was still a part of that commonwealth.

The unsettled portions of the territory were commonly referred to by the Massachusetts legislature as the "Eastern lands."

In order to encourage the settlement of these "Eastern lands" the legislature of Massachusetts in 1788 enacted a law providing that in the disposition of all towns thereafter, four lots, of 320 acres each, should be reserved for certain purposes in each and every township, whether sold or granted.

One of these lots was known as the school lot. The funds from the sale of grass and timber from the lots created by this old law was to be a permanent fund for the benefit of the schools.

In several towns in the state this fund is still intact, and the interest is added each year to the funds derived from other sources. In some cases, however, the fund has been used for general town purposes.

School superintendents will be called upon to report the amount of the school funds in their several tawns, how these funds are invested, the amount of income derived from them and such other details as will give a complete history of the original funds and disclose their present amount and condition.

The Tables Turned.

Staceyville, Me., July 26.—Commissioner Carleton, accompanied by Warden Hodgkins, arrived Friday night, in response to a letter from Fred Brackett, stating that Fred Cummings had shot a moose and the meat was in Mark Dudley's house. Mr. Bracket reiterated the statements and Mr. Carleton, who visited Mr. Cummings, who works for Mr. Dudley. They were convinced that the story was a hoax gotten up for revenge to injure Cummings and Dudley. These latter gentlemen were so incensed against Brackett for making this charge that they called on Mr. Carleton and swore to what they know about Brackett's poaching. Two warrants were obtained against Brackett for shooting four deer and baiting bear traps with them this summer. Brackett pleaded guilty and was fined $120 and costs.

Important to Importers.

Boston, July 26.—The difference between the nautical and calendar day is the chief topic of speculation among a number of lumber importers in this city. This is due to the fact that four schooners from the maritime provinces, all ladened with lumber of the class admitted free of duty under the old tariff law, arrived Saturday, just a few minutes after the new tariff bill, imposing a duty on the kind of lumber in their cargos, had been signed by President McKinley. Whether these cargoes are dutiable is thought to devolve on whether Saturday legally ended at midnight or with the close of the custom house at 4 o'clock. Boston wool and sugar importers say they have no big cargoes of either article afloat.

John P. Lovell's Condition.

Cottage City, Mass., July 26.—John P. Lovell is failing. This much is said by his physicians. His condition is contrary to expectation after the favorable signs of last week. There are hopes entertained, however, that a rally will come.

Ex-Senator Doolittle's Condition.

Providence, July 26.—Ex-Senator James Rood Doolittle of Wisconsin, who is dangerously sick at the home of Dr. Burge, his son-in-law, at Pawtuxet, is sinking rapidly and is not expected to survive the next 24 hours.

Leaving Washington.

Washington, July 26.—There has been constant exodus from Washington of senators and representatives during the past 36 hours. It began even before the adjournment of congress and it has continued uninterruptedly since. Most of the travelers left for their homes, while others have gone to the seaside and mountain resorts. Speaker Reed is still here, but he expects to leave during the early part of the week, while Chairman Dingley started for Maine yesterday. The president and those of his cabinet who intend to leave Washington for a vacation will do so in the next few days, so that by the end of the week the city, politically and officially speaking, will be deserted.

Two Boys Shot by a Recluse.

Chicago, July 26.—James O'Donnell, who lives the life of a recluse, shot into a crowd of small boys who were playing ball near his home yesterday afternoon. Thomas Good, aged 12, and Frank Spears, aged, 8, colored, were badly wounded. Spears will probably die. As soon as the shooting became known an angry mob of neighbors surrounded O'Donnell's home, where he had hidden. The timely arrival of a patrol wagon saved his life, but by a narrow margin, as the mob surrounded the wagon and the officers were forced to fight to protect their prisoner. O'Donnell says the boys annoyed him with their noise.

Forty-Knot Vessels Ordered.

New York, July 26.—Three 40-knot torpedo boats are to be built in this country for a South American government. The order has been placed with the Ordnance company of Bridgeport, Conn. The destination of these speedy crafts is said to be Argentine Republic. The task of obtaining 40 knots of speed is reckoned a herculean one. If obtained, it will be the highest for any water craft in the world.

LIKE THE DAYS OF '49.

No Method In Madness of the Throng Anxious to Go to Klondyke.

Steamers Overrun With Applications For Berths.

Many Are Making Great Sacrifices to Go to the Mines.

San Francisco, July 26.—The desire of the gold-struck throng to reach the diggins in the Klondyke district resembles for all the world the craze to reach California in the days of '49. There is little or no method in this longing of the masses to reach the Eldorado in the great unknown territory of the northwest.

People who have had no experience in miningor have undergone none of the hardships incident to such as will follow a trip to the Yukon country, are clamoring for passage and straining every nerve to secure funds on which to make thetr ip. Many are making sacrificesi n order to visit the land that promises so much.

Every steamship office in the city is literly overrun with people seeking information concerning the Klondyke country. Those who have the money do not hesitate to pay for passage, trusting in many instances to good luck to give them food on which to subsist during the coming winter. The Excelsior, which leaves on next Wednesday, has a full passenger list, but big bonuses are being offered every day for a berth on the vessel.

The steamer Umatilla left yesterday for the north with 290 passengers and a full cargo of provisions. She goes to Port Townsend, where she connects with the City of Topeka, sailing direct to Juneau. The owners of the Umatilla have applied to the inspectors of hulls and boilers for permission to carry all the passengers that the vessel's owned by the company will hold. The Topeka, which is scheduled to leave Seattle early next week has already more passengers than is permitted by law. The same is true of the George W. Elder which is scheduled to leave July 30. The people at Seattle are begging the steamship officers to provide them with transportation.

The steamer Cleveland, chartered as an extra vessel by the Northwestern Trading company, sailed late Saturday night for Seattle, where she will discharge part of her cargo and take on supplies and passengers for Alaska. About half of her passenger list from this city is booked for Alaska, and she will fill to the limit, leaving Seattle for the North. It is probable that she will carry 500 passengers.

More people are anxious to go to Alaska and the Yukon country than can possibly be accommodated at the present time. It is believed by many that the vessels now fitting at San Francisco and destined for Dawson City by way of St. Michaels will never reach the former place. The river begins to freeze about Sept. 10, and it is not possible for vessels leaving San Francisco after August to reach Dawson City for at least five or six days after the extreme cold has set in.

Started For Klondyke.

Seattle, Wash., July 26.—No greater crowd ever assembled on the wharves of Seattle than that which witnessed the departure of the steamer City of Mexico for Dyea yesterday. On the Mexico were 283 passengers, who left to seek their fortunes in the Klondyke. Long before sailing time the wharf was completely blocked with people who were on hand to witness the departure, and the crowd spread out along the wharves and docks to the north for nearly a mile. At a conservative estimate there were fully 8000 people on the wharves, twice as many as assembled to bid adieu to any preceding steamer, showing that instead of abating the Klondyke fever is more virulent than ever. In addition to her passengers, the Mexico carried 1800 tons of freight, consisting almost entirely of outfits of the gold seekers.

New Alaskan Line.

Seattle, Wash., July 26.—The steamers by Frank E. Burns to make trips to Dyea and Skagaway, leaving here July 31. The Rosalie will carry 200 passengers with their freight, while the Edith will carry 75 head of horses. It is intended to have the vessels return in 112 days for another voyage. Should the business justify, the Rosalie may be counted as permanently on the run. The fares will be the same as those established by the companies now carrying passengers to these points.

Powderly Denounced.

New York, July 26.—District Assembly, No. 49, of the Knights of Labor, met at Brevort hall yesterday and passed strong resolutions condemning the appointment of T. V. Powderly as United States commissioner of immigration. As the meeting had been called before it was known that Mr. Powderly's appointment had not been confirmed by the senate, the original resolutions were altered. The senate was commended for not confirming the appointment. Powderly was denounced as a renegade and traitor for turning to gold after speaking for years in favor of free silver.

The Band Concert.

Although the weather was somewhat stormy Saturday evening, the attendance at the concert by Brown's Brigade band in City Square was the largest yet. The concert was as usual excellent and called out hearty applause. A pleasing feature of the concert was the vocal solos by F. Pontfelio with band accompaniment, which was exceptionally finely rendered.

Went Home Alone.

A red mustang is reported as missing from Germantown. Saturday a gentleman arrived at the Hodgkinson farm at Germantown having driven over the road from Dover, N. H. He tied his mustang that night with a clothes line intending to start for home Sunday. Morning, however, came and his animal was missing and as as yet nothing has been heard from him.

An Eight-Year-Old Rider.

Penelope, the little 8-year old daughter of S. F. Willard, is becoming quite a bicycle rider. Sunday she rode on her wheel to Nantasket accompanied by her father. They left Nantasket for home at 4 15 o'clock and at 5.10 passed through City Square and the little miss said she was not the least bit tired.

THE YACHTSMEN.

Clara Lou and West Wind Win Wollaston Championship.

The Wollaston Yacht Club's Second Championship race, postponed from Saturday, July 17, was sailed off Saturday evening over their seven mile course, off the club house.

When the gun was given at 6 o'clock for the second class, three boats appeared for honors. The Commodore's boat, the Burgess, crossed the line first, followed five seconds later by the Clara Lou. The Magnolia was not so fortunate in getting away, she being 2 min., 14 sec. behind the gun. However she soon made it interesting for the others, (who ran into a "bald spot" off "Rufe's Hummock") when she caught up with them.

The fourth class which started five minutes later, had as competitors the West Wind, Dictator and Sea Gull. Soon all six boats were bunched, as the southwest wind at the start died out. When it freshened up they took a new start.

It was a close race between the three boats in the second class. The Commodore crossing the line ahead of the Clara Lou by 50 seconds. The Magnolia being about two minutes behind. The Clara Lou won however on time allowance.

The West Wind had an easy win in her class, the Dictator and Sea Gull having withdrawn.

The result of this race gives the Clara Lou and the West Wind the club championship in their respective classes.

The race was judged by Mr. Geo. C. Ela, Geo. W. Davis and E. Cameron.

Tars Tell Stories.

When the rain began to fall and the wind began to blow, and no longer could pleasure and comfort be had by remaining on the float at the Wollaston Yacht club one evening last week, the boys all agreed to repair to the club house. Once there and seated around the Secretary's table, talk naturally took a nautical turn, spiced with a little fish story occasionally. Many were the stories of that "big fish," that came within an ace of being landed, and the length and weight of that "big cod" that some one of them had brought home on a certain occasion, and many other truthful (?) angling yarns. But it was when "Walter" told, that seven fish jumped into his boat one night while he was out sailing, that the boys began to look at each other, and then at "Walter" in particular.

The Commodore, who always enjoys a good story, put on a look of sadness and regret, which was intensified by the "Dr." blushing and starting for the door, all of which was noticed by "Walter" who construed their actions as a sign of doubt as to the truthfulness of his statement. Flushed with anger at their apparent lack of confidence in his veracity, he declared that not only did the seven fish jump aboard his boat, but two of them actually had each a loaf of bread with them, and furthermore he was ready to back up his statement with Klondyke dust.

The Vice-commodore, who is always ready to let a fellow down easy, suggested that perhaps "Walter" had got his experience mixed up with the old story that his grandmother had probably told him years ago "for certainly, the story told by him and the old, old, story, are similar, only reversed."

Just then, Arthur, the janitor, saved further trouble by hiding the cuspadores, and turning down the lights.

Quincy Boats Rank High.

The Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association keeps the record of all races under its rules by an interesting system of percentages, which gives the winning boat in each class 100 per cent., the second boat 50 per cent., and the third boat 25 per cent.

In the first class the Little Peter leads with an average per cent, of 66⅔ to 57 1-7 for the Ida J. The Little Peter has started in 9 races; won 5, second once, and third 3 times, a total of 600 per cent.

The Muriel has 58⅓ per cent. average in the second class, against 53 4-7 for the Privateer. In 12 starts she won 4, and was second 6 times, a total of 700 per cent. while the Privateer has 750 per cent. in 14 starts.

The Rooster leads the third class with a big average per cent., 77⅓, having in 10 starts won 7 and taken 1 second and 1 third, a total per cent. of 775. The Al-Anka is second with 50 per cent. average, the Omeme third with 30, and the Cleopatra less than one per cent. behind.

The Vitesse leads the fourth class, the Gosling, the knockabouts, and the Hoodlum the second open class.

Yachting Fixtures.

This week will be a light one for yacht racing, but next week the Burgess club will have an open race Monday, the Beverly club an open race Tuesday, and the Corinthian club a series of invitation races on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, concluding with an open race on Saturday.

TODAY'S COURT.

HOUGHS NECK.

Meeting of Improvement Society Not Well Advertised—Small Attendance.

Very threatening weather all day Sunday but weather didn't keep the band listeners in doors.

A great many barge parties arrived to spend Sunday. Booths all open doing good business.

Master George Alexandria on Wednesday last while playing in Mr. Littlefield's hay loft fell about nineteen feet and landed so his ankle was very severely sprained. He was carried to his home on Sea street by his young playmates, where his father bandaged his bruise. He will probably not be able to walk for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hunneman from Dorchester were the guests of Mrs. Emery at the Loretto on Sunday.

The cars were very busy all day Sunday taking visitors to and from the Neck; three cars every half hour.

Mr. Richard Powers of Roxbury was the guest of Mr. Albert Bleiler at the Heath cottage on Manet avenue.

Mr. John Sullivan has had quite a bruise on his right hand.

The Young Men's Catholic Temperance union of Hyde Park made quite a showing in their duck pants and black jackets and white sailor hats. There were 35 of them and they were under the leadership of Mr. Joseph Crosby of the Moondyne cottage of the Neck.

Master Joseph Fitts of Roxbury was a guest of Mrs. Emery at the Loretto.

High tide today at 9 A M, and 9.15 P. M.

The Houghs Neck Improvement society held its first meeting of the season on Friday evening. Mr. W. F. Macy presided. The main subject was for the improvement and widening of Sea street and its branches. It was very much regretted that the residents of Hough's Neck did not turn out in greater numbers and not leave the work for a few.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Harris of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Quatley of Baltimore, Md., Mr. Bert O. Netman of North Grafton, Mr. E. T. Wright and family of Rockland are the guests of Mr. Shaughron at the Trilby cottage for a few days.

The poverty party run last week was under the direction of Miss Alice Maynard, a prominent young lady of Houghs Neck.

The Quincy Yacht Club hop was a brilliant affair. Selections from "Jack in the Beanstalk" and "Simple Simon" were greeted with great applause.

Mr. J. A. Brown and family of Boston, formerly of Houghs Neck, will spend the month of August at Nahant.

The band played some very popular airs Sunday as usual.

Our old enemies, the mosquitoes, are arriving in battalions and armed to teeth looking for blood.

Mr. C. H. Burnham's boat went adrift Saturday, but was caught off Nut Island by Mr. Fred Maynard and returned.

The members of the Ladies' Fireside Reading Circle of Holbrook were entertained at Great Hill, Houghs Neck, on Thursday, by Mrs. E. Newton Thayer and Mrs. E. Francis Lincoln, two of the members of the circle who have neighboring cottages there. The ladies started from Holbrook square about the time of the little cloudburst in the morning, but were not to be deterred from a merry-making by a "few drops of rain."—Brockton Times.

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Forbush, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Walters of Charlestown are at Houghs Neck. Dr. Forbush returns to Charlestown every morning to attend to his duties.

The Hough's Neck Juniors have got a match game of ball with the North Weymouths for Wednesday at 2 P. M.

Mr. Fenno and Mr. Kelly were guests at the Delmonte cottage on Winthrop street.

Letters uncalled for Monday July 26:

Alband & Rupp, Albert Newell, A. G. Bates, P. Barry, Quincy Brown, James H. Howland, Angus G. Dovald, George W. Milliken, J. O'Grady, A. Ramshorn, Edson L. Whitney.

Mrs. Walter Brown, Miss M. T. Evans, Miss Agnes Kean, Miss Mary J. Pierce, Mrs. Annie Wetterberg.

—Occasionally a man who kills another man in Suffolk County is caught and convicted, but the sentence is rarely heavy. The penalty for getting drunk and then killing, as administered this week, is three years. The moral of this is that no man who intends to murder should do so without first becoming more or less intoxicated. No other county in the country accepts so joyfully and confidently as Suffolk, a plea of guilty to the charge of manslaughter.—Charlestown Enterprise.

—The Chicago board of aldermen has voted to tax bicycles $1 per year, and to tax other vehicles. This fund will be applied to keeping the streets in order, and it is estimated that from bicycles alone $300,000 annually will be derived.

—Senator Lodges' bill providing for a stock-and-bond tax of five cents on the $100 share has stirred Wall street to its depths. The street has escaped taxation so long that it naturally feels that a statute of limitations has run in favor of it.—Beverly Citizen.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Although Sunday was none too pleasant the street railway did a good business on all its lines, especially to Houghs Neck, the band concerts serving to attract a large crowd who thoroughly appreciated the music.

The proposed entertainment and dance to be given in Music hall is not under the auspices of Faxon lodge, I. O. G. T., as it has been commonly reported. It is contrary to the laws of the order to have any connection whatever, as an organization with an affair of this kind.

The Newport club, composed of many young ladies and gentleman from Neponset and Atlantic enjoyed a barge party to Nantasket beach Friday evening and partook of a fish dinner at Hotel Nantasket. Dancing was enjoyed by some, while others took a dip in the briny deep and at a late hour all departed for home. Mr. Ryan of Neponset, member of club, rendered many pleasing solos through the evening.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Continued from page 2.

Miss Abbie Kelley has returned from her vacation.

No meeting of the School Committee will be held this month.

Postmaster Burke is away on a brief visit to New York and Washington.

The Wilson building recently damaged by fire is being repaired by contractor Williams.

The incandescent light wires in City Hall are being replaced with new and heavier insulated wire.

Two simple drunks was all the police secured in their net from Saturday night until this morning.

About 1000 feet of the force main of the sewer was put under ground at the Squantum end last week.

Miss Ada M. Nightingale, clerk to the executive department at City Hall, has returned from her vacation.

Miss Lizzie M. Newcomb, bookkeeper at the Mount Wollaston bank, has returned to her desk from a two weeks' vacation.

Inspector McKay is to build himself a new house on Presidents Hill annex. No section of the city is growing faster than this.

The new street car waiting room in the building recently occupied by Dr. Gilbert was opened to the public Saturday night, and Messrs. Kittredge and Bussell smiled on many friends.

FOUL HITS

Almost a Free Fight at the Base Ball Game on Saturday.

The game of ball at New Downer Landing on Saturday, between the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co., and the Weymouths, was witnessed by a large crowd, but the game came near ending in a free fight,

The trouble was with the umpire whose decisions were rank. It was not that he wished to favor the Weymouth team, because he tried to be fair, but he did not know the rules and made many bad blunders.

It finally became so rank that the T. R. & S. Co., refused to go on with the game and it was given to the Weymouths. A few blows were struck during the disputes, but a free fight was prevented by the cooler heads.

COUNTY SQUIBS.

—Brookline has only three candidates for the Republican nomination for senator in the Second Norfolk district. This may give it to Frank A. Fales of Norwood or Wilmot W. Mitchell of Medfield.

—Hand engine musters do not promise to be numerous this fall, and the announcement that $500 will be offered at the tournament at the South Weymouth fair, may result in many entries.

—Shoe business is picking up at Randolph.

—Amasa Kingsbury, one of the aged men of Needham, died Sunday in his 82d year.

—The meeting of the Norfolk and Pilgrim branch of the Woman's Board of Missions will be held with the auxiliary of the Pilgrimage church, Plymouth, tomorrow. Mrs. Bruce of Mahratto mission in India and Mrs. Cushing of the Baptist mission in Burmah will address the meeting.

—The East Weymouth Reform club held an outing on Saturday at Oak Grove cottage, Hockley.

—Milton's tax rate is $9 50 on $1000, the same as last year.

—Oliver Houghton, the chief of the Weymouth police, has returned from a visit at Provincetown.

ALONG THE SHORE.

—The benefit entertainment of the Hull yacht club on Saturday evening was largely attended and a success.

—The half raters of the Cohasset yacht club were to have sailed Saturday for the championship but the squall and rain caused a postponement until some day this week.

—The historical festival at Plymouth opens Wednesday evening to continue a week.

—The Duxbury yacht club will have a race for prizes on Saturday.

—Powder Point at Duxbury has built up considerable this summer.

—Cohasset will have a special town meeting this evening to consider important matters.

Sunday was another big day at Nantasket.

☞ Ice Cream Freezers from $1.59 up. Hammocks 59 cents up. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

Co. K Notes.

Capt. Morrison congratulated his company upon their return Saturday on the magnificent way in which they attended to their duties while at camp, and felt highly pleased. Co. K was the only company on the field which held its standard of efficiency of members throughout the whole week, not one single member being absent. The highest honors any company can carry off the field is to have a member appointed on the colonel's staff for a whole week. The two honored companies were Co. F of Waltham, Captain Clements, and Co. K of Braintree, Captain Morrison. The two soldierly bearing and honored enlisted men were David Burnett of Co. F and H. J. Matthews of Co. K. They fulfilled their duties in a creditable and soldierly manner, of which Colonel W. A. Bancroft, soon to be brigadier general, expressed his compliments. The officers and non-commissioned officers had a picture taken in group, which makes a very handsome souvenir.

The following were noticed among the guests of Co. K: ex-Representative C. L. Hammond, Councilman Elisha Packard, Col. Abner Packard and John W. Hersey.

Col. W. A. Bancroft of the 5th Regiment is acting Brigadier General until a successor to Brig. Gen. Benj. F. Peach, Jr., is elected on Friday next.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

JINGLERS AND JOKERS.

The Gentlemanly Burglar.

Some safety pins and hairpins and a piece of raisin cake,
A box of Mme. Bilkingham's renowned complexion fake,
A masticated wad of gum, a clipped Byronic verse,
Six hungry little pennies in a hungry little purse,
A rouge rag and a matchbox and a tube of puncture paste,
An injured silken garter wrought with admirable taste,
A vinaigrette, some caramels, a corset string or two,
A bill for an installment bike, with ten assessments due.
* * * * * * *
The burglar viewed the plunder o'er and folded up his bag
And gallantly disdained to filch the fascinating swag,
And tenderly replaced it, with a gentlemanly air,
And left it—in the pockets of the bloomers on the chair.
—John Ludlow in New York Journal.

The Zealous Officer.

"I've a great mind to arrest that little boy," said the overzealous bicycle policeman.

"Why, he isn't riding anything but a little tin velocipede."

"I know it. It's the intent that makes the crime. If he pedaled that hard on an ordinary machine, he'd be going at the rate of 20 miles an hour."—Washington Star.

A Narrow Escape.

"Yes," said young Scapely reflectively, "I once played the part of the prodigal son."

"And did your old man kill the calf?" inquired Mumley.

"Almost," was the sad reply. "He wore out two barrel staves on me."—Town Topics.

Too Suggestive.

Jones, poor man, was quite unnerved
The day his twins were christened.
His face was pale and on his cheek
A teardrop plainly glistened.

For when the rite had been performed,
In mockery so hollow,
The choir struck up that grand old hymn,
"Still There's More to Follow."

Second Jersey Youth—Guess that's a 'sketer gun.—New York Weekly.

EMINENT CONGREGATIONALIST.

Dr. Malcolm McGregor Dana Dies at Brooklyn After a Long Illness.

New York, July 26.—Rev. Dr. Malcolm McGregor Dana died at his home in Brooklyn yesterday. He had been ill for a long time with a complication of ailments, and his death has been hourly expected for several weeks.

Malcolm McGregor Dana was born in Brooklyn about 60 years ago. He was graduated from Amherst college in 1859, and from the Union Theological seminary in 1862. He began his ministerial career in Winsted, Conn. In 1864 he was ordained pastor of the Second Congregational church at Norwich, Conn., where he remained 10 years. In 1874 he, together with 105 other members, separated and founded the Park Congregational church in Norwich, where he remained as pastor until 1878, when, on account of his wife's health, he went to St. Paul, Minn., where he became pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church. During his ministry there six branch churches were established.

In 1888 he went to the Kirk Street church in Lowell, Mass., remaining its pastor for six years. In 1887 he was sent as vice president of the Minnesota state board of charities and corrections to England to inspect the British prison system and to report on their standing.

He was twice chaplain of the Minnesota state legislature, for seven years chaplain of the Minnesota Congregational board of missions, and also one of the founders and presidents of the Congregational club of Minnesota, and at one time editor of The Advance. Many of his sermons have been published, and he was the author of a history of Carleton college at Northfield, Minn. of which he was a director and trustee.

His principal work of late years was in the line of temperance reform and sociological study. Since he left Lowell, in 1894, he has resided in Brooklyn, where he has frequently supplied pulpits in prominent Congregational churches. He was twice married, and leaves two sons and a daughter by his first wife.

Killed by Peculiar Accident.

Chester, Pa., July 26.—James B. Campbell, ex-city clerk of Chester, was killed yesterday afternoon by a most peculiar accident. He was one of a party standing on the government pier awaiting the Wilmington (Del.) passenger steamboat. A steam tug which was lying at the pier with a hawser attached to a post began to move, and the hawser, becoming taut, slipped over the top of the post and, whirling rapidly through the air, caught Campbell under the chin. The rope encircled itself tightly about his neck, lifted the unfortunate man 10 feet in the air and then dropped him to the pier. His neck was broken and he was found to be dead when the horror stricken spectators ran to assist him.

Blunder In Tariff Bill.

San Francisco, July 26.—The customs officials here have discovered a blunder in the new tariff bill which may be troublesom to importers. Section 261 of the schedule provides that the duty on "apples, peaches, currants, etc.," shall be 25 cents a bushel. But section 263 provides that the duty on a number of fruits, including "currants and others" shall be 2 cents per pound.

REVIEW OF CONGRESS.

Condensed History of Extraordinary Session Just Ended.

Tariff Bill Was, of Course, the Leading Feature

But Many Other Matters of Importance Were Disposed Of.

Washington, July 26.—The extraordinary session of congress, which has just ended, was called by President McKinley two days after he took the oath of office. It met in pursuance to this proclamation at noon, March 15. The special message transmitted by him to both houses on the opening day was brief. It explained the deficiencies in the revenues, reviewed the bond issues of the last administration and urged congress promptly to correct the then existing conditions by passing a tariff bill that would supply ample revenues for the support of the government and the liquidation of the public debt. No other subject of legislation was mentioned in the message, and the tariff bill has been the all-absorbing feature of the session.

The Republican members of the ways and means committee of the preceding house had worked throughout the short session, which ended March 4, giving hearings and preparing the bill which was to be submitted at the extra session. Three days after the session opened the tariff bill was reported to the house by the ways and means committee, and 13 days later, March 31, 1897, it passed the house. It went to the senate, referred to the committee on finance and the Republican members of that committee spent a month and three days in its consideration and in preparing the amendments which were submitted to the senate May 4.

Its consideration was begun in the senate May 7, and exactly two months later, July 7, it passed the senate with 872 amendments. The bill then went to conference, where, after a 10 days' struggle, on July 17, a complete agreement was reached by which the senate receded from 118 amendments and the house from 511. The others, 243 in number, were compromised. The conference report was adopted by the house July 19 at the conclusion of 12 hours of continuous debate. The report was taken up in the senate July 20, and adopted Saturday, July 24. The tariff bill was signed by the president the same day.

Congress did not devote its attention entirely to the tariff, though it did subordinate everything else to this one measure. Four appropriation bills, which failed on March 4 last, in themselves would have compelled President McKinley to call congress in extra session even if the necessity for a revision of the tariff had not existed.

The appropriation bills were the sundry civil, the agricultural, the Indian and the general deficiency. These bills were introduced and passed by the house in the identical form in which they existed at the time of their failure of enactment into law at the preceding congress, but they were amended in some important particulars by the senate, and when they finally became laws contained more or less legislation of interest and importance. The general deficiency carried a provision accepting the invitation to take part in the Paris exposition in 1900, and appropriated $25,000 to defray the expenses, and appropriated $150,000 for a new immigrant station at New York to replace the one destroyed by fire.

Price of Armor Plate Fixed.

By far the most important piece of legislation in the bill, however, was that limiting the cost of armor plates for the three new battleships to $300 per ton. In case the secretary of the navy should find it impossible to make contracts for armor within the price fixed, he was authorized by this provision to take steps to establish a government armor factory of sufficient capacity to make the armor. In executing this authority he must prepare a description and plans and specifications of the land, buildings and machinery suitable for the factory; advertise for proposals and report to congress at its next session.

In the Indian bill, after a severe struggle in both houses, the question of secretarian schools was settled by the following declaration of the policy of the government:

That the secretary of the interior may make contracts with contract schools apportioning as near as may be the amount so contracted for among schools of various denominations for the education of Indian pupils during the fiscal year 1898, but shall only make such contracts at places where non-secretarian schools cannot be provided for such Indian children and to an amount not exceeding 40 per cent of the amount so used for the fiscal year 1895.

The question of opening to entry the rich gilsonite deposits in the Uncompahgre reservation in Utah was also compromised by opening such agricultural land as have not been allotted to the Uncompahgre Indians on April 1, 1898, to entry, but reserving to the United States title in all lands containing gilsonite, asphalt or other like substances.

In the sundry civil bill the most important new provision was that suspending the order of President Cleveland setting aside about 21,000,000 acres as forest reservation land. The law also includes a general scheme of legislation for the government and protection of the forest reservations of the country.

The Republican leaders of the house decided at the opening of the session to pursue a policy of inaction in order to throw the responsibility for delaying the tariff bill upon the senate, and therefore no committees were announced until the close of the session, and only urgent matters were considered.

Fifty thousand dollars were appropriated for the relief of American citizens in Cuba at the solicitation of the president; $200,000 was appropriated for the relief of the Mississippi flood sufferers; a resolution was passed authorizing the secretary of the navy to transport supplies contributed for the relief of the poor and famishing in India, and $50,000 was appropriated for the entertainment and expenses of the delegates to the universal postal convention, who met in this city.

The only extensive pieces of general legislation enacted by this congress, except the tariff bill, were the laws to prevent collisions at sea and to place in force regulations to prevent collisions upon certain harbors, rivers and inland waters of the United States, and the bill authorizing the president to suspend discriminating duties on foreign vessels and commerce.

Special Work of Senate.

The senate not being confined as to the scope of its legislation dealt with a number of important subjects, both in and out of executive session. One of these, which attracted world-wide attention, was the general arbitration treaty negotiated with Great Britain. After exhaustive consideration, despite the great pressure brought to bear upon the senate by religious and commercial bodies throughout the country, the senate rejected it. The Hawaiian treaty of annexation, negotiated by President McKinley, was still unacted upon when congress adjourned.

In open session, after much debate, the senate passed the Cuban belligerency resolution, a bankruptcy bill, including both voluntary and involuntary features, and the "free home bill." But none of these important questions received consideration in the house.

The following minor bills and joint resolutions became laws, managing to escape objection from any member: Authorizing the secretary of war to receive for instruction at the military academy at West Point Carlos Gutierrez of Salvador; to amend an act entitled "an act to provide for the entry of lands in Greer county, Oklahoma, to give preference rights to settlers and for other purposes," approved Jan. 18, 1897; reappropriating $10,000 not expended for the relief of the Mississippi river flood sufferers at El Paso, Tex.; authorizing foreign exhibitors at the trans-Mississippi and international exposition, to be held in the city of Omaha during the year 1898; to bring to the United States foreign laborers from their countries, respectively, for the purpose of preparing for and making exhibits; to provide for the immediate repair of dry dock No. 3, at the New York navy yard; making appropriation for the improvement of the Mississippi river from the head of the passes to the mouth of the Ohio river and to supply deficiencies in appropriation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897; and three bills authorizing the constructions of bridges across the Pearl river, Miss.; the St. Louis river, between Minnesota and Wisconsin, and across the Clinch river, Tenn.

Alaskan Indians May Fight.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 26.—From a miner who came down from Alaska on the Portland it is learned that 200 Indians of the Stick tribe were contemplating coming to the coast at the head of yea inlet for the purpose of packing freight across the divide and rafting it across the lakes and down the Yukon river to the mining fields. If the intention is carried out Alaska will have a full-fledged Indian war, as the Chilkat tribe has always warned the Sticks and other interior tribes not to come to the coast to engage in any industries. The work of packing freight over the divide has long been monopolized by the Chilkats.

Temperance Work In Kansas.

Topeka, July 26.—Renewed activity in the effort to enforce the prohibitory law is being manifested throughout the state. Temperance people have become alarmed over the boldness of the Jointists and are stirring up the officials to suppress the violators. Judge Guthrie, who has been keeping close watch on the temperance situation in the state, says that the wave of prohibitory law enforcement is very likely to increase until the running of saloons, except possibly in the large cities, will become a hazardous undertaking.

Cubans Will Not Compromise.

Madrid, July 26.—It is stated that General Maximo Gomez, the leader of the Cuban insurgents, has reaffirmed his determination not to accept a compromise with the government, but to adhere to his demand for the absolute independence of Cuba.

MUST OPPOSE ANNEXATION.

Japanese Officials Express Their Policy Regarding Hawaii.

San Francisco, July 26.—The steamship China has arrived from Hong Kong and Yokomama, bringing Japanese advices to July 7. The Japanese papers contain more fully an interview with Count Okuma, the Japanese minister of foreign affairs, a brief synopsis of which was telegraphed to Vancouver a few days ago. In the interview, which was published in The Yomikiri, Count Okuma is quoted as saying, relative to the proposed annexation of Hawaii to by the United States:

"Japan will oppose it to the utmost. The annexation must not be recognized. England has repeatedly attempted to make Egypt dependent, but, France being positively opposed to that arrangement, England is obliged to abide by the statu quo. Just in the same way Japan must oppose the annexation to the utmost, and must stand by this resolution resolutely.

"Japan has communicated to England, Germany and France the reasons for her protest against annexation. They may send their answers before long After all no excitement should be raised against this affair."

Mr. Oshi, prime minister of agriculture and commerce, who is regarded as one of the lieutenants of Count Okuma, according to the Japanese, is said to have spoken of the annexation in the following manner:

"We have now made vigorous protests to the United States, with a view of maintaining the peace of the Pacific. This is a great advance in Japanese diplomacy. Just see how many countries in the world which would dare to proffer such a protest against the United States. Even the so-called powers of Europe concede a step to the United States."

A RAID FEARED.

Deputies Armed With Rifles Have Gone to De Armit's Mines.

Pittsburg, July 26.—Sixty deputy sheriffs, armed with rifles, went at midnight to the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company in anticipation of any raid that may be made. But s the strikers' officials declare that the contemplated march has been abandoned, no conflict is expected. Another march on Cannonsburg was begun last night. A big meeting of the miners was held at Reissing yesterday afternoon They were informed that the Allison mine intended to resume work this morning, and in a very short time it was decided to make another tramp across the country and re-enforce the 100 strikers that have been on guard. They will remain until tomorrow morning.

Last evening more than 500 determined men from Cecil, Reissing and Bridgeville were mobilized at Bridgeville. They started on the march with the American flag at their head. Nearly all the men carried a dinner pail, and they looked like a regiment of toilers going to work.

The whole country side along the line of march turned out to witness the sight.

Nothingw as done in the way of arbitration yesterday. The commissioners rested and expect to accomplish considerable today. They will endeavor to enlist more of the river operators and have every reason to hope that they will b successful.

Riveira Is Now Well.

Havana, July 26.—General Ruis Riveira, the insurgent leader who succeeded Antonio Maceo in Pinar Del Rio, and who, with his chief of staff, Colonel Bacallao, was captured in March last, after having been seriously wounded, has recovered from the effects of his wound and the illness from which he suffered. He has been removed from the hospital to the Cabanas fortress. General Riveira, according to the officials, expressed himself as well satisfied with the treatment he received while in the hospital. It was found not to be necessary to perform an operation for the removal of the tumor from which General Riveira suffered.

McNally's Great Swim.

London, July 26.—Peter McNally, the Boston swimmer, who was scheduled to make an attempt to swim the English channel on July 4, made the attempt Saturday. He was in the water 13 hours, in which time he covered 35 miles. He landed at a point three miles from Cape Griz Nez.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIMES.

William L. Whitcomb, a carpenter, fell overboard in Portland harbor and was drowned.

Owen Finnegan, aged 41, was drowned at Sharon, Mass., yesterday. He was seized with a cramp while swimming.

Enoch Ingersoll, who is said to be a second cousin of Robert G. Ingersoll, attempted to committ suicide at New York last night.

Thomas Martin, aged 27, was drowned yesterday at Boston. It is thought he was seized with a fit while standing on a wharf.

A dark bay horse and a new Amesbury wagon belonging to John Seavey of Saco, Me., were stolen from his barn Saturday night.

Benjamin Simon, a 14-year-old New York schoolboy, because he failed to pass the examination at the College of the City of New York, being deficient in drawing, drowned himself in the Hudson river.

Gunner Thomas R. Wilson, U. S. N., aged 62, (retired) died yesterday at Portsmouth, N. H. He entered the navy during the war and made a good record. He leaves a widow, two sons and one daughter.

The dead body of Oakes A. Drinkwater, aged 43, of Allston, Mass., was found in bed in his own house last evening. The gas was turned on full, and death was due to inhaling of the gas. Mrs. Drinkwater, the widow of the dead man, is in Maine.

The Twenty-fifth United States infantry bicycle corps reached St. Louis Saturday night, completing their 2000 mile ride from Fort Missoula, Mont., in 40 days, 35 of which were actually spent on the road. The troopers, who are colored men, are the guests of the local bicycle clubs.

The condition of John Tuck of Lynn, Mass., who Saturday night attempted to kill Miss Grace McMahon, and then thrust the blade of a shoemaker's knife into his bosom, is unchanged. He has not recovered consciousness, and faint hopes are entertained for his recovery. Miss McMahon's wounds are not considered serious, but she is suffering from nervous prostration and hysteria.

MYSTERY DEEPENING.

The Cash Book Kept by Miss Alice Barrett Was Burned.

Nothing to Indicate That She Was Dishonest.

The Dead Girl's Relatives Still Think That She Was Murdered.

Boston, July 27.—The most astounding revelation of yesterday, during the progress of the investigation into the death of Alice M. Barrett, who committed suicide in the office of Codman & Codman, 40 Kilby street, last Saturday, was the discovery of the loss of the cash book of the concern, and the finding of some of its half burned leaves in the pile of rubbish which had been shovelled into a rear areaway by the members of the protective department when cleaning up the debris from the fire.

The full significance of this find cannot at present be determined. It is assumed by some that is shows that Miss Barrett was a defaulter—that she had been using the money of the firm and had burned the cash book in order to destroy all evidence of guilt.

This is a harsh assumption, however, and is modified and almost contradicted by some of the other elements in the case. There is no doubt that $800 of her own money was lost in a wildcat speculation by a man to whom it had been loaned. The supposition accompanying the discovery of the burned cash book was that additional funds had been advanced to this person, and that these funds might have been borrowed from the cash box o fCodman & Codman..

The police are evidently impressed with this idea, but there is a flat contradiction in the fact that Miss Barrett had over $500 left in her own savings bank account. A girl of her character and ideas of honesty would be apt to make use of her own money before taking that of her employer, even if she were caught in the fever of speculation. More than that, it seems probable that if she had borrowed from the cash box in the office she would have made good the amount instead of running the risk of detection. That she did not do so is shown by the presence of about $300 in the savings bank in her name, and by the fact that as late as last Saturday morning, a few hours before her death, she deposited $40 on that account.

The discovery of these charred leaves of the cash book was not the only exciting incident of the day. It was ascertained that the revolver from which the fatal bullet was fired, and which was found by the body of the dead girl on the floor of the office, had been purchased by herself at the store of the John P. Lovell Arms company, corner of Washington and Cornhill.

It was also ascertained that Miss Barrett had been making preparations during the last week for some extraordinary event. One peculiar fact was that she made a will, and the other is that during the week she had been gathering her effects together.

To the unbiased outsider these facts, together with those which have already been detailed, confirm the theory of suicide, but still the members of the family adhere to the opinion that the girl was either murdered or else accidently shot herself while placing the revolver in the safe.

The idea advanced that lightning had nothing whatever to do with the fire received additional confirmation yesterday. Assistant Chief Regan of the fire department, Commissioner of Wires Flood and his electricians, and the experts of the insurance companies unite in the declaration that there is no evidence that lightning touched the building.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT.

Weather In New England Continues to Be Most Unfavorable.

Boston, July 27.—The precipitation on the 22nd varied in amount from one inch to four inches, and occurring after the excessive rains of the previous week it was far from beneficial. Heavy thunderstorms prevailed in parts of Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts on the 23rd and 24th, beating down crops and causing other damage. The week, therefore, was generally unfavorable. Many crops on low soils have stood in water since the 13th; haying has been interrupted and grains badly lodged.

Maine.

Last week began with good haying weather, but the frequent showers during the latter part "caught" much that had been cut and makes it very hard to secure the crop in favorable condition. A correspondent in Kennebec county states that probably thousands of tons in that county alone is damaged. Lowlands are still too wet to mow with machines. Cultivated crops are making rapid growth, but grain is flattened by wind and lodged badly. Oats are showing rust in Oxford county.

New Hampshire.

Only two good haying days last week; a large portion of this crop has been injured by showers; the second growth, however, is good, and bids fair to make a heavy crop of rowen. A hailstorm in Cheshire county on the 23rd caused great damage to corn, grain and grass. Elsewhere corn is gaining fast. Potatoes are looking badly and show signs of rot and rust. Oats and barley are late. A good crop of rye is cut in Hillsboro county. Native blueberries are about the only fruit ripening now; they are an average crop.

Vermont.

The same complaint is heard from this state in regard to haymaking; too much showery weather, and much of the crop is damaged. Corn and potatoes are doing first rate, although backward yet. No signs of potato rust. Small grains are fine. Apples few.

Massachusetts.

The weather of the week has been generally damp and unsettled; good growing weather, but unfavorable for farm work. The rains have spoiled a large amount of mown hay, and much remains uncut. Meadows and lowlands are very wet for any kind of cultivation. This does not apply to the southeastern part of the state, where the rains have been light, and with fairly warm temperatures, all crops have made good growth. Corn has made a rapid growth and the early corn is coming into blossom. Potatoes show indications of rot in some localities and are not yielding as well as last year. All garden crops look well.

Rhode Island.

Rain occurred each day of last week, resulting in poor harvesting conditions. Many potato fields are blighted, but the crop is half dug and the damage will probably not be great. Corn is looking well. Rye, where cut early, is a fine crop, but much was damaged by recent gales, and continued wetness has interfered with curing. Oats also have suffered, impossible to cure properly.

Connecticut.

Crops on low soils have been standing in water since the recent great rains, and must be damaged considerably, but on good drainage ground everything has made rapid progress. There has been, however, practically no harvesting of any kind. Haying is about at a standstill. Blight is seen on onions and potatoes, but no rot. Corn getting rank growth. Oats lodging badly; nearly ready for cutting. The rye crop was greatly damaged by rain.

J. W. Smith,

New Bedford's Semi-Centennial.

New Bedford, Mass., July 27.—The New Bedford semi-centennial committee has decided to arrange the new car shed of the Union Ssreet railway for the industrial exhibition. This gives 26,000 feet of floor space, and the indications are that the industrial exhibit in October will exceed anything of the kind ever attempted in New England, outside of Boston. Another matter arranged for was the establishment of a museum as a permanent feature of the semi-centennial. The Morgan estate, located in the centre of the city, will be secured, and with the wealth of curiosities collected from all over the world by New Bedford sailors, the museum promises to be an important feature. A letter has been received from ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii, expressing her apperciation of New Bedford, and intimating the probability of her attendance at the semi-centennial..

Lawsuits Impending.

Onset Bay, Mass., July 27.—Prominent landholders and cottagers at Onset Bay campground have obtained legal advice and announce their determination to contest the recent action of the directors of the Onset Bay Grove association and the directors of the Onset Bay camp meeting lessees. The latter have erected a picket fence around the open air Auditorium park, where the Spiritualist meetings are held, and the lot owners claim that there is a movement to cause the parks and public grounds to revert back to the stockholders of the Onset Bay Grove association. A Boston legal firm has been retained in the interest of the opposition or lot owners. There is considerable feeling here over the affair, in which the Spiritualists, lot owners, mediums and business men take sides, with the intention possibly of figuring in the impending legal trouble.

Placard on Catholic School.

Bangor, Me., July 27.—Another threatening placard was posted upon the door of St. Mary's Catholic school last night, the fourth of the kind within a few weeks. Great excitement has been caused by these outrages, and it is feared that unless they cease, or the guilty persons are caught soon, there will be serious trouble. The police have accomplished nothing in the matter. Vicar General O'Brien has no fear that the school will be burned, but he and other thinking people deprecate this effort to stir up sectarian strife.

Was Subject to Epilepsy.

Augusta, Me., July 27.—F. Lewellyn Johnson of Hallowell, aged 60, died in this city yesterday of epilepsy. He had been subect to attacks of this description for some years. He had driven with a friend to this city yesterday, and had alone walked to the shore of the river on the west bank, just north of the bridge. There he seemed to sit down, and in a few seconds fell over backward. He is survived by a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Elmer Brown of Boston.

FOR FROZEN KLONDIKE.

Another Steamer Filled With Miners Leaves Port Townsend.

Freight Blockade Said to Exist at Dyea Inlet.

United States Army Post to Be Established at Circle City.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 27.—The steamer Mexico has left here with 400 passengers, all except 50 being bound for the gold fields. They went well provisioned and equipped. Many have supplies for a three-years' stay. The party was made up of men representing all callings and professions, including many veterans who joined the similar rush to the gold fields in California nearly half a century ago.

The steamer City of Topeka has arrived from Alaska. She brings news that the Klondyke fever is on the increase at Juneau, nearly every able-bodied man either having gone there or is prepared to go to the rich fields. Authentic reports direct from Dyea are that there is now as much freight piled up at the head of the inlet as the Indians can pack over the divide in the next 18 months. This amount of freight will be more than doubled with the steamers Queen and Mexico, now en route, arrive. This condition of affairs practically precludes the possibility of hundreds of the gold seekers reaching the mining region this year.

Frank F. Myers, a Juneau newspaper man, will leave here in two weeks for Dawson City. He will go by the route followed by Lieutenant Schwatke, who conducted an exploring party into the Yukon valley in 1889. This route starts from Takou inlet, 30 miles south of Juneau, from Takou to Lake Testin, a distance of 130 miles, over level prairies, and the country from Lake Testin is an open valley through to Yukon river by way of the Hootinghua river. With the aid of pack horses the Takou route is by far the more preferable. It is possible that a stage line will be operated over this route.

Military Post for Alaska.

Washington, July 27.—The president and Secretary Alger have decided to detail an army officer and a company of soldiers from the regular army for service in Alaska. The matter is yet in very indefinite shape, but details will be arranged as soon as possible in order that the soldiers may get into the vicinity of the gold country before navigation closes on the Yukon river. They will be sent to their destination via the Yukon river route, and the offer of one of the shipping companies on the Pacific coast to transport the men and their baggage and stores will probably be accepted. The exact location of the camp or post has not yet been determined upon, but it is expected to be Circle City.

An army officer now in the field, and who has had experience in such matters, his been invited to take charge of the company, and an answer is expected from him very soon. The detail of men who will go will be made from one of the posts in the West, but just which one is not yet finally settled on. The officials are anxious to locate the soldiers in the gold country as soon as possible, and if it can be arranged they will be sent on the steamer sailing early in August.

At present no troops are in that vast territory, and in view of the heavy immigration now going on, and the possible danger to life and property from lawless characters, he has been urged to create an Alaskan military post.

The commercial interests of the territory are at the bottom of the movement, and have requested that a company of infantry and a gatling gun brigade be located at a post to be christened "Fort Alger," near the boundary line, about 250 miles west of Klondyke and 2200 miles above the mouth of the Yukon river. This body of troops is asked for to support the civil authorities in the administration of law and for the protection of vested rights.

Mexico's Klondyke.

City of Mexico, July 27.—It is predicted here that when the gold placer mining is developed in the state of Guerrero more gold will be taken out than in the Klondyke region. Some placer mining is being done with excellent results and labor is cheap and water abundant, even in the dry season. One miner, and old Californian, reports taking out $24,000 in gold in May, and his average is $15,000 per month. The Indians in Sonora will work in a crude way in the local gold placers, only operating when in pressing need of money, get larger returns for very little labor and an explorer who has recently been through the remotest regions states that Sonora will equal California in its palmiest days as a gold producer.

Klondyke Is Free to All.

Ottawa, July 27.—The cabinet has decided not to attempt to enforce the allen law in the Klondyke district. The subject of royalty in gold output was discussed, but was left over. Eighty additional mounted police will be sent, however, to maintain law and order, and the United States authorities at Washington will be asked to give the right of way through disputed territory. Two custom officers will be sent to Lake Tagish, on the British frontier, to collect customs duty.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

A cool week.

Mrs. Charles H. Penniman goes to Lynn today for a brief visit.

Mr. C. R. Safford and family have gone to Elgin, N. B., for two weeks.

Miss Maud Williams of South Deerfield is the guest of Mr. Harry W. Read.

Miss Amy Newcomb of Howard street is at Sheldonville, R. I., for a short stay.

Miss Hight of Neponset is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, Walker street.

Miss Emma T. Binford of Dorchester is the guest of Miss Alice Bugbee of Norfolk Downs.

An average tax rate of $14.22 for the past 25 years is not excessive. That's Quincy's record.

Miss Marion Fetridge of Woburn has been the guest of Miss Bertha Nichols of Botolph street.

Mrs. George A. Sidelinger and two children, Esther and Roy are in Middleport, N. Y., for a few weeks.

A concert will be given in Music hall, Atlantic, this evening, under the auspices of the Sacred Heart Sunday School.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown entertained thirty of the fresh air fund children at New Downer Landing one day last week.

Hon. William B. Rice is on the committee of business men who have charge of the dinner to Secretary of the Treasury Gage today at Hotel Tuelleries, Boston.

Thieves entered the house of Harry W. Read on Squantum street while they were away in New Hampshire last week, but, as far as can be ascertained, nothing was stolen.

The picnic of the Washington Street Congregational church Sunday school last week was largely attended. Everybody was pleased with the place and enjoyed the day. Thanks are extended to the management of the railroad for its able assistance.

Rev. W. Sherman Thompson, a former pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church, will preach at the church on Sunday, both morning and evening. The evening service will be held in the auditorium and there will be extra singing by the choir.

The Q. & B. Base Ball club will have as their opponents at Merry Mount park tomorrow afternoon Division 1 of the West End street railway. Game called at 3 o'clock. An exciting contest may be looked for as the visitors claim the championship of railway ball clubs.

Little Miss Marjorie Penniman observed her fifth birthday anniversary Monday by entertaining a number of young tots of her own age. The afternoon was passed with games and refreshments. Miss Marjorie received a number of birthday remembrances from her young friends.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

It takes about three seconds for a message to go from one end of the Atlantic cable to the other.

One hundred and twenty firemen are required to feed the furnaces of a first-class Atlantic steamer.

England consists of 37,000,000 of acres, Scotland 19,500,000 and Ireland 20,500,000.

VALUATION OVER 18 MILLION.

The Increase Was $431,632 Against $254,660 Last Year.

The Tax Rate of $18.80 Is a Record Breaker for Quincy.

Increase in Maturing Debt Responsible for Entire Increase in the Rate.

The tax rate of Quincy for 1897 is $18.80. It is a record breaker, as expected, yet few towns or cities with a much shorter history can say that their tax rate has never been as high. In Weymouth it is over $20 and in Brockton it promises to be over $20. The Brockton rate is higher than Quincy every year. Progressive cities must expect to keep the wheels well greased, and so long as the money is economically and judiciously expended as in Quincy there will be but little complaint. Quincy is progressive. It is fast acquiring all that is required in modern life:—Water works, sewers, substantial schoolhouses, public library building, good streets, etc., etc.

The Assessors for 1897 are several weeks ahead of other years, for their figures are rarely announced in July. They report the following valuation for 1897:

Valuation of 1897.

Ward.	Personal Estate.	Real Estate.	Total Valuation.
One,	$1,130,100	$4,716,250	$5,846,350
Two,	281,800	1,593 275	1,875,075
Three,	295,675	2,006,325	2,301,400
Four,	271,600	2,037,925	2,309,525
Five,	232,025	3,047,950	3,279,975
Six,	57,500	2,155,775	2,213,275
Bank Stock,	186,546		186,546
City,	$2,454,646	$15,557,500	$18,012,146

Compared with 1896 there is an increase of nearly half a million dollars in valuation, as will be seen from the figures of last year appended. Over half the gain was in the Wollaston ward, while the Centre and Atlantic wards show up well. A gain is noted in South and West Quincy and a loss at Quincy Point. All wards gained in value of real estate, but the Wollaston ward was the only one to increase its personal property.

Valuation of 1896.

Ward.	Personal Estate.	Real Estate.	Total Valuation.
One,	$1,199,625	$4,553,050	$5,752,675
Two,	317,650	1,574,675	1,892,325
Three,	318,500	1,970,900	2,289,400
Four,	283,050	1,999,125	2,282,175

City,	$2,583,115	$14,997,400	$17,580,515

Increase in Valuation.

The increase in valuation of the city is shown in the summary below, the gain for the past year being $431,632, and for the nine years of the city $8,254,187,

Year.	Valuation.	Gain.
1888,	$9,757,960
1889,	12,319,245	$2,561,285

THE LEVY.

The levy of 1897 is considerable larger than ever. The total is $350,690 34 against $317,612.96 in 1896, $302,740 36 in 1895, $307,827.20 in 1894, $273,947 50 in 1893, $259,772.72 in 1892, and $206,542.60 in 1891. The figures which make up the levies of this year and last year are given herewith. The only reduction is in the State tax. The most noticeable increase is in the city debt maturing and the interest account. The gain in polls helps out some, but it is offset by increase in overlayings. The county tax which was always smaller than the State tax is this year twice as large.

THE TAX RATE.

The tax rate of $18.80 is high for Quincy as will be seen by a summary of the tax rates for 106 years. During the seventy odd years of Quincy's history up to 1865, the rate of taxation never exceeded $10 per $1,000, but since the war with one exception it has not been less than $10. The highest rate under a town government was in 1869, when the rate was $17 50, and it reached $17 only three times, averaging $14 to $15. During the last few years of the town government it increased rapidly, reaching $16.70 in 1888 and would have gone to $20 had not Quincy become a city. With the city came a limit to the amount which could be levied, and a debt was inevitable. This debt has been apportioned so carelessly that $64,720 out of $306,335.61 of the public debt matured this year. Had only ten or twelve per cent. matured the rate this year would have been less than last year. The rates since 1865 have been:

In 1865,	$13 00	1882,	$16 00
1866,	13 00	1883,	14 00
1867,	17 00	1884,	15 00
1868,	15 00	1885,	13 60
1869,	17 50	1886,	15 40
1870,	13 60	1887,	15 80
1871,	16 00	1888,	16 70
1872,	13 00	1889,	10 80
1873,	17 00	1890,	13 60
1874,	15 00	1891,	13 60
1875,	15 00	1892,	16 00
1876,	14 00	1893,	15 80
1877,	14 00	1894,	17 60
1878,	9 00	1895,	16 80
1879,	13 20	1896,	17 40
1880,	15 00	1897,	18 80
1881,	12 50

Town vs. City.

The comparison of the city and town rates is in favor of the town if we take the average for the nine city years and compare with the last nine of the old town, as will be seen:

TOWN. Year.	Rate.	CITY. Year.	Rate.
1880,	$15 00	1889,	$10 80
1881,	12 50	1890,	13 60
1882,	16 00	1891,	13 60
1883,	15 00	1892,	16 00
1884,	15 00	1893,	15 80
1885,	13 60	1894,	17 60
1886,	15 40	1895,	16 80
1887,	15 80	1896,	17 40
1888,	16 70	1897,	18 80
Total,	$135 00	Total,	$140 40
Average,	$15 00	Average,	$15 60

Quincy is in the field so early with its tax rate that few comparisons can be made with other cities, and it is the high ones which are usually late. In Lynn the rate is $17.40; in Newburyport $15.40, and in Somerville $17 80. The increase in Somerville was $2 40 per $1,000.

Other interesting comparisons of the valuation will be made in tomorrow's LEDGER

BANGED THE BRIDGE.

The Steamer Victor Makes a Poor Landing Today.

The steamer Victor, Capt. Hopkins, attempted to make a landing at Quincy Point this noon and in doing so the steamer banged into the bridge splitting the piles and knocking the bridge out of shape, making it almost impassible for carriages. The steamer had a picnic party on board, but fortunately no one was injured.

FENCE DID IT.

Likely to Cost the City $10,000 to $15,000 at Wollaston.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council held a meeting Monday evening at which the matter of the extension of Brook street under the railroad to Woodbine street was brought up. While no definite action was taken the matter will be brought up at the City Council meeting next Monday evening, that a report may be received from the Mayor.

When the matter was before the City Council of 1896 the Mayor was requested to confer with the New York and New Haven railroad in relation to the widening of Beale street bridge and the extension of Brook street under the railroad track.

The Mayor held a conference with the railroad and reported to the Council that the total cost would be $30,000 of which expense the railroad would pay $18,000; leaving $12,000 for the city to pay.

The City Council then requested the Mayor to have another conference with the railroad and see if the railroad would not pay $20,000 leaving $10,000 for the City's share.

It is said, however, that the mayor has never reported on the latter proposition and this is what he will be asked to do next Monday evening.

The Finest in the World.

The Seaside and White Mountains Special Limited Vestibuled Train now operated by the Grand Trunk Railway System, between Chicago und Old Orchard beach, is without doubt the finest train of its kind in the world. This magnificent train is for the accommodation of tourist travel from the west to the many beautiful summer resorts in the east, and also for those who contemplate a trip to the west and desire the very best accommodations. It is composed of a Pullman wide composite, dining, drawing room, sleeping, parlor, library and observation cars. It also has a bath room, barber shop and a beautifully appointed gentlemen's lounging and smoking room with buffet and library.

This train is lighted by electricity. It leaves Chicago every Thursday at 10 A. M., running via Port Huron, Michigan, Hamilton, Ont., Toronto and Kingston, where steamers can be taken for trip through the Thousand Islands and the Rapids of the St. Lawrence to Montreal, and thence to Portland and Old Orchard. Returning it leaves Old Orchard every Sunday at 7 55 P. M., Portland at 9 P. M., and Montreal every Monday at 8 30 A. M.

One of the most interesting features of this train service will be found in a lady attendant, who will prove of great assistance to ladies, especially those travelling alone. See that your tickets read via the Grand Trunk Railway System, and if accommodations are required on this train communicate with Thos. Wynne, Travelling Passenger Agent Grand Trunk Railway System, Room No. 20, 194 Washington Street, Boston Mass.

RHEUMATISM

Is caused by Uric Acid and other impurities lingering in the blood, which have not been filtered out by the Kidneys through the urine. The seat of the trouble is not in the skin or muscles. It's sick Kidneys. Electricity, liniments or plasters will not reach the case. But the disease can be

CURED

I have been afflicted with Rheumatism and kidney trouble twenty years or more, and have tried most everything I could hear of. A friend of mine in New York sent me a box of your Sparagus Kidney Pills, and before I finished the box, I was better, and have nearly finished the second box. The rheumatism has left me. I have been living here only two months, but have come across three persons who are troubled as I am, or was, and have recommended your pills to them. I can be instrumental in selling a great many. I have lived in Denver, Colo. My son publishes the Railroad Gazette there.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

of reaching us—send your maid, or your child, or your neighbor's child, or come yourself.

It's all the same to us.

You're sure, in any case, that your order will be treated with courteous promptness, and that the price on each article will be "right."

Nevertheless, we suggest that you have one of our wagons call regularly—taking your orders and later delivering the goods.

However, we don't want you to absent yourself a'together—come in often enough to catch the inspiration of a well-kept grocery store. But let our wagons do most of the work—that's what they're for.

Every article in our stock is marked when put on sale, so no one buys less than another, except of course in large quantities, when a discount is made.

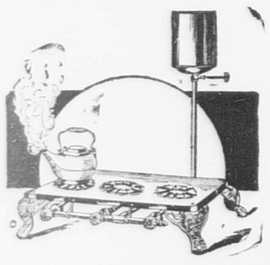

Our system of delivery is perfect, covering all parts of Quincy, and orders received by mail or otherwise will be promptly delivered. To those who do not find it convenient to come to our store and who do not care to have wagon call, we will supply addressed postal cards to send orders on.

We would solicit special trial order of our TEAS, COFFEE and FLOUR, as we know we can please you if you will give us a chance to try.

A VETO BY MAYOR.

No Appropriation Made for Nightingale Avenue as Required.

It is understood that the Mayor has vetoed the order laying out Nightingale avenue as a public way, giving as his reason that no appropriation was made to carry out the order.

This is evidently one on the Committee on Streets. When the matter was before the Committee on Streets they made a visit, and as it was understood there was to be no expense to the city. They voted to report favorable on the petition, and the petitioners were told to have a plan made.

This the petitioners did but the plan as drawn necessitated some expense. When the plan was presented to the Committee on Streets, for some reason unknown, they neglected to examine it as should have been done, but put it in with the order and it was passed.

Then the matter went to the Mayor with the result as above noted.

TODAY'S COURT.

Clarence W. Rowley was arraigned for breaking and entering, and the larceny of furniture from Rose Murphy at Braintree.

Sometime recently Mrs. Murphy's husband sold to Rowley, a Boston attorney, for $75, his place at Braintree, together with his furniture. When Rowley went to obtain his goods he found that Mrs. Murphey had locked it up. She also claimed that she owned some of the furniture. Rowley opened the shop where the goods were and took them away, and at the same time told Mrs. Murphy that if any of the goods were hers she could have them.

Rowley was represented by Lawyer Curran of Boston, and when the defence began its case Rowley was the first witness.

The defence attempted to introduce as testimony, the contents of the bill of sale of Mr. Murphy, but the court ruled that the papers should be produced and if they could not, then that a continuance should be asked to produce them.

Upon that Lawyer Curran said that this was the most unjust and unfair court of justice he had ever pleaded in. This remark was also repeated by Rowley, who was on the witness stand.

The court called a halt and told Curran to sit down, but as he did not, both the witness and Curran were put in contempt and given in charge of the court officer.

The court then told Curran he must apologize or the case could not go on, and a recess of an hour was ordered.

During the recess the parties interested came to an agreement and when the case was again called the defendant was discharged.

Probably Fatally Burned.

Hyde Park, Mass., July 27.—Miss Margaret Rooney, a milliner, was probably fatally injured in her store here yesterday while burning refuse. Her clothing caught fire, and she was terribly burned about the body. She rushed into the postoffice, and in extinguishing the flames George Walters, a clerk, was burned about the hands and arms. Henry Cutter had both hands badly blistered in putting out the fire in the store, which caught from Miss Rooney's clothing.

Girl Burned to Death.

Chelsea, Mass., July 27.—Bessie Hoffenburg, 16 years old, daughter of Morris Hoffenburg, was fatally burned while at work at a cook stove at her home yesterday afternoon, and died at the hospital four hours later. She was preparing the evening meal, when her dress caught fire, and she ran screaming into the street, a mass of flames. Lieutenant Hewey of the police force saw her and extinguished the flames with a blanket.

An Ex-Banker Released.

New York, July 27.—Horace G. Allis, formerly president of the First National bank of Little Rock, Ark., was released from the Kings county penitentiary yesterday. In 1893 he was sentenced to serve five years imprisonment for wrecking the bank of which he was the head, and had still 17 months to serve when President McKinley signed his pardon on Saturday. Allis will start for his home in Little Rock in a few days.

College Man Drowned.

Fernandina, Fla., July 27.—Wallace Maxwell, son of Captain D. E. Maxwell, general manager of the Florida Central and Peninsula railroad, was drowned while seining in the surf at the south end of the island, while with three other young men yesterday afternoon. He was 24 years old, and a member of the University of Pennsylvania baseball team.

—Amasa S. Glover, the inventor of the famous shoe sewing system, died in Brockton a few days ago. He was born July 25, 1817, and was the descendant of John Glover, who came to this country in 1630. He learned the shoe business here and started for himself in 1858. After the battle of Chicamauga he was solicited by Gen. Sherman to make shoes for the barefooted soldiers. The general gave him 1,000 men and plenty of raw material, and in 24 hours the men were shod.—Brockton Times.

—It was said at a recent farmers' meeting that one acre under glass exceeded in profit one hundred acres without glass, the labor and cost of cultivating being no greater in proportion for the former, with the exception of the cost of the glass and fixtures.

HIS POOR SIMILE.

When He Used It, His Wife Showed Its True Value.

"When a man gets married," exclaimed the citizen who could get the medal for laziness in any competition, "he might just as well make up his mind to work like a dog all the rest of his life."

His wife looked at him with an expression of mingled grief and surprise. After a thoughtful pause she said quietly:

"William, I wish you would step out here on the porch for a minute if you're not too tired to move so far."

He languidly obeyed, and as he stood on the threshold inquired:

"What do you want? It's too warm to split wood."

"I don't want you to perform any labor. You said something about having to work like a dog because you got married."

"Yes," he replied resolutely, "I did."

"Well, for once it's my esteemed privilege to agree with you. I want you to cast your eye on that liver colored setter you bought last week with the money that ought to have gone long ago for having the roof painted. He's fast asleep, as he has been for the last three hours. There isn't anything that will stir him up except to offer him something to eat, and even if you do that he'll open one eye and see whether he likes it or not before he will take the trouble to come and get it. Once in a great while he will get up enough energy to go hunting, but when he does he seldom if ever gets any results worth speaking of. I wouldn't have made the comparison for anything, William, for with all your shortcomings I like you. But as long as you brought it up yourself I thought it might not do any harm to call your attention to the fact that about all that liver colored setter does is to take naps and be waited on."—Detroit Free Press.

What the Wise Bachelor Says.

When a woman "shrieks" it doesn't sound any different from a large sized squeal.

Women lie about the men they wouldn't have the same way men lie about the fish that got away.

A woman will always get up mad with her husband after he has slept all through a hot night when she couldn't.

Some folk are so humble that when they get to heaven they will go 'way around and knock at the back door.

When a man has to work hard to get along, his wife always says it's because he's so good natured he lets people impose on him.

A Possible Explanation.

National League.

At St. Louis—

The Browns played an almost faultless game yesterday and won from the Bostons. Donohue pitched grandly, allowing the Beaneaters but six hits, only two of which were clean. Stivetts also pitched well for his side. The Browns won the game in the eighth on a home run by Grady, Lally's single and Cross' triple.

No Pardon For Mrs. Maybrick.

Washington, July 27.—The British government has again declined to interfere in the execution of the sentence of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, on the ground that there is no reason for a change in the judgment of the matter.

You may hunt the world over and you will not find another medicine equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. It is pleasant, safe and reliable. For sale by A. G. Durgin.

Adjustable Window Screens, 25 and 30 cents. Screen doors 90 cents. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—Siberia is not an Arctic waste, peopled by a few Russian convicts, but an immense country with vast resources, impatiently awaiting development. An English military attache, who has travelled through that vast country, declares that Siberia can produce about every kind of cereal and all sorts of live stock, and it possesses abundant quantities of the more important minerals, precious and others.

BILL IS INCONSISTENT.

The Treasury Department Has Knotty Tariff Prob'em on Hand.

Decided That Bill Took Effect Saturday Morning.

Conflict In Paragraph Placing a Duty on Hides. Much Money Involved.

Washington, July 27.—Problems regarding the new tariff are beginning to accumulate at the treasury department, and the ingenuity and knowledge of the officials is taxed to answer them. The question when the new duties took effect was decided yesterday, so far as the treasury department has power to decide it. Assistant Secretary Howell issued a circular letter of instruction to collectors, informing them that all merchandise entered at the custom house on and after July 24, under the rates of the act last mentioned, will be subject to liquidation, under the provisions of the new act. This action has been taken to protect the interests of the government in case their view should prove to be correct. It is not necessarily final, and an appeal is expeced by importers to the courts.

Section 262 places the duty on plums at 25 cents per bushel, and section 264 fixes the rate at 2 cents per pound. An error in the paragraphs as to currants was corrected in conference. Another section fixes the rate of duty on hides of cattle at 15 per cent ad valorem, and admits raw skins free. The question involved is the classification of calf skins, it being contended that commercially calf skins are not classed as hides of cattle, and hence is entitled to free entry, which is believed to be contrary to the purpose of congress.

Attention is also called to the fact that the provision as to licenses for customs brokers was, by inadvertence, it is believed, left out of the act. Circulars are in preparation construing a number of the sections of the act. Persons entering this country are permitted under certain restrictions to bring with them duty free "usual and reasonable furniture." This is interpreted to mean such furniture as would be reasonable and useful for the personal use of persons in their condition in life.

A formal circular of instructions covering fully the department's views on the subject will be printed and mailed to all customs collectors. The opinion of the attorney general has not been requested on the matter, the department holding that the question is of sufficient importance to justify them in taking it to the courts for final determination, independent of what the views of the law officers of the government might be as to the merits of the case.

Sufficient data upon which to base a close estimate of the amount of duties involved has not been received, but it is stated roughly that it probably will be between $180,000 and $200,000. The internal revenue department probably will have even a greater amount by the new ruling than the customs branch of the service. During the five days from Tuesday, July 20, to and including Saturday, July 24, the internal revenue stamp agencies sold approximately $5,181,800 in beer stamps alone, and of this amount it is estimated that not more than one-third, or $1,727,266 reached their destination before the act went into effect.

Commisioner Forman yesterday telegraphed all stamp agents to settle only on the basis of the increased rate of 7½ cents per barrel, and it is expected that these instructions will apply to all cases where the stamps were not actually affixed to the packages before the new rate became operative. No figures as to amount of cigaret stamps disposed of have yet been received, but it is believed that the sales have been abnormally large, as the rate of tax on cigarets, speaking generally, was increased 100 per cent, or from 50 cents per 1000 to $1, the inducements to tobacco manufacturers to lay in as large supply were even greater than in the case of the brewers.

CHARGE OF "FORLORN BRIGADE"

Rush of Unhappy Office Seekers on the President Before He Departs.

Washington, July 27.—There was a great crowd at the White House yesterday—larger than has been seen since the early days of the administration. It was the "charge of the forlorn brigade," as one of the officials put it, the last attempt of the office seekers to get a word with the president before he leaves Washington for weeks. Then there were a number of senators and representatives who called to say farewell to the president, and prominent among these was Speeker Reed. Julius Palmer, of ex-Queen Liliuokalani's suit, accompanied by her chamberlain, Joseph Heleluli, also called and left same papers with one of the officials for delivery to the president.

The papers presented by Mr. Heleluli were memorials from the three great patriotic societies of Hawaii, and while they were not made public it is understood that the memorialists presented themselves as being opposed to any policy that touched the queen's sovereignty.

Later in the day Liliuokalani herself had a short interview with the president in the east room at the end of the public reception.

Arrangements have been completed for the trip of the president and his party from Washington to Lake Champlain. The palace car Hazelmere has been assigned for the use of the party. It will leave Washington at noon tomorrow and arrive at the destination, Bluff Point, about 6:30 o'clock Thursday morning. The president and Mrs. McKinley will be accompanied by Secretary and Mrs. Alger and Secretary and Mrs. Porter.

It is the president's intention to remain at Lake Champlain until Aug. 23, when he will go to the G. A. R. encampment at Buffalo. From Buffalo he will go to Ohio, where he has promised to attend the reunion of his old regiment, and also to be present at the wedding of the daughter of the late President Hayes, Sept. 2. Unless there should then be an urgent demand for his presence in Washington the president will return to Buffalo and there go aboard Senator Hanna's yacht for a few days' cruise on the lakes.

Two Appointmenss.

Washington, July 27.—The president has decided to appoint Hon. Robert J. Tracewell of Indiana for the position of comptroller of the treasury. President McKinley, realizing the important questions coming up for decision in the comptroller's office, has been giving the matter of the selection of an appointee considerable attention, and finally has concluded to give the place to Mr. Tracewell. The appointment, it is said at the White House, is entirely one of merit, Mr. Tracewell being selected because of his fine legal attainments. The position is worth $6000 per year, and has been vacant since the retirement of Comptroller Bowler, on the 1st inst.. Mr. Tracewell is a native of Virginia, but in early life moved with his parents to Indiana, where he has since resided. He was a representative in the 54th congress from the Third district of his state, and is 45 years of age. The recess appointment of T. V. Powderly as commissioner general of immigration was signed by the president yesterday afternoon. Mr. Fowderly's nomination for that office having failed of confirmation in the senate, because of the opposition to him on the part of the labor organizations.

Against Special Advertising.

New York, July 27.—The board of managers of the Joint Traffic association has adopted a resolution that the companies party to the Joint Traffic association shall not from and after Aug. 1, 1897, publish or participate in any advertisements in any programs of any nature whatever or with publications issued by mercantile firms or stereopticon and other mediums of a special character, and that after said date advertising shall be confined to regularly published standard newspapers and periodicals of general circulation published at regular intervals. In contracting for advertising in such mediums and in issuing transportation therefor it shall be stipulated and agreed that such transportation shall be confined to the bonafide proprietors, publishers, editors, officers, employes or attaches of such authorized publications and members of their immediate families.

Spanish Queen Is Gracious.

Washington, July 27.—The state department has been informed that a very gracious exception has been made by the Queen Regent of Spain in consenting to receive Mr. Taylor, the retiring United States minister, and Mr. Woodford, the new minister, at San Sebastien, where she does not maintain a court in the usual sense of the term. The ceremony necessarily will be informal. This arrangement to meet Mr. Taylor's convenience was brought about through the courteous and considerate offices of the Duke of Tetuan. It is without precedent.

A Spanish Republican.

Madrid, July 27.—A largely attended meeting held at Leon today, Senor Labra, the distinguished autonomist and chief of the Autonomist party in several Spanish parliaments, where he has sat as deputy or senator for Porto Rico or Cuba for many years, eloquently eulogized the republican form of government, which, he declared, "is alone capable of giving true autonomy to Cuba and Porto Rico, and at the same time realizing the scheme of Iberian union."

Preparing to Go to Klonkyke.

Franklin, Mass., July 27.—The Klondyke gold fever has reached this town, and Captain James B. Crocker, who knows what it is to "rough it," is going to the gold fields on the steamer leaving for Alaska Aug. 15. Captain Crocker was master of the schooner Eunice Crocker, lost at sea two years ago, he and the crew being picked up by a passing steamer. Captain Crocker came to his home here and entered the coal trade. He has sold his business in preparation for his trip.

Yacht Club Cruise.

New York, July 27.—That Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan will take a very large number of both steam and sailing vessels to the Eastward on the occasion of the annual cruise of the New York Yacht club is now generally conceded. Assurances have been received from many owners that they will be at the rendezvous on Monday next and continue with the squadron until the end.

Sale of The Maine Farmer.

Augusta, Me., July 27.—The Maine Farmer, the well-known weekly farming paper which has been published in this city for many years under the proprietorship of Hon. Joseph H. Manley and the late W. S. Badger, who died last spring, has been sold to J. S. Sanborn of the well-known tea and coffee concern of Chase & Sanborn, Boston.

Lived Together a Month.

Chicago, July 27.—"Baroness" Blanc, known in private life as Mrs. Elizabeth L. Waters, has filed a bill for divorce from Leeds Vaughan Waters, to whom she was married June 13, 1896. The "baroness" states in her petition that her husband was extremely cruel during the month of their life together.

Australian Gold Coming.

London, July 27.—The Daily Mail says this morning in its financial review that the first consignment of gold from Australia to San Francisco, amounting to $1,000,000, will be shipped on Aug. 3. The shipment seems to be based on calculations of a speedy fall in New York exchange.

Want $10 For Sixty Hours.

New York, July 27.—Two thousand three hundred garment workers went on strike yesterday. One hundred and twenty-five shops in this city and Brooklyn are affected. The strikers demand a minimum wage scale of $10 for a 60-hour week.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIMES.

James Crowley, 26 Endicott street, Boston, was struck by a train at Waltham, and is now in the hospital with a fractured skull, three broken ribs and a broken arm.

The horse and wagon stolen from the stable of John A. Seavey at Lyman, Me., Sunday, were found in a yard in Buxton yesterday. The thief left the outfit and took to the woods.

John Tuck, who attempted to kill Miss Grace McMahon Saturday evening at Lynn, Mass., and who afterwards stabbed himself, is dead. The tragedy was the result of a lovers' quarrel. Tuck was 64 years old, and leaves a family. The girl is rapidly improving.

Edward J. Lynch, who gives his residence as Meriden, Conn., and claims to be president of the International Metal Polishers' union, was arrested at Westfield, Mass., yesterday charged with attempting to pass a forged check for $10 at the Park Square hotel. The accused claims to be the victim of mistaken identity.

HANNA AT PITTSBURG.

Ohio Senator Is In Favor of Anything That Benefits Miners.

Pittsburg, July 27.—The mining situation in this district is quiet and unchanged. Both sides are waiting for the result of the meeting today of the operators. The arbitrators are highly elated at the prospects. All agree in saying that it will be the largest meeting of operators ever held in this district. All of the Western men are here, and the Eastern people arrived this morning. Hotel lobbies are meeting places for the operators already here, and the strike question is being well discussed. While a large number are not in favor of the old uniformity plan all are anxious to hear what new phase the peace commissioners have given the subject. Some are decidedly opposed to uniformity, but all are in favor of arbitration for settlement of the strike.

The board is busy completing the contract which is to be presented to the meeting today at the courthouse.

No one can at this time predict the outcome of the conference, which is expected to last two, and perhaps three, days.

Miners' Officials Dolan and Warner have assured the sheriff that the strikers had no intention of marching on the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. President Dolan said it was not intended to lose the sympathy of the public by any ill-advised display of force.

A body of 1000 miners, carrying heavy clubs, marched to the Castle Shannon mines at Oak station, where about 400 men were working, and prevailed upon them to come out. There was no disorder.

Senator Hanna was in the city yesterday. In speaking of the efforts to settle the strike by arbitration, he said:

"I am in favor of any plan that will better the condition of the men; that is the main point of the situation. That their condition needs betterment everybody knows, and I will give my hearty support and co-operation to any movement looking toward that end. Present methods are in many respects inadequate. Uniformity is lacking, and that is something I have always advocated."

The strike in West Virginia, which Ratchford predicted would be general, has proved a flat failure. After days of vigorous effort by Debs, Mahon, Coslette, Miller and Ratchford, culminating Sunday with mass meetings in many places, the miners remain unshaken. All agree that yesterday was the critical day. It was agreed that if there was no strike Monday efforts would cease and an appeal be made to the railroad men to stop hauling coal.

Judging by the present state of the local market, a famine in fuel is not likely to occur even though the strike should last seven months longer. As a matter of fact the market is overstocked and demand has only slightly increased.

Stage Line Re-established.

Boston, July 27.—A special to The Herald from Fabyans, N. H., says: After a lapse of three years the famous stage route over Mt. Washington was most successfully put into commission yesterday. Notwithstanding the recent heavy rains, the road was in excellent shape, and the trip was accomplished without a hitch and in good time. The entire trip, 23 miles by stage, including all stops, consumed 4½ hours.

O'Neil's Defense.

Greenfield, Mass., July 27.—The defense in the McCloud murder case was fully outlined yesterday. John O'Neil, the defendant, will first attempt to prove an alibi. Members of his family were on the stand and swore that he was at home at the time Mrs. McCloud was murdered by the roadside. Regarding the money O'Neil had on the night of the crime, it is claimed by his family that he stole it from his sister.

St. Paul's School, Concord.

Concord, N. H., July 27.—The plans are completed for the new building at St. Paul's school in this city, which is expected to cost about $100,000. The removal of the present buildings to make room for the new one is already under way and contracts for its construction will be made upon return of Rector Rev. J. H. Coitt, D. D., LL. D., from Japan.

George S. Hale Very Sick.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 27.—George S. Hale, a prominent Boston lawyer, who has a cottage at Schooner Head, was taken suddenly sick Sunday and is in a critical condition. He is unconscious, and is apparently suffering from brain trouble.

Thousands of men in every walk of life all over the world are playing a desperate game with Death for an opponent. They are playing with an opponent who has every advantage, and the outcome of the game is as certain as—Death. The man in any walk of life, who is too hard-worked, too busy, to take care of his health has only himself to blame when the final break-down comes. It is easy to keep health while one has it, but uphill work to win it back when it is lost. A man neglects a slight indigestion. Then his appetite gets poor. That's a trifle and he pays no attention to it. Then he complains of headaches and it is hard to work or think. His sleep becomes restless and he only gets troubled spells of it. He gets nervous and irritable. Everything goes wrong both at home and at business. He persists in paying no attention to his health. Then some day he breaks down. The doctor says nervous prostration or consumption as the case may be. He has been playing a game with death and has been checkmated at the weakest point.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is an unfailing cure for all disorders of the digestion, and the deadly maladies that follow in their train. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It is an unfailing remedy for nervous prostration and exhaustion. Thousands of men have testified to their recovery under its use, after all other remedies had failed. All druggists sell it. Do not deal with a druggist who offers you a substitute for he is not only dishonest but willing to sacrifice your health and possibly your life for a few added pennies of profit.

A clear complexion. Any one can have it who keeps the blood pure. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them.

TALKED ABOUT MONEY

Secretary Gage's Address to Business Men of Boston.

Attention Should Be Given to Law Makers.

Executive Branch of the Government Can Only Enforce Laws.

Boston, July 28.—A dinner notable for the personnel of those who enjoyed it was tendered Hon. Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury, at the Tuileries on Commonwealth avenue yesterday afternoon. At the tables were the most prominent professional, commercial and moneyed men of Boston and a number from New England at large.

Congressman William C. Lovering of Massachusetts informally assumed charge of the post-prandium, briefly stating why Boston business men felt so keen an interest in national financial affairs, one fact being cited that Boston, when the gold reserve was in danger, made the first response with gold.

LYMAN J. GAGE.

Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge gave the welcome to Secretary Gage with a tribute to the latter's position in financial circles of the West and the elements in his career which have appealed to men of the East.

Secretary Gage was then introduced. After referring to historic struggles of former times, Secretary Gage said:

"Opposing forces met in November last and contended bitterly over the most vital of economic questions. The ballot, magic exponent of the popular will, recorded its imperative voice for honest money and for liberty regulated by law. It now remains to be seen whether from that decision there is to be any successful appeal. It is this that gives interest, anxious interest, to the prospective action of these who, clothed with legislative and executive functions, have it in their power to make secure the fruits of victory, or who, by failing to comprehend their higher responsibility, may let slip the advantages so hardly won.

"Upon the possible doubts involved in this question men of enterprise still hesitate and the columns of industry march slowly with ranks not yet completely filled. Is there room for doubt on so plain a proposition? There ought to be none. There would be none except for the working of that principle of human nature, which coaxes us to ease after effort—which induces us to contemplate rather than act.

"We have passed through a wearisome storm. The loss and cost of it has been enormous, but today the skies are fair, the breeze of prosperity brings comfort and restoration.

"The administrative branch of the government has been and will be for prompt and judicious action. The evidence of this fact is fresh at hand in the message just now submitted to congress by the president.

"Nothing was settled more clearly at the late national election determination exists upon the part of the people to keep their currency stable in value and equal to that of the most advanced nation of the world. But the administration cannot make laws. It can only execute them after they are made. It is then to the legislative body that your thoughtful attention is to be given, if you desire financial reform. Your senators and representatives will not consciously antagonize your well-considered desires, but they must be informed and constantly reminded of what it is that you demand.

Currency Commission Commended.

"And now what is it that ought to be done to give security and protection to the future? To this there are many answers, and to every answer many objectors. Recommendation of the president for a commission was admirable in this, that it suggested a way by which a body of well-trained and thoughtful men could be provided to consider at leisure, without distraction from other pressing themes, the important subject of currency and banking reforms. It, at the same time, opened a forum to which could be admitted every contributive suggestion from all classes and conditions of man. And if there is anything dear to an American heart it is the privilege of having his say.

"To these incidental moral advantages may be added the reasonable expectation that the commission would have been able to gather in most valuable information and finally to formulate wise recommendations worthy of early and favorable consideration by congress at the regular session next winter. That the bill which passed the house with promptness failed of recognition in the senate may be a matter of regret, but not one for discouragement. That might have been accomplished though a commission may be achieved without one.

"Nor ought we to speak or think unkindly of a body which has so assiduously toiled in the work of a new body of law, concerning a matter so shared with conflicting opinions and opposing interests, as is any tariff act. The two questions before the country in the last political campaign were the tariff and the currency. One of them is already settled. Whatever the merits or demerits of the new measure in its particular item it has become the law of the land. The revenues derived from it will, after a possible brief interregnum, be ample for proper government expenditures, and if the old aphorism be true that 'the revenue of the state is the state,' we may say without exaggeration that the state is re-established. We have also reached a point where, with absolute data furnished, commerce and manufacture can make correct estimates and go upon their respective missions of exchange and production with a new sense of security.

No Doleful Forecast.

"The responsible party in power having successfully covered this one important issue may be safely trusted to care equally well for the other. On the financial side there is really no pressing need for haste. There is certainly no immediate occasion for anxiety. With ample reserves in the public treasury, with financial centers in a full supply of loanable funds, with interest invitingly low, with crop prospects most promising, and a good market favorably assured, with new mineral resources coming into view, with a territorial area sufficient to carry its present population many times multiplied, with a people advancing in the elements of intelligence and character, who dare indulge in doleful forecasts?

"We need not ignore the fact that there are many wounds to be cured, excited passions to be calmed, and many misunderstandings to be composed. Time will do much to restore and the natural laws, everywhere operating, will bring in at last their compensations. In the meantime our statute laws must be learned—not to repress the operation of a natural law which is supreme over man-made laws—but they must learn to justly check and punish those who, grasping for new elements of power, pervert them into agencies of injustice and oppression. The problems of a Democratic society rapidly developing in all directions are many and troublesome. They must be met with patience. We must not lose faith nor abate in courage. 'With malice toward none, with charity for all,' each unit in the mighty organism must bring to their solution the best that is in him of virtue and intelligence. Upon the wise and great the duty weighs with corresponding force, but upon the humble and weak also it presses according to their measure of the responsibility."

The welcome to the Old Bay State was made by Governor Wolcott, who also took occasion to remind the guest of Massachusetts' respect for the office of secretary of the treasury, from the days of Alexander Hamilton, and for its influence in the past whenever a financial crisis was threatened.

Mayor Josiah Quincy gave the city's welcome, and eulogistically referred to Mr. Gage's career in business and banking.

Other speakers were Colonel Henry L. Higginson, William A. Russell, William B. Rice, Hon. Charles S. Hamlin and Moses Little.

George S. Hale Dead.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 28.—George S. Hale of Boston, who was stricken with apoplexy Sunday afternoon, died yesterday afternoon at his cottage at Schooner Head. Mr. Hale, who was 71 years old at the time of his death, was a prominent member of the Boston bar, as well as a member of many of Boston business organizations and clubs.

Gage Is at Marion.

New Bedford, Mass., July 28.—Secretary Lyman J. Gage and Hon. Charles S. Hamlin arrived in this city last evening from Boston. This morning Secretary Gage was shown about the city, and later was driven to Marion, where he will be Mr. Hamlin's guest. Ex-Congressman Charles S. Randall was one of Mr. Gage's callers last evening.

THE BARRETTS' SECRET

Mother Refused to Give Name of Man Who Borrowed $800 From Alice.

Family Summoned to Fire Marshal's Investigation.

An Attempt Will Then Be Made to Clear Up the Mystery of Girl's Death.

Boston, July 28.—Mrs. Ella M. Barrett last night made up her mind never to make public the name of the man to whom her daughter, Alice M. Barrett, lent the $800, according to the statement of her youngest son, Charles, who also knows the identity of the man.

It seems very probable, however, that today she will be required to tell Fire Marshal Whitcomb all that she knows of her daughter's transactions and her life, and also reveal the name of this mysterious debtor, which for some reason the family have so scrupulously kept a secret.

Last evening a summons was served upon Mrs. Barrett, the two sons, Edward W. and Charles, and Miss Louise Meahan, demanding their attendance at the inquest held by Fire Marchal Whitcomb this morning. In addition W. C. Codman and Clerk Briggs of 40 Kilby street have been ordered to appear and give all the information concerning Alice Barrett and their business affairs which might have any bearing upon the fire.

The fire marshal is determined to ascertain every material fact concerning the actions of Miss Barrett, and he is also prepared to question the Codmans about their books, the condition in which they have been found, and whether the firm has suffered any pecuniary loss through the bookkeeper.

When a deputy from the fire marshal's office, in the course of his investigations yesterday, called at the office of Codman & Codman to make some inquiries, he found the occupants of the office as reluctant to talk with him as they had been with the police and reporters. The marshal will, however, examine all of those who were in the office on Saturday for evidence which may show any reason for a fire having been lighted in the closet with the cash book as fuel.

Rev. Dr. Young, who officiated at the funeral of the dead girl yesterday, who has been with the family all through the trouble, and who probably knows as much about the matter as anybody, says that, if the facts about the $800 loan were made known, it would only bring disgrace on a prominent and much-respected Boston family, and that it would not solve the mystery.

Only the day before one of the Barrett boys said that if the borrower would speak, he could clear up a good deal, and it was strange that he did not come forward, after all that had been published about him.

The Wool Market.

Boston, July 28.—The wool market is generally firm at present and business continues fair. The large business reported during the past six weeks has not resulted in stock here being depleted to any extent, however, for while large sales have been made a good share has been speculative operations from one dealer to another, and no wool has been taken from the market. With prices advancing from week to week this has been a great incentive for this kind of business, as the seller was able to see a sure profit. This has made a large business, which foots up well, and has kept up the excitement, when the actual demand from manufacturers was small. The end of the tariff discussion has tempted in more manufacturers this week, and they have taken good lines of territory grades, while the bulk of the speculative trading has been in foreign wools, largely Australian. Indications all point to higher prices for wool, as the time draws near when more will have to be imported under the new tariff rates, but in the meanwhile a long season of dullness should not be unexpected.

Montpelier's Fine Art Gallery.

Montpelier, Vt., July 28.—The formal opening of the Wood art gallery occured here last evening. The gallery, which is one of the finest in New England, was presented to the city of Montpelier by Thomas W. Wood, president of the National Academy of Design, who is a native of this city. It contains many paintings, friezes and statuary, easily surpassing anything in the state. It occupies a fireproof building erected especially for it through the generosity of Professor John W. Burgess of Columbia college, who spends his summers here. On the occasion of the opening there was a grand reception by the people of Montpelier, it being the most notable social gathering of the year. The guests included many famous artists and art critics of New York, Boston, Springfield and many other places.

A GREAT SCOOP.

Officer Barry Gathered in a Crowd of Ten Last Night.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Tuesday evening a two horse wagon containing ten young men drove through City Square toward Quincy Point. They were armed with horns and made considerable noise. Where they went is not known, but about 1 o'clock this morning they came back making more noise than when they went down.

Officer Barry, who had just returned from his vacation, was on duty and was in prime trim to tackle anything. When the party reached a point opposite the residence of Dr. Gordon they stopped the team, and getting out, made ready to indulge in a free fight by way of variety. Just then Officer Barry put in an appearance and placed the whole gang under arrest and with the assistance of Officer Hanson they were escorted to the police station and nine of them were locked up. The tenth man, the driver, was permitted to take the team home.

In the team was a quantity of empty beer bottles as well as some that had not been emptied.

The young fellows gave their names as William E. Cody, Frank Horan, William O'Brien, Andrew T. Carty, John Ronan, Bert Clinch, Stephen Duncan, James Kelly and Edward F. Pulsifer. They were in court today and fined.

Died of Heart Failure.

Mr. Dennis Sage, a former well known resident of Wollaston died at his home in East Milton on Tuesday of heart failure. Mr. Sage was born at Middleton, Conn., in August, 1817. He became a resident of Wollaston in the early 70's and resided there for a number of years. Later he took up his residence in East Milton. A widow, two daughters, one of whom is Mrs. E. E. Jameson of Wollaston, and two sons, Charles V. and Ernest, survive him. Private services were held at his late residence this morning. The funeral services will be held on Thursday at Hartford, Conn.

Grocers' Excursion.

The grocers find it difficult to provide transportation for all who desire to go on their excursion to Crescent park, Rhode Island, tomorrow. A special train of nine or ten cars will leave Quincy at 8.30 A. M., making stops at Braintree, South Braintree, Holbrook, Avon, Montello, Brockton and Campello.

Crescent park is an attractive picnic spot, and a shore dinner will be enjoyed there. Also amateur sports confined to the excursionists for which wholesale grocers have contributed numerous valuable prizes.

W. R. C. Entertainment.

The Woman's Relief Corps gave a sale and entertainment at Grand Army hall Tuesday evening. Although a small audience was present a very enjoyable entertainment was given. The programme: solo by Mrs. Leonard Hewson, accompanied by Mrs. Effie Rhines; Reading with piano, Miss Gertrude Boyd, Miss Bertha Trepanier accompanist; soprano solo, Miss Addie Houlton, Miss M. A. Gardner accompanist; reading, little Maud Dyer; reading, Mrs. Moore of Atlantic; solo, Miss Houlton. After the program a social time. Ice cream and cake were on sale.

Injunction Issued.

The court this morning issued a temporary injunction against the contractors at work laying the street railway extension to Squantum. While the case has been pending, however, the work has been rushed and the rails are laid through Billings street and part of Squantum street.

—C. F. Adams is chairman of the new Street Railway commission.

NOTICE.

SEC. GAGE THE MAN.

Especially Fitted to Work Out Financial Problem.

Hon. W. B. Rice's Speech at the Gage Banquet.

The Affairs of the Government in Competent Hands.

Our telegraphic news on the first page today reports the speech of Hon. L. J. Gage, the Secretary of the Treasury, at the banquet tendered him by the Boston merchants. Among those present were Mayor Adams, Charles A. Howland and Hon. W. B. Rice of this city. Mr. Rice was one of the speakers and his remarks will be of local interest. He said:

"It is indeed a great honor to participate in this occasion and be permitted to express the satisfaction which is so universal, that we have at the head of the financial department of the admistration, a man who is especially fitted for the work in hand, by years of training and experience; not a politician merely, but a sound, trained business man, whose judgment, whose integrity and whose ability are conspicuously beyond question.

"With the knowledge that he will have the hearty support of the President, we have much to be thankful for, and it behooves us to pray that they may be permitted to work out the problem before them without let or hindrance from any source whatever.

"In a small degree, I represent a body of voters who were numerous enough in the last election to be of material assistance, and who voted for the successful candidate, not because they approved all the doctrines he advocated, but because of the one issue which overshadowed all other,—whether, or not, this great nation should dishonor itself by attempting to pay its public or private debts in a depreciated currency, or whether it should continue to maintain the gold standard alongside the enlightened nations of the earth.

This was the issue on which the battle was fought, and this, and this only, was the issue on which the victory could possibly have been won.

"Well, Mr. President and gentlemen,

Our Cup Has Been Filled

To the brim with that we did not approve, and now we wait with more or less impatience for decisive action toward carrying out that which we so much desire. Nor can we be satisfied with a reference to the plethoric gold reserve, or by an increasing revenue, or the returning confidence in financial circles; because we remember too well at what cost the reserve has been kept good, and we know that at the first flurry in the financial atmosphere, in which a few millions in gold may be sent abroad, the same dangers that we now look back upon would confront us again. The same machinery is now in operation which has so often failed us in crises that are past.

"The present administration was elected to devise and establish a financial system that will provide this rich and powerful nation with a currency that shall be adequate and safe for its business, and be good for its face everywhere; and no currency can meet these requirements that is not instantly redeemable in gold at all the great financial centres of the world.

We want something more than a certainty that the gold standard shall be maintained. We need a currency that cannot be hoarded and cornered whenever it suits the profit or pleasure of a half dozen kings of finance. A fixed amount, limited to 90 p. c. of the existing United States bonds, which alone can now be security for bank issues, is alternately a surplus, or a deficiency, according to the seasons, or slight fluctuations in business conditions; and the moment a deficiency is feared it is made certain by hoarding.

"We talk about an elastic currency, but no issue with a fixed security can be elastic. What the business community needs is a currency based on the as shown by bank assets, and which experience has proved, when under proper supervision and restriction, to be absolutely secure.

"I believe the government should go out of the business of issuing paper currency altogether. Its duty should end by making and enforcing such laws as will secure to the country a bank issue which shall be safe, and adequate for all parts of the country and be instantly redeemable in gold, by bank of issue, and at commercial centres of the world.

"Our currency should rest on a gold reserve which will not be subject to the caprice of political parties, so that the country will not be thrown into spasms of doubt and uncertainty for a period before every election."

"The shipment of 50, or even 100 millions of gold to complete business transactions between this and foreign countries should cause us no more uneasiness than the shipment of so much wheat. It is absurd that this great nation of more than 70 millions of people should be compelled to expand or contract business operations as the gold reserve at Washington increases or diminishes."

"That bugbear will never down until the maintenance of gold payments rests somewhere else than with the national government.

"In the full belief that the present administration, and especially the distinguished secretary of the treasury, will formulate and have enacted into law, a plan which will meet the needs of the country, every sound merchant or banker and every man who has the country's good at heart will pledge co-operation and support.

"Permit me once more to say that we, as business men, cannot be too thankful that the financial affairs of the government are in such competent hands."

Furnitnre and Pianos moved and stored. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—The Brockton, Bridgewater and Taunton street railway was formally opened on Tuesday.

WARD VALUATIONS.

Real Estate and Personal Property Compared for Nine Years.

Wollaston and Atlantic Making the Most Rapid Strides.

Ward One However Has No Near Rival in Real or Personal.

A comparison of the new ward valuation with those of the preceding years of the city will be of interest to taxpayers. They show not only what progress the ward is making but the relative standing of the different sections of the city.

Ward One has no near rival to the distinction of being the wealthiest ward, yet it does not hold one-third of the valuation as up to 1895. Its total continues larger than any other two wards of the city, and it has nearly one-half the personal property.

Ward Five, Wollaston, has made the largest gain and also the best per cent. of gain in eight years. The Atlantic ward however has doubled in this time and is a close rival in per cent. of gain.

Ward Two has made all its gain in real estate. Its personal estate has shrunk nearly one-third in eight years, and over $25,000 the past year.

Ward Three has also lost in personal property the past year and has less than eight years ago. It makes a good showing in real estate.

Ward Four continues the third ward in total valuation, but is fourth in real estate and fourth in personal. Wards Three and Six are likely to pass it soon in total valuation.

Ward Six has strengthened its claim to third position in value of real estate, and promises to be third in total valuation because of its proximity to Boston.

After meals you should have simply a feeling of comfort and satisfaction. You should not feel any special indications that digestion is going on. If you do, you have *in*digestion, which means not-digestion. This may be the beginning of so many dangerous diseases, that it is best to take it in hand at once and treat it with Shaker Digestive Cordial. For you know that indigestion makes poison, which causes pain and sickness. And that Shaker Digestive Cordial helps digestion and cures indigestion. Shaker Digestive Cordial does this by providing the digestive materials in which the sick stomach is wanting. It also tones up and strengthens the digestive organs and makes them perfectly healthy. This is the rationale of its method of cure, as the doctors would say. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

STEAMER ACCIDENT.

The Quincy Point Bridge Found to be in Bad Shape.

The accident to the bridge between Quincy Point and North Weymouth has disclosed the fact that the underwork of the bridge is rotten, and at best not very safe.

The accident on Tuesday was a peculiar one, and the blame is a matter of dispute between Capt. Hopkins, the engineer, and the bystanders on the bridge. According to Capt. Hopkins he gave a signal to back as he approached his landing. The engineer and bystanders say they distinctly heard the signals, which were: first, to go ahead slow, which was immediately followed by a signal which means go ahead full speed. The latter is what was done and the steamer was making headway when she struck the bridge. The point where she struck was on the North Weymouth side, and although but little headway attained considerable damage was done.

A space some forty feet in length and fifteen feet wide was torn out. The piles, which were rotten to the core, broke off like pipe stems, and there is no doubt but what if much headway had been attained the steamer would have gone through the bridge.

TODAY'S COURT.

William E. Cody, Frank Horan, William O'Brien, Andrew T. Carty, John Ronan, Bert Clinch, Stephen Duncan, James Kelly and Edward F. Pulsifer were fined $5 each for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

Peter McDonald was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued one week.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mrs. J. W. Maynard of the Eight Bells, in company with Mrs. M. A. Thompson of Boston, took a trolley ride to Newburyport leaving Boston Thursday and returning Friday making 72 miles; in sixteen hours on an electric car. Many points of interest were passed among them being the home of Whittier, the poet, in Amesbury, and the Rocky Hill meeting house in Salisbury, built in 1785. The ladies were delighted with the trip.

Mr. J. W. Maynard of Roxbury spent Monday with his folks at the Neck.

The people are all waiting patiently for the burning of the ship, Boston.

The Worcester Cadets are expected at the Loretto this week.

Mr. Robert Webb of Dorchester will spend a few days at the Delmonte cottage.

Entire change of programme of the band today and this evening.

William F. Dealey of Campello is spending his three week's vacation at the beach.

A very exciting game of ball was played in Littlefield's field, Tuesday, between the Houghs Neck Jrs., and the Braintrees; the latter being defeated by a score of 29 to 18. Capt. Conway was very much pleased at the way the boys played, especially with his pitcher, Master F. Jacobs. They have a game this afternoon with the North Weymouth Jrs.

The sloop Beatrice is beached and is receiving a coat of paint.

Master Loring Bates while watching the ball game had his bicycle tire punctured by some mischievous boy.

AMATEUR DRAMATICS.

"The Wrecker's Daughter" and "Hiring Help" at Atlantic.

Never before has so large a crowd entered Music hall, Atlantic, as assembled there Tuesday night to witness the play entitled "The Wrecker's Daughter," and the one act farce, "Hiring Help," given in aid of the Sacred Heart Sunday School. By 7 P. M the throng began to come, and long before eight, every seat in the hall was taken, so those unfortunate to come later had to stand.

The play was under the direction of Rev. Fr. Johnson, who deserves great credit in his careful management of affairs. So also do all who took part

The cast of characters in the farce were:

Mrs. Mervin,	Nora Leary
Emma, her daughter,	Kate Granahan
Kate Rooney,	Mary Whalen
Nora McCarty,	Mary Nelson
Ellen Flynn,	Mary Whalen
Johanna O'Neil,	Annie Leary
Matilda Muggins,	Katie McGuerty
Mary Ames,	Maggie Dolan

In the Wrecker's Daughter the parts were taken as follows :

Capt Bill Bowen,	Edmund A. Shea
Phil King,	Gerald A. Sullivan
Jim Douglass,	Edward J Colbert
Ned Harwood,	B. A. McLane
Pat Murphy,	John F. McKenna
Essie Bowen,	Miss Clara Nelson
Lucy Gray,	Miss E B. McGuerty

Little Miss Mabel McCluskey delighted the audience with her fancy step dancing, being called before the curtain four times.

Between the acts Miss Mary R Sullivan rendered a pleasing solo and the song "Molly, My Own," sung by John McKenna was heartily applauded.

After the programme dancing was enjoyed until one o'clock.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

KEELY'S NEW MOTOR.

THE MAN, THE THEORY AND THE MACHINE.

His Motor Runs, but Mechanical Engineers Are Baffled as to What Causes It. Is the Mystery About to Be Divulged? The Peculiarities of Genius.

[Special Correspondence.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—In the old town of Chester, Pa., about 70 years ago there was born a child who was destined to become almost as widely named as some of the greater soldiers, statesmen and poets. John Ernest Werrell Keely has been prominently before the public for more than 30 years, or ever since he first announced the discovery of a mysterious force or power, which he now claims to have entirely mastered. Hundreds of theoretical scientists and mechanical and practical experts have attended exhibitions of Keely's devices for utilizing the new force, and none of them, no matter how skeptical regarding the motive power of what was seen, has ever been able to aver that there was anything fraudulent in Mr. Keely's assertions. Hence it would seem that Keely's work, having been exposed practically to the public eye for so great a period, may properly claim serious attention at this time, when it is being exhibited anew to experts.

A brief sketch of the inventor's personality and his progress in this life work may not be unwelcome. I remember when the news was first promulgated in Philadelphia that Keely, who was known to have been a member of a theatrical orchestra and later a decorative painter, had invented a "motor" which would work against tremendous resistance. The basis of this wonderful power was said to be merely a pint of a quart of water.

That Mr. Keely exhibited a machine that did "run" can be attested by hundreds of spectators, among whom were many practical and expert mechanicians. Great public interest was manifested, and a company with considerable capital was immediately formed, the stock of which was eagerly competed for in this country, although much of it was ordered from abroad.

Like many similar enterprises, it was exploited too soon. Mr. Keely, like inventors in general, soon saw possibilities of better results, so for more than 25 years was engaged in devising successively 20 or more different machines for the utilization of his new force.

During this long period of delay the stock in the company has fluctuated in market price per share from $500 to 10 cents.

Keely's Patron.

About a year ago John Jacob Astor of New York, a multimillionaire with keen and intelligent interest in applied mechanics, made several visits to Mr. Keely's "workshop" and was so impressed with what he saw that he offered to patronize the enterprise if the inventor would submit to certain conditions, which were not unreasonable from the business point of view.

Some 16 years ago the attention of Mrs. Bloomfield Moore was called to Keely's discoveries. She was by scientific acquirements and tastes eminently qualified to estimate the value of the invention, and, being further blessed by a large fortune, proposed that active efforts to produce a commercial agent or medium for the development of this power should be postponed until Keely himself had by study and experiment made some desired advances in knowledge of the principles of the new force, so that he might in time announce a new, distinct and unparalleled discovery.

Opinion of an Expert.

About a year ago, after careful consideration by the principals, aided by distinguished foreign mechanical experts, among whom were Grant Allen, Professor Fitzgerald and Professor Dewar, it was decided that Keely should construct an engine which would practically demonstrate his theories and be accepted by the world. He has completed such a motor or engine, and W. J. Fransioli, general manager of the Manhattan Elevated railway, who, with Mr. McNally, the master mechanic of the elevated railway system, went to Philadelphia and made an examination of the motor itself, says concerning it:

"There was no secrecy about my mission. I had been invited by the Keely company to see their motor, and I went. Mr. Keely showed me everything. I am convinced that he has a genuine motive power. A wire was run from the motor to an engine. It was an ordinary noninsulated wire. I am sure that no electric current was employed. The wire was removed with the bare hands and no shock was felt. I cannot attempt to explain the power. It was, I am convinced, not that of water, steam, gas or electricity. It is vibration of some kind. The motor ran the engine at high speed. It seemed to be capable of great development. When once set in motion, the action was reciprocal and might go on indefinitely. I went to Philadelphia entirely unbiased, and I returned much impressed."

On the 19th of June Mr. Fransioli again inspected the motor and was accompanied by Chief Electrical Engineer Brown of the Western Union Telegraph company and Mechanical Engineer Pierson and his assistant, Mr. Sterrett, of the Metropolitan Street Railway company. Mr. Brown confessed that the tests baffled him and declared that the force utilized by Keely was a new one.

What is a mystery and a revelation to those of us who have seen the machine with our own eyes should not be equally a mystery to practical mechanics, professional physicists, engineers, etc., who have examined Keely's various developments and experiments. On one occasion Mr. Julian Hawthorne, who was a professional engineer before he became a novelist, and who has never ceased to keep in close touch with his profession, witnessed some of Keely's experiments and afterward wrote con amore an account of what he saw, portions of which account are hereunto appended:

"At the time of my visit to the scene of the much debated phenomena I found myself in company with two or three men of acknowledged scientific attainments who candidly confessed themselves as little competent as I was to devise an explanation of what Mr. Keely showed us. Movements took place which there were no visible or hitherto recognized means of accounting for. A heavy metallic sphere revolved at great speed. An isolated compass needle did the same. Weights immersed in a tall glass jar filled with water rose upward and sank again or rested midway. All that Mr. Keely did was to tinker with a stringed musical machine fitted with singular appliances and to blow upon a small mouth organ at intervals. The assumption appeared to be that musical notes produced vibrations which affected the "chords of mass" of the things operated on, and the "polar currents" were in some manner induced to participate in the strange results. I know nothing about that. What I know is that the things which took place were not caused, so far as I or the scientific gentlemen present could detect, by either steam, electricity or compressed air. Meanwhile Mr. Keely asserted that the efficient cause was a discovery of his own, and so far as I was concerned he might as well have stopped there, inasmuch as I was able neither to contradict him nor to comprehend a word of the alleged explanations wherewith he favored the company."

Keely's Peculiarities.

Keely has been charged with being a modern Cagliostro, but there is no possible parallel of the two characters, for the great impostor of the eighteenth century was a stupid fool who could deceive only the ignorant. His success was due to the fact that he approached only the ignorant, who in his day abounded in the highest social circles of Europe. Keely, on the contrary, has seldom cared to display any manifestations of his discovery except to men of mechanical and scientific attainments, men who would be quick to note any possible adaptation, no matter how skillful, of any known sources of power.

In the earlier days of the Keely motor excitement the stockholders were largely engineers, master mechanics and prominent constructors and users of machinery. Most of them in time lost patience with the man whom they regarded as discoverer rather than inventor, and the burden of their complaint was that Keely seemed incompetent to understand or develop a power hitherto unknown upon which he probably had stumbled. Keely's own manner gave color to this charge, for he was secretive to an exasperating degree, refusing to talk of mechanical powers of any kind, probably because at the time he was ignorant of them. His inability to apply his power to existing machinery soon became evident. So would be promoters of the apparent enterprise demanded that Mr. Keely should impart to others enough knowledge of his discovery to enable experts to forward the commercial development. They were met by a flat refusal. The discoverer was unwilling to trust any one and seemed to suspect every one. He had heard that it was the fate of inventors to get but little of the money earned by their ideas. So he was not going to "give himself away." His experimental work has been done in a building to which no curious person could force access, and it has no windows on the ground floor.

The fact remains, however, that despite all his exasperating delays and almost insulting suspicions Mr. Keely has never been without intelligent adherents and rich backers. He is probably the only inventor whose work for 20 years brought forth nothing tangible, yet who during so long a period always obtained without trouble whatever money he needed. Evidently there is something remarkable about either the theory or the man, for, in addition to all that has been said, there remains the phenomenal patience of Keely's adherents and financial backers, which, considering the painful rarity of the virtue of patience among persons who are trying to "get their money back" from investments, is more astonishing than any other feature of this unusual story.

It seems apparent, however, that the mystery is about to be divulged. When an invention or adaptation reaches the stage at which it is displayed to possible users and the most prominent of these are selected, experimenting is supposed to have ended.

It remains to be said, in justice to Mr. Keely, that his long apparent ignorance as to the nature of the force with which he has been experimenting is not necessarily to his discredit. Electricity has become a common servant of man, but of its actual origin and constitution no one yet knows anything whatever, nor is there any indication that the knowledge will ever be acquired. J. M. STODDART.

To Change Memorial Day.

New York, July 28.—Some members of the Grand Army of the Republic in this city are actively engaged in promoting a movement for the change of the observance of Memorial day from May 30 to the last Sunday in May. Although an act of congress will be necessary to effect the change, the Grand Army veterans believe it can be brought about. The subject is to be submitted to the national encampment in Buffalo on Aug. 23 next. If the encampment acts favorably upon it it is believed that the change will be made.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

☞ Furniture Reupholstered and Repaired. Mattresses made over. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?
Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

ALASKAN ARGONAUTS.

Two Hundred and Fifty Prospectors Leave San Francisco.

Excitement Is Increasing, Not Diminishing.

Reports Just Received of Rich Diggings on the Stewart River.

San Francisco, July 28.—The latest rumor from Alaska is of wonderfully rich quartz dug in large quantities on the Stewart river. Particulars are vague, and beyond the fact that the ledge is a large one, and that the rock assays $800, nothing has been learned.

This, if true, will mean much for the Klondyke district. The Stewart river runs into the Yukon not far above Dawson, and it is reasonable to suppose that the placer gold now being found below may have its origin in the mountains at the head of the Stewart river and neighboring streams.

Crowds about shipping offices with even the remotest Alaskan relations have by no means diminished. It would seem that the only circumstance which prevents the wholesale depopulation of San Francisco is the limit to the transportation facilities. Not only strong men whose broad backs, bronzed faces and work-worn hands tell of previous experience with the hard labor, but clerks and professional men and women in hundreds are seeking for information or transportation to the land where they think nuggets are to be had for the picking up.

Every day sees some new scheme for overcoming the difficulties in the way of reaching the Klondyke, and the fleet of steamers and schooners pressed into the service is growing steadily. The latest of the Klondyke transportation company schemes is being engineered by Captain Herriman of the firm of Herriman & Mills, who has mapped out a plan for reaching the diggings by the middle of September. He will charter a large sailing vessel, and the party will consist of 60 men, each of whom will take one ton of provisions. No one will be permitted to go unless he takes this quantity. Each one will be charged $225 for the trip, and Captain Herriman thinks that for this sum he can land them in Dawson City before Sept 20. The ship will carry a large lighter and a steam launch will be used to tow the lighter from St. Michaels to the Klondyke. After reaching St. Michaels the cargo and passengers will be transferred to the lighter, Captain Herriman will return to San Francisco in the vessel, and the party will be conducted to their journey's end by an agent of the firm, who is thoroughly acquainted with the river.

The Alaska Commercial company's steamer Excelsior, which left here yesterday, will not make another trip to Alaska before June of next year. All the accommodations to be disposed of for this trip were sold, and the fact well advertised, but would-be passengers continued to throng the company's office. The Commercial company not only declined to sell any more tickets, but its representatives did all in their power to dissuade applicants from making the trip until next year. Some 20 or 30 have endeavored to secure accommodations for the first trip next June. The company declines to bind itself so far ahead, although a number of the applicants were willing to put up a forfeit and agree to abide by any terms the company might make for the next year's trip.

Spear street dock was the scene of more excitement yesterday morning, when the steamer State of California sailed for the North than has occurred there for many years. Fully 1200 people gathered to witness the departure of the steamer, and the departing miners were given an enthusiastic farewell. The wharf was piled high with freight, although the vessel was loaded to her utmost capacity, even the hurricane deck being utilized for the storage of canned goods and other supplies. Three hundred and forty-seven people embarked in the vessel, 243 of whom were cabin passengers.

PEACE OF KLONDYKE.

What Authority Will United States Troops Have to Preserve It?

Washington, July 28.—Legal complications which have presented themselves may yet intervene to prevent the detail of a company of United States troops to Alaska to assist in maintaining the peace in the Klondyke region. These complications presented themselves as soon as the subject was first broached and have been the source of some annoyance to the officials, who feel that a law-preserving body of men is essential to the well-being of the people who are flocking to the gold country. No doubt appears to be entertained of the power of the president to send a company of soldiers, but the question raised is just what authority they will have after being located there. Can they be ordered out to quell disturbance without an order from the president? Can a judge of a court or a marshal be clothed with authority to dispatch the soldiers to the scene of the trouble? Even if this power rested with the governor of Alaska he is located at Sitka, a great distance from the gold region, and by the time his authority could be obtained the harm would be done.

The question was discussed by the president and Secretary Alger at the White House last night, but no decision was reached. The president and his cabinet hope that a satisfactory conclusion may be arrived at so that a detachment of soldiers can be sent to the territory.

Mrs. Gage on Alaska.

Chicago, July 28.—Mrs. Eli Gage, daughter-in-law of Secretary of the Treasury Gage, has reached her home in this city after a 3-months' stay in Alaska with her husband, who represents the North American Trading company at Dawson City. Mrs. Gage says the reports of the rich harvest of gold are not exaggerated. While admitting that hardships are to be encountered, she declares that there is no danger of famine during the coming winter.

LABOR LEADERS CONFER.

Meeting at Wheeling to Devise Plans to Assist Striking Miners.

Wheeling, July 28.—What is declared to be the most important and largest gathering of the heads of labor organizations of America ever held is now in session in this city. It is the conference of labor leaders called last week by President M. D. Ratchford of the United Mine Workers, and approved by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, of which the miners' organization is a part. The purpose of the conference is to aid in a speedy and successful termination of the great coal strike. Sessions of the conference were held during the day and last night, but until the night session was held little had been accomplished.

Samuel Gompers was chosen to preside, and Secretary Morrison, also of the Federation of Labor, was made secretary.

Chairman Gompers called upon the miners' representatives to detail the situation. They were also asked in what manner other organizations could give their aid. President Rachford of the miners addressed the conference at some length, stating the causes that had led to the suspension of work in the bituminous mines, and presented the conditions of the miners who are taking part in the strike. He did not propose anything in the way of recommendations as to what the organized labor of the country should do in aid of the strikers, preferring that that important subject be left to the consideration of the conference. An appeal for aid was made in a general way.

W. C. Pearse, Patrick Dolan and T. L. Lewis also addressed the conference, speaking in the same strain. In the course of their remarks it was brought out that the miners believe that the hardest fight should be made at the Cleveland and Pittsburg Coal company (De Armitt's mine), in the Pittsburg district. This was considered fully as important a point as the West Virginia district.

Messrs. Mahon, Rea and Debs, who have been at work in the Fairmont district; Mr. Askew, who is fresh from the Norfolk and Western territory, and Mr. Sovereign addressed the meeting, the latter speaking at some length. The conference was held behind closed doors.

Telegrams pledging financial aid for the miners were received from nearly all the heads of organizations that had been unable to attend on account of the short notice. Mr. Morrison says that the chief aim of the conference will be to effect a suspension of work in West Virginia and at the De Armitt mines. The conference has not yet come to the point of believing thfat it will be necessary to ask the firemen, conductors and brakemen to refuse to haul West Virginia coal.

The night session of the conference opened at 8 o'clock. The special committee to devise ways and means to aid the miners made its report. The report, which was adopted, is an appeal to the country to assist the miners.

The conference adjourned at midnight. It was decided that President Gompers should act as a committee of one in arranging for sympathetic mass meetings all over the country on Aug. 5. Officers of the American Federation of Labor were requested to communicate with union organizations as to what shall be done to further the plan outlined in last night's appeal. Officers of the United Mine Workers are to arrange the systematic work of 100 labor organizers in West Virginia, in which state and Pennsylvania renewed efforts to make the strike general will be made. The railway brotherhoods, except the engineers, are in hearty sympathy with the movement to make the strike effective.

Armor Companies Refuse.

Washington, July 28.—The armor producing companies having declined to furnish the navy department the armor needed for the three battleships now building at the price of $300 per ton fixed by congress, Secretary Long has taken the second step in the line marked out by congress and has called upon the shipbuilding companies themselves to submit propositions for procuring and fitting the armor. One of them, the Union iron works of San Francisco, has already responded, declining, like the armor companies, the department's invitation. There is little doubt that the others will make a like answer, although there is a small chance that some of the shipbuilders may combine to secure the control of one of the plants which the armor makers profess their readiness to sell and turn out the armor they need for the ships in their hands. If, however, as is expected, all of the shipbuilders' replies are favorable, Secretary Long will proceed one step further and appoint a board of officers to carry out the direction of congress and frame a plan for the establishment of a government armor plant.

Loss Half a Million.

New York, July 28.—A fire at Yonkers yesterday afternoon destroyed two large factory buildings occupied by William Reed & Co., hat manufacturers; Rowland Brothers, hat manufacturers; Pass Brothers, silk manufacturers, and the Yonkers Silk company. The loss will probably reach $500,000. About 800 people are thrown out of employment. There were no casualties, though the buildings were crowded with employes when the fire was discovered.

May Have Been Andree's Balloon.

Rotterdam, July 28.—A letter from from Captain Lehman of the Dutch steamer Dordrecht appears in one of the papers of this city to the effect that he saw a curious object floating in the White sea on July 17, which was neither a ship or a dead whale, but resembled a balloon, and Captain Lehman suggests that it may have been Andree's balloon which he saw.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIMES.

Winnie Hart, aged 13, of Rochester, N. H., was drowned yesterday at Wells Beach, Me.

John Donovan, aged 40, a carriage trimmer, has been missing from his home at Dover, N. H., for over a week.

Constable Charles A. Ballou and his son, Walter, of Pawtucket, R. I., charged with causing the death of Constable Johnson, have been held for the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

Noble C. Earle, a New York traveling man, took a train at Rockland, Me., yesterday for Portland. In his pocket was a wallet containing $1000 in unnegotiable notes and $50 in money. When he arrived in Portland it was missing.

Electricians at Eliot.

Eliot, Me., July 28.—Sixty-five members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers were present yesterday at the annual convention which is being held at Greenacre, to continue during the week. The convention is held in honor of the 50th anniversary of the exhibition of the first model of electric traction by the late Professor Moses G. Farmer. Last evening Miss Sarah J. Farmer gave a reception to the members in honor of her father, Professor Farmer, which was attended by about 200. The feature of yesterday's meeting was the discussion between the professors who predicted a revolution in electrical inventions during the coming year, with many discoveries.

One Hundred Years Old.

Bennington, Vt., July 28.—Mrs. Sophia Walbridge Winnie of Bennington Falls rounded out a full century in years yesterday. Remarkable as it may seem, she is in excellent health, and on pleasant days takes her constitutional on the streets of the village. Her faculties are unimpaired, and she is almost as lively as any of the guests who attended her reception yesterday. Her brother, Ebenzer Walbridge of Oswego, N. Y., who is 86 years old, was among the guests. Mrs. Winnie's grandfather was General Ebenzer Walbridge, adjutant of the regiment of Green mountain boys at the battle of Bennington, Aug. 16, 1777.

Changing Seats In Boat.

Newport, Vt., July 28.—A small rowboat containing Mrs. J. Fuller, her 7-year-old son and her sister, Miss Chilson, all of Springfield, was capsized in Lake Memphromagog yesterday afternoon, and while both ladies were rescued, the boy sank before aid could reach him. The accident, which was caused by the ladies trying to change seats occurred about 500 feet from the shore, and the cries of all three brought two men to their aid. Both ladies were very much exhausted when brought to the shore.

Secretary of Prison Board.

Boston, July 28.—Warren Bailey has been elected secretary of the state board of prison commissioners. Mr. Bailey has been a member of the board for the past three years, and outside of that has had considerable experience in prison matters. Twenty-five years ago Mr. Bailey was a prison official at Charlestown. There and at Providence he spent six years of official life altogether, and a portion of the time was deputy sheriff.

Mrs. May Discharged.

Boston, July 28.—The criminal suit against Mrs. Abbie A. May of West Wilton, N. H., charged with obtaining $2300 of the funds of Christ Episcopal church of Cambridge from R. D. Washburn by false pretences was yesterday nolle prossed, after a consultation between the attorneys and Judge Forsaith. The defendant will not begin suit against the prosecution.

Preparing For Emergencies.

Halifax, July 28.—In a quiet way the British military authorities are strengthening this section in preparation for anything in the shape of war that may come along. The imperial troops in this garrison are to be increased by the addition of 600 royal artillerymen. This addition will make a strength of about 1000. Plans have been made for a new quick-firing battery to be constructed at Point Pleasant. It is the intention of the authorities to place here two or more batteries of royal horse artillery. It is also intended to have a new quick-firing battery constructed on George's island next summer. Another powerful searchlight, in addition to the one proposed for Sleepy Cove, is to be erected in a prominent position near the entrance to the harbor. The military authorities here have received a letter from the imperial government instructing them to devise at once some means by which soldiers and army reserve men can be kept together so as to be available in case of emergency. A notice was accordingly published in the newspapers requesting all discharged soldiers and army reserve men to call at the brigade office. It is proposed to procure employment for all such men. Preference will be given on all imperial work to ex-soldiers. In this way it is thought they will be available in case an emergency should arise.

Anent Professor Andrews.

London, July 28.—The Daily Chronicle this morning devotes an editorial article to the dismissal of E. Benjamin Andrews from the presidency of Brown university, which action it regards as the most serious blow the capitalist oligarchy has yet struck at social, economic and intellectual liberty in America. The Chronicle says: There is no doubt that like Professor Bemis, who was dismissed from the University of Chicago, President Andrews was dismissed because he warned his countrymen against the growth of great monopolies. It seems certain that a conflict is approaching that will shake the Union as it was shaken by the great slavery question. It looks as though the splendid millionaire endowments of American universities had the unworthy motive of the promotion of the interests of monopolists. We anticipate a great wave of opinion against the pretensions of the monopolist class as dangerous to freedom. This movement will lead to the substitution of public for private control and ownership of the big trusts and monopolies, and the substitution of state for private colleges and universities.

Taking No Chances.

Washington, July 28.—Secretary Long has decided to send the battleship Indiana to Halifax to be docked and cleaned. It is felt to be necessary to do this in order to prevent injury to the hull of the ship from corrosion. The department would have much preferred to send the Indiana to Port Royal, S. C. for this purpose, but the opinion of the best navigators in the navy department was that it would be decidedly risky in the present unsatisfactory condition of the approaches to the dock there. While the naval officers naturally deplore the necessity for thus sending our finest ship to a foreign dock, they say the practice is not new or uncommon.

Garrison Massacred.

London, July 28.—The Daily Mail's Cape Town correspondent says no news has reached Delagoa Bay of the expedition sent by Governor Albuquerque of Mozanbique to relieve Chamtsootu fort. It is rumored that the garrison, while pursuing the retreating rebels, were caught in an ambush and massacred. The whole of Gazaland, the correspondent says, is seething with rebellion, and the Portuguese forces are few and incapable.

THE BARRETT CASE.

Two Hundred Dollars Paid to Girl Last Saturday Missing.

Identity of Her Creditor Still Unrevealed.

Mrs. Barrett Gave Testimony at Fire Marshal's Investigation.

Boston, July 29.—The chief development of yesterday in the Barrett case was the discovery that $200 was missing from the safe of Codman & Codman, which sum Miss Barrett was seen to place in a pigeon hole only a few hours before the discovery of her body.

Fire Marshal Whitcomb questioned Mrs. Ella M. Barrett, mother of Alice M. Barrett, at length, but before she would divulge the information which she possessed he was pledged to secrecy.

Several other witnesses were also heard by the fire marshal, including W. C. Codman, who claimed that the firm's accounts were all right, and who reiterated his belief that his fair young bookkeeper and typewriter had been murdered.

The hearing was private. The witnesses who appeared at the state house were Mrs. Barrett, mother of the dead girl; Edward and Charles Barrett, her brothers; Miss Louise Meehan, her friend; W. H. Foss of Somerville, and Clerk Briggs, her associate in the office of Codman & Codman.

It was not until the fire marshal had ordered the stenographer to leave the room that the witnesses would talk freely. Even then Mr. Whitcomb's ability as a questioner was tried to the utmost. Much valuable testimony was heard by him, however.

When asked by the newspaper men at the close of the hearing if he had heard what he wanted to, the marshal said he believed he could clear up the case.

The inference is that he now knows to whom Miss Barrett loaned the $800. In fact, he would not deny that he knew it.

The most interesting development of the inquest, made public, was to the effect that there is missing, and has been since Saturday, $200 from the safe of Codman & Codman. It was paid in the morning by the Bailey estate. After putting the money in an envelope, Miss Barrett put it in the safe.

Five Persons Lost at Sea.

Boston, July 29.—That awful graveyard of the deep, the waters off the coast of Newfoundland, claimed five more victims on Saturday, as the result of a collision between the Allan line steamer Scandinavian, Captain Eastaway, from Glasgow, Scotland, and the British barkentine Florence, Captain Henry Olsen, of St. John's, N. F. The Scandinavian, which reached her dock at Mystic wharf, Charlestown, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, brought the news of the disaster. On board the steamer were the four survivors of the Florence, which was sunk off Cape Race. The persons drowned were: Mrs. Eliza Olsen, 54 years old, wife of Captain Olsen of the Florence; Noah Morris, cook, 51 years old, of St. John's, N. F., who leaves an invalid widow and two children; William Yabsley, 25 years old of St. John's, nephew of Captain Olsen's wife, single; James Norman, seaman, 22 years old, of St. John's, single; William Fry, seaman, 33 years old, of Poole, Eng.

Tramp Had $4775.

Brockton, Mass., July 29.—A man dressed like a tramp was arrested yesterday afternoon for trying to intimidate Mrs. Albert A. Archer, and upon being searched $4700 in government bonds was found sewed in his clothing, while there was over $75 in money in his pockets. He gave his name as Timothy A. Feeley, and was apparently 70 years old. He told Mrs. Archer thet she was suffering from rheumatism, and insisted upon prescribing for her, but she refused to listen to him, and after demanding a dollar, which he was also refused, he went out. Later he was arrested and will be held for further investigation. It is said that Feeley was arrested in Roxbury for the same offence two weeks ago. He is apparently demented.

Challenge to Oarsmen.

Boston, July 29.—James Wray, the Australian professional sculler, who is now in this city, has issued a challenge to row any man in the world, bar Jake Gaudaur, two or three miles, for $500 a side. Wray is a magnificent specimen of physical manhood. He stands 5 feet 10 inches, and weighing in condition about 185 pounds. He has an undefeated match record, having beaten Haines in England; Bishop, Chris Neilson, Emerson and others in Australia, besides winning a number of important regattas. Wray denies the statement that Ras Rogers of Worcester accepted the challenge recently issued by the Australian's backers, but is willing to row the Worcester man any distance under fair conditions for any suitable amount.

Youthful Thieves.

Portland, Me., July 29.—Frank Leonard and John J. Sullivan, both 12 years old, attempted a clever confidence game on several Portland merchants yesterday. One would engage a merchant in conversation, while the other would help himself to what was in reach. They visited the store of David Hooper on Middle street, and while that gentleman was looking at a steamboat time table for Sullivan, Leonard got into the money drawer and was making off with $8 which he found there when Mr. Hooper observed and stopped him. Sullivan took advantage of the confusion and got away. He was arrested later. The trick had been tried in other stores, but without success. Both boys are of respectable families.

Receiver Can't Reduce Wages.

Hartford, July 29.—Judge Elmer of the superior court has decided favorable on the application of the engineers and firemen of the Philadelphia, Reading and New England railroad for restoration of the scale of wages in force before May 1, 1897, and has ordered J. K. O. Sherwood, receiver of the road, to restore the cut. In his findings, Judge Elmer says he is satisfied the rates paid before the reduction were none too high for the service rendered. He notes that the compensation of the higher grade employes has not been reduced, and holds that if in view of the financial condition of the road a cut was necessary it should have been adjusted impartially among all the employes from top to bottom.

Portland Races.

Portland, Me., July 29.—The three events on the card at Rigby yesterday were won in straight heats. The 2:23 class was in the nature of a surprise, the winner, Clenega, being a green horse from Arden farm, Goshen, N. Y. She was driven by W. J. Andrews, who last year drove John R. Gentry to the world's record on the track. The mare Clara, who was picked to win the 2:34 pace, broke her hopples in the first heat and was distanced. Jule Woodnut, a new comer, proved an easy winner. In the 2:15 trot Louis Victor took two heats, but lagged in the third. He made a sensational finish, however, and landed first under the wire, going off his feet just as he got inside.

Lynn Shoe Cutters.

Lynn, Mass., July 29.—A mass meeting of the shoe cutters under the auspices of Cutters' assembly 3662, Knights of Labor, was held here last night to protest against the recent cutdown of cutters' wages in various Lynn shoe factories. I. Boynton Armstrong presided, and there was an attendance of fully 500, including representatives of 89 shop crews of cutters. Addresses were made by President Armstrong, Agent Allen B. Stevens of the Cutters' assembly, and George Bettenhausen, organizer of the American Federation of Labor. Resolutions were adopted to assist the cutters of the Harvey factory who are on a strike.

St. George Society Adjourns.

Manchester, N. H., July 29.—The grand lodge, Sons of St. George, of the district of Massachusetts concluded its session here yesterday. Boston was chosen as the place of the next meeting and the fourth Tuesday in July, 1898, as the time. The supreme lodge of the United States will also meet in Boston in October, 1898. The grand officers nominated for next year, to be voted for by the subordinate lodges, are: For grand president, Robert Kershaw of Boston and W. H. Ladbury; for grand treasurer, Lawreno Davenport of Lawrence; for grand secretary, J. W. C. Sargent of Boston. This is Mr. Sargent's ninth consecutive nomination for this office.

Persecuted Veteran Released.

Concord, N. H., July 29.—Calvin Fuller, who is over 60 years of age, bought a dog at Lancaster, June 17, and while conveying the animal home was arrested for not having procured a license. In default of money to pay a fine and costs, he was imprisoned in jail. He is an old soldier and pensioner, and his G. A. R. comrades interested themselves in his behalf. An appeal was made to the governor and council, but that body decided that it had no jurisdiction. The case was then taken to the supreme court and Judge Chase ordered Fuller's release, after carefully examining the case.

Charged With Robbing Dying Man.

Haverhill, Mass., July 29.—The police yesterday afternoon arrested Joseph E. Brown, a well-known young man of this city, on the charge of stealing $150 in money, a gold watch and other valuables from the room of John B. Trotier at Salisbury Beach last Sunday. Trotier, who had been there some time, was dying, when some one entered his room and removed the property. Brown had been about the beach for several days. He will be taken to Amesbury for arraignment.

Fishermen Missing.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Receipts for Year Ending June 30 Show a Slight Decrease.

First Steps Taken to Establish Armor Plant.

Secretary Long Selec's Experts to Investigate Cost Involved.

Washington, July 29.—The preliminary report of the commissioner of internal revenue for the year ended June 30, 1897, shows that the total receipts during that period were $146,619,508, a decrease as compared with the previous year of $211,106. The receipts from the several sources of revenue, together with the increase or decrease as compared with the fiscal year 1896, are stated as follows:

Spirits $82,008,558, increase $1,338,487; tobacco $30,710,297, decrease $1331; fermented liquors $32,472,162, decrease, $1,312,073; oleomargarine $1,034,129, decrease $185,302; filled cheese $18,992 (law not in force in 1896); miscellaneous $357,-283, decrease $69,828; banks and bankers $85, decrease $49.

The amount of withdrawals for consumption during the last year is given as follows:

Fruit brandy 1,146,131 gallons, decrease 294,679; whisky 68,833,245 gallons, increase 1,792,335; beer, porter and ale 34,423,094 barrels, decrease 1,403,004; number of cigars and cheroots weighing over three pounds per 1000, 4,063,169,097; number of cigarets 4,153,252,470, increase 109,453,-733; snuff, pounds 13,268,640, increase 720,041; tobacco, chewing and smoking, pounds 260,734,812, increase 7,067,675; oleomargarine, pounds 42,534,559, decrease 5,089,214. The states from which the larger collections were made during the year are given as follows:

Illinois, $32,115,622; New York, $18,420,-766; Kentucky, $15,657,957; Ohio, $12,748,-788; Pennsylvania, $11,446,317; Indiana, $8,564,363; Missouri, $7,364,682; Maryland, $5,454,795.

AS CONGRESS DIRECTED.

Secretary Long Proceeds to Ascertain Cost of Government Armor Plant.

Washington, July 29.—Secretary Long has taken the preliminary steps toward the creation of a board of naval officers to ascertain the cost of a government armor plant. Two members of the board have been selected, Commodore Howell, commandant at the League island navy yard, and Captain McCormick of the Norfolk navy yard. Both of these officers are possessed of much technical knowledge and may be said to rank high as experts upon the subject of armor.

The field or work of the board will be extensive; they must not only ascertain the cost of a modern armor plant, but must also take into account the propriety, or rather the necessity, of establishing in connection with it a complete plant for the production of steel ingots, a very large undertaking.

The experts are of the opinion now that it is probably necessary in making armor to begin with the ingot at the very moment it is forged and before it has cooled once. This is done in the best practice, and if it should be held to be absolutely necessary the government will be obliged to establish a steel plant alongside its armor plant if it embarks in the business of armor making. The board is to report to congress at its next session.

Central American Union.

Washington, July 29.—The state department has received a draft of the treaty which will be presented at a congress of representatives of the Central American republics Sept. 15, to bring all these states into union under one government and with one president. This new union will be known as the Greater Central American Republic and will comprise all the independent little republics which have been torn asunder politically for years by jealousies and strifes, that have well nigh wrecked most of them financially. The movement originated three years ago, and has since received the support of Mexico and the United States.

On Longwood Courts.

Boston, uly 29.—The third round of the Longwood tennis tournament was played yesterday, and consisted of three matches, all between Americans, and one between two of the Englishmen. The interest centered in the latter match, which was played yesterday afternoon, and quite a crowd saw H. A. Nesbit, who is rated in England as ninth in the list of tennis cracks, defeat Dr. A. V. Eaves, who is rated third, in three straight sets. Nesbit will meet Larned today in the semi-finals, and this match will probably be not only one of the finest in the tournament, but seems destined to be one of the most important matches ever played in this country.

Made Money on Alaska Ticket.

San Francisco, July 29.—The steamer Excelsior, chartered by the Alaskan Commercial company, left last night, sailing direct to St. Michael. This is the last of the company's fleet which will connect with the Yukon river steamers this season. For hours before the departure of the steamer the wharf was thronged with people. Three times the original price was offered for tickets. One passenger changed his mind after receiving an offer of $1500 for the pasteboard which he originally paid but $150. Over 2000 people gathered upon the wharf to bid farewell to the 110 passengers for the Klondyke.

THE CONVICTION yesterday at Greenfield, of John O'Neil of the murder of Mrs. McCloud, is a triumph of justice which public sentiment will applaud. If the atrocious act had occurred in an less enlightened parts of the country, he would have been lynched, and hung before the jury had a chance to bring in a verdict.

The Barrett Mystery.

The mystery surrounding the death of Miss Alice Barrett, of Waltham, the Kilby street bookkeeper, who was found dead in her employers' office last Saturday afternoon, has by no means cleared away, and her family's absolute refusal to tell the name of the person to whom she loaned her money.

It seems quite evident, says the Waltham Free Press, that some Boston dailies are publishing deliberate lies in connection with Miss Barrett's death in order to keep up a sensation. No one in Waltham believes she spent any more money than she was entirely justified in doing. It is cruel beyond expression to print the slanders and innuendoes certain sensational and discreditable Boston papers are publishing.

It is funny that the police of Boston assume to know more about the books of the Codman Brothers than the clerks themselves know. The police, if newspaper statements can be relied upon, say the cash book had not been posted since June 20, a highly improbable statement, while Mr. Briggs says the statement is not true and that they had been posted within a few days.

Medford vs. Quincy.

The city of Medford continues to have a slight lead in valuation over Quincy, her total being $18,349,450 against $18,012,146 for this city. Medford's increase this year was $630,350, and that of Quincy $431,632. Medford's tax rate jumped $3 40 and is $17 per $1000 this year.

Found Guilty.

The jury yesterday, in short order, found John O'Neil guilty, in the first degree, of the atrocious murder of Mrs. Hattie E. McCloud. The prisoner broke completely down, when he heard the verdict, and cried like a child. The counsel was given till Sept. 5 to file exceptions.

GROCERS' DAY.

Annual Outing of Old Colony Association.

Quincy Party off in Rain to Crescent Park, R. I.

Nearly all the Business Places Closed in Honor of the Day.

Today is Grocers' Day and business in that line as well as other lines is suspended throughout the length and breadth of the district, covered by the Old Colony Grocers' Association, for together with their friends they have united in a grand excursion to Crescent Park, R. I.

The grocers have looked forward with pleasure for today's excursion. They have prayed, as only grocers know how to pray, that the clerk of the weather would smile upon them and give them a pleasant day. But alas, their prayers were unavailing, for as they arose this morning, from a night filled full of dreams of forthcoming pleasure, and looked out at the windows their hearts were heavy, for instead of being greeted with the bright morning sun it was nothing but rain, rain, rain.

At times during the early morning hours it gave promise of clearing away but as the time drew near for the train to leave it continued to rain.

Our grocers, however, are persistant fellows and nothing daunted they determined to start and trust to luck as to the weather clearing, and therefore at 8.30 there was gathered at the Quincy depot a party of several hundred ready for the trip, rain or no rain.

Besides this there was a large truck loaded with barrels of ice, cases of crackers, gallons of spring water and dozens of lemons. These were to be used on the cars to keep the party in good spirits.

There were probably some who had purchased tickets whom the rain kept away, but their places were in many cases filled by members of the Polliwog club who had given up their fishing trip.

There were eleven cars on the train when it reached Quincy, the first stopping place; but as the train was to stop at several stations below, the cars were undoubtedly well filled.

To those who stayed at home the city presents a dismal appearance for those who did not go on the picnic either went on excursions of their own or stayed at home.

The stone sheds are running as usual, however, and the banks and city hall are open. The banks will however close at noon.

Although a number of the Polliwog club went with the grocers, the larger part of them made the trip they had planned and shortly before 9 o'clock they took a special car for Quincy Point, where the steamer City of Quincy was found in waiting. They quickly embarked and were soon steaming down the harbor toward the fishing grounds. The high wind for the past few days has however kicked up quite a sea and when the steamer begins to pitch and roll there will doubtless be many who will wish that they had gone to Crescent Park.

Those from Quincy to go with the grocers were:

CAN'T FIND THE CONTRACTOR.

Work on the Squantum Street Railway Extension Still Going On.

Although a temporary injunction has been granted on the petition of Ella V. Carver and Harry W. Reed to restrain the Quincy & Boston street railway from laying its tracks on Squantum street, the work is still going on.

The temporary injunction granted Tuesday by Judge Dunbar was to stop work until after the master had completed his hearing. This injunction was against Messrs. Gore, the contractors, and must be served by the High Sheriff of Norfolk county. It must also be served in Norfolk county for a sheriff of Norfolk county can not serve the paper in another county.

The sheriff has visited Atlantic several times within the past forty-eight hours but has not been able to find Messrs. Gore, and Wednesday he was not even able to find the foreman on the job. All he could find was a lot of Italians who kept steadily at work, being so familiar with the work that a foreman is hardly necessary.

Up to Wednesday night the rails had been laid as far as the Pope estate on Squantum street. This morning, however, the Lord granted a temporary injunction in the shape of rain.

In the temporary injunction, as granted by Judge Dunbar, there is a clause which permits the contractors to continue work at the dangerous points, to put them in a safe condition.

This will enable the contractors, as soon as the injunction is served on them, to complete the line from Hancock street to the Pope estate on Squantum street.

WHO SHALL PAY?

A Question Likely to Arise Over the Repairs of the Point Bridge.

The question has been raised as to who shall pay for repairing the damage done to the Quincy Point bridge by the steamer Victor on Tuesday: the steamboat people or the trustees of the bridge?

The claim is made that the bridge is rotten, and an examination shows this claim to be true. If it did not appear before the accident it certainly does now, and if some permanent repairs are not made a more serious accident may result. It is almost useless to be continually making temporary repairs and the proper thing to do is to build a substantial iron bridge.

The steamboat people claim that if the bridge had been a substantial one, the slight blow that the steamer struck would have done no damage other than to shake it.

Trolley Excursions.

There is no pleasanter way in the world of seeing the cities and towns of the State than can be found by taking rides in the trolley cars. There is speed enough to make the riding cool and agreeable, and yet the cars don't move so rapidly as to prevent the riders from getting a good and intelligent idea of the towns through which they pass. At any time a moment's stop can be made to gaze upon any special feature of interest. An opportunity is afforded the men in such a party to get to the rear of the car and smoke, and all together the run, for short distances in warm weather, beats the attractions of the ordinary steam railroad out of sight and mind. It is rather astonishing that more trolley parties are not made up about this section of the country. They are quite common in some districts.—Brockton Enterprise.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of John F. Burns for the illegal keeping of liquor at Randolph was called, and he was fined $50.

William S. Tracy was arraigned for keeping a common nuisance at Braintree and was fined $50, and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. Appealed.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Officer Halloran is on his vacation.

Mr. Henry Chubbuck has gone to Onset for a week.

Mrs. Charles S. Adams and family of Wollaston are at York, Me.

Harry Winslow has returned from a two weeks' trip to Stockton Springs, Me.

Miss Delia Deslauriers of Tracadie, Nova Scotia, is the guest of Mrs. Peter Reed.

Miss Amy Alden of Clive street has gone to Bainbridge, N. Y., for a month.

Miss Addie Ruggles of Neponset is the guest of Miss Corinna Wilde of Atlantic.

Miss Perry of Rutland, Vt., is the guest of Mrs. L. E. Lucia of Old Colony street.

Miss Mildred Pillsbury of Norfolk Downs is among the latest of bicycle riders.

Mr. Frank Jenkins and family have returned from a few days' visit at North Baldwin, Maine.

We understand a petition is being circulated to have a public telephone at Larrabee's the druggist.

Mr. Charles Godfrey and family of Wollaston have leased a place at Randolph, where they will take up their residence.

There will be a bowling match at Costello's alleys at Houghs Neck tonight between the Quincys and Murray & Irwins.

The Faxon Associates held their ice cream festival and dance at Music hall last evening, and a thoroughly good time was enjoyed.

The office of Carey Bros. which has been located on the west side of Copeland street, has been moved to their new location on the east side.

The tax collector's office at City Hall will hereafter be open on Saturday afternoons to accommodate those who desire to pay their taxes.

The City Band will give an open air concert on Saturday evening at the Junction of Liberty street and Brooks avenue, South Quincy.

Prof. E. P. Hayward, well known in musical circles, was taken ill last Saturday at his home on Washington street, Braintree, with scarlet fever and his recovery is doubtful.

This afternoon at Braintree there is a firemen's muster and this evening there will be a band concert, bicycle parade and fireworks. Electric cars will make it convenient for Quincy people to attend.

The petition requesting the New Haven directors to take down the Wollaston fence now has over 200 signatures upon it. The petition to the Quincy & Boston directors to extend the tracks through Wollaston via Adams street, Newport avenue, Beale, Farrington and Squantum streets also received a large number of signatures. It would be a shrewd move on the Quincy & Boston management to tap Wollaston and secure a part of their traffic.

Souther—Porterfield.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening by the Rev. E. C. Butler, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. B. Porterfield, when her daughter, Beatrice Helen, was united in marriage with Frank Austin Souther.

The bride was prettily attired in organdie and carried white sweet peas. She was attended by her maid of honor, Miss Margaret I. Davidson, who was gowned in white and carried pink sweet peas.

After the ceremony a reception was held, after which the young couple left mid a shower of good wishes and rice for a short bridal tour. They thought to evade their friends by driving to Wollaston, and taking the train from there, but much to their surprise they were met by a party of their young friends who had boarded the train at Quincy, and were escorted to Boston, where they left them mid another shower of rice and good wishes for their future happiness.

—The tax levy of the city of Taunton this year is $1,027 34 less than Quincy. On a valuation of $20,271,476 the tax rate is $16 80. The real estate of Quincy is valued at $965,460 more than Taunton.

Attractiveness

is what we aim at, so far as the appearance of our store is concerned.

If we can draw attention to our windows—that's no small matter.

Then, if the newcomer finds, on crossing the threshold, that the interior is bright and clean, we feel that we have scored an important point.

How many times, madam, have you ever entered a grocery store and felt an impulse to sit down awhile there?

Not many, we fancy.

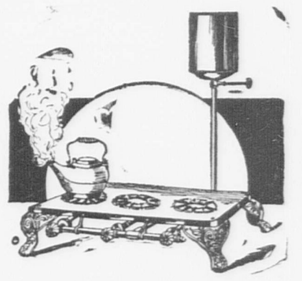

Yet our intent is to make OUR establishment fit for any lady in Quincy to sit down in.

"The Boston Branch Methods" tell as strongly in store management as in the actual buying and selling.

Look in our windows when next you pass Durgin & Merrill's Block, and see if there isn't something there which would add to your dinner tomorrow. There are some fine quality OLIVES, all sizes and prices. That GRAPE JUICE is delicious, has all the fruit flavor without the alcohol of the best wine. The diamond brand GINGER ALE is the best put up, either domestic or imported. A bottle of LIME JUICE is a great addition to ice water and is very healthful. There are a hundred or more articles to which we could call your attention if you would step inside. Remember our stock is complete in every particular.

What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

FURNISHING A WHOLE HOUSE

That's our specialty. From cellar to attic, we attend to the entire details. All our ideas are yours just for the asking. We make the Shades, set up the Range, lay the Carpets, arrange and set up the Furniture.

You haven't known what a comfort it is. Think of having your entire house furnished and fitted up ready to walk right into.

Yes, that's our business, we'll tell you just to a penny what it will cost; a pinch of profit for us, the rest is all for you. It costs you nothing to talk to us and get our figures, we are always glad to welcome you.

Inside prices on anything in the market, no matter who sells it.

Will you talk to us when you are ready?

QUINCY FAMILIES.

The Relation of Each Person to Head of Family.

Number of Uncles, Aunts, Cousins and Mother-in-Laws in Households.

4,792 Sons, and 4,421 Daughters at Home—3,497 Wives.

There seems to be no limit to the summaries which the bureau of Statistics of Labor can make of the information obtained by the census of 1895. From Part 2, Volume 2, just issue one learns the relation to the head of family.

This presentation shows, for each town, city, county and for the State, the number of heads of families by sex and the relation of each male or female person in the family to the head of the family.

As, for Census purpose, a family includes all collections, large or small, of people living under a common roof, the tables shows, in addition to those who are relatives by blood, those having relationships by reason of marriage, adoption, etc. It shows also the number of boarders and lodgers in boarding and lodging houses and guests in hotels; the number of patients in hospitals and inmates of institutions; the number of pupils in seminaries and boarding schools and students in colleges residing in dormitories connected with the schools, seminaries, or colleges; the number of domestic and personal servants, stewards, housekeepers and companions in private families, boarding and lodging houses, and hotels and institution generally; the number of superintendents and matrons in schools, colleges and institutions generally; the number of hired men and boys who reside with the head of the family by whom they are employed but for whom they render other than domestic service; the number of visitors not residing permanently in the families in which they were enumerated; and the number of assistants, this being a general term covering service either of a personal or business nature. Various other relationships too numerous to mention are included under the general heading "other relationship," while those of whom the relation to head of family is not given are included under the heading "not specified."

Boarders comprise those persons who sleep and board in one place, and include those living in boarding houses and in small hotels; lodgers are those persons who room in one place and board in another; guests include those persons residing temporarily in the smaller hotels, and guests generally in hotels,

The designation "hired men and boys" was adopted in order to include a very large body of people usually found in farming districts whose occupation is that of a farm laborer and who usually reside in the family of the person by whom they are employed. In many instances this relationship was originally returned as that of servant, but it is considered that the designations "hired man" and "hired boy" more clearly indicate the relationship.

The Males.

The census of 1895 showed 10,608 males, and 10,104 females in Quincy. Of the males 6,828 are native born and 3,780 foreign born. While the native born are nearly two to one of the foreign born, it will be observed that more foreign born men are heads of families. About one-third of the males are heads of families, nearly one-half are sons living at home and about one tenth are boarders, while 1000 are otherwise related to the head of the family as the following summary shows.

The Females.

The native born females in Quincy outnumber the foreign born two to one there being 6,754 of the former and 3,350 of the latter yet more foreign born are wives. There are 597 females who are heads of families and they are very equally divided between native and foreign born. The daughters at home are not as numerous as the sons. About 44 per cent. of the females are daughters, 34 per cent. wives, about 6 per cent. heads of families, about 5 per cent. servants, while 1100 are otherwise related as the summary shows:

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), done get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

☞ Ice Cream Freezers from $1.59 up. Hammocks 59 cents up. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

☞ A disturbance in the railroad world has been caused, apparently, by the desire of the Wabash Railroad Company to give its patrons the best possible service. The comforts of the free reclining chair cars, such as the Wabash has always run on its trains west of Detroit, have not been known to Eastern people, and now that these cars are being run East over the Wabash extension to Buffalo, and to New York City over the Ontario and Western, the other lines seem to be afraid that they will be too popular. So far as the travelling public are concerned they are not likely to object to them.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

MILTON.

The East Milton Congregational Sunday school hold their annual picnic Friday at Highland Park, Avon.

Four new houses are in the process of erection upon the new property on Edge Hill road.

The street department is putting in a sewer on Adams street between Mechanics street and the depot to take care of the surface water.

The East Milton Baptist Sunday school holds its annual outing next week at Highland park, Avon.

Mr. F. J. Kemp has been made the recipient of $50 in gold from the teachers and pupils of the Congregational church Sunday school.

Rules for Yachtsmen.

As the boating season is not yet at an end, it will be well, says the Post, for managers of boating parties to note that there is a section in the new rules of the road at sea governing the management of steam and sailing vessels, devoted entirely to them as a precautionary measure. It reads that vessels under oars or sails of less than twenty tons shall have ready at hand from sunset to sunrise a lantern with a green glass on the starboard side and a red glass on the port, which, on the approach of other vessels, or when advancing to the latter, shall be exhibited. Rowboats shall have ready at hand a lantern showing a white light, which shall be temporarily exhibited in sufficient time to prevent collision. Young amateur oarsmen and yachtsmen will do well to observe the above rules, as it will save loss of life and considerable trouble in the night, when steamers and tugs are coming up and down the local harbor, especially so in thick and foggy weather.

Leslie Wins Pursuit Race.

A large crowd gathered at the junction of Liberty street and Brooks avenue Wednesday to witness the team pursuit race; Harry McCabe and William Spargo against John Leslie and William Malcolm. The distance was six miles over a one-mile course. The race was exciting from start to finish, their time being about alike at the end of each lap. McCabe crossed the tape in 16.37 and Leslie in 17.33, but as McCabe and Spargo had one minute start Leslie won by four seconds. McCabe had a bad fall in the second lap and lost seven seconds which probably caused his losing the race.

Passing Away.

A consultation of physicians was held at 7 o'clock last evening in the case of John P. Lovell of Boston, and it was their opinion that he could not survive 24 hours, and might pass away at any time.

He has grown weaker from hour to hour, and showed signs of yielding to the effects of the shock with which he was stricken. His condition during the day was such as to give his attendants no hope for his recovery, and clearly indicated that his vitality had been overmastered.

—Here are some facts about Alaska which will interest all who contemplate a journey to that place of magnificent distances. It is 5517 miles from New York to gold mines, 2267 miles farther than from New York to San Francisco. In addition statistics show that nine out of ten men who went to California during the excitement in 1849 sunk into hopeless poverty. In view of such conditions, the Haverhill Gazette advises, men with paying situations to think twice before risking their all upon one throw of the dice.

The latest advices from the Klondyke seem to be, in effect, not to go there to hunt gold unless you are already rich enough to take care of yourself at higher than Delmonico prices for at least a year. Men as well off as that might as well stay home and establish insurance companies as a means of adding to their wealth.—Brockton Enterprise.

—President McKinley left Washington yesterday for a vacation of several weeks. He was accompanied by Mrs. McKinley, Secretary and Mrs. Alger, Mr. Porter, Assistant Private Secretary Pruden and Executive Clerk Cortellyou.

It takes 37 specially constructed and equipped steamers to keep the submarine telegraph cables of the world in repair.

Quoits, as a game, is said to have originated with the Greeks, and to have been first played at the Olympic games 700 B. C.

Two cows, two pigs, 18 hens, a gray-hound pup and a bull were given to an agent by an Abilene, Kas., farmer for a cabinet organ.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIMES.

John F. Devine, aged 28, of Foxboro, Mass., was instantly killed last night at Providence by a fenderless electric car. He got out of one car and stepped in front of another.

Miss Grace Allen, the Kansas school teacher on trial at Chandler, O. T., was acquitted yesterday on the charge of poisoning Miss Phronia Eckes, her rival, and the latter's mother.

W. H. Tierney, aged 22, son of a well-known Boston liquor dealer, was arrested on a charge of embezzlement at Providence yesterday. Young Tierney's father was the complainant.

Jonathan Kane, aged 78, of Branch Mills, in China, Me., who has been suffering for months with dropsy and had become despondent, committed suicide while his wife was absent by tying a stone around his neck and putting his head under water in a half hogshead.

William Hetherington, an employe at the Fall River (Mass.) pumping station, was fearfully burned yesterday. He entered the ash pit to clean it and was suddenly deluged by red hot ashes and scalding water. He had barely strength to crawl from his dangerous position in time to escape being roasted alive.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

Made Purchase to Get Evidence.

Naugatuck, Conn., July 29.—The first case to be prosecuted in the state under the provisions of the new Sunday law was heard before Judge Hungerford yesterday, and resulted in the acquittal of the defendant. The complainant was Deacon E. S. Williams, who purchased a pound of crackers from Patrick Connors. Williams admitted that he made the purchase to obtain evidence.

Left Fortune to Friends.

Boston, July 29.—The will of Helen Kent of Burlington was filed for probate in the East Cambridge court yesterday. It is understood that the estate of $200,000 is left almost entirely to friends. Miss Kent was unmarried and leaves no known relatives. The public bequests are sums to Catholic churches or Catholic charitable orders.

Gage Calls at Gray Gables.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 29.—Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage and his host, Hon. Charles S. Hamlin, called upon ex-President Grover Cleveland at Gray Gables yesterday, coming over from Marion on E. C. Benedict's yacht Oneida, returning on the same craft after their visit had been concluded.

Tincler Means Business.

Boston, July 29.—George B. Tincler, the great Irish runner, has posted a forfeit to bind a match to run Everett McClelland of Pittsburg any distance from three to 10 miles, for $250 to $500 a side. McClelland is said to be willing to arrange a series of matches of 5, 10 or 20 miles.

WILL CHANGE SYSTEM.

True Uniformity Plan of Operators to Better Condition of Miners.

Men to Be Paid In Cash and Company Stores Closed.

Reforms to Go Into Effect Jan. 1 If Sufficient Number Sign Agreement.

Pittsburg, July 29.—The coal operators of the Pittsburg district perfected their plans for a uniformity agreement last night after two days' hard work. The agreement consists of 21 articles, and should it go into effect the miners will have their greatest causes of complaint removed.

The best of feeling prevailed throughout the meetings, the only exception being the bolting of Colonel Rend of Chicago. Just previous to adjournment, however, Judge Owens announced that Colonel Rend had authorized him to state that any agreement the conference adopted would receive his hearty co-operation, and he would sign it if 95, 50 or even 20 per cent of the operators were sincere in their sanction if it.

The conference appointed a committee of five—W. P. De Armitt, J. B. Seerbe, J. J. Stoyler, J. B. Dyert and N. F. Sanford—with General John Little, to secure the signature of the operators to the agreement. This committee will begin its work today. It will be aided by the Ohio board of arbitration. When the requisite number of signatures have been secured another meeting will be held to ratify the agreement.

Speeches were made by De Armitt, Demester, Little, Seerbe and others, expressing satisfaction over the result of the meeting and predicting the success of the plan.

The agreement as adopted provides for cash payment of wages; 2000 pounds to the ton, check weighmen on the tipples, miners to be credited with the full quantity of coal contained in the mine; abolition of company stores, semi-monthly pay days; uniform price for pick mining in the thin and thick vein districts and screens not exceeding 1¼ inches. It also provides that in case of the violation of the provisions and terms of the agreement a penalty of 10 cents per ton on the total output of coal mined by the violator will be charged, which penalty is to be paid to a commission subject to the right of further arbitration or appeal. The penalty when collected is to be distributed among the signers of the agreement pro rata in proportion to the total amount of tonnage or output made by them during the year.

The commission is to be chosen annually and shall be known by the name of the uniformity commission. It shall be composed of nine members, the thick and thin vein operators having proper representation. The members shall be sworn to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of their office, and will be authorized and empowered to enforce the judgments and awards.

It shall be empowered to subpoena witnesses with the same force and effect as a board of arbitration duly appointed under the act of assembly of the state of Pennsylvania relating to compulsory arbitration.

The agreement shall not become effective unless it has been signed by 95 per cent of the operators on or before Jan. 1, 1898.

After 90 per cent have signed the agreement if any 15 operators shall be of the opinion that enough have signed to render it effective, a meeting shall be called in Pittsburg to declare it in force.

The Strike Situation.

Pittsburg, July 29.—The general strike situation is less encouraging from the miners' standpoint than it was a week ago. Breaks in the ranks of the river men and a general feeling of discouragement over the West Virginia situation have combined to quench enthusiasm in a remarkable degree. One prime factor in bringing back this condition of affairs is thought to be the inaction of the Wheeling convention in devising ways to stop coal shipments from the territory. On all sides the conference was confidently looked upon by the men as presenting a speedy solution of the West Virginia problem and a means of making the tieup general. The issuance of long resolutions instead was in the nature of a boomerang.

Today will witness one of the most interesting and what some confidently predict to be the last mass meeting of the present strike. All efforts have been concentrated on De Armitt's mines, and labor officials are to rally the men from all over the country. Eugene V. Debs and President Ratchford of the United Mine Workers will be among the chief speakers, while there will be a host of lesser officials and organizers.

The demonstration is planned as a peaceful one, and with the idea of making one last effort to bring out the working the miners by the strongest kind of moral suasion.

Maryland Democratic Convention.

Baltimore, July 29.—Harmony of the old fashioned kind prevailed at the Democratic state convention here yesterday, and it was clearly demonstrated that United States Senator Gorman still has his hand on the lever that controls the movements of the organization. The candidates nominated by the convention were selected by him, and the resolutions adopted were of his inspiration. At his request both gold and silver men waived their convictions for the nonce and voted to adopt a platform that declared for bimetallism, but is silent as to the question of "ratio." The following state ticket was nominated: For comptroller, Thomas A. Smith of Caroline county; for clerk of the court of appeals, J. Frank Ford, St. Mary's county.

Source of Discomfort Removed.

Washington, July 29.—The secretary of the navy has issued an order relieving naval officers from the present necessity of wearing full dress uniform during a court martial. This has been a breat source of discomfort to naval officers who will now be required to wear the uniform only when the court first convenes, and then they may wear any sort of clothing permitted by the presiding officer.

MURDER IN CHURCH.

Tragedy at Congress of Colored Baptist Ministers of Alabama.

Montgomery, Ala., July 29.—In the First Baptist church, colored, here yesterday, while the state congress of the ministers was in session, Professor P. H. Patterson, one of the leaders of his race in the South, a graduate of the University of Michigan, a teacher in the state Normal college, and highly respected negro, was murdered at the altar. The tragedy grew out of a bitter factional fight between the local negro Baptists over the expulsion of Rev. J. T. Brown from the pastorate of Big church for immoral conduct with a member of his flock. Patterson led the fight against him, and Rev. A. J. Stokes, pastor of another church, sided with Brown.

When the state congress convened an argument between Stokes and Patterson over the Brown case resulted in a fisticuff, when some negro from the crowd shot and killed Professor Patterson in front of the pulpit. The entire colored population is very much wrought up. A posse composed of negroes captured George Pritchett, and he confessed to having done the shooting. Preachers Stokes and Brown, Bracy and Branan and five other prominent negroes have been arrested, and a conspiracy is charged. Lynching was talked of, but there is every indication that the law will take its course.

Two Brothers Killed.

Waco, Tex., July 29.—In the stock brokerage office of C. E. Trice & Co. yesterday B. F. Kivett and W. W. Kivett were shot and killed by W. Lamden, a member of the firm. Bad feeling has existed between the Kivett brothers and Lamden for some time, growing out of charges made by the relatives of Lamden and a sister of the Kivetts. The shooting between the brothers and Lamden occurred during the busiest part of the day, when the office was crowded, and it caused great excitement. Two more of the Kivett brothers armed themselves and proceeded to the scene of the shooting, threatening to kill Lamden, but they were not allowed to enter. The killing is looked upon as justifiable.

Syndicate Buys Coal Mines.

Knoxville, July 29.—Henry Taylor, the representative of the English syndicate which has an option on most of the coal mines in east Tennessee, arrived here at noon yesterday. The deal is practically closed only awaiting Mr. Taylor's inspection of the properties and final report. The price approaches $5,000,000, the properties employ 3000 miners and have an output of about 3,000,000 tons of coal annually. The capitalists whom Mr. Taylor represents are partly from Boston and partly from England. The stock already has been taken and the bonds sold. Extensive improvements are contemplated in the mines and a railroad from Jellico to the sea is projected.

Couldn't Have Reached White Sea.

Christiana, July 29.—Dr. Nansen, referring to the letter from Captain Lehman of the Dutch steamer Dordrecht, who says that on June 17 he saw a curious object resembling a balloon floating in the White sea, declares that it would be impossible for Andree's balloon to have reached the White sea so soon after the ascent.

PROTECTING ITSELF.

Fletcher Webster Post Organizes a Corporation to Secure Property If Charter Is Lost.

Brockton, Mass., July 29.—Fletcher Webster post, No. 13, G. A. R., at its meeting last night considered the request of Department Commander Dean for the records of certain meetings of the post, and voted to send word to the commander that the records were open for inspection here in Brockton, but that nothing could be found in the constitution of the G. A. R. requiring them to be sent to him.

Commander H. A. Tower of Charles D. Sanford post, No. 79, of North Adams was present and commended the course taken by post 13 in the present controversy.

Following the meeting of the post a meeting of the corporation was held, at which the following amendment was made to article 13 of the constitution of the post:

"All comrades of Fletcher Webster post, No. 13, G. A. R., Department of Massachusetts, which was organized July 1, 1867, as Post No. 13, District 2, and which adopted the name of Fletcher Webster on Sept. 16, 1868, shall by virtue of being such comrades be and become members of this corporation to remain as long as they are so connected with said post and no longer; provided, however, that if said Fletcher Webster post, No. 13, shall at any time surrender or be deprived of its charter in any manner, all members in good standing in said Fletcher Webster post, No. 13, at such time shall thereafter be members of the corporation."

As seen by the above the post is seeking protection should it lose its charter in any way. By this change it will still hold the property as a corporation, so that it would loose little by any such action, while on the other hand, under the original article it would lose its property with its charter.

Marshals Under Civil Service.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 29.—Judge Jackson of the United States district court yesterday granted a permanent injunction "until further orders" against the recently appointed United States Marshal John K. Thompson "and all others" forbidding the removal of the present incumbent United States deputy marshals. This decision is on the ground that the present office deputies are under the civil service and cannot be removed except by methods prescribed by the civil service laws. Field deputies, Judge Jackson says, the United States marshal has absolute power to appoint at will, as they are not under the civil service law. The present decision arose from the announcement of United States Marshal Thompson of his intention to appoint Republican office deputies to succeed the Democratic encumbents whom President Cleveland put under the civil service law, whereupon the Democratic deputies applied to Judge Jackson's court for an injunction.

Naval Militia Inspection.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 29.—The torpedo boat Porter was boarded today by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt and Lieutenant Gibbons, the officer in charge of naval militia affairs at the navy department, and a formal inspection will be made of the naval militia of New York and Brooklyn during the drills now in progress. The men will be examined on board the battleships Massachusetts and Texas, and Friday on shore at Gravesend bay. The naval militia movement has received a strong and healthy impetus from the organization of battalions in Florida. There are now forces at Port Tampa, Tamosa, Jacksonville and Pensacola. The personnel is largely made up of employes of the Plant system, the head of which has done much to assist Lieutenant Gibbons in his efforts to strengthen the militia in the South.

Novel Smuggling Scheme.

Havana, July 29.—An examination by custom house officials of eight of the consignment of 155 logs which reached here on Sunday last on the steamer Seguranca, and which were deposited in the custody of the police at the Tallapiedra wharf, show them to have been packed with fine sumatra leaf tobacco. If the remainder of the logs contain an amount of tobacco proportionate to that found in those already examined it is estimated that the total shipment of tobacco will reach 4000 kilos. The logs, it is said, were shipped by a Maine lumber company.

In all the wide range of human sorrow there is no more pitiful tragedy than that of the death of a mother at childbirth. It cuts off a life just at the moment when it has achieved its grandest duty and at the very outset of its greatest happiness. It leaves a helpless, motherless babe to the care of strangers who have no blood interest in its welfare. Kind as a Sister of Charity or a nurse may be, they cannot replace the loving ministrations of a mother. This ever recurring tragedy could be avoided if women would but learn the vital importance of caring for the health and vigor of the delicate organs that bear the burdens of maternity. The woman who neglects weakness and disease of these organs is unfitted for motherhood and it only holds out to her the certainty of agonizing pain and possible death.

A sure, safe, and speedy cure for all weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It prepares for motherhood by making these organs strong, healthy and elastic. If taken during the period preceding motherhood it banishes the usual discomforts. It insures a healthy baby and makes its advent easy, almost painless. It provides ample nourishment for the newcomer, and shortens the mother's period of illness and debility. It is the best of all known medicines for women and over 90,000 of them have said so over their signatures. If you want to know more of it write to its discoverer, Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y.

A good, practical home medical work is the best friend and adviser a young wife can have. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is such a book. It contains 1008 pages and 300 illustrations. Several chapters are devoted to the reproductive physiology of women and facts that every wife and mother should know. Over a million women possess copies of it. A new edition is ready and will be given away absolutely FREE. If you want a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Send 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

HER STORY WAS FALSE

Miss Sarah Wheelwright Denies That She Knew Alice Barrett.

Mystery Added to Mystery as Days Go By.

P. J. Collins Tells a Discredited Tale of Dead Girl's Doings.

Boston, July 30.—The mysterious woman who has been sought for high and low ever since last Monday, and whose identity has been the object of the most exhaustive speculation and wonder—she who was said to have paid for the rooms that Miss Barrett occupied at the Hotel Thorndike and to have showered valuable gifts upon her—was found yesterday.

Miss Sarah Wheelwright, to whom Miss Barrett undoubtedly referred when she told the story to her mother, characterized it as a pure fabrication, without the slightest shadow of truth or justification. This flat denial, which is also quite detailed and circumstantial, simply knocks the yarn into smithereens.

In answer to the alleged statement of the dead girl's mother, that she engaged rooms for her at the Thorndike, and at the latter's suggestion invited Mr. Foss to spend the evening with her in those rooms, as her friend could not arrive there until late, Miss Wheelwright said she never spoke to Miss Barrett in her life, and was never spoken to by her; that she would not even have known her if she had met her; that she never heard of Mr. Foss, and never engaged a room at the Thorndike at any time.

P. J. Collins told a sensational and seemingly impossible yarn, under oath, before Fire Marshal Whitcomb yesterday forenoon concerning Miss Barrett. Investigation of his statements shows that they could not be correct, and the fire marshal stated at the conclusion of Mr. Collin's testimony that he did not credit it.

Collins has a small office on the second floor at 130 Water street where he acts as an agent for a patent beverage. On account of his being in the office of Codman & Codman on Saturday morning he was summoned by Fire Marshal Whitcomb, and he completely surprised that official by the glib story he told.

He claimed that he knew Alice Barrett well, had known her for six or seven months, and that he had been out to dinner with her. He attempted to convince the fire marshal that he was on very friendly terms with her, so much so that while he and Miss Barrett were dining together on Friday evening the girl asked him to lend her $1200. He did not have the money, but states that in consequence of a note which she sent over to his office Friday afternoon, he met her and rode to Lovell's with her and loaned her $40. He claimed that she desired $50, but he only gave her $40. In explanation he said that the young woman and he were in the habit of borrowing money from one another, but that she did not owe him anything.

Further than this this audacious weaver of sensational narrative went on in his reckless way to make the young woman out a loser of some $5000 or $6000 in sugar lately, being on the short end when he advised her otherwise. According to Collins he was instrumental in geting her to invest her money in stocks.

There is no one thing in Collin's story which is plausible, or even possible. In the first place he never saw the young woman until a month ago, and as far as can be learned he never had occasion to see her except in passing in and out of Codman's office.

DR. W. H. W. HINDS.

Leading Physician and Citizen of Milford Dies Suddenly of Heart Trouble.

Milford, N. H., July 30.—Dr. W. H. W. Hinds, one of the best known homeopathic physicians in the state, died last evening of heart trouble at his home on Nashua street. He had been reading in his chair, and as he arose and started to walk across the room he fell to the floor, dying in a short time.

The doctor was born in Chichester, N. H., and would have been 64 years old next Sunday. He was an army surgeon, serving at first in the Twelfth Massachusetts and later in the Seventeenth Massachusetts regiments. After the close of the war he came to Milford and engaged in practice.

He was a 32nd degree Mason, a Knight Templar, Odd Fellow, member of O. W. Lull G. A. R. post of this town and of the Massachusetts commandery order of the Loyal Legion.

He had represented the town in the legislature, as a member and chairman of its board of education and board of health, and was an ex-state senator. His wife died several years ago, but two sons survive him, one of whom has been associated in practice with his father for the past few years.

Melrose Embezzler Caught.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 30.—Charles S. Newhall, head bookkeeper and accountant of the Agricultural Insurance company, 19 Central street, Boston, who embezzled funds of the Melrose (Mass.) Co-operative bank, the Melrose Highlands Congregational church and the company by which he was employed, and who fled from Boston nearly two months ago, was found at Southwest Harbor yesterday. He is now locked up in the Bar Harbor police station, held as a fugitive from justice. Two indictment warrants have been issued for his arrest. One is at the Melrose police station and the other is at Boston police headquarters.

Salem's Coal Trust.

Salem, Mass., July 30.—For some time there has been considerable trouble over the awarding of coal contracts by the Salem water board. The members of the board charge Salem dealers with combining to keep up prices at an exorbitant level. The trouble culminated yesterday, when President Harley presented a motion that the president of the board be authorized to consult the United States district attorney in Boston with reference to the prosecution of the Coal trust for violating the laws of the country. The violations charged are that "certain coal dealers in Salem, Beverly and Danvers have conspired and combined together and formed a trust for the purpose of controlling and establishing the sale and price of coal in those places in restraint of trade and commerce, and in violation of the laws of the United States; that they have established and demanded exorbitant prices for their coal, thereby increasing the heavy burden resting on the common people." The motion was laid over until the next meeting.

Guides Oppose License Law.

Farmington, Me., July 30.—Dead River Guide and Camp Owners association is about to assess each member in the sum of $5 to assist any guide who will test the constitutionality of the new law. The association claims to have the sympathy of the public, and the financial support of many native and other sportsmen. George A. Gibson of Boston is said to have offered the sum of $100 to the Guide association. James Mathieson, president of the Rangely Guides' association, is guiding at present at Kennebago lake, though he was not licensed. W. H. Boynton of Arlington Heights, Boston, and Frederick S. Dickson, a Philadelphia lawyer, have promised James Mathieson financial aid if needed to test the constitutionality of the law. The other day Mathieson was approached by a man who is supposed to have been sent here to get evidence against unlicensed guides. Mathieson told him that he was ready to guide the stranger if he would await his return from Kennebago lake. Mathieson is still guiding at the latter place, and he may be arrested on his return. The outcome and the next move of the commissioners is awaited with the greatest interest by guides and sporting people everywhere.

Missourans on Massachusetts Benefit.

Boston, July 30.—Messrs. Augustus F. Harvey, actuary, and James M. Lewis, attorney, of the insurance department of Missouri, who have for the past week been engaged in an examination of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, have completed their labors and returned home. Mr. Harvey, in an interview, says that he believes the governor's commission was too harsh in its report on the association. He also disagrees with much that has been heard of the association. He does not believe there was any dishonest intent in those who organized the association nor their successors. They believed they were acting within their legal rights. He felt the more hopeful for the association from the fact that from Jan. 1 to July 1, in the face of allied troubles, the association has written about 8000 new policies, covering nearly $5,000,000, thus securing a considerable amount of "new blood."

Shoe Factory to Be Built.

Augusta, Me., July 30.—The Boyd & Corey Shoe company of Augusta, recently organized with a capital stock of $100,000, part of which is represented by Marlboro capital from the concern of the same name, will commence work Monday on grading preparatory to erecting a five-story factory, modern in every respect, 182x42. It will employ 300 hands. The lot was purchased yesterday. It is located near the center of the city, and will have a spur track of the Maine Central to handle its shipments. Every effort will be made to hasten the work. The company will have a business office in Boston.

Damage From Rain.

Greenfield, Mass., July 30.—The rain yesterday did much damage to the crops in the meadows in this section. At Turner's Falls there is great anxiety in regard to an immense jam of logs that is held in the narrows about 1½ miles above the falls. The log drivers predict that if the logs go out suddenly after a further rise of water that it will be more than likely to sweep out many of the bridges in the Connecticut river. It is estimated that there are 30,000,000 feet of logs at the narrows. The holding of the logs depends on whether or not the river continues to rise.

ROBBERY THE MOTIVE.

Alfred Williams Suspected of Killing John Gullio at Lynnfield.

Victim's Cabin Set on Fire to Hide the Crime.

Accused Accounts for Wounds by Saying He Was Held Up.

Lynn, Mass., July 30.—Alfred C. Williams, the suspected murderer of John Gullio, the Italian, whose body was found burned almost beyond recognition in a building on the Phillips farm in Lynnfield Centre Wednesday, is now locked up at the Lynn police station, awaiting a preliminary hearing, which will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

It is alleged that Williams, incited by a longing for funds to enable him to reach the Klondyke gold fields, shot Gullio, robbed him of about $100 and then fired the small shanty in which he lived on the Phillips farm, near the Wakefield line.

Wakefield, Mass., July 30.—The arrest of Alfred C. Williams of this town in connection with the burning of John Gullio at Lynnfield early Wednesday morning is almost the sole topic of conversation here. Among those who know something about Williams' whereabouts on the night of the fire is James Hickey, who is employed by Alfred A. Carleton of this town, and with whom Williams boarded. With some variations, Hickey relates about the same story of Williams' account of his night's experience as was told the police by the prisoner.

Hickey says that Williams came home about 4:30 Wednesday morning covered with blood, and apparently in an exhausted condition. Hickey helped him wash up, and then Williams told him the story of the holdup on the side of the pond.

Hickey examined Williams carefully and found a number of scratches on his face and throat, and two or three abrasions. The nail on his left little finger had also been torn off, and in fact everything in his appearance pointed to the fact that he must have had a terrible scuffle with some one, during which both he and his assailant used their hands and fingers.

Williams told Hickey that he thought it was about 11:30 Tuesday night when he was assaulted, and he did not regain consciousness until three hours after, and then he found himself down the embankment from the street on the shore of the pond with one arm in the water. He claimed that it took him two hours to drag himself back to the Carleton house a distance of about 1¼ miles.

The police visited the place where Williams said he was assaulted, but there was nothing in the appearance of the ground either at the top or the bottom of the embankment which indicated that any disturbance had taken place. The rain of yesterday morning, however, may have obliterated such traces.

Hickey will be a witness at the hearing in Lynn on Saturday.

State Officer Neal is hard at work on the case, and says that considerable evidence has been accumulated. In the room where Gullio was burned to death was found an oil can, which was peculiar, as it is known that Gullio always kept this can in an outhouse. It is also known that Gullio had $175 or thereabouts on the night of the fire, and that he was in the habit of keeping part of his money in the mattress and part in his trousers, which were hung near the bed. It is also known that Williams had the gold fever very severely, and that a day or two before the fire he told Gullio that he wanted to go to the Klondyke, but did not have the money. Gullio told him that he (Gullio) had sufficient funds to reach Alaska, and asked Williams to find out more about it.

The theory of the police is that the murderer of Gullio broke into the house and knowing where the Italian kept his money, was going through Gullio's trousers when the latter woke up. A terrific fight then ensued, in which both men were badly scratched, but Gullio was gradually overpowered and at last rendered unconscious or perhaps killed. The fiend then went to the outhouse, and taking the can of oil went back to the scene of the robbery. Here he endeavored to clear away all traces of the crime by sprinkling oil over the body of Gullio, and then after getting all the money set the fire and escaped. The police last night did not think that there was any shooting in connection with the crime, although Gullio's body was so badly burned that it is hard to say just how he met his death.

Officer Neal stated last night that Williams' room in Wakefield had been searched and $75 in bills found under the carpet. A revolver was also found, but its appearance gave no indication of having been used for some time, although it was loaded.

Attorney Hurlbert, counsel for Williams, has had the house of Gullio thoroughly examined, and quite a lengthy hearing is anticipated on Saturday.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Eighty degree weather again.

Tomorrow will be the last day of July.

A bank statement was called last Friday.

Miss Cora Harding of Botolph street is visiting in Boston.

Miss Maud Rice of Atlantic has returned from her vacation.

John A. Duggan is home for a few days from Cottage City.

Miss Edith Greenerd of Norfolk Downs is visiting in Lowell.

The Scottish clans will hold a picnic on Labor day with the usual games.

Mr. Charles Morris of Boston is the guest of Mr. Callahan at Squantum.

August, the great vacation month is at hand, and an exodus may be expected next week.

Miss Julie M. Page is spending this week with Mrs. L. W. Huntley at Brockton.

Miss Lizzie McDonnell of Dedham has been the guest of Miss Annie Leary the past week.

Rev. A. L. Brokaw and family started this week for Springfield, Ohio, where they will make their home.

The Murray & Irwins bowled the Quincys last night, the correct score will appear in tomorrow's paper.

The Wollaston Yacht club have their clam bake at Peddock's on Saturday afternoon. A large turnout is promised.

Master Walter Clare is visiting relatives and friends in Maine. He makes the trip on his well-known saddle pony, Billy.

The employes of the Quincy Water Department are to hold a picnic on Saturday afternoon at Pawsey's Rock Island farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Merrill will entertain friends from Wollaston and Quincy, Aug. 1st, at the Myers cottage, Brant Rock.

David Thomas of this city has been nominated as one of the book examiners of the Grand Lodge of Manchester Unity of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Julia E. Page of Wollaston Park left Thursday for East Machias, Maine, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Hannah Brown.

The Durgin & Merrill block had a close call from fire last night, a kerosene lamp left lighted in the drug store of A. G. Durgin would have started a blaze had it not been discovered when it was.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Merrill, Miss Nellie J. Merrill, Miss H. Elizabeth Merrill, Mr. Frank S. Merrill, and Masters Ralph and William Merrill will go to Myers cottage, Brant Rock, Saturday for two weeks.

The janitor began cutting the abundant crop of weeds in the Massachusetts Fields school yard Thursday. By so doing, the story that he had started a grove for camp-meeting purposes is positively contradicted. Some of the weeds had grown to a height of seven feet.

The T. R. & S. Co.'s nine will put up their best men against the Boston Reserves Saturday at Merry Mount park. The Reserves have dates with such clubs as the Maldens, South Bostons and others equally as strong so a stiff contest is expected. Game called at 3 P. M.

A cow belonging to Mr. Johnson of Wollaston Park strayed away from her moorings one day last week and much anxiety was felt for her safety, but the next day two little boys found her quietly browsing in the woods in front of the new school house and led her home.

Division 14, A. O. H., recently organized in this city, held a social time at Hancock hall Thursday evening. Guests were present from Divisions 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 15, 17 and 26. The members of the several divisions contributed to the good time by song and speech. A collation was served during the evening.

ATE AND WERE MERRY

The Excursionists to Crescent Park Have a Treat.

Wholesale Firms Contributed Refreshments Liberally.

Old Colony Grocers Score Another Great Success.

It was pleasant at Crescent Park Thursday and the sympathy bestowed on the excursionists by those at home was not appreciated. The cloudy sky and the little rain on the journey thither made travelling more agreeable, and there were over 600 in the party to make it jolly.

The Quincy contingent numbered over 100 and others joined the party at Braintree, South Braintree, Holbrook, Avon and Brockton, the "Shoe City" sending a very large delegation.

The excursion tickets were exchanged on the train for railroad tickets good for the round trip, and the conductors made but one round.

Soon all the excursionists were presented with pretty blue ribbon badges, about 5 by 2 inches, with this inscription in gilt: "O. C. G. & P. D. Union Annual Picnic, Crescent Park, July 29, 1897." At the top was a pretty gilt pin and suspended at the bottom was a silver medal with this inscription: "Good for one Pierce's Nine Cigar,—This check will be honored by any dealer—Silas Peirce & Co."

Then came grocers' tracts, bananas, root beer, etc., which wholesale firms had generously presented to the association.

The trip to Crescent park was longer than contemplated but the refreshments, card playing and good company passed the three hours very enjoyably. The train went via. Middleboro, Attleboro and Providence arriving at the park shortly before noon.

Crescent park is known as the Coney Island of Rhode Island and is reached by steamers, electrics and train, being on the riverside. It has many large buildings used as hotels, cafe, dance halls, opera houses, etc. There is a good ball field which is encircled with an asphalt bicycle track, and grand stands. Other attractions are the chutes, flying horses in variety, flying bicycles, cane tosses, shooting galleries, fish pond, goat teams, aerial flight, production of Corbett fight, music, dancing, and a play at the opera house.

A shore dinner is one of the attractions of Crescent park and G. B. Boyden can accommodate 1000 at the tables at one time. The course included clam chowder, steamed clams, clam fritters, green corn, cucumbers, onions, baked blue fish, ice cream, watermelon, etc. It was supplied generously but with too much of a rush to please some.

Soon the programme of sports, arranged by Messrs. Hunt of Weymouth, Prout of Quincy, and Connell of East Weymouth, were underway, and for these also very generous first and second prizes were given by the wholesale firms.

Event No. 1 was three standing jumps won by R. B. Wooster of Weymouth with J. H. Simmons of Braintree, second.

Wooster also won the running hop, step and jump with Carleton Drown of Weymouth second. Other entries in this event were Howard, Paterson, Simmons, Packard and Wadsworth.

The running broad jump was won by J. H. Simmons of Braintree, with J. Peterson second. Other entries were Packard, Wadsworth, Drown and Wooster.

The 100 yard dash for drummers brought out the most entries, viz: Arthur B. Tirrell of South Weymouth, George McGill of West Medway, Harry Marsters of Brockton, E. H. Sprague of Quincy, Blanchard, Armstrong, Wallberg, Eles, Bain, Peirce, Bowker, Stockwell, Wiggin, Roberts, Howe and Bennett. The first three took the prizes.

The proprietors' 100 yard dash was won by S. S. Bridgham of South Braintree with O. A. Bridgham second, and Connell, Howard, Willis, Bailey and McCarthy in the rear.

The pipe race for clerks was a novelty, the contestants being required to light a pipe en route and have it going when they cross the line. J. Peterson of Quincy was first, and M. J. McCarthy of Brockton, second. Others in the race were: Goss, Deady, Drown, Bradford, Dexheimer, Whiting, Paterson and Smith.

The pipe race for proprietors was won by J. S. Bacon.

The 150-yard dash for clerks was won by A. H. Simmons of Braintree with W. A. Brise second. Others in the race were Keon, Paterson, Dexheimer, F. Prout, Drown, Deady, and Paterson.

E. W. Hunt of Weymouth secured the bag of sugar in the 100-yard dash for proprietors, with E. C. Howard second and C. Humphrey third.

Only two were on hand for the one mile bicycle race for clerks and David Goss defeated Peterson with hands down. Channing Furnald who was entered for this event was late in arriving.

J. H. Simmons of Braintree won the first prize in running the bases with Dexheimer second.

The sack race was one of the interesting events, won by Joseph Deady of North Weymouth, who fell as he crossed the line. M. C. Whiting of Rockland was second, then Howard and Drown.

The closing event was a ball game between picked nines, the boys from Brockton winning 12 to 3. The score by innings was:

	1	2	3	4	5
Brocktons	0	5	0	7	0	—12
Rivals	0	1	2	0	0	— 3

In the Brocktons were C. and G. Packard, Wadsworth, Loheed, Marshall, A. Arnold, David, Paris and H. Arnold, and their rivals were made up of Hunt, Birse, Guston, Smith, Simmons, Leigh, Dexheimer, Alden and Lark.

In two innings the Brocktons retired on strikes in one-two-three order.

Several of the excursionists enjoyed steamboat rides and visited either Providence or Rocky Point, the sail being a very pleasant one.

About 6.30 cars were taken for home. A few had taken the precaution to partake of supper at the park, but this time they were unwise, for a Quincy committee of the Grocers, Messrs. L. M. Pratt, W. H. Rideout and Osborne Rogers had secured a grand treat, which was much appreciated.

First 1000 delicious sandwiches were distributed. They were presented with the compliments of Sprague Bros. & Co., of Boston and made of J. P. Squire & Co's sugar cured hams. There was enough and to spare for all.

Then a sample box of Marshall's potato chips of the standard brand were presented, and when these and some American lunch crackers had made one dry, there was some excellent lemonade distributed.

To cap all was a small tin box of Kennedy's fancy crackers for each excursionist, with the compliments of the day, from the manufacturers, and the grocers and their friends came home happy.

The homeward trip consumed much less time than the outward trip, and Quincy was reached before nine o'clock.

PAPERS SERVED.

Work However Will Not be Stopped on Squantum Extension.

The sheriff was successful Thursday in locating Messrs. Gore, the contractors building the street railway extension to Squantum, and serving the injunction upon them, but now that it has been served it will not interfere in the progress of the work.

The reason why it will not, is that the injunction simply enjoins him from laying any track, erect any poles or stringing any wires on that part of Billings and Squantum streets adjoining land of Mrs. Carver and Mr. Read. That part of the new line was completed several days ago and not only are the rails laid here but the poles and trolley wire are also up and the contractors are now at work further along on Squantum street.

The hearings before the Master have been held every day this week and the evidence for the petitioners was completed Thursday.

Today the witnesses for the respondents will be heard which will occupy two or three days.

The testimony in the case will be submitted to the court next Wednesday.

Volunteers of America.

Mr. H. Brown who has spent some years in India in mission work will speak in Rev. A. De Barritt's place Sunday at 4 P. M., at Y. M. C. A. open air meeting. He will be assisted by the musical ability of Captain A. Shaw of the Volunteers. A silver offering will be taken in aid of the Volunteer work. Mr. H. Brown and Captain A. Shaw are likely to hold an open air service at Houghs Neck later in the evening. They will announce the programme of Rev. A. De Barritt's meetings in and around Quincy.

Monday, Aug. 2, 7.30 P. M., Rev. A. De Barritt will address a union gathering of a number of Christian Endeavor Societies at Braintree Congregational church.

Tuesday and Wednesday at Houghs Neck, open air meetings.

Thursday at First Presbyterian church, 7.30 P. M.

Friday at Bethany Congregational church, 7.30 P. M.

A silver offering will be taken at each meeting to aid the work of the Volunteer movement.

A Surprise.

At the close of the prayer meeting of the First United Presbyterian church on Thursday evening, the good feeling and generosity of the congregation were manifested, when Mr. A. M. I. McLeod came to the front, and in a few well chosen words, in behalf of the congregation presented their pastor, Rev. W. W. Dorman, with a handsome bicycle. The secret had been carefully guarded, and came as a great surprise to the pastor.

Robbed of $100.

It is reported that a well known Quincy gentleman visited a bowling alley Wednesday evening and desiring to bowl, took off his coat and hung it up on the wall. In the coat pocket was a pocket book containing $50 in money and an endorsed check for $50. When he had finished bowling, he put on his coat, only to find that some one had robbed him of the pocket book.

OUT OF ELEMENT.

The Day's Experience of the Polliwogs Yesterday.

Choppy Sea Alone Saved the Finny Inhabitants of the Sea.

The Polliwogs Content to Throw Bait to Them.

When the sixty members of the Polliwog club started on its annual fishing excursion Thursday morning they apparently forgot some essential points, viz: that the east wind that had prevailed for several days must have kicked up a choppy sea; that the Polliwog is a fresh water fish; and that the Polliwog is sometimes used as bait to catch salt water fish. If they had forgotten these points many had cause to remember them before the day was over.

The party, some sixty in number, embarked in the steamer City of Quincy from Quincy Point at 10 o'clock, and the bow of the steamer was headed toward Boston light.

On the trip down considerable bragging was done by several of the members as to their fish catching abilities, and it sounded as though another steamer would have to be chartered to bring the fish home.

All were busily engaged in making ready their lines and were in high spirits until the steamer entered Broad sound. There a change came over many of them, for their flushed and ruby cheeks began to be pale and white and wishful glances were made toward the receding shore. Arriving off Boston light a bluff was made at fishing, and while it is said that some fish were taken, no scores were taken, for the members were satisfied with simply throwing bait to the fish.

The sea instead of becoming calmer apparently became troublous and it was then that the steamer came about and headed for Fort Point, where a landing was made at 2 o'clock for dinner.

Anderson furnished the dinner, and as the larger part of the club had empty stomachs, they thoroughly enjoyed the fish dinner which was awaiting them.

After dinner the steamer was again taken but no further attempts were made at fishing, for the Polliwogs had all they wanted of that. The steamer cruised around the inner harbor, where the sea was somewhat quieter, and at 9 o'clock the return was made to Quincy Point.

Although many had passed through a remarkable day's experience, all expressed themselves as having had a good time and as they left the boat there arose a mighty shout of "Long live the Polliwogs."

Probate Court.

The closing session of Norfolk county probate court before the August vacation was a busy one on Wednesday at Dedham.

Wills allowed—Daniel Falvey of Quincy; J. P. Hewins of Sharon; S. E. Shirley of Franklin; Elizabeth Capen of Stoughton; Louise Parker of Brookline; Sarah Young, otherwise known as Sarah Savage of Braintree; Solomon Hovey of Hyde Park.

Mr. Lovell Dead.

Mr. John P. Lovell, founder and head of John P. Lovell Arms Company of Boston, died at his summer home at Cottage City on Thursday, after a brief illness following an attack of apoplexy, aged 77 years.

Mr. Lovell whose home was in Weymouth was for sixty years a prominent figure in the business life of Boston, and for fifty-seven years the guiding spirit of the John P. Lovell Arms Company.

He was born in East Braintree July 25, 1820, and after eleven years of schooling he went to work in a cotton factory.

He followed several occupations until 1836 when he apprenticed himself with A. C. Fairbanks, a gunsmith, with whom he became a partner in 1840, and from this grew the great firm known today all over the world.

Mr. Lovell was a prominent society man, being a charter member of Crescent lodge of Odd Fellows, also a member of the Masonic fraternity, and was a director in several banking associations.

Mr. Lovell leaves a widow and several sons who were associated with him in business.

The funeral will be held Sunday; private services at his late home at East Weymouth at 1.45; public services at 2.30 at the First Congregational church. South Shore Commandery of Knights Templar and organizations of Masons and Odd Fellows will attend.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The Association will dedicate its new field Sunday afternoon by an open air service. The service will be addressed by the representatives of the Volunteers of America, Ballington Booth's new organization, including Capt Shaw, a good musician and Mr. Brown of India. Seats will be furnished all. Secretary Colton will have charge for the last time.

The Association will move into a part of the new quarters on Monday. The gymnasium and bathing facilities will remain at the Street Railway building until the new place is ready.

The International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. located in New York has just issued an annual report of the educational work for the past year, in which it gives special prominence to the work of the Quincy Association. It contains six half tone cuts, one of the Sloyd class at work and five of models in wood and clay made by students. With the exception of Boston, Quincy reports the largest number of students. The volume also contains extracts from a paper prepared by Secretary Colton on "Study of the Local Field—Discovery of its Possibilities."

"THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD OR OUR SAVIOUR IN ART"

Cost over $100,000 to publish. Contains nearly 200 full-page engravings of our Saviour, by the great masters. Every picture is reproduced from some famous painting. Agents are taking from three to twenty orders per day. The book is so beautiful that when people see it they want it. "FIRST GLANCE AT THE PICTURES BROUGHT TEARS TO MY EYES," says one. "Cleared $150 first week's work with the book," says another. "Some high grade man or woman of good church standing should secure the agency here at once," says every editor, "as $500 can soon be made taking orders for it." Also a man or woman of good social position can secure position of Manager of this territory, to devote all their time to employing and drilling agents and corresponding with them. What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

A.G. DURGIN, DRUGGIST.

Remember

Our Vegetables are always fresh and nice. Because we sell such a large amount we are obliged to buy every day, and consequently we do not have it around long enough to get poor. We have today, Peas, Butter Beans, Cranberry Beans, Beets, Cucumbers, Lettuce, New Cabbages, New Turnips, Tomatoes, and there are other kinds here.

We can say the same for our line of Groceries—a large stock, always fresh, and our prices are right.

Flour at reduced price.

Becoming Reconciled.

Now that the rails are laid through Billings street for the Squantum electric road, many residents who at first opposed it have changed their feelings and have become quite reconciled to it. If the street is put in good condition all will be forgiven by many, though some are still very bitter against those who worked so hard to put it through this street.

HOUGHS NECK.

Very chilly weather all this week. Feels like a November day; people all wearing overcoats.

Band is playing as usual. It plays tonight on Crosby street.

Master Leo. McMasters the crack pitcher of the "Elliots" of Roxbury has been signed by the Houghs Neck Jrs to pitch against the Quincy Jrs and North Weymouths next week. Master Leo has the title of champion 15 year old pitcher of Massachusetts.

Mr. J. Lyons and family from Roxbury, Master Arthur Spring and Mr. Geo. Brown and family have arrived at the Loretto for the remainder of the season.

Mr. F. Jones has leased the Home cottage and will there spend with his family the month of August.

Mr. Geo. Alexandia of Roxbury has arrived at the Pierce house for a few days.

A young lady, whose name could not be learned, came near meeting with a very severe accident yesterday. While trying to steer out of the way of a child she ran into the electric car, which had just started, and only for the promptness of the driver she would probably have been severely injured.

A Fishing Trip

Mr. W. J. Coombs of Wollaston Park, had as guests on his yacht Clara Lou, Wednesday, Mr. Lester W. Huntley of Brockton, Mr. John Tighe of Stoughton and Mr. C. W. Page of Wollaston Park. They attempted to do some deep water fishing but the east wind had made it so "Ubly, donch ye know," that it was impossible to get any pleasure out of it, so Cap'. Coombs put back and ran under the lee of Peddock's where they caught perch. The oil stove was lighted and for two hours Mr. Page kept the air filled with the fragrance of fried fish, fried clams and fried lobster, which proved to be a great appetizer, for they "didn't do a thing," to beautifully browned fish. After a short sail about the bay a visit was made to the old steamer City of Boston lying at Nut Island. At six o'clock the Clara Lou was pointed toward the Wollaston Yacht club, and in 19 minutes was at her moorings.

Though the day was not an ideal one for boating, the verdict was nevertheless, a good time.

COUNTY SQUIBS.

—Sanford Waters Billings presided at the quarterly meeting of the Norfolk County Temperance Union at East Dedham Thursday. The morning session was for business. A feature of the day was the children's meeting in the afternoon. Mrs. Myra A. Raymond of East Weymouth, and Messrs. Clark and Billings were the speakers. The October meeting will be at Dover.

—The Norfolk Suburban street railway desires to extend its tracks into Memorial square at Dedham.

—Francis Eugene, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ryland D. Batchelder, who died at Lexington Wednesday, will be brought to Weymouth Saturday for interment.

—Mr. Robert Lewis Bentley and Miss Jemima Mosher were married at Hyde Park on Wednesday.

—The Brookline Education society is giving a series of band concerts in Brookline.

TRADE-MARK

WOMEN AT KLONDIKE

MRS. WILLIS OF TACOMA MAKES A FORTUNE OF OVER $300,000.

Started Without Money and Is Now a Prospective Millionaire—Women Wild to Join In the Mad Rush to the Klondike For Gold.

Ten weeks ago Mrs. Willis of Tacoma was as poor as the proverbial church mouse. Today she is worth $300,000, and all on account of the Klondike.

Two years ago Mrs. Willis, whose husband is a blacksmith and a great sufferer from rheumatism, decided to try her luck among the goldfields of the frozen north. She set out alone and vowed that she would not return until she could bring a fortune with her. She has kept her word.

After two years of prospecting and just when her spirit and her fortune were at the lowest ebb there came a report to Dawson City of a big placer strike on the Klondike. Joining a party of cattlemen, Mrs. Willis hurried to the new El Dorado, staked a claim, and she has realized more than $300,000 from it.

Not satisfied with this, however, she established a laundry at Dawson City and was the first to introduce the "boiled shirt" among the miners. It made a great hit, and notwithstanding the fact that Mrs. Willis is compelled to pay $250 for a box of starch her enterprise is prospering greatly. An Indian squaw who works in the laundry receives $4 a day and expenses, and the log cabin in which the work is done rented for $35 a month. Wood for fuel costs nearly $500 a year.

Before the turn of fortune's wheel made Mrs. Willis wealthy she worked as cook for the mess of the Alaska Commercial company at Dawson.

Efforts have been made to steal the woman's claim, but to a friend, Mrs. Frank P. Hicks, she writes:

"I have gone through death, and a fight is now being made to take possession of my claim, but I will stand by my right if it takes five years."

An interesting phase of the Klondike craze is the frantic determination of many young women to go. All the expeditions are besieged by women applicants. Here is what a woman who has roughed it on the Klondike says:

A woman actually needs little in the way of an outfit, presupposing, of course, that she goes with a man who takes the necessary camping outfit and food along. This is what she requires for her personal comfort:

One medicine case filled on the advice of a good physician, two pairs of extra heavy all wool blankets, one small pillow, one fur robe, one warm shawl, one fur coat, easy fitting; three warm woolen dresses, with comfortable bodices and skirts knee length, flannel lined preferable; three pairs of knickers or bloomers to match the dresses, three suits of heavy all wool underwear, three warm flannel nightdresses, four pairs of knitted woolen stockings, one pair of rubber boots, three gingham aprons that reach from neck to knees, small roll of flannel for insoles, wrapping the feet and bandages; a sewing kit, such toilet articles as are absolutely necessary, including some skin unguent to protect the face from the icy cold, two light blouses or shirt waists for summer wear, one oilskin blanket to wrap her effects in, to be secured at Juneau or St. Michael's; one fur cape, two pairs of fur gloves, two pairs of fur seal moccasins, two pairs of mucluc—wet weather moccasins.

She wears what she pleases en route to Juneau or St. Michael's, and when she makes her start for the diggings she lays aside all civilized traveling garb, including shoes and stays, until she comes out. Instead of carrying the fur robe, fur coat and rubber boots along she can get them on entering Alaska, but the experienced ones say take them along.

The natives make a fur coat, with hood attached, called a "parki," but it is clumsy for a white woman to wear who has been accustomed to fitted garments. Leggings and shoes are not so safe or desirable as the moccasins. A trunk is not the thing to transport baggage in. It is much better in a pack, with the oilskin cover well tied on. The things to add that are useful, but not absolutely necessary, are chocolate, coffee and the smaller light luxuries.—New York Journal.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Treasurer Howard N. Wakeman of the Pequot Library association of Southport, Conn., has received notice that Mrs. Virginia M. Monroe has placed on interest the sum of $30,000 to be credited to the interest of the Library association.

Senator Mason recently asked Senator Morgan of Alabama how long he could talk on a subject of which he knew absolutely nothing. "Well," answered Morgan, with a smile, "if it was a matter about which I knew absolutely nothing, I do not think I could talk more than two days."

THE LISTENER.

Governor Atkinson of West Virginia is very domestic in his tastes, and when through with the cares of office amuses himself playing the violin.

Galen Clark, who has just resigned the post of guardian of the Yosemite valley, went there about 40 years ago expecting to die from consumption in a year or two. He is now 83 years old and is vigorous and alert.

First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath has never lost the habit of putting a circle around his periods, which he learned as a newspaper man. His signature never appears without this mark after it.

John Otis, who used to be known as the "milkman congressman," is in Topeka in poor health and straitened circumstances. Some time ago he started a co-operative colony in Colorado and put all his money into it. The colony failed and Otis lost both his money and his hope.

Silas Hinkley, a son of the millionaire president of the Poughkeepsie Electric Railroad company, is heaving coal as a stoker in the employ of the company at $1.50 a day. He is a Harvard graduate, but took his present place voluntarily in order to learn the business thoroughly.

Alfred Walter, the new president of the Lehigh Valley railroad, was born in Brooklyn in 1851 and began his career in the engineer corps of the Alleghany Valley railroad. In 1892 he became general manager of the Erie railroad, and in 1894 he took the management of the coal estate of Coxe Bros.

Governor Bradley of Kentucky, who, on his recent outing trip in the woods, shaved off his beard, was called back home before he had time to change his old camp clothes, and his office boy did not know him and refused to let him in. It was several minutes before he could gain admission to his own office.

When he was paying for a drink in a Kentucky town, the lieutenant governor of Arkansas not long ago drew out five $100 bills. The police were immediately notified that a counterfeiter was in town. The lieutenant governor had to tell who he was before the people would believe he was "straight."

"Colonel Thomas R. Kennedy, president of the Cumberland Valley railroad," says a Chambersburg contemporary, "has ever been one of the most enthusiastic horseback riders in our community, and he fills his saddle with a grace and a poise that far younger men look upon with the liveliest envy."

Congressman Russell of Connecticut has something like a bushel of horseshoes which he has picked up. Six or eight fine specimens ornament, or disfigure, his apartments at the Hamilton in Washington, and the remainder of the bushel, except a few, are stored in an old box at his home in Killingly.

The oldest living man who had a father in the battle of Bunker Hill is Alonzo Barnes of North Conway, N. H., who is 90 years old, and his brother, Albert Barnes, 78 years, is postmaster at Kearsarge village. Mr. Barnes is the son of Lieutenant Amos Barnes, who fought with General Stark.

"Tom Taggart," says an Indianapolis man, "was at one time a messenger boy in Indianapolis and today he is mayor of the city. He used to be interested in bakeries, and then he got control of the Grand hotel, which is the Democratic headquarters. He is genial and a 'hail fellow well met.' He is a shrewd politician."

RECENT INVENTIONS.

A newly patented fishpole has a reversible butt with both ends hollowed out to receive the first joint of the rod, so it can be turned to bring the reel above or below the grip for the hand.

A window shade which is adjustable at the top as well as at the bottom is hung on two cords which wind up on spring drums at the ends of the roller, the shade being raised and lowered as usual.

The combination of a dustpan and mousetrap, recently invented, has a hinged top projecting over the pan which can be set by a spring catch and released by means of a lever on which bait is fixed.

A new fire escape for use in hotels and large buildings is formed of a large cushioned chair with a box in the seat under the cushion containing a rope ladder to be attached to the chair and hung out of the window.

To prevent the thread on a spool from unwinding faster than it is needed, a circle of spring wire is slipped over the spool to hold it tightly, with an eyelet on one side through which the thread passes as it unwinds.

Levi F. Warren.

Newton, Mass., July 30.—Levi F. Warren, one of the best known residents of West Newton, died yesterday at his home after a sickness of two days. He was born in Weston in 1833, and had resided in Newton over 30 years. Mr. Warren was educated at the Bridgewater Normal school, taught in the Salem high school several years, and for 28 years was principal of the Pierce school, West Newton. He was a member of West Newton lodge of Odd Fellows. A widow and two daughters survive him.

Hoosac River Is High.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 30.—The severe rain storm did considerable damage in this vicinity. The Housatonic river has overflower its banks in many places and has done considerable damage to crops. The first floor at Russell's mill was flooded and operations were suspended. At North Adams the Hoosac rive overflowed its banks, causing a suspension of street car traffic between that city and Adams.

Well Known Musician Dead.

Braintree, Mass., July 30.—Edward P. Hayward, aged 62, well known in musical circles in southeastern Massachusetts, died at his home yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hayward was a member of the Old Stoughton Musical society for many years, and a director of the Braintree Musical association. He leaves a widow and four children.

Old Compositor Gone.

Salem, Mass., July 30.—George W. Parsons of the Salem Evening News, probably the oldest compositor in this country, died yesterday afternoon, aged 82 years. He worked up to Wednesday noon, and suffered a paralytic stroke yesterday afternoon, while sitting in his chair at his home, dying in a short time.

Tobacco Damaged.

Westfield, Mass., July 30.—The heavy rain has made the roads impassible in all the outlying districts. The river is several inches higher than during the rain of two weeks ago, and much damage has been done to the tobacco crop in the lowlands.

Sick of the Position.

Marblehead, Mass., July 30.—William Stacey, for the past 28 years tax collector in this town, has tendered his resignation, to take effect at once. He says he is tired of the office, which pays $500 per annum, while the bonds required are $20,000.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

Nicaragua Canal Commission.

Washington, July 30. — Admiral Walker, Captain Carter and Professor Haupt, the new Nicaragua canal commissioner, held a preliminary meeting in the engineers' office at the war department yesterday. Although they have not received their commissions they discussed at some length future plans. There is no present intention of visiting Nicaragua, but before a final report is made the commission will make a personal examination of the canal route and its surroundings. Admiral Walker, by virtue of his rank, and being first named on the commission, will be president.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or cooffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

AWAITING STEAMERS.

Demand For Transportation to Alaska Is Still Increasing.

Collier to Be Refitted to Carry Passengers.

She Will Have Accommodations for Sixteen Hundred Persons.

San Francisco, July 30.—So great has the demand for transportation to the gold fields of Alaska become that the Pacific Coast Steamship company has decided to send another steamer to the far North.

The company selected the Willamette, an immense steam barge, for that purpose, and has chartered her from the Oregon Improvement company. She is a collier and arrived from Seattle yesterday with a cargo of coal. It was immediately discharged and preparations were begun to reconstruct the vessel to accommodate passengers. She was taken to Broadway wharf and a large force of men will work night and day fitting her with bunks.

The steamer will sail for Juneau and Dyea on Saturday. She will carry about 400 passengers from here and a quantity of freight. At Puget sound points about 760 passengers will be taken on and also 200 horses, intended for work on the trail and at the mines.

At present there are accommodations for only 60 cabin passengers, but when the vessel is altered she will be able to carry about 300 first-class passengers.

Already 500 second-class tickets have been sold at Puget sound points, and there is great demand for tickets on the part of those who are eager to reach the mines early.

Captain Holmes will be in charge of the Willamette when she sails on Saturday, and a large throng is expected at the wharf.

The steamship company is also making arrangements to secure other boats to dispatch from Puget sound. Among the vessels that may be engaged is the steamer City of Seattle, a passenger boat, which has ample accommodations for a large number of people.

LATEST SCHEME.

New York Syndicate to Transport Men an Supplies on Bicycles.

New York, July 30.—One of the most novel of the many schemes to obtain a share of the wealth of the Klondyke region has been developed by a syndicate of four wealthy New Yorkers, who are planning to establish trading posts and stores in the mining camps and also to purchase all the promising claims on the market. They will transport their men and supplies to the gold fields on a bicycle specially designed for the purpose.

The members of the syndicate prefer that their names shall not be mentioned at present. They have no stock to sell and will furnish all the money themselves. Their attorney is Henry F. Granger of 45 Broadway.

As Mr. Granger outlined the plan, the enterprise will be undertaken on an extensive scale. He will meet a mining expert in Seattle and will dispatch him at once to the gold fields, well supplied with money to buy up all the promising claims in the market. The attorney will also talk with returning miners and gather all the information obtainable. If it is possible to buy or charter freight steamers of the Pacific coast at anything like their true value he will invest in two or three. If the transportation companies have got control of all of the available vessels, however, they will be bought here at once and sent around the horn.

Passes Strewn With Miners' Bodies.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 30.—The widow of Lieutenant Schwatka, the Arctic explorer, being interviewed here concerning the Klondyke gold regions, which country she has repeatedly visited with her husband, declared that the government should stop the tide of emigrants going to the gold fields in Alaska. She says that the mountain passes are strewn with the skeletons of unfortunate miners, who perished from either cold, heat, malaria or starvation while trying to reach the golden region.

Fighting at Malakand.

Simla, July 30.—The north camp at Malakand was abandoned Wednesday afternoon, the troops concentrating on Kotal. The attack began at 8:30 on the previous evening and lasted until daybreak. Desultory fighting continued throughout the day, the tribesmen driving in the pickets, of whom 13 Sepoys were killed and 42 wounded. The Punjaub infantry, led by Lieutenant Clime, in a succession of brilliant charges, drove back great masses of the tribesmen, killing 90. The enemy is collecting in large forces and severe fighting is anticipated. Reinforcements have been sent to Bargai.

Spanish Prisoners Tortured.

Liverpool, July 30.—A band of anarchists, who had been exiled from Spain, arrived here today on their way to London. Several of the members o fthe party were interviewed and related their experiences in Spanish prisons. They said they had been fed upon salt fish and had been deprived of water for eight days at a time. The prison authorities promised to give them water if they would make confessions. Owing to this treatment, one of their number went mad and was shot down in his cell. Others were branded with hot irons, had their nails pulled out, and were tortured in other ways.

Andree's Permeable Balloon.

Stockholm, July 30.—Dr. Ekholm (Ekhola), who was associated with Herr Andree in his projected balloon voyage last year, writes to The Aftonbladet that he decline to join in the present attempt because the impermeability of the balloon was unsatisfactory. He says it lost 51 cubic metres of gas daily from the time of inflation. In his opinion it would not float more than from 22 to 24 days. Inasmuch as the voyage under ordinary conditions of wind would take at least 24 days, Dr. Elkhom believes Andree will be remarkably fortunate if he succeeds at all.

MISS ANTHONY AT ADAMS.

Great Suffragist the Honored Guest at Berkshire Historical Society Meeting.

Adams, Mass., July 30.—The annual meeting of the Berkshire Historical and Scientific society was held at Forest park in this town yesterday afternoon, with Miss Susan B. Anthony as the honored guest of the society.

Rev. A. B. Whipple of Pittsfield presided in the absence of Dr. John Bascom of Williams college. The meeting was given up wholly to the discussion of womens' rights and eulogy of Miss Anthony.

Rev. Dr. Louis Zahner of Adams made an address of welcome, and Miss Anthony followed. She spoke feelingly of Adams, which is the place of her birth, and asked for co-operation in her work to secure equal rights for men and women in the world of labor, in property and in the government.

Among the other speakers were: Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, Philadelphia; Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Warren, O.; Mrs. Clara B. Colby, Washington; Miss Alice Stowe Blackwell, Boston; Mrs. Ida H. Harper, biographer of Miss Anthony; Mrs. Mary Wright Sewell, Indianapolis; Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Philadelphia, and President Taylor, Great Barrington.

A poem written for the occasion by John Thayer of Rochester was read by Mrs. Clara B. Colby, and a short address was made by Daniel Reed Anthony of the Leavenworth Times.

IN MORO CASTLE.

Message In a Case of Tobacco Which Says Three Americans Are Incommunicado.

Philadelphia, July 30.—While unpacking a case of Havana leaf tobacco yesterday, an employe of the firm of Vetterlein Bros., discovered the following letter upon a single sheet of note paper:

"Havana, April 4, 1896.

To Whom it May Concern:

There is in Moro castle three American men that were captured in Rio del Pinar. They are not allowed to communicate to any one or to apply for relief from the United States government. I take this means of notifying persons in the states for them. They have papers for honorable discharge from the army in 1865 They give their homes as Germantown, Philadelphia. The men were on a tour of Cook's excursion. Annie Luci.

The cargo of tobacco of which the message-laden case was a part arrived at this port on the steamer Seneca from Havana on April, 10, 1986. It lay in the bonded warehouse until the latter part of March last, when the beginning of the tariff excitement caused a number of tobacco men to take out goods consigned to them.

Excitement Killed Him.

Cincinnati, July 30.—After watching his gallant filly Taluca win in the Ohio stakes in the hardest kind of a drive, Dr. E. F. McLean, one of the best known horsemen on the American turf, was attacked with heart disease and died a short time afterwards at the Oakley race track yesterday afternoon. Mr McLean's death was undoubtedly caused by the exciting finish in the stake race and the sensational incidents which followed. After Taluca crossed the wire winner by a nose and the jockeys were dismounting, John Huffman, the St. Louis horseman, took advantage of the selling clause in the conditions of the race and began to bid up Taluca, Mr. McLean's horse. Tom Blackburn, McLean's trainer, stood by and protected his filly, and after being bid up to $3000 she was bought in by Blackburn at that figure. Blackburn at once put in a claim for Remember Me, Huffman's horse, which finished second to Taluca, and after paying $300, the amount she was entered for, both animals were led to the McLean stable. All during the run up Dr. McLean sat silently watching the transaction. After it was over McLean's friends first noticed that he was sick, and only a short time afterwards he received the fatal attack.

Cold Water Army.

New York, July 30.—An army of Prohibitionists invaded Ocean Grove to attend the 17th annual meeting of the National Temperance and Publication society and the National Anti-Liquor league, which are holding a three-days' campmeeting and prohibition rally. The big auditorium was filled with these enthusiasts yesterday morning when Bishop J. N. Fitzgerald of Newark delivered the address of welcome. Dr. James B. Dunn, general secretary of the society, in his response, electrified a portion of the audience and amazed others by the declaration in his speech that "We consider it a greater honor to have a bishop of the Methodist church welcome us than to have the president of the United States."

Break at DeArmitt's Mine.

Pittsburg, July 30.—William Warner, secretary of the Miners' union, telephoned that a break in De Armitt's mine has taken place. He says that after yesterday's meeting another meeting was arranged for last night, and it was attended by many of the men who have been at work. Several local speakers, he said, placed the matter before them in such a convincing way that the men from De Armitt's Turtle Creek mine resolved not to return to work this morning. Secretary Warner says this is the most important result of the big meeting, and it will be taken advantage of at once to influence the men at the other two mines to come out. The miners' officials are jubilent over this victory.

Great Britain Consents.

Washington, July 30.—Official information just received in Washington indicates that Great Britain will consent to join in an international monetary conference, to be held in this city next winter.

Eclipse Photographed.

San Jose, Cal., July 30.—The following comes from Lick observatory in regard to the solar eclipse: "The contact was observed visually and the phenomena photographed. D. S. Holden."

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

Commander-In-Chief Clarkson Issues General Orders From Omaha.

Buffalo, July 30. — Commander-in-Chief Clarkson of the Grand Army of the Republic has issued a general order from national headquarters at Omaha in regard to the arrangements for the grand encampment. The commander-in-chief, escorted by the department commander, will leave Omaha on Saturday, Aug. 21, at 6 p. m., by special train. National headquarters at Omaha will be closed on that date and opened in Buffalo on Monday, Aug. 23.

The 31st national encampment of the G. A. R. will assemble in Music hall, Buffalo, on Thursday, Aug. 26, at 9 a. m. As there is much business to come before the encampment its sessions will be called to order promptly at the hour named.

The annual parade of the Grand Army of the Republic will take place on Wednesday, Aug. 25, and will move at 10 a. m. sharp. The route of march will be up Main street to Chippewa, west to Delaware avenue, on Delaware to North, on North past the reviewing stand at the Circle.

The reviewing stand will be at the Circle, and will be designated by the national colors.

Comrade William McKinley, President of the United States, and other distinguished comrades will review the column with the commander-in-chief.

Every effort is being made by the citizens of Buffalo to make this a most interesting and successful encampment, and every indication points to an unusual attendance.

Cleveland Races.

Cleveland, July 30.—This was the red letter day at the grand circuit races, and the free-for-all pace, with Star Pointer, Joe Patchen and Lottie Lorraine as the starters, was the principal attraction. The day was perfect, the sun shinning brightly and the track was in fine condition. The 2:08 pace, unfinished, was settled in one heat, Bumps taking first money. There was a burst of applause, which rose to a shout, when Star Pointer, Joe Patchen and Lottie Lorraine came on the track. Pointer had the pole, with Joe Patchen next. Pointer and Patchen went away like a double team. The first quarter was covered in 30¾ and the half in 1:01¾. Turning into the stretch, Pointer went half a length ahead of Patchen and held the lead to the wire, Patchen being second and Lottie Lorraine third. Time, 2:04. Pointer won the next two heats with ease. The 2:13 pace, in which Red Seal was the favorite, was an exciting contest. Driver Clark, behind Claus Forester, was thrown from his sulky in the first heat. In the fourth heat Hermetic fell and a general smash-up resulted, which spilled Drivers Owen, Sanders and Kelly and smashing a sulky, but nobody was injured. In the fith heat Frank Bogash, driver of Fairview, was pitched from his sulky and one horse passed over him. He received a bad injury to his spine, the extent of which cannot now be determined. Bessie Leach won the race after two heats had been taken by Wentworth, the favorite being distanced. The 2:23 trot was won by Octavia, the favorite, after Wynema had won the first heat.

Armor Companies' Offer Rejected.

Washington, July 30.—Secretary Long has rejected the offer of the armor companies to supply the diagonal armor for the three battleships—Alabama, Wisconsin and Illinois—now building at a price to be fixed hereafter by the navy department itself. The companies made this offer under the impression that as the armor of this kind is entirely within the hull and superstructure of the ships the failure of the government to procure it would stop the work of the shipbuilders entirely. Therefore, while they refused to furnish all of the armor needed at the price fixed by congress, they undertook to supply the diagonal armor, leaving the price afterward to be adjusted. Secretary Long, however, has found that it will be possible to go on with the work of building the ships and allow the armor to be placed later on.

Professor McClure Killed.

Tacoma, Wash., July 30.—While descending Mount Tacoma without a life line and in darkness on Tuesday, near midnight, Professor Edgar McClure of the Oregon State university stepped over a 300-foot precipice on Muir glacier and was instantly killed. Every bone in his body was broken. Professor McClure was in charge of the scientific experiments for the United States government, and made observations on top of the mountain during the day. He remarked on packing his barometer that no instrument of that nature had ever been brought down from Mount Tacoma unbroken, and gayly assured friends that he would break the record.

Mills Closed For Two Weeks.

Salem, Mass., July 30.—The Naumkeag cotton mills were closed yesterday for two weeks. The mills employ 1400 people, and the loss in wages will be about $17,000. They have been running on 42-hour time for some weeks.

The Polliwogs.

Some of the good boys who went down to the sea this week in a big ship, got dazed and ventured to feed the fishes. They couldn't seem to tell whether a polliwog had an "i" and could see to eat like other fish. But the way the waves roared and tossed the steamer about, it is no wonder. They thought a tadpole had a tail similar to a "y" and went wiggling about, the same as the fishermen did that day. But finally as they neared Anderson's their heads became more steady, and they came to the conclusion that as age and strength advanced, he dropped his tail and kept his eye.

All the dog cacthers of Yonkers, N. Y. have resigned, because almost as regularly as they seized a dog the owner had them arrested.

—Dwight Moody declares that the three great temptations assailing young men today are the bicycle, trolley cars and Sunday newspapers. How times have changed! The Boston Home Journal wants to know if that well-known trio, wine, women and song have gone out of business?

—The ratio of blind persons to 100,000 inhabitants is, in Denmark, 53; Sweden, 88; Norway, 128; Finland, 155, Russia, 200. There is less blindness in cities than in the country, the proportion being in Norway, 83 to 145.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

Two Quarrymen Crushed by Falling Boulders.

John Scott, Badger's Foreman, and Hugh Dawson the Victims.

Of the many frightful accidents that have occurred in the quarries in times past it is doubtful if there has been many that equalled that which took place at Badger Bros. quarry this morning, whereby two men lost their lives, two women their husbands, and seven children their father.

John Scott, foreman at Badger Bros.' quarry, Hugh Dawson and eight or nine others, had been at work all the morning blasting in the quarry and they had exploded several blasts successfully.

A few minutes past 11 o'clock they fired another blast which must have loosened some of the boulders in the banking. After waiting a few minutes Scott and Dawson went down into the quarry to see the result of the blast.

They stooped down beneath an overhanging ledge, and suddenly without any warning two sharp edged rocks weighing several hundred pounds each toppled down onto them, almost completely burying the unfortunate men.

One agonizing cry was all that the other workmen heard but they knew too well its meaning.

Scores of willing hands were soon hard at work with almost superhuman strength tearing the rocks from their unfortunate co-workers.

It seemed ages before the rocks were removed, but in reality it was but a few moments, and when at last they were rewarded, a most horrible sight met their eyes, which was too much for some of these hard toiling men.

Scott was almost literally ground to pieces and his life light had gone out instantly.

Dawson was almost as bad for his right leg had been crushed off at the hip and his right arm and body crushed. He was still alive, however, and was quickly hoisted out of the quarry.

Dr. Dion, who had been summoned made a hasty examination of the man and ordered his removal to the City Hospital.

Meanwhile arrangements were being made to remove the body of Scott.

This was a trying ordeal for his fellow workmen, and many an eye was dimmed as the remains were gathered together and placed in a canvas, which was quickly tied up to hide the horrible sight from view.

The signal to hoist was given and slowly the car with its burden arose to the surface and the remains were turned over to an undertaker.

Both men had been employed by Badger Bros. for several years and were considered careful workmen.

Scott was about 45 years of age and resided on Bunker Hill avenue and leaves a widow and four daughters, who are quite young.

Dawson was about 28 years of age and resided on Cross street and leaves a widow and three children. His brother was beside him when he was killed.

Kind friends notified the families of the two men. The shock was a terrible one to them and they could not be comforted.

Mr. Scott was an Odd Fellow, and a member of Mt. Wollaston lodge of this city. Officers of the lodge visited the family within two hours of the accident. He joined the order in April, 1893.

The remains of Scott were removed to Hall's undertaking rooms on Hancock street.

Dawson died about half an hour after reaching the City Hospital. His body is also at Hall's undertaking rooms.

COUNTY SQUIBS.

—A company is being organized to build an electric street railway from Dedham to Needham.

—Mrs. Freeman Hollis of Weymouth died yesterday in her 69th year.

—The tax rate of Norwood has also increased. It was $16.80 last year, and $18.40 this year.

—Henry Hyde Smith, the new trial justice at Hyde Park was graduated from Harvard law school in 1860 and was admitted to practice the same year. He has been a master in chancery for sixteen years.

—Payments have been ordered by the county commissioners on the Washington street improvements at Dedham. The county pays $1500, and the town $6,858.

—Dover has one of the lowest tax rates in Norfolk county this year; only $8.40 per $1,000. The town has only 152 houses, but $8,931 taxable acres. The value of the real estate is $481,568; personal, $339,964.

—George A. Kimball, of Somerville, estimates the cost of the new elevated road in Boston at $296,946 a mile.

Yachting Sprays.

The executive committee of the Quincy yacht club held a meeting on Friday evening. The open race programme was arranged. The committee voted to give $10 and $5 prizes in each class with the exception of the knockabout.

C. C. Hanley of Monomet, the famous yacht builder, was in town this week. He has been making a few changes in Wm. P. Barker's Omeme. The Omeme will have a new mast, about ten pounds heavier and and slightly larger at the head than the last one. The mast will be stepped about two feet further aft, making the boat carry a regular jib and mainsail rig.

—This is the way one gentleman wrote to a friend, soon after the opening of the Bridgewater, Brockton & Taunton street railway, in regard to the travel on the electrics: "Brockton people are crazy to get to Taunton; Taunton people are crazy to get to Brockton; Bridgewater people don't care where they go if they can only get into a car."

—Women in Maryland are permitted to wear men's apparel. In a test case in Baltimore the authorities decided that there is no law that forbids the wearing of men's garments by women, provided no offence is committed against public modesty. In one state, therefore, women have the right of free and unlimited trousers, cutaways and bell-crowned hats without asking the aid or consent of anybody.

MY SUNDAY AT HOME.

BY RUDYARD KIPLING.

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

If the red slayer think he slays,
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep and pass and turn again.
—Emerson.

It was the unreproducible slid "r" as he said this was his "fy-ist" visit to England that told me he was a New Yorker from New York, and when in the course of our long, lazy journey westward from Waterloo he enlarged upon the beauties of his city, I, professing ignorance, said no word. He had, amazed and delighted at the man's civility, given the London porter a shilling for carrying his bag nearly 50 yards. He had thoroughly investigated the first class lavatory compartment, which the London and Southwestern sometimes supply without extra charge, and now, half awed, half contemptuous, but wholly interested, he looked out upon the ordered English landscape wrapped in its Sunday peace, while I watched the wonder grow upon his face. Why were the cars so short and stilted? Why had every other freight car a tarpaulin drawn over it? What wages would an engineer get now? Where was the swarming population of England he had read so much about? What was the rank of all those men on tricycles along the roads? What was the idea of the brass and iron tipped shinney sticks that were lying in tanned canvas bags on Wimbledon platform? When were we due at Plymouth?

I told him all I knew, and very much that I did not. He was going to Plymouth to assist in a consultation upon a fellow countryman who had retired to a place called the Hoe—was that up town or down town?—to recover from nervous dyspepsia. Yes, he himself was a doctor by profession, and how any one in England could retain any nervous disorder passed his comprehension. Never had he dreamed of an atomsphere so soothing. Even the deep rumble of London traffic was monastical by comparison of some cities he could name, and the country—why, it was a paradise. A continuance of it, he confessed, would drive him mad, but for a few months it was the most sumptuous rest cure in his knowledge.

"I'll come over every year after this," he said in a burst of delight as we ran between two 10 foot hedges of pink and white may. "It's seeing all the things I've ever read about. Of course it doesn't strike you that way. I presume you belong here? What a finished land it is! It's arrived. Must have been born this way. Now, where I used to live, at Portchester— Hello, what's up?"

The train stopped in a blaze of sunshine at Framlynghame Admiral, which is made up entirely of the name board, two platforms and an overhead bridge, without even the usual siding. I had never known the slowest of locals to stop here before, but on Sunday all things are possible. One could hear the drone of conversation along the carriages, and, scarcely less loud, the drone of the bumblebees in the wallflowers up the bank. My companion thrust his head through the window and sniffed luxuriously.

"Where are we now?" said he.

"In Wiltshire," said I.

"Ah! A man ought to be able to write novels with his left hand in a country like this. Well, well! And so this is Tess' country. I feel just as if I were in a book. Say, the conduc—the guard has something on his mind. What's he getting at?"

The splendid badged and belted guard was striding up the platform at the regulation official pace, and in the regulation official voice was saying to each door:

"Has any gentleman here a bottle of medicine? A gentleman has taken a bottle of poison—laudanum—by mistake."

Between each five paces he looked at an official telegram in his hand, refreshed his memory and said his say. The dreamy look on my companion's face—he had gone far away with Tess—passed with the speed of a snap shutter. After the manner of his countrymen, he had risen to the situation, jerked his bag down from the overhead rail, opened it, and I heard the click of bottles.

"Find out where the man is," he said briefly. "I've got something here that will fix him if he can swallow still."

"Swiftly I fled up the line of carriages in the wake of the guard. There was clamor in a rear compartment—the voice of one bellowing to be let out, and the feet of one who kicked. With the tail of my eye I saw the New York doctor hastening thither, bearing in his hand a blue and brimming glass from the lavatory compartment. The guard I found scratching his head unofficially by the engine, and murmuring, "Well, I put a bottle of medicine off at Andover—I'm sure I did."

"Better say it again, any'ow," said the driver. "Orders is orders. Say it again."

Once more the guard paced back, I, anxious to attract his attention, trotting at his heels.

"In a minute, in a minute, sir," he said, waving an arm capable of starting all the traffic on the London and Southwestern railway at a wave. "Has any gentleman here got a bottle of medicine? A gentleman has taken a bottle of poison--laudanum—by mistake."

"Where's the man?" I gasped.

"Woking. 'Ere's my orders." He showed me the telegram, on which were the words to be said. "'E must have left 'is bottle in the train an took an other by mistake. 'E's been wirin from Woking awful, an now I come to think of it I'm nearly sure I put a bottle of medicine off at Andover."

"Then the man that took the poison isn't in the train?"

"Lord, no, sir. No one didn't take poison that way. 'E took it away with 'im in 'is 'ands. 'E's wirin from Woking. My orders was to ask everybody in the train, an I 'ave, an we're four minutes late now. Are you comin on, sir? No? Right be'ind."

There is nothing, unless, perhaps, the English language, more terrible than the workings of an English railway line. But an instant before it seemed as though we were going to spend all eternity at Framlynghame Admiral, and now I was watching the tail of the train disappear round the curve of the cutting.

Yet I was not alone. On the one bench of the down platform sat the largest navvy I have ever seen in my life, softened and made affable (for he smiled generously) with liquor. In his huge hands he nursed an empty tumbler marked L. and S. W. R.—marked also internally with streaks of blue gray sediment. Before him, a hand on his shoulder, stood the doctor, and as I came within earshot this is what I heard him say: "Just you hold on to your patience for a minute or two longer, and you'll be as right as ever you were in your life. I'll stay with you till you're better."

"Lord, I'm comfortable enough," said the navvy. "Never felt better in my life."

Turning to me, the doctor lowered his voice. "He might have died while that fool conduct—guard was saying his piece. I've fixed him, though. The stuff's due in about five minutes, but there's a heap of him. I don't see how we can make him take exercise."

For the moment I felt as though seven pounds of crushed ice had been neatly applied in the form of a compress to my lower stomach.

"How—how did you manage it?" I gasped.

"I asked him if he'd have a drink. He was knocking spots out of the car—strength of his constitution, I suppose. He said he'd go most anywhere for a drink, so I lured him on to the platform and loaded him up. Cold blooded people you Britishers are. That train's gone, and no one seemed to care a cent."

"We've missed it," I said. He looked at me curiously.

"We'll get another before sundown, if that's your only trouble. Say, porter, when's the next train down?"

"Seven forty-five," said the one porter and passed out through the wicket gate into the landscape. It was then 3:20 of a hot and sleepy afternoon. The station was absolutely deserted. The navvy had closed his eyes and now nodded.

"That's bad," said the doctor. "The man, I mean—not the train. We must make him walk somehow—walk up and down."

Swiftly as might be I explained the delicacy of the situation, and the doctor from New York turned a full bronze green. Then he swore comprehensively at the entire fabric of our glorious constitution, cursing the English language, root, branch and paradigm, through its most obscure derivatives. His coat and bag lay on the bench next to the sleeper. Thither he edged cautiously, and I saw treachery in his eye.

What devil of delay possessed him to slip on his spring overcoat I cannot tell. They say a slight noise rouses a sleeper more surely than a heavy one, and scarcely had the doctor settled himself in his sleeves than the giant waked and seized that silk faced collar in a hot right hand. There was rage in his face—rage and the realization of new emotions.

"I'm—I'm not so comfortable as I were," he said from the deeps of his interior. "You'll wait along o' me, you will." He breathed heavily through shut lips.

Now, if there was one thing more than another upon which the doctor had dwelt in his conversation with me, it was upon the essential lawabidingness, not to say gentleness, of his much misrepresented country. And yet (truly, it may have been no more than a button that irked him) I saw his hand travel backward to his right hip, clutch at something and come out again empty.

"He won't kill you," I said. "He'll probably sue you in court, if I know my own people. Better give him some money from time to time."

"If he keeps quiet till the stuff gets in its work," the doctor answered, "I'm all right. If he doesn't, * * * my name is Emory—Julian B. Emory—193 Steenth street, corner of Madison and ——."

"I feel worse than I've ever felt," said the navvy, with suddenness. "What— did— you— give— me— the— drink—for?"

The matter seemed to be so purely personal that I withdrew to a strategic position on the overhead bridge, and, abiding in the exact center, ready to descend at either side, looked on from afar.

I could see the white road that ran across the shoulder of Salisbury plain, unshaded for mile after mile, and, a dot in the middle distance, the back of the one porter returning to Framlynghame Admiral, if such a place existed, till 7:45. The bell of a church invisible clanked softly. There was a rustle in the horse chestnuts to the left of the line and the sound of sheep cropping close.

The peace of Nirvana lay upon the land, and brooding in it, my elbow on the warm iron girder of the footbridge (it is a 40 shilling fine to cross by any other means), I perceived as never before how the consequences of our acts run eternal through time and through space. If we impinge never so slightly upon the life of a fellow mortal, the touch of our personality, like the ripple of a stone cast into a pond, widens and widens in unending circles across the eons till the faroff gods themselves cannot say where action ceases. Also, it was I who had silently set before the doctor the tumbler of the first class lavatory compartment now speeding Plymouthward. Yet I was, in spirit at least, 1,000,000 leagues removed from that unhappy man of another nationality who had chosen to thrust an inexpert finger into the workings of an alien life. The machinery was dragging him up and down the sunlit platform. The two men seemed to be learning polka mazourkas together, and the burden of their song, borne by one deep voice, was, "What did you give me the drink for?"

I saw the flash of silver in the doctor's hand. The navvy took it, and pocketed it with his left, but never for an instant did his strong right leave the doctor's coat collar, and as the crisis approached louder and louder rose his bull-like roar, "What did you give me the drink for?"

They drifted under the great 12 inch pinned timbers of the footbridge toward the bench, and, I gathered, the time was very near at hand. The stuff was getting in its work. Blue, white and blue again rolled over the navvy's face in waves, till all settled to one rich clay bank yellow and—that fell which fell.

I thought of the blowing up of Hell Gate, of the geysers in the Yellowstone park, of Jonah and his whale, but the lively original, as I watched it foreshortened from above, exceeded all these things. He staggered to the bench, the heavy wooden seat champed with iron cramps into the enduring stone, and clung there with his left hand. It quivered and shook, as a breakwater pile quivers to the rush of landward racing seas. Nor was there lacking when he caught his breath the "scream of a maddened beach dragged down by the tide." His right hand was upon the doctor's collar, so that the two shook to one paroxysm, pendulums vibrating together, while I, apart, shook with them.

It was colossal, immense, but of certain manifestations the English language stops short. French only, the caryatid French of Victor Hugo, would have described it, so I mourned while I laughed, hastily shuffling and discarding inadequate adjectives. The vehemence of the shock spent itself, and the sufferer half fell, half knelt across the bench. He was calling now upon God and his wife, huskily, as the wounded bull calls upon the unscathed herd to stay. Curiously enough, he used no bad language; that had gone from him with the rest. The doctor exhibited gold. It was taken and retained. So, too, was the grip on the coat collar.

"If I could stand," boomed the giant, despairingly, "I'd smash you—you an your drinks. I'm dyin—dyin—dyin!"

"That's what you think," said the doctor. "You'll find it will do you a lot of good," and, making a virtue of a somewhat imperative necessity, he added: "I'll stay by you. If you'd let go of me a minute, I'd give you something that would settle you."

"You've settled me now, you d——d anarchist. Takin the bread out of the mouth of an English workin man. But I'll keep 'old of you till I'm well or dead. I never did you no 'arm. S'pose I were a little full. They pumped me out once at Guy's with a stummick pump. I could see that, but I can't see this 'ere, an it's killin of me by slow degrees."

"You'll be all right in half an hour. What do you suppose I'd want to kill you for?" said the doctor, who came of a logical breed.

"'Ow do I know? Tell 'em in court. You'll get seven years for this, you body snatcher. That's what you are—a bloomin body snatcher. There's justice,

"Never felt better in my life."

I tell you, in England, and my union'll prosecute too. We don't stand no tricks with people's insides 'ere. They give a woman ten years for a sight less than this. An you'll 'ave to pay 'undreds an 'undreds of pounds, besides a pension to the missus. You'll see, you physickin furriner. Where's your license to do such? You'll catch it. I tell you."

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Frederickstown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedy had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by A. G. Durgin.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 1. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Putting religion into our daily tasks.—I Kings vii, 13, 14; Acts xviii, 1-4; Mark vi, 1-3.

In the references we have three illustrations of what may be called religion in daily tasks. The first is that of the builders of Solomon's temple. In their important work they needed and received the support of God. The second is the illustration of Christ himself. He is presented in the passage quoted as the carpenter of Nazareth, and in this work also he received the help and support of God. The third case is that of Paul, pictured as the tentmaker, working at his trade that he might not put those among whom he labored to expense for him.

Religion and the daily tasks of life are not incongruous, they are not antagonistic. Religion is needed in the daily life. It is not something that is specially for the human soul on the Sabbath day, but true religion feeds soul, mind and body for the six days of the week. The Christian who has not learned to carry his religion into his life work has failed to perceive one of the chief joys and values of Christianity. Most of our time is spent in the daily work of life. Most of our energy is expended here, and if we did not need our religion in that which takes the most of our time and the best of our strength we may well ask, when would we need it? Most of the temptations, trials, difficulties and hardships of life are met in the daily tasks of life, and what need, therefore, that we have God and our religious faith to support us?

Christianity is a practical religion. It is suitable to the needs and wants of the daily life. God not only supplies us with the needs and wants of the higher life, but also of the lower life. We need God in the shop, the factory, the office and the store just as much as we need God in the worship of the Sabbath day, the prayer meeting or the Christian Endeavor services. And God is willing and able to guide and direct us in these things as in the higher and more important things of life. God gave skill and wisdom to the builders of the tabernacle. He is still able and willing to give skill and wisdom to His people in the work of life.

We often forget God in our daily tasks. We fail to ask His guidance and direction and help for our daily labors. If the soul is perplexed or disturbed, we flee to God, but neglect often to do so when the mind cannot solve a problem in the daily work before it, or the body is unequal to the daily task. But God is just as able and willing to help us build a house, balance our books, study our lessons, learn a trade, perform the duties of office, factory or store as He is to care for the wants and needs of our souls. Will we let Him do it?

Bible Readings.—Gen. iii, 17-19; Ex. xxxi, 1-11; xxxvi, 1-5; II Chron. xxxi, 20, 21; Neh. iv, 1-6; Prov. xvi, 3; Acts xx, 34, 35; Rom. xii, 11; I Cor. iv, 11, 12; x, 31; Gal. vi, 9; Col. iii, 17; I Thess. ii, 9; iv, 9-12; II Thess. iii, 7-13; I Pet. iv, 11.

The Sabbath Day.

This day of the week is set apart to enable man to dwell upon the ideal side of life, upon man as he is meant to be, upon the revelation of a manhood victorious over sin by the power of the Divine Spirit. It is a day sacred to the holy issues of humanity, and the literature of this first day of the week, as well as its art, should minister alone to this loftier side of man. It should feed him for truer living and inspire him with new hope in man's destiny. Instead of this, the great printing presses are flooding us with a debasing literature and a disgusting "art" and are infecting men everywhere with a despondent view of man and nature. It is an awful mistake to feed the baser side and taint men with a skepticism of all that is pure when it is the business of all public teachers to draw men to types of moral truth and purity and infuse faith in the things that are pure and lovely and of good report.—American Friend.

Soothing the Way.

The way of life is by no means smooth, but let us not make it rougher than it is. The world is not all we could wish, but if it goes wrong let us not spend ourselves trying to make it go worse. Rather let us make it a little smoother and a little pleasanter by our disposition, manners and deeds. If men in general are out of sorts, there is the more need of our being in sorts.—Christian Leader.

The Threefold Cord.

Let us hold fast the threefold cord that cannot be broken—the hungry friend needing the help, the praying friend seeking the help and the mighty Friend loving to give as much as he needeth.—American Friend.

The Work That God Appoints.

I am glad to think that I am not bound to make the world go right, but only to discover and to do with cheerful heart the work that God appoints.—Jean Ingelow.

Endeavor Jottings.

The Christian Endeavor Tenth legion bids fair to become more powerful than Cæsar's. It is composed of all who will pledge themselves to give at least a tenth of their income to God.

A More Serious Crime.

"What's the matter?" demanded the justice as a struggling man was suddenly dragged before him.

THE $800 LOAN STORY

Alice Barrett Told Mother Captain Codman Was the Borrower.

Letter Carrier Wolff Heard Fatal Pistol Shot.

Now Thought That He Unconsciously Hastened Desperate Girl's Suicide.

Boston, July 31.—The mysterious man who figured in the stories told by Alice M. Barrett in relation to the loan of $800 is Captain John Codman, brother of the girl's employer, so she told her mother, who, in turn, told Fire Marshal Whitcomb.

Like Miss Sarah Wheelwright, Mr. Codman's cousin, whom Alice described as the person from whom she received so many valuable presents, and whom she was supposed to have accompanied to the Hotel Thorndike, Captain Codman positively denies the story.

As the case stands now, there is the girl's unsupported statements against the positive denials of two persons, whose character and standing entitle their contradictions to more weight than the girl's assertions. It has been shown that she was untruthful in some of her statements. She may have been untruthful in all of them, so far as this case is concerned.

The minute of Alice Barrett's death, or, to be exact, the minute the pistol shot which ended her life was fired, was 2:50 o'clock.

The person who heard this shot was George M. Wolff, a letter carrier. Mr. Wolff left the office of J. E. Hollis, 354 Kilby street, at 2:49 o'clock. He ran directly across the street to No. 40, and up the flight of stairs leading to the office of Codman & Codman. It was raining heavily, and he wanted to borrow an umbrella. He thought Miss Barrett or Janitor Hamilton might have a spare one.

He reached the landing in front of the door of the Codman office. He placed his hand on the doorknob. He did not attempt to push the door open, however, for at that instant the thought came: "Its Saturday afternoon. Miss Barrett has gone home." He released his hold on the doorknob, and stood in the entry looking for the janitor. He had been there but a moment when there came the sharp report of a revolver.

At the time, Mr. Wolff says, he thought it was a lightning bolt accompanying a thunder-clap. Looking back, however, he says he is now certain that the report he heard was that of a pistol.

In view of his statement, it may be assumed that he was, unconsciously, the cause of the girl's death. Assuming that, for some good reason, she was burning the books when he touched the knob, a perfectly consistent theory can be constructed by imagining her situation. She had gone too far to conceal her act. Discovery threatened her. She was desperate, and, in her fright, seized the revolver, and ended her life in an impulse of fear and despair.

Whether the boks were tampered is a question yet to be fully answered. A fear of such a condition was engendered by the evident desire of somebody to destroy the books, and this fear is supported by the fact that she is known to have speculated in one bucket shop, and to have lost $180. Did she patronize other places with similar results?

KING WAS NOT GORDON.

Aged Lady Writes Letter Which Has Important Bearing on Mrs. Ross' Claim.

Salem, Mass., July 31.—A local paper has received a letter from an aged lady, which, if the contents are true, has a most important bearing upon the famous Ross-King controversy, which has been in the Rhode Island and New York courts for some time. The writer, whose name that paper withholds, is 75 years old, and says that the uncle of Mrs. Ross was considerably older. She knew all the members of the family, and says that Mrs. Ross' uncle's name was Adam Gordon. The writer remembers the man at the time when he left Port Gibson to go to Texas when the Mexican war opened.

One of her brothers went with Gordon. They arrived too late to do any fighting, as Santa Anna had been captured the day before their arrival.

Adam Gordon then went into the interior and never came back. His family heard from him several times, but finally news from him ceased, and he was traced by relatives to a mining camp, where it was supposed he had been killed. The man could not have been Millionaire King, the writer says, as when he died he had not reached an age that could identify him with Gordon.

Railroad Shut Down.

Bennington, Vt., July 31.—Superntendent Bennett of the Lebanon Springs railroad issued orders yesterday to close the road in accordance with the order issued by Receiver Sweet several weeks ago. All regular train service ceased yesterday. No passengers will be carried and no freight will be received for transportation. Extra freight trains will be run until the freight on the road is delivered at its destination. All loaded cars at stations must be unloaded within 48 hours or freight will be stored at the expense of consignees. The road will be cleared of all cars. The agents are ordered to close all business not later than next Wednesday. Receiver Elnathan Sweet of Albany is making every effort to secure funds for repairing the road and hopes to succeed and have the work begun within a few weeks. The road is unsafe, the ties are nearly all gone and many miles of new rails are needed. The rolling stock is almost worthless. It will require about $30,000 to put the road in condition for business, as it has been in a legal tangle for many years.

Newhall Talks.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 31.—Newhall, the Melrose Embezzler, in an interview, says that his embezzlements do not amount to between $10,000 and $15,000, as reported. He estimates that the amount taken from the bank was about $3000, from the insurance company $1200 and from the church $400. He is positive that at the outside the total will not reach $6000. He gave no bond to the insurance company. He did not come to Maine on the Bangor and Boston steamer, but came by rail to Portland, where he remained two days. From Portland he went to Brooklin, Me., in the steamer Frank Jones, remained there only two hours and came to Southwest Harbor in the steamer Cymbria. He was not captain of the yacht Guenn, as reported, and had never been to Portland in her; had sailed with Mr. Gilley in the Guenn to Cranberry Isles, only three miles distant. In regard to the champagne corks found in his room he says he had collected them for a young woman for decorative purposes. He denies having gambled away any of the money.

Episcopalian Celebration.

New Haven, July 31.—Plans are rapidly being perfected for the ceremony attending the consecration of Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, the recently elected bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut. It has been definitely decided to hold the consecration exercises in Trinity church, New Haven, in October, and the exact date will be decided upon within a few days. At the same time there will be celebrated the centennial anniversary of the consecration of the late Bishop Jarvis, who was the second bishop of the diocese of Connecticut. Bishop Jarvis' consecration took place in Trinity church 100 years ago in October. Efforts will be made to have present the bishops of Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and New York, the bishops of which dioceses attended the consecration of Bishop Jarvis. The joint ceremonies, which will be elaborate will occupy three days. The first two days will be devoted to the centennial celebration and the last day to the consecration of Dr. Brewster.

Maine Farmers' Losses.

Waterville, Me., July 31.—Prominent farmers of Somerset, Franklin, Kennebec, Penobscot and Aroostook counties claim the rains of this season have damaged crops to an extent to be computed in the hundreds of thousands of dollars The hay crop alone is nearly 50 per cent loss, and roughly estimated at $500,000. In the eastern part of Maine the potato, corn, barley and apple crops get it the worst. Many farmers having the so-called "lowlands," rich with muck, are not under cultivation for the reason these sections are flooded or so wet it is impossible for men or beast to get on them. Building operations are affected at great loss, and in many instances suspended for the season. The brick kilns are being operated at nearly twice the usual expense, and the lime and granite quarries worked under extreme difficulty.

Stevenson In Insolvency.

Boston, July 31.—A warrant in insolvency was ordered by Judge Grant yesterday in the Suffolk insolvency court against the estate of James Stevenson, styled "the millionaire real estate owner." It was issued upon the petition of Louise K. Wilson and Sarah S. Kimball, who have recovered judgment for $619 against Stevenson in the municipal court. They based their petition upon the sufficient legal ground that Stevenson's real estate had been attached, and that he had failed to dissolve the attachments within the prescribed statutory time. The extent of his property or wealth was not a subject of inquiry at all, as it was not made a necessary part of the petitioner's case.

Haverhill's Would-Be Miners.

Haverhill, Mass., July 31.—Elmer S. Harris, who left this city Thursday night with the intention of going to Alaska, returned yesterday morning, the parties with whom he had been negotiating failing to live up to their agreement. A meeting of those who intended to form a party for the Alaska gold fields was held yesterday. There are already seven in the company, and special rates to Seattle have been secured. It is expected that eight or 10 new members will be added to the party, which now comprises the following: Arthur E. Seymour, Haverhill; G. T. Williams, Charlestown; L. B. Hill, Deerfield; Leland Hobbs, Springfield; A. D. Rogers and N. M. Brown, Norwich, Conn.; George E. Allen, Cliftondale.

The Tennis Players.

Boston, July 31.—In the semi-final round of the Longwood tennis tournament yesterday afternoon, William A. Larned of Summit, N. J., defeated H. A. Nesbit of England in three straight sets, proving himself easily the superior of the foreigner in all points of the game. An hour or two later Larned had disposed of J. D. Forbes of Harvard in the final round of the tournament, and today will meet R. D. Wrenn for the possession of the Longwood cup, now held by Wrenn, but in which Larned has already two of the necessary three legs. At the same time G. L. Wrenn and Whitman will meet Mahony and Nesbit for the Eastern championship in doubles.

General Bancroft.

Boston, July 31.—Ex-Mayor William A. Bancroft of Cambridge, colonel of the Fifth Massachusetts regiment, has been appointed brigadier general to succeed General Peach, in command of the Second brigade, M. V. M., retired, by order of the governor last Saturday. General Bancroft is well known and popular in social, political and military circles. He is 42 years of age and a graduate of Harvard. While in college he was the captain and stroke oarsman of the famous Harvard university crews of '77, '78 and '79, which so signally defeated the Yale crews. He has been mayor of Cambridge three terms.

Dr. Andrews' Future Plans.

Providence, July 31.—President Andrews of Brown university has accepted the presidency of what is styled the "Cosmopolitan university." This is an educational movement under the auspices of a New York magazine, and is of the nature of a correspondence school for those who are unable to enter upon a regular college course. The acceptance of this offer is conditional upon the acceptance of his resignation by the corporation of Brown university. It will not necessitate his removal from the city.

Called to Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., July 31.—The Portland Street Church society has extended a call to Rev. Frank Padelford of Calais, Me., to become pastor of the society. He is a graduate of Colby university and finished his theological studies at Rochester seminary. His father, Rev. A. J. Padelford, was pastor of the Portland Street church from 1868 to 1875.

AMONG THE FAIRIES

SAUCY POLLY.

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH WILLIAMS

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

"I hate boys. I don't see what they were ever made for," Polly said, sticking out her chin and scowling at her brother Jem. Jem only laughed. He was used to Polly's tantrums, and if the truth must be told sometimes delighted to provoke them.

"You don't hate boys when there are cows about or dogs or snakes, eh, Polly?" he said, tweaking her ear gently. Polly flung out of his hands and gave herself a vicious flounce.

"You are the hatefulest of them all," she said, setting her head very high.

"I am glad I found that out in time. I meant to ask if you would go with us fishing this afternoon," Jem said, turning away. "Now, of course, I know better. You would not like"—

"Yes, yes, I would. You know it," Polly said eagerly. "No, I don't want to carry a pole and sit dragging a hook about to catch the pretty little fish, but I do want to see the water and the ferns on the rocks and all the beautiful flowers. Take me, Jem. You must. I shall cry myself ill if you do not."

"Oh, ho! That is how you hate boys! Want to go about with a half dozen of them!" Jem retorted teasingly. Polly made a dart at him and gave his nose a sharp twist. He caught her hands and held them hard, saying:

"I have a great mind to give you a shaking. You deserve it. You hurt me. I don't mind that so much, but I do mind seeing my sister such a scratch cat. Now you cannot go with us. Not for anything. If you get Aunt Jenny to say we must take you, why, I shall stay at home, and then I know she will not let you go."

"You are the meanest boy," Polly repeated, beginning to cry. Jem walked away whistling, never once turning his head. Polly knew by that he was very angry with her. She was a spoiled girl, and always felt herself very ill used when other people resented the ill treatment she gave them.

"What shall I do?" she asked herself as Jem went through the gate. "He will not come back. He would rather miss his dinner than let Aunt Jenny tell him to take me along. Besides he need not miss his dinner. Tommy Pender or Will Barton will be only too glad to have him home with them. Everybody 'most likes him."

"And nobody 'most likes you," Nurse Alice said from her corner. "I am not astonished at it either. You are so saucy; very much too saucy for a child. I do be telling Mistress Jenny every day that unless she sets a rein on you it will be your ruin."

"You are a hateful old woman," Polly began. Hateful was a word she delighted in. Her lessons were hateful whenever she did not feel like studying them; so was her music. Even the dancing master came in for it if he did not praise her beyond his other pupils. She even said now and then that Aunt Jenny, who had spoiled her always to her heart's content, was "hatefuller than anybody."

"You will take that back when you want me to curl your hair and tie your sash for the next party," Nurse Alice retorted, giving her needle a vicious jerk. "I should not be surprised if you did it even next week. I think you will want your new frock I am to make then fuller of tucks and frills than any other little girl's."

"Of course I shall. It must be so," Polly said, shrugging her shoulders and feeling very grown up. Was she not going on eleven and already dreaming of the time when she would wear beautiful long petticoats and have a feather in her bonnet?

"We shall see about that," Nurse Alice said sourly. Polly made a face at her and ran away to tell Zuleika, her biggest doll, what a load of grievances she was suffering. Polly cared for none of the dolls but Zuleika now. She was the newest as well as the biggest and was dressed like a fashion plate.

"I almost wish I were a doll myself. I am sure I would wish it if there was any chance of my being dressed like you, you dear thing," she said, winding up the spring which set Zuleika walking all about the table top. Zuleika was truly magnificent. She had on a purple silk frock all bedizened with yellow lace and wore violets on her frizzy yellow hair, to say nothing of having satin shoes and a sunshade that exactly matched her bonnet. She had beside half a dozen gowns as fine. Polly's father had sent her from the city where he lived to delight his motherless girl, whom his sister had kept and cared for ever since she was born. He had sent, too, complete furnishings for the doll's house. Polly got out a chair now, set Zuleika in it, bowed to her gravely and said:

"It is very stupid, this playing all alone, but I must make believe we are two fine ladies, talking over what new clothes we want."

"I shall like that, oh, ever so much!" a little, squeaky voice replied. Polly

"WELL, AT LEAST I MAY HAVE THIS," SHE SAID.

was not startled. Somehow it seemed the most natural thing in the world. She was not astonished either when Zuleika came mincing across and sat down beside her upon a new strange sofa that she ought to have wondered at, but did not.

"Yes, I shall like that, oh, immensely!" the doll said with a stiff, waxen smile. "I like dressing things and people. Ever since I saw you, Polly, I have been aching to fix you as I chose. You are really beautiful, if only you had the right sort of clothes. It will give me the greatest pleasure to choose those that are fit for you."

"Thank you, but I can choose my own self. Aunt Jenny will never let me, but you—you are just a doll."

"This is a doll's world, dear, remember that," Zuleika returned, her smile still stiffly amiable, though Polly saw a glitter behind the glass eyes. She was not daunted by it, but held up her head and answered loftily:

"That is the very reason I must choose myself. A Paris doll even cannot know things as well as a live girl."

"We shall see," Zuleika answered, clapping her gloved hands. Instantly there came swarming about them all manner of queer looking people with their arms full of finery. Tables and chairs sprang magically around and were soon heaped with the very prettiest clothes Polly had ever seen.

"Choose," said Zuleika, waving her hand over the whole of them. With a little delighted squeal Polly caught up a blue frock all betrimmed with fine white lace. "I want this," she cried, "and this, and this," seizing hold also upon a fluffy jacket and gay plumed hat.

"You can never have those; never in the world. Blue is becoming only to good natured people," Zuleika said decisively. "If Jem were here, I might possibly give him a blue suit, but you—no. It would never do. Good people, take those blue things away."

"But I like them! I like them best of all!" Polly screamed, trying to hug the blue frock tight to her. It slipped through her hands in the most aggravating way. She could hardly keep from crying as she saw it vanish into the cloudy confines about them.

"Well, at least I may have this," she said, pecking at a pink gown with crisp rustling ruffles all over it. Zuleika shook her head. "Pink will not answer for the jealous," she said. "It contrasts so ill with what is inside them. You know jealousy is the ugliest dirty yellow. Those who cherish it are only allowed to wear sad colors."

"I am not jealous. I only do not want anybody to have more and better things than I do," Polly cried angrily. "I believe you are trying to cheat me. But, oh, I am mistaken, dearest Zuleika! I see you are only forcing me to save my choice for this rich green satin. I love satin. I simply adore green. And it has pink linings and lace all about it. Do believe me; I would like that better than any of the rest."

"I am sorry, truly sorry," Zuleika said, "but it is too dangerous. I really cannot risk putting green upon a girl who is saucy. She might be rude to the fairy queen, who would certainly change her into a big green grasshopper, and then the turkey gobbler would eat her up in a minute."

"Oh! Oh-oo! You hateful, hateful Zuleika! You are making sport of me. I know you are. I felt it all the time," Polly said, dropping her head upon her arms and sobbing aloud.

Next minute somebody shook her, not harshly nor yet too gently. "Wake up," said Nurse Alice. "Why, you are crying in your sleep. Why don't you take a lesson from your beautiful doll who sits smiling at you from morning till night?"

Polly rubbed her eyes. "Was it all really a dream?" she said. "Do forgive me, nurse. I have been so very rude to you. I have taken a lesson from my dear dolly—one that will last me all my life."

* * * * * * *

Perhaps it did. Anyway a year later nurse said to Jem as they made ready for Polly's birthday, "Dear child! She is the very sunshine of the house, now that she is not selfish and saucy any more."

A Long Ride.

Misses Minnie M. and Ethel Jameson, the former director of music in the schools of Woburn, Mass., and the latter a teacher in Roxbury, Mass., together with Mrs. Grace B. Corning of Nashua, have been on a tour of the White Mountains region on bicycles. They started from Quincy, Mass., on Friday, July 2, and reached Concord on the return trip, Thursday, July 15, having in the 14 days visited most points of interest between Quincy and the White Mountains, including Lake Winnepesaukee, Franconia Notch, Bethlehem, Crawford Notch, North Conway, etc. They report a splendid time and no accidents of any kind. It is probable that the young ladies are the pioneer bicyclists on this long route to the mountains this year. A record of over 300 miles is shown on their cyclometers.—Concord Evening Monitor.

Young Lads Missing.

John Flaherty of Furnace avenue, aged 9 years, and Ambrose Lane of Willard street aged 11 years are missing. In fact they have been missing since Monday, although the police department have probably not had time to give the information to the newspaper men and thus make it public.

When last seen the Flaherty boy had on light pants, a light coat and a blue cap, and the Lane boy wore a black and white dotted waist, dark pants and cap. The only money they are known to have had with them is $2 which the Lane boy took from home.

Lawn Party at Wollaaton.

A vacant lot on Newport avenue, Wollaston, opposite the New Haven freight depot was the scene of a very successful as well as very pretty lawn party on Friday evening. The party was given by the Order of Good Templars. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated by Japanese lanterns. There was an excellent concert by the Quincy City band. Large quantities of ice cream were sold. The entertainment committee consisted of Mrs. Wm. A. Jordan, chairman; Mrs. McLeod and Mr. H. Smith. The social committee, Mrs. L. E. Prince, chairman; Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. L. Waterhouse.

Blue Hill Collection.

Mr. Dinks, Superintendent Blue Hill Reservation, has added to his reptiles at his office a copper head snake caught by a five-year-old girl. In the cage are three black snakes, one of which hatched 26 eggs while confined in box, also a hissing adder and a copper head. The rattlers 7 in number are of different species, the dark colored are the most vicious. One of the yellow shed his skin Friday which measures about five feet. He has also three screeching owls, two crocodiles, three woodchucks, five gray squirrels and two pretty foxes. They are really worth seeing.

Post Will Not Go.

It is more than probable that Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., will not go in a body to the Grand Encampment at Buffalo in August. At the meeting held Thursday night, to see how many intended to go, there were but six who had made up their minds, although there were several who said they might possibly go. It was hoped that the Post would go in a body but that idea has been about given up and those that do will go in pairs or with some other Post.

Open Air Meeting.

The Young Men's Christian Association is anticipating a large attendance at the open air service on the grounds in the rear of their new rooms tomorrow at 4 o'clock. The location is attractive and shady and seats will be provided. It is accessible by the driveway near Nash's store and another entrance will be made through the fence in the rear of Bates' store.

IN COMPARISON.

Per Cent. of Quincy Born in Excess of Brockton Born.

Quincy has Larger Per Cent. of Foreign Born Citizens.

Ahead of Brockton in Representatives of Several States.

A reader of the LEDGER who was surprised at the small number of Quincy born citizens in Quincy has asked for figures of other cities that he may learn whether the "City of Presidents" is an exception, and today the figures for the adjoining town of Braintree with a population of 5,311, and the thriving city of Brockton with a population of 33,165 are given.

In Quincy over one-third of the population was born in Quincy, and the same is true of Braintree, but in Brockton less than one-third are Brockton born. Braintree and Brockton have a larger percentage of Massachusetts born than Quincy, and a smaller per cent. of foreign born.

Thirteen states represented in Quincy are not represented in Braintree while Brockton goes Quincy five better.

While Brockton beats Quincy in number of States represented, Quincy has more from Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, South Carolina and Tennessee and is tied in several others.

Foreign Born.

Ten countries represented in Quincy are not represented in Braintree, and Brockton goes Quincy 3 better.

Quincy has more people than Brockton from Austria, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Norway, Prince Edwards Island, Scotland, Spain, Switzerland and Wales.

In making further comparisons it should be remembered that Quincy is nearly four times as large as Braintree and about two-thirds as large as Brockton.

A study of the summary will be of interest:

KILLED THE HORSE.

Load of Beer Capsized by an Electric Last Evening.

A team owned by Monti's West Quincy express was run into by an electric car near the Adams academy shortly after 9 o'clock last night. The team was somewhat smashed and the driver, Metine Marouni, shaken up and bruised,

The regular driver of the team was off attending a funeral, and as it was desired to have some beer in the evening after the burial, Marouni was sent to Harrison Square after it. He loaded up with eight half barrels and started for home.

On the way up the driver laid down on the seat and went to sleep. When near the Adams academy one of the big Nantasket cars approached and the motorman, seeing the team near the track, slowed up, and not only sounded his bell but shouted to the driver.

This partially aroused the fellow who instead of turning out, pulled the wrong rein and swung his team directly across the track. The car struck it with the above result. The horse was also badly injured and had to be killed.

It is claimed that the beer was being illegally transported and that the police had an opportunity to seize it but they did not do so.

When Marouni was carried home a crowd of thirty beer thirsty Italians were found waiting for the liquid refreshments.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Reed, and Grace Reed of Abington and Edward Chamberlin of Whitman are passing a few weeks at the beach.

Friday was an elegant day at the Neck. The residents were all out for the band concert.

Mr. Brown, director of the band was busy all day Friday, building a new band stand opposite Harvey's pavilion. They play at Pierce's this afternoon and in Quincy Square tonight.

It has been reported by employes of the railroad that Mr. Grady, an employe of the road, has started for the gold fields.

Mr. Geo. W. Austin of Portsmouth, N. H., is a guest of Mrs. J. N. Griffin in the Seaweed cottage for a few days.

Mr. G. H. Ackerman and family from Brockton are the guests of Mr. G. Ackerman at the King Philip.

Mr. and Mrs. Arther Young and Mrs. Mary E. Whitney of Natick are expected to arrive at Rock Island next week.

Miss Jennie M. Linquist of Somerville is to come to the beach next week for an outing.

Mr. H. Moriarty and family are the guests of Mrs. Phelan of Cambridge, at the McCauly cottage for a few days.

Mrs. H. J. Johnson and family from Roxbury are expected to arrive at the "Eight Bells" as guests of Mr. J. W. Maynard.

Arrivals at the Loretto: Worcester St. John's Cadets, Miss Mills and Miss J. Keogh, Miss Therlow, Miss K. Wilson, Miss Clarice Wilford from Quebec, Miss Alice Jennings from North Conway, N. H., Mrs. J. Lyons and family from Roxbury, Master Arthur Spring, Mr. Arthur Gardner and family.

Mrs. E. Newton Thayer and Mrs. E. Francis Lincoln of Holbrook, who have neighboring cottages on Great hill, entertained the Ladies' Fireside Reading circle last week.

The programme for the band concert on Sunday afternoon will be:

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarhoea Remedy is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

SAYS HE CAN SEE GOD.

Language Not Adequate to Description of the Deity.

"I have the power to see God whenever I desire—to personally communicate with him, to behold him in all his glory."

This startling declaration comes from A. F. Bjorkstrom, a St. Louis machinist.

Bjorkstrom's workshop is his home, and his leisure is devoted to reading.

He is a native of Sweden and has lived in the United States about ten years, is well educated and appears to be generally intelligent. He is not what is commonly termed a crank or fanatic. His leisure time is devoted to reading. He is a member of the Lutheran church.

"God is beautiful to behold," says Bjorkstrom, "and it is beyond human power to describe him. Language is barren of words by which to express the glory and greatness of God."

When asked for details, Bjorkstrom again reiterated that his vocabulary was inadequate. In size he said God filled all space as far as eye could penetrate. He seemed to extend to the most remote limit of vision.

"How is it that you cannot give a more definite explanation of this wonderful sight?" Bjorkstrom was asked.

"Christ himself never did," Bjorkstrom replied, "and I should not be expected to do more than Christ."

Then the man with the strange fancy quoted Scripture:

"Eyes have they, but they see not; ears have they, but they hear not."

Bjorkstrom is a rather good looking Swede. He wears a heavy "sandy" mustache and goatee, and his countenance reflects intelligence. He says he expects some time to write a series of letters on his strange theory.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

IMPOSTOR, NOT A HERO.

Placed the Rail on the Track Which He Removed.

The supposed "train wrecker" who placed a big steel rail across the track of the Long Island railroad recently proves to be Robert L. Burns, a young employee of the company.

He it was who posed as a hero for a few brief hours for discovering the rail and removing it in time to prevent the wrecking of an express train.

He was arrested upon complaint of Trainmaster Jarvis. When arraigned before Judge Stackpole in special sessions he broke down and confessed his guilt. He gave bail in the sum of $1,000 to appear before the next grand jury and was released.

Burns said that he placed the rail on the track by means of a crowbar and swinging it over from the side of the track where it lay. The motive, he said, was the hope of a reward. He had read of an attempt at train wrecking being prevented on one of the company's branch lines, and that a reward of $100 was then offered by the company for the finding and removal of obstacles from the track.

Burns is only 16 years of age, though he appears much older. He belongs to a respectable family and has always borne a good reputation. He was employed as a messenger by the company, and the height of his ambition had been to gain promotion on the road.—New York Herald.

POISONERS TO DIE.

Found Guilty of Killing Relatives to Get Life Insurance.

Four of the women who were arrested at Hodmezoe, Hungary, on the charge of having poisoned members of their families for the purpose of securing the small insurance on the lives of their victims have been found guilty and sentenced to death.

The poisoning trials at Hodmezoe have excited widespread interest, having revealed the existence of a conspiracy to destroy life by the wholesale. A midwife named Jaeger was the prime mover in the murders. She obtained poison from a chemist's assistant and then sold it to those who desired to put any one out of the way. It was said when the facts were first made public that there was scarcely a house in Hodmezoe in which suspicion did not exist that deaths dating back several years were the result of foul play. One man was accused of having killed his father and mother, his father-in-law and mother-in-law and finally his wife. Women were accused of poisoning their closest relatives.—New York Sun.

Against Source of His Fortune.

Major A. D. Reynolds of Bristol, Tenn., who has made more than $500,000 net profit as a tobacco manufacturer during the last 20 years, sold his plant the other day to a syndicate of local capitalists for $30,000 and will retire from business. The sale was due to Major Reynolds' religious and temperance convictions. He has long advocated the prohibition of the sale of spirituous liquors and finally came to regard the tobacco business as incompatible with his religious life.

New Labor Law For Russia.

Russia will have a new labor law after Jan. 1 in consequence of the recent strikes in St. Petersburg and the large manufacturing towns. The working day is fixed at a maximum of 11½ hours, for Saturdays and the days preceding holidays it is 10 hours, and on Sundays and holidays there is to be no work. Workmen who are not Christians will not be compelled to work on the days held sacred by their sects. For night work 8 hours will constitute a day's work.

Taxing Tobacco Chewers.

The stewards in the Methodist church at Albertsville, Ala., finding their church revenues insufficient, recently levied an annual tax of $10 on each tobacco chewing member of the congregation. The plan is said to work admirably and to bring in a goodly revenue.

"THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD OR OUR SAVIOUR IN ART"

Cost over $100,000 to publish. Contains nearly 200 full-page engravings of our Saviour, by the great masters. Every picture is reproduced from some famous painting. Agents are taking from three to twenty orders per day. The book is so beautiful that when people see it they want it. "FIRST GLANCE AT THE PICTURES BROUGHT TEARS TO MY EYES," says one. "Cleared $150 first week's work with the book," says another. "Some high grade man or woman of good church standing should secure the agency here at once," says every editor, "as $500 can soon be made taking orders for it." Also a man or woman of good social position can secure position of Manager of this territory, to devote all their time to employing and drilling agents and corresponding with them. What You Can Do.

You can buy pure TOILET SOAPS of reputable makers as cheap as you can get Soaps that you know nothing about. Is this not worth considering, when so many skin diseases are caused by using Soap made of soap grease full of dangerous substances.

We will sell you Colgate's Turkish Bath, Colgate's Palm Oil, Colgate's Rico or pure Olive Oil Soap for 5 cents a cake or 50 cts. a dozen. We have nicer for 10 cents a cake and as high as $1.00 per cake, but they are no purer than the 5 cent kind. They are pure enough to wash the baby.

All the Toilet Waters at low prices, and Perfumes that beat the flowers themselves.

These are simply necessities this warm weather, they are so refreshing.

Our store is the coolest place in town and we have tables for you to sit down to enjoy your Ice Cream Soda.

A. G. DURGIN,
DRUGGIST.

LOOK AROUND

if you like—we're willing. If we didn't feel able to meet competition we should consider ourselves booked for trouble, sure.

The fact is that it's this very competition which sharpens men's faculties—makes them alert, active, enterprising and up-to-date.

Competition helps us to keep our store clean, our clerks tidily dressed and polite, our delivery teams spick and span, our stock large and our prices low.

And who benefits by all this?

Sir or madam, YOU do.

Come in and let us compete, on this basis, for YOUR trade.

We have a belief amounting almost to a certainty that no amount of looking will find as good a FLOUR as KING ARTHUR, that will make as white bread, as soft bread or as much bread. You will have to pay more for it than ordinary flours, but 'tis cheapest for you for all that. If you use one barrel you will never use any other if you can get King Arthur.

Then we feel sure you cannot find a better OOLONG or ENGLISH BREAKFAST TEA than we sell at 50c. lb., if you look all through the Boston stores or New York for that matter.

We challenge any one to show you a better CIDER VINEGAR than ours and we will sell you a 10 gal. keg for $2.00 with no charge for the keg. There are lots of other things we would like to make comparisons on if you will let us.

FURNISHING A WHOLE HOUSE

That's our specialty. From cellar to attic, we attend to the entire details. All our ideas are yours just for the asking. We make the Shades, set up the Range, lay the Carpets, arrange and set up the Furniture.

You haven't known what a comfort it is. Think of having your entire house furnished and fitted up ready to walk right into.

Yes, that's our business, we'll tell you just to a penny what it will cost; a pinch of profit for us, the rest is all for you. It costs you nothing to talk to us and get our figures, we are always glad to welcome you.

Inside prices on anything in the market, no matter who sells it

—The history of our Civil War now being issued by the United States government is a very important and thorough historical work. From the nature of the case it involves a heavy expense. The history has already cost more than $2,000,000, and it is estimated that it will cost $3,000,000, all told, before it is completed. There will be 112 volumes and an index, besides an atlas of 178 plates and maps, illustrating the important battles, campaigns, routes of march, plans of forts and photographs of interesting scenes, places and persons. Full sets are to be sent free to public libraries, and 1,347,999 copies have been thus distributed. The atlas is sold for $22 and the remainder of the edition from fifty to ninety cents a volume. Over 51,000 copies have thus far been sold.—Boston Home Journal.

VALUABLE FIND OF GOLD.

A California Disused Mine Yields $42,000 Within a Week.

A special from Jamestown, Tuolumne county, Cal., gives details of a remarkable find of a pocket of gold yielding within a week $42,000 in the old Mammoth mine near Sonora, which had been regarded as worthless. A. Colby, a pioneer of Tuolumne county, and Roy Beckwith, a youth of 19, are the lucky finders of the pocket, which is not yet exhausted.

The Tanzy mine recently was purchased of F. Tanzy for $400 and is under lease to Colby and Beckwith, who pay 25 per cent of the proceeds of the mine. The latter were looked on as cranks for leasing the supposably worthless mine. When almost discouraged at the prospects of getting nothing for their labor, fortune smiled on them.

The Tanzy is on the same lead as the Bonanza, which in early days was the richest pocket mine known, and which has a record of yielding $350,000 in a single afternoon.

Colby at one time worked the Bonanza mine and took out many thousands, only to spend them searching for more gold, and it was by exercising knowledge he had of the dip, angle and direction of the Bonanza mine that he was enabled to sink a shaft almost a mile from the Bonanza and strike the same lead and another pocket of gold the value of which has not been equaled in many years. It comes, too, when most needed, as Colby had expended his last dollar in mining operations.

A special bulletin from Redding, Cal., says that authentic news has just come in from Hall City, Trinity county, by stage, of the discovery of an immense body of ore 600 feet wide and many miles in length near there. It is supposed to be the mother lode of Sierra Madre, for which miners have been searching for 30 years and from which geologists say all rich quartz and gravel of the Sierra foothills have been brought by glacial action.—Chicago Tribune.

PRESIDENT FREES HIM.

Mail Robber Served With Him During the War.

President McKinley received a letter from Robert Allen, an old soldier who fought at his side during the war, appealing for a pardon. Allen was in jail out west for robbing the mails. The president promptly wrote ordering Allen's release.

Young William McKinley and young Robert Allen were comrades in the civil war and fought side by side for the preservation of the Union.

But just after McKinley was elected to the highest office in the United States his old companion in arms, Allen, was sent to jail for robbing the mails.

His offense was a very serious one. He robbed the United States mail at Pierce City, Mo., and clubbed the man in charge of it.

He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and sent to jail at Jefferson City, Mo. As soon as he arrived there he wrote to President McKinley asking for a pardon in the name of their old companionship.

Allen addressed the president as "my dear old comrade." He recalled the battles in which they had fought together, mentioning scenes that will be impressed on President McKinley's mind while he lives.

The president considered the letter and it troubled him. He had the highest office in the land, and a slight use of his great power would suffice to save an old comrade from imprisonment and disgrace. Allen had no moral or legal right to a pardon, but are sentiment and old companionship to count for nothing? That they count for much was the view of the major, and Allen was pardoned.

When he received it recently, he remarked that it was only what he expected from an old comrade.—Exchange.

The Famous Berry at Home.

James E. Berry, whose exploits in the west, where he was heralded as the millionaire tramp, owing to his lavish use of money, arrived in his native county of Fulton, Pa., on a recent afternoon.

In company with his brother Sam the famous James was soon seen driving near Johnstown at a lively clip behind a team of spirited roadsters. One of the latter may have been a near relative of that $20,000 steed which the scribes of Mount Vernon, Salem and other places so delighted to throw into their reports, but there was no gold on the harness, and it has not been learned that any of the boys received $5 bills for holding the famous traveler's whip or presenting him with matches to light his cigars. The visitor's movements appeared to be hurried, and no flying coins were discovered in his wake for the boys to scramble for.—Exchange.

Klondike.

Over the mountains and far away,
In the regions of ice and snow,
Many a pilgrim is trudging today
With a heart full of hope and shouting,
"Yo-ho for Klondike!"

Over the mountains, beyond the plains,
Where the great river winds to the sea,
Many a pioneer jingles his gains
And sings in a frenzied ecstasy
In Klondike!

Thousands and thousands of miles away,
In the land of the polar bear,
Many a man is digging today,
Only to find that there's nothing there
In Klondike!

Many a husband, many a son,
And many a father, too,
Many a man who is dear to some one
Is climbing the glaciers leading through To Klondike!

Many a mother and many a wife
And many a one that is dear
Is dreaming today of a happier life
And hopefully waiting to hear
From Klondike!

And thousands and thousands of golden hopes
And many a dream that is fair
Are destined to die on the frozen slopes
And find their graves out there
In Klondike!

BRAINTREE.

A party of eight went with Capt. Cain on the sloop "Hattie" down the harbor last Friday and had a delightful time. A sail of two hours and a half took them three miles below Minot's light, where within two hours they caught seventy-five cod and haddock weighing from 5 to 10 pounds each. The same fair wind that took them down was friendly on their return and sail was all that could be desired. When off Atlantic hill all hands did ample justice to the excellent clam chowder. It is certain that they got the biggest string of fish that has been brought into South Braintree for a long time.

The case of W. S. Tracey, of the Brunswick hotel, was tried in Quincy, Thursday. Lawyer McAnarney appeared for the defendant and Officer Kelley of Braintree for the town. Tracey was found guilty. He appealed and was placed under $300. Messrs. Singleton and Shehan of Abington are his bondsmen.

The Union Veterans will have a play out tonight and the engine which has been thoroughly remodelled at the Fore River Engine works will be given a trial. It is thought that she is to be a winner.

The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Shaw has been very sick at Houghs Neck.

Harry Chase has accepted a position as conductor on the Quincy & Boston street railway.

Quincy has at last made an attempt to put the main street near the Braintree line in repair. The public will be pleased.

W. W. Dyer had great luck fishing on Little Pond one day recently. He caught a black bass weighing 3 1-2 pounds, and two pickerel weighing 2 and 2 1-2 pounds, respectively. This is the largest catch reported this season.

Geo. D. Willis, Jr., who is with his parents at Allerton, has a kite nine feet high and four feet wide. He has improvised a sort of windlass with which to control this air ship and it gives him lots of sport.

Among the Magazines.

The August number of the Woman's Home Companion is a mid-summer holiday number with twenty-eight interesting pages. Many of the papers and stories are illustrated, notably "Two Sculptors at Home." Helpful papers are those on "Women as Designers," "Practical Lessons in Dressmaking," "Floral Embroidery," "Early Autumn Wraps, and "Young Girls and their Frocks." Published by Mast, Crowell & Kirkpatrick at Springfield, Ohio.

The August issue of "Table Talk," outside of its usual useful and entertaining departments, such as "The New Bill of Fare," "Housekeepers Inquiries," "Seasonable Menus and Recipes," and "Fashion Notes," assumes quite the air of camping life, giving an article on "Cooking in Camp" by Cornelia C. Bedford, and a sketch entitled "Memory of Camp Life on the Plains" by Mrs. Grinnell.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you got a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), done get discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 lbs. for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

SHERIFF ANGERS MEN.

A Proclamation Forbidding Strikers Congregating on Highways.

Strikers Are Marching on De Armitt's Mines.

Situation Is Serious and Trouble Is Expected at Any Moment.

Pittsburg, July 31.—Legal proceedings are to be taken against the marching coal miners unless they disband and go to their homes. Sheriff Harvey A. Lowry will be expected to see to it that the assemblages are disbanded. While the marches on the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company have not been as effective as the miners' officials could wish, it is evident that the marches are making an impression on the employes of the company. Yesterday there was posted in the vicinity of the Turtle Creek, Sandy Creek and Plum Creek mines a proclamation issued by the sheriff, commanding that all persons shall refrain from assembling or congregating on the public highways or thoroughfares of Allegheny county or with interfering with the peace.

It looks as though the sheriff's proclamation would be the biggest factor in bringing about trouble in the vicinity of the De Armitt mines. A meeting of strikers was held at Oak Hill, and it was decided to pay no attention to the sheriff's proclamation, as it was considered to be an outrage. At the meeting it is reported that President Dolan, M. P. Carrick and other leaders told the men that the mandate of the sheriff was unjust and could not be enforced. The result of the meeting was that three meetings were arranged for, one at midnight, one at 2 a. m. and another at 4 a. m., and the men are now marching through the Turtle Creek region in three divisions to reach the meeting places. The different times were chosen for the meetings as the best times to catch the working miners when changing shifts.

Excitement is running high, and if the day passes without a conflict between the strikers and deputies it will be considered almost a miracle.

Non-Union Men Use Pistol.

Scottdale, Pa., July 31.—Wild excitement prevails here. As the afternoon turn of non-union men, who have taken the place of the striking ironworkers at the Scottdale Iron Works, were going home, one o fthem, said to be a man named Painter, became incensed at the remarks of some boys, and deliberately fired at them. A large crowd was gathered about the station at the time, and they started after the non-union man, who fired four or five shots into the crowd before he reached the Geyer house, where he boarded. The hotel was immediately surrounded by an excited crowd and it was with some difficulty that Burgess Porter got them cooled down, and had he not had the assistance of the strike leaders there is no telling what the maddened crowd would have done. Another non-union man, whose name could not be learned, drew his revolver on Pittsburg street and fired several shots. He was knocked down and pretty badly beaten before he could be rescued by the officers and taken to his boarding house. The excited crowd is massed about the station, and the balance of the men in the mill are afraid to venture out.

Dingley Tariff Discussed.

Hamburg, July 31.—The Hamburgischer Correspondent, a semi-official organ, discusses the Dingley tariff, apparently indicating the attitude of the German government in regard to the tariff. The paper says: Although Germany has entered a protest against a differential duty on raw sugar it cannot be overlooked that it constitutes a very doubtful question of international law whether or not a violation of the favored nation treaty is entailed by increasing the duty on articles enjoying a bounty from exporting countries. In all other cases where the Dingley tariff imposes increased duties there is no violation of the favored nation treatment, as the increases apply not only to German, but to all other imports.

Office Seekers Caused Floor to Settle.

Washington, July 31.—Some idea of the size of the vast throng of office seekers that has called upon the president since March 4 was conveyed to the visitors at the White House yesterday, when they saw a number of workmen lifting up and strengthening the floor of the large lobby just outside the president's office. This floor had sunk no less than four inches from the weights imposed upon it. It lies directly above the vast east room, and so cannot be supported from beneath without disfiguring that splendid apartment. A plan has been prepared by Colonel Bingham, the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, for suspending the floor from the heavy roof beams above.

Petitioned Into Insolvency.

Boston, July 31.—Jerome A. Bacon, in business as the Bacon Paper company, has been petitioned into insolvency by creditors. Mr. Bacon has been in business many years, and has been prominent in the trade. He assigned April 29 to Messrs. Gaston & Snow, and at a subsequent meeting of creditors his assets were reported at $1,000,000, with liabilities of $430,000, of which $300,000 was secured by collateral. No settlement resulted from this assignment, and the petition in bankruptcy follows. Among the assets are land on Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street, valued by him at $400,000; mill property at Berlin Mills, N. H., $350,000, and the mill plant at Lawrence, $450,000.

Should Have Gone to Alaska.

New York, July 31.—The British schooner Walleda, which sailed from this port June 12 last with a full cargo of provisions, bound for Baracoa, Cuba, was unable to land her cargo at that port owing to Spanish interference, and was compelled to sail away for a market to Port Antonio, Jam., where the captain's efforts proved futile in effecting a sale of the vessel's cargo. He was then compelled to return to New York with his outward cargo intact.

TO SECURE HIS RELEASE.

Ambassador White Takes Up Case of Young Man Drafted Into German Army.

Berlin, July 31.—Ambassador White is just now giving close attention to a matter which promises to involve some diplomatic complications.

It is the case of Alfred Wessling, son of a naturalized American citizen, Charles Wessling of New York. Young Wessling, while visiting Germany last spring, was drafted into the German army. H protested and proved that he had made a formal declaration of his intention to become a citizen of the United States, although his naturalization had not ben perfected.

His protest was absolutely ignored, and he was enrolled in the Seventy-fourth regiment, stationed in Hanover.

Recently for the petty offense of chaffing, he was struck a violent blow by his sergeant.

Enraged at the injustice, young Wessling felled the sergeant to the ground and fled. Late at night he reached the United States consulate in Hanover, completely fagged out and half starved. United States Consul Crane persuaded him to surrender to the authorities, and he is now awaiting trial on a charge of assaulting his superior.

This offense is punishable in war time by summary execution, after courtmartial, and in time of peace by several years' imprisonment. Ambassador White is endeavoring to secure his release.

ON THE DIAMOND.

National League.

At Philadelphia—

Orth pitched superbly yesterday and had Boston at his mercy until the eighth inning when the visitors jumped on him for four singles and a triple, which, with a base on balls, netted five runs. Clements had a finger split and Long sprained his ankle. There respective places were taken by Boyle and Bob Allen.

Hawaii Expects to Be Annexed.

San Francisco, July 31.—Ellis Mills, the retiring consul general at Honolulu, arrived from the island on the steamer Alameda. Mr. Mills was succeeded by William Hayward, and with his wife he is now on his way back to his home in Virginia. Speaking of political affairs in the islands, Mr. Mills said: "Annexation is now regarded universally by the people of Hawaii as a certainty. The enthusiasm over the annexation movement is more intense now, if such a thing be possible, than it has ever been before. Almost everybody has an abiding faith in the happy result that they all wish for and anticipate. It is confidently expected that the whole matter will be settled when congress meets this fall."

Another Balloon Story.

Winnipeg, July 31.—A Whitemouth dispatch to The Press, received last night, says: At sunset on July 29, Andrew Henderson, a farmer, who lives three miles from Whitemouth, saw a large balloon slowly drifting northeasterly. The balloon seemed to be twice the size of his house, and had a large boat hanging from it. Can it be Andree's? Whitemouth is a lumber town on the Canadian Pacific railroad about 60 miles from Winnipeg, and has a very limited settlement.

BLOOMERS ARE BURIED

Society Would Not Tolerate Such Masculine Garb.

A NEW DOUBLE CENTURY WOMAN.

Lower Gears Likely to Be the Proper Thing Next Year—Best Place For the Saddle—Champion Lucien Lesna Is After American Honors.

The bloomer girl has gone. The public does not miss her much, but certain bicycle manufacturers do. One large concern made thousands of high grade wheels with 22 inch diamond frames in expectation that the bloomer fad would be general and permanent. These little wheels are now being sold at auction, and little men are in clover. The manufacturers bewail the fickleness of the female sex. The fact is that the bloomer craze never gained a footing among that class of people who compose what is known as society and who set the fashions, whereas the wheel carried all before it, and necessity brought forth another costume. The skirt was shortened, knickerbockers were worn under it, and long riding boots took the place of the shoe. This came almost as early as the bloomer and a fierce fight was waged. The former became the rage on the Paris boulevards, and the advocates of the skirt were frightened, but even the French tired of seeing women dressed up as men, and the skirt has carried the day.

The Manhattan Bicycle club has brought out a new double century woman. She is Mrs. Harriet White, who was one of a trio who arrived at the finish 55 minutes ahead of the others who crossed the line. Rainstorms made the roads heavy, and Mrs. White exhibited remarkable pluck and endurance. One header and several minor mishaps failed to discourage the new star, and the prospects are that she will be heard from again.

It is thought that lower gears will be popular next year. Wheelmen are beginning to see that high gears have their disadvantages, and it is very likely that next year the average gear will not be much over 73. High gears are good things on a level road, with wind and weather favorable, but against a heavy head wind or on a hill the ordinary rider with a low gear has an advantage. When it comes to a sprint, the man with a wheel geared to 70 or 73 has a great advantage over an adversary with a wheel geared to 84, as the former can get his mount going long before the other rider, and before the latter realizes it the man with the small gear has jumped entirely away from him.

It has become the fashion to ride with the saddle placed on that portion of the seat rod forward of the post. This brings the rider well over his work and enables him to sit erect, with his hands resting comfortably on the grips. It is a fact that the muscles used in propelling the machine work easier and with relatively less absorption of energy when the saddle is placed fairly well back. There is greater freedom of movement and a better grip, so to speak, on the pedals. Of course the relative position of the saddle must be determined with some reference to the type of the machine. Certain makers give more rake to the center stay than others, but where the average slant is used it is better to have the saddle on the back rod close to the post rather than on the front rod. Of course saddles vary in shape, and the pattern of the saddle as well as the rake of the center stay must also be considered.

Lucien Lesna, the French champion, who has been astonishing Australian wheelmen for some months, wants to try conclusions with the American cracks. He is particularly anxious to meet Michael in a long distance match race in America, having already beaten the little midget in European competition. Lesna's European and Australian victories place him among the foremost riders of the world. In 1894 he placed the championship of France to his credit and in the spring of 1896 won the championship of Europe at the big Berlin meet. One by one he defeated most of the crack sprinters of Europe in match races, ending up with a victory over Michael and Linton in a 50 kilometer race.

Australia marked his best performances. While there he lowered every record from one to 100 miles, going the mile in 1 minute 49 seconds. He made the 100 miles in 3 hours and 45 minutes, which is 14 minutes under the American record. This latter was made at Adelaide when the thermometer registered 106 degrees in the shade. After this he won the ten mile championship of Australia by over a lap in the fast time of 20 minutes 28 seconds. The speedy Frenchman also won a 20 mile race there against four riders, the latter alternating at every mile, while Lesna went through the entire distance, winning out by over a mile. His strong forte is in distances from 25 miles up.

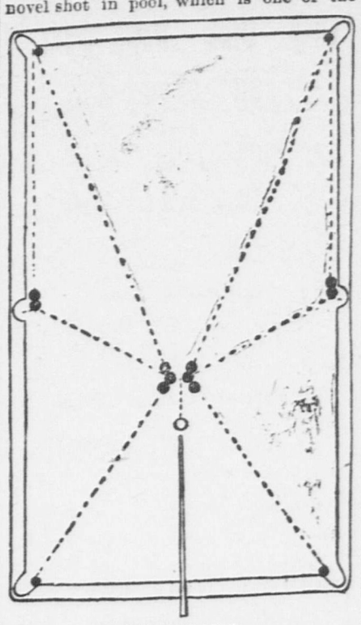

No License For This Dog.

Bowlegged Jack is the police dog at Mamaroneck, N. Y., and in addition to crooked legs, has only one eye. He is anything but handsome, but the village trustees have just honored him by providing that the new license ordinance shall not apply to him. This is for faithful service on the police force. About ten years ago the dog, which is a bulldog, came to town with a tramp. Since then he has lived at the hotels and saloons in daytime and at night patrolled the streets. He knows every resident of Mamaroneck, and never fails in his duty toward them. He has saved three children from drowning. They fell off a dock and Jack jumped in and pulled them out. A burglar once tried to rob the savings bank. The dog caught him and held him for Constable Briggs. He discovered a fire at Henry Winter's home last winter, gave the alarm and saved the family from death. These are a few of Bowlegged Jack's deeds.

FISTIC CARNIVAL.

A Scheme to Have Seven Great Fights In Nevada.

W. A. Brady proposes to have the championships of all classes settled by finish fights on the soil of Nevada in the first week of October, and probably at Reno. In the heavyweight division Peter Maher and Tom Sharkey will settle the dispute that was started at the Palace Athletic club a few months ago. In the light heavyweight division some good man will be secured to meet Joe Choynski. For the middleweight attraction Charles McCoy and Dan Creedon will contest for championship honors, and this should be one of the most interesting features of the carnival. Joe Walcott and George Green ("Young Corbett") are to meet shortly in San Francisco, and the winner of that bout will be matched against "Mysterious Billy" Smith. This will form the welterweight card. For the lightweight battle George Lavigne will meet "Kid" McPartland or some other good man. Either Dixon or Hawkins will be asked to meet Greenfield, the English featherweight, who has beaten all the men in his class across the pond. Either Hawkins or Dixon will meet Greenfield in an international contest. Jimmy Barry, the best bantam in the world, will be asked to mix it with Dave Sullivan or some other good little fellow. Provided Brady secures some one to meet Choynski, he will thus present seven finish battles between the leading pugilists of the world.

GOLF RULES.

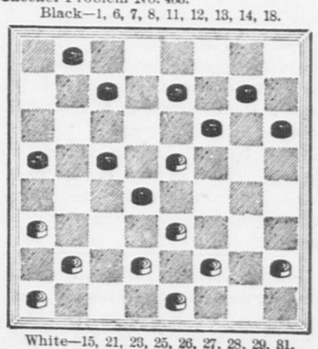

Many Perplexities Over New Rulings and Interpretations.

Some of the new golf rules are puzzling and perplexing. Objections and counter objections have been hurled back and forth, but in defining some of the little points during a game, common sense and good judgment are needed to interpret the technicalities impartially, for cases will continually arise which must be treated upon their own merits. The question of long grass, which has been bothering some golfers, has finally been settled. The committee has made the ruling that long grass is not a hazard, as getting into long grass is practically as bad as the loss of a stroke.

The other question which has been agitated rather prominently is that of turf in a hazard not being regarded as a hazard. In Scotland most of the bunkers are large sand holes, circular depressions in the course, often of considerable size, and patches of turf in these are not considered a hazard. In this country, where nearly all our courses are inland, we have none of these huge sand holes, the only thing conforming to them being the artificial ditches on one or both sides of the artificial bunkers. These are narrow, and the turf question cannot arise here as it does in Scotland, unless through the carelessness of the greenkeeper turf is allowed to grow where it never ought to.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Early Fall Demand For Staple Merchandise Has Increased.

New York, July 31.—Bradstreet's says: The unexpectedly early fall demand for staple merchandise which Bradstreet's announced last week has increased, and although not conspicuous at some of the larger Eastern cities which it is approaching, is notably so at points in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys and in the larger wheat growing states. A special investigation by Bradstreet's this week shows that increased purchases by country merchants in the region specified, based on the prospective large wheat crop at home in the face of short wheat crops abroad, has increased business with Western jobbers from 10 to 15 per cent, compared with fall trade at a like period last year. The total volume of this new business is not large, but it is unusual in this, the dull month of the year, and it is growing.

A number of Western implement factories are unable to fill all their orders for near-by delivery, and one order for shoes along, at St. Louis, calls for $35,000 worth of goods. The depression among woolen manufacturers is less pronounced, because prices of cheviots and other woolens have begun to advance pointing to profit in handling high priced wool. Eastern cheviots for spring delivery are selling at 10 cents over last year, and at Chicago various grades of woolen goods have advanced 10 per cent. The greatest relative improvement among jobbers and wholesalers in various lines is at Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Paul and Minneapolis although at other points, notably in Texas, there is a pronounced feeling of confidence in an early revival of demand, which is already beginning to show itself. A number of the large trunk line railways report that they are carrying more merchandise than one, two or three years ago.

The shutting down of cotton mills to force a reduction of stocks on hand has already stiffened prices, and with existing conditions in other lines of business the outlook is for a better request for cotton goods and for iron and steel in the early autumn. The most favorable feature of trade is its slow, conservative, steady expansion, it being based on the increased wants and larger consumptive capacity of the agricultural community, for whom the prospect is brighter than it has been for six years.

Practically the only decreases in quotations this week are for iron and steel; prices of oats and print cloths are unchanged. The list of advances is longer and more significant, including prices of wheat flour, wheat, Indian corn, lard, sugar, livestock, cotton, woolen goods, lead and nails.

Bank clearings throughout the country continue the encouraging exhibit made for several weeks past, the total being $1,043,000,000—about 5 per cent less than last week.

There are 259 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, rather more than the average in recent weeks.

President Enjoys Vacation.

Hotel Champlain, N. Y., July 31.—The weather has been delightful here, the rain clouds having cleared away and the sun bringing out all the majestic beauty of lake and mountain scenery. The President and Mrs. McKinley have hugely enjoyed the surroundings the quiet afforded them. Yesterday the president and Mr. Porter took a long walk about the beautiful wooded park, and the president took great delight in the shaded paths and wild forest nooks in which the place abounds. About 4:30 the President and Mrs. McKinley, General and Mrs. Alger and Mr. Porter enjoyed an hour's drive. Mrs. McKinley felt much revived by the fresh, balmy air. Shortly after noon the Twenty-first regiment band came up from the post and serenaded the president. The president and Mrs. McKinley enjoyed the music from the veranda, and both the president and General Alger sent notes of thanks and compliments to the leader. The president is looking ahead to a most enjoyable time here, and will participate to some extent in all the pleasures that make life here so delightful.

Sardine Canners on a Strike.

Machias, Me., July 31.—The sardine packers employed in the factories of the Bucks Harbor and Indian River Packing company have gone out on a strike after asking for an advance of 2 cents per case. These employes were receiving at the close of last season's work 6 and 8 cents per case. They claim that they were promised 8 cents for mustards and 10 cents for oils at the opening of the present canning season, which promise has not been fulfilled. The company has plenty of sardines, but is compelled to delay canning until the strike is settled.

GALLO'S GOLD FOUND.

Hidden Under Carpet In Williams' Room at Wakefield.

Strong Chain of Evidence Is Being Forged.

Alleged Murderer Reiterates Story That He Found Money.

Lynn, Mass., July 31.—While Alfred C. Williams, who is held on suspicion of the murder of John Gallo, the Italian farm hand, in Lynnfield, is in the Lynn police station awaiting the formality of a preliminary trial on the charge, State Officer Neal continues his work of investigation into the circumstances surrounding the finding of the body, and each day manages to weave together evidence which tends to point strongly to the arrested man as the culprit.

The finding of the two $20 gold piece in the room in Carleton's lodging house in Wakefield, which was occupied by Williams during his residence there, and the fact that Gallo, the murdered man is known to have had several gold pieces of this denomination in his possession previous to the murder, is considered the most damaging piece of evidence which has so far been discovered towards establishing the probable connection of Williams with the crimes of murder arson and robbery.

Walter Hickey, his fellow worker and boarder, who was the first man to see Williams on Wednesday morning, was also the last man who saw him on Tuesday night as far as the police have been able to find out, but no one can be found who saw him between 11 p. m. and 4:30 a. m.

Williams was seen last night in the police station. He seemed rather gloomy, though not particularly worried. He was asked if he had anything to say about the finding of the gold in his room, and he replied that he did not know there was any gold there. If any was found someone must have put it there, for if he had known it was there he would have used it Tuesday when he had some bills to pay.

He said that while he was on his way to Wakefield, he was knocked down and robbed near Wakefield farm, and laid unconscious from 2:30 a. m. until he saw Hickey, about 4:30 a. m. He was then bleeding and suffering from his wounds.

He knew John Gallo, but had no enmity against him, and he did not know he had any money. He last thing he would dream of would be to rob him He said he wanted to go to Klondyke and the matter had been talked over at the farm, but it amounted to nothing but talk. He made no plans to go because he had no money, though it was possible that in the spring he could have got some from his brother.

Said he: "If they are holding me for killing Gallo, they have made a bad mistake."

He said the first he knew of the trouble at Lynnfield was after he had had breakfast and washed himself Wednesday morning. He knew the place so well that he couldn't rest until he had been out there and seen how things were and what had happened. He went there, saw where the fire had been, and talked with his friends on the farm about it. He staid there some time and then went up into his old room in Phillips' barn He changed his clothes there because the ones he had on were blood-stained and he wanted some clean ones. After that he went back to Wakefield, taking the road that led him past the Wakefield farm, where he was robbed. As he was going there he found the handkerchief with the $75 in bills in it, and took it, thinking that the man who assaulted him might have dropped it.

That was all he knew about the affair and all he cared to say.

Chief Vannah says that when Williams called at his office at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning to tell him about the assault and robbery of himself, his face was bloody and there were blood stains on his clothes. Williams' story seemed so plausible that the chief attached no special importance to the presence of the blood, but in the light of later developments he recalls the fact that the stains were too fresh to have been made at midnight, and when the victim had been lying in the open air for several hours.

Reunion of Anthony Family.

Adams, Mass., July 31.—There was a notable gathering at the old Anthony homestead yesterday afternoon, when a reunion of the Anthony family was held. After dinner there was an interesting program of speaking, and Miss Susan B. Anthong indulged in a lengthy family history. Among the other speakers were George B. Anthony, Henry Luther, Mrs. Mattie B. Mashier, Mrs. Emily Clark Griggs, Colonel D. R. Anthony of the Leavenworth (Kan.) Times, Mrs. Eliza Shore Cook, Mrs. Wright Sewall, Mrs. Clara Colby and Mrs. Ida H. Harper.

Farmers Complain Bitterly.

Greenville, N. H., July 31.—The recent heavy rains in southern New Hampshire have caused the farmers to bitterly complain of the great damage to the hay and potato crops. In some places the hay has remained on the meadow land for three weeks undisturbed and is rotten, when had it not been for the rain a second crop superior to any in the past five years could have been saved. To make matters worse the potato worm has caused considerable loss by destroying several fine gardens of potato seed.

An American Actress Who Has Scored a Phenomenal Success In London.

It is always pleasant to record the success of an American actress who has the temerity to invade the British metropolis, where it is unusual for theater goers to admit the possession of ability by any but the best known foreign artists. Clara

CLARA THROPP.

Thropp went over there comparatively unknown, and it must be admitted that even her friends here were somewhat fearful of the result. She has seen and conquered, and there is not now in London a soubrette who would have less difficulty in getting a good engagement than this same American girl who had the pluck to make an experiment of the outcome of which her confidence in her own ability made her certain. She is playing the title role in the piece in London which is an Anglicized version of "The Girl From Paris," the musical comedy which has run for nearly 300 performances at the Herald Square theater in New York city, where it was unquestionably the success of the season. The London critics have unstintedly praised the work and methods of Miss Thropp, which is of itself enough to entitle her to be regarded as something out of the ordinary.

It is not likely that this charming little soubrette will return to this country for a long time, for England is the home of the so called musical comedy, and Miss Thropp is essentially an exponent of that type of theatrical representation. She is, however, well remembered by Americans, who admired her before her reputation had become international, and were quick to recognize the fact that she was possessed of ability.

Clara Thropp was born in Washington in 1872. She made her debut on the stage at 3 years of age, appearing in "Lemons" with John L. Ford's stock company in Washington. Later she played children's parts with Joseph Jefferson and John McCullough. She was with Mr. Jefferson one year.

Miss Thropp's first woman s part was that of Taggs in "The County Fair." Afterward she played leading business with Evans & Hoey, appearing as Innocent Kid in "A Parlor Match." An engagement with Wood & Sheppard and Hallen & Hart in "Later On" followed, and on the conclusion of that Miss Thropp was given Adele Ritchie's place in "The Algerian." She next appeared with Tim Murphy, playing the soubrette part in "Lem Kettle."

Following this engagement Miss Thropp became a member of the stock company organized for the purpose of presenting one act comediettas at Keith's magnificent Boston theater. There she again made a pronounced hit, and after short seasons with various organizations she received an offer to go to London to originate the part above referred to, with the understanding that if she proved equal to its demand she would be retained, but that if she fell short it would be given to some one else. The issue was not long in doubt, and she speedily became a prime London favorite.

Miss Thropp is not merely an actress. She is also a student and is possessed of literary ability of no mean order. She has written a couple of novels which have enjoyed a large circulation and is also the author of several very good plays.

Francis Wilson and Lulu Glaser.

Olga Nethersole's famous "Carmen" kiss has been thrown into the shade. It was a make believe sort of osculatory exercise at best and proved a nine days' wonder. Now Lulu Glaser comes forward as a competitor in the kissing line, with Francis Wilson as the kissee. The comedian visited Miss Glaser at her home, near Pittsburg, the other day, and reports from there say that "Miss Glaser did not hesitate to salute him in the regulation comic opera style by giving him a resounding kiss on the mouth." There was no acting in that embrace, so it should take precedence over the "Carmen" episode.

It is accepted as a fact that the principal reason for Wilson's visit to Miss Glaser is due to the reports that she is to replace Della Fox in the triple star alliance next season. Miss Glaser came into public notice through Wilson's "Half a King," prior to the production of which she had scarcely been heard of. How she could pose as one of a trio of stars is beyond ordinary comprehension.

"What Happened to Jones."

George H. Broadhurst's title for his new comedy, "What Happened to Jones," never fitted a story better than this one related by George Ober. The actor overheard some acquaintances in the hotel lobby at Hastings-on-the-Hudson discussing the demise of one Bill Jones, a well known character in that lively country village. Ober immediately joined the group, whereupon the following conversation ensued:

"Did I understand you to say Bill Jones is dead?"

"Yep. Died last Thursday."

"Is it possible!"

"Yes, that's right."

"So Bill Jones is dead! Well, well!"

"Yes, he's dead."

"Do you know I can scarcely believe it. Poor chap! Poor Bill! I knew him well. So he's really dead, is he?"

"Well, if he ain't, he's in a darned bad predicament. I saw him buried."

A Big Colored Pugilist.

A promising new negro pugilist is Peter Felix, and he is first cousin to the one time great Peter Jackson, whom his picture shows him to resemble as closely as if he were his twin brother. Felix was born in the West Indies about 27 years ago. He has followed the sea until the last few years, when his pugilistic prowess brought him superior remuneration on terra firma. Most of his doings have been in Australia. The colored man now claims the heavyweight championship of that country and is desirous of annexing the American emblem to his pennant.

The Brook.

I come from thawing mountain peaks.
I make a sudden sally,
Down where my tributary creeks
Have overflowed the valley.

I cut a channel through the crops
With fiercely flowing current,
And neither bank nor levee stops
My onward rushing torrent.

I undermine the earthen dike.
I wreck, destroy and pillage,
And swing across a bend and strike
Slambang right through a village.

I roar and thunder on my way
To join the brimming ocean,
For men may dig and dam and pray,
But cannot check my motion.

The swine and kine I gayly drown
Or drive to distant ridges.
I whoop along and flood the town
And ruin fifty bridges.

The farmer seeks the tallest tree,
And while I sing and carol
His wife goes rushing toward the sea
Tight clinging to a barrel,

And houses, churches, household ware
And corpses, hen coops, fences.
I hurry to the southward, where
The great gulf stream commences.

I roar and thunder on my way
To join the brimming ocean,
For men may dig and dam and pray,
But cannot check my motion.

It Cannot Be.

It cannot be that he who made
This wondrous world for our delight
Designed that all its charms should fade
And pass forever from our sight;
That all shall wither and decay
And know on earth no life but this,
With only one finite survey
Of all its beauty and its bliss.

It cannot be that all the years
Of toil and care and grief we live
Shall find no recompense but tears,
No sweet return that earth can give;
That all that leads us to aspire
And struggle onward to achieve,
With every unattained desire,
Was given only to deceive.

It cannot be that after all
The mighty conquests of the mind
Our thoughts shall pass beyond recall
And leave no record here behind;
That all our dreams of love and fame
And hopes that time has swept away,
All that inthralled this mortal frame,
Shall not return some other day.

It cannot be that all the ties
Of kindred souls and loving hearts
Are broken when this body dies
And the immortal mind departs;
That no serener light shall break
At last upon our mortal eyes
To guide us as our footsteps make
The pilgrimage to paradise.

On Life's Ladder.

For him who seeks to rise few hands reach down to claim his grip.
Few warning words are heard above to save him from a slip.
Each upward step he takes must be through efforts of his own,
For every one that's gained the top would like to be alone.

For him who stumbles on the way a thousand hands reach out
To grasp and pull him down into the misery haunted rout.
There's scanty welcome at the top for him
that wins; but, oh,
What joyous greetings does he get who joins the ranks below!

Whose heart some fault or fancied grievance

That, unrevealed, in broken trust must end.

Very Similar.

Some tandems are like marriage,
And this truth we cannot shirk:
The girl gets most attention,
While the man does all the work.

At this moment thousands of men are standing at the cross-roads of life. Death in the guise of a foolish ambition coaxes them to take one road, while health and happiness in the form of wife and babies coax them to take the other. For the sake of a few added dollars will they continue to over-work and neglect the commonest precautions for the preservation of health, or will they listen to love and reason and draw back before it is too late? A man may do almost any amount of good, hard work if he will take care of his health and when he feels out of sorts will take the right remedy.

The great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve tonic is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the hard-workers' medicine. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood and tones and steadies the nerves. It makes the appetite hearty and brings refreshing sleep. Thousands of hard-workers owe their lives to it and have said so over their signatures. Druggists all sell it and all substitutes are frauds.

"I was taken with erysipelas in my hands and went to the doctor," writes Mrs. Lena Baumgartner, of Joy, Charlevoix Co., Mich. "He said he could not cure me. He gave me medicine to ease me but the disease spread all over my body. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of the 'Favorite Prescription' and am entirely cured. I have a boy three weeks old. I was helpless two or three months before confinement, but after taking the 'Favorite Prescription' I was able to do my washing three days before I was confined."

There is scarcely a known form of ill-health that constipation will not cause or aggravate. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are an unfailing cure for constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative.

PRINCE IN NEW YORK

TAKEHITO, COUSIN OF THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN, ENVIES HIS VALET.

Saitow Made a Portrait of His Servant's Sweetheart—Prince Tells the Story of Yamagata, Who Left a High Station to Wear a Valet's Uniform.

Prince Takehito of Japan held a levee the other morning at the Waldorf hotel, New York. They were talking in Japanese. Suddenly Saitow, master of the prince's household, entered and let himself fall into a soft armchair. Then they talked in French. "Meta," he said to his valet, "bring wine and cigarettes."

"Oh," said the prince, admiring the serious impassability with which Meta placed on the table several pretty Bohemian glasses, "that man is happy! What president of an American railway company, what tenor, what prelate would dare say he is happier than Meta?

"Like you, Saitow, he has seen Sarah Bernhardt, Felix Faure, Balfour, Letty Lind and all the modern celebrities. Like you, he walks on carpets of the Savonnerie and takes his coffee from a cup of Saxony ware. Happy man!"

"It is true," said Saitow, his smile making his little eyes smaller than holes pierced by a gimlet, "that after the condition of a professional beauty in England that of a valet is the happiest. You know our proverb—when we say that we have a wife, we mean that a wife has us.

"We haven't a valet; he has us. On my word of honor, mine succeeded in making me paint the portrait of his sweetheart."

"And mine," said Funaki, author of a successful symphony, "plays a clarinet in my house in spite of me, and I suffer it."

"Mine," said one, "writes comic dramas."

"Does he shine your boots?"

"Sometimes."

"You should be glad that he does not make you shine his."

"Such things have happened," said the prince. "One of our great poets," he continued, "has written books expressly to relate to Europe and Asia the eccentricities of his negro. That negro was a fellow who knew how to make his master shine his shoes. In Paris, when the theaters sent box tickets, that charming young man, whose name was Abdullah, made his choice from the package and took his girl to see a vaudeville that touched his heart."

"He was honest?"

"What do you take him for? When his master sent him to a creditor to get money, he acquitted himself of his errand scrupulously.

"He brought back the money?"

"On the contrary, it was Abdullah who was brought back, three days later, with a bill for $40 for expense of nursing. He collected the money, but he spent it. His master worshiped him."

"I can appreciate that," said Saitow. "Marquis Ito's valet is something like that. He has invented a water which makes the hair grow."

"Gentlemen," said Funaki, "we are all convinced that the condition of a valet is the best in the world, and we wouldn't have it. But whom could we serve? Our lackeys wouldn't make masters of themselves. Only we are silly enough for that."

"My friends," said the prince, "do not calumniate all humanity. I know a man of wit who has the courage of—your opinion."

"Tell us about him."

The prince arranged the pillows on a divan and made himself comfortable. "By a caprice of fate my friend was called Yamagata, like our heroic marshal. I liked him. He was a charming fellow. I had made his acquaintance at the house of a German noblewoman.

"Yamagata was 22 years old, a dreamer, full of systems and utopias. He placed the absurd not in his conversation as others do, but in his life, as great men do. He was learned and wrote superbly. But his maxim was that 'personal responsibility is the source of all human ills,' and he declared that there were only two good conditions in this world, that of a woman and that of a servant.

"As he couldn't become a woman he pursued the ideal of becoming a valet. 'Ah, my dear Takehito,' he would say, 'when will I ever wear the livery of liberty, independence, oblivion of good and evil?'

"One morning he came in transfigured. 'At last,' he said, 'I am happy. You see in me the valet of M. Bischoffsheim, a rich banker.' I said not a word. I caught his arm and ran with him to the palace. We locked him up in a room and made him write a memoir. 'We'll give you $1,000 for it,' I said. 'Do as you wish,' he replied, 'some day or other I shall be a servant.'

"The war came. I lost all trace of him. A month ago I met him in Paris, standing like a statue at the door of a coupe, wearing a pale blue costume, with silver buttons and tan topped boots."

"The moral of this," asked Saitow, "is what?"

"There is no moral. The moral at the end is what spoils the fable."

"Then let us go out and breathe the pure air of the park," said Funaki.

The prince, escorted by the consul and the minister at Washington and followed by his train, in carriages, went to the park and the Riverside drive.

At his return the prince found a dozen drawings made by Bai-Itsou, an artist of Kioto in 1820, representing fish and birds. There are no drawings like these in any classic school. They are beautiful. They are a gift to the prince from Bing of Paris and came by a messenger on La Touraine.

The prince started reluctantly for Vancouver. He likes New York.—New York Journal.

NEWER GOLDFIELDS.

Canadian Officials Know of a District Richer Than the Klondike.

It is well known in Ottawa that reports have reached the several departments of the government lately from officers in the Canadian service in the Yukon country. The minister of the interior issued a pamphlet the other day upon the Yukon mining district, but beyond sketch maps and photographs by William Ogilvie, chief of the boundary survey, it contains nothing really new.

The cause of this reticence is easily explained. The government dreads the consequences of a rush to the goldfields of that inhospitable region and is unwilling by giving publicity to the facts recently received from officers as to the wonders of the goldfields to contribute to an overpopulation of the Yukon while no means yet exist of getting in an adequate food supply.

But it has leaked out that the reports which came down by the last mail from Fort Cudahy, and which are now in the government's possession, are such as put the accounts of the returned miners with which the newspapers have been filled for days completely in the shade. It is known that discoveries have been made of placer grounds far exceeding in richness even the marvelous deposits of the Klondike. Just as the miners deserted the paying placer diggings at Forty Mile camp when the tardy news of the Klondike discovery reached that section, so, about June 1, scores of miners and prospectors at Klondike were leaving their claims for the newer and richer fields.

These are situated farther up the Yukon, in the Stewart river district. Should these diggings prove to be anything like as rich as reported by the government officials this will be the greatest goldfield ever discovered. The Stewart river, an affluent of the Yukon, drains an immense area and innumerable creeks, all of which are said to be marvelously rich in gold. Another advantage of the new district is that it is many miles nearer the coast than Klondike by the White, Chilkat and Dyea pass trail, the chief routes traveled by prospectors bringing in their supplies. —Dispatch to New York Herald.

ROYALTY IN EXILE.

King of the Mosquito Coast Forced to Flee to Jamaica.

Until quite recently there was but one king on the two American continents. Now he is suspended from his job. He is king of the Mosquito Coast, an unpleasant country lying between Nicaragua and British Honduras. The Mosquito Coast is under an English protectorate, the king's salary being guaranteed by Nicaragua.

When in full enjoyment of his regal dignity, he had a salary of $5,000 a year.

The king's name is Clarence. The Nicaraguans covet his dominions. His majesty and his chief advisers have been at a considerable disadvantage in all diplomatic negotiations owing to the fact that it is part of their court etiquette to be drunk on all public occasions.

The king's state costume consists of an old but imposing full dress uniform which formerly belonged to a captain in the British navy.

The republic has now refused to pay his pension, and he has appealed to England for support. He fled to Jamaica. There an allowance of $7.50 a day was given to him pending the settlement of the question. On this sum he is living in luxury, surrounded by a few devoted courtiers.—Exchange.

He Reckoned Without the Law.

Some years ago William L. Everett, a resident of Hempstead, N. Y., who loved money better than he did anything else, induced his wife to separate from him and support herself in consideration of a payment to her of $700 in cash.

From that day until he died, recently, Everett considered that deal the best bargain he ever made during his lifetime. He, however, counted without the law, for now that it has been discovered that he leaves about $15,000 in cash his wife will come in for her dower share.

Everett was so close that he would not even have a fire in winter and seldom ate anything but raw potatoes, turnips and bread. The baker's wagon was the only one that stopped at his miserable home. He lived alone and kept his neighbors away from his house. He was found suffering by Anthony Wheatley and removed to the latter's home, where he died.—New York Telegram.

The Latest Snake Story.

Mrs. R. P. Cowell of Walnut Valley, Warren county, has been missing the children's playthings of late. She could not account for the frequent losses until she entered the playroom of the children the other day and saw a large rattlesnake sucking the baby's bottle. The snake escaped, but was discovered later chasing a mouse about the room. After swallowing the mouse a blow with a broomstick laid it low.

Mr. Cowell dissected the snake and found all the children's playthings in its stomach. The snake had seven rattles. The region about Walnut Valley is alive with snakes this season.—New York Times.

The Shot of the Day.

They play at golf along the downs,
And he is tall and she is fair.
Her dress is gay with reds and browns,
And his is trim and debonair.

They play an hour or may be more,
And neither seems to try to win,
And then they wander to the shore
To watch the tireless tide come in,

While on the links, with jaunty airs,
Dan Cupid now the golf club swings.
His dress is chic. He lightly wears
A very modest pair of wings.

He sets the ball upon the tee,
Then toward the couple far away
A fleeting glance—a stroke—and he Has made the triumph of the day.
—New York Truth.

THE TATTLER.

Mrs. Marion Crawford, wife of the famous novelist, has dark eyes and golden hair, two things rarely found in the same person.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts has given for the London poor $1,000,000. She is still ready, hand and purse, in the cause of charity.

Miss Greene, a beautiful American, long prominent in London, is engaged to be married to a member of the British ducal family of Hamilton.

Three sets of twins, all born within the same hour, break the record in Smyrna, Del., two girls being born to Mrs. Jefferson Staats, two boys to Mrs. Amos Walker and two boys to Mrs. Gray Deakyne.

The French republic provides for ex-Empress Eugenie a constant bodyguard in the person of a Corsican, whose service dates from her own reign. He "shadows" her faithfully at a distance to protect her life in her frequent walks.

Miss Lydia Leggett is the pastor of the Unitarian church in Dighton, Mass. Desiring to enter the Divinity school at Harvard, the faculty decided by a special vote to admit her, and now she attends the school and still retains her pastorate, preaching in Dighton every Sunday.

An English paper says that Florence Nightingale "received her Christian name from the town in which she was born—Florence. Her name is not Nightingale, but Shore, her father being a Nottingham banker who inherited the estates of Peter Nightingale on condition that he assume the name."

One of the most remarkable women in Pennsylvania is Mrs. Mary Ann Cassidy of Coalport, Clearfield county, who is now 105 years of age. She was the mother of 13 boys and 5 girls; 9 are living and 9 dead. She gave birth to four pairs of twins. Mrs. Cassidy was born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1792.

By the will of Dora B. Pike of Chelmsford, Mass., her entire estate is left to Bishop John F. Hurst of Washington, to be held in trust. During the lifetime of Mary E. Chase the income from the estate is to be paid her, and upon her death the entire estate is to revert to the American University of Washington, a Methodist institution.

Juliette Atkinson, who is again the champion woman tennis player of this country, was a chorus girl in a comic opera last winter. She made this humble start with the idea of advancing in her profession, and she announces her intention of continuing in the future to play tennis in the summer and stick to comic opera in winter.

One of the smallest women in the world lives in the village of Hartley, England. Marguerite Luddaby, or "the living doll of Hartley," as she is called, is not 12 inches high and weighs less than two pounds, though apparently full grown. She is well formed and pretty and said to be bright and intelligent—in fact, a miniature woman, who resembles more than anything else an animated doll.

THE SEALS.

There are hardly enough fur seals left to get mad about.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The English editors ought really to feel grateful to Secretary Sherman for giving them something to talk about now that the jubilee is over.—Boston Globe.

Secretary Sherman's sealing letter has stirred up a lot of bitter words in London. It is a pity that the sugary interchange of jubilee compliments should be so soon and sharply ended.—Boston Journal.

The English press agrees that Mr. Sherman was very impertinent, but, according to the latest dispatches, the English foreign office doesn't mind it a little bit. Lord Salisbury is used to our blunt way of stating things.—Springfield Republican.

The twisting of the tail of the British lion by Secretary Sherman has made the animal roar, but that is all it will amount to. If the United States didn't make the B. L. roar occasionally, his vocal chords wouldn't get the needed exercise.—Minneapolis Journal.

We regret to observe that Mr. Bull is in an excited frame of mind. He takes it hard that Mr. Sherman should have told him that he played the sneak on the subject of the Paris award on the seal fisheries, but the difficulty commenced when the sneakery commenced.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

RAILWAY TIES.

On the state railways in Germany the carriages are painted according to the colors of the tickets of their respective classes. First class carriages are painted yellow, second class green and third class white.

A train always exerts greater strain on an iron bridge when going quickly than when going slowly. When a train goes over the bridge, it causes a wave to travel along the structure, owing to the elasticity of the iron.

Sand is heaped on the tracks at the Dresden switchyard to check the speed of the cars. The trains are made up by gravity, the grade being 1 per cent, enough to keep the cars moving under ordinary circumstances. When the wind blows hard, however, they move too fast and sand is used as a check.

HOMELY HINTS.

The pen strikes worse than the tongue.

Where right concedes everything, it is apt to lose all.

Don't spend more time in teaching your parrot than yourself.

It is a common bluff to accuse others of one's own ignorance.

Did you ever know a kleptomaniac to take the other fellow's blue pills?

There is more solid compassion in a single cent than in a hundred sentiments.

The blackguard should be taught that in this country fists are as free as speech.

When you begin to feel big enough to wear the moon on your watch chain, look out for a total eclipse.—New York Telegram.

ROYALTY.

The Prince of Wales will be president of the royal commission having charge of the British section of the Paris exposition of 1900.

It is said that the German emperor is not at all in favor of bazaars as a means of raising money for charitable purposes, and since the disaster in Paris he has been more than usually bitter in his denunciation of them.

The empress of Austria collects cows. This is a curious habit on the part of her imperial majesty, but it is one which she faithfully pursues. At whatever place she stays she purchases a cow, which becomes part of her luggage when she returns home after her travels.

A silver offering will be taken at each meeting to aid the work of the Volunteer movement.

Castle Square Theatre.

The success of the Castle Square Theatre Company continues uninterrupted by the counter attractions presented by Dame Nature on sea and shore and the record of the three months just ended has never been approached by a dramatic organization in this city in the summer time. The attraction announced for the coming week is one that assures a continuance of the popular favor shown the organization as a grand production of Sir Charles Young's society drama "Jim the Penman" is promised with the following strong cast: James Ralston, (Jim the Penman) J. H. Gilmour; Louis Percival, Chas. Mackay; Baron Hardtfeldt, William Humphrey; Lord Drelincourt, Ned H. Fowler; Capt. Redwood, Lindsay Morrison; Jack Ralston, Tony Cummings; Dr. Pettywise, M. D., Horace Lewis; Nina Ralston, Lillian Lawrence; Agnes Ralston, Mary Saunders; Lady Drelincourt, Rose Morrison. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is announced to follow on Monday, August 9th.

—A judge down in Kentucky deserves to go to the head of the class. He charged a jury the other day as follows: "If you believe what the counsel for the plaintiff has told you, your verdict will be for the plaintiff, but if on the other hand, you believe what the defendants counsel has told you, you will give your verdict for the defendant. But if you are like me and don't believe what either of them said, I don't know what you will do." It is needless to say that, having full confidence in the court, the jury disagreed.

Keith's Theatre.

James Horne, a well known and talented Boston actor, assisted by Justin Adams and Marie Falls, is to present a comedy sketch at Keith's the week of Aug. 2 which those who have seen it in rehearsal think will make a genuine hit. It is quick in action, bright in dialogue and abounds in absurd situations, all of which will produce laughs without number. Mme. Ida Klein, one of the most noted of American singers, is to make her vaudeville debut, appearing as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra players. This artist is possessed of a phenominal soprano voice, which has been heard in German and Italian opera, where she won many laurels, and she was at one time a star singer with the celebrated Boston Ideals.

The ventilating arrangements are such that Keith's is a comfortably cool place, even on the hottest days, and ladies, when they get through their shopping invariably drop in there to freshen up their toilets and get generally rested before proceeding to their homes.

Wild West Show.

Pawnee Bill's Wild West show will open a two weeks' engagement at the Charles River Park, Boston, Aug. 2, giving two performances daily, at 2 P. M. and 8 P. M. The band of Indians with the show is one of the most picturesque ever seen. It includes Sioux, Comanches, Cheyennes and Pawnees; who appear in various wild western bits of realism on horseback in war paint and feathers. Cowboys, Mexicans, South American Gauchos, crack shots and skilful men at lassoing wild Texas steers, combine in giving a spirited and altogether interesting performance. Pawnee Bill and his handsome wife, May Lillie, also take part and give a display of expert rifle practice. A Mexican band furnishes the music.

CHENILLE DRAPERIES, $1 each. Regular price, $6 per pair. GUY'S COLISEUM.
